3412	Racine Steel Castings, Div. of Evans Prod. Co. v. Hardy, 139 Wis. 2d 232, 236, 407 N.W.2d 299, 301 (Ct. App. 1987), rev'd, 144 Wis. 2d 553, 426 N.W.2d 33 (1988)	3	Worker's compensation laws are basically economic regulations by which legislature, as matter of public policy, has balanced competing societal interests; such balance permits worker to recover regardless of his own fault or his employer's absence of fault, and employer's common-law defenses of contributory negligence, assumption of risk, and fellow-servant rule are abrogated, and in exchange, worker is obliged to accept limited and scheduled compensation award.	The compromise involves trade-offs: the worker recovers regardless of his own fault or his employer's absence of fault; the employer's common law defenses of contributory negligence, assumption of risk, and the fellow-servant rule are abrogated, and in exchange the worker is obliged to accept a limited and scheduled compensation award. Id. at 180, 290 N.W.2d at 280. Worker's compensation laws are basically economic regulations by which the legislature, as a matter of public policy, has balanced competing societal interests.	"Are worker's compensation laws basically economic regulations by which the legislature, as a matter of public policy, has balanced competing societal interests?"

3413	North Dakota v. United States, 495 U.S. 423, 443, 110 S. Ct. 1986, 1999, 109 L. Ed. 2d 420 (1990)	8	Although military authorities are entitled to judicial deference on questions relating to military discipline and military operations, no special deference to military's interpretation of federal regulations is required in questions relating to allocation of power between the federal and state government on civilian commercial issues.	When the Court is confronted with questions relating to military discipline and military operations, we properly defer to the judgment of those who must lead our Armed Forces in battle. But in questions relating to the allocation of power between the Federal and State Governments on civilian commercial issues, we heed the command of Congress without any special deference to the military's interpretation of that command.	Is special deference accorded to military's interpretation of federal regulations on questions relating to allocation of power between the federal and state government on civilian commercial issues?
3414	ConocoPhillips Company v. Noble Energy, Inc., 462 S.W.3d 255, 264 (Tex.App.-Hous. (14 Dist.), 2015)	2	Good cause necessary to withdraw an admission is established by showing that the failure involved was an accident or mistake, not intentional or the result of conscious indifference. Tex. R. Civ. P. 198.3.	"Good cause is established by showing that the failure involved was an accident or mistake, not intentional or the result of conscious indifference.	"Is the good cause for withdrawing deemed admissions established by showing the failure to respond to such requests within 30 days was an accident or mistake, not intentional or the result of conscious indifference?"
3415	Wright v. United States, 81 Fed. Cl. 369, 374–75 (2008)	6	In military pay cases, the "constructive service doctrine" embodies the concept that members of the military who have been improperly discharged are treated as having continued to serve until they are properly discharged; they are therefore entitled to back pay and allowances for that period of constructive service.	Plaintiff bases his right to recovery pursuant to the Military Pay Act on the constructive service doctrine. See Pl.'s Br. filed Jan. 31, 2008, at 3–5. The constructive service doctrine embodies the concept that "members of the military who have been improperly discharged are treated as having continued to serve until they are properly discharged; they are therefore entitled to back pay and allowances for that period of constructive service." Christian v. United States , 337 F.3d 1338, 1341–42 (Fed.Cir.2003).	Are military personnel who are improperly discharged entitled to back pay and allowances for the period of constructive service?
3417	Kornberg v. Getz Exterminators, Inc., 341 S.W.2d 819, 820 (Mo. 1961)	1	Filing of motion to make more definite and certain is a concession that petition states claim upon which relief can be granted, but challenges, as an injustice to defendant, the stating of claim in manner pleaded. Section 509.050 RSMo 1949, V.A.M.S.	The filing of a motion to make more definite and certain is, in effect, a concession that the petition states a claim upon which relief can be granted, but challenges, as an injustice to defendant, the stating of the claim in the manner pleaded.	"Is the filing of motion to make more definite and certain, a concession that the petition states claim upon which relief can be granted?"

3420	Bireline v. Espenscheid, 304 N.E.2d 508, 511, 15 Ill.App.3d 368, 372 (Ill.App. 1973)	7	Taking of deposition must be at time and place which has been specified in notice or to which it may have been regularly and properly adjourned and disregard of such requirement, unless waived, will render the deposition vulnerable to motion to suppress; however, such motion to suppress must be made in apt time and before trial. Supreme Court Rules, rule 211, S.H.A. ch. 110A, S 211.	The taking of a deposition must be at the time and place specified in the notice thereto or to which it may have been regularly and properly adjourned. A disregard of this requirement, Unless waived, will render the deposition vulnerable to a motion to suppress it. Ward Pump Co. v. Industrial Comm., 302 Ill. 199, 134 N.E. 127. However, the motion to suppress must be made in apt time and before trial.	Should the taking of deposition be at time and place specified in the notice thereto or to which it may have been regularly and properly adjourned?
3421	National Bank of Georgia v. Great Southern Business Enterprises, Inc., 130 Ga.App. 221, 221 (Ga.App., 1973)	2	Party who fails to answer request for admissions of fact within the required time may seek to "withdraw" his admissions but he must take the initiative and file a motion, otherwise he is bound by such admissions. Code, SS 81A-106(b), 81A-136(b).	[A] party who fails to answer within the required time may seek to 'withdraw' his admissions but he must take the initiative and file a Motion, otherwise he is bound by such admissions.	Can a party who fails to answer request for admissions of fact within the required time can seek to withdraw his admissions?
3422	Spiecker v. Petroff, 971 S.W.2d 536, 538 (Tex. App. 1997)	5	Even a slight excuse will suffice as good cause for withdrawal of deemed admissions, especially when delay or prejudice to opposing party will not result. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 169(2).	Good cause is established by a showing that the failure to respond to the request for admissions "was an accident or mistake, not intentional or the result of conscious indifference." Id. "Even a slight excuse will suffice, especially when delay or prejudice to the opposing party will not result."	"Does even a slight excuse suffice as a good cause for withdrawal of deemed admissions, especially when delay or prejudice to opposing party will not result?"
3423	Watson v. Dallas Indep. Sch. Dist., 135 S.W.3d 208, 215 (Tex. App. 2004), disapproved of by Univ. of Texas Med. Branch at Galveston v. Barrett , 159 S.W.3d 631 (Tex. 2005)	2	A party shows good cause for the withdrawal of deemed admissions by showing that its failure to answer was accidental or the result of a mistake, rather than intentional or the result of conscious indifference. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 198.3.	A party seeking to withdraw deemed admissions must first establish "good cause for the withdrawal." Tex.R. Civ. P. 198.3(a). A party does so "by showing that its failure to answer was accidental or the result of a mistake, rather than intentional or the result of conscious indifference."	Does a party show good cause for the withdrawal of deemed admissions by showing that its failure to answer was accidental or the result of a mistake?
3428	City of Bristol v. Tilcon Minerals, Inc., 931 A.2d 237, 258, 284 Conn. 55, 87 (Conn., 2007)	30	Essentials of an action for trespass are: (1) ownership or possessory interest in land by the plaintiff, (2) invasion, intrusion or entry by the defendant affecting the plaintiff's exclusive possessory interest, (3) done intentionally, and (4) causing direct injury.	"The essentials of an action for trespass are: (1) ownership or possessory interest in land by the plaintiff; (2) invasion, intrusion or entry by the defendant affecting the plaintiff's exclusive possessory interest; (3) done intentionally; and (4) causing direct injury.	"Is invasion, intrusion or entry by the defendant that affects the plaintiff's exclusive possessory interest, an element of trespass?"

3429	State v. Sawyer, 266 Wis. 494, 500, 63 N.W.2d 749, 752 (1954)	5	In prosecution for bribery of alderman, court properly instructed jury that if payment was made by defendant to alderman for purpose of influencing his conduct in respect to matters, which might come before alderman in his official capacity, it was immaterial to defendant's guilt whether or not the alderman's conduct was actually influenced or whether purpose of bribe was fulfilled. St.1951, S 346.06.	5] The essence of the offense prohibited by this statute is the corrupt bargain. As the trial court correctly instructed the jury, if payment is made to the officer for the purpose of influencing his conduct in respect to matters which may come before him in his official capacity, it is immaterial to the guilt of the payor whether or not the official's conduct was actually influenced or whether the purpose of the bribe was fulfilled.	Is it immaterial to the guilt of the payor whether or not the official's conduct was actually influenced or whether the purpose of the bribe was fulfilled?
3431	Jackson v. Shuttleworth, 42 Ill.App.2d 257, 258 (Ill. App. 1963)	1	"Comity" is neither absolute obligation nor mere courtesy, but is recognition which one state allows within its territory to legislative, executive or judicial acts of another with due regard both to interstate duty and convenience and to rights of its own citizens.	'Comity' has been defined by the Supreme Court of Illinois, in its legal sense, as neither an absolute obligation on the one hand nor of mere courtesy and good will on the other, but a recognition which one State allows within its territory to the legislative, executive or judicial acts of another State, having due regard both to the interstate duty and convenience and to the rights of its own citizens who are under the protection of its laws.	"Is comity a matter of absolute obligation, or mere courtesy and good will?"
3432	City of Birmingham v. Goolsby, 150 So. 322, 324, 227 Ala. 421, 425 (Ala. 1933)	6	Ordinarily, party has right to select counsel to try his case, and courts should recognize such right, unless it unduly interferes with right of other party to have case tried without unreasonable delay.	It may be conceded that ordinarily a party has the right to select counsel to try his case, and the courts should recognize this right, unless it unduly interferes with the right of the other party to have his case tried, without unreasonable delay.	"Does a party have the right to select counsel to try his case, and courts should recognize such right, unless it unduly interferes with right of other party to have case tried without unreasonable delay?"
3433	Bacon v. Carey Co., 669 P.2d 533, 535 (Wyo.,1983)	4	In criminal cases, withdrawal of counsel, particularly on eve of trial, may implicate due process considerations and defendant's right to effective assistance of counsel, but in civil cases, withdrawal of counsel does not always provide grounds for granting of continuance. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 6; District Court Rule 7.	In criminal cases, the withdrawal of counsel, particularly on the eve of trial, may implicate due-process considerations and defendant's right to effective assistance of counsel. Epperson v. State, Wyo., 637 P.2d 671 (1981); Adger v. State, Wyo., 584 P.2d 1056 (1978). However, in civil cases, withdrawal of counsel does not always provide grounds for the granting of a continuance.	"In criminal cases, can withdrawal of counsel, particularly on eve of trial, implicate due process considerations and defendant's right to effective assistance of counsel?"

3435	Smith v. Home Indem. Co., 683 S.W.2d 559, 562 (Tex. App. 1985)	1	Admissions, once made or deemed admitted by the court, may not be contradicted by any evidence, whether in the form of live testimony or summary judgment affidavits. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 169.	Neither did he move the court to withdraw or amend the admissions after they had been deemed by the court. Admissions, once made or deemed by the court, may not be contradicted by any evidence, whether in the form of live testimony or summary judgment affidavits. Henke Grain Co. v. Keenan, 658 S.W.2d 343, 347 (Tex.App.-Corpus Christi 1983, no writ); American Title Company v. Smith, 445 S.W.2d 807, 809 (Tex.Civ.App.-Houston [1st Dist.] 1969, no writ).	"May admissions, once made or deemed admitted by the court, be contradicted by any evidence, whether in the form of live testimony or summary judgment affidavits?"
3436	In re Goddard & Peterson, PLLC, 789 S.E.2d 835, 840 (N.C. App. 2016)	10	In order to avoid having requests for admissions deemed admitted, a party must respond within the period of the rule governing such requests if there is any objection whatsoever. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36(a), West's N.C.G.S.A. S 1A-1.	"In order to avoid having requests for admissions deemed admitted, a party must respond within the period of the rule if there is any objection whatsoever to the request."	"In order to avoid having requests for admissions deemed admitted, must a party respond within the period of the rule governing such requests if there is any objection whatsoever?"
3437	J.M. Parker & Sons, Inc. v. William Barber, Inc., 208 N.C.App. 682, 688 (N.C.App., 2010)	6	In order to avoid having requests for admissions deemed admitted, a party must timely respond if there is any objection whatsoever to the request; failure to do so means that the facts in question are judicially established. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36(a), West's N.C.G.S.A. S 1A-1.	Rule 36 "means precisely what it says [i.e.,] [i]n order to avoid having requests for admissions deemed admitted, a party must respond within the period of the rule if there is any objection whatsoever to the request." Burchette, 100 N.C.App. at 162, 394 S.E.2d at 701 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). Failure to do so means that the facts in question are judicially established.	Does failure of a party receiving requests for admissions to respond within the period required by the rules of civil procedure mean that the facts in question are judicially established?
3438	Gary Mun. Airport Authority Dist. v. Peters, 550 N.E.2d 828, 831 (Ind. App. 1990)	3	Rule pertaining to withdrawal of admissions does not require motion for relief under it to be denominated in any particular manner; merely by challenging deemed admissions and asking for extension of time to respond, party satisfies requirement of rule that party move to withdraw or amend deemed admissions. Trial Procedure Rule 36(B).	36(B) does not require a motion for relief under it to be denominated in any particular manner. Merely by challenging deemed admissions and asking for an extension of time to respond, a party satisfies the requirement of T.R. 36(B) that a party move to withdraw or amend deemed admissions."	Does the rule pertaining to a withdrawal of admissions not require a motion for relief under it to be denominated in any particular manner?

3440	W. Morgan-E. Lawrence Water & Sewer Auth. v. 3M Co., 208 F. Supp. 3d 1227, 1235 (N.D. Ala. 2016)	8	Under Alabama law, to succeed on a claim of indirect trespass, plaintiffs must show: (1) an invasion affecting an interest in the exclusive possession of their property; (2) an intentional doing of the act which results in the invasion; (3) reasonable foreseeability that the act done could result in an invasion of the plaintiffs' possessory interest; and (4) substantial damages to the res.	To succeed on a claim of indirect trespass, plaintiffs must show: (1) an invasion affecting an interest in the exclusive possession of their property; (2) an intentional doing of the act which results in the invasion; (3) reasonable foreseeability that the act done could result in an invasion of the plaintiffs' possessory interest; and (4) substantial damages to the res. Borland v. Sanders Lead Co., Inc. , 369 So.2d 523 (Ala. 1979).	What must be proved to succeed a claim of indirect trespass?
3441	Borland v. Sanders Lead Co., Inc. , 369 So.2d 523, 530 (Ala., 1979)	13	For an indirect invasion to amount to an actionable trespass, there must be an interference with one's exclusive possessory interest in land; that is, through the defendant's intentional conduct, and with reasonable foreseeability, some substance has entered on the land itself, affecting its nature and character, and causing substantial actual damage to the res.	For an indirect invasion to amount to an actionable trespass, there must be an interference with plaintiff's exclusive possessory interest; that is, through the defendant's intentional conduct, and with reasonable foreseeability, some substance has entered upon the land itself, affecting its nature and character, and causing substantial actual damage to the Res.	What must be proved to succeed a claim of indirect trespass?
3442	New Albertsons, Inc. v. Superior Ct. , 168 Cal. App. 4th 1403, 1420–21, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457, 470 (2008)	6	Because the law strongly favors trial and disposition on the merits, any doubts in ruling on a motion to withdraw or amend an admission must be resolved in favor of the party seeking relief. West's Ann.Cal.C.C.P. S 2033.300 .	Because the law strongly favors trial and disposition on the merits, any doubts in applying section 2033.300 must be resolved in favor of the party seeking relief.	Should any doubts in ruling on a motion to withdraw or amend an admission be resolved in favor of the party seeking relief because the law strongly favors trial and disposition on the merits?
3443	In re M.G. , 767 S.E.2d 436, 440–41, 239 N.C.App. 77, 82–83 (N.C.App., 2015)	4	Where an attorney has given his client no prior notice of an intent to withdraw his representation, a trial judge has no discretion and must grant the party affected a reasonable continuance or deny the attorney's motion for withdrawal.	However, "[w]here an attorney has given his 441 client no prior notice of an intent to withdraw, the trial judge has no discretion" and "must grant the party affected a reasonable continuance or deny the attorney's motion for withdrawal."	"Where an attorney has given his client no prior notice of intent to withdraw his representation, does a trial judge have discretion?"
3444	Walker v. Aulds , 28,968 (La. App. 2 Cir. 12/11/96), 685 So. 2d 421, 423	4	Generally, litigant whose lawyer withdraws at or near trial may be entitled to continuance to employ another attorney, but inability to obtain counsel does not entitle party to indefinite continuances.	Generally, a litigant whose lawyer withdraws at or near trial may be entitled to a continuance to employ another attorney. However, a party is not entitled to indefinite continuances simply because he is unable to obtain counsel. Gilcrease v. Bacarisse, supra .	"Generally, can a litigant whose lawyer withdraws at or near trial be entitled to continuance to employ another attorney?"
3445	Moy v. Ng , 341 Ill. App. 3d 984, 988, 793 N.E.2d 919, 923 (2003), overruled by Vision Point of Sale, Inc. v. Haas , 226 Ill. 2d 334, 875 N.E.2d 1065 (2007)	3	The failure to file a timely response to a request to admit facts, including the ultimate facts of a case, in accordance with discovery rule governing requests for admissions results in the admission of those facts. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 216 .	[3] [4] [5] The failure to file a timely response to a request to admit facts-including the "ultimate" facts of a case-in accordance with Rule 216(c) results in the admission of those facts.	"Does the failure to file a timely response to a request to admit facts, including the ultimate facts of a case, in accordance with discovery rule governing requests for admissions result in the admission of those facts?"

3446	Oliphant Financial, LLC v. Galaviz, 299 S.W.3d 829, 838 (Tex.App. 2009)	15	Plaintiff may serve a request for admissions as part of its petition, and when the defendant fails to file an answer or other response, those requests are deemed admitted. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 198.2(c).	A plaintiff may serve a request for admissions as part of its petition, and when the defendant fails to file an answer or other response, those requests are deemed admitted. Id. at 811-12 (citing TEX.R. CIV. P. 198.2(c)).	"May a plaintiff serve a request for admissions as part of its petition, and when the defendant fails to file an answer or other response, those requests are deemed admitted?"
3447	In re Forfeiture of 1982 Ford Mustang, Vehicle ID No. ABP16F6CF190433, 725 So.2d 382, 384-85 (Fla. App. 1998)	4	While it is normally within the trial court's discretion to use a technically deemed admission to support a summary judgment, it is error if the record contains evidence to the contrary of the admission. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.370.	While it is normally within the trial court's discretion to use a technically deemed admission to support a summary judgment, it is error if the record contains evidence to the contrary of the admission.	Is it normally within the trial court's discretion to use a technically deemed admission to support a summary judgment?
3448	Ark-Tenn Distributing Corp. v. Breidt, 209 F.2d 359, 360 (C.A.3 1954)	1	Under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, technical considerations will not be allowed to prevail to detriment of substantial justice, and admissions or denials in response to a request for admissions stands in the same relation to the case as that sworn testimony bears. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc., rule 1 et seq., 28 U.S.C.A.	But, even if the statements are construed to amount to admissions by Harry Breidt of active participation in the corporate affairs of Vendors, under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, 18 U.S.C., technical considerations will not be allowed to prevail to the detriment of substantial justice 2 Barron and Holtzoff, Federal Practice and Procedure 837 (1950); 4 Moore, Federal Practice, 36.08 (2d ed. 1950) and admissions or denials in response to a request for admissions stand in the same relation to the case that sworn testimony bears.	Does the civil procedure permit technical considerations to prevail to a detriment of substantial justice?
3449	Ayr-Way Stores, Inc. v. Chitwood, 300 N.E.2d 335, 339, 261 Ind. 86, 91 (Ind. 1973)	5	Whether to grant continuance where pleadings are amended is matter of discretion for trial court and absent showing of clear and prejudicial abuse of discretion, trial court's ruling will not be disturbed by Appellate Court.	Whether or not to grant a continuance where pleadings are amended is a matter of discretion for the trial court. Absent a showing of clear and prejudicial abuse of discretion, the trial court's ruling will not be disturbed by an appellate court.	"Absent showing of clear and prejudicial abuse of discretion, will a trial court's ruling on continuance not be disturbed by an Appellate Court?"
3451	Bryant v. Robledo, 938 So.2d 413, 420 (Ala.Civ.App., 2005)	7	A matter in a request for admissions is deemed admitted unless a written answer or objection is served within the applicable time frame; the duty to respond is not fulfilled by having previously responded to the complaint with a denial of every material allegation. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36(b).	Under our law, failure to respond to a request for admissions in Alabama can have significant consequences. Pursuant to Rule 36(b), Ala. R. Civ. P., a matter is deemed admitted unless a written answer or objection is served within the applicable time frame; the duty to respond is not fulfilled by having previously responded to the complaint with a denial of every material allegation.	"Where there were no objections or denials by a plaintiff regarding a defense request for admissions, are matters covered thereby deemed as admitted?"

3452	Wieda v. Am. Box Bd. Co., 343 Mich. 182, 191, 72 N.W.2d 13, 18 (1955)	9	Each case arising under the Workmen's Compensation Law must be determined on basis of the particular facts involved and in accordance with pertinent statutory provisions. Comp.Laws 1948, SS 411.1 et seq., 412.1 et seq.	Each case arising under the workmen's compensation law must be determined on the basis of the particular facts involved and in accordance with pertinent statutory provisions.	Should each case arising under the Workmens Compensation Law be determined on the basis of the particular facts involved and in accordance with pertinent statutory provisions?
3453	Selitsch v. Selitsch, 492 S.W.3d 677, 684 (Tenn. Ct. App. 2015)	9	To avoid double payment, in order to receive VA disability pay, a former service member must waive a corresponding portion of his or her retirement pay. 38 U.S.C.A. S 5305.	o avoid double payment, in order to receive VA disability pay, "a former service member must waive a corresponding portion of his or her retirement pay."	"Should a former service member waive a corresponding portion of his or her retirement pay to avoid double payment, in order to receive Veterans Affairs disability pay?"
3455	State v. Merritt, 120 N.C. App. 732, 742 (1995)	9	While statutory offense of felonious breaking or entering is lesser included offense of burglary in the first degree, submission of this lesser included offense is required only when evidence tends to show that defendant could have gained entry into building in question by means other than burglarious breaking.	While the statutory offense of felonious breaking or entering is a lesser included offense of burglary in the first degree, State v. Fowler, 1 N.C.App. 546, 548-49, 162 S.E.2d 37, 39 (1968), submission of this lesser included offense is required only when the evidence tends to show that defendant could have gained entry into the building in question by means other than a burglarious breaking.	Is felonious breaking or entering lesser included offense than burglary?
3456	Itskin v. Restaurant Food Supply Co., 7 Ohio App.3d 127, 130 (Ohio App. 1982)	8	Although party is entitled to contest disputed issues of fact, unless there is good reason to dispute facts when request for admission is made, party failing to admit must bear expense of proving facts. Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 36(A), 37(C).	While it sets forth a correct statement of law that a party is entitled to contest disputed issues of fact, Civ.R. 36(A) and 37(C) together indicate that, unless there is a good reason to dispute the facts, the party failing to admit must bear the expense of proving the facts. [9]	Should a party failing to admit bear expense of proving facts unless there is good reason to dispute facts when request for admission is made?
3457	In re Western Star Trucks US, Inc., 112 S.W.3d 756, 763 (Tex. App. 2003)	11	A party seeking discovery of net worth information is not required to make a prima facie showing of an entitlement to exemplary damages before discovery is permitted.	As noted by the court in Al Parker Buick Company, the Texas Supreme Court expressly held in Lunsford that a party seeking discovery of net worth information is not required to make a prima facie showing of an entitlement to exemplary damages before discovery is permitted.	Is a party seeking discovery of net worth information not required to make a prima facie showing of an entitlement to exemplary damages?
3458	State ex rel. Miller v. DeCoster, 608 N.W.2d 785, 790 (Iowa, 2000)	7	When pertinent inquiry of administrative agency decisionmakers is allowed, it is limited to information concerning the procedural steps that may be required by law and does not extend to inquiries into the mental processes of an administrator which, as being part of the judgmental process, are not discoverable.	When pertinent inquiry is allowed, it is "limited to information concerning the procedural steps that may be required by law and does not extend to inquiries into the mental processes of an administrator which, as being part of the judgmental process, are not discoverable."	"When pertinent inquiry of administrative agency decision makers is allowed, is it limited to information concerning the procedural steps that can be required?"

3459	Carlson v. Freightliner LLC, 226 F.R.D. 343, 364 (D.Neb.,2004)	13	Under Nebraska law, information which, if released, would give advantage to business competitors and serve no public purpose is confidential and not the proper subject of discovery.	Under Nebraska law, information "which if released would give advantage to business competitors and serve no public purpose" is confidential and not the proper subject of discovery.	Is information that would give advantage to business competitors and serve no public purpose confidential and not the proper subject of discovery?
3463	Slatten v. City of Chicago, 12 Ill. App. 3d 808, 813 (1973)	5	Right of any party to discovery deposition is basic and fundamental to adversary system and accordingly the right of one party imposes a duty on the other which cannot be avoided by technical maneuvers or other conduct which results in destroying purpose of modern discovery principles. Supreme Court Rules, rules 201, 202, 212(b), S.H.A. ch. 110A, SS 201, 202, 212(b).	The right of any party to a discovery deposition is basic and fundamental in today's adversary system, and, accordingly, 446 the right of one party imposes a duty on the other party. That duty cannot be avoided by technical maneuvers or other conduct which results in destroying the purpose of modern discovery principles.	Is the right of any party to discovery deposition basic and fundamental in an adversary system?
3465	Pub. Nat. Bank v. Nat'l City Bank, 261 N.Y. 316, 318, 185 N.E. 395, 395-96 (1933)	1	Right of examination of party before trial is not as matter of law dependent upon purpose or necessity to establish affirmative claim or defense, but court in its discretion may permit examination of party having burden of proof throughout. Civil Practice Act, S 288.	The right to examine a party before trial is not made dependent as matter of law upon the purpose or necessity to use his evidence to establish an affirmative claim or defense. It is discretionary with the courts to permit an examination of a party, even where the burden of proof is entirely with that party.	Is the right of examination of a party dependent upon a purpose or necessity to establish an affirmative claim?
3467	Boyd v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 775 So.2d 649, 655, 1999-1820 La.App. 3 Cir. 12/20/00, 8 (La.App. 3 Cir.,2000)	4	The decision to grant a protective order and the extent of protection extended are within the sound discretion of the trial court; an appellate court will not ordinarily modify or reverse the trial court in such matters absent a showing of abuse of discretion. LSA-C.C.P. art. 1426.	The granting or not of a protective order and the extent of protection extended are within the sound discretion of the trial court; and an appellate court will not ordinarily modify or reverse the trial court in such matters absent a showing of abuse of discretion.	Whether the decision to grant a protective order and the extent of protection extended is within the sound discretion of the trial court?
3469	Nat'l Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford v. Hutton, 396 S.W.2d 53, 54-55 (Ky. 1965)	3	Where trial judge found that there was no good reason for denial of certain admissions as sought by insurer, insured was properly required to pay the reasonable expenses incurred in producing a witness.	The trial judge sustained appellant's motion for an order requiring appellees to *55 pay the reasonable expenses incurred in producing a witness at the trial. The judge found there was no good reason for denial of certain admissions sought by appellant.	"Can the insured be required to pay the reasonable expenses incurred in producing a witness, where the judge finds that there was no good reason for denial of certain admissions as sought by insurer?"
3471	Fry v. Blauvelt, 818 N.W.2d 123, 130 (Iowa, 2012)	11	Although district courts have discretion in deciding whether to enforce pretrial orders, it is incumbent upon a reviewing court to scrutinize the exercise of that discretion and to confine the exercise to reasonable limits.	Although district courts have discretion in deciding whether to enforce pretrial orders, "it is incumbent upon a reviewing court to scrutinize the exercise of that discretion and to confine the exercise to reasonable limits."	Is it incumbent upon a reviewing court to scrutinize the exercise of a court's discretion in deciding whether to enforce pretrial orders?

3472	Tucker v. Tucker, 55 N.Y.2d 378, 383–84, 434 N.E.2d 1050, 1052 (1982)	1	While authority of court to grant or to deny an application by a party seeking voluntarily to discontinue litigation is within its sound discretion, ordinarily a party cannot be compelled to litigate and, absent special circumstances, discontinuance should be granted. McKinney's CPLR 3217(b); McKinney's DRL S 236, Pts. A, B.	While the authority of a court to grant or to deny an application made to it pursuant to CPLR 3217 (subd. [b]) by a party seeking voluntarily to discontinue litigation is within its sound discretion, ordinarily a party cannot be compelled to litigate and, absent special circumstances, discontinuance should be granted (4 Weinstein-Korn-Miller, N.Y.Civ.Prac., par. 3217.06).	"Can a party ordinarily be compelled to litigate and, absent special circumstances, discontinuance should be granted?"
3473	Stern v. Marshall, 471 S.W.3d 498, 514 (Tex.App.-Hous. (1 Dist.), 2015)	3	The use of a creative pleading that merely restates defenses in the form of a declaratory judgment action cannot deprive the plaintiff of the right to nonsuit. Tex. R. Civ. P. 162.	"The use of a creative pleading that merely restates defenses in the form of a declaratory judgment action cannot deprive the plaintiff of this right" to nonsuit under Rule 162.	Can the use of a creative pleading that merely restates defenses in the form of a declaratory judgment action deprive the plaintiff of the right to nonsuit?
3474	Jernberg v. Virtis Co., 17 A.D.2d 892, 892, 233 N.Y.S.2d 363, 365 (1962)	1	As between written interrogatories and an open examination, while the former is ordinarily preferred, trial court in exercise of its discretion may order the latter where circumstances so warrant.	As between written interrogatories and an open commission, while the former is ordinarily preferred (Hawkinson v. Clayton Packing Co., Inc., 275 App.Div. 948, 89 N.Y.S.2d 615; Bieber-Isaacs Co., Inc. v. Philadelphia F. & M. Ins. Co., 125 Misc. 494, 211 N.Y.S. 435) it is appropriate for the trial court in the exercise of its discretion to order the latter where the circumstances so warrant (Pinkowitz v. California Packing Corp., Sup., 126 N.Y.S.2d 783 [not officially reported]; see also Bennett v. Kelly, 283 App.Div. 945, 130 N.Y.S.2d 191). .	"As between written interrogatories and an open examination, while the former is ordinarily preferred, can a trial court in exercise of its discretion order the latter where circumstances so warrant?"
3475	Tidwell ex rel. Tidwell v. City & Cnty. of Denver, 83 P.3d 75, 81 (Colo. 2003)	2	If raised before trial, the issue of whether governmental immunity applies to bar a suit is properly addressed pursuant to a motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(1).	Whether governmental immunity applies to bar a suit is a question of jurisdiction for the trial court. Springer v. City and County of Denver, 13 P.3d 794, 798 (Colo.2000). As a result, "if raised before trial, the issue is properly addressed pursuant to a C.R.C.P. 12(b)(1) motion to dismiss."	"If governmental immunity is raised before trial, is the issue properly addressed pursuant to a motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction?"
3476	Huber v. Mullan, 246 F.Supp. 8, 8 (D. Md. 1964)	8	A note evidencing a promise to repay sum certain, as distinguished from an instrument creating an obligation which might vary depending upon who is the obligor, is not rendered nonassignable except by clear and unequivocal language prohibiting assignment.	A note evidencing a promise to repay a sum certain, as distinguished from an instrument creating an obligation which might vary depending upon who is the obligor, is not rendered nonassignable except by clear and unequivocal language prohibiting assignment	Can a note be rendered non assignable depending upon its language?

3478	Highland Credit Opportunities CDO, L.P. v. UBS AG, 451 S.W.3d 508, 516 (Tex. App. 2014)	10	When it is established that a breach of contract plaintiff lacks entitlement to sue on a contract, the proper disposition may be summary judgment on the merits, but it is not dismissal for want of jurisdiction.	Thus, "when it is established that a breach of contract plaintiff lacks entitlement to sue on a contract, the proper disposition may be summary judgment on the merits, but it is not dismissal for want of jurisdiction."	"When it is established that a breach of contract plaintiff lacks entitlement to sue on a contract, may the proper disposition may be summary judgment on the merits?"
3479	Kiser v. A.W. Chesterton Co., 285 Va. 12, 20 (Va., 2013)	4	The essential elements of a good cause of action, whether based on an alleged breach of contract or on a tortious act, are a legal obligation of a defendant to the plaintiff, a violation or breach of that right or duty, and a consequential injury or damage to the plaintiff, and in the absence of injury or damage to a plaintiff or his property, he has no cause of action, and no right of action can accrue to him.	The essential elements of a good cause of action, whether based on an alleged breach of contract or on a tortious act, are a legal obligation of a defendant to the plaintiff, a violation or breach of that right or duty, and a consequential injury or damage to the plaintiff. In the absence of injury or damage to a plaintiff or his property, he has no cause of action and no right of action can accrue to him.	What are the essential elements of a breach of contract or on a tortious act?
3481	People v. Faubus, 48 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5, 121 Cal. Rptr. 167, 169 (Ct. App. 1975)	1	Characterization of a crime as one of specific intent or general intent has little meaningful significance in instructing a jury; critical issue is accurate description of state of mind required for particular crime.	Technically he is correct, however, the characterization of a crime as one of specific intent or general intent has little meaningful significance in instructing a jury. The critical issue is the accurate description of the state of mind required for the particular crime.	Does the characterization of a crime as one of specific intent or general intent has any meaningful significance in instructing a jury?
3485	Wilborn v. Life Ambulance Servs., Inc., 163 S.W.3d 271, 275 (Tex. App. 2005)	11	There is no reason why a trial judge should not be permitted to consider the entire history of the case in deciding whether or not good cause exists for granting a continuance.	We agree with the Houston Court of Appeals and see no reason why a trial judge should not be permitted to consider the entire history of the case in deciding whether or not good cause exists for granting a continuance. Waste Water, Inc. , 874 S.W.2d at 942.	Should a trial judge be permitted to consider the entire history of the case in deciding whether or not good cause exists for granting a continuance?
3487	Klein v. Weiss, 284 Md. 36, 55 (Md., 1978)	11	One of fundamental and principal objectives of discovery rules is to require disclosure of acts by party litigant to all of his adversaries, and thereby to eliminate, as far as possible, necessity of any party to litigation going to trial in confused or muddled state of mind, concerning facts that give rise to litigation. Maryland Rules, Rule 555 d 2.	One of the fundamental and principal objectives of the discovery rules is to require disclosure of facts by a party litigant to all of his adversaries, and thereby to eliminate, as far as possible, the necessity of any party to litigation going to trial in a confused or muddled state of mind, concerning the facts that give rise to the litigation.	Is the object of discovery procedures disclosure of facts?
3490	Bucchere v. Brinker Intern., Inc., 891 A.2d 1008, 1011, 49 Conn.Supp. 441, 444 (Conn.Super.,2005)	3	A motion to dismiss is not designed to test the legal sufficiency of the complaint in terms of whether it states a cause of action and should not be granted on other than jurisdictional grounds.	The motion "is not designed to test the legal sufficiency of the complaint in terms of whether it states a cause of action." Pratt v. Old Saybrook, 225 Conn. 177, 185, 621 A.2d 1322 (1993). The motion "should not be granted on other than jurisdictional grounds."	Is a motion to dismiss not designed to test the legal sufficiency of the complaint in terms of whether it states a cause of action and should not be granted on other than jurisdictional grounds?

3491	Posey v. Proper Mold & Engineering, Inc., 378 S.C. 210, 217 (2008)	9	If a party files a motion for summary judgment on the ground of lack of subject matter jurisdiction, the trial court should treat the motion as if it were a motion to dismiss. Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 56, 12(b)(1).	If a party files a Rule 56 motion for summary judgment on the ground of lack of subject matter jurisdiction, the trial court should treat the motion as if it were a Rule 12(b)(1) motion to dismiss.	"If a party files a motion for summary judgment on the ground of lack of subject matter jurisdiction, should the trial court treat the motion as if it were a motion to dismiss?"
3494	Sandberg v. State, 188 Neb. 335, 342 (Neb., 1972)	3	Legislature is vested with the taxing power without limit, subject only to restrictions contained in the Constitution, and it is therefore axiomatic that provisions of the Constitution in relation to taxation are not grants of power but are limitations on taxing power of state lodged in the legislature.	It is a fundamental law of this State that the Legislature is vested with the taxing power without limit, subject only to restrictions contained in the Constitution. It is axiomatic, therefore, that the provisions of the Constitution in relation to taxation are not grants of power but are limitations on the taxing power of the State, lodged in the Legislature.	"Are the provisions of the Constitution in relation to taxation, grants of power or limitations on taxing power of state lodged in the legislature?"
3495	Kennedy v. Sanford, 166 F.2d 568, 569 (C.A.5 1948)	1	That a soldier in time of war is under military law and answerable to a court martial does not absolve him from prosecution for crimes against federal or state laws committed where such laws are in force. Articles of War, art. 74, 10 U.S.C.A. S 1546.	That a soldier in time of war is under military law and answerable to a court martial does not absolve him from prosecution for crimes against federal or State laws committed where such laws are of force. The provisions of Article of War 74, 10 U.S.C.A. 1546, recognize this.	"Is a soldier, in time of war, under military law and answerable to a court martial for prosecution for crimes against federal or state laws committed where such laws are in force?"
3499	Rohner v. Austral Oil Exploration Co., 104 So.2d 253, 255 (La.App. 1958)	4	Unless provided for in mineral lease, lessee is not responsible for damages inflicted without negligence upon lessor's property in course of necessary drilling operations.	Unless provided for in the lease, The lessee is not responsible for damages which are inflicted without negligence upon the lessor's property in the course of necessary drilling operations.	Is the lessee responsible for damages which are inflicted without negligence upon the lessor's property in the course of necessary drilling operations?
3500	Brooks v. American Broadcasting Co., 179 Cal.App.3d 500, 513 (Cal.App.1.Dist)	11	Expenses of proving disputed fact which opposing party denies in response to request for admission are not recoverable under S 2034(c) simply because party promulgating request prevails at trial. West's Ann.Cal.C.C.P. S 2034(c).	Expenses of proving disputed facts which an opposing party denies in response to a request for admission are not recoverable simply because the party promulgating the request prevails at trial.	"Are expenses of proving disputed fact which opposing party denies in response to request for admission, recoverable if the party promulgating request prevails at trial?"
3502	Lederer v. Director of Div. of Aging, 865 S.W.2d 682, 684 (Mo.App. W.D., 1993)	1	Motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction should be granted whenever it appears, by preponderance of evidence, that court is without jurisdiction, and decision is left to sound discretion of trial court and will not be reversed on appeal absent abuse of that discretion.	A motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction should be granted whenever it appears, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the court is without jurisdiction. Crofts v. Harrison, 772 S.W.2d 901, 902 (Mo.App.1989). The decision to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction is left to the sound discretion of the trial court, id., and will not be reversed on appeal absent an abuse of that discretion.	Is the decision to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction within the sound discretion of the trial court and will not be reversed on appeal absent an abuse of that discretion?

3503	Rucker v. Taylor, 828 N.W.2d 595, 601 (Iowa, 2013)	9	Good cause must be considered in deciding to dismiss a petition for untimely service, and this standard considers all the surrounding circumstances, including circumstances that would make it inequitable for a defendant to successfully move to dismiss. I.C.A. Rule 1.302(5).	But, in both instances, good cause must be considered in deciding to dismiss a petition for untimely service, and Wilson informs us that this standard considers all the surrounding circumstances, including circumstances that would make it inequitable for a defendant to successfully move to dismiss.	"In deciding to dismiss a petition for untimely service, must good cause be considered?"
3505	Edmunds v. Kraner, 142 Idaho 867, 872–73 (Idaho, 2006)	7	The imposition of sanctions for non-compliance with pretrial orders is committed to the discretion of the trial court, and the appellate court will not overturn such a decision absent a manifest abuse of that discretion. Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 16(i), 37(b)(2)(B, C, D).	A trial court has authority to sanction parties for non-compliance with pretrial orders , and sanctions may include those enumerated in I.R.C.P. 37(b)(2)(B), (C) and (D) for discovery violations. I.R.C.P. 16(i). The imposition of such sanctions is committed to the discretion of the trial court, and we will *873 344 not overturn such a decision absent a manifest abuse of that discretion.	"Is the imposition of sanctions for non-compliance with pretrial orders committed to the discretion of the trial court, and will the appellate court overturn such a decision absent a manifest abuse of that discretion?"
3506	Mohr v. Mohr, 859 N.W.2d 377, 379–80 (Neb.App., 2015)	6	The only way to ensure that an unserved action stands dismissed, as required by statute, is to hold that such dismissal occurs by operation of law, without predicate action by the trial court. Neb. Rev. Stat. S 25-217.	The only way to ensure that an unserved action stands dismissed, as required by statute, is to hold 380 that such dismissal occurs by operation of law, without predicate action by the trial court. See Vopalka v. Abraham, 260 Neb.	"Is the only way to ensure that an unserved action stands dismissed, as required by statute, to hold that such dismissal occurs by operation of law?"
3507	Tucker v. Tucker, 55 N.Y.2d 378	4	The decision concerning the appropriate sanction for failure to comply with a pretrial order is within the trial court's discretion, and the Court of Civil Appeals reviews such decisions to determine whether the trial court exceeded its discretion. Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 37(b)(2)(C), 41.	Moreover, ' "[t]he decision concerning the appropriate sanction for failure to comply with a pretrial order ... is within the trial court's discretion, 'and we review such decisions to determine whether the trial court exceeded its discretion.' " ' "	Is the decision concerning the appropriate sanction for failure to comply with a pretrial order within the trial court's discretion?
3509	Perry v. Stitzer Buick GMC, Inc., 637 N.E.2d 1282, 1286 (Ind., 1994)	7	Motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction presents threshold question concerning court's power to act; when court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, any action it takes is void. Trial Procedure Rule 12(B)(1).	By contrast, a motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction presents a threshold question concerning the court's power to act. When a court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, any action it takes is void.	Does motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction present a threshold question concerning the court's power to act?
3510	Alpha Rho Zeta of Lambda Chi Alpha, Inc. v. Inhabitants of City of Waterville, 477 A.2d 1131, 1136 (Me.,1984)	4	Right of taxation, i.e. to levy and collect taxes, is an essential attribute of sovereignty and its exercise is necessary to provide essential needs of state government, i.e. to secure such revenue as will be sufficient and indispensable to preservation of public peace, health and safety. 36 M.R.S.A. S 502.	The right of taxation, i.e. to levy and collect taxes, is an essential attribute of sovereignty and its exercise is necessary to provide the essential needs of State government, i.e. to secure such revenue as will be sufficient and indispensable to the preservation of the public peace, health and safety.	Is the right of taxation an essential attribute of sovereignty?

3511	Pierson v. Treasurer of State, 126 S.W.3d 386, 390 (Mo.,2004)	7	Workers' compensation law is entirely a creature of statute, and when interpreting the law, the Supreme Court must ascertain the intent of the legislature by considering the plain and ordinary meaning of the terms and give effect to that intent if possible.	Workers' compensation law is entirely a creature of statute, and when interpreting the law, the Court must ascertain the intent of the legislature by considering the plain and ordinary meaning of the terms and give effect to that intent if possible.	"How is the plain and ordinary meaning used when considering the legislatures intent, under the workers compensation law?"
3512	In re Pechman's Estate, 532 P.2d 385, 386 (Colo.App. 1974)	1	National Service Life Insurance, which is a contract made in pursuance of federal statute, must be construed with reference to such statute, the regulations promulgated thereunder, and the decisions applicable thereto, rather than by laws and decisions governing private insurance companies. 38 U.S.C.A. SS 717(a), 3101(a).	National Service Life Insurance is a contract made in pursuance of federal statute and must be construed with reference to such statute, 1 the regulations promulgated thereunder, and the decisions applicable thereto, rather than by laws and decisions governing private insurance companies.	Do the rules governing private life insurance govern relationships under the statutorily created National Service Life Insurance?
3513	Adcock v. Brakegate, Ltd., 164 Ill.2d 54, 61 (Ill., 1994)	3	Under doctrine of aider by verdict, jury verdict against defendant cured not only all formal and purely technical defects in complaint, but any defect in failing to allege or alleging imperfectly any substantial facts that were essential to civil conspiracy cause of action.	Moreover, under the doctrine of aider by verdict, the jury verdict against Owens-Corning has cured not only all formal and purely technical defects in the complaint, but any defect in failing to allege or alleging imperfectly any substantial facts which are essential to a civil conspiracy cause of action.	"Will the defect in failing to allege substantial facts which are essential to the cause of action, be cured by the doctrine of aider by verdict?"
3514	State v. Derks, 155 Conn. App. 87, 91 (2015)	1	A motion to dismiss properly attacks the jurisdiction of the court, essentially asserting that the plaintiff cannot as a matter of law and fact state a cause of action that should be heard by the court.	At the outset, we set forth the applicable standard of review. "A motion to dismiss ... properly attacks the jurisdiction of the court, essentially asserting that the plaintiff cannot as a matter of law and fact state a cause of action that should be heard by the court....	Does a motion to dismiss essentially assert that the plaintiff cannot as a matter of law and fact state a cause of action that should be heard by the court?
3515	Mun. Constr. Equip. Operators' Labor Council v. Cleveland, 2016 -Ohio- 5934, ¶ 8 (Ohio App. 8 Dist.,2016)	3	The standard for determining a motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction is whether any cause of action cognizable by the forum has been raised in the complaint. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(B)(1).	The standard for determining a Civ.R. 12(B) (1) motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction is "whether any cause of action cognizable by the forum has been raised in the complaint."	Is the standard of review for a motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction is whether any cause of action cognizable by the forum has been raised in the complaint?
3517	Draughon v. Harnett Cnty. Bd. of Educ., 602 S.E.2d 717, 718, 166 N.C.App. 449, 451 (N.C.App.,2004)	3	If a party fails to obtain valid service of process, a court does not acquire personal jurisdiction over the defendant and the action must be dismissed. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 4, West's N.C.G.S.A. S 1A-1(j).	If a party fails to obtain valid service of process, "a court does not acquire personal jurisdiction over the defendant and the action must be dismissed."	"Does a court acquire personal jurisdiction over the defendant and the action be dismissed, if a party fails to obtain valid service of process?"
3518	Capital Promotions, L.L.C. v. Don King Productions, Inc., 756 N.W.2d 828, 832 (Iowa,2008)	1	Ordinarily, issues of personal jurisdiction are raised in a motion to dismiss, and the district court would make the necessary factual findings to determine whether the court had personal jurisdiction over the defendant.	Ordinarily, however, issues of personal jurisdiction are raised in a motion to dismiss, and the district court would make the necessary factual findings to determine whether the court had personal jurisdiction over the defendant.	Would a district court make necessary factual findings to determine whether a court has personal jurisdiction over the defendant?

3519	La Plante v. Implement Dealers Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 73 N.D. 159, 163 (N.D. 1944)	6	The statute authorizing pre-trial conferences does not deprive trial court of exercise of judicial discretion in permitting amendments or corrections of mistakes in pleadings under general statutory provisions. Comp.Laws 1913, SS 7478-7486; Laws 1943, c. 216.	Neither does the pre-trial statute deprive the trial court of the exercise of judicial discretion in permitting amendments or corrections of mistakes in pleadings under general statutory provisions.	Does the statute authorizing pre-trial conferences not deprive a trial court of exercise of judicial discretion in permitting amendments or corrections?
3521	Clark v. Sturks, 668 So.2d 1106, 1107 (Fla.App. 2 Dist.,1996)	1	Although trial court has discretion or the authority to sanction party for failure to attend case management conference, sanction must be commensurate with offense. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.200(c).	Although a trial court has discretionary authority to sanction a party for failure to attend a case management conference, the sanction must be commensurate with the offense.	"Although a trial court has discretion or the authority to sanction a party for failure to attend case management conference, must the sanction be commensurate with offense?"
3522	Copiah Cnty. School Dist. v. Buckner, 61 So.3d 162, 168 (Miss., 2011)	8	While there is no actual requirement that a motion for additional time to serve defendants be filed, a plaintiff who prior to expiration of the service period files a motion representing that he or she has been unable to serve process, will more likely succeed in demonstrating diligence than a plaintiff who does nothing. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 4(h).	While there is no actual requirement that a motion for additional time be filed, "a plaintiff who-prior to expiration of the service period-files a motion representing that he or she has been unable to serve process, will more likely succeed in demonstrating diligence than a plaintiff who does nothing.	Will a plaintiff who files a motion representing that he or she has been unable to serve process be more likely to succeed in demonstrating diligence?
3523	Azimi v. Johns, 254 P.3d 1054, 1066 (Alaska, 2011)	21	A trial court's discretion to order litigation-ending sanctions is severely limited, whether the dismissal is requested as a discovery sanction or for non-compliance with court orders; there must be willful noncompliance with court orders, or extreme circumstances, or gross violations of the rules of civil procedure, and the record must also clearly indicate a reasonable exploration of possible and meaningful alternatives to dismissal. Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 37, 41(b).	A trial court's discretion to order litigation-ending sanctions is severely limited, whether the dismissal is requested as a discovery sanction under Civil Rule 37, or for non-compliance with court orders pursuant to Civil Rule 41(b).... There must be "willful noncompliance" with court orders, or "extreme circumstances," or "gross violations" of the Rules. The record must also "clearly indicate a reasonable exploration of possible and meaningful alternatives to dismissal."	Is a trial court's discretion to order litigation-ending sanctions severely limited when the dismissal is requested as a discovery sanction under Civil Rule 37 or for non-compliance with court orders pursuant to Civil Rule 41(b)?
3524	In re Peoples, 250 S.E.2d 890, 912, 296 N.C. 109, 148 (N.C., 1978)	13	Unlike question of jurisdiction, issue of mootness is not determined merely by examining facts in existence at commencement of action, for if issues before court or administrative body become moot at any time during course of proceedings, usual response should be to dismiss the action.	Unlike the question of jurisdiction, the issue of mootness is not determined solely by examining facts in existence at the commencement of the action. If the issues before a court or administrative body become moot at any time during the course of the proceedings, the usual response should be to dismiss the action.	Is the issue of mootness determined solely by examining facts in existence at the commencement of an action?

3525	Brock v. Fouchy, 76 Cal. App. 2d 363, 371, 172 P.2d 945, 951 (1946)	15	The statutory provision that all actions commenced without the issuance of a summons for one year must be dismissed by the court on its own motion or of any interested party authorizes a court, upon application of one defendant, appearing specially, to dismiss the action against all defendants against whom a summons has not been issued within one year. West's Ann.Code Civ.Proc. S 581a.	The provision of section 581a that all actions commenced without the issuance of a summons for one year 'must be dismissed by the court * * * on its own motion,' is the authority of a court, upon application of one defendant, appearing specially, to dismiss the action against all defendants against whom a summons has not been issued 'within one year.'	"If the summons is not issued within one year after the action is commenced, should the action be dismissed?"
3526	Tragni v. Tragni, 21 A.D.3d 1084, 1085, 803 N.Y.S.2d 617, 618 (2005)	1	Ordinarily, where court grants judgment to plaintiff based upon defendant's default in appearing at conference, default may be vacated only if defendant can demonstrate both reasonable excuse for default in appearing and meritorious defense. N.Y.Ct.Rules, S 202.27(a).	Ordinarily, where a court grants judgment to a plaintiff pursuant to 22 NYCRR 202.27(a) based upon a defendant's default in appearing at a conference, the default may be vacated only if the defendant can demonstrate both a reasonable excuse for the default in appearing and a meritorious defense (see Bloom v. Primus Automotive Fin. Servs., 292 A.D.2d 410, 738 N.Y.S.2d 861; Lopez v. Imperial Delivery Serv., 282 A.D.2d 190, 197, 725 N.Y.S.2d 57).	"Can default in not appearing at a conference, be vacated only if defendant can demonstrate both reasonable excuse for default in appearing and meritorious defense?"
3529	United States v. Bahel, 662 F.3d 610, 635 (C.A.2 (N.Y.), 2011)	24	A district judge does not have to use the magic words, "corrupt intent," or "quid pro quo," to effectively charge a jury on bribery, though it may be advisable. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201.	Thus, contrary to Bahel's assertions, it is not necessary, though it may be advisable, for the district judge to use the magic words "corrupt intent" or "quid pro quo" to effectively charge a jury on bribery.	Does a judge have to use the words corrupt intent or quid pro quo to effectively charge a jury on bribery?
3530	Mounger v. Pittman, 235 Miss. 85, 86-87 (Miss. 1959)	1	The distinguishing characteristics of a "non-participating royalty interest" are: (1) Such share of production is not chargeable with any of the costs of discovery and production; (2) the owner has no right to do any act or thing to discover and produce the oil and gas; (3) the owner has no right to grant leases; and (4) the owner has no right to receive bonuses or delay rentals.	The distinguishing characteristics of a non-participating royalty interest are: (1) Such share of *87 production is not chargeable with any of the costs of discovery and production; (2) the owner has no right to do any act or thing to discover and produce the oil and gas; (3) the owner has no right to grant leases; and (4) the owner has no right to receive bonuses or delay rentals.	What are the distinguishing characteristics of a non-participating royalty interest?

3531	Jeganathan v. O'Reilly, 195 Misc.2d 197, 202, 753 N.Y.S.2d 814, 819 (City Ct. 2003)	10	A default based upon a failure to appear at a court conference may be vacated where the party lacked actual notice of the scheduled date. N.Y.Ct.Rules, SS 202.27, 210.14(2).	A default based upon a failure to appear at a court conference may also be vacated where the party lacked actual notice of the scheduled date (see Jones v. New York City Transit Authority, 293 A.D.2d 322, 740 N.Y.S.2d 320 [1st Dept.2002]; Levy v. New York City Housing Authority, 287 A.D.2d 281, 731 N.Y.S.2d 20 [1st Dept.2001]; 820 Latha Restaurant Corp. v. Tower Insurance Company, 285 A.D.2d 437, 728 N.Y.S.2d 45 [1st Dept.2001]; Haberin v. New York City Transit Authority, 228 A.D.2d 383, 644 N.Y.S.2d 718 [1st Dept.1996]).	Can a default based upon a failure to appear at a court conference be vacated where the party lacked actual notice of the scheduled date?
3532	Frame v. Boatmen's Bank of Concord Village, 782 S.W.2d 117, 120 (Mo. App. 1989)	5	In case of fraudulent representation, it is sufficient to show that representations were made by one with consciousness that he was without knowledge of their truth or falsity, when, in fact, they were false; truth or falsity of representation, however, is determined at time it was made, and at time it was intended to be relied upon.	In the case of a fraudulent representation, it is sufficient to show that the representations were made by one with the consciousness that he was without knowledge of their truth or falsity, when, in fact, they were false. The truth or falsity of the representation, however, is determined at the time it was made, and at the time it was intended to be relied upon.	Is the truth or falsity of the representation determined as of the time it was made and as of the time it was intended to be relied and acted upon?
3533	Carazo v. Status Shipping, Ltd., 613 So.2d 1329, 1330 (Fla.App. 2 Dist.,1992)	1	While rule permits court, on failure of party to attend case management or pretrial conference, to dismiss action, strike pleadings, limit proof or witnesses, or take any other appropriate action, sanction imposed must be commensurate with offense. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.200.	While Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.200 permits the court, on failure of a party to attend a case management or pretrial conference, to dismiss the action, strike the pleadings, limit proof or witnesses, or take any other appropriate action, the sanction imposed must be commensurate with the offense.	Should a sanction imposed be commensurate with the offense?
3534	Benware v. Means, 752 So.2d 841, 847, 1999-1410 La. 1/19/00, 9 (La.,2000)	4	In determining the penalty for violation of pre-trial or discovery orders, each case must be decided upon its own facts and circumstances, and the trial judge is vested with much discretion.	When a court determines the appropriate penalty for disobedience of, or disregard for court orders relating to pre-trial procedures, one important consideration is whether the misconduct was by the attorney or the client, or both. 1 Each case must be decided upon its own facts and circumstances, and the trial judge is vested with much discretion in determining the penalty for violation of pre-trial or discovery orders.	"In determining the penalty for violation of pre-trial or discovery orders, must each case be decided upon its own facts and circumstances?"

3535	Steele v. Beaty, 2 S.E.2d 854, 855–56 (N.C. 1939)	1	A "judgment of discontinuance" is one of dismissal of plaintiff's action based on interruption in proceedings occasioned by failure of plaintiff to continue suit regularly from time to time as he ought.	A judgment of discontinuance is one of dismissal of plaintiff's action based on the interruption in proceedings occasioned by the failure of the plaintiff to continue *856 the suit regularly from time to time as he ought.	"Is a ""judgment of discontinuance"" one of dismissal of a plaintiff's action based on interruption in proceedings occasioned by failure of a plaintiff to continue suit?"
3536	City of Miami Beach v. Chadderton, 306 So.2d 558, 559–60 (Fla.App. 1975)	1	Plaintiff who invokes trial court's jurisdiction and seeks to avail himself of its powers and remedies does so with the understanding that he must abide by its lawful orders and the trial court has the power to impose sanction of dismissal for failure to so abide.	A plaintiff who invokes a court's jurisdiction and seeks to avail himself of its power and remedies does so with the understanding that he must abide by its *560 lawful orders, and that the court has the power to impose the sanction of dismissal for failure to so abide.	Does a plaintiff who invokes a trial court's jurisdiction and seeks to avail himself of its powers and remedies do so with the understanding that he must abide by its lawful orders?
3537	McMillan v. Horan, 632 So.2d 1091, 1091 (Fla.App. 5 Dist.,1994)	1	Trial court must consider six factors prior to determining appropriate sanction for plaintiff's failure to amend within time specified by court order, and any final dismissal of defaulting plaintiff, or record upon which it is based, should demonstrate that decision to dismiss conforms with such factors.	That decision now requires a trial court to consider six factors prior to determining the appropriate sanction for a plaintiff's failure to amend within the time specified by court order. Any final dismissal of a defaulting plaintiff, or the record upon which it is based, should demonstrate that the decision to dismiss conforms with the Kozel factors.	Should a trial court consider six factors prior to determining an appropriate sanction for a plaintiff's failure to amend?
3538	Matter of Wilson, 932 S.W.2d 263, 265 (Tex. App. 1996)	2	Dismissal of suit, in which affidavit of indigency is filed, as frivolous or malicious properly lies only where claim has no arguable basis in law or fact. V.T.C.A., Civil Practice & Remedies Code S 13.001(a)(2).	Texas law provides that the trial court may dismiss a suit where an affidavit of indigency is filed if the action is frivolous or malicious. TEX.CIV.PRAC. & REM.CODE ANN. § 13.001(a)(2) (Vernon Supp.1996). Dismissal properly lies only where a claim has no arguable basis in law or fact.	"Does dismissal of suit, in which affidavit of indigency is filed, as frivolous or malicious properly, lie where claim has no arguable basis in law or fact?"
3539	Middleton v. Middleton, 526 So. 2d 859, 860–61 (La. Ct. App. 1988)	2	Whether step or steps taken by defendant after accrual of five-year abandonment of action period be termed as "affirmative," "definite," or "formal," it is qualitative effect of step(s) taken by defendant which must be considered to determine whether defendant's conduct waived abandonment. LSA-C.C.P. art. 561.	Whether the step or steps taken by a defendant after the five-year period be *861 termed as "affirmative" (Southport Petroleum, supra) or as "definite" (Sandfield Oil & Gas Co., supra) or "formal" (Traigle, supra), it is the qualitative effect of the step(s) taken by a defendant which must be considered in a case to case approach to determine whether the defendant has waived the CCP Art. 561 abandonment.	Is it the qualitative effect of the steps taken by defendant which must be considered to determine whether the defendant has waived abandonment?

3540	Montgomery v. SmithKline Beecham Corp., 910 So.2d 541, 545 (Miss.,2005)	1	Ordinarily, under the civil procedure rule regarding service of process, if 120 days has expired after the filing of the complaint, a court must notify the plaintiff that, because of the failure to serve process, the case is subject to dismissal, and the plaintiff must then appear and attempt to show good cause why process was not served within the 120-day period for service. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 4(h).	Ordinarily under Rule 4(h), where the 120 days has expired, a court must notify the plaintiff that, because of the failure to serve process, the case is subject to dismissal. The plaintiff must then appear and attempt to show good cause why process was not served within the 120-day period for service. 4	Can good cause be demonstrated where a plaintiff has not been diligent in attempting to serve process?
3541	Flores v. Georgeson, 191 Cal. App. 4th 881, 887 (2011)	3	A court has inherent power, upon a sufficient factual showing, to dismiss an action shown to be sham, fictitious or without merit in order to prevent abuse of the judicial process.	A court has inherent power, upon a sufficient factual showing, to dismiss an action "shown to be sham, fictitious or without merit in order to prevent abuse of the judicial process."	"Does Court have inherent power to dismiss action shown to be fictitious and sham, without basing order on facts specified in statute?"
3543	State v. E.I., 114 So. 3d 309, 310 (Fla.App. 4 Dist., 2013)	3	Moot case will generally be dismissed unless the questions raised are of great public importance or are likely to recur, or if collateral legal consequences that affect the rights of a party flow from the questions raised.	A moot case will generally be dismissed unless the questions raised are of great public importance or are likely to recur, or if collateral legal consequences that affect the rights of a party flow from the questions raised.	Will a moot case be dismissed if the questions raised are of great public importance or if the questions raised are likely to recur?
3544	Mazer v. Orange Cnty., 811 So.2d 857, 859 (Fla.App. 5 Dist.,2002)	6	At least three instances have been recognized by courts in which a moot case will not be dismissed: (1) when the issues are of great public importance; (2) when the issues are likely to recur; and (3) when collateral legal consequences flow from the issues to be resolved that may affect the rights of a party.	At least three instances have been recognized by Florida courts in which a moot case will not be dismissed: 1) when the issues are of great public importance; 2) when the issues are likely to recur; and 3) when collateral legal consequences flow from the issues to be resolved that may affect the rights of a party.	What are the instances that have been recognized by courts in which a moot case will not be dismissed?
3545	JVA Enterprises, I, LLC v. Prentice, 48 So.3d 109, 113 (Fla.App. 4 Dist., 2010)	5	When imposing the harshest of sanctions for fraud on the court, namely dismissal of the action, trial courts should weigh the policy favoring adjudication on the merits with the need to maintain the integrity of the judicial system.	When imposing the sanction of dismissal for fraud upon the court, trial courts should weigh the "policy favoring adjudication on the merits" with the need to "maintain the integrity of the judicial system."	"When imposing the harshest of sanctions for fraud on the court, namely dismissal of the action, should trial courts weigh the policy favoring adjudication on the merits?"
3550	TransAmerican Nat. Gas Corp. v. Powell, 811 S.W.2d 913, 918 (Tex., 1991)	5	Discovery sanctions which are so severe as to preclude presentation of merits of case should not be assessed absent party's flagrant bad faith or counsel's callous disregard for responsibility of discovery under rules. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 215.	Sanctions which are so severe as to preclude presentation of the merits of the case should not be assessed absent a party's flagrant bad faith or counsel's callous disregard for the responsibilities of discovery under the rules.	Should death penalty sanction not be assessed absent a party's flagrant bad faith conduct or counsel's callous disregard of the rules?

3552	In re Peoples, 250 S.E.2d 890, 912, 296 N.C. 109, 148 (N.C., 1978)	13	Unlike question of jurisdiction, issue of mootness is not determined merely by examining facts in existence at commencement of action, for if issues before court or administrative body become moot at any time during course of proceedings, usual response should be to dismiss the action.	Unlike the question of jurisdiction, the issue of mootness is not determined solely by examining facts in existence at the commencement of the action. If the issues before a court or administrative body become moot at any time during the course of the proceedings, the usual response should be to dismiss the action.	Should the court dismiss the action if the issues giving rise to the action become moot at any time during the proceedings?
3553	RBS Citizens, Nat. Ass'n v. RTG-Oak Lawn, LLC, 407 Ill.App.3d 183, 186 (Ill.App. 1 Dist., 2011)	2	A motion to dismiss based upon certain defects or defenses admits the legal sufficiency of the complaint but raises defects, defenses, or other affirmative matters that appear on the face of the complaint or are established by external submissions that act to defeat the claim. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	A motion to dismiss under section 2-619, on the other hand, admits the legal sufficiency of the complaint but raises defects, defenses, or other affirmative matters that appear on the face of the complaint or are established by external submissions that act to defeat the claim.	"Does a motion to dismiss assert certain defects, defenses or other affirmative matters that appear on the face of the complaint?"
3554	Thormodsgard v. Wayne Twp. Bd. of Sup'rs, 310 N.W.2d 157, 159 (S.D. 1981)	1	Abandonment of section line right-of-way cannot be established solely by evidence that highway has never been open, improved or traveled, but rather, appropriate governing board must act affirmatively to vacate or abandon section line right-of-way. SDCL 31-3-1, 31-18-1.	Abandonment of a section line right-of-way cannot be established solely by evidence that the highway has never been open, improved, or traveled. Costain v. Turner County, 72 S.D. 427, 36 N.W.2d 382 (1949); Pederson v. Canton Township, 72 S.D. 332, 34 N.W.2d 172 (1949). The appropriate governing board must act affirmatively to vacate or abandon a section line right-of-way.	Should the appropriate governing board act affirmatively to vacate or abandon a section line right-of-way?
3555	Faith Assembly v. Titledge of New York Abstract, LLC, 106 A.D.3d 47, 57-58, 961 N.Y.S.2d 542, 549-50 (2013)	1	A motion to dismiss may be appropriately granted only where the documentary evidence utterly refutes plaintiff's factual allegations, conclusively establishing a defense as a matter of law. McKinney's CPLR 3211(a)(1).	"A motion to dismiss pursuant to CPLR 3211(a)(1) 'may be appropriately granted only where the documentary evidence utterly refutes plaintiff's factual allegations, conclusively establishing a defense as a matter of law' " (Cervini v. Zanoni, 95 A.D.3d 919, 920-921, 944 N.Y.S.2d 574, quoting Goshen v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of N.Y., 98 N.Y.2d 314, 326, 746 N.Y.S.2d 858, 774 N.E.2d 1190; see *58 Leon v. Martinez, 84 N.Y.2d 83, 88, 614 N.Y.S.2d 972, 638 N.E.2d 511; Shaya B. Pac., LLC v. Wilson, Elser, Moskowitz, Edelman & Dicker, LLP, 38 A.D.3d 34, 38, 827 N.Y.S.2d 231).	Will a motion to dismiss be granted where the documentary evidence utterly refutes plaintiff factual allegations?

3558	Republic Claims Service Co. v. Hoyal, 264 Ga. 127, 127 (1994)	1	Party who wishes to avoid automatic dismissal for want of prosecution has duty to obtain written order of continuance within five-year period. O.C.G.A. § 9-2-60(b).	OCGA § 9-2-60(b) places upon the party, who wishes to avoid automatic dismissal, a duty to obtain a written order of continuance or other written order within the five-year period.	Does the party who wishes to avoid automatic dismissal for want of prosecution have a duty to obtain a written order of continuance within a five-year period?
3559	Florez v. City of Miami, 858 So.2d 378, 379 (Fla.App. 3 Dist., 2003)	2	To defeat a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute, it must be shown that there was affirmative record activity during this time by pleading or order which was reasonably calculated to advance the case toward resolution.	To defeat a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute, "it must be shown that there was affirmative record activity during this time by pleading or order which was reasonably calculated to advance the case toward resolution".	"To defeat a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute, should it be shown that there was affirmative record activity during this time?"
3560	Rolle v. Cold Stone Creamery, Inc., 212 So.3d 1073, 1076 (Fla.App. 3 Dist., 2017)	6	Affirmative defenses are generally matters raised in an answer and not a motion to dismiss; however, where the facts constituting the defense affirmatively appear on the face of the complaint and establish conclusively that the defense bars the action as a matter of law, a motion to dismiss raising the defense is properly granted.	Affirmative defenses are generally matters raised in an answer and not a motion to dismiss. Grove Isle, 137 So.3d at 1089. "However, where the facts constituting the defense affirmatively appear on the face of the complaint and establish conclusively that the defense bars the action as a matter of law, a motion to dismiss raising the defense is properly granted."	Are affirmative defenses generally matters raised in an answer and not a motion to dismiss?
3561	Dunn v. City of Kenner, 11 So.3d 1115, 1117, 08-378 La.App. 5 Cir. 3/26/09, 5 (La.App. 5 Cir., 2009)	1	Whether a step in the prosecution of a case has been taken in the trial court for a period of three years, so as to defeat a claim of abandonment, is a question of fact subject to a manifest error analysis on appeal. LSA-C.C.P. art. 561.	Whether or not a step in the prosecution of a case has been taken in the trial court for a period of three years is a question of fact subject to a manifest error analysis on appeal.	Has whether or not a step in the prosecution of a case been taken in the trial court for a period of three years a question of fact?
3563	Tennessee Valley Kaolin Corp. v. Perry, 526 S.W.2d 488, 491 (Tenn.Ct.App., 1974)	4	Implied duty of lessee to mine premises can be and is waived by lessor where lessee has paid or agreed to pay specific sum of money in lieu of recurring royalties and money has been accepted by lessor.	However, such an implied duty to mine can be and is waived by the lessor 'where the lessee has paid or agreed to pay a specific sum of money in lieu of recurring royalties and the money has been accepted by the lessor'.	Is a duty to mine waived by the lessor where the lessee has paid a specific sum of money in lieu of recurring royalties and the money has been accepted by the lessor?
3564	Harnish v. Shannon, 141 A.2d 347, 352 (Pa. 1958)	6	Lease of coal in place until such time as all of available merchantable coal shall have been mined and removed is a sale of an estate in fee simple and leaves lessor with only interest in royalties to be paid under that lease.	It is well settled in this state that a lease of coal in place until such time as all of the available merchantable coal shall have been mined and removed is a sale of an estate in fee simple and leaves the lessor with only an interest in the royalties to be paid him under that lease.	Is a lease of coal in place a sale of an estate in fee simple and leaves the lessor with only an interest in the royalties?
3566	Vodak v. City of Chicago, 624 F. Supp. 2d 933, 956 (N.D. Ill. 2009), rev'd, 639 F.3d 738 (7th Cir. 2011)	11	Act of blocking the free flow of pedestrian or vehicular traffic on public ways will support a conviction for the offense of disorderly conduct under Illinois law.	To promote these strong interests in maintaining an orderly flow of traffic, "[i]t is well-established in the Illinois that the act of blocking the free flow of pedestrian or vehicular traffic on public ways will support a conviction for the offense of disorderly conduct." Jones, 106 F.3d at 779.	Can an act of blocking the free flow of pedestrian or vehicular traffic on public ways support a conviction for the offense of disorderly conduct?

3567	Cartwright v. Bell, 418 S.W.2d 463, 469, 57 Tenn.App. 352, 365 (Tenn.App. 1967)	2	Private Act conferring authority upon county to open, close, change or create system of roads and bridges gives county no broader authority with respect to roads than is given under general statutes. Priv.Acts 1919, c. 359; T.C.A. S 54-1701.	[A] private act conferring authority upon the County to open, close, change or create a system of roads and bridges gives it no broader authority with respect to roads than is given under general statutes.	Do private acts confer broader authority on the County to close roads than the general statutes?
3568	Hillman v. Weatherly, 14 So.3d 721, 726 (Miss., 2009)	6	The propriety of a dismissal with prejudice is bolstered by the presence of aggravating factors, including: (1) the extent to which the plaintiff, as distinguished from his counsel, was personally responsible for the delay, (2) the degree of actual prejudice to the defendant, and (3) whether the delay was the result of intentional conduct. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	The propriety of a dismissal with prejudice is bolstered by the presence of aggravating factors, including: (1) "the extent to which the plaintiff, as distinguished from his counsel, was personally responsible for the delay," (2) "the degree of actual prejudice to the defendant," and (3) "whether the delay was the result of intentional conduct."	"Is the propriety of a dismissal with prejudice, bolstered by the degree of actual prejudice to the defendant?"
3570	Jenkins v. Tucker, 18 So. 3d 265, 272 (Miss. Ct. App. 2009)	16	Aggravating factors supporting a dismissal for want of prosecution may include: (1) whether the delay was caused by the party as opposed to his counsel; (2) whether there was actual prejudice to the opposing party; and (3) whether the delay was an intentional attempt to abuse the judicial process. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	Aggravating factors may include: "(1) whether the delay was caused by the party as opposed to his counsel[;] (2) whether there was actual prejudice to the opposing party[;] and (3) whether the delay was an intentional attempt to abuse the judicial process."	"Do aggravating factors supporting a dismissal for want of prosecution, include whether there was actual prejudice to the opposing party?"
3572	Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Inc. v. Willis, 401 N.E.2d 87, 93 (Ind.App., 1980)	14	A proceeding for workmen's compensation is purely statutory in origin and procedure and the rights and obligations of the parties concerned must be determined by reference to legislative act.	A proceeding for workmen's compensation is purely statutory in origin and procedure. Therefore the rights and obligations of the parties concerned must be determined by reference to the act of the Legislature.	"Are proceedings for workmen's compensation purely statutory in origin and procedure, and the rights and obligations of the parties concerned determined by reference to the act of the Legislature?"
3575	Nazeri v. Missouri Valley College, 860 S.W.2d 303, 306 (Mo., 1993)	1	Motion to dismiss for failure to state cause of action is solely test of adequacy of plaintiff's petition, and it assumes that all of plaintiff's averments are true and liberally grants plaintiff all reasonable inferences therefrom.	A motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action is solely a test of the adequacy of the plaintiff's petition. It assumes that all of plaintiff's averments are true, and liberally grants to plaintiff all reasonable inferences therefrom.	Is a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action solely a test of the adequacy of the petition?
3576	New Bar Partnership v. Martin, 729 S.E.2d 675, 680 (N.C.App., 2012)	3	A complaint may be properly dismissed for absence of law to support a claim, absence of facts sufficient to make a good claim, or the disclosure of some fact that necessarily defeats the claim. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(6).	A complaint may be properly dismissed for absence of law to support a claim, absence of facts sufficient to make a good claim, or the disclosure of some fact that necessarily defeats the claim.	"Can a complaint be properly dismissed for absence of law to support a claim, absence of facts sufficient to make a good claim, or the disclosure of some fact that necessarily defeats the claim?"

3577	State v. France, 180 Wash. 2d 809, 818 (2014)	9	The First Amendment broadly protects speech, but not "true threats" which are statements made in a context or under such circumstances wherein a reasonable person would foresee that the statement would be interpreted as a serious expression of intention to inflict bodily harm upon or to take the life' of another person. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1; West's RCWA 9A.46.020.	The First Amendment to the United States Constitution broadly protects speech, but not "true threats"; statements "made in a 'context or under such circumstances wherein a reasonable person would foresee that the statement would be interpreted ... as a serious expression of intention to inflict bodily harm upon or to take the life' of another person."	"What is the definition of ""true threats""?"
3579	First Nat. Bank in Dallas v. Lampman, 442 S.W.2d 858, 862 (Tex.Civ.App., 1969)	4	Person who possesses promissory notes, checks, or other choses in action for collection cannot be held liable as garnishee in suit against owner thereof unless he has received payment of money thereon. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 659.	A person who has in his possession for collection promissory notes, checks or other choses in action of another cannot be held liable as garnishee in a suit against the owner thereof unless he has received payment of money thereon.	"Can a person in possession of instruments like promissory notes, chose in actions and checks be held liable as garnishee?"
3580	Allen v. Titan Propane, LLC, 484 S.W.3d 902, 905 (Mo.App. S.D., 2016)	6	A very narrow and limited exception to the pleading requirement for affirmative defenses exists, whereby a defendant may properly file a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim when it appears from the face of the petition that an affirmative defense is applicable. V.A.M.R. 55.27(a)(6).	A very narrow and limited exception to the pleading requirement exists, however, "whereby a defendant may properly file a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim under Rule 55.27(a)(6) when it appears from the face of the petition that an affirmative defense is applicable."	Are there any exceptions that exist to the pleading requirement for affirmative defenses?
3582	Rainbow Home Health, Inc. v. Schmidt, 76 S.W.3d 53, 56 (Tex. App. 2002)	5	There are three grounds upon which a trial court may dismiss a case: (1) when a party fails to appear at a hearing or trial; (2) when the case has not been disposed of within the Supreme Court's time standard; and (3) by the trial court's inherent power to dismiss when the case has not been prosecuted with due diligence. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a(1, 2).	There are three grounds upon which a trial court may dismiss a case: (1) when a party fails to appear at a hearing or trial pursuant to TEX.R. CIV. P. 165a(1); (2) when the case has not been disposed of within the Supreme Court's time standard pursuant to TEX.R. CIV. P. 165a(2); and (3) by the trial court's inherent power to dismiss when the case has not been prosecuted with due diligence.	Can court dismiss a case when the case has not been prosecuted with due diligence?
3583	Vanek v. State, Bd. of Fisheries, 193 P.3d 283, 286 (Alaska 2008)	2	To survive a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, the complaint must allege a set of facts consistent with and appropriate to some cause of action. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(6).	To survive a motion to dismiss, the complaint must allege a set of facts consistent with and appropriate to some cause of action.	"To survive a motion for dismissal for failure to state a claim, is it enough that the complaint set forth allegations of fact consistent with and appropriate to some enforceable cause of action?"

3584	Rosenthal v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc., 908 P.2d 1095, 1099 (Colo.,1995)	1	Supreme Court views with disfavor a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim and upholds trial court's grant of such motion only if it appears beyond doubt that plaintiff can prove no set of facts in support of his claim which would entitle him to relief. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(5).	We view with disfavor a C.R.C.P. 12(b)(5) motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim and uphold a trial court's grant of such a motion only if "it appears beyond doubt that the plaintiff can prove no set of facts in support of his claim which would entitle him to relief."	"Is dismissal for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, proper where the factual allegations in the complaint cannot support the claim for relief?"
3588	United States v. Peralta-Sanchez, 847 F.3d 1124, 1132 (C.A.9 (Cal.), 2017)	7	The fact that aliens are protected by the Due Process Clause does not mean that all aliens are entitled to enjoy all the advantages of citizenship or that all aliens must be placed in a single homogenous legal classification; the class of aliens is itself a heterogenous multitude of persons with a wide-ranging variety of ties to this country. U.S. Const. Amend. 5.	However, the fact that aliens are protected by the Due Process Clause does not mean that "all aliens are entitled to enjoy all the advantages of citizenship or ... that all aliens must be placed in a single homogenous legal classification." Mathews, 426 U.S. at 78, 96 S.Ct. 1883. "[T]he class of aliens is itself a heterogenous multitude of persons with a wide- ranging variety of ties to this country." Id.	Does the fact that aliens are protected by the Due Process Clause lead to a conclusion that all aliens must be placed in a single homogeneous legal classification?
3589	Wood v. J Choo USA, Inc., 201 F. Supp. 3d 1332, 1340 (S.D. Fla. 2016)	16	Through the Fair and Accurate Credit Transactions Act (FACTA), Congress created a substantive legal right for card-holding consumers to receive receipts truncating their personal credit card numbers and expiration dates and, thus, protecting their personal financial information. Consumer Credit Protection Act S 605, 15 U.S.C.A. S 1681c(g).	Through FACTA, Congress created a substantive legal right for Wood and other card-holding consumers similarly situated to receive receipts truncating their personal credit card numbers and expiration dates and, thus, protecting their personal financial information.	Is it a substantive legal right of a consumer to receive a truncated card receipt?
3594	West v. Ray, 210 La. 25, 33, 26 So. 2d 221, 224 (1946)	3	An affirmative defense, presented through exceptions or motions tried or triable only on the face of the petition should not be sustained unless the allegations of the petition exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than the premise upon which the defense is based.	We conclude therefore that an affirmative defense, presented through exceptions or motions tried or triable only on the face of the petition, should not be sustained unless the allegations of the petition exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than the premise upon which the defense is based.	When can an affirmative defense presented through exceptions or motions tried or triable only on the face of the petition be sustained?
3595	West v. Ray, 210 La. 25, 33, 26 So. 2d 221, 224 (1946)	3	An affirmative defense, presented through exceptions or motions tried or triable only on the face of the petition should not be sustained unless the allegations of the petition exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than the premise upon which the defense is based.	We conclude therefore that an affirmative defense, presented through exceptions or motions tried or triable only on the face of the petition, should not be sustained unless the allegations of the petition exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than the premise upon which the defense is based.	Can an affirmative defense be sustained unless the allegations of the petition exclude every reasonable hypothesis?

3596	Jenkins v. A. R. Blossman, Inc., 60 So. 2d 131, 133 (La. Ct. App. 1952)	1	An affirmative defense, presented through exceptions or motions tried or triable only on the face of the petition, should not be sustained unless the allegations of the petition exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than the premise upon which the defense is based.	"We conclude therefore that an affirmative defense, presented through exceptions or motions tried or triable only on the face of the petition, should not be sustained unless the allegations of the petition exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than the premise upon which the defense is based."	Can an affirmative defense be sustained unless the allegations of the petition exclude every reasonable hypothesis?
3597	Gardner v. Bank of Am., N.A., 466 S.W.3d 642, 648 (Mo.App. 2015)	8	While a motion for a more definite statement is one manner in which a defendant may complain about the sufficiency of pleadings, a motion to dismiss can also be used to raise the issue.	"While a motion for a more definite statement is one manner in which a defendant may complain about the sufficiency of pleadings, a motion to dismiss can also be used to raise the issue."	"While a motion for a more definite statement is one manner in which a defendant can complain about the sufficiency of pleadings, can a motion to dismiss also be used to raise the issue?"
3598	Cordova v. Vons Grocery Co., 196 Cal. App. 3d 1526, 1534, 242 Cal. Rptr. 605, 610 (Ct. App. 1987)	6	Once a plaintiff makes some showing of excusable delay, a trial court must "view the total picture" before deciding whether to dismiss an action for delay in prosecution. West's Ann.Cal.C.C.P. SS 583.410, 583.420; Cal.Rules of Court, Rule 373(e).	Once the plaintiff makes some showing of excusable delay, the trial court must "view the total picture" before deciding whether to dismiss for delay in prosecution. (See Salas v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. , supra , 42 Cal.3d 342, 346, 228 Cal.Rptr. 504, 721 P.2d 590.)	"Should a court ""view the total picture"" before deciding whether to dismiss an action for delay in prosecution, once a plaintiff makes some showing of excusable delay?"
3599	Speake v. Grantham, 317 F. Supp. 1253, 1265 (S.D.Miss., 1970)	6	A college or university has inherent power to promulgate rules and regulations; the right to discipline; the right to protect itself and its property through lawful means; the right to expect its students to adhere generally to accepted standards of conduct commensurate with their approaching maturity and majority.	A college or university has the inherent power to promulgate rules and regulations; the right to discipline; the right to protect itself and its property through lawful means; the right to expect its students to adhere generally to accepted standards of conduct commensurate with their approaching maturity and majority.	Does a university have the power to promulgate rules and regulations?
3601	In re Pub. Roads in E. Fallowfield&NewlinTps., 183 Pa. Super. 426, 430 (1957)	4	It is proper to join in one petition the request for vacation of a public road, and the request for its relocation over a more satisfactory route, to join in one petition, the request for vacation of two roads which are physically connected and in essence but one road, and to petition for the laying out of a road and the vacation of a road which will thereby be made useless.	It has been held proper to join in one petition the request for vacation of a road and the request for its relocation over a more satisfactory route (In re Ottercreek Township Road, 104 Pa. 261, 263, 264); to join in one petition the request for vacation of two roads which are physically connected and in essence but one road (In re Paradise Twp. Road, 29 Pa. 20, 22); to petition for the laying out of a road and the vacation of a road which will thereby be made useless	"Is it proper to join in one petition the request for the laying out of a road, and the vacation of a road which will thereby be made useless?"

3602	EBC I, Inc. v. Goldman, Sachs & Co., 5 N.Y.3d 11, 19, 832 N.E.2d 26, 31 (2005)	2	In the context of a motion to dismiss, the court must afford the pleadings a liberal construction, take the allegations of the complaint as true and provide plaintiff the benefit of every possible inference. McKinney's CPLR 3211.	In the context of a motion to dismiss pursuant to CPLR 3211, the court must afford the pleadings a liberal construction, take the allegations of the complaint as true and provide plaintiff the benefit of every possible inference (see Goshen v. Mutual Life Ins. Co. of N.Y. , 98 N.Y.2d 314, 326, 746 N.Y.S.2d 858 [2002]).	"In procedural context of motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action, should a court afford the pleadings a liberal construction?"
3603	Hartman v. Morganstern, 28 A.D.3d 423, 424, 814 N.Y.S.2d 169, 170 (2006)	1	A motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action should be granted only where, even viewing the allegations as true, the plaintiff still cannot establish a cause of action. McKinney's CPLR 3211(a)(7).	In considering a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action pursuant to CPLR 3211(a)(7), the allegations in the complaint must be accepted as true (see Leon v. Martinez , 84 N.Y.2d 83, 87–88, 614 N.Y.S.2d 972, 638 N.E.2d 511). Such a motion should be granted only where, even viewing the allegations as true, the plaintiff still cannot establish a cause of action (see Cayuga Partners v. 150 Grand , 305 A.D.2d 527, 759 N.Y.S.2d 347).	"Should a motion to dismiss for the failure to state claim be granted where, even viewing the allegations as true, the plaintiff cannot establish a cause of action?"
3604	Oliver v. Pierce, , 2012 IL App (4th) 110005, ¶ 11 (Ill.App. 4 Dist., 2012)	3	In ruling on a motion to dismiss for the failure to state a cause of action, a court must accept as true all well-pleaded facts in the complaint and all reasonable inferences therefrom, and it must consider all facts apparent from the face of the pleadings, including the exhibits attached thereto. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-615.	In ruling on a section 2-615 motion to dismiss, "a court must accept as true all well-pleaded facts in the complaint and all reasonable inferences therefrom." Id. The court must consider "[a]ll facts apparent from the face of the pleadings, including the exhibits attached thereto." Green v.	"In ruling on a motion to dismiss for the failure to state a cause of action, should a court accept all well-pleaded facts in the complaint and all reasonable inferences therefrom as true?"
3605	McEnroy v. St. Meinrad School of Theology, 713 N.E.2d 334, 336 (Ind.App.,1999)	3	Unlike ruling on motion for summary judgment, trial court may weigh evidence and resolve factual disputes when ruling on motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. Trial Procedure Rule 12(B)(1).	Unlike ruling on a motion for summary judgment, the trial court may weigh evidence and resolve factual disputes when ruling on a motion for subject matter jurisdiction.	"In ruling on a motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, can the court resolve factual disputes?"
3607	Duncan v. Sikorsky Support Services, 736 So.2d 613, 615 (Ala.Civ.App.,1998)	3	Although involuntary dismissal is a harsh sanction, it is warranted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default, or contumacious conduct of the plaintiff; no wrongful motive or intent is necessary to show willful conduct. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	Although a Rule 41(b) dismissal is a harsh sanction, it is warranted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default, or contumacious conduct of the plaintiff. Id. No wrongful motive or intent is necessary to show willful conduct.	"Is dismissal warranted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default, or contumacious conduct of the plaintiff?"
3608	Busch v. Bates, 753 N.E.2d 1184, 1191, 257 Ill.Dec. 558, 565, 323 Ill.App.3d 823, 831–32 (Ill.App. 5 Dist., 2001)	8	A motion for involuntary dismissal should be granted by the circuit court if, after construing the documents supporting the motion in the light most favorable to the opposing party, it finds no disputed issues of fact and concludes that the affirmative matter negates the cause of action completely. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	A section 2-619 motion should be granted by the circuit court if, after construing the documents supporting the motion in the light most favorable to the opposing party, it finds no disputed issues of fact and concludes that the affirmative matter negates the cause of action completely.	Can a motion for involuntary dismissal be granted by the court?

3610	Adams v. City of New York, 226 F.Supp.3d 261, 267 (S.D.N.Y., 2016)fn3	12	Under New York law, offense of disorderly conduct has three elements: (1) the defendant's conduct must be public in nature, (2) it must be done with intent to cause public inconvenience, annoyance or alarm or with recklessness as to a risk thereof, and (3) it must match at least one of the descriptions set forth in the statute. N.Y. Penal Law S 240.20.	The offense of disorderly conduct has three elements: "(i) the defendant's conduct must be 'public' in nature, (ii) it must be done with 'intent to cause public inconvenience, annoyance or alarm' or with recklessness as to 'a risk thereof,' and (iii) it must match at least one of the descriptions set forth in the statute."	What are the elements of disorderly conduct offense?
3612	Smith v. Gregg, 946 S.W.2d 807, 809 (Mo.App. S.D., 1997)	1	In determining if petition states cause of action, all facts that are properly pleaded and all reasonable inferences that may be drawn therefrom are taken as true.	In determining if a petition states a cause of action, all facts that are properly pleaded and all reasonable inferences that may be drawn therefrom are taken as true.	"In determining if petition states cause of action, are all facts that are properly pleaded and all reasonable inferences that can be drawn therefrom taken as true?"
3614	Goettman v. North Fork Valley Restaurant, 176 P.3d 60, 65 (Colo. 2007)	2	In its discretion, a court may address a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction on documentary evidence alone or by holding an evidentiary hearing. West's C.R.S.A. S 13-1-124.	In its discretion, a court may address a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction on documentary evidence alone or by holding an evidentiary hearing.	"In its discretion, can a court address a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction on documentary evidence alone or by holding an evidentiary hearing?"
3615	Metropolitan Transit Authority v. Kaneva, 351 So. 2d 748, 748 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1977)	1	A ruling on a motion for order of dismissal for failure to prosecute is subject to attack only on ground that it constitutes abuse of discretion and this burden must be borne by losing party. 30 West's F.S.A. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 1.420(e).	A ruling on a motion for order of dismissal for failure to prosecute is subject to attack only on the ground that it constitutes and abuse of discretion and this burden must be borne by the losing party.	Is a ruling on a motion for order of dismissal for failure to prosecute subject to attack only on ground that it constitutes abuse of discretion?
3616	William Penn Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Viscuso, 663 F. Supp. 2d 353, 357 (S.D.N.Y. 2009)	4	Doctrine of equitable estoppel is properly invoked under New York law, where the enforcement of the rights of one party would work an injustice upon the other party due to the latter's justifiable reliance upon the former's words or conduct.	The purpose of equitable estoppel is to prevent unconscionable injury. American Bartenders School, Inc. v. 105 Madison Company , 59 N.Y.2d 716, 718, 463 N.Y.S.2d 424, 450 N.E.2d 230 (1983).1 The doctrine is properly invoked "where the enforcement of the rights of one party would work an injustice upon the other party due to the latter's justifiable reliance upon the former's words or conduct." Veltri v. Building Service 32B-J Pension Fund , 393 F.3d 318, 326 (2d Cir.2004).	Is equitable estoppel properly invoked where enforcement of the rights of one party would work an injustice upon the other party?
3617	Layton v. Cook, 248 Miss. 690, 696-97 (Miss. 1964)	3	Pedestrian has right to use and travel upon any portion of public highway at any time of day or night, in absence of statute to contrary, and his rights and rights of one operating a vehicle thereupon are mutual, reciprocal and equal. Code 1942, S 8176.	In the absence of a statute to the contrary, a pedestrian has the right to use and travel upon any portion of a public highway at any time of the day or night, 'and his rights and the rights of one operating a vehicle thereupon are mutual, reciprocal, and equal.	Does a pedestrian have the right to travel on any portion of public highway at any time of the day?

3618	Altman v. PNC Mortg., 850 F.Supp.2d 1057, 1078 (E.D.Cal., 2012)	45	Under California law, where a written instrument is the foundation of a cause of action, it may be pleaded in haec verba by attaching a copy as an exhibit and incorporating it by proper reference.	It is elementary that where, as in the instant case, a written instrument is the foundation of a cause of action, it may be pleaded in haec verba by attaching a copy as an exhibit and incorporating it by proper reference.	"Where a written instrument is the foundation of a cause of action, can it be pleaded in haec verba by attaching a copy as an exhibit and incorporating it by proper reference?"
3619	Houston v. Pollard, 121 S.E.2d 629, 632, 217 Ga. 184, 187 (Ga. 1961)	2	Upon demurrer, pleadings are to be construed most strongly against the pleader, and in light of their omissions as well as their averments, and if an inference unfavorable to right of a party claiming a right under such pleadings may be fairly drawn from facts stated therein, such inference will prevail in determining rights of the parties.	'Upon demurrer, pleadings are to be construed most strongly against the pleader, and in the light of their omissions as well as their averments; and if an inference unfavorable to the right of a party claiming a right under such pleadings may be fairly drawn from the facts stated therein, such inference will prevail in determining the rights of the parties.	Should pleadings be construed in the light of their omissions as well as their averments?
3620	Dakota Cheese, Inc. v. Taylor, 525 N.W.2d 713, 716 (S.D.,1995)	7	Dismissal of cause of action for failure to prosecute should be granted when, after considering all facts and circumstances of particular case, plaintiff can be charged with lack of due diligence in failing to proceed with reasonable promptitude.	Finally, dismissal of the cause of action for failure to prosecute should be granted when, after considering all the facts and circumstances of the particular case, the plaintiff can be charged with lack of due diligence in failing to proceed with reasonable promptitude.	Can plaintiff be charged with lack of due diligence for failing to proceed with reasonable promptitude?
3622	Rizzo v. Pittsburgh Rys. Co., 226 Pa.Super. 566, 568 (Pa.Super. 1974)	1	The court may grant non pros. when it appears that plaintiff failed to prosecute his action within a reasonable time, there is no reasonable excuse for the delay, and the delay has been prejudicial to the defendant.	The lower court may grant a non pros. when it appears that the plaintiff has failed to prosecute his action within a reasonable time, there is no reasonable excuse 176 for the delay, and the delay has been prejudicial to the defendant.	Do courts grant non pros when it appears that the plaintiff has failed to prosecute his action within a reasonable time?
3624	C.M.F. v. R.G.F., 13 A.3d 905, 909, 418 N.J.Super. 396, 402 (N.J.Super.A.D.,2011)	3	The following elements are required to establish a violation of harassment statute: (1) defendant made or caused to be made a communication; (2) defendant's purpose in making or causing the communication to be made was to harass another person; and (3) the communication was in one of the specified manners or any other manner similarly likely to cause annoyance or alarm to its intended recipient. N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4(a).	The Court stated that the following elements were required to establish such a violation: (1) defendant made or caused to be made a communication; (2) defendant's purpose in making or causing the communication to be made was to harass another person; and (3) the communication was in one of the specified manners or any other manner similarly likely to cause annoyance or alarm to its intended recipient.	What elements are required to establish a violation of the harassment statute?
3625	Doppler v. Doppler, 574 A.2d 1101, 1105, 393 Pa.Super. 600, 608 (Pa.Super.,1990)	2	Doctrine of "equitable estoppel" protects reasonable expectations of one who relies on another's course of conduct; it prevents party from taking position that is inconsistent with position previously taken which is disadvantageous to the other.	The doctrine of equitable estoppel protects the reasonable expectations of one who relies on another's course of conduct; it prevents a party from taking a position that is inconsistent with a position previously taken which is disadvantageous to the other.	Does equitable estoppel protect the reasonable expectations of one who relies on another's course of conduct?

3626	MSC Mediterranean Shipping Co. SA, Geneva v. Metal Worldwide, Inc., 884 F. Supp. 2d 1269, 1274 (S.D. Fla. 2012)	8	The doctrine of equitable estoppel is grounded on a notion of fair dealing and good conscience, and it is designed to aid the law in the administration of justice where without its aid injustice might result.	The doctrine of equitable estoppel "is grounded on a notion of fair dealing and good conscience. It is designed to aid the law in the administration of justice where without its aid injustice might result." DeShong v. Seaboard Coast Line R.R. Co. , 737 F.2d 1520, 1522 (11th Cir.1984).	Is equitable estoppel designed to aid the law in the administration of justice where without its aid an injustice might result?
3628	Manning v. Wilkinson, 264 S.W.3d 620, 624 (Ky.App.,2007)	3	As a dismissal with prejudice deprives a litigant of the opportunity to pursue his or her claim, the trial court is obligated to consider all relevant factors and lesser sanctions. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41.02.	As a dismissal with prejudice deprives a litigant of the opportunity to pursue his or her claim, the trial is obligated to consider all relevant factors and lesser sanctions.	"As a dismissal with prejudice deprives a litigant of the opportunity to pursue his or her claim, is the trial court obligated to consider all relevant factors and lesser sanctions?"
3630	Schreiner v. Karson, 52 Ohio App.2d 219, 222-223 (1977)	4	A dismissal with prejudice is an extremely harsh sanction which affects not only suit dismissed but, because it acts as decision on the merits, also controls questions of fact in other related cases.	A dismissal with prejudice, however, is an extremely harsh *223 sanction. It affects not only the suit dismissed but, because it acts as a decision on the merits, also controls questions of fact in other related cases.	Is a dismissal with prejudice an extremely harsh sanction affecting not only the suit dismissed but also controls questions of fact in other related cases?
3631	Ford Motor Credit Co. v. Milhollin, 444 U.S. 555, 565-66 (1980)	3	Deference to views of administrative agency is especially appropriate in process of interpreting Truth in Lending Act and Regulation Z, and, unless demonstrably irrational, Federal Reserve Board staff opinions construing Act or Regulation should be dispositive. Truth in Lending Act, S 102 et seq. as amended 15 U.S.C.A. S 1601 et seq.; Truth in Lending Regulations, Regulation Z, S 226.1 et seq., 15 U.S.C.A. following section 1700.	At the very least, that caution requires attentiveness to the views of the administrative entity appointed to apply and enforce a statute. And deference is especially appropriate in the process of interpreting the Truth in Lending Act and Regulation Z. Unless demonstrably irrational, Federal Reserve Board staff opinions construing the Act or Regulation should be dispositive for several reasons.	Is deference appropriate in the process of interpreting the Truth in Lending Act and Regulation Z?
3632	Wolf v. Bueser, 279 Ill. App. 3d 217, 221, 664 N.E.2d 197, 200 (1996)	1	If grounds for motion for dismissal do not appear on face of pleading attacked, parties may file affidavits and deposition transcripts in support of motion. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619(a)(5).	If the grounds do not appear on the face of the pleading attacked, the motion shall be supported by affidavit. (735 ILCS 5/2-619(a)(5) (West 1992)). Parties may file not only affidavits but deposition transcripts. In re Estate of Silverman (1993), 257 Ill.App.3d 162, 172, 195 Ill.Dec. 299, 628 N.E.2d 763.	"If grounds for a motion for dismissal do not appear on the face of pleading attacked, can parties file affidavits and deposition transcripts in support of motion?"
3633	Beasley v. Beasley, 396 S.E.2d 222, 223, 260 Ga. 419, 420 (Ga.,1990)	4	If motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction is decided on basis of written submissions alone, disputes of fact found in affidavits are resolved in favor of plaintiff.	A defendant who files a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction has the burden of proving lack of jurisdiction. If the motion is decided on the basis of written submissions alone, as was the motion in this case, disputes of fact found in the affidavits are resolved in favor of plaintiff.	"Where a court decides motions to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction on a basis of affidavits and documentary evidence, are disputes of fact contained in affidavits resolved in favor of a plaintiff?"

3634	Pechar v. DynaPro, Inc., 251 Ill. App. 3d 1072, 1083, 622 N.E.2d 108, 117 (1993)	11	Motion to dismiss, under section providing that complaint barred by affirmative matter that defeats claim may be dismissed, should be supported by affidavit if grounds for dismissal do not appear on face of pleading. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619(a)(9).	Under section 2-619, a complaint may be dismissed when it is barred by an affirmative matter that defeats the claim. (735 ILCS 5/2-619(a)(9) (West 1992).) "The affirmative matter must be more than evidence offered to refute a well-pleaded fact." (Chicago Title & Trust Co. v. Weiss (1992), 238 Ill.App.3d 921, 925, 179 Ill.Dec. 78, 605 N.E.2d 1092.) The motion should be supported by an affidavit if the grounds for dismissal do not appear on the face of the pleading.	"Under a section providing that a complaint barred by affirmative matter that defeats claim can be dismissed, should it be supported by affidavit?"
3635	Caulfield v. Packer Group, Inc., 56 N.E.3d 509, 524, 404 Ill.Dec. 525, 540, 2016 IL App (1st) 151558, ¶ 66 (Ill.App. 1 Dist., 2016)	22	The decision of whether to dismiss an action with or without prejudice rests within the sound discretion of the trial court and will not be disturbed absent an abuse of discretion.	The decision whether to dismiss an action with or without prejudice rests within the sound discretion of the court and will not be disturbed absent an abuse of discretion.	Does the decision of whether to dismiss an action with or without prejudice rest within the sound discretion of the trial court and will not be disturbed absent an abuse of discretion?
3636	Dykes v. Sukup Mfg. Co., 781 N.W.2d 578, 583 (Minn., 2010)	11	A dismissal with prejudice and on the merits executed by both parties is a final determination and is equivalent to an adjudication on the merits regarding the claims asserted or which could have been asserted by the parties to that lawsuit, subject to certain exceptions.	A dismissal with prejudice and on the merits executed by both parties is "a final determination and is equivalent to an adjudication on the merits" regarding the claims asserted or which could have been asserted by the parties to that lawsuit, subject to certain exceptions not applicable in this case.	Is a dismissal with prejudice and on the merits executed by both parties a final determination and is equivalent to an adjudication on the merits regarding the claims asserted?
3637	Hagemann v. Illinois Workers' Comp. Comm'n, 399 Ill. App. 3d 197, 204-205 (2010)	9	An action shall be dismissed with prejudice if the plaintiff fails to exercise reasonable diligence to obtain service on a defendant after the statute of limitations expires. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 103(b).	An action "shall" be dismissed "with prejudice" if the plaintiff fails "to exercise *205 reasonable diligence to obtain service on a defendant" after the statute of limitations expires.	Should an action be dismissed with prejudice if the plaintiff fails to exercise reasonable diligence to obtain service on a defendant after the statute of limitations expires?
3638	Mitz v. Texas State Bd. of Veterinary Medical Examiners, 278 S.W.3d 17, 22 (Tex. App. 2008)	10	In cases where an agency has exclusive jurisdiction, trial court must dismiss claims without prejudice until the party has exhausted all administrative remedies.	In cases where an agency has exclusive jurisdiction, the trial court must dismiss the claims without prejudice until the party has exhausted all administrative remedies.	"In cases where an agency has exclusive jurisdiction, should a trial court dismiss claims without prejudice until the party has exhausted all administrative remedies?"

3639	Vill. of S. Elgin v. Waste Mgmt. of Illinois, Inc., 348 Ill. App. 3d 929, 940, 810 N.E.2d 658, 669 (2004)	22	Unless it clearly appears that no set of facts exist that would entitle the plaintiff to relief, the grant of a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim should not be with prejudice. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-615.	The Circuit Court, Kane County, Michael J. Colwell, J., granted operator's motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim and motion to dismiss based upon failure to exhaust administrative remedies. Village appealed. ... Therefore, though the granting of a motion to amend lies within the sound discretion of the trial court, the usual course is to grant a plaintiff liberal leave to amend. Unless it clearly appears that no set of facts exist that would entitle the plaintiff to relief, the dismissal should not be with prejudice. Hensler v. Busey Bank, 231 Ill.App.3d 920, 924, 173 Ill.Dec. 390, 596 N.E.2d 1269 (1992).	"Unless it clearly appears that no set of facts exist that would entitle the plaintiff to relief, should the grant of a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim not be with prejudice?"
3640	Hughes v. Massey, 65 S.W.3d 743, 746 (Tex. App. 2001)	10	Dismissal for failure to comply with the rules governing the filing of in forma pauperis suits is not a ruling on the merits; accordingly, it is error to dismiss the suit with prejudice if the inmate was not first provided with an opportunity to amend his pleadings. V.T.C.A., Civil Practice & Remedies Code S 14.003.	A dismissal for failure to comply with the rules governing the filing of in forma pauperis suits is not a ruling on the merits; accordingly, it is error to dismiss the suit with prejudice if the inmate was not first provided with an opportunity to amend his pleadings.	Is a dismissal for failure to comply with the rules governing the filing of in forma pauperis suits not a ruling on the merits?
3641	Thacker v. Bartlett, 785 N.E.2d 621, 624 (Ind.App., 2003)	7	A dismissal for failure to state a claim is without prejudice, since the complaining party remains able to file an amended complaint within the parameters of the rule. Trial Procedure Rule 12(B)(6).	Therefore, a Trial Rule 12(B) (6) dismissal is without prejudice, since the complaining party remains able to file an amended complaint within the parameters of the rule.	"Is a dismissal for failure to state a claim without prejudice, since the complaining party remains able to file an amended complaint?"
3643	Ohio Medical Professional Liability Underwriting Ass'n v. Physicians Ins. Co. of Ohio, Inc., 27 Ohio App.3d 23, 25 (Ohio App.,1985)	3	Voluntary dismissal with prejudice of claims against party defendant concludes rights which plaintiff asserted or could have asserted arising out of transaction, and bars future litigation on those rights.	Voluntary dismissal with prejudice of claims against a party defendant concludes rights 349 which plaintiff asserted or could have asserted arising out of the transaction, and bars future litigation on those rights.	Does voluntary dismissal with prejudice of claims against a party defendant conclude rights which a plaintiff asserted or could have asserted arising out of a transaction?

3645	Automobile Club of Oregon v. State, 314 Or. 479, 485–86 (Or., 1992)	2	"Tax" is any contribution imposed by government upon individuals for the use and service of the state, whether under the name of toll, tribute, tallage, gabel, impost, duty, custom, excise, subsidy, aid, supply, or other name; "assessment" is government fee imposed upon owners of property to finance improvements or services directly benefiting that property.	In the most general sense, a tax is "any contribution imposed by government upon individuals, for the use and service of the state, whether under the name of toll, tribute, tallage, gabel, impost, duty, custom, excise, subsidy, aid, supply, or other name." Black's Law Dictionary 1457 (6th ed 1991). An assessment is a government fee imposed on owners of property to finance improvements or services directly *486 benefiting that property; an assessment is exempt from constitutional limitations requiring that taxes be uniformly imposed so long as the financial burden and the private benefit are closely related.	Are taxes imposed upon individuals for the use and service of the state?
3646	Talley v. Com., 123 Pa. Cmwlth. 313, 315 (1989)	1	License fee is distinguishable from "tax," which is revenue producing measure characterized by production of high proportion of income relative to costs of collection and supervision.	A license fee is distinguishable from a tax which is a revenue producing measure characterized by the production of a high proportion of income relative to the costs of collection and supervision.	Is tax a revenue producing measure characterized by the production of a high proportion of income relative to the costs of collection and supervision?
3647	Takahashi v. Fish and Game Commission, 68 S.Ct. 1138, 1142, 334 U.S. 410, 418–19 (U.S. 1948)	3	The federal government has broad constitutional powers in determining what aliens shall be admitted to the United States, the period they may remain, regulation of their conduct before naturalization, and terms and conditions of their naturalization.	The Federal Government has broad constitutional powers in determining what aliens shall be admitted to the United States, the period they may remain, regulation of their conduct before naturalization, and the terms and conditions of their naturalization.	Does the Federal Government have broad constitutional powers in determining the terms and conditions for the naturalization of aliens?

3648	Signature Development, LLC v. Sandler Commercial at Union, L.L.C., 207 N.C.App. 576, 582–83 (2010)	8	On a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, when a complaint states a valid claim but also discloses an unconditional affirmative defense which defeats the asserted claim, the motion will be granted and the action dismissed. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(6), West's N.C.G.S.A. S 1A-1.	A motion to dismiss under N.C. Gen.Stat. 1A- 1, Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted tests the legal sufficiency of the complaint. Isenhour v. Hutto, 350 N.C. 601, 604, 517 S.E.2d 121, 124 (1999). In ruling on the motion, "the allegations of the complaint must be viewed as admitted, and on that basis the court must determine as a matter of law whether the allegations state a claim for which relief may be granted." Stanback v. Stanback, 297 N.C. 181, 185, 254 S.E.2d 611, 615 (1979). Dismissal is proper "(1) when the complaint on its face reveals that no law supports plaintiff's claim; (2) when the complaint reveals on its face that some fact essential to plaintiff's claim is missing; and (3) when some fact disclosed in the complaint defeats the plaintiff's claim." Schloss Outdoor Advertising Co. v. Charlotte, 50 N.C.App. 150, 152, 272 S.E.2d 920, 922 (1980). Moreover, "[w]hen the complaint 306 states a valid claim but also discloses an unconditional affirmative defense which defeats the asserted claim, ... the motion will be granted and the action dismissed."	Will a motion to dismiss be granted and action dismissed if complaint discloses an unconditional affirmative defense which defeats asserted claim?
3649	Dueitt v. Arrowhead Lakes Property Owners, Inc., 180 S.W.3d 733, 740 (Tex.App. Waco,2005)	13	The same reinstatement procedures and timetable are applicable to all dismissals for want of prosecution including cases which are dismissed pursuant to the court's inherent power, whether or not a motion to dismiss has been filed. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a.	"The same reinstatement procedures and timetable are applicable to all dismissals for want of prosecution including cases which are dismissed pursuant to the court's inherent power, whether or not a motion to dismiss has been filed."	Are the same reinstatement procedures and timetable applicable to all dismissals for want of prosecution including cases which are dismissed pursuant to the court's inherent power?
3650	Leonardelli v. Presbyterian Hosp. in City of New York, 288 A.D.2d 105, 105–06, 733 N.Y.S.2d 391, 392 (2001)	1	Although case which has been marked off or stricken from calendar and not restored within one year is statutorily deemed abandoned and is dismissed, statute only creates rebuttable presumption of abandonment. McKinney's CPLR 3404.	Although a case which has been marked off or stricken from the calendar and not restored within one year is deemed abandoned and is dismissed (CPLR 3404), the statute only creates a rebuttable presumption of abandonment (Rodriguez v. Middle Atl. Auto Leasing, 122 A.D.2d 720, 511 N.Y.S.2d 595, appeal dismissed, 69 N.Y.2d 874, 514 N.Y.S.2d 723, 507 N.E.2d 317).	Is a case which has been marked off or stricken from a calendar and not restored within one year deemed abandoned and is dismissed?

3651	Gant v. Tallahassee Mem'l Reg'l Med. Ctr., 490 So.2d 1020, 1021 (Fla. App. 1986)	1	Ruling on a motion for an order of dismissal for failure to prosecute is subject to attack only on ground that it constitutes an abuse of discretion and losing party bears burden of demonstrating that abuse. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(e).	A ruling on a motion for an order of dismissal for failure to prosecute is subject to attack only on the ground that it constitutes an abuse of discretion and the losing party bears the burden of demonstrating that abuse.	Is a ruling on a motion for an order of dismissal for failure to prosecute subject to attack only on ground that it constitutes an abuse of discretion?
3652	Jones v. Jones, 16-536 (La. App. 5 Cir. 4/26/17), 220 So. 3d 855, 860 (2017)	7	A dismissal without prejudice, or non-suit, merely restores matters to the status occupied before the suit and leaves the party free to again come into court with his complaint.	A dismissal without prejudice, or non-suit, merely "restores matters to the status occupied before the suit and leaves the party free to again come into court with his complaint."	"Does a dismissal without prejudice, or non-suit, merely restore matters to the status occupied before the suit and leaves the party free?"
3653	Treadway v. Nations Credit Fin. Servs. Corp., 383 Ill. App. 3d 1124, 1128, 892 N.E.2d 534, 538 (2008)	1	The phrase "affirmative matter," for purposes of involuntary dismissal of an action based upon certain defects or defenses, refers to something in the nature of a defense that negates the cause of action completely or refutes crucial conclusions of law or conclusions of material fact contained in or inferred from the complaint. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619(a)(9).	" 'The phrase "affirmative matter" refers to something in the nature of a defense that negates the cause of action completely or refutes crucial conclusions of law or conclusions of material fact contained in or inferred from the complaint.' " Moody, 368 Ill.App.3d at 841, 306 Ill.Dec.	Will an affirmative matter be a nature of defense that negates the cause of action completely?
3655	Lehndorff Geneva, Inc. v. Warren, 74 Wis.2d 369, 381 (Wis. 1976)	9	Once Congress and the executive have exercised powers of immigration and naturalization, aliens lawfully within country have a right to enter and abide in any state in the union on an equality of legal privileges with all citizens under nondiscriminatory laws.	Once Congress and the executive have exercised this power, ' . . . aliens lawfully within this country have a right to enter and abide in any State in the Union 'on an equality of legal privileges with all citizens under nondiscriminatory laws.'	Do aliens have a right to abide in any State in the Union on an equality of legal privileges with all citizens under nondiscriminatory laws?
3656	People v. Paradiso, 58 Misc. 2d 370, 373-74, 295 N.Y.S.2d 561, 564 (N.Y. Sp. Sess. 1968)	3	A private residence does not fall within definition of a "public place" without showing of special circumstances, and such circumstances must be alleged in information as part of necessary facts constituting the violation. Penal Law 1965, SS 240.00, 240.25, subds. 2, 3, 5	In the opinion of the Court a private residence does not fall within the definition of a public place as defined in Section 240.00 of the Penal Law without a showing of special circumstances and such circumstances must be alleged in the information as part of the necessary facts constituting the violation in question.	Does a private residence fall within the definition of a public place in disorderly conduct?
3657	Cantwell v. State of Connecticut, 310 U.S. 296, 308 (1940)	15	The state has power to prevent or punish when clear and present danger of riot, disorder, interference with traffic upon public streets, or other immediate threat to public safety, peace or order, appears, but state may not unduly suppress free communication of views, religious or other, under guise of conserving desirable conditions.	When clear and present danger of riot, disorder, interference with traffic upon the public streets, or other immediate threat to public safety, peace, or order, appears, the power of the state to prevent or punish is obvious. Equally obvious is it that a state may not unduly suppress free communication of views, religious or other, under the guise of conserving desirable conditions.	"Whether the state has the power to prevent or punish when a clear and present danger of riot, appear?"

3658	Keough v. Cyrus USA, Inc., 204 S.W.3d 1, 5 (Tex. App. 2006)	12	A trial court does not abuse its discretion by denying a motion to reinstate if the movant (a) receives notice of the actual order of dismissal in time to file a motion to reinstate, and (b) has an opportunity to be heard on the motion.	Even assuming for the sake of argument that no notice was sent and that we properly may raise the issue sua sponte, a trial court does not abuse its discretion by denying a motion to reinstate if the movant (a) receives notice of the actual order of dismissal in time to file a motion to reinstate, and (b) has an opportunity to be heard on the motion.	Does a trial court not abuse its discretion by denying a motion to reinstate if the movant receives notice and has an opportunity to be heard on the motion?
3659	Johnson v. Smith, 215 N.C. 322, 1 S.E.2d 834, 836 (1939)	6	The standard for reinstating a dismissed case when the failure of party or attorney to appear is not intentional or the result of conscious indifference, but is due to an accident or mistake or has been otherwise reasonably explained, is essentially the same as that for setting aside a default judgment. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a(3).	However, a case shall be reinstated upon a finding by the trial court that the failure of the party or his attorney to appear was not intentional or the result of conscious indifference but was due to an accident or mistake or that the failure has been otherwise reasonably explained. TEX.R. CIV. P. 165a(3). This standard is "essentially the same as that for setting aside a default judgment."	Is failure to appear not intentional or due to conscious indifference merely because it is deliberate?
3660	Corte v. Corte, 664 So.2d 218, 218 (Ala.Civ.App.,1994)	1	Dismissal of case for want of prosecution, as well as subsequent refusal to set aside the dismissal, is within the sound discretion of the trial court, and Court of Civil Appeals will reverse only for abuse of that discretion.	The dismissal of a case for want of prosecution, as well as a subsequent refusal to set aside the dismissal, is within the sound discretion of the trial court, and this court will reverse only if the trial court has abused that discretion.	Does the dismissal of a party's case and subsequent refusal to set aside dismissal for want of prosecution rest largely within the sound discretion of a trial court?
3661	In re Est. of Schlenker, 209 Ill. 2d 456, 461, 808 N.E.2d 995, 998 (2004)	5	Where standing is challenged in a motion to dismiss under statute permitting involuntary dismissal of claim when it is barred by other affirmative matter avoiding the legal effect of or defeating the claim, a court must accept as true all well-pleaded facts in plaintiff's complaint and all inferences that can reasonably be drawn in plaintiff's favor, and the court should grant the motion only if the plaintiff can prove no set of facts that would support a cause of action. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	Where standing is challenged in a motion to dismiss under section 2-619, a court must accept as true all well-pleaded facts in plaintiff's complaint and all inferences that can reasonably be drawn in plaintiff's favor. The court should grant the motion only if the plaintiff can prove no set of facts that would support a cause of action.	Can the court accept all well pleaded facts in the plaintiff's complaint as true?
3663	Ghandi v. Cespedes, 390 N.J.Super. 193, 196 (2007)	2	Dismissals for lack of prosecution are without prejudice; accordingly, the right to reinstatement is ordinarily routinely and freely granted when plaintiff has cured the problem that led to the dismissal, even if the application is made many months later. R. 1:13-7(a).	Dismissals under the rule are "without prejudice." R. 1:13-7(a). Accordingly, the right to "reinstatement is ordinarily routinely and freely granted when plaintiff has cured the problem that led to the dismissal even if the application is made many months later."	Is the right to reinstatement ordinarily routinely and freely granted when a plaintiff has cured the problem that led to the dismissal?

3664	Pine Tp. Water Co., Inc. v. Felmont Oil Corp., 425 Pa. Super. 473, 477 (1993)	3	In order to open non pros judgment, three factors must be satisfied, (1) petition to open must be promptly filed, (2) delay must be reasonably explained, and (3) facts must be shown to exist which support cause of action. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 3051, 42 Pa.C.S.A.	In order to open a non pros judgment three factors must be satisfied: 1) the petition to open must be promptly filed; 2) the delay must be reasonably explained; and 3) facts must be shown to exist which support a cause of action. Id. Pa.R.C.P. 3051.	What three factors must be present in order to open non pros judgment?
3665	Rodriguez v. Colasuonno, 238 A.D.2d 329, 329-30, 656 N.Y.S.2d 302, 303 (1997)	1	Once conditional order of dismissal becomes effective by its terms, plaintiff can open up his or her default only by establishing reasonable excuse for his or her delay and meritorious cause of action.	Once a conditional order of dismissal becomes effective by its terms (see, Bock v. Schiowitz , 168 A.D.2d 593, 563 N.Y.S.2d 432), a plaintiff can open up his default only by establishing a reasonable excuse for his delay and a meritorious cause of action (see, Zirin v. Brookdale Hosp. Med. Ctr. , 216 A.D.2d 461, 628 N.Y.S.2d 394).	"Once a conditional order of dismissal becomes effective by its terms, can a plaintiff only open up her default by establishing a reasonable excuse for her delay?"
3666	Dorn v. State Bank of Stella, 767 F.2d 442, 443 (C.A.8 (Neb.),1985)	4	Although a party may still file motion for leave to amend after complaint is dismissed and amendments should be granted liberally, motion would be inappropriate if court had clearly indicated either that no amendment is possible or that dismissal of complaint also constitutes dismissal of action. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 15(a), 28 U.S.C.A.	Although a party may still file a motion for leave to amend and amendments should be granted liberally, such a motion would be inappropriate "if the court has clearly indicated either that no amendment is possible or that dismissal of the complaint also constitutes dismissal of the action."	"If the dismissal of a complaint also constitutes dismissal of an action, is a motion to amend improper?"
3667	Interstate Printing Co. v. Department of Revenue, 236 Neb. 110, 119 (Neb.,1990)	10	"Sales tax" is imposed upon gross receipts from all sales of tangible personal property sold at retail in state; "use tax" is imposed on storage, use, or other consumption in state of tangible personal property purchased, leased, or rented from any retailer for storage, use, or other consumption in state. Neb.Rev.St. S 77-2703(1, 2).	A sales tax is imposed "upon the gross receipts from all sales of tangible personal property sold at retail in this state...." Neb.Rev.Stat. 77-2703(1) (Reissue 1986). A use tax is imposed "on the storage, use, or other consumption in 526 this state of tangible personal property purchased, leased, or rented from any retailer ... for storage, use, or other consumption in this state...." 77-2703(2).	"Is a ""sales tax"" a tax upon the sale, lease, rental, use, storage, distribution, or other consumption of all tangible personal property in the chain of commerce?"
3670	Romero v. State, 927 S.W.2d 632, 634 (Tex.,1996)	4	Whether civil forfeiture implicates double jeopardy under Federal Constitution depends on whether forfeiture proceeding is intended to be, or by its nature necessarily is, criminal and punitive, or civil and remedial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Whether a civil forfeiture implicates double jeopardy depends on whether the "forfeiture proceeding is intended to be, or by its nature necessarily is, criminal and punitive, or civil and remedial." Ursery , 518 U.S.	"Does whether civil forfeiture implicates double jeopardy under Federal Constitution depend on whether a forfeiture proceeding is intended to be, or by its nature necessarily is, criminal and punitive?"

3671	Brock v. State, 955 N.E.2d 195, 203 (Ind.,2011)	8	Circumstances surrounding a trial court's declaration of a mistrial may not present an opportunity for raising a timely objection prior to the jury's discharge; in such cases, a failure to object will not be deemed to be consent, for purposes of double jeopardy analysis, unless the totality of the circumstances otherwise shows that the defendant consented to the mistrial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	On the other hand, we acknowledge that the circumstances surrounding a trial court's declaration of a mistrial may not present an opportunity for raising a timely objection prior to the jury's discharge. In such cases, a failure to object will not be deemed to be consent unless the totality of the circumstances otherwise shows that the defendant consented to the mistrial.	Can circumstances surrounding a trial court's declaration of a mistrial not present an opportunity for raising a timely objection prior to the jury's discharge?
3673	Hamblen Cty. v. City of Morristown, 584 S.W.2d 673, 675 (Tenn. App. 1979)	1	Plenary power to establish and maintain a public school system is a state function and is vested in the state legislature, but general operation and management of the educational system can be delegated by the legislature in any reasonable manner not constitutionally prohibited.	The plenary power to establish and maintain a public school system is a state function and is vested in the state legislature. General operation and management of the educational system can be delegated by the legislature in any reasonable manner not constitutionally prohibited.	Can a state legislature delegate power to establish and maintain a public school system?
3674	Kraft v. Forest Park Realty & Ins. Co., 111 Ga.App. 621, 626 (Ga.App. 1965)	9	If a dismissal for want of prosecution is entered erroneously or improvidently, court may reinstate it upon motion without notice to or consent of defendant.	If a dismissal for want of prosecution is entered erroneously or improvidently, the court may reinstate it upon motion without notice to or the consent of the defendant.	"If a dismissal for want of prosecution is entered erroneously or improvidently, can a court reinstate it upon motion without notice to or consent of defendant?"
3676	Murphy v. City of New York, 173 A.D.2d 236, 237, 569 N.Y.S.2d 445, 446 (1991)	1	To rebut presumption that action was abandoned and to restore action to trial calendar, plaintiff must demonstrate that cause of action is meritorious, that there is sufficient excuse for delay, that there was no intent to abandon action, and that defendant will not be prejudiced by restoring case to calendar.	In order to rebut the presumption that the action was abandoned, plaintiffs must demonstrate that their cause of action is meritorious, that there is a sufficient excuse for the delay, that there was no intent to abandon the action and that defendants will not be prejudiced by restoring the case to the calendar. (Condurso v. Thumsuden, 84 A.D.2d 802, 803, 444 N.Y.S.2d 151, app. dismissed, 55 N.Y.2d 953, 449 N.Y.S.2d 193, 434 N.E.2d 262).	"To rebut a presumption that an action was abandoned and to restore action to a trial calendar, should a plaintiff demonstrate that a cause of action is meritorious?"

3679	Todd Co. v. Birnbaum, 182 A.D.2d 505, 505-06, 582 N.Y.S.2d 414, 415 (1992)	1	Action which has been dismissed as abandoned may be restored to trial calendar only upon showing of meritorious cause of action, reasonable excuse for delay, lack of prejudice to opposing parties, and lack of intent to abandon action; each of these four requirements must be satisfied for dismissal to be properly vacated. McKinney's CPLR 3404.	An action dismissed pursuant to CPLR 3404 may only be restored upon a showing of a meritorious cause of action, a reasonable excuse for the delay, a lack of prejudice to the opposing parties, and a lack of intent to abandon the action (Moye v. City of New York , 168 A.D.2d 342, 562 N.Y.S.2d 664 appeal dismissed, 77 N.Y.2d 940, 569 N.Y.S.2d 613, 572 N.E.2d 54; Mamet v. Mamet , 132 A.D.2d 479, 518 N.Y.S.2d 5 lv. denied, *506 70 N.Y.2d 611, 523 N.Y.S.2d 495, 518 N.E.2d 6). All the above components must be satisfied in order for the dismissal to be properly vacated (Ornstein v. Kentucky Fried Chicken , 121 A.D.2d 610, 503 N.Y.S.2d 643).	Can an action which has been dismissed as abandoned be restored to trial calendar only upon showing of a meritorious cause of action?
3681	Koller v. Ranger Ins. Co., 569 S.W.2d 372, 373 (Mo.App.,1978)	3	Ordinarily, when a first pleading is ruled to be insufficient in a trial court, party is afforded a reasonable time to file an amended pleading if desired. V.A.M.R. Civil Rules 55.33(a), 67.06.	Pulitzer Publishing Co., Mo., 422 S.W.2d 330(8) (Mo.1968): "Ordinarily when a first pleading is ruled to be insufficient in a trial court, the party is afforded a reasonable time to file an amended pleading if desired." See also, Civil Rules 55.33(a) and 67.06, VAMR.	"When a first pleading is ruled to be insufficient in a trial court, is the party afforded a reasonable time to file an amended pleading if desired?"
3682	Turville v. J & J Properties, L.C., 145 P.3d 1146, 1152, 2006 UT App 305, ¶ 30 (Utah App.,2006)	5	Where a plaintiff moves for leave to amend its complaint after an interlocutory dismissal, a trial court may exercise its discretion in determining whether to grant the motion. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 15(a).	And where a party moves for leave to amend after an interlocutory dismissal, a trial court may exercise its discretion in determining whether to grant the motion.	"Where a plaintiff moves for leave to amend its complaint after an interlocutory dismissal, can a trial court exercise its discretion in determining whether to grant the motion?"
3683	Nevada Interstate Properties Corp. v. City of West Palm Beach, 747 So.2d 447, 448 (Fla.App. 4 Dist.,1999)	3	Dismissal with prejudice for failure to state a cause of action should not be ordered without giving the party offering the defective pleading an opportunity to amend, unless it is apparent that the pleading cannot be amended so as to state a cause of action.	It is well settled that a dismissal with prejudice for failure to state a cause of action should not be ordered without giving the party offering the defective pleading an opportunity to amend, unless it is apparent that the pleading cannot be amended so as to state a cause of action.	Should a dismissal with prejudice not be ordered without giving a party offering defective pleading an opportunity to amend unless it is clear that the pleading cannot be amended?
3685	Texas Res. v. Diamond Shamrock Corp., 584 S.W.2d 522, 524 (Tex. Civ. App. 1979)	2	Party who files petition must prosecute his claim to judgment with reasonable diligence, and if he fails to so prosecute his claim, trial court has inherent power to dismiss his claim for want of diligence in its prosecution; such matter rests in sound discretion of trial court.	A party who files a petition must prosecute his claim to judgment with reasonable diligence. If he fails to do this, the court has the inherent power to dismiss his claim for want of diligence in its prosecution. The matter rests in the sound discretion of the trial court.	Does the exercise of the power to dismiss a matter for lack of prosecution rest in the sound discretion of trial court?

3686	Ill v. Manzo-III, 142 A.3d 1176, 1189 (Conn. App. 2016)	21	Although courts must be mindful of the policy favoring a trial on the merits of any dispute whenever possible, a court may still determine, in its sound discretion, that a party's diligence in prosecuting the case does not fall within the reasonable section of the diligence spectrum. Practice Book 1998, S 14-3.	Although courts must be mindful of the policy favoring a trial on the merits of any dispute whenever possible, a court may still determine, in its sound discretion, that a party's diligence does not fall "within the reasonable section of the diligence spectrum....	Should courts remain mindful that it is the policy of the law to bring about a trial on the merits of a dispute?
3687	Powels v. Iles, 77 So.3d 518, 520 (Miss.App.,2011)	2	A trial court's power to dismiss a case for failure to prosecute is an inherent power in any court of law or equity and is regarded as a means necessary to control the court's docket and promote the orderly expedition of justice. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	We recognize that a trial court's power to dismiss a case for failure to prosecute "is an inherent power in any court of law or equity and has been regarded as a means necessary to control the court's docket and promote the orderly expedition of justice."	Is a trial court's power to dismiss a case for failure to prosecute an inherent power in any court of law or equity?
3688	Holder v. Orange Grove Med. Specialties, P.A., 54 So. 3d 244, 248 (Miss.App., 2010)	1	Trial courts have the inherent authority to dismiss cases for want of prosecution as a means of controlling the court's docket and ensuring the orderly expedition of justice.	Our trial courts have the inherent authority to dismiss cases for want of prosecution as a means of controlling the court's docket and ensuring the "orderly expedition of justice."	Do courts have the inherent authority to dismiss cases for want of prosecution as a means of controlling the court docket and ensuring the orderly expedition of justice?
3689	Vonder Haar Concrete Co. v. Edwards-Parker, Inc., 561 S.W.2d 134, 137-38 (Mo. App. 1978)	2	In equitable mechanic's lien suit, trial court need not resort to its inherent power to dismiss for failure to prosecute since duty to prosecute such action without unnecessary delay is expressly cast upon plaintiff, and defendant claimants, by statute. V.A.M.S. SS 429.170, 429.310.	In an equitable mechanic's lien suit, however, the trial court need not resort to its inherent power to dismiss for failure to prosecute because the duty to prosecute such action without unnecessary delay is expressly cast upon the plaintiff, and defendants-claimants, by statute.	"Does a trial court have inherent power, in the exercise of sound judicial discretion?"
3690	Lopez v. Harding, 68 S.W.3d 78, 80 (Tex. App. 2001)	3	A trial judge may dismiss a case for want of prosecution under the court's inherent authority if the judge concludes the plaintiff failed to prosecute his case with reasonable diligence.	1 In contrast, a trial judge may dismiss a case for want of prosecution under the court's inherent authority if the judge concludes the plaintiff failed to prosecute his case with reasonable diligence.	Can a trial judge dismiss a case for want of prosecution under the court's inherent authority if the judge concludes the plaintiff failed to prosecute his case with reasonable diligence?
3691	School Bd. of Orange Cnty. v. Coffey, 524 So.2d 1052, 1053 (Fla.App. 5 Dist.,1988)	5	School board has common-law duty to protect others from result of negligent hiring, supervision, or retention, which duty is identical to duty upon private employers who hire, retain, or supervise employees whose negligence or intentional acts in positions of employment can foreseeably cause injuries to third parties.	The school board has a common law duty to protect others from the result of negligent hiring, supervision, or retention which duty is identical to the duty upon private employers who hire, retain, or supervise employees whose negligent or intentional acts in positions of employment can foreseeably cause injuries to third parties.	Are school districts liable for negligent hiring?

3692	Judd v. Bd. of Educ. of Union Free Sch. Dist. No. 2, Town of Hempstead, Nassau Cnty., 278 N.Y. 200, 211, 15 N.E.2d 576, 582 (1938)	6	The state cannot compel children to attend free public common schools when their parents desire to send them to parochial schools, but their attendance upon parochial school or private school is a matter of choice and cost thereof not a matter of public concern. Const. art. 9, SS 1, 4.	While education is compulsory in this State between certain ages, the State has no desire to and could not if it so wished compel children to attend the free public common schools when their parents desire to send them to parochial schools (Pierce v. Society of the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary, 268 U.S. 510, 45 S.Ct. 571, 69 L.Ed. 1070, 39 A.L.R. 468), but their attendance upon the parochial school or private school is a matter of choice and the cost thereof not a matter of public concern.	Could the state compel children to attend public school when their parents desire to send them to parochial schools?
3695	Lamka v. KeyBank, 250 Or. App. 486, 492 (2012)	2	A party may amend a complaint once as a matter of right before a responsive pleading is served, even if the court has dismissed the complaint; it is only if the trial court grants a motion to dismiss after the plaintiff has already filed an amended complaint or the defendant has filed a responsive pleading, that the plaintiff must file a motion for leave to file an amended complaint. Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 21, 23.	Reading ORCP 23 A and ORCP 21 A together, we conclude that a party may amend a complaint once as a matter of right before a responsive pleading is served, even if the court has dismissed the complaint. It is only if the trial court grants a motion to dismiss after the plaintiff has already filed an amended complaint or the defendant has filed a responsive pleading, that, under ORCP 21 A, the plaintiff must file a motion for leave to file an amended complaint.	"Will a plaintiff be given an opportunity to amend the complaint once, as a matter of right, before the trial court dismiss the complaint with prejudice?"
3696	Huber v. Mullan, 246 F.Supp. 8, 8 (D. Md. 1964)	8	A note evidencing a promise to repay sum certain, as distinguished from an instrument creating an obligation which might vary depending upon who is the obligor, is not rendered nonassignable except by clear and unequivocal language prohibiting assignment.	A note evidencing a promise to repay a sum certain, as distinguished from an instrument creating an obligation which might vary depending upon who is the obligor, is not rendered nonassignable except by clear and unequivocal language prohibiting assignment	Can a note be rendered nonassignable by clear and unequivocal language?
3698	Boyd v. Hickman, 689 A.2d 106, 111, 114 Md.App. 108, 119 (Md.App., 1997)	4	Civil forfeiture statute will not be considered punishment for double jeopardy purposes unless legislative body intended it to be punitive, or its effect was so punitive as to negate its remedial purpose. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	A civil forfeiture statute will not be considered punishment for Double Jeopardy purposes unless the legislative body intended it to be punitive, or its effect was so punitive as to negate its remedial purpose.	Will a civil forfeiture statute not be considered punishment for double jeopardy purposes unless legislative body intended it to be punitive?
3699	State v. Mercado, 121 So. 3d 604, 605 (Fla.App. 5 Dist., 2013)	2	Generally, when a trial court declares a mistrial on the defendant's motion or with his consent, or upon a manifest necessity, double jeopardy does not bar a retrial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Generally, when a trial court declares a mistrial on the defendant's motion or with his consent, or upon a manifest necessity, double jeopardy does not bar a retrial.	"When a trial court declares a mistrial on the defendant's motion or with his consent, or upon a manifest necessity, does double jeopardy not bar a retrial?"

3700	State v. Tolliver, 839 S.W.2d 296, 299 (Mo. 1992)	11	Double jeopardy clause does not bar retrial if defendant requests, or consents to, mistrial; where such mistrial occurs, defendant's right to particular tribunal is not implicated unless government or judicial conduct was intended to "goad" defendant into requesting or consenting to mistrial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The double jeopardy clause does not bar retrial if the defendant requests, or consents to, the mistrial. United States v. Dinitz, 424 U.S. 600, 607–608, 96 S.Ct. 1075, 1079–80, 47 L.Ed.2d 267 (1976); State v. Fitzpatrick, 676 S.W.2d 831, 835 (Mo. banc 1984). Where such a mistrial occurs, the defendant's right to a particular tribunal is not implicated unless governmental or judicial conduct was intended to "goad" the defendant into requesting or consenting to a mistrial.	"Where mistrial occurs, is a defendant's right to a particular tribunal not implicated unless government or judicial conduct was intended to ""goad"" a defendant into requesting or consenting to mistrial?"
3701	State v. Bertrand, 133 N.H. 843, 852 (1991)	4	Where defendant moves for dismissal and makes it clear to court that he is asking for a final determination of charges before court and not for mistrial, he need not explicitly state that he would prefer to continue trial rather than have it end in mistrial declaration in order to preserve future claim of double jeopardy. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	We hold, therefore, that where a defendant moves for dismissal and makes it clear to the court that he is asking for a final determination of the charges before the court and not for a mistrial, he need not explicitly state that he would prefer to continue the trial rather than have it end in a mistrial declaration in order to preserve a future claim of double jeopardy.	Can a defendant generally consent to mistrial by silence?
3702	Ex Parte Huddlestun, 505 S.W.3d 646, 657 (Tex.App.-Texarkana, 2016)	7	Unless unscrupulous defense counsel are to be allowed an unfair advantage, the trial judge must have the power to declare a mistrial in appropriate cases; therefore, a defendant's valued right to have the trial concluded by a particular tribunal is and must be sometimes subordinate to the public interest in affording the prosecutor one full and fair opportunity to present his evidence to an impartial jury.	As the Supreme Court noted, "Unless unscrupulous defense counsel are to be allowed an unfair advantage, the trial judge must have the power to declare a mistrial in appropriate cases." 9 Id. at 513, 98 S.Ct. 824. Therefore, a defendant's "valued right to have the trial concluded by a particular tribunal is [and must be] sometimes subordinate to the public interest in affording the prosecutor one full and fair opportunity to present his evidence to an impartial jury."	"Unless unscrupulous defense counsel are to be allowed an unfair advantage, should the trial judge have the power to declare a mistrial in appropriate cases?"
3703	Washington v. Commonwealth, 35 Va. App. 202, 214, 543 S.E.2d 638, 643–44 (2001), rev'd , 263 Va. 298, 559 S.E.2d 636 (2002)	13	Immediately before, and immediately after empaneling and swearing of the jury things are much the same, but in one jeopardy has not attached while, in the other, it has; therefore, when the trial judge sua sponte, over defendant's objection, declares a mistrial, the defendant is deprived of his valued right to have his trial completed by a particular tribunal. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	"Immediately before, and immediately after empanelling and swearing of the jury things are much the same, but in one jeopardy has not attached while, in the other, it has." Webb v. Hutto , 720 F.2d 375, 379 (4th Cir.1983). Therefore, when the trial judge sua sponte , over defendant's objection, declares a mistrial, the defendant is deprived of his "valued right to have his trial completed by a particular tribunal."	"When the trial judge sua sponte, over defendant's objection, declares a mistrial, is the defendant deprived of his valued right to have his trial completed by a particular tribunal?"

3705	MacDonald v. Follett, 142 Tex. 616, 619 (Tex. 1944)	1	The term "overriding royalty" as used in oil and gas lease agreement meant a given percentage of the gross production carved from the working interest but, by agreement, not chargeable with any of the expenses of operation.	By the term 'overriding royalty' as used herein is meant a given percentage of the gross production carved from the working interest but, by agreement, not chargeable with any of the expenses of operation.	"Does the term overriding royalty mean a given percentage of the gross production carved from the working interest but, by agreement, not chargeable with any of the expenses of operation.?"
3706	Geller v. Smith, 130 Cal. App. 485, 487 (1933)	1	"Bonus," as applied to oil lease, held to mean money paid by lessee to lessor in consideration of execution of lease, as distinguished from return or royalty reserved by lessor to be paid by lessee through term of lease.	My opinion is that the term 'bonus' as applied to an oil lease has come to have a definite meaning, to-wit: a sum of money paid by a lessee to the lessor in consideration for the execution of a lease, as distinguished from the return or royalty reserved by the lessor to be paid by the lessee through the term of the lease.	"Can the term bonus be defined as a sum of money paid in consideration for the execution of a lease, as distinguished from the return or royalty reserved by the lessor to be paid by the lessee through the term of the lease?"
3708	Tolliver v. Maxey, 218 W. Va. 419, 423 (W.Va., 2005)	1	A motion to reinstate an action dismissed for failure to prosecute is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, and, in the absence of a showing of abuse of that discretion, the action of the trial court will not be disturbed upon writ of error. West's Ann.W.Va.Code, 56-8-12; Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	"A motion to reinstate a dismissed action under the terms of W. Va.Code, 56-8-12 [W. Va. R.C.P. 41(b)], is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, and, in the absence of a showing of abuse of that discretion, the action of the trial court upon such motion will not be disturbed upon writ of error.	Is a motion to reinstate an action dismissed for failure to prosecute addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court?
3709	Manning v. North, 82 S.W.3d 706, 709 (Tex. App. 2002)	4	Power of a trial court to dismiss for want of prosecution is not unbridled as it rests in the exercise of sound judicial discretion, subject to review; thus, on appeal, the trial court's judgment of dismissal will not be reversed unless, as a matter of law, the trial court clearly abused its discretion. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a.	The power of a trial court to dismiss for want of prosecution is not unbridled as it rests in the exercise of sound judicial discretion, subject to review. Thus, on appeal, the trial court's judgment of dismissal will not be reversed unless, as a matter of law, the trial court clearly abused its discretion.	Is the power of a court to dismiss for want of prosecution unbridled?
3710	Gallagher v. Jewish Hospital Ass'n of Philadelphia, 228 A.2d 732, 733 (Pa. 1967)	1	Granting non pros because of failure of plaintiff to prosecute his action within reasonable time rests within discretion of lower court, and exercise of such discretion will not be disturbed on appeal unless there is proof of manifest abuse thereof.	It is well settled law that the question of granting a non pros because of the failure of the plaintiff to prosecute his action within a reasonable time rests within the discretion of the lower Court and the exercise of such discretion will not be disturbed on appeal unless there is proof of a manifest abuse thereof.	Is the decision to grant judgment of non pros rest within the discretion of the trial court?

3711	Reed v. Henry C. Beck Co., 510 So.2d 613, 614 (Fla. App. 3 Dist., 1987)	2	Duty to provide workers' compensation benefits arises where business entity is actual employer or where, as contractor, it sublets part of its contract obligation to others and thereby becomes statutory employer of subcontractor's employees.	Under Florida law the requirement to provide workers' compensation benefits is a matter of law-not contract. The duty arises where the business entity is an "actual" employer or where, as a contractor, it sublets part of its contract obligation to others and thereby becomes a "statutory employer" of the subcontractor's employees.	Does the duty to provide workers compensation arise when an entity is an actual employer?
3713	Vaughn v. United States, 43 F. Supp. 306, 308 (E.D. Ark. 1942)	4	The right to sue the United States on a contract of war risk insurance is given solely by statute, and the commencement of suit within the time prescribed by the statute is an indispensable condition of the action. World War Veterans' Act 1924, S 19 as amended 38 U.S.C.A. S 784(a-h).	The right to sue it on a contract of war risk term insurance is given solely by the provisions of this section, United States v. Jackson, 10 Cir., 34 F.2d 241, 242, 73 A.L.R. 316; and the commencement of the suit within the time prescribed is an indispensable condition of the action.	Is the right to sue the United States on a contract of war risk insurance given solely by statute?
3714	U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Com'n v. Arrington, 998 F.Supp.2d 847, 865 (D.Neb., 2014)	10	Commodity Exchange Act (CEA) is a remedial statute that serves the crucial purpose of protecting the innocent individual investor, who may know little about the intricacies and complexities of the commodities market, from being misled or deceived. Commodity Exchange Act, S 1 et seq., 7 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	5 The Commodity Exchange Act "is a remedial statute that serves the crucial purpose of protecting the innocent individual investor-who may know little about the intricacies and complexities of the commodities market-from being misled or deceived.	Is the Commodities Exchange Act (CEA) a remedial statute that serves the purpose of protecting the innocent individual investor?
3719	Kennerly v. Ocmulgee Lumber Co., 206 S.C. 481, 487 (S.C. 1945)	2	The basic purpose of Workmen's Compensation Act is inclusion of employers and employees and not their exclusion, and its presumptions, and its penalties are directed toward end of effecting coverage rather than noncoverage. Code 1942, S 7035-1 et seq.	The settled law in this State is that the 'basic purpose (of the Workmen's Compensation Act) is inclusion of employers and employees, and not their exclusion, and that its presumptions and its penalties are directed towards the end of effecting coverage rather than non-coverage.'	"Are the presumptions and penalties of the Workmens Compensation Act directed towards the end of effective coverage, rather than noncoverage?"
3720	McDowell v. Stilley Plywood Co., 210 S.C. 173, 182 (S.C. 1947)	5	The basic purpose of the workmen's compensation is inclusive of employers and employees and not their exclusion, but the courts are without authority to enlarge meaning of the terms used by legislature or to extend by construction its scope and intent so as to include persons not embraced by its terms.	While as has been stated time and again, the basic purpose of the Workmen's Compensation Act is inclusion of employers and employees and not their exclusion, yet the courts are without authority to enlarge the meaning of the terms used by the Legislature or to extend by construction its scope and intent so as to include persons not embraced by its terms; and one who seeks to avail himself of the Act must come within its terms.	"In workmens compensation, may the courts enlarge the meaning of the terms in the law?"

3721	Specie v. Howerton Elec. Co., 344 S.W.2d 314, 315 (Mo.App., 1961)	1	Definitions of words employer and employee, as well as whole of Workmen's Compensation Law, should be broadly and liberally construed to effectuate legislative intent to afford compensation to employees. Sections 287.020, 287.030 RSMo 1949, V.A.M.S.	Gianladis, Mo.App., 159 S.W.2d 706, 708, the court said: 'These definitions as well as the whole of the Workmen's Compensation Law should be broadly and liberally construed by the courts in order to effectuate the legislative intent to afford compensation to an employee * * *.'	"How should the definition of employer, as well as the whole of the Workmens Compensation law be construed?"
3724	Smith v. Wenderlich, 826 F.3d 641, 643 (C.A.2, 2016)	1	The Double Jeopardy Clause of the Fifth Amendment, which is made applicable to the states by the Fourteenth Amendment, provides that no person shall be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy. U.S. Const. Amends. 5, 14.	The Double Jeopardy Clause of the Fifth Amendment, which is made applicable to the states by the Fourteenth Amendment, see Benton v. Maryland, 395 U.S. 784, 794, 89 S.Ct. 2056, 23 L.Ed.2d 707 (1969), provides that no person shall be "subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy," U.S. Const.	"Does the Double Jeopardy Clause of the Fifth Amendment, which is applicable to the states through the Fourteenth Amendment, prohibit a person from being placed in jeopardy twice for the same offense?"
3725	Hall v. Lexington Ins. Co., 895 So.2d 1161, 1165 (Fla. App. 2005)	5	If a plaintiff fails to obtain leave from the trial court to amend prior to asserting a claim for punitive damages, the complaint must be dismissed. West's F.S.A. S 768.72.	If a plaintiff fails to obtain leave from the trial court to amend prior to asserting a claim for punitive damages, the complaint must be dismissed.	"If a plaintiff fails to obtain leave from the trial court to amend prior to asserting a claim for punitive damages, should the complaint be dismissed?"
3727	State v. Baum, 355 S.C. 209, 214 (2003)	5	"Manifest necessity," to declare a mistrial is not a standard that can be applied mechanically or without attention to the particular problem confronting the trial judge, as the word "necessity" is not to be interpreted literally.	"Manifest necessity" is not a standard that can be applied mechanically or without attention to the particular problem confronting the trial judge. Further, the word "necessity" is not to be interpreted literally.	"Is ""manifest necessity,""" to declare a mistrial not a standard that can be applied mechanically or without attention to the particular problem confronting the trial judge?"
3728	Natex Corp. v. Paris Indep. Sch. Dist., 326 S.W.3d 728, 734 (Tex. App. 2010)	6	To distinguish between tort and contract claims, court considers the source of the duty owed and the nature of the remedy sought; if plaintiff's causes of action arise only from a violation of a duty imposed by law, the cause of action sounds in tort, but if the causes of action arose from a duty imposed by a contract, the cause of action is for breach of contract.	To distinguish between tort and contract claims, we consider the source of the duty owed and the nature of the remedy sought. Parker County, 2009 WL 3938051, at *3 (citing Formosa Plastics Corp. USA v. Presidio Eng'rs & Contractors, Inc., 960 S.W.2d 41, 45 (Tex.1998)). If PISD's causes of action in the original petition arose only from a violation of a duty imposed by law, the cause of action sounds in tort. Id. If the causes of action arose from a duty imposed by a contract, the cause of action is for breach of contract.	"To distinguish between tort and contract claims, does a court consider the source of the duty owed and the nature of the remedy sought?"
3729	Vincent v. Jones, 292 F.3d 506, 511 (6th Cir. 2002), rev'd sub nom. Price v. Vincent , 538 U.S. 634, 123 S. Ct. 1848, 155 L. Ed. 2d 877 (2003)	5	Whether the trial is to a jury or to the bench, subjecting defendant to post-acquittal factfinding proceedings going to guilt or innocence violates the Double Jeopardy Clause. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	"[W]hether the trial is to a jury or to the bench, subjecting the defendant to postacquittal factfinding proceedings going to guilt or innocence violates the Double Jeopardy Clause." Smalis v. Pennsylvania , 476 U.S. 140, 145, 106 S.Ct. 1745, 90 L.Ed.2d 116 (1986).	"Whether the trial is to a jury or to the bench, does subjecting a defendant to post-acquittal fact-finding proceedings going to guilt or innocence violate the Double Jeopardy Clause?"

3730	Cavitt v. State, 803 So.2d 1220, 1225 (Miss.App.,2001)	9	In order for the double jeopardy clause to attach to any action, the accused must first suffer an actual acquittal or conviction on the merits of the offense; then, and only then, will a second prosecution for that same offense be barred. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Moreover, in order for the double jeopardy clause to attach to any action, "the accused must first suffer an actual acquittal or conviction on the merits of the offense. Then, and only then, will a second prosecution for that same offense be barred." Id.	"In order for the double jeopardy clause to attach to any action, should the accused first suffer an actual acquittal or conviction on the merits of the offense?"
3735	Jackson-Shaw Co. v. Jacksonville Aviation Authority, 510 F. Supp. 2d 691, 729 (M.D. Fla. 2007)	22	Under Florida law, a lease agreement between two parties does not create a partnership between them simply because the lessor receives a share of the profits of a business in payment of rent. West's F.S.A. S 620.8202(3)(c).	Further, Florida law provides that a lease agreement between two parties does not create a partnership between them simply because the lessor receives a share of the profits of a business in payment of rent.	Will a lease agreement between two parties create a partnership only because the lessor is entitled to receive a share of the profit from the business of lessee in the form of rent?
3736	Jorski Mill & Elevator Co. v. Farmers Elevator Mut. Ins. Co., 404 F.2d 143, 147 (C.A.Okl. 1968)	8	"Subrogation" is the substitution of one person in place of another with reference to lawful claim, demand or right, and the substitution may occur through invocation of doctrine of subrogation or it may be confirmed and acquiesced in by contract.	Subrogation is the substitution of one person in the place of another with reference to a lawful claim, demand or right. 10 The substitution may occur through the invocation of the 'doctrine' of subrogation or it may be confirmed and acquiesced in by contract.	"Is subrogation the substitution of one person in the place of another with reference to a lawful claim, demand or right?"
3737	Wood v. Beatrice Foods Co., 813 P.2d 821, 824 (Colo. App. 1991)	8	Statutorily created benefits such as workers' compensation exist only to extent provided by applicable statutes, and legislation limiting such benefits does not deprive affected persons of constitutionally protected property interest. C.R.S. 8-52-104.5; U.S.C.A. Const.Amends. 5, 14.	Statutorily created benefits such as workers' compensation exist only to the extent provided by the applicable statutes, and legislation limiting such benefits does not deprive affected persons of a constitutionally protected property interest. See Meyer v. Industrial Commission, 644 P.2d 46 (Colo.App.1981).	Do workers' compensation benefits deprive affected persons of a constitutionally protected property interest ?
3738	Fairholme Funds, Inc. v. United States, 132 Fed.Cl. 49, 53 (Fed.Cl., 2017)	2	In deciding whether to allow participation by amici curiae, Court of Federal Claims considers whether movants might have a perspective that would be helpful to the court or otherwise provide information and argument that would illuminate the issues in the case.	In deciding whether to allow such participation, judges consider whether "[m]ovants might have a perspective that would be helpful to the court or otherwise provide information and argument that would illuminate the issues in this case."	What does the Court of Federal Claims consider in deciding whether to allow participation by amici curiae?
3739	Wildensten v. E. Bay Reg'l Park Dist., 231 Cal. App. 3d 976, 979-80, 283 Cal. Rptr. 13, 15 (Ct. App. 1991)	2	To state cause of action for inverse condemnation, plaintiff must allege that defendant substantially participated in planning, approval, construction or operation of public project or improvement which proximately caused injury to plaintiff's property. West's Ann.Cal. Const. Art. 1, SS 1, 19; U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	To state a cause of action for inverse condemnation, the plaintiff must allege the defendant substantially participated in the planning, approval, construction, or operation of a public project or improvement which proximately caused injury to plaintiff's property.	"To state a cause of action for inverse condemnation, what must be alleged by the plaintiff?"

3740	Fry v. Blauvelt, 818 N.W.2d 123, 130 (Iowa, 2012)	11	Although district courts have discretion in deciding whether to enforce pretrial orders, it is incumbent upon a reviewing court to scrutinize the exercise of that discretion and to confine the exercise to reasonable limits.	Although district courts have discretion in deciding whether to enforce pretrial orders, "it is incumbent upon a reviewing court to scrutinize the exercise of that discretion and to confine the exercise to reasonable limits."	"Is it incumbent upon a reviewing court to scrutinize the exercise of the discretion and to confine the exercise to reasonable limits, in matters of enforcement of pre-trial orders?"
3741	Tumlison v. Harville, 237 Ark. 113, 115-116 (Ark., 1963)	5	Discovery statute contemplates that party may, for good cause, be afforded opportunity to examine documents which themselves constitute evidence or which may reasonably be expected to lead to discovery of evidence. Ark.Stats. SS 28-348(b), 28-356.	That statute contemplates that a party may, for good cause, be afforded an opportunity to examine documents which themselves constitute evidence, Ark.Stat.Ann. 28- 356 (Repl.1962), or which may reasonably be expected to lead to the discovery of evidence. 28-348(b).	"Can a discovery statute contemplate that a party may, for good cause, be afforded an opportunity to examine documents which themselves constitute evidence?"
3742	Cywinski v. Binney, 488 F.Supp. 674, 675 (D.C.Md., 1980)	2	Test to determine whether an individual is entitled to conscientious objector status is the same for persons not yet inducted and persons in the military; essential elements are that person must be opposed to war in any form, his or her opposition must be based upon religious training and belief, and his or her objection must be sincere.	The test to determine whether an individual is entitled to conscientious objector status is the same for persons not yet inducted and persons in the military. There are three essential elements: the person must be opposed to war in any form, his or her opposition must be based upon religious training and belief, and his or her objection must be sincere.	What are the three basic tests to qualify as a conscientious objector?
3743	In re Goddard & Peterson, PLLC, 789 S.E.2d 835, 840 (N.C. App. 2016)	10	In order to avoid having requests for admissions deemed admitted, a party must respond within the period of the rule governing such requests if there is any objection whatsoever. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36(a), West's N.C.G.S.A. S 1A-1.	In order to avoid having requests for admissions deemed admitted, a party must respond within the period of the rule if there is any objection whatsoever to the request.	"In order to avoid having requests for admissions deemed admitted, must a party respond within the period of the rule governing such requests if there is any objection whatsoever?"
3744	United States v. Miller, 340 F.2d 421, 424 (C.A.4 (Md.), 1965)	7	It is immaterial whether official action which briber seeks to influence is right or wrong, in sense that it is expected to result in pecuniary injury to government or that it calls upon bribe recipient to do something other than what he is legally obligated to do. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201.	It is immaterial whether the official action which the briber seeks to influence is right or wrong, in the sense that it is expected to result in pecuniary injury to the Government or that it calls upon the bribe recipient to do something other than what he is legally obligated to do.	"To constitute the offense of attempted bribery, is it immaterial whether the official action sought to be influenced is right or wrong? "

3749	Sherman T. v. Karyn N., 286 Neb. 468, 477, 837 N.W.2d 746, 754 (2013)	11	When a motion to dismiss alleged both lack of subject matter jurisdiction and failure to state a claim, the court should consider dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction first and should then consider the failure to state a claim only if it determines that it has subject matter jurisdiction; similarly, when a motion to dismiss raises failure to state a claim and any combination of lack of jurisdiction over the person, insufficient process, and insufficient service, the court should consider the latter issues first and then consider dismissal for failure to state a claim only if it determines that it has personal jurisdiction and that process and service of process were sufficient. Neb. Sup. Ct. S 6-1112(b).	We have previously concluded that when a motion to dismiss raises both § 6-1112(b)(1) and § 6-1112(b)(6), the court should consider dismissal under § 6-1112(b)(1) first and should then consider § 6-1112(b)(6) only if it determines that it has subject matter jurisdiction. ¹¹ Similarly, when a motion to dismiss raises § 6-1112(b)(6) and any combination of § 6-1112(b)(2), (4), and (5), the court should consider dismissal under § 6-1112(b)(2), (4), and (5) first and should then consider dismissal under § 6-1112(b)(6) only if it determines that it has personal jurisdiction and that process and service of process were sufficient.	"Should a court consider dismissal for lack of jurisdiction or insufficient process, when a motion to dismiss raises a defense of failure to state a claim and any combination of lack of jurisdiction?"
3750	Jenkins v. A. R. Blossman, Inc., 60 So. 2d 131, 133 (La. Ct. App. 1952)	1	An affirmative defense, presented through exceptions or motions tried or triable only on the face of the petition, should not be sustained unless the allegations of the petition exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than the premise upon which the defense is based.	"We conclude therefore that an affirmative defense, presented through exceptions or motions tried or triable only on the face of the petition, should not be sustained unless the allegations of the petition exclude every reasonable hypothesis other than the premise upon which the defense is based."	When can an affirmative defense presented through exceptions or motions tried or triable only on the face of the petition be sustained?
3752	Layton v. Cook, 248 Miss. 690, 696-97 (Miss. 1964)	3	Pedestrian has right to use and travel upon any portion of public highway at any time of day or night, in absence of statute to contrary, and his rights and rights of one operating a vehicle thereupon are mutual, reciprocal and equal. Code 1942, § 8176.	In the absence of a statute to the contrary, a pedestrian has the right to use and travel upon any portion of a public highway at any time of the day or night, 'and his rights and the rights of one operating a vehicle thereupon are mutual, reciprocal, and equal.	In the absence of statute to contrary does a pedestrian has the right to use and travel on a highway?
3753	Rash v. J.V. Intermediate, Ltd., 498 F.3d 1201, 1209 (C.A.10 (Okla.),2007)	14	Under Texas law, among the agent's fiduciary duties to the principal is the duty to account for profits arising out of the employment, the duty not to act as, or on account of, an adverse party without the principal's consent, the duty not to compete with the principal on his own account or for another in matters relating to the subject matter of the agency, and the duty to deal fairly with the principal in all transactions between them. Restatement (Second) of Agency § 13, comment.	Texas law recognizes several basic duties a fiduciary owes the principal: Among the agent's fiduciary duties to the principal is the duty to account for profits arising out of the employment, the duty not to act as, or on account of, an adverse party without the principal's consent, the duty not to compete with the principal on his own account or for another in matters relating to the subject matter of the agency, and the duty to deal fairly with the principal in all transactions between them. Id. at 200 (citing Restatement (Second) of Agency 13, cmt.	Does an agent owe a fiduciary duty to his principal?

3754	In re Guardianship of Guaman, 879 N.W.2d 668, 671 (Minn. App. 2016)	1	Special immigrant juvenile (SIJ) status provides a means for abused, neglected, and abandoned immigrant youth to obtain lawful permanent residency and a path to United States citizenship under federal law. Immigration and Nationality Act, SS 101(a)(27)(J), 203(b)(4), 8 U.S.C.A. SS 1101(a)(27)(J), 1153(b)(4).	SIJ status provides a means for abused, neglected, and abandoned immigrant youth to obtain lawful permanent residency and a path to United States citizenship under federal law. See 8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(27)(J) (defining SIJ status), 1153(b)(4) (2012) (establishing annual immigrant- visa allotment for those with SIJ status and others); see also In re Y.M., 207 Cal.App.4th 892, 144 CalRptr.3d 54, 72 (2012); In re J.J.X.C., 318 Ga.App.	"Was Special Immigrant Juvenile (SIJ) status created to protect abused, neglected, and abandoned immigrant youth through a process allowing them to become legal permanent residents?"
3756	Eastern Savings Bank, FSB v. Cach, LLC, 124 A.3d 585, 590 (Del.Supr., 2015)	4	There are five elements necessary to establish a claim for equitable subrogation: (1) payment must have been made by the subrogee to protect his or her own interest, (2) the subrogee must not have acted as a volunteer, (3) the debt paid must have been one for which the subrogee was not primarily liable, (4) the entire debt must have been paid, and (5) subrogation must not work any injustice to the rights of others.	Under the Court of Chancery's precedent, there are five elements necessary to establish a claim for equitable subrogation: (1) payment must have been made by the subrogee to protect his or her own interest; (2) the subrogee must not have acted as a volunteer; (3) the debt paid must have been one for which the subrogee was not primarily liable; (4) the entire debt must have been paid; and (5) subrogation must not work any injustice to the rights of others.	What are the required elements of an equitable subrogation claim?
3759	Vested Bus. Brokers, Ltd. v. Ragone, 131 A.D.3d 1232, 1234, 17 N.Y.S.3d 447 (2015)	1	In seeking to vacate its default in appearing at a conference, a defendant must establish both a reasonable excuse for its default and a potentially meritorious defense to the action. McKinney's CPLR 5015(a)(1).	In seeking to vacate its default in appearing at a conference, a defendant must establish both a reasonable excuse for its default and a potentially meritorious defense to the action (see CPLR 5015 [a] [1]).	"In seeking to vacate its default in appearing at a conference, should a defendant establish both a reasonable excuse for its default and a potentially meritorious defense to the action?"
3761	In re Houston, 409 B.R. 799, 808–09 (D.S.C. 2009)	21	Under South Carolina Law, equitable subrogation is appropriate where the following factors are present: (1) party claiming subrogation has paid debt; (2) party was not a volunteer, but had direct interest in discharge of the debt or lien; (3) party was secondarily liable for debt or for discharge of lien; and (4) no injustice will be done to the other party by allowance of the equity.	Under South Carolina Law, equitable subrogation is appropriate where the following factors are present: (1) the party claiming subrogation has paid the debt; (2) the party was not a volunteer but had a direct interest in the discharge of the debt or lien; (3) the party was secondarily liable for the debt or for the discharge of the lien; and (4) no injustice will be done to the other party by the allowance of the equity 9 .	What factors must be present for equitable subrogation to be appropriate?

3762	Tatum v. Townsend, 61 A.2d 478, 479 (D.C. 1948)	4	Rights of parties and status and condition of plaintiff's claim are to be tested by the facts as they existed on the day suit was filed and not by what developed or what plaintiff was able to accomplish between the filing date and the time claim was filed.	We think the rights of the parties and the status and condition of plaintiff's claim are to be tested by the facts as they existed on the day the suit was filed, and not by what developed or what plaintiff was able to accomplish between the filing date and the time of the trial.	Are the rights of parties and status and condition of plaintiff's claim to be tested by the facts as they existed on the day suit were filed?
3763	Valley View Health Care, Inc. v. Chapman, 992 F. Supp. 2d 1016, 1039 (E.D. Cal. 2014)	33	As federal substantive law, the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) preempts contrary state law; nonetheless, the FAA's preemption power has an exception, via the savings clause, in that it does not require the enforcement of arbitration agreements on such grounds as exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any contract. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 6, cl. 2; 9 U.S.C.A. § 2.	"As federal substantive law, the FAA preempts contrary state law." Mortensen, 722 F.3d at 1158. Nonetheless, the FAA's preemption power has an exception, via the 9 U.S.C. § 2 savings clause, in that it does not require the enforcement of arbitration agreements on "such grounds as exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any contract."	Does the Federal Arbitration Act preempt contrary state law?
3764	Federal Treasury Enterprise Sojuzplodoimport v. Spirits Intern. B.V., 61 F.Supp.3d 372, 381 (S.D.N.Y., 2014)	5	Pursuant to act of state doctrine, American courts will not inquire into validity of public acts of recognized foreign sovereign power committed within its own territory.	The act of state doctrine in its traditional formulation precludes the courts of this country from inquiring into the validity of the public acts a recognized foreign sovereign power committed within its own territory.	Can courts inquire into the validity of public acts of recognized foreign sovereign power committed within its own territory pursuant to the act of state doctrine?
3767	Murray v. Cadle Co., 257 S.W.3d 291, 300 (Tex. App. 2008)	21	Factors a court may consider in conducting equitable subrogation balancing test are the negligence of the party claiming subrogation, whether that party had notice of the intervening lien, and whether the intervening lienholder will be prejudiced if equitable subrogation is allowed.	Factors a court may consider in conducting this balancing test are the negligence of the party claiming subrogation, whether that party had notice of the intervening lien, and whether the intervening lienholder will be prejudiced if equitable subrogation is allowed.	What are the factors a court may consider in conducting a balancing test for claim of equitable subrogation?
3768	Webb v. Ensco Marine Co., 121 F. Supp. 2d 1049, 1050 (E.D. Tex. 2000)	2	Plaintiff who has state common law cause of action that also falls within federal admiralty jurisdiction may elect to bring suit either as admiralty action in federal court, or as state common law action in state court or in federal court, assuming he meets diversity jurisdiction requirements for federal court.	A plaintiff, however, "who has a state common law cause of action that also falls within the federal admiralty jurisdiction may elect to bring the suit either as an admiralty action in federal court, or as a state common law action in state court or in federal court assuming he meets the diversity jurisdiction requirements for federal court." T.N.T. Marine Service, Inc. v. Weaver Shipyards & Dry Docks, Inc., 702 F.2d 585, 586 (5th Cir.1983).	Can a plaintiff in an admiralty case pursue his common law remedies in a state court?

3769	Goldberg Realty Group v. Weinstein, 669 A.2d 187, 191 (Me. 1996)	9	Contractual right can be assigned unless substitution of right of assignee for right of assignor would materially change duty of obligor, or materially increase burden or risk imposed on him by contract. Restatement (Second) of Contracts S 317(2)(a).	"A contractual right can be assigned unless the substitution of a right of the assignee for the right of the assignor would materially change the duty of the obligor, or materially increase the burden or risk imposed on him by his contract."	Does substitution of right in favor of the assignee instead of the assignor materially increase the burden or risk on the obligor?
3771	Food Chem. News v. Davis, 378 F.Supp. 1048, 1051 (D.C. 1974)	3	Purpose of the Federal Advisory Committee Act of 1972 is to control the advisory committee process and to open to public scrutiny the manner in which government agencies obtain advice from private individuals. 5 U.S.C.A. App. I, SS 3(2), 9(a-c).	The purpose of the Federal Advisory Committee Act to control the advisory committee process and to open to public scrutiny the manner in which government agencies obtain advice from private individuals is furthered by the Court's action herein.	"Does Federal Advisory Committee Act, 1972 deal with government agencies obtaining advice from private individuals?"
3772	Stolt-Nielsen S.A. v. AnimalFeeds Int'l Corp., 559 U.S. 662, 685 (2010)	23	In bilateral arbitration, parties forgo the procedural rigor and appellate review of the courts in order to realize the benefits of private dispute resolution: lower costs, greater efficiency and speed, and the ability to choose expert adjudicators to resolve specialized disputes. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	In bilateral arbitration, parties forgo the procedural rigor and appellate review of the courts in order to realize the benefits of private dispute resolution: lower costs, greater efficiency and speed, and the ability to choose expert adjudicators to resolve specialized disputes.	What happens in a bilateral arbitration?
3774	Stoddard v. West Telemarketing, L.P., 501 F.Supp.2d 862, 874 (W.D.Tex., 2007)	15	In Texas, "libel" is defamation expressed in written form that tends to injure living person's reputation and thereby expose person to public hatred, contempt or ridicule, or financial injury or to impeach any person's honesty, integrity, virtue, or reputation, whereas "slander" is orally communicated defamation. V.T.C.A., Civil Practice & Remedies Code S 73.001.	Libel in Texas is, "a defamation expressed in written ... form that ... tends to injure a living person's reputation and thereby expose the person to public hatred, contempt or ridicule, or financial injury or to impeach any person's honesty, integrity, virtue, or reputation...." TEX. CIV. PRAC. & REM.CODE ANN. 73.001 (Vernon 2007). "Slander is orally communicated defamation."	Does defamation cause an injury to a persons reputation?
3775	Department of Public Works and Bldgs. v. Kirkendall, 112 N.E.2d 611, 613, 415 Ill. 214, 218 (Ill. 1953)	2	The power and right of eminent domain is inherent in the sovereign state, existing independently of written constitutions or statutes thereof, regulated by appropriate legislation limited only by constitutional provision for compensation, and extending to every kind of property. S.H.A.Const. art. 2, S 13; S.H.A. ch. 47, S 1 et seq.	The power and right of eminent domain is inherent in the sovereign State, existing independently of written constitutions or statutory laws thereof, regulated by appropriate legislation, limited only by the constitutional provision for compensation, and extending to every kind of property.	Is the power and right of eminent domain regulated by legislation?

3776	Poindexter v. Sanco Corp., 44 N.C.App. 694, 699 (1980)	2	A bailor for hire, while not an insurer, may be liable for personal injuries to bailee or third persons proximately resulting from defective condition of a rented automobile while being used by bailee for purpose known to be intended, if bailor was aware of defective condition or by reasonable care and inspection could have discovered it.	A bailor for hire, while not an insurer, may be liable for personal injuries to the bailee or third persons proximately resulting from the defective condition of a rented automobile while being used by the bailee for the purpose known to be intended, if the bailor was aware of the defective condition or by reasonable care and inspection could have discovered it.	Is a bailor for hire an insurer?
3777	Century Indem. Co. v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's, London, subscribing to Retrocessional Agreement Nos. 950548, 950549, 950646, 584 F.3d 513, 532 (C.A.3 (Pa.),2009)	14	In determining whether parties have agreed to arbitrate, court cannot subject purported arbitration agreement otherwise within scope of Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) and satisfying its requirements to a standard more demanding than that which it would apply to other agreements under applicable state law. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	Because the FAA requires us to place arbitration agreements on an equal footing with other contracts when determining whether the parties have agreed to arbitrate, we cannot subject a purported arbitration agreement otherwise within the scope of the FAA and satisfying its requirements to a standard more demanding than that which we would apply to other agreements under the applicable state law.	What law do the courts apply to determine whether an agreement to arbitrate is enforceable?
3778	Grimm v. First Nat. Bank of Pennsylvania, 578 F.Supp.2d 785, 792 (Pa. 2008)	2	Federal law presumptively favors enforcement of arbitration agreements, and thus any doubts concerning scope of arbitrable issues should be resolved in favor of arbitration, whether problem at hand is construction of contract language itself or allegation of waiver, delay or other defense to arbitrability. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	Thus, "federal law presumptively favors the enforcement of arbitration agreements." To this end, "[t]he Arbitration Act establishes that, as a matter of federal law, any doubts concerning the scope of arbitrable issues should be resolved in favor of arbitration, whether the problem at hand is the construction of the contract language itself or an allegation of waiver, delay or the like defense to arbitrability."	Does the Federal Arbitration Act make agreements to arbitrate enforceable to the same extent as other contracts?
3779	City of San Diego v. California Coastal Com., 119 Cal. App. 3d 228, 232, 174 Cal. Rptr. 5 (Ct. App. 1981)	1	Opinion evidence of experts in discipline of environmental planning, often included within environmental impact reports, may constitute substantial evidence upon which California Coastal Commission may base its decision.	Finally, the opinion evidence of experts in the discipline of environmental planning, often included within environmental impact reports, may constitute substantial evidence upon which the Commission may have based its decision.	Does the opinion evidence of experts constitute substantial evidence upon which a commission may base its decisions?

3780	Brown v. Metzger, 455 N.E.2d 834, 836–37, 74 Ill.Dec. 405, 407–08, 118 Ill.App.3d 855, 858 (Ill.App. 2 Dist.,1983)	1	When one spouse is injured by negligence of a tort-feasor, other spouse may recover from the tort-feasor for the loss spouse suffered by virtue of injury to spouse; this loss, generally labeled "loss of consortium," includes material services, elements of companionship, felicity and sexual intercourse, all welded into a conceptualistic unity.	When one spouse (the impaired spouse) is injured by the negligence of another, the other spouse (the deprived spouse) may recover from the tortfeasor for the loss the deprived spouse suffered by virtue of the impaired spouse's injury. (Dini v. Naiditch (1960), 20 Ill.2d 406, 430, 170 N.E.2d 881) This loss, which is generally labeled a loss of consortium, includes "material services, elements of companionship, felicity and sexual intercourse, all welded into a conceptualistic unity."	Can a spouse maintain an action for loss of consortium against a tortfeasor who has caused injuries to the other spouse?
3782	Saunders v. Equifax Information Services, L.L.C., 469 F.Supp.2d 343, 348–49 (E.D.Va.,2007)	2	Compensatory and punitive damages serve different purposes; while compensatory damages are intended to redress the concrete loss that the plaintiff has suffered by reason of the defendant's wrongful conduct, punitive damages, by contrast, serve a broader function aimed at deterrence and retribution.	Compensatory and punitive damages serve different purposes. While compensatory damages "are intended to redress the concrete loss that the plaintiff has suffered by reason of the defendant's wrongful conduct," State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell, 538 U.S. 408, 416, 123 S.Ct. 1513, 155 L.Ed.2d 585 (2003) (citations omitted), punitive damages, by contrast, serve a broader function aimed at deterrence and retribution, id.	Do compensatory damages and punitive damages serve different purposes?
3783	BCS Ins. Co. v. Wellmark, Inc., 410 F.3d 349, 351–52 (C.A.7 (Ill.),2005)	2	Language of the parties' agreement determines arbitrability, and while ambiguities in the language of the agreement should be resolved in favor of arbitration, courts do not override the clear intent of the parties, or reach a result inconsistent with the plain text of the contract, simply because the policy favoring arbitration is implicated. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	The language of the parties' agreement determines arbitrability, and "[w]hile ambiguities in the language of the agreement should be resolved in favor of arbitration, we do not override the clear intent of the parties, or reach a result inconsistent with the plain text of the contract, simply because the policy favoring arbitration is implicated."	Can the court override the intent of the parties to arbitrate or the plain text of the contract?
3784	Kovac v. Superior Dairy, Inc., 930 F.Supp.2d 857, 865 (N.D.Ohio, 2013)	9	The Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) manifests a liberal federal policy favoring arbitration agreements; accordingly, the FAA provides for a stay of proceedings when an issue is referable to arbitration and for orders compelling arbitration when one party has failed or refused to comply with an arbitration agreement. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	"To enforce this dictate, [the FAA] provides for a stay of proceedings when an issue is referable to arbitration and for orders compelling arbitration when one party has failed or refused to comply with an arbitration agreement."	When does the Federal arbitration Act (FAA) provide for a stay of proceedings?

3785	In re A.W., 741 N.W.2d 793, 809 (Iowa,2007)	17	Federal preferences are granted to Indians not as a discrete racial group, but, rather, as members of quasi-sovereign tribal entities; as long as the special treatment can be rationally tied to the fulfillment of Congress' unique obligation toward the Indians, such legislative judgments will not be disturbed.	Thus, federal preferences are "granted to Indians not as a discrete racial group, but, rather, as members of quasi-sovereign tribal entities." "As long as the special treatment can be rationally tied to the fulfillment of Congress' unique obligation toward the Indians, such legislative judgments will not be disturbed.	What is the rationale behind the special treatment provided to Indians?
3786	Diop v. City of New York, 50 F.Supp.3d 411, 422 (S.D.N.Y., 2014).	21	An arresting officer is entitled to qualified immunity on claims of false arrest and malicious prosecution if either: (1) it was objectively reasonable for the officer to believe that probable cause existed, or (2) officers of reasonable competence could disagree on whether the probable cause test was met. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 4.	"[A]n arresting officer is entitled to qualified immunity on claims of false arrest and malicious prosecution if either: (a) it was objectively reasonable for the officer to believe that probable cause existed, or (b) officers of reasonable competence could disagree on whether the probable cause test was met." .	When can a police officer assert qualified immunity defense in a malicious prosecution claim?
3787	State v. Holland, 221 S.W.3d 639, 643 (Tex., 2007)	10	When the government acts pursuant to colorable contract rights, it lacks the necessary intent to take under its eminent-domain powers and thus retains its immunity from suit; this is because the State may wear two hats: the State as a party to the contract and the State as sovereign. Vernon's Ann.Texas Const. Art. 1, S 17.	When the government acts pursuant to colorable contract rights, it lacks the necessary intent to take under its eminent-domain powers and thus retains its immunity from suit. Id. at 598-99. This is because the State may "wear [] two hats: the State as a party to the contract and the State as sovereign.	Does the government lack the necessary intent to take under its eminent-domain powers when it acts pursuant to colorable contract rights?
3789	Lampkin ex rel. Lampkin v. Housing Management Resources, Inc., 220 N.C.App. 457, 463 (N.C.App., 2012)	4	Legal rights and liabilities must rest upon some reasonably settled basis, fixed either by the common law or by statute.	Legal rights and liabilities must rest upon some reasonably settled basis, fixed either by the common law or by statute....	Must legal rights and liabilities rest upon reasonably settled basis fixed either by the common law or by statute?
3790	Gen. Tel. Co. of Sw. v. Bi-Co Pavers, 514 S.W.2d 168, 170 (Tex. App. 1974)	2	A "trespass" is usually regarded as an intentional tort in the sense that it involves an intent to commit an act which violates a property right, or would be practically certain to have that effect, although the actor may not know that the act he intends to commit is such a violation.	A trespass is usually regarded as an intentional tort in the sense that it involves an intent to commit an act which violates a property right, or would be practically certain to have that effect, although the actor may not know that the act he intends to commit is such a violation.	Can a person be made liable for trespass even though the actor did not know his conduct would result in trespass but his actions were practically certain to have that effect?
3791	Kitterman v. Simrall, 924 S.W.2d 872, 878 (Mo. Ct. App. 1996)	17	Trespasser's liability for damages for natural, necessary, direct and proximate consequences of his or her wrongful act exists whether or not done in good faith and with reasonable care, in ignorance or under mistake of law or fact.	"A trespasser is liable for damages for the natural, necessary, direct, and proximate consequences of his wrongful act." Moore v. Dudley, 904 S.W.2d 496, 499 (Mo.App.1995) (citation omitted). This liability exists whether or not done in good faith and with reasonable care, in ignorance, or under mistake of law or fact.	Can a liability for trespass exist when acts are done in good faith?

3792	State v. Applegate, 668 S.W.2d 624, 628 (Mo.App. S.D., 1984)	4	Elements of the corpus delicti in a homicide case cannot be said to be established until it has been proved that the death was not self-inflicted, or due to natural causes or accident; the state must further prove, as an additional element, a criminal act of the defendant as cause of victim's death.	The elements of the corpus delicti cannot be said to be established until it has been proved that the death was not self-inflicted, nor due to natural causes or accident. The State must further prove, as an additional element, a criminal act of the defendant (his agency) as a cause of the victim's death.	"Will the elements of corpus delicti be met unless the state has shown that the death was not accidental, self-inflicted or due to natural causes?"
3793	Geller v. Kinney, 980 N.E.2d 390, 399 (Ind. App. 2012)	9	The doctrine of mitigation of damages creates an obligation on the part of a landlord to use such diligence as would be exercised by a reasonably prudent man under similar circumstances to re-let the premises, if possible, in order to mitigate damages resulting from a tenant's breach of lease.	As we explained: The doctrine of mitigation of damages creates an obligation on the part of the landlord to use such diligence as would be exercised by a reasonably prudent man under similar circumstances to re-let the premises, if possible, in order to mitigate damages resulting from the tenant's breach of lease.	Does the doctrine of mitigation of damages apply to landlords as well?
3794	Chelsea Square Textiles, Inc. v. Bombay Dyeing and Mfg. Co., Ltd., 189 F.3d 289, 295–96 (C.A.2 (N.Y.), 1999)	5	While section of the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) preempts state law that treats arbitration agreements differently from any other contracts, it also preserves general principles of state contract law as rules of decision on whether the parties have entered into an agreement to arbitrate. 9 U.S.C.A. § 2.	Thus, we have stated that while 2 of the FAA preempts state law that treats arbitration agreements differently from any other contracts, 5 it also *296 "preserves general principles of state contract law as rules of decision on whether the parties have entered into an agreement to arbitrate."	Does the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) preserve the general principles of state contract law?
3795	DeRosa v. Rambosk, 732 F.Supp.2d 1285, 1302 (M.D.Fla., 2010)	24	Under Florida law, malicious prosecution plaintiff need not allege actual malice; legal malice is sufficient and may be inferred from, among other things, a lack of probable cause, gross negligence, or great indifference to persons, property, or the rights of others.	Under Florida law, "the plaintiff need not allege actual malice; legal malice is sufficient and may be inferred from, among other things, a lack of probable cause, gross negligence, or great indifference to persons, property, or the rights of others."	Is it necessary to prove actual malice in a malicious prosecution claim?
3796	Fiber Systems Intern., Inc. v. Roehrs, 470 F.3d 1150, 1161 (C.A.5 (Tex.), 2006)	11	Under Texas law, in order for defamatory oral statement to constitute slander per se, it must fall within one of four categories: (1) imputation of a crime; (2) imputation of a loathsome disease; (3) injury to person's office, business, profession or calling; or (4) imputation of sexual misconduct.	"For a defamatory oral statement to constitute slander per se, it must fall within one of four categories: (1) imputation of a crime, (2) imputation of a loathsome disease, (3) injury to a person's office, business, profession, or calling, and (4) imputation of sexual misconduct."	What kinds of statements constitute slander per se?

3797	Kala Investments, Inc. v. Sklar, 538 So.2d 909, 917 (Fla.App. 3 Dist., 1989)	14	"Equitable subrogation" is creature of equity which was developed to afford relief when one person has satisfied obligations of another and equity compels that person discharging debt stand and choose a person whose claim has been discharged, thereby succeeding to rights and priorities of original creditor.	"Equitable" subrogation is a creature of equity which was developed to afford relief "when one person has satisfied the obligations of another and equity compels that the person discharging the debt stand in the shoes of the person whose claim has been discharged, thereby succeeding to the rights and priorities of the original creditor."	Is the doctrine of equitable subrogation a creature of equity ?
3798	Texas Co. v. Miller, 165 F.2d 111, 115 (C.C.A.5 (Tex.), 1947)	6	"Subrogation" is a legal fiction by force of which an obligation extinguished by payment made by a third person, is treated as still subsisting for his benefit.	'Subrogation is said to be a legal fiction by force of which an obligation, extinguished by payment made by a third person, is treated as still subsisting for his benefit.	"Is subrogation a legal fiction by force of which an obligation, extinguished by payment made by a third person, is treated as still subsisting for his benefit, or the procedure by which the equitable rights of one person are worked out through the legal rights of another?"
3799	Financial Sec. Assur., Inc. v. Stephens, Inc., 500 F.3d 1276, 1287 (C.A.11 (Ga.), 2007)	14	Subrogation is either legal or conventional: "legal subrogation" is an equitable doctrine and arises by operation of the law without any agreement to that effect between the parties; "conventional subrogation" rests on contract, arising where an agreement is made that the person paying the debt shall be subrogated to the rights and remedies of the original creditor.	Subrogation is either "legal" or "conventional." Legal subrogation is an equitable doctrine and arises by operation of the law without any agreement to that effect between the parties; conventional subrogation rests on contract, arising where "an agreement is made that the person paying the debt shall be subrogated to the rights and remedies of the original creditor."	Is subrogation either legal or conventional?
3801	Rupp v. Transcontinental Ins. Co., 627 F.Supp.2d 1304, 1326 (D.Utah, 2008)	21	Under Utah law, relief on a subrogation claim is available if the following conditions are met: (1) there is a debt or obligation for which the subrogee was not primarily liable; (2) the subrogee made payment to protect his own rights or interest; (3) the subrogee did not act merely as a volunteer; and (4) the entire debt was paid.	Relief is available if the following conditions are met: (1) There must be a debt or obligation for which the subrogee [here, excess carrier Westchester] was not primarily liable; (2) the subrogee must have made payment to protect his own rights or interest; (3) the subrogee must not have acted merely as a volunteer; and (4) the entire debt must have been paid.	What conditions must be met for relief on a subrogation claim to be available?

3802	Eastern Savings Bank, FSB v. Cach, LLC, 124 A.3d 585, 590 (Del.Supr., 2015)	4	There are five elements necessary to establish a claim for equitable subrogation: (1) payment must have been made by the subrogee to protect his or her own interest, (2) the subrogee must not have acted as a volunteer, (3) the debt paid must have been one for which the subrogee was not primarily liable, (4) the entire debt must have been paid, and (5) subrogation must not work any injustice to the rights of others.	Under the Court of Chancery's precedent, there are five elements necessary to establish a claim for equitable subrogation: (1) payment must have been made by the subrogee to protect his or her own interest; (2) the subrogee must not have acted as a volunteer; (3) the debt paid must have been one for which the subrogee was not primarily liable; (4) the entire debt must have been paid; and (5) subrogation must not work any injustice to the rights of others.	What are the three elements of equitable subrogation?
3803	Eastern Savings Bank, FSB v. Cach, LLC, 124 A.3d 585, 590 (Del.Supr., 2015)	4	There are five elements necessary to establish a claim for equitable subrogation: (1) payment must have been made by the subrogee to protect his or her own interest, (2) the subrogee must not have acted as a volunteer, (3) the debt paid must have been one for which the subrogee was not primarily liable, (4) the entire debt must have been paid, and (5) subrogation must not work any injustice to the rights of others.	Under the Court of Chancery's precedent, there are five elements necessary to establish a claim for equitable subrogation: (1) payment must have been made by the subrogee to protect his or her own interest; (2) the subrogee must not have acted as a volunteer; (3) the debt paid must have been one for which the subrogee was not primarily liable; (4) the entire debt must have been paid; and (5) subrogation must not work any injustice to the rights of others.	What are the five factors that have been outlined as conditions precedent to the application of equitable subrogation?
3805	Lumbermens Mut. Cas. v. United States, 90 Fed. Cl. 558, 563 (2009)	8	"Subrogation" is a principle of equity whereby a surety who pays the debt of another is entitled to all the rights of the person he paid to enforce his right to be reimbursed.	Subrogation is a principle of equity whereby "a surety who pays the debt of another is entitled to all the rights of the person he paid to enforce his right to be reimbursed.	Is subrogation a principle of equity whereby a surety who pays the debt of another is entitled to all the rights of the person he paid to enforce his right to be reimbursed?
3806	Fuller v. Stonewall Cas. Co. of W. Va., 172 W.Va. 193, 197 (1983)	8	Where a guarantor pays to creditor debt on behalf of principal obligor, he is ordinarily entitled to be subrogated to rights of creditor as against principal obligor and accrue to such security as has been taken by creditor from principal obligor.	We are aware of general law to the effect that where a guarantor pays to the creditor the debt on behalf of the principal obligor, he is ordinarily entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the creditor as against the principal obligor and accrue to such security as has been taken by the creditor from the principal obligor.	"Where a guarantor pays to the creditor debt on behalf of a principal obligor, is he ordinarily entitled to be subrogated to the rights of a creditor as against the principal obligor and accrue to such security as has been taken by creditor from the principal obligor?"
3807	Bost v. Paulson's Enterprises, Inc., 343 N.E.2d 168, 171-72, 36 Ill.App.3d 135, 139 (Ill.App. 1976)	1	Doctrine of subrogation is broad enough to include every instance in which one person, not mere volunteer, pays debt for which another is primarily liable and which in equity and good conscience should have been discharged by latter.	The doctrine of subrogation 172 is broad enough to include every instance in which one person, not a mere volunteer, pays a debt for which another is primarily liable and which in equity and good conscience should have been discharged by the latter.	"Under the doctrine of ""subrogation,"" does a person who has paid a debt for which another is primarily liable succeed to the rights of the person whose debt has been paid in relation to the debt or claim?"

3808	Sun Valley Fin. Servs. of Phoenix v. Guzman, 212 Ariz. 495, 499 (2006)	4	"Equitable subrogation" is the substitution of another person in the place of a creditor, so that the person in whose favor it is exercised succeeds to the rights of the creditor in relation to the debt.	Equitable subrogation is the "substitution of another person in the place of a creditor, so that the person in whose favor it is exercised succeeds to the rights of the creditor in relation to the debt."	"Is subrogation or equitable subrogation the substitution of another person in the place of a creditor, so that the person in whose favor it is exercised succeeds to the rights of the creditor in relation to the debt?"
3809	DePuy, Inc. v. Farmer, 847 N.E.2d 160, 170 (Ind.,2006)	18	Common law subrogation is a doctrine of equity jurisprudence that arises by operation of law, that is to say it is created by the legal consequences of the acts and relationships of the parties, and thus is a legal fiction; it is designed to promote and to accomplish justice, and compel the ultimate payment of a debt by one who, in justice, equity, and good conscience, should pay it.	Common law subrogation is "a doctrine of equity jurisprudence" that "arises by operation of law, that is to say it is created by the legal consequences of the acts and relationships of the parties, and thus is a legal fiction." 83 C.J.S. Subrogation 2, 4 at 499-500, 504 (2000) (citations omitted) accord 73 Am.Jur.2d Subrogation 1 at 541 (West 2001). It is "designed to promote and to accomplish justice, and ... compel the ultimate payment of a debt by one who, in justice, equity, and good conscience, should pay it."	Is common law subrogation a doctrine of equity jurisprudence that arises by operation of law and thus a legal fiction?
3810	DeCespedes v. Prudence Mut. Cas. Co. of Chicago, Ill., 193 So.2d 224, 227 (Fla.App. 1966)	7	Subrogation is a creature of equity having for its purpose the working out of an equitable adjustment between the parties by securing the ultimate discharge of a debt by the person who in equity and good conscience ought to pay it.	Subrogation is a 'creature of equity having for its purpose the working out of an equitable adjustment between the parties by securing the ultimate discharge of a debt by the person who in equity and good conscience ought to pay it	"Does subrogation serve the purpose of limiting the possibility of a double recovery by the insured, and secures the ultimate discharge of the debt by the one who in equity and good conscience ought to pay it?"
3811	Bekele v. Lyft, Inc., 199 F.Supp.3d 284, 298 (D.Mass., 2016)	17	Even claims arising under a statute designed to further important social policies may be arbitrated because so long as the prospective litigant effectively may vindicate his or her statutory cause of action in the arbitral forum, the statute serves its functions.	"[E]ven claims arising under a statute designed to further important social policies may be arbitrated because 'so long as the prospective litigant effectively may vindicate [his or her] statutory cause of action in the arbitral forum,' the statute serves its functions."	Can claims arising under a statute designed to further important social policies be arbitrated?
3812	Coronado v. Norman, 111 S.W.3d 838, 840 (Tex.App. Eastland,2003)	1	An appellant must establish four elements in order to be successful in a restricted appeal: (1) the petition must be brought within six months from the signing of the judgment, (2) by a party to the lawsuit, (3) who did not participate in the trial on the merits, and (4) the error must be apparent on the face of the record. Rules App.Proc., Rule 30.	An appellant must establish four elements in order to be successful in a restricted appeal: (1) the petition must be brought within six months from the signing of the judgment; (2) by a party to the lawsuit; (3) who did not participate in the trial on the merits; and (4) the error must be apparent on the face of the record.	What are the elements necessary to prevail on a restricted appeal?

3814	Premium Cigars Intern., Ltd. v. Farmer-Butler-Leavitt Ins. Agency, 208 Ariz. 557, 572 (Ct. App. 2004)	39	A "motion in limine" filed in a civil case is generally used as a substitute for evidentiary objections at trial and as a means to exclude evidence from trial for violations of the disclosure rules.	57 A motion in limine filed in a civil case "is generally used as a substitute for evidentiary objections at trial" and "as a means to exclude evidence from trial for violations of the disclosure rules."	Are pretrial motions in limine employed in civil cases as a means to exclude evidence from trial for violations of the disclosure rules?
3815	Seels v. Tenet Health System Hahnemann, LLC, 167 A.3d 190, 206 (Pa.Super., 2017)	13	A "motion in limine" is a pretrial mechanism to obtain a ruling on the admissibility of evidence, and it gives the trial judge the opportunity to weigh potentially prejudicial and harmful evidence before the trial occurs, preventing the evidence from ever reaching the jury.	A motion in limine is a pretrial mechanism to obtain a ruling on the admissibility of evidence, and it gives the trial judge the opportunity to weigh potentially prejudicial and harmful evidence before the trial occurs, preventing the evidence from ever reaching the jury.	Is a motion in limine a procedural step to prevent prejudicial evidence from reaching the jury?
3816	Adams v. Consolidated Rail Corp., 591 S.E.2d 269, 273, 214 W.Va. 711, 715 (W.Va.,2003)	2	Once a trial judge rules on a motion in limine, that ruling becomes the law of the case unless modified by a subsequent ruling of the court; a trial court is vested with the exclusive authority to determine when and to what extent an in limine order is to be modified.	Once a trial judge rules on a motion in limine, that ruling becomes the law of the case unless modified by a subsequent ruling of the court. A trial court is vested with the exclusive authority to determine when and to what extent an in limine order is to be modified	Is the trial court vested with the exclusive authority to determine when and to what extent an in limine order is modified?
3820	In re Weinberger's Estate, 203 Neb. 674, 680 (Neb., 1979)	3	Cause of action on covenant of warranty or for quiet enjoyment does not accrue in favor of covenantee until eviction or surrender by reason of a paramount title.	A cause of action on a covenant of warranty or for quiet enjoyment does not accrue in favor of the covenantee until eviction or surrender by reason of a paramount title.	Does a cause of action on a covenant of warranty or for quiet enjoyment accrue in favor of covenantee before eviction or surrender by reason of a paramount title?
3821	Denman v. Citgo Pipeline Co., 123 S.W.3d 728, 732 (Tex.App.-Texarkana, 2003)	7	A cause of action "accrues" when a plaintiff first becomes entitled to file a lawsuit based on a legal wrong attributed to a defendant.	A cause of action accrues when a plaintiff first becomes entitled to file a lawsuit based on a legal wrong attributed to a defendant.	"Does a cause of action ""accrue"" when a plaintiff first becomes entitled to file a lawsuit based on a legal wrong attributed to a defendant?"
3823	Mary Ann Morse Healthcare Corp. v. Board of Assessors of Framingham, 74 Mass.App.Ct. 701, 703 (Mass.App.Ct.,2009)	2	While there is no precise number of persons who must be served in order for an organization to claim charitable status, and at any given moment an organization may service only a relatively small number of persons, membership in the class served must be fluid and must be drawn from a large segment of society or all walks of life. M.G.L.A. c. 59, § 5.	"While there is no 'precise number' of persons who must be served in order for an organization to claim charitable status, and 'at any given moment an organization may service only a relatively small number of persons,' membership in the class served must be 'fluid' and must be 'drawn from a large segment of society or all walks of life.	How many beneficiaries must be served for a charitable trust to be in existence?

3824	In re Fresh & Process Potatoes Antitrust Litig., 834 F. Supp. 2d 1141, 1180 (D. Idaho 2011)	47	First element of act of state doctrine is whether there is an official act of a foreign sovereign performed within its own territory, not whether the named defendant is the foreign sovereign who performed that official act.	The first element of the Act of State Doctrine is whether there is an official act of a foreign sovereign performed within its own territory, not whether the named defendant is the foreign sovereign who performed that official act.	"Is the first element of the act of state doctrine whether there is an official act of a foreign sovereign performed within its own territory, and not whether the named defendant is the foreign sovereign who performed that official act?"
3825	U.S. v. Portrait of Wally, 663 F.Supp.2d 232, 247 (S.D.N.Y., 2009)	2	In determining whether the Act of State Doctrine applies, courts must be mindful of their obligation to decide cases and controversies properly presented to them; this in turn requires consideration of the policies underlying the Act of State doctrine and whether, despite the doctrine's technical availability, it should nonetheless not be invoked.	However, in determining whether the doctrine applies, courts must be mindful of their obligation "to decide cases and controversies properly presented to them." W.S. Kirkpatrick, 493 U.S. at 409, 110 S.Ct. 701. This in turn requires consideration of the policies underlying the Act of State doctrine and "whether, despite the doctrine's technical availability, it should nonetheless not be invoked.	"In determining whether the Act of State Doctrine applies, must courts be mindful of their obligation to decide cases and controversies properly presented to them?"
3826	Mujica v. Occidental Petroleum Corp., 381 F.Supp.2d 1164, 1171 (C.D.Cal., 2005)	4	"Act of state doctrine" in its traditional formulation precludes courts of this country from inquiring into validity of public acts recognized foreign sovereign power committed within its own territory.	Act of state doctrine [4] "The act of state doctrine in its traditional formulation precludes the courts of this country from inquiring into the validity of the public acts a recognized foreign sovereign power committed within its own territory."	Does the act of state doctrine in its traditional formulation preclude US courts from inquiring into validity of public acts?
3828	United States v. Louisiana, 470 U.S. 93, 101-102 (U.S.La., 1969)	2	Three factors to be taken into consideration in determining whether a body of water is an historic bay are the exercise of authority over the area by the claiming nation, the continuity of that exercise of authority, and the acquiescence of foreign nations.	The Court also has noted that there appears to be general agreement that at least three factors *102 are to be taken into consideration in determining whether a body of water is a historic bay: (1) the exercise of authority over the area by the claiming nation; (2) the continuity of this exercise of authority; and (3) the acquiescence of foreign nations.	What are the three factors to be taken into consideration in determining whether a body of water is a historic bay?
3830	French v. Banco Nacional de Cuba, 23 N.Y.2d 46, 63, 242 N.E.2d 704 (1968)	20	The control of national currency and of foreign exchange is an essential governmental function; the state which coins money has power to prevent its outflow, and same reasoning is applicable to imposition of restraints upon transactions in foreign exchange.	In short, the control of national currency and of foreign exchange is an essential governmental function; the state which coins money has "power to prevent its outflow" (Ling Su Fan v. United States, 218 U. S. 302, 311; see, also, Nortz v. United States, 294 U. S. 317, 330, supra); and, as the court observed in Perry v. United States (294 U. S. 330, 356, supra.), "[t]he same reasoning is applicable to the imposition of restraints upon transactions in foreign exchange."	Is the control of national currency and of foreign exchange an essential governmental function?

3833	Doe v. Qi, 349 F.Supp.2d 1258, 1289 (N.D.Cal.,2004)	13	Act of state doctrine constitutes a prudential limitation upon the exercise of the court's power to adjudicate the legality of the acts of a foreign state or its agents.	Rather, it constitutes a prudential limitation upon the exercise of the court's power to adjudicate the legality of the acts of a foreign state or its agents.	Does the act of state doctrine constitute a prudential limitation upon the exercise of the court's power to adjudicate the legality of the acts of a foreign state or its agents?
3835	Moscow Fire Ins. Co. of Moscow, Russia v. Bank of New York & Tr. Co., 161 Misc. 903, 915, 294 N.Y.S. 648 (Sup. Ct.), aff'd, 253 A.D. 710, 1 N.Y.S.2d 640 (App. Div. 1937), and aff'd, 253 A.D. 710, 1 N.Y.S.2d 641 (App. Div. 1937), and aff'd, 253 A.D. 644, 3 N.Y.S.2d 653 (App. Div. 1938), aff'd sub nom. Moscow Fire Ins. Co. v. Bank of New York & Tr. Co., 280 N.Y. 286, 20 N.E.2d 758 (1939), aff'd sub nom. United States v. Moscow Fire Ins Co, 309 U.S. 624, 60 S. Ct. 725, 84 L. Ed. 986 (1940)	11	Purposes and objectives of provision in Constitution of Soviet government may not be overridden by construction which would defeat fundamental aim and object of Constitution and purposes behind it and ignore principles of state ownership and state control of property and use thereof by state which underlie Constitution.	Purposes and objectives of a constitutional provision may not be overridden by a construction which would defeat the fundamental aim and object of this Constitution and the purposes behind it and ignore the principles of State ownership and State control of property and the use thereof by the State which underlie it.	Can purposes and objectives of provisions in a State's Constitution be overridden by construction?
3836	Miller v. U.S., 921 F.Supp. 494, 499 (N.D.Ohio,1996)	14	Act-of-state doctrine does not apply to challenges in United States courts to validity or legality of acts of United States government. Restatement (Third) of the Foreign Relations Law of the United States S 443 comment.	The act-of-state doctrine "does not apply to challenges in courts in the United States to the validity or legality of acts of the United States government." Restatement (Third) of the Foreign Relations Law of the United States 443, comm.	Does the act-of-state doctrine apply to challenges in United States courts to validity or legality of acts of United States government?
3837	Provincial Gov't of Marinduque v. Placer Dome, Inc., 582 F.3d 1083, 1089 (C.A.9 (Nev.),2009)	15	Act of state issues only arise when a court must decide, that is, when the outcome of the case turns upon, the effect of official action by a foreign sovereign; when that question is not in the case, neither is the act of state doctrine.	The Supreme Court's leading contemporary act of state decision-W.S. Kirkpatrick-encapsulated the doctrine in this way: "Act of state issues only arise when a court must decide-that is, when the outcome of the case turns upon- the effect of official action by a foreign sovereign. When that question is not in the case, neither is the act of state doctrine."	Do act-of-state issues arise only when the outcome of a case turns upon the effect of an official action by a foreign sovereign?
3839	Nesvig v. Nesvig, 712 N.W.2d 299, 307 (N.D.,2006)	13	Any order sustaining a motion in limine and excluding evidence is interlocutory in nature and subject to change by the district court during the course of the trial.	Therefore, any order sustaining a motion in limine and excluding evidence is interlocutory in nature and subject to change by the district court during the course of the trial.	Is any order sustaining a motion in limine and excluding evidence interlocutory in nature subject to change by the district court during the course of the trial?

3840	Hawkes v. Casino Queen, Inc., 336 Ill. App. 3d 994, 1005 (2003)	13	The circuit court is vested with broad discretion to grant a motion in limine as part of its inherent power to admit or exclude evidence.	The circuit court is vested with broad discretion to grant a motion in limine "as part of its inherent power to admit or exclude evidence."	Is the circuit court vested with broad discretion to grant a motion in limine as part of its inherent power to admit or exclude evidence?
3842	Luke v. Omega Consulting Grp., LC, 194 N.C. App. 745, 750, 670 S.E.2d 604, 609 (2009)	5	A "motion in limine" seeks pretrial determination of the admissibility of evidence proposed to be introduced at trial and is recognized in both civil and criminal proceedings.	A motion in limine seeks "pretrial determination of the admissibility of evidence proposed to be introduced at trial" and is recognized in both civil and criminal proceedings.	"Does a ""motion in limine"" seek pretrial determination of the admissibility of evidence proposed to be introduced at trial and is recognized in both civil and criminal proceedings?"
3844	Austin v. Shampine, 948 S.W.2d 900, 912 (Tex.App. Texarkana,1997)	22	When no objection is made to violation of motion in limine, trial court may assume moving party has determined not to oppose introduction of evidence.	When no objection is made to a violation of a motion in limine, the trial court may assume the moving party has determined not to oppose the introduction of the evidence.	"In the event there is no objection made as to a violation of motion in limine, may a trial court assume a party has determined not to object to the introduction of evidence?"
3845	Inner City Wrecking Co. v. Bilsky, 51 Ohio App.2d 220, 225–26 (Ohio App. 1977)	4	If trial judge requires that pretrial statements be filed, and also requires that counsel exchange reports of expert witnesses expected to be called by each party, but a party's pretrial statement does not indicate full compliance with the requirement that a report of its expert witness be furnished, only then may trial court impose sanction that expert witness will not be permitted to testify at trial. Rules of Common Pleas- Cuyahoga County, rule 21, pt. I(A).	If the judge does require that Pretrial Statements be filed, and also requires that counsel exchange reports of expert witnesses expected to be called by each party, but a party's Pretrial Statement does not indicate full compliance with the requirement that a report of its expert witness be furnished, only then may the court impose the sanction written into Local Rule 21, Part I(A), that the expert witness "will not be permitted to testify at the trial."	Is the failure to file a responsive pre-trial memorandum grounds for the imposition of sanctions?
3847	Halifax Paper Co. v. Roanoke Rapids Sanitary Dist., 232 N.C. 421, 429 (1950)	6	The fact that a business or enterprise is, generally speaking, a public utility, does not make every service performed or rendered by it a public service and it may act in a private capacity as distinguished from its public capacity, and, in so doing, is subject to the same rules as a private person.	The fact that a business or enterprise is, generally speaking, a public utility, does not make every service performed or rendered by it a public service, but it may act in a private capacity as distinguished from its public capacity, and in so doing is subject to the same rules as a private person.'	Is a public utility subject to the same rules as a private person when it acts in a private capacity?
3848	Mayer v. First Nat. Bank of Or., 260 Or. 119, 130 (Or. 1971)	3	A surety who is compelled to pay the debt of his principal becomes subrogated only to rights and remedies of creditor which are in existence immediately prior to the payment.	A surety who is compelled to pay the debt of his principal becomes subrogated only to rights and remedies of the creditor which are in existence immediately prior to the payment.	Does a surety who is compelled to pay the debt of his principal become subrogated only to rights and remedies of a creditor which are in existence immediately prior to the payment?

3849	National Union Fire Ins. Co. of Pittsburgh, PA v. Keck, Mahin & Cate, 154 S.W.3d 714, 723 (Tex. App. 2004)	9	A legal-malpractice claim does not arise until the client discovers or should have discovered through the exercise of reasonable care and diligence the facts establishing the elements of a cause of action.	This means a legal- malpractice claim does not arise "until the client discovers or should have discovered through the exercise of reasonable care and diligence the facts establishing the elements of a cause of action." Id.	Does a legal-malpractice claim arise until the client discovers or should have discovered through the exercise of reasonable care and diligence the facts establishing the elements of a cause of action?
3850	Brinkmann v. Common School Dist. No. 27 of Gasconade Cnty., 238 S.W.2d 1, 5 (Mo.App. 1951)	3	A cause of action accrues at time when its owner may legally invoke aid of a proper tribunal to enforce his demand; when he has a present right to institute and maintain an action or suit.	A cause of action accrues at the time when its owner may legally invoke the aid of a proper tribunal to enforce his demand; when he has a present right to institute and maintain an action or suit.'	Does a cause of action accrue at the time when its owner has a present right to institute and maintain an action or suit?
3851	In re Nichols, 440 F.3d 850, 854 (6th Cir. 2006)	2	While bankruptcy laws have long been construed to authorize impairment of contractual obligations, power of bankruptcy laws is subject to the Fifth Amendment's prohibition against taking property without just compensation. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Bankruptcy laws have long been construed to authorize the impairment of contractual obligations. United States v. Security Indus. Bank, 459 U.S. 70, 74, 103 S.Ct. 407, 74 L.Ed.2d 235 (1982) (citing Hanover Nat'l Bank v. Moyses, 186 U.S. 181, 188, 22 S.Ct. 857, 46 L.Ed. 1113 (1902)). The power of the bankruptcy laws, however, is subject to the Fifth Amendment's prohibition against taking property without just compensation.	Is the power of the bankruptcy laws subject to the Fifth Amendment's prohibition against taking property without just compensation?
3852	Shewfelt v. United States, 104 F.3d 1333, 1337 (C.A.Fed., 1997)	3	Where entity other than United States took action that resulted in injury to private property United States may be held liable for a taking only if its involvement is sufficiently direct and substantial to require compensation under Fifth Amendment. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Where, as here, an entity other than the United States took the action that resulted in the injury to private property, the United States may be held liable for a taking only if its involvement "is sufficiently direct and substantial to require compensation under the Fifth Amendment."	Will there be a taking if the government's involvement is sufficiently direct and substantial to require compensation?
3853	Doe v. Exxon Mobil Corporation, 69 F.Supp.3d 75, 87 (D.D.C., 2014)	7	"Act of state doctrine" requires American courts to presume the validity of an official act of a foreign sovereign performed within its own territory.	The act of state doctrine "requires American courts to presume the validity of an official act of a foreign sovereign performed within its own territory."	Does the act of state doctrine require American courts to presume the validity of an official act of a foreign sovereign performed within its own territory?

3854	World Wide Mins., Ltd. v. Republic of Kazakhstan, 296 F.3d 1154, 1165 (D.C. Cir. 2002)	8	When it applies, the act of state doctrine serves as a rule of decision for the courts of the United States, which requires that, in the process of deciding a case, the acts of foreign sovereigns taken within their own jurisdictions shall be deemed valid.	When it does apply, the doctrine serves as “ ‘a rule of decision for the courts of this country,’ ” id. at 405, 110 S.Ct. at 704 (quoting Ricaud v. American Metal Co., 246 U.S. 304, 310, 38 S.Ct. 312, 314, 62 L.Ed. 733 (1918)), which requires that, “in the process of deciding [a case], the acts of foreign sovereigns taken within their own jurisdictions shall be deemed valid,” id. at 409, 110 S.Ct. at 707.	"When it applies, does the act of state doctrine serve as a rule of decision for the courts of the United States?"
3855	Eckert Intern., Inc. v. Government of Sovereign Democratic Republic of Fiji, 834 F.Supp. 167, 171 (E.D.Va.,1993)	6	Act of state doctrine is typically characterized by two elements: act undertaken by foreign state must be public, and act must be completed within sovereign's territory.	The act of state doctrine is typically characterized by two elements, neither of which is present here. First, the act undertaken by the foreign state must be public, and second, the act must be completed within the sovereign's territory.	"Is the act of state doctrine typically characterized by an act undertaken by foreign state, which must be public, and must the act be completed within the sovereign's territory?"
3856	In re Philippine Nat'l. Bank, 397 F.3d 768, 773 (9th Cir. 2005)	3	Although the act of state doctrine is normally inapplicable to court judgments arising from private litigation, there is no inflexible rule preventing a judgment sought by a foreign government from qualifying as "act of state."	Although the act of state doctrine is normally inapplicable to court judgments arising from private litigation, there is no inflexible rule preventing a judgment sought by a foreign government from qualifying as an act of state.	"Is there an inflexible rule preventing a judgment sought by a foreign government from qualifying as ""act of state""?"
3857	National Coalition Government of Union of Burma v. Unocal, Inc., 176 F.R.D. 329, 353 (C.D.Cal.,1997)	37	Where policies underlying act of state doctrine militate against its application, doctrine should not apply, even to claims that foreign government's actions are or were invalid.	As noted above, where the policies underlying the doctrine militate against its application, the act of state doctrine should not apply, even to claims that a foreign government's actions are or were invalid.	"Where policies underlying the act of state doctrine militate against its application, should the doctrine apply, even to claims that foreign government's actions are or were invalid?"
3858	Ramirez de Arellano v. Weinberger, 745 F.2d 1500, 1533, (C.A.D.C.,1984)	34	Act of state doctrine prevents judicial relief for certain claims that would require court to pass on validity of acts of foreign state.	The act of state doctrine prevents judicial relief for certain claims that would require the court to pass on the validity of acts of a foreign state.	Does the act of state doctrine prevent judicial relief for certain claims that would require court to pass on validity of acts of foreign state?
3859	In re Grand Jury Proceedings Bank of Nova Scotia, 740 F.2d 817, 831 (Fla. 1984)	9	Act of state doctrine is primarily designed to avoid impingement by judiciary upon conduct of foreign policy by Executive Branch; it is aimed at preventing judicial interference with conduct of foreign relations by questioning validity of acts of foreign sovereigns in context of a civil suit.	The act of state doctrine is primarily designed to avoid impingement by the judiciary upon the conduct of foreign policy by the Executive Branch. It is aimed at preventing judicial interference with the conduct of foreign relations by questioning the validity of the acts of foreign sovereigns in the context of a civil suit.	Is the act of state doctrine primarily designed to avoid impingement by judiciary upon conduct of foreign policy by Executive Branch?

3860	Kruman v. Christie's Intern. PLC, 129 F.Supp.2d 620, 626 (S.D.N.Y.,2001)	3	The power of the United States to prescribe a rule of conduct for extraterritorial transactions, its "prescriptive jurisdiction," depends, generally, on those transactions having a substantial effect within United States territory. Restatement (Third) of Foreign Relations Law SS 402, 402(1)(c).	The power of the United States to prescribe a rule of conduct for extraterritorial transactions, its prescriptive jurisdiction, depends, so far as is relevant here, on those transactions having a substantial effect within U.S. territory.	Does the power of the United States to prescribe a rule of conduct for extraterritorial transactions depend on those transactions having a substantial effect within United States territory?
3861	Environmental Tectonics v. W.S. Kirkpatrick, Inc., 847 F.2d 1052, 1057-58 (C.A.3 (N.J.),1988)	1	Under the "act of state doctrine," courts will refrain from judging the validity of a foreign state's governmental acts in regard to matters within that country's borders.	Under the doctrine, the courts of this country will refrain from judging the validity of a foreign state's governmental *1058 acts in regard to matters within that country's borders.	"Under the ""act of state doctrine,"" will courts refrain from judging the validity of a foreign state's governmental acts in regard to matters within that country's borders?"
3862	Hargrove v. Underwriters at Lloyd's, London, 937 F. Supp. 595, 600 (S.D. Tex. 1996)	1	"Act of state doctrine" is judge-made prudential rule that prevents United States courts from sitting in judgment on official acts of foreign sovereigns.	The act of state doctrine is a "judge-made prudential rule that prevents United States courts from sitting in judgment on the official acts of foreign sovereigns."	Is the Act of state doctrine a judge-made prudential rule that prevents United States courts from sitting in judgment on official acts of foreign sovereigns?
3863	Lernout & Hauspie Speech Products, N.V. v. Stonington Partners, Inc., 268 B.R. 395, 399 (D.Del.,2001)	4	Doctrine of international comity requires domestic courts to give effect to executive, legislative, and judicial acts of foreign sovereign.	The doctrine of international comity requires a domestic court to give effect to executive, legislative, and judicial acts of a foreign sovereign.	"Does the doctrine of international comity require domestic courts to give effect to executive, legislative, and judicial acts of foreign sovereign?"
3864	Du Daobin v. Cisco Systems, Inc., 2 F.Supp.3d 717, 725 (D.Md., 2014)	8	The act of state doctrine is premised on the principle that every sovereign state is bound to respect the independence of every other sovereign state, and the courts of one country will not sit in judgment on the acts of the government of another, done within its own territory.	The act of state doctrine is premised on the principle that "[e]very sovereign state is bound to respect the independence of every other sovereign state, and the courts of one country will not sit in judgment on the acts of the government of another, done within its own territory."	"According to act of state doctrine, is every sovereign bound to respect independence of every other sovereign state?"
3866	Hamilton v. Thomasville Med. Assocs., 187 N.C. App. 789, 792 (2007)	4	The court's ruling on a motion in limine is not a final ruling on the admissibility of the evidence in question, but only interlocutory or preliminary in nature, and therefore, the court's ruling on the motion is subject to modification during the course of the trial.	Moreover, the court's ruling is not a final ruling on the admissibility of the evidence in question, but only interlocutory or preliminary in nature. Therefore, the court's ruling on a motion in limine is subject to modification during the course of the trial.	"Is the court's ruling on a motion in limine a final ruling on the admissibility of the evidence in question, or is it subject to modification during the course of the trial?"
3867	Reese v. Proppe, 3 Ohio App.3d 103, 107 (Ohio App.,1981)	7	An order depriving a party of his or her day in court is too harsh a sanction for that party's failure to abide by an order of court which merely regulates procedure prior to trial.	An order depriving a party of his or her day in court is too harsh a sanction for that party's failure to abide by an order of the court which merely regulates procedure prior to trial.	Is an order depriving a party of his or her day in court too harsh a sanction for that party's failure to abide by an order of the court which merely regulates procedure prior to trial?

3868	In re Schubert, 437 B.R. 787, 792 (Bkrtcy.D.Md.,2010)	2	Under Maryland law, as soon as surety pays the debt of principal debtor, equity subrogates him to place of creditor that is paid and gives him every right, lien and, security to which creditor could have resorted for payment of debt.	So soon as a surety pays the debt of a principal debtor, equity subrogates him to the place of the creditor and gives him every right, lien, and security to which the creditor could have resorted for the payment of his debt.'	"Upon paying the debt, is a surety, as a matter of law, subrogated to all the creditor's rights against the principal debtor and is it entitled to all benefits derivable from any security of the principal debtor that may be in the creditor's hands?"
3869	Hand v. Pettitt, 258 Ga. App. 170, 171 (2002)	1	The grant of a motion in limine excluding evidence is a judicial power which must be exercised with great care, because it seeks to preclude by pretrial evidentiary ruling on the admission of evidence, without the trial court having any evidentiary foundation for the ruling in the context of the trial.	The grant of a motion in limine excluding evidence is a judicial power which must be exercised with great care, because it seeks to preclude by pre-trial evidentiary ruling on the admission of evidence without the trial court having any evidentiary foundation for the ruling in the context of the trial.	May a motion in limine be used when the movant seeks a ruling on the admissibility of evidence prior to trial?
3871	San Diego Metro. Transit Dev. Bd. v. Handlery Hotel, Inc., 73 Cal. App. 4th 517, 520, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 473 (1999)	20	Without a vested, legally enforceable property interest, there is no basis for compensation in an inverse condemnation proceeding for loss of future business. West's Ann.Cal. Const. Art. 1, S 19.	Without a vested, legally enforceable property interest, there is no basis for compensation in an inverse condemnation proceeding for loss of future business.	"Without a vested, legally enforceable property interest, is there a basis for compensation in an inverse condemnation proceeding for loss of future business?"
3872	State v. Moore, 215 So. 3d 951, 962 (La.App. 5 Cir., 2017)	9	To support a conviction for attempted forcible rape, the State must prove that defendant had the specific intent to commit forcible rape and that he did an act for the purpose of, and tending directly toward, the accomplishment of his objective. La. Rev. Stat. Ann. SS 14:27, 14:42.1.	To support a conviction for attempted forcible rape, the State must prove that defendant had the specific intent to commit forcible rape and that he did an act for the purpose of, and tending directly toward, the accomplishment of his objective. See La. R.S. 14:27 and 14:42.1.	Is specific intent of the defendant required to be proved in an attempted rape conviction?
3873	Burke v. Insurance Auto Auctions Corp., 169 S.W.3d 771, 776 (Tex.App. Dallas,2005)	13	If the act complained of constitutes a legal injury to a plaintiff, the wrong is completed and the cause of action accrues, for statute of limitations purposes, from the time the act is committed, even where little, if any, actual damage occurs immediately on commission of the tort.	If the act complained of constitutes a legal injury to a plaintiff, the wrong is completed and the cause of action accrues from the time the act is committed, even where little, if any, actual damage occurs immediately on commission of the tort.	Does a tort cause of action accrue until an injury is sustained?

3875	Rodriguez v. Swartz, 111 F.Supp.3d 1025, 1035 (D.Ariz., 2015)	5	Three factors are relevant to determine the extraterritorial application of the Constitution: (1) the citizenship and status of the claimant, (2) the nature of the location where the constitutional violation occurred, and (3) the practical obstacles inherent in enforcing the claimed right, including but not limited to the consequences for United States actions abroad, the substantive rules that would govern the claim, and the likelihood that a favorable ruling would lead to friction with another country's government.	The Supreme Court stated three factors relevant to determining the extraterritorial application of the Constitution (specifically the Suspension Clause) in Boumediene : (1) the citizenship and status of the claimant, (2) the nature of the location where the constitutional violation occurred, and (3) the practical obstacles inherent in enforcing the claimed right. 553 U.S. at 766-71, 128 S.Ct. 2229. The relevant obstacles included, but were not limited to, the consequences for U.S. actions abroad, the substantive rules that would govern the claim, and the likelihood that a favorable ruling would lead to friction with another country's government.	Which three factors are relevant to determine the extraterritorial application of the Constitution?
3876	eBay, Inc. v. Bidder's Edge, Inc., 100 F.Supp.2d 1058, 1069-70 (N.D.Cal., 2000)	8	Under California law, in order to prevail on claim for trespass based on accessing computer system, plaintiff must establish: (1) defendant intentionally and without authorization interfered with plaintiff's possessory interest in computer system; and (2) defendant's unauthorized use proximately resulted in damage to plaintiff.	In order to prevail on a claim for trespass based on accessing a computer system, the plaintiff must establish: (1) defendant intentionally and without authorization *1070 interfered with plaintiff's possessory interest in the computer system; and (2) defendant's unauthorized use proximately resulted in damage to plaintiff.	Can unauthorized access to a computer system be considered a trespass?
3877	Downs v. Lyles, 41 So.3d 86, 92 (Ala.Civ.App.,2009)	6	Punitive damages are available to a plaintiff in a trespass action, even if only nominal damages are awarded, if the trespass is attended by rudeness, wantonness, recklessness, or an insulting manner or is accompanied by circumstances of fraud and malice, oppression, aggravation, or gross negligence.	Punitive damages are also available to a plaintiff in a trespass action, even if only nominal damages are awarded, "if the trespass is attended by rudeness, wantonness, recklessness or an insulting manner or is accompanied by circumstances of fraud and malice, oppression, aggravation, or gross negligence."	Can punitive damages be awarded in a trespass action?
3878	Murray v. San Jacinto Agency, Inc., 800 S.W.2d 826, 828 (Tex.,1990)	3	Cause of action generally accrues at time when facts come into existence which authorize claimant to seek judicial remedy, for purposes of application of statute of limitations.	For the purposes of application of statute of limitations, a cause of action generally accrues at the time when facts come into existence which authorize a claimant to seek a judicial remedy.	Does a cause of action accrue when facts have come into existence that authorize a claimant to seek a judicial remedy?

3879	Krusi v. S.J. Amoroso Constr. Co., 81 Cal. App. 4th 995, 996, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 294 (2000), as modified (June 29, 2000), as modified (July 18, 2000)	1	Cause of action for damage to real property accrues when the defendant's act causes immediate and permanent injury to the property or, put it another way, when there is actual and appreciable harm to the property.	A cause of action for damage to real property accrues when the defendant's act causes immediate and permanent injury to the property or when there is actual and appreciable harm to the property.	Does a cause of action for damage to real property accrue when the defendant's act causes immediate and permanent injury to the property?
3880	Callahan v. Com., 416 Mass. 1010, 1010, 625 N.E.2d 547, 548 (1994)	1	In absence of order from judge, superior court clerk should not have refused to docket defendant's notice of appeal from denial of his motion to revise or revoke his amended sentence; clerk acts as ministerial officer of courts who is subject to direction of courts in performance of his duties, one of which is acceptance and filing of papers pertaining to litigation.	The clerk acts as "a ministerial officer of the courts ... [who] is subject to the direction of the courts in the performance of his duties." Patrick v. Dunbar, 294 Mass. 101, 104, 200 N.E. 896 (1936). One such duty is the acceptance and filing of papers pertaining to litigation. In the absence of an order from a judge, the clerk should not have refused to docket the petitioner's notice of appeal.	Is a clerk of courts subject to the direction of the courts in the performance of his duties?
3881	City of Tyler v. Likes, 962 S.W.2d 489, 504-05 (Tex., 1997)	36	Person's property may be taken, damaged or destroyed by government, and therefore require compensation under State Constitution, if injury results from either construction of public works or their subsequent maintenance and operation. Vernon's Ann.Texas Const. Art. 1, S 17.	A person's property may be "taken, damaged or destroyed" and therefore *505 require compensation if an injury results from either the construction of public works or their subsequent maintenance and operation.	Can there be a claim of compensation if an injury results from either the construction of public works or their subsequent maintenance and operation?
3882	Bagford v. Ephraim City, 904 P.2d 1095, 1098 (Utah,1995)	5	Under general principles of eminent domain, property is not limited to land or improvements thereon; every species of property that public needs may require, including legal and equitable rights of every description, is liable to be appropriated.	Under general principles of eminent domain, property is not limited to land or improvements thereon, id., but " '[e]very species of property which the public needs may require, ... [including] legal and equitable rights of every description-[is] liable to be thus appropriated.'	"Are every species of property which the public needs, liable to be appropriated?"
3883	Dodge Data & Analytics LLC v. iSqFt, Inc., 183 F.Supp.3d 855, 874 (S.D.Ohio, 2016)	43	Under Ohio law, one who commits a trespass to a chattel is subject to liability to the possessor of the chattel if, but only if: (1) he dispossesses the other of the chattel; (2) the chattel is impaired as to its condition, quality, or value; (3) the possessor is deprived of the use of the chattel for a substantial time; or (4) bodily harm is caused to the possessor, or harm is caused to some person or thing in which the possessor has a legally protected interest. Restatement (Second) of Torts S 218.	One who commits a trespass to a chattel is subject to liability to the possessor of the chattel if, but only if, (a) he dispossesses the other of the chattel, or (b) the chattel is impaired as to its condition, quality, or value, or (c) the possessor is deprived of the use of the chattel for a substantial time, or (d) bodily harm is caused to the possessor, or harm is caused to some person or thing in which the possessor has a legally protected interest.	Can the impairment of the chattel result in liability for trespass to chattel?

3884	Zebra v. Sch. Dist. of City of Pittsburgh, 449 Pa. 432, 437, 296 A.2d 748, 750 (1972)	4	Courts should not function as super school boards and should not interfere with the discretionary exercise of a school board's power unless the action was based on a misconception of law, ignorance through lack of inquiry into facts necessary to form an intelligent judgment or the result of arbitrary will or caprice.	Courts are further restrained, when dealing with matters of school policy, by the long-established and salutary rule that the courts should not function as super school boards. We will not interfere with the discretionary exercise of a school board's power unless the action was based on 'a misconception of law, ignorance through lack of inquiry into facts necessary to form an intelligent judgment or the result of arbitrary will or caprice.'	Can courts interfere with a school district's discretion regarding school policy?
3886	In re Am. Freight Sys., 179 B.R. 952, 963 (Kan. 1995)	25	Fifth Amendment takings clause prevents government from forcing small segment of people to bear burdens that should in fairness be borne by public as whole. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The Takings Clause prevents the government from forcing a small segment of people to bear burdens which should in fairness be borne by the public as a whole.	Does the Takings Clause prevent the government from forcing a small segment of people to bear burdens which should in fairness be borne by the public as a whole?
3887	T. M. Zimmerman Co. v. Pennsylvania Pub. Util. Comm'n, 195 Pa. Super. 77, 85, 169 A.2d 322, 326 (1961)	2	Type of service contemplated at time of original application is a significant consideration in determining extent of authority granted by certificate of public convenience.	In determining the extent of the authority granted in a certificate of public convenience, the type of service contemplated at the time of the original application is a significant consideration.	Is the type of service contemplated at the time of the original application where the extent of authority granted in a certificate of public convenience is to be determined?
3890	Rogers v. Allis Chalmers Mfg. Co., 85 Ohio App. 421, 424 (Ohio App. 1949)	3	Right to participate in compensation fund is wholly statutory and is not dependent on principles of common law whereby master or principal is sought to be held liable for torts of a servant or agent upon application of doctrine of respondeat superior.	The right to participate in the Workmen's Compensation Fund is wholly statutory, and is in no way dependent upon the principles of the common law, whereby a master or principal is sought to be held liable for the torts of a servant or agent upon application of the doctrine of respondeat superior.	Is there a right to participate in the workers compensation fund if that right is not found in the workers compensation statute?
3892	Edward Balf Co. v. Town of East Granby, 207 A.2d 58, 60, 152 Conn. 319, 323 (Conn. 1965)	2	Right to relief in action for declaratory judgment or injunction, since remedy sought is prospective, is determined by situation which has developed at time of trial, not by that existing at time action was begun.	On the other hand, in the case of actions praying for a declaratory judgment or injunctive relief, since the remedy sought is prospective, the right to such relief is determined by the situation which has developed at the time of trial and not by that existing at the time the action was begun.	Is the right to relief in an action for declaratory judgment or injunction determined by the situation which has developed at the time of trial?

3894	Haney v. N. Dakota Workers Comp. Bureau, 518 N.W.2d 195, 201 (N.D. 1994)	6	Regardless of its value to employers or employees, legislative decision to extend workers' compensation coverage to any group is a matter of legislative grace, and because the legislature created the remedy, it can impose reasonable limits on it.	Regardless of its value to employers or employees, a legislative decision to extend workers compensation coverage to any group is "a matter of legislative grace." Because the legislature created the remedy of workers compensation benefits, it can impose reasonable limits on it.	Is the legislative decision to extend workers compensation coverage to any group a matter of legislative grace?
3895	Rosicrucian Fellowship v. Rosicrucian Fellowship Nonsectarian Church, 39 Cal. 2d 121, 122, 245 P.2d 481 (1952)	5	In action in nature of equitable proceeding, court may consider facts as they existed at time of trial so that interest of justice may be subserved.	In an action in the nature of an equitable proceeding, the court may consider the facts as they existed at the time of trial so that the interests of justice may be subserved.	"In action in nature of equitable proceeding, may a court consider facts as they existed at time of trial so that interest of justice may be subserved?"
3896	Civil Aeronautics Board of Civil Aeronautics Authority v. Canadian Colonial Airways, 41 F.Supp. 1006, 1008 (D.C.N.Y. 1940)	4	Equity always speaks as of the date of its decree, and facts intermediate the filing date of the complaint and the time of trial, are, in consequence, relevant and material to main issue.	Furthermore, equity always speaks as of the date of its decree, and facts intermediate the filing date of the complaint and the time of trial are, in consequence, relevant and material to the main issue.	"Since equity always speaks as of the date of its decree, are facts about the filing date of the complaint relevant and material to the main issue?"
3897	Countryside Developers, Inc. v. Peterson, 620 N.W.2d 124, 129, 9 Neb.App. 798, 804 (Neb.App., 2000)	7	Relief ordinarily granted in equity is such as the nature of the case, the law, and the facts demand, not at the beginning of the litigation, but at the time the decree is entered.	The relief ordinarily granted in equity is such as the nature of the case, the law, and the facts demand, not at the beginning of the litigation, but at the time the decree is entered.	"Is relief ordinarily granted in equity such as the nature of the case, the law, and the facts demand, not at the beginning of the litigation, but at the time the decree is entered?"
3899	In re Sheena B., 83 A.D.3d 1056, 1057, 922 N.Y.S.2d 176 (2011)	1	Ordinarily a party cannot be compelled to litigate and, absent special circumstances, party's motion for voluntary discontinuance should be granted; however, particular prejudice to the opposing party or other improper consequences flowing from discontinuance may however make denial of discontinuance permissible or, at times, obligatory. McKinney's CPLR 3217(b).	"[O]rdinarily a party cannot be compelled to litigate and, absent special circumstances, discontinuance should be granted. Particular prejudice to the [child] or other improper consequences flowing from discontinuance may however make denial of discontinuance permissible or . . . [at times] obligatory"	Should a party's motion for voluntary discontinuance be granted absent special circumstances?
3901	Tucker v. Tucker, 55 N.Y.2d 378, 383, 434 N.E.2d 1050 (1982)	1	While authority of court to grant or to deny an application by a party seeking voluntarily to discontinue litigation is within its sound discretion, ordinarily a party cannot be compelled to litigate and, absent special circumstances, discontinuance should be granted. McKinney's CPLR 3217(b); McKinney's DRL S 236, Pts. A, B.	While the authority of a court to grant or to deny an application made to it pursuant to CPLR 3217 (subd [b]) by a party seeking voluntarily to discontinue litigation is within its sound discretion, ordinarily a party cannot be compelled to litigate and, absent special circumstances, discontinuance should be granted (4 Weinstein-Korn-Miller, NY Civ Prac, par 3217.06).	"Can a party be compelled to litigate and, absent special circumstances, should discontinuance be granted?"

3902	State, Dep't of Health & Welfare v. Housel, 140 Idaho 96, 102, 90 P.3d 321, 327 (2004)	19	Generally, voluntary dismissal under statute providing for dismissal by notice or by stipulation of parties is a matter of right; plaintiff need not obtain a court's consent to do so. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(a)(1).	The first and second methods, covered by I.R.C.P. 41(a)(1), provide for dismissal by notice or by stipulation of the parties. The third method, contained in I.C.R. 41(a)(2), provides for dismissal by order of the court. " 'Generally, voluntary dismissal under I.C.R. 41(a)(1) is a matter of right; the plaintiff need not obtain the court's consent to do so.' "	Is a voluntary dismissal under statute providing for dismissal by notice or by stipulation of parties a matter of right and plaintiff need not obtain a court's consent to do so?
3903	State ex rel. Mott v. Board of Education of Darke Cnty., 37 N.E.2d 660, 665 (Ohio App. 1941)	3	In exercising extraordinary power of mandamus, the court is not limited to a consideration of the facts and conditions as they existed at time the proceeding was initiated, but rather it should take into consideration facts arising at time it determines whether to issue a peremptory writ.	When a court is asked to exercise the extraordinary power of mandamus, it is not limited to a consideration of facts and conditions as they existed at the time the proceeding was initiated, but should take into consideration the facts and conditions existing at the time it determines whether a peremptory writ should issue.	"In a mandamus proceeding, must a court consider facts and conditions existing at the time it determines whether to issue a peremptory writ?"
3904	Kreeger v. Drummond, 235 N.C. 8, 13, 68 S.E.2d 800, 804 (1952)	3	The constitutional provision requiring maintenance of one or more public schools in each school district for at least six months in every year does not apply to high schools. Const. art. 9, S 3.	[3] The Constitution of this State, Article IX, section 3, requires the maintenance of one or more public schools in each school district for at least six months in every year, but this mandate does not apply to high schools. Elliott v. State Board of Equalization, 203 N.C.	Does the constitutional provision requiring maintenance of one or more public schools in each school district for at least six months in every year apply to high schools?
3905	Tunny v. Erie Ins. Co., 790 N.E.2d 1009, 1014 (Ind.App., 2003)	3	The injured employee is entitled to the worker's compensation benefits regardless of whether or not any action is taken against the third party tort-feasor, a settlement or judgment is acquired by the injured employee, or the injured employee is able to collect against the tort-feasor.	More importantly, as alluded to by our Supreme Court in Spangler, Jennings & Dougherty P.C., the injured employee is entitled to the worker's compensation benefits regardless of whether or not any action is taken against the third party tortfeasor, a settlement or judgment is acquired by the injured employee, or the injured employee is able to collect against the tortfeasor.	Is an injured employee entitled to the worker's compensation benefits regardless of whether or not a settlement or judgment is acquired by the injured employee?

3906	Singer Co. v. Tappan Co., 403 F. Supp. 322, 329 (D.N.J., 1975)	2	In interpreting scope of arbitration clause, federal courts are not to apply traditional rules of construction, but, rather, rule requires clearly expressed intent not to arbitrate issue before such issue can be ruled one for judicial determination; and, if issue is doubtful one, it is to be resolved in favor of arbitration. 9 U.S.C.A. SS 1-14.	What emerges then is this principle, that in interpreting the scope of an arbitration clause, that is, in endeavoring to determine what the parties intended would be arbitrable, federal courts are not to apply the traditional rules of construction, but rather a federal rule that seemingly requires a clearly expressed intent not to arbitrate an issue to before such issue can be ruled one for judicial determination; and, further, that if the issue is a doubtful one, the doubt is to be resolved in favor of arbitration.	How do courts interpret the scope of an arbitration clause to determine what the parties intended to be arbitrable?
3908	Tucker v. Tucker, 55 N.Y.2d 378, 383, 434 N.E.2d 1050 (1982)	1	While authority of court to grant or to deny an application by a party seeking voluntarily to discontinue litigation is within its sound discretion, ordinarily a party cannot be compelled to litigate and, absent special circumstances, discontinuance should be granted. McKinney's CPLR 3217(b); McKinney's DRL S 236, Pts. A, B.	While the authority of a court to grant or to deny an application made to it pursuant to CPLR 3217 (subd [b]) by a party seeking voluntarily to discontinue litigation is within its sound discretion, ordinarily a party cannot be compelled to litigate and, absent special circumstances, discontinuance should be granted (4 Weinstein-Korn-Miller, NY Civ Prac, par 3217.06).	Can a party be compelled to litigate and leave to discontinue a cause of action granted absent special circumstances?
3909	Turco v. Turco, 117 A.D.3d 719, 720, 985 N.Y.S.2d 261 (2014)	4	In the absence of special circumstances, such as prejudice to a substantial right of the defendant, or other improper consequences, a motion for a voluntary discontinuance should be granted. McKinney's CPLR 3217(b).	"In the absence of special circumstances, such as prejudice to a substantial right of the defendant, or other improper consequences, a motion for a voluntary discontinuance should be granted" (Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. v Chaplin, 107 AD3d at 883 [internal quotation marks omitted])	"In the absence of special circumstances, such as prejudice to a substantial right of the defendant, or other improper consequences, should a motion for a voluntary discontinuance be granted?"
3911	Detox Industries, Inc. v. Leeds, 770 S.W.2d 912, 915 (Tex.App.-Amarillo, 1989)	4	Right of plaintiff to take nonsuit exists from moment that written motion is filed, and trial judge has ministerial duty to grant motion. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 162.	The right exists from the moment the written motion is filed, and the trial judge has a ministerial duty to grant the motion.	"Does the right of a plaintiff to take nonsuit exist from a moment that a written motion is filed, and does the trial judge have a ministerial duty to grant the motion?"

3912	Rives v. Starcke, 195 La. 378, 388 (La. 1940)	8	A motion to discontinue a case that has not been submitted to the judge for decision cannot be regarded as an interference with the authority of the judge to render the judgment he sees fit, since he has no authority to render a judgment in a case that has not been submitted to him for decision. Code Prac. arts. 491, 492.	There would be some justification for that argument in a case that was submitted to the judge for decision before the plaintiff moved to discontinue the suit, -if the wording of article 491 of the Code of Practice left room for the argument; but a motion to discontinue a case that has not been submitted to the judge for decision cannot be regarded as an interference with the authority of the judge to render such judgment in the case as he sees fit, because he has no authority to render a judgment in a case that has not been submitted to him for decision.	Can a motion to discontinue a case that has not been submitted to the judge for decision be regarded as an interference with the authority of the judge to render the judgment he sees fit?
3916	Rotwein v. Sunharbor Manor Residential Health Care Facility, 181 Misc. 2d 847, 854, 695 N.Y.S.2d 477 (Sup. Ct. 1999)	8	Whether a party should be permitted to discontinue a cause of action is committed to the discretion of the court, and while generally a party may not be compelled to litigate a claim, there may be special circumstances warranting a denial of an application for a discontinuance. McKinney's CPLR 3217.	Whether a party should be permitted to discontinue a cause of action is committed to the discretion of the court, and while generally a party may not be compelled to litigate a claim, there may be special circumstances warranting a denial of an application for a discontinuance (see, St. Pierre v Ostreich, 123 AD2d 857).	Is the question of whether a party should be permitted to discontinue a cause of action committed to the discretion of the court?
3917	Woodward v. Heritage Const. Co., 887 N.E.2d 994, 1000 (Ind. Ct. App. 2008)	11	The purpose of a pre-trial order is to recite agreements made by the parties during the pre-trial hearing and, once entered, a pre-trial order shall control the subsequent course of action unless modified thereafter to prevent manifest injustice. Trial Procedure Rule 16(J).	"[T]he purpose of a pre-trial order is to recite agreements made by the parties during the pre-trial hearing and ..., once entered, a pre-trial order shall control the subsequent course of action unless modified thereafter to prevent manifest injustice." Hamlin v. Sourwine, 666 N.E.2d 404, 409 (Ind.Ct.App.1996) (citing T.R. 16(J)).	Is the purpose of a pre-trial order to recite agreements made by the parties during the pre-trial hearing?
3918	Hamm v. Hamm, 429 S.W.3d 384, 389, 2013 Ark. App. 501, 8–9 (Ark. App. 2013)	12	Circuit court does not abuse its discretion by denying a motion for a continuance based on the absence of witnesses when no proffer is made of what the witnesses would testify to.	A *9 circuit court does not abuse its discretion by denying a motion for a continuance based on the absence of witnesses when no proffer is made of what the witnesses would testify to.	Does a circuit court abuse its discretion by denying a motion for a continuance based on the absence of witnesses when no proffer is made of what the witnesses would testify to?
3919	Caparella v. Bennett, 205 A.2d 466, 468, 85 N.J.Super. 567, 571 (N.J.Super.A.D. 1964)	1	Procedures for discovery and pretrial are designed to eliminate element of surprise at trial by requiring litigant to disclose facts upon which cause of action or defense is based; search for truth in aid of justice is paramount, and concealment and surprise will not be tolerated.	Our present procedures for discovery and pretrial are designed to eliminate the element of surprise at trial by requiring a litigant to disclose the facts upon which a cause of action or defense is based. The search for truth in aid of justice is paramount, and concealment and surprise will not be tolerated.	What are discovery and pretrial procedure designed to eliminate?

3920	Ocean Nat. Bank of Kennebunk v. Odell, 444 A.2d 422, 424 (Me.,1982)	1	Pretrial order, by delineating issues to be litigated at trial, in effect supersedes pleadings and controls subsequent course of a civil action. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 16(c)(3).	The pretrial order by delineating the issues to be litigated at trial in effect supersedes the pleadings and controls the subsequent course of a civil action. M.R.Civ.P. 16(c)(3); Taylor v.	"Does a pretrial order, by delineating issues to be litigated at trial, in effect supersede pleadings and control a subsequent course of a civil action?"
3921	Lambert v. Austin Ind., 544 F.3d 1192, 1198 (C.A.11 (Ga.),2008)	8	A party cannot avoid arbitration because the arbitration clause uses general, inclusive language, rather than listing every possible specific claim.	Indeed, as we have said before, "[a] party cannot avoid arbitration ... because the arbitration clause uses general, inclusive language, rather than listing every possible specific claim.	"Can a party avoid arbitration because the arbitration clause uses general, inclusive language, rather than listing every possible specific claim?"
3923	Wiener v. Napoli, 760 F. Supp. 278, 283 (E.D.N.Y. 1991)	8	One of primary purposes of specificity requirement of rule requiring fraud to be pled with particularity is to ensure that defendant receives fair notice of plaintiff's claim, and is thus able to prepare a defense, as well as to protect defendant's reputation and to avoid strike suits. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 9(b), 28 U.S.C.A.	One of the primary purposes of the specificity requirement of Rule 9(b) "is to insure that the defendant receives fair notice of plaintiff's claim, and is thus able to prepare a defense" (Hutton v. Klabal, 726 F.Supp. 67, 72 [S.D.N.Y.1989] [citing Di Vittorio v. Equidyne Extractive Industries, Inc., 822 F.2d 1242, 1247 [2d Cir.1987]]),as well as to protect a defendant's reputation and to avoid strike suits (see Ross v. Bolton, 904 F.2d 819, 823 [2d Cir.1990]; Philan Ins., Ltd. v. Frank B. Hall & Co., 712 F.Supp. 339, 342 [S.D.N.Y.1989]; United States v. Riviaccio, 661 F.Supp. 281, 290 [E.D.N.Y.1987]).	"Is providing fair notice of claims, a purpose of specificity requirement?"
3924	In re National Lloyds Insurance Company, 507 S.W.3d 219, 224 (Tex., 2016)	6	Discovery orders requiring document production from an unreasonably long time period or from distant and unrelated locales are impermissibly overbroad. Tex. R. Civ. P. 192.3(a).	"Discovery orders requiring document production from an unreasonably long time period or from distant and unrelated locales are impermissibly overbroad."	Are discovery orders requiring a document production from an unreasonably long time period or from distant and unrelated locales impermissibly overbroad?
3926	Tamasy v. Kovacs, 929 N.E.2d 820, 830 (Ind.App.,2010)	13	The nondisclosure of a rebuttal witness is excused only when that witness was unknown and unanticipated; known and anticipated witnesses, even if presented in rebuttal, must be identified pursuant to a court order, such as a pre-trial order, or to a proper discovery request; a "known witness" refers to knowledge of the existence of that witness, while an "anticipated witness" is one which a party or her counsel anticipates the need for at trial.	The nondisclosure of a rebuttal witness is excused only when that witness was unknown and unanticipated. McCullough, 605 N.E.2d at 179. Known and anticipated witnesses, even if presented in rebuttal, must be identified pursuant to a court order, such as a pre-trial order, or to a proper discovery request. Id. "A 'known' witness refers to knowledge of the existence of that witness." Id. "An 'anticipated' witness is one which a party or her counsel anticipates the need for at trial."	Is the nondisclosure of a rebuttal witness excused only when that witness was unknown and unanticipated?

3928	In re National Lloyds Insurance Company, 507 S.W.3d 219, 224 (Tex., 2016)	6	Discovery orders requiring document production from an unreasonably long time period or from distant and unrelated locales are impermissibly overbroad. Tex. R. Civ. P. 192.3(a).	"Discovery orders requiring document production from an unreasonably long time period or from distant and unrelated locales are impermissibly overbroad."	Are discovery orders requiring document production from an unreasonably long time period or from distant and unrelated locales impermissibly overbroad?
3929	Nelson v. Allstate Ins. Co., 753 A.2d 1001, 1004 (D.C.,2000)	2	The rule governing pretrial orders contemplates that fair disclosure will be made to remove cases from the realm of surprise, and both parties generally are bound by the pretrial order. Civil Rule 16(g).	The existing pretrial procedures contemplate that fair disclosure will be made to remove cases from the realm of surprise, and both parties generally are bound by the pretrial order.	Does the rule governing pretrial orders contemplate that fair disclosure will be made to remove cases from the realm of surprise?
3930	Hadox v. Martin, 209 W. Va. 180, 185, 544 S.E.2d 395, 400 (2001)	5	In formulating appropriate sanction for failure to adhere to time constraints enumerated in pretrial orders, court shall be guided by equitable principles. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 16(f).	The failure to adhere to time constraints enumerated in pretrial orders and the resulting sanctions was discussed by this Court in Sheely v. Pinion, 200 W.Va. 472, 490 S.E.2d 291 (1997). In syllabus point one of Sheely, we explained as follows: "In formulating the appropriate sanction, a court shall be guided by equitable principles.	Does formulating appropriate sanction for failure to adhere to time constraints enumerated in the pretrial orders be guided by equitable principles?
3931	In re Sears, Roebuck and Co., 146 S.W.3d 328, 332 (Tex. App. 2004)	7	Discovery orders that require document production from unrelated, distant locales or for an unreasonably long time period are impermissibly overbroad. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 192.4.	Discovery orders that require document production from unrelated, distant locales or for an unreasonably long time period are impermissibly overbroad.	"Are discovery orders that require document production from unrelated, distant locales or for an unreasonably long time period impermissibly overbroad?"
3932	In re CSX Corp., 124 S.W.3d 149, 152 (Tex., 2003)	7	Discovery orders requiring document production from an unreasonably long time period or from distant and unrelated locales are impermissibly overbroad. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 192.3(a, c).	Discovery orders requiring document production from an unreasonably long time period or from distant and unrelated locales are impermissibly overbroad.	"Are discovery orders that require document production from unrelated, distant locales or for an unreasonably long time period impermissibly overbroad?"
3934	Heartland Apartment Ass'n v. City of Mission, 51 Kan. App. 2d 699, 699 (2015)	5	A "fee" is paid in exchange for a special service, benefit, or privilege not automatically conferred upon the general public; it is not a revenue measure, but a means of compensating the government for the cost of offering and regulating the special service, benefit, or privilege and payment of a fee is voluntary, in that an individual can avoid the charge by choosing not to take advantage of the service, benefit, or privilege offered.	In contrast, a fee is paid in exchange for a special service, benefit, or privilege not automatically conferred upon the general public. A fee is not a revenue measure, but a means 1075 of compensating the government for the cost of offering and regulating the special service, benefit, or privilege. Payment of a fee is voluntary-an individual can avoid the charge by choosing not to take advantage of the service, benefit, or privilege offered.	Is tax a forced contribution to raise revenue?

3935	Gen. Media Commc'ns v. Cohen, 131 F.3d 273, 283 (2d Cir. 1997)	10	Appellate court's review of military regulations is far more deferential than constitutional review of similar laws or regulations designed for civilian society, and tests and limitations to be applied may differ because of military context.	"Our review of military regulations ... is far more deferential than constitutional review of similar laws or regulations designed for civilian society ... and the tests and limitations to be applied may differ because of the military context."	Is the judicial review of challenges to military action far more deferential than constitutional review of similar laws or regulations designed for civilian society?
3936	United States v. Willis, 844 F.3d 155, 163 (C.A.3 (Virgin Islands), 2016)	3	The statute prohibiting federal programs bribery criminalizes the acceptance of a bribe of $5,000 or more by a government agent of a local government that receives more than $10,000 a year in federal funds if the agent intends to be influenced by the bribe when making a decision to enter into business on behalf of the government. 18 U.S.C.A. § 666(a).	Put another way, § 666 criminalizes the acceptance of a bribe of $5,000 or more by a government agent of a local government that receives more than $10,000 a year in federal funds if the agent intends to be influenced by the bribe when making a decision to enter into business on behalf of the government.	"What is the minimum amount of money for a bribe of a government agent of a local government that receives more than $10,000 a year in federal funds?"
3937	State v. Carr, 172 Conn. 458, 468 (1977)	9	It is immaterial and no defense to charge of bribery that a police officer has no authority to seek the action desired by the bribe giver since offense may be committed although the officer did not have the authority to do or refrain from doing the act to which the briber relates so long as the officer purported to act in his official capacity. C.G.S.A. § 53a-147.	It is immaterial and no defense that the police officer had no authority to take the action desired by the bribe given. The offense of bribery may be committed although the officer in question does not have the authority to do or refrain from doing the act to which the bribe relates, as long as the officer purported to act in his official capacity.	"Can bribery statute be violated if the public servant, in his or her official capacity, does not have the authority to do or refrain from doing the act to which the bribe relates?"
3938	Hunter v. Spaulding, 97 N.C.App. 372, 377-78 (1990)	9	Complaint charging fraud must allege with particularity the elements of: false representation or concealment of material fact; reasonably calculated to deceive; made with intent to deceive; which does in fact deceive; and which results in damage to injured party.	The well- recognized elements of fraud are 1) a false representation or concealment of a material fact, 2) reasonably calculated to deceive, 3) made with intent to deceive, 4) which does in fact deceive, and which 5) results in damage to the injured party.	Must a complaint charging fraud allege elements with particularity?
3942	Edwards Lifesciences, L.L.C. v. Covenant Health Systems, 205 S.W.3d 687, 689 (Tex.App. Amarillo,2006)	5	Non-suit by plaintiff does not vitiate pending claims for affirmative relief and does not affect any motion for sanctions, attorney fees, or other costs pending at the time of dismissal. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 162.	Yet, it does not vitiate pending claims for affirmative relief. TEX.R. CIV. P. 162. Nor does it affect "any motion for sanctions, attorney's fees or other costs, pending at the time of dismissal...."	"Does non-suit vitiate pending claims for affirmative relief and does it affect any motion for sanctions, attorney's fees or other costs, pending at the time of dismissal?"

3943	Taylor v. Washington Hospital Center, 407 A.2d 585, 592 (D.C., 1979)	12	As a basic proposition, where the parties willingly submit pretrial statements which then are incorporated in an order prepared by the court, that order defines the bounds of evidence to be permitted at trial, absent exceptional circumstances; on the other hand, the rule guiding pretrial practice does not contemplate or require that rigid adherence to the pretrial order must always be exacted. D.C.C.E. SCR, Civil Rule 16.	As a basic proposition, where the parties willingly submit pretrial statements which then are incorporated in an order prepared by the court, that order defines the bounds of evidence to be permitted at trial, absent exceptional circumstances. Redding v. Capital Cab Co., supra; McCarthy v. Lerner Stores Corp., 9 F.R.D. 31 (D.D.C.1949). On the other hand, Rule 16 "does not contemplate or require that rigid adherence to the pretrial order must always be exacted."	Does the pretrial order define the bounds of evidence to be permitted at trial in the absence of exceptional circumstances?
3944	Stocum v. Oakley, 185 N.C. App. 56, 62-63 (2007)	8	Voluntary dismissal will not deprive a trial court of jurisdiction to consider collateral issues such as sanctions that require consideration after the action has been terminated. Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 11, 41(a), West's N.C.G.S.A. S 1A-1.	Kathy A. Santoriello, M.D., P.A., 351 N.C. 589, 597, 528 S.E.2d 568, 573 (2000), nor will "[d]ismissal ... deprive the [trial] court of jurisdiction to consider *63 collateral issues such as sanctions that require consideration after the action has been terminated."	Will a voluntary dismissal deprive a trial court of jurisdiction to consider collateral issues such as sanctions that require consideration after the action has been terminated?
3945	Crowell v. Braly, 169 Cal. App. 2d 352, 337 P.2d 211 (1959)	7	Pretrial order sets up contentions of the parties and is deemed to control subsequent course of case, unless modified at or before trial. West's Ann.Superior Court Rules, rule 8.8.	A pretrial order sets up the contentions of the parties and is deemed to control the subsequent course of the case unless modified at or before trial. (Rules of Superior Court, rule 8.8.)	"Does a pretrial order set up contentions of the parties and is deemed to control subsequent course of case, unless modified at or before trial?"
3946	In re Cartmell's Estate, 120 Vt. 234, 238 (1958)	4	Agreements made at pretrial conference are in fact and in legal effect made in open court and the subsequent course of action is controlled by agreements or admissions made at pretrial conference.	We are satisfied and hold that agreements made at a pretrial conference held pursuant to County Court rule 3-A are in fact and in legal effect made in open court. The subsequent course of action is controlled by agreements or admissions made at the pretrial conference.	Are agreements made at pretrial conference in fact and in legal effect made in open court and the subsequent course of action is controlled by agreements or admissions made at pretrial conference?

3947	Soares Da Costa Const. Services, LLC v. Alta mar Development, LLC, 85 So.3d 1172, 1174 (Fla.App. 2 Dist., 2012)	3	There is a common law exception to the rule that a voluntary dismissal deprives a court of jurisdiction where a defendant demonstrates serious prejudice if the dismissal is upheld; "serious prejudice" includes situations where the defendant is entitled to receive affirmative relief or a hearing and disposition of the case on the merits, has acquired substantial rights in the cause, or where dismissal is inequitable. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(a).	This is important because there is a common law exception to the rule that a voluntary dismissal deprives a court of jurisdiction where a defendant demonstrates serious prejudice if the dismissal is upheld. See Ormond Beach Assocs. Ltd. v. Citation Mortg., Ltd., 835 So.2d 292, 295 (Fla. 5th DCA 2002). Serious prejudice includes situations where the defendant "is entitled to receive affirmative relief or a hearing and disposition of the case on the merits, has acquired substantial rights in the cause, or where dismissal is inequitable."	Is there a common law exception to the rule that a voluntary dismissal deprives a court of jurisdiction where a defendant demonstrates serious prejudice if the dismissal is upheld?
3949	Sandberg v. State, 188 Neb. 335, 342 (Neb., 1972)	7	A tax is not an assessment of benefits but is a means of distributing the burden of the cost of government, and only benefit to which taxpayer is constitutionally entitled is that derived from his enjoyment of the privileges of living in an organized society, established and safeguarded by the devotion of taxes to public purposes.	A tax is not an assessment of benefits. It is, as we have said, a means of distributing the burden of the cost of government. The only benefit to which the taxpayer is constitutionally entitled is that derived from his enjoyment of the privileges of living in an organized society, established and safeguarded by the devotion of taxes to public purposes.	Is tax a means of distributing the burden of the cost of government?
3951	Echols v. Bridges, 235 S.E.2d 535, 537 (Ga. 1977)	1	Pretrial order should be liberally construed to allow consideration of all questions fairly within ambit of contested issues, and where question of precluding issues is raised, matter is within discretion of trial judge. Code, S 81A-116.	"A pre-trial order should be liberally construed to allow the consideration of all questions fairly within the ambit of contested issues. Where the question of precluding issues is raised, the matter is within the discretion of the trial judge.	Should a pretrial order be construed in a liberal manner to allow consideration of questions fairly within ambit of issues?
3952	Sigala v. Anaheim City Sch. Dist., 15 Cal. App. 4th 661, 662, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 38 (1993)	2	Trial court possesses inherent power to require by policy that litigants be physically present at mandatory settlement conference, and court may compel litigant to engage personally in settlement negotiations, provided conditions for negotiations are otherwise reasonable.	A trial court possesses the inherent power to require by policy that defendants be physically present at the mandatory settlement conference. A court may not compel a litigant to settle a case, but it may direct the litigant to engage personally in settlement negotiations, provided the conditions for such negotiations are otherwise reasonable.	Can a court direct a litigant to engage personally in a settlement negotiation?
3953	Black v. Don Schmid Motor, Inc., 657 P.2d 517, 526, 232 Kan. 458, 468 (Kan., 1983)	15	Large discretionary power is granted to the trial court in permitting or refusing modification and amendment of the issues outlined in a pretrial order. Rules Civ.Proc., K.S.A. 60-216.	Large discretionary power is granted to the trial court in permitting or refusing modification and amendment of the issues outlined in a pretrial order.	Is a large discretionary power granted to the trial court in permitting or refusing modification and amendment of the issues outlined in a pretrial order?

3955	Schneider v. Seibutis, 3 Ill.App.3d 323, 325-326 (1972)	3	Motion for a continuance or for issuance of attachment to compel the presence of a witness in a civil action is addressed to sound discretion of trial judge. Supreme Court Rules, rule 231(a, f), S.H.A. ch. 110A, S 231(a, f).	A motion for a continuance or for issuance of attachment to *326 compel the presence of a witness in a civil action is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial judge.	Is a motion for a continuance or for issuance of attachment to compel the presence of a witness in a civil action addressed to the sound discretion of a trial judge?
3957	Wenrich v. Emps. Mut. Ins. Companies, 35 Kan. App. 2d 582, 590, 132 P.3d 970, 977 (2006)	12	A pretrial order has the full force of other orders entered by the court and controls the subsequent course of litigation unless modified to prevent manifest injustice. K.S.A. 60-216(e).	As the Wenrichs properly state, a pretrial order has the full force of other orders entered by the court and controls the subsequent course of litigation unless modified to prevent manifest injustice. See K.S.A. 60-216(e); Sampson v. Hunt, 233 Kan. 572, 578, 665 P.2d 743 (1983).	"Does a pretrial order, unless modified by court to prevent manifest injustice, control a subsequent course of lawsuit?"
3959	Bearor v Kapple, 24 N.Y.S.2d 655, 659 (Sup Ct, Nov. 30, 1940)	6	A court has power to grant discovery of articles or property in the possession of, or under the control of, a party, where the articles or property relate to the merits of an action or a defense thereto.	The court has power to grant a discovery of articles or property in the possession of, or under the control of, a party relating to the merits of an action or a defense thereto.	"Does a court have the power to grant discovery of articles or property in the possession of, or under the control of, a party, where the articles or property relates to the merits of an action or a defense thereto?"
3961	Sprague v. P.I.A. of Sarasota, 611 So. 2d 1336, 1336 (Wash.App. Div. 2, 2009)	2	Effect of voluntary dismissal is to remove completely from court's consideration power to enter an order, equivalent in all respects to a deprivation of jurisdiction. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(a)(1).	The effect of a voluntary dismissal is "to remove completely from the court's consideration the power to enter an order, equivalent in all respects to a deprivation of 'jurisdiction'."	"Is the effect of a voluntary dismissal to remove completely from a court's consideration the power to enter an order, equivalent in all respects to a deprivation of jurisdiction?"
3962	Golden Valley Disposal, LLC v. Jenkins Diesel Power, Inc., 183 S.W.3d 635, 639 (Mo. App. 2006)	3	If a plaintiff attempts to voluntarily dismiss a case in a way not authorized by the rules of civil procedure, the purported dismissal is invalid and of no legal effect. V.A.M.R. 67.02.	If a plaintiff attempts to voluntarily dismiss a case in a way not authorized by the rules of civil procedure, however, the purported dismissal is invalid and of no legal effect.	"If a plaintiff attempts to voluntarily dismiss a case in a way not authorized by the rules of civil procedure, is the purported dismissal invalid and of no legal effect?"
3965	U. S. Fid. & Guar. Co. v. Beuhler, 597 S.W.2d 523, 525 (Tex.Civ.App.-Beaumont, 1980)	4	Order of dismissal of cause of action is not adjudication of the rights of the parties; it merely places the parties in the position that they were in before court's jurisdiction was invoked just as if suit had never been brought.	An order of dismissal of a cause of action is not an adjudication of the rights of the parties. It merely places the parties in the position that they were in before the court's jurisdiction was invoked just as if the suit had never been brought.	"Is a dismissal in no way an adjudication of the rights of the parties but merely places them in the position that they were in before jurisdiction was invoked, just as if the suit had never been brought?"
3966	Nielsen v. Firelands Rural Elec. Coop., Inc., 123 Ohio App.3d 104, 106 (Ohio App. 6 Dist.,1997)	1	Voluntary dismissal, without prejudice, dissolves all interlocutory orders made by court in that action, including a partial summary judgment.	This court has previously held that a voluntary dismissal, without prejudice, dissolves "all interlocutory orders made by the court in that action," including a partial summary judgment.	"Does a voluntary dismissal, without prejudice, dissolve all interlocutory orders made by court in that action, including a partial summary judgment?"

3968	Arnold v. Industrial Commission, 171 N.E.2d 26, 28, 21 Ill.2d 57, 60-61 (Ill. 1961)	1	The liability of an employer under the Workmen's Compensation Act is not a tort liability, but is an obligation imposed as an incident of the employment relationship, the cost of which is to be borne by the business enterprise. S.H.A. ch. 48, S 138.3.	The liability of the employer under workmen's compensation acts is not a tort liability but is an obligation imposed as an incident of the employment relationship, the cost of which is to be borne by the business enterprise.	"Is an employers liability under the Workmens Compensation Act an obligation imposed as an incident of the employment relationship, the cost of which is to be borne by the business enterprise, or is it a tort liability?"
3969	Stocum v. Oakley, 185 N.C. App. 56, 62 (2007)	7	Generally, when a party has earlier taken a voluntary dismissal, refiling the action begins the case anew; it is as if the suit had never been filed. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(a), West's N.C.G.S.A. S 1A-1.	Plaintiffs correctly state the 233 general rule that when a party has earlier taken a voluntary dismissal, refiling the action begins the case anew. Tompkins v. Log Systems, Inc., 96 N.C.App. 333, 335, 385 S.E.2d 545, 547 (1989), disc. review denied, 326 N.C. 366, 389 S.E.2d 819 (1990). It is "as if the suit had never been filed."	"Generally, when a party has earlier taken a voluntary dismissal, refiling the action begins the case anew; is it as if the suit had never been filed?"
3971	Able v. U.S., 88 F.3d 1280, 1294 (C.A.2 (N.Y.),1996)	15	Governmental restrictions on speech that would run afoul of Constitution if imposed in civilian life can pass constitutional muster in military context. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.	It is plain to us that governmental restrictions on speech that would run afoul of the Constitution if imposed in civilian life can pass constitutional muster in the military context.	Can governmental restrictions on speech that would run afoul of the Constitution if imposed in civilian life pass constitutional muster in the military context?
3973	Buse v. Smith, 247 N.W.2d 141, 153, 74 Wis.2d 550, 575 (Wis. 1976)	12	Levying of taxes constitutes enforcement of proportional contributions from persons and property, levied by state or municipality for support of its government and its public needs.	The levying of taxes constitutes the enforcement of proportional contributions from persons and property, levied by the state or municipality for the support of its government and its public needs.	"Does levying of taxes constitute enforcement of proportional contributions from persons and property, levied by state or municipality for support of its government and its public needs?"
3974	Duke v. Sun Oil Co., 320 F.2d 853, 861 (C.A.Tex. 1963)	21	Check is simply a written order on a bank, executory in nature, instructing bank to make certain payment, and so far as payee's rights against drawee are concerned, order may be revoked by drawer at any time before check is paid or in some manner accepted by bank on which it is drawn.	A check is simply a written order on a bank, executory in nature, instructing the bank to make certain payment, and so far as the payee's rights against the drawee are concerned, this order may be revoked by the drawer at any time before the check is paid or in some manner accepted by the bank on which it is drawn.	Can a drawer revoke check before its acceptance?
3975	Johnson v. United Nat. Indus., Inc., 126 Ill. App. 3d 181, 184, 466 N.E.2d 1177, 1180 (1984)	4	Fact that a plaintiff who obtained voluntary dismissal did not obtain leave at time dismissal order was entered to move later to reinstate his action does not prevent a trial court from vacating the dismissal order on its own motion during the pendency of the appropriate term or its equivalent. Ill.Rev.Stat.1981, ch. 83, P 24a; S.H.A. ch. 110, P 2-1009.	Although a plaintiff who obtains a voluntary dismissal under section 2-1009 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Ill.Rev.Stat.1981, ch. 110, par. 2-1009), may not move for leave to reinstate his action unless he obtained leave so to move at the time the dismissal order was entered (see Weisguth), this does not prevent a trial court from vacating the dismissal order on its own motion during the pendency of the term or its equivalent.	"As general rule of civil practice, can a party voluntarily dismiss an action with leave to reinstate it if party asks for leave to reinstate at time voluntary dismissal is sought?"

3976	Fair Share Organization v. Kroger Co., 132 Ind.App. 160, 170 (Ind.App.. 1961)	5	Generally, in the absence of statute and where the answer seeks no affirmative relief, a dismissal leaves the situation as if the suit had never been filed and carries down with it previous rulings and orders in the case.	The general rule is that in the absence of statute, and where the answer seeks no affirmative relief, a dismissal, discontinuance, or nonsuit leaves the situation as if the suit had never been filed and carries down with it previous rulings and orders in the case.'	Does a nonsuit under law leave the situation as if suit had never been filed and carries with it previous rulings and orders in a case?
3978	Bryant v. Cnty. Council of Lake Cnty., 720 N.E.2d 1, 6 (Ind.App., 1999)	10	Party moving for withdrawal of admissions does not meet its burden of showing that withdrawal will subserve the presentation of the merits simply by demonstrating that the admissions go to the core issues to be litigated. Trial Procedure Rule 36.	Moreover, the party moving for the withdrawal of admissions established by operation of T.R. 36 does not meet its burden of showing that withdrawal will subserve the presentation of the merits simply by demonstrating that the admissions go to the core issues to be litigated.	Does a movant seeking withdrawal of deemed admissions meet its burden of showing that withdrawal or amendment will subserve presentation of merits simply by demonstrating that admissions go to core issues?
3979	Stelly v. Papania, 927 S.W.2d 620, 622 (Tex., 1996)	3	Good cause is threshold standard for withdrawal of deemed admissions; party can establish good cause by showing that its failure to answer was accidental or the result of a mistake, rather than intentional or the result of conscious indifference. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 169, subd. 2.	After the rule was amended in 1988, "good cause" became the threshold standard for withdrawal of deemed admissions. Halton, 792 S.W.2d at 465. A party can establish good cause by showing that its failure to answer was accidental or the result of a mistake, rather than intentional or the result of conscious indifference.	Can good cause be shown when a party's failure to answer was accidental or the result of a mistake?
3980	Ruiz v. Nicolas Trevino Forwarding Agency, Inc., 888 S.W.2d 86, 89 (Tex. App. 1994)	6	To establish good cause for withdrawal of deemed admissions, party must show legal or equitable excuses for his failure to answer. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 169.	Trial courts possess broad discretion to permit or deny withdrawal of deemed admissions. In order to establish good cause a party must show legal or equitable excuses for his failure to answer.	"To establish good cause for withdrawal of deemed admissions, must a party show legal or equitable excuses for his failure to answer requests for admissions?"
3984	City of Muncie v. Peters, 709 N.E.2d 50, 54 (Ind.App.,1999)	4	Party seeking withdrawal of admissions has the burden of demonstrating that the presentation of the merits will be subserved by withdrawal, and the party who has obtained the admissions has the burden of demonstrating that it will be prejudiced if the trial court permits withdrawal. Trial Procedure Rule 36(B).	The party seeking withdrawal has the burden of demonstrating that the presentation of the merits will be subserved by withdrawal, and the party who has obtained the admissions has the burden of demonstrating that it will be prejudiced if the trial court permits withdrawal.	"Does the party seeking withdrawal of admissions have the burden of demonstrating that the presentation of the merits will be subserved by withdrawal, and the party who has obtained the admissions has the burden of demonstrating that it will be prejudiced if the trial court permits withdrawal?"
3991	United States v. Miller, 340 F.2d 421, 424 (C.A.4 (Md.), 1965)	7	It is immaterial whether official action which briber seeks to influence is right or wrong, in sense that it is expected to result in pecuniary injury to government or that it calls upon bribe recipient to do something other than what he is legally obligated to do. 18 U.S.C.A. § 201.	It is immaterial whether the official action which the briber seeks to influence is right or wrong, in the sense that it is expected to result in pecuniary injury to the Government or that it calls upon the bribe recipient to do something other than what he is legally obligated to do.	Is it material whether the official action sought to be influenced is right or wrong?

3992	Demos v. Haber, 101 Ill.App.3d 901, 903 (Ill.App., 1981)	2	Absence of an attorney does not give a litigant the right to a continuance, but the diligence of the party seeking it is a critical consideration in determining whether or not to grant a continuance.	The absence of an attorney does not give a litigant the right to a continuance, but the diligence of the party seeking 974 294 it is a critical consideration in determining whether or not to grant a continuance.	Does the absence of an attorney give a litigant the right to a continuance and is the diligence of the party seeking continuance a critical consideration in determining whether or not to grant a continuance?
3994	Thomas v. Thomas, 23 Ill. App. 3d 936, 940-941 (Ill.App. 1 Dist., 1974)	8	Although absence of counsel is one factor to take into consideration in deciding on motion to continue, it does not entitle party to continuance as matter of right. S.H.A. ch. 110, S 59; Supreme Court Rules, rule 231(f), S.H.A. ch. 110A, S 231(f).	Although absence *941 of counsel is one factor to take into consideration in deciding on a motion to continue, it does not entitle a party to a continuance as a matter of right.	"Although absence of counsel is one factor to take into consideration in deciding a motion to continue, does it entitle a party to continuance as matter of right?"
4000	Monolith Companies, LLC v. Hunter Douglas Hospitality, Inc., 333 Ga.App. 898, 900 (Ga.App., 2015)	2	The admission that arises from a failure to respond to a request for admission in the required time frame arises by operation of law, without the necessity of court action. West's Ga.Code Ann. S 9-11-36(a)(2).	The admission that arises from a failure to respond to a request for admission in the required time frame arises by operation of law, without the necessity of court action.	"Does the admission that arises from a failure to respond to a request for admission in the required time frame arise by operation of law, without the necessity of court action?"
4001	Whitaker v. Nikols, 699 P.2d 685, 686 (Utah 1985)	1	Matters contained in plaintiff's request for admissions are deemed admitted when defendant fails to answer or object within 30 days after service. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36(a).	This Court has consistently held that the matters contained in a plaintiff's request for admissions are deemed admitted when a defendant fails to answer or object within thirty days after service.	Are matters contained in a plaintiff's request for admissions deemed admitted when a defendant fails to answer or object within 30 days after service?
4002	Walker v. Valor Ins. Co., 314 Ill. App. 3d 55, 61, 731 N.E.2d 363, 368-69 (2000)	4	A party's failure to respond to a request to admit facts pursuant to Supreme Court Rules admits any specified relevant fact set forth in the request. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 216.	Our supreme court has held that a party's failure to respond to a Supreme Court Rule 216 request to admit facts admits " 'any specified relevant fact set forth in the request.' " (Emphasis omitted.) P.R.S. International, Inc. v. Shred Pax Corp., 184 Ill.2d 224, 236, 234 Ill.Dec. 459, 703 N.E.2d 71 (1998), quoting 134 369 841 Ill.2d R. 216(a).	Does a party's failure to respond to a request to admit facts pursuant to Supreme Court Rules admit any specified relevant fact set forth in the request?
4003	Kaminski v. Bass, 252 Neb. 760, 567 N.W.2d 118, 119-20 (1997)	4	Hearing on motion for expenses, pursuant to discovery rule for expenses on failure to admit a statement, is a legal proceeding entirely separate from underlying trial or proceedings concerning merits of the case. Discovery Rule 37(c).	A hearing on a motion for expenses pursuant to Neb.Ct.R. of Discovery 37(c)(rev.1996) is a legal proceeding entirely separate from the underlying trial or proceedings concerning the merits of the case.	"Is hearing on motion for expenses pursuant to rule 37(c), a legal proceeding entirely separate from underlying trial or proceedings concerning merits of the case?"
4004	Robertson v. Sky Chefs, Inc., 344 Ill. App. 3d 196, 200, 799 N.E.2d 852, 856 (2003)	3	Any question propounded in a request to admit which seeks the admission of a conclusion of law is improper in form, and the failure to respond to that question does not result in a judicial admission Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 216.	Any question propounded in the request to admit which seeks the admission of a conclusion of law is improper in form (see P.R.S. International, 184 Ill.2d at 236, 234 Ill.Dec. 459, 703 N.E.2d 71), and the failure to respond to that question does not result in a judicial admission.	"Is any question propounded in a request to admit which seeks the admission of a conclusion of law improper in form, and the failure to respond to that question does not result in a judicial admission?"

4006	St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Battle, 44 Ohio App. 2d 261, 269 (1975)	10	When requests for admissions are made, the matters are admitted unless the party to whom the requests are directed serves written answers or objections upon the party requesting the admissions; if no answer or objection is filed, the matter is admitted. Civ.R. 36.	Pursuant to Civil Rule 36, when requests for admission are made the matters are admitted unless the party to whom the requests are directed serves upon the party requesting the admissions written answers or objections. Thus, an answer or an objection is required under Civil Rule 36. If no answer or objection is filed the matter is admitted.	"When requests for admission are made, are the matters admitted unless the party to whom the requests are directed serves upon the party requesting the admissions written answers or objections, and if no answer or objection is filed, is the matter admitted?"
4007	Hundley ex rel. Hundley v. Rite Aid of South Carolina, Inc., 339 S.C. 285, 306 (2000)	10	In ruling upon a motion for continuance, the court must determine the merits of the moving party's argument, which entails an evaluation of credibility; a documented history within the case of discovery delay and abuse by a moving party may be properly considered when evaluating the credibility of that party's claim of surprise and prejudice.	Nevertheless, in ruling upon a motion for continuance, the court must determine the merits of the moving party's argument, which entails an evaluation of credibility. Certainly a documented history within the case of discovery delay and abuse by a party may be properly considered when evaluating the credibility of that party's claim of surprise and prejudice.	"In ruling upon a motion for continuance, must the court determine the merits of the moving party's argument, which entails an evaluation of credibility?"
4010	Tymar v. Two Men & a Truck, 282 Neb. 692, 702-703 (Neb., 2011)	6	Rule governing requests for admissions is not self-executing, and thus a party that seeks to claim another party's admission, as a result of that party's failure to respond properly to a request for admission, must prove service of the request for admission and the served party's failure to answer or object to the request and must also offer the request for admission as evidence. Neb. Ct. R. Disc. S 6-336.	6-336 is not self-executing. Thus, a party that seeks to claim another party's admission, as a result of that party's failure to respond properly to a request for admission, must prove service of the request for admission and the served party's failure to answer or object to the request and must also offer the request for admission as evidence. 6.	"Is the rule governing requests for admission self-executing, and the matters set forth in the requests for admissions are automatically deemed admitted if they are not answered by the rule's deadline?"
4011	Commissioners of State Ins. Fund v. Garcia, 49 Misc. 3d 875, 877, 14 N.Y.S.3d 683, 685 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2015)	1	When a respondent fails to oppose matters advanced on a motion, the facts alleged in the moving papers may be deemed admitted by the Court.	When a respondent fails to oppose matters advanced on a motion, the facts alleged in the moving papers may be deemed admitted by the Court (Kuehne & Nagel, Inc. v. Baiden, 36 N.Y.2d 539, 369 N.Y.S.2d 667, 369 N.Y.S.2d 667, 330 N.E.2d 624 [1975];	"When a respondent fails to oppose matters advanced on a motion, may the facts alleged in the moving papers be deemed admitted by the Court?"
4012	Locklear v. Sellers, 126 So.3d 978, 981 (Miss.App., 2013)	4	Any admission that is not amended or withdrawn cannot be rebutted by contrary testimony or ignored by the court even if the party against whom it is directed offers more credible evidence. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36.	Any admission that is not amended or withdrawn cannot be rebutted by contrary testimony or ignored by the court even if the party against whom it is directed offers more credible evidence."	Can any admission that is not amended or withdrawn be rebutted by contrary testimony or ignored by the court even if the party against whom it is directed offers more credible evidence?

4013	Woods v. Label Inv. Corp., 107 Nev. 419, 425, 812 P.2d 1293, 1297 (1991), disapproved of by Hanneman v. Downer, 110 Nev. 167, 871 P.2d 279 (1994)	4	Where demand is made upon party for admission of facts and such party fails to respond to request, matters contained therein are deemed admitted. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36.	Where demand is made upon a party for admission of facts and such party fails to respond to the request, matters contained therein are deemed admitted.	"Where demand is made upon party for admission of facts and such party fails to respond to request, are such matters contained therein deemed admitted?"
4015	Lang v. Pataki, 176 Misc. 2d 676, 690, 674 N.Y.S.2d 903, 913 (Sup. Ct. 1998)	22	Granting of continuance is exercise of judicial discretion upon particular facts, with appropriate opportunity for counsel to be heard, and is exclusively a judicial act.	"The granting of a continuance is an exercise of judicial discretion upon particular facts, with appropriate opportunity for counsel to be heard, and is exclusively a judicial act.	"Is granting of continuance an exercise of judicial discretion upon particular facts, with appropriate opportunity for counsel to be heard, and is exclusively a judicial act?"
4016	Components Direct, Inc. v. Eur. Am. Bank & Tr. Co., 175 A.D.2d 227, 232, 572 N.Y.S.2d 359, 362–63 (1991)	8	Although statements in pleadings are required to be factual, party may supplement or round out his pleading by conclusory allegations or by stating legal theories explicitly, if facts upon which pleader relies are also stated.	Although the statements in pleadings are required to be factual, "a party may supplement or round out his pleading by conclusory allegations or by 'stating legal theories explicitly' if the facts upon which the pleader relies are also stated" (Foley v. D'Agostino, 21 A.D.2d 60, 63, 248 N.Y.S.2d 121, quoting Notes, First Preliminary Report of Advisory Committee on Practice and Procedure, at 63 [1957]).	Can a party supplement or round out his pleading by stating legal theories explicitly?
4020	Dolgencorp of Texas, Inc. v. Lerma, 241 S.W.3d 584, 592 (Tex.App. Corpus Christi,2007)	8	An announcement that a party is "ready" for trial waives the right to seek a continuance based upon any facts that are known, or with proper diligence should have been known, when the announcement is made. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 251, 253.	An announcement of "ready" waives the right to seek a continuance based upon any facts that are known, or with proper diligence should have been known, when the announcement is made.	"Does an announcement that a party is ""ready"" for trial waive the right to seek a continuance based upon any facts that are known, or with proper diligence should have been known, when the announcement is made?"
4021	In re Jacobs, 300 S.W.3d 35, 40–41 (Tex. App. 2009)	10	A party seeking discovery of net-worth information need not satisfy any evidentiary prerequisite, such as making a prima facie showing of entitlement to punitive damages, before discovery of net worth is permitted.	Therefore, under Texas law, a party seeking discovery of net-worth *41 information need not satisfy any evidentiary prerequisite, such as making a prima facie showing of entitlement to punitive damages, before discovery of net worth is permitted.	Need a party seeking discovery of net-worth information not satisfy any evidentiary prerequisite?
4023	Hall v. Bunn, 11 Ohio St. 3d 118, 122, 464 N.E.2d 516, 520 (1984)	5	Even in the event an objecting party is not prepared for evidence offered outside pleading, trial court may still allow an amendment under rule governing amendment of pleadings to conform to evidence and grant a continuance to enable objecting party to meet the new evidence. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 15(B).	Moreover, even in the event an objecting party is not prepared for evidence offered outside the pleadings the court may still allow an amendment under Civ.R. 15(B) and grant a continuance to enable the objecting party to meet the new evidence.	Will a trial justice grant a continuance in the event the objecting party needs time to meet new evidence?

4024	Commonwealth Life Ins. Co. v. Brandon, 97 S.W.2d 2, 7 (Ky.App. 1936)	11	Where amended petition filed on eve of trial or during progress of trial materially changes issues, adverse party should be granted continuance on motion. Civ.Code Prac. S 136.	It is true that this court has repeatedly ruled that where an amended petition is filed on the eve of the trial or during its progress, which materially changes the issues, the adverse party upon motion should be granted a continuance for further preparation.	"Where an amended petition filed on the eve of trial or during progress of trial materially changes issues, should the adverse party be granted a continuance on motion?"
4025	Gordon v. Indusco Mgmt. Corp., 164 Conn. 262, 270 (1973)	11	Technically, a "deposition" is the written testimony of a witness given in course of a judicial proceeding, which may be taken in advance of trial or hearing, or during the course of the proceeding, on oral examination or in response to written interrogatories with an opportunity for cross-examination.	Technically, a deposition is the written testimony of a witness given in the course of a judicial proceeding. A deposition may be taken in advance of the trial or hearing, or during the course of the proceeding, on oral examination or in response to written interrogatories with an opportunity for cross-examination.	Is a deposition written testimony of a witness given in course of a judicial proceeding?
4030	Brookwood Parks v Jackson, 21 N.Y.S.2d 173, 179 (Sup Ct, July 06, 1940)	1	Although section of Civil Practice Act concerning examination before trial should be liberally construed to promote ends of justice, it must be shown that examination is material and necessary in prosecution or defense of action. Civil Practice Act, S 288.	It is true that the section of the Civil Practice Act as to the examination before trial should be liberally construed to promote the ends of justice, but it must be shown that the examination is material and necessary in the prosecution or defense of the action. Civil Practice Act, 288.	"When construing the Civil Practice Act, should it be shown that examination is material and necessary in prosecution or defense of action?"
4031	In re Jacobs, 300 S.W.3d 35, 43 (Tex. App. 2009)	15	A plaintiff seeking production of net worth information is required to allege facts showing that relator is liable for punitive damages.	Texas law requires a plaintiff seeking production of net worth information to "allege facts showing that relator is liable for punitive damages." "	Is a plaintiff seeking production of net worth information required to allege facts showing that relator is liable for punitive damages?
4032	Signal Capital Corp. v. Frank, 164 F.R.D. 7, 10 (S.D.N.Y., 1995)	1	Discovery concerning opposing party's assets is not ordinarily permitted unless such discovery is relevant to merits of the pending claim or in response to a defense.	Defendant asserts, and this Court agrees, that discovery concerning an opposing party's assets is not ordinarily permitted, unless such discovery is relevant to the merits of the pending claim, or in response to a defense.	Is discovery concerning an opposing party's assets not ordinarily permitted unless such discovery is relevant to merits of the pending claim or in response to a defense?
4034	Credit Indus. Co. v. Blankinship, 323 S.W.2d 198, 201, 230 Ark. 371, 376 (Ark. 1959)	3	Where a deposition has been lost or destroyed, contents thereof may be proved as in case of other lost or destroyed papers, or a properly identified or authenticated copy may be substituted and read, provided original deposition has been duly returned and filed.	Where a deposition has been lost or destroyed, the contents thereof may be proved as in the case of other lost or destroyed papers, or a properly identified or authenticated copy may be substituted and read, provided the original deposition had been duly returned and filed.	"Where a deposition has been lost or destroyed, can contents thereof be proved as in case of other lost or destroyed papers?"

4035	Aiello v. Ed Saxe Real Estate, Inc., 508 Pa. 553, 562 (Pa.,1985)	2	Principal is liable to innocent third parties for frauds, deceptions, concealments, misrepresentations, torts, negligences and other malfeasances or misfeasances of his agent committed in the course of his employment, even if principal did not authorize, justify or participate in, or indeed know of, such misconduct, or even if he forbade the acts or disapproved of them. 63 P.S. SS 455.522, 455.601, 455.603.	Today we reaffirm the longstanding and widely held rule of law that a principal is liable to innocent third parties for the frauds, deceptions, concealments, misrepresentations, torts, negligences and other malfeasances or misfeasances of his agent committed in the course of his employment, 5 although the principal did not authorize, justify or participate in, or indeed know of, such misconduct, or even if he forbade the acts or disapproved of them.	Can a principal be held liable for an unauthorized act of an agent performed within the scope of his employment?
4036	Texas Emp. Ins. Ass'n v. Locke, 224 S.W.2d 755, 757 (Tex.Civ.App.-Fort Worth, 1949)	2	An application for continuance which complies substantially with statutory form, except as to stating necessary diligence, does not necessarily require court to sustain it. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 252.	An application for continuance which complies substantially with the statutory form, except as to stating necessary diligence, does not necessarily require the court to sustain it.	"Does an application for continuance which complies substantially with statutory form, except as to stating necessary diligence, necessarily require a court to sustain it?"
4038	United States v. Keen, 676 F.3d 981, 990 (C.A.11 (Fla.), 2012)	6	Statute prohibiting theft or bribery concerning programs receiving Federal funds was enacted to protect the integrity of the vast sums of money distributed through Federal programs from theft, fraud, and undue influence by bribery. 18 U.S.C.A. S 666.	Entitled "Theft or bribery concerning programs receiving Federal funds," 18 U.S.C. 666 was enacted "to protect the integrity of the vast sums of money distributed through Federal programs from theft, fraud, and undue influence by bribery." S.Rep.	What is the legislative intent of statute prohibiting theft or bribery 666 concerning programs receiving federal funds?
4040	Crozman v. Callahan, 136 F.Supp. 466, 468 (D.C.Okla. 1955)	3	Even when acting within scope of his authority, military officer can incur civil liability if his actions are influenced by malice, corruption, or cruelty. Uniform Code of Military Justice, arts. 1, 2, 93, 117, 50 U.S.C.A. SS 511, 552, 687, 711.	4 Significantly, however, an officer, even when acting within the scope of his authority, can incur civil liability if his actions are influenced by malice, corruption, or cruelty.	"Can an officer, even when acting within the scope of his authority, incur civil liability if his actions are influenced by malice, corruption, or cruelty?"
4042	First Nat. Bank of Blairstown v. Goldberg, 340 Pa. 337, 343 (Pa. 1941)	9	The purpose of the Negotiable Instruments Law is to enhance marketability of negotiable securities and to allow bankers, brokers, and people generally to trade in them with confidence. 56 P.S. S 1 et seq.	The purpose of the Negotiable Instruments Law is to enhance the marketability of such securities and to allow bankers, brokers, and people generally to trade in them with confidence.	"Does the purpose of the Negotiable Instruments Law is to enhance marketability of negotiable securities and to allow bankers, brokers, and people generally to trade in them with confidence?"
4043	United States v. Jannotti, 673 F.2d 578, 601 (C.A.3 (Pa.), 1982)	14	It is neither material nor a defense to bribery that had there been no bribe, public official might, on the available data, lawfully and properly have made the very recommendation that the briber wanted him to make.	As this court has previously held, it is neither material nor a defense to bribery that "had there been no bribe, the (public official) might, on the available data, lawfully and properly have made the very recommendation that (the briber) wanted him to make..	"Is it a material fact or a defense to bribery that, had there been no bribe, the public official might have lawfully and properly performed the action that the briber wanted him to take?"

4045	Finch v. Matthews, 74 Wash. 2d 161, 167–68, (Wash. 1968)	5	Fee in public street or highway remains in owner of abutting land, and public acquires only right of passage, with powers and privileges necessarily implied in grant of easement.	this court has not departed from the rule established in that case, that the fee in a public street or highway remains *168 in the owner of the abutting land, and the public acquires only the right of passage, with powers and privileges necessarily implied in the grant of the easement.	Does the fee in a public street or highway remain with the owner of the abutting land and the public only acquires only the right of passage?
4046	Pines v. Pines, 262 Ill. App. 3d 923, 929–31 (1994)	8	Once trial or hearing has begun, right to dismissal is curtailed to prevent plaintiff from dismissing case if trial proceedings appear unfavorable, and trial judge may require that dismissal is with prejudice.	Section 2-1009(a) provides: Once a trial or hearing has begun, the right to dismissal 991 652 is curtailed to prevent a plaintiff from dismissing a case if the trial proceedings appear unfavorable (Kilpatrick v. First Church of the Nazarene (1988), 177 Ill.App.3d 83, 126 Ill.Dec. 508, 531 N.E.2d 1135), and the trial judge may require that the dismissal is with prejudice (Kahle v. John Deere Co. (1984), 104 Ill.2d 302, 84 Ill.Dec. 650, 472 N.E.2d 787).	"Once a trial or hearing has begun, is the right to dismissal curtailed to prevent a plaintiff from dismissing a case if trial proceedings appear unfavorable?"
4047	Foti v. Askinas, 432 Pa. Super. 604, 606 (1994)	1	Decision to grant discontinuance without prejudice rests within discretion of trial court and ruling of trial court will not be reversed absent abuse of discretion.	The decision to grant a discontinuance without prejudice rests within the discretion of the trial court, and the ruling of the trial court will not be reversed absent an abuse of discretion.	Does a decision to grant discontinuance without prejudice rest within the discretion of a trial court and will a ruling of a trial court be reversed absent abuse of discretion?
4052	US Chem. Storage, LLC v. Berto Constr., Inc., 253 N.C. App. 378, 382, 800 S.E.2d 716, 720 (2017)	7	The standard of review to be applied by a trial court in deciding a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction depends upon the procedural context confronting the court. N.C. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(2).	"The standard of review to be applied by a trial court in deciding a motion under Rule 12(b)(2) depends upon the procedural context confronting the court."	Does the standard of review to be applied by a trial court in deciding a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction depend upon the procedural context confronting the court?
4053	Nick v. Schneider, 150 A.D.3d 1250, 1251, 56 N.Y.S.3d 210, 213 (2017)	1	Upon a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, it is the plaintiff who bears the ultimate burden of proof to establish a basis for such jurisdiction; however, to successfully oppose such a motion, the plaintiff need only make a prima facie showing that the defendant was subject to the personal jurisdiction of the court. McKinney's CPLR 3211(a)(8).	"Upon a CPLR 3211(a)(8) motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, it is the plaintiff who bears the ultimate burden of proof to establish a basis for such jurisdiction" (America/Intl. 1994 Venture v. Mau, 146 A.D.3d 40, 51, 42 N.Y.S.3d 188 [internal quotation marks omitted]). "However, to successfully oppose such a motion, the plaintiff need only make a prima facie showing that the defendant was subject to the personal jurisdiction of the court" (id. at 51, 42 N.Y.S.3d 188; see Chen v. Guo Liang Lu, 144 A.D.3d 735, 736, 41 N.Y.S.3d 517).	"Upon a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, is it the plaintiff who bears the ultimate burden of proof to establish a basis for such jurisdiction?"

4054	Warner v. Chauffeurs, Teamsters, & Helpers Loc. Union No. 414, 73 N.E.3d 190, 197 (Ind. Ct. App. 2017)	6	In ruling on a motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, the trial court may consider not only the complaint and motion but also any affidavits or evidence submitted in support. Ind. R. Trial P. 12(B)(1).	In ruling on a motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, the trial court may consider not only the complaint and motion but also any affidavits or evidence submitted in support.	"In ruling on a motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, can the trial court consider the complaint?"
4055	Weisblat v. City of San Diego, 176 Cal. App. 4th 1022, 1039–40, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 366, 378 (2009)	6	A tax is a "special tax" whenever expenditure of its revenues is limited to specific purposes; this is true even though there may be multiple specific purposes for which the revenues may be spent.	"[A] tax is special whenever expenditure of its revenues is limited to specific purposes; this is true even though there may be multiple specific purposes for which [the] revenues may be spent."	"A tax is special whenever expenditure of its revenues is limited to specific purposes, is this true even though there may be multiple specific purposes for which revenues may be spent?"
4056	Calvert v. Zanes-Ewalt Warehouse, Inc., 502 S.W.2d 689, 692 (TEX 1974)	3	Whether exercise of taxing power of state is forbidden in particular case is to be determined by practical operation of state statute, as applied to facts in that case.	Whether the exercise of the taxing power of the State is forbidden in a particular case is to be determined by the practical operation of the State statute, as applied to the facts of that case.	"Whether exercise of taxing power of state is forbidden in particular case be determined by practical operation of state statute, as applied to facts in that case?"
4058	United States v. Sun-Diamond Growers of California, 138 F.3d 961, 966 (C.A.D.C., 1998)	1	To satisfy criminal intent requirement embodied in phrase "for or because of any official act," as used in gratuity statute, giver must intend either to reward some past concrete official act or acts, or to enhance likelihood of some future act or acts. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(c)(1)(A).	To satisfy the criminal intent requirement embodied in the phrase "for or because of any official act," the giver must intend either to reward some past concrete official act or acts, or to enhance the likelihood of some future act or acts.	"What must the bribe-giver intend in order to satisfy the criminal intent requirement embodied in the phrase ""for or because of any official act""?"
4060	United States v. Evans, 572 F.2d 455, 480 (C.A.5 (Tex.), 1978)	32	Both conflict of interest statute and unlawful gratuity statute must be broadly construed in order to accomplish legislative purpose which they manifest. 18 U.S.C.A. SS 201(g), 203(a).	As a prefatory premise, we note that both the conflict of interest statute, 18 U.S.C.A. s 203, and the unlawful gratuity statute, 18 U.S.C.A. s 201, must be broadly construed in order to accomplish the legislative purpose which they manifest.	Should both conflict of interest statute and unlawful gratuity statute be broadly construed in order to accomplish legislative purpose which they manifest?
4061	Tennessee Enamel Mfg. Co. v. Stoves, 192 F.2d 863, 868 (C.A.6 (Tenn.), 1951)	4	Under Tennessee law, usages or customs of trade, to be effectively binding in law, must be imperative and compulsory in character and so well known as to affect the person to be bound with knowledge of them and raise the presumption that he dealt with reference to them.	The point of the Tennessee authorities is that usages or customs of trade, to be effectively binding in law, must be imperative and compulsory in character and so well known as to affect the person to be bound with knowledge of them and raise the presumption that he dealt with reference to them.	"In order for a party to be bound by usages or customs of trade, must they be imperative and compulsory?"

4062	La Laguna Ranch Co. v. Dodge, 18 Cal. 2d 132, 135, 114 P.2d 351, 353 (1941)	1	The term "overriding royalty" is applied generally in the oil industry to such fractional interests in the production of oil and gas as are created from the lessee's estate, regardless of whether the royalty is created by reservation when original lessee transfers his interest by a sub-lease, or whether it is created by grant when original lessee conveys a fractional share to a third person.	The term 'overriding royalty' is applied generally in the industry to such fractional interests in the production of oil and gas as are created from the lessee's estate. This is true whether the overriding royalty is created by reservation when the original lessee transfers his interest by a sub-lease or whether it is created by grant when the original lessee conveys a fractional share to a third person, as in the instant case.	Is the term overriding royalty applied generally in the industry to such fractional interests in the production of oil and gas as are created from the lessee's estate?
4063	Blocker Expl. Co. v. Frontier Expl., Inc., 740 P.2d 983, 985 (Colo. 1987)	1	Three essential elements of mining partnership are joint ownership, joint operation, and express or implied agreement to share profits and losses; if mining partnership exists, partners are characterized as operators and have a limited power (less than the power of a general partner) to bind other members of the partnership.	The three essential elements of a mining partnership are: (1) joint ownership; (2) joint operation; and (3) an express or implied agreement to share profits and losses. Mud Control Laboratories, 2 Utah 2d at 91–92, 269 P.2d at 858. This mining partnership test has been adopted in the jurisdictions which have addressed this issue. Gilroy v. White Eagle Oil Co., 201 F.2d 113 (10th Cir.1952) (applying Oklahoma law); Gilbert v. Fontaine, 22 F.2d 657, 661 (10th Cir.1927) (applying Kansas law); Edwards v. Hardwick, 350 P.2d 495, 501–02 (Okla.1960); Lyons v. Stekoll, 186 Okla. 94, 96 P.2d 60 (1939). See Fiske, Mining Partnership, 26 Inst. on Oil & Gas L. & Tax'n 187, 193 (1975). If a mining partnership exists, the partners are characterized as operators and have a limited power (less than the power of a general partner) to bind other members of the partnership.	"Are the three essential elements of a mining partnership joint ownership, joint operation and an express or implied agreement to share profits and losses?"

4064	Feliciano v. Geneva Terrace Estates Homeowners Ass'n, 14 N.E.3d 540, 553, 383 Ill.Dec. 257, 270, 2014 IL App (1st) 130269, ¶ 45 (Ill.App. 1 Dist., 2014)	17	Courts look at four factors in determining whether to permit amended pleadings: (1) whether the proposed amendment would cure a defective pleading, (2) whether the proposed amendment would surprise or prejudice the opposing party, (3) whether the proposed amendment was timely filed, and (4) whether the moving party had previous opportunities to amend. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-616.	Courts look at four factors in determining whether to permit amended pleadings under section 2-616(a) of the Code (735 ILCS 5/2-616(a) (West 2012)). See Loyola Academy v. S. & S. Roof Maintenance, Inc., 146 Ill.2d 263, 273, 166 Ill.Dec. 882, 586 N.E.2d 1211 (1992). First, whether the proposed amendment would cure a defective pleading. Second, whether the proposed amendment would surprise or prejudice the opposing party. Third, whether the proposed amendment was timely filed. And fourth, whether the moving party had previous opportunities to amend.	What factors do courts consider in allowing amendments to pleadings?
4065	State ex rel. GMS Mgmt. Co. v. Callahan, 45 Ohio St. 3d 51, 55, 543 N.E.2d 483, 487 (1989)	8	Provision for bond upon continuance of forcible entry and detainer action is not applicable when judges take matters under advisement sua sponte . R.C. S 1923.08.	The bond requirement under R.C. 1923.08 would not be applicable when judges , as set forth herein, take matters under advisement sua sponte in forcible entry and detainer proceedings .	Is the provision for a bond upon continuance of forcible entry and detainer action applicable when judges take matters under advisement sua sponte?
4066	Voorheis v. Hawthorne-Michaels Co., 151 Cal. App. 2d 688, 693, 312 P.2d 51, 54 (1957)	2	Since there is always an inherent possibility of error in the transcription of a deposition, a final opportunity for correction of the writing as completed should be given by the reading to or by the witness . West's Ann.Code Civ.Proc., SS 2006, 2022, 2032.	Because the writing is to stand as the witness' own words and there is always an inherent possibility of error in the transcription, a final opportunity for correction of the writing as completed should be given by the reading to or by the witness .	"Since there is always an inherent possibility of error in the transcription of a deposition, should a final opportunity for correction of the writing as completed be given by the reading to or by the witness?"
4067	Fritsch v. J. M. English Truck Line, 151 Tex. 168, 172–73 (1952)	2	There is nothing in the rules of civil procedure relating to continuances requiring granting of a first motion merely because it is in statutory form and is not controverted by affidavit of opposite party, and trial court, in determining existence of diligence, may examine allegations of diligence contained in motion in light of record before it. Rules of Civil Procedure, rules 251, 252.	There is nothing in the rules on continuance requiring the granting of a first motion merely because it is in statutory form and is not controverted by affidavit of the opposite party. Surely it will not be gainsaid that a trial court, in determining the existence of diligence, may examine the allegations of diligence contained in the motion in the light of the record before it..	Is there a rule relating to continuances requiring granting of a first motion merely because it is in statutory form and not controverted by affidavit of opposite party?
4068	Sydney Attractions Grp. Pty Ltd. v. Schulman, 74 A.D.3d 476, 476, 902 N.Y.S.2d 82, 83 (2010)	2	Enforcement of a forum selection clause does not allow for a stay rather than dismissal, at least when there is no argument that the designated court lacks jurisdiction of all necessary parties or is otherwise unable to accord complete relief.	Since enforcement of a forum selection clause does not allow for a stay, at least where there is no argument that the designated court lacks jurisdiction of all necessary parties or is otherwise unable to accord complete relief	Does enforcement of a forum selection clause not allow for a stay rather than dismissal?

4071	People v Chenango County, 39 N.Y.S.2d 785, 792 (Sup. Ct. 1943)	16	A "tax" is a statutory liability imposed upon all inhabitants of the state defined as taxable, so that they may contribute their just share to expenses of government. Const. art. 16.	A tax has been defined as 'a statutory liability imposed upon all the inhabitants of the state defined as taxable, to the end that they may contribute their just share to the expenses of government.'	"Is a tax a statutory liability imposed upon all inhabitants of the state defined as taxable, so that they may contribute their just share to expenses of government?"
4073	People v. Sanoguet, 157 Misc. 2d 771, 775, 597 N.Y.S.2d 854, 857 (Sup. Ct. 1993)	4	Gist of crime of bribe receiving is not the payment of money, but rather the agreement or understanding under which alleged bribe receiver accepts or agrees to accept benefit; existence of such an agreement or understanding is no less critical for conduct of alleged bribe giver to constitute crime of bribery. McKinney's Penal Law § 200.00.	The "gist" of the crime of bribe receiving "is not the payment of money, but rather the 'agreement or understanding' under which [the alleged bribe receiver] accepts or agrees to accept a benefit." People v. Harper, 75 N.Y.2d 313, 317, 552 N.Y.S.2d 900, 552 N.E.2d 148 (1990) (citations omitted). See also, People v. Alvino, 71 N.Y.2d 233, 525 N.Y.S.2d 7, 519 N.E.2d 808 (1987). The existence of such an agreement or understanding is no less critical for the conduct of the alleged bribe giver to constitute the crime of bribery.	"As an essence or gist of the crimes of bribery, should there be an agreement or understanding under which a witness accepts or agrees to accept a benefit?"
4074	Chesapeake Exploration, L.L.C. v. Energen Resources Corp., 445 S.W.3d 878, 882 (Tex.App.-El Paso, 2014)	6	A habendum clause referring to "said land" extends the lease as to all the leased property while production of oil or gas occurs anywhere on the property during the second term; thus, in the absence of anything in the lease to indicate a contrary intent, production on one tract will operate to perpetuate the lease as to all tracts described therein and covered thereby.	Under Texas law, a habendum clause referring to "said land" extends the lease as to all the leased property while production of oil or gas occurs anywhere on the property during the second term. Ridge Oil Co., Inc. v. Guinn Invs., Inc., 148 S.W.3d 143, 149 (Tex.2004). Thus, "in the absence of anything in the lease to indicate a contrary intent, production on one tract will operate to perpetuate the lease as to all tracts described therein and covered thereby."	"In the absence of anything in the lease to indicate a contrary intent, will production of one tract operate to perpetuate the lease as to all the tracts described?"
4075	Rieff v. Evans, 630 N.W.2d 278, 292 (Iowa, 2001)	22	A plaintiff need not plead ultimate facts that support the elements of the cause of action; however, facts sufficient to apprise the defendant of the incident must be included in the petition in order to provide fair notice of the claim asserted. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 69(a).	We do not require a "pleading of ultimate facts that support the elements of the cause of action; however, facts sufficient to apprise the defendant of the incident must be included in the petition in order to provide 'fair notice' of the claim asserted."	Is it required to plead ultimate facts that support the elements of the cause of action?
4078	Israel v. Flick Mortg. Investors, Inc., 23 So.3d 1196, 1199 (Fla.App. 3 Dist.,2008)	4	A motion to dismiss based on lack of jurisdiction over the person lies when the service of process effected, although proper in manner, is not authorized by a statute that confers jurisdiction.	A motion to dismiss based on lack of jurisdiction over the person lies when the service effected, as here, although proper in manner, is not authorized by the long-arm statute which confers jurisdiction.	Does a motion to dismiss based on lack of jurisdiction over the person lie when the service of process effected is not authorized by a statute that confers jurisdiction?

4079	Abdul-Salaam v. Whole Food Market, Inc., 179 So.3d 846, 848 (La.App. 5 Cir., 2015)	2	Only a named defendant or a party may seek the dismissal of an action based on the plaintiff's failure to request service in a timely manner. LSA-C.C.P. arts. 1201, 1672(C).	1672(C) is clear and unambiguous and we find that it only permits a "named defendant" or a "party" 5 to seek the dismissal of an action based on the plaintiff's failure to request service in a timely manner.	Can only a named defendant or a party seek the dismissal of an action based on the plaintiffs failure to request service in a timely manner?
4080	Kalisch v Maple Trade Finance Corp., 35 A.D.3d 291, 827 N.Y.S.2d 40, 40–41 (N.Y.A.D., 2006)	1	In order to vacate default, plaintiff is required to demonstrate both a reasonable excuse for her failure to appear at a conference and a meritorious cause of action.	In order to vacate her default, plaintiff would be required to demonstrate both a reasonable excuse for her failure to appear at the conference and a meritorious cause of action .	"In order to vacate default, is a plaintiff required to demonstrate both a reasonable excuse for her failure to appear at a conference and a meritorious cause of action?"
4081	Neill v. District of Columbia Public Employee Relations Bd., 93 A.3d 229, 241 (D.C.,2014)	12	At least as a general proposition, dismissal with prejudice is an appropriate sanction only upon clear evidence of deliberate delay or upon a showing of contumacious conduct by the plaintiff. Civil Rule 41(b).	58 "[A]t least as a general proposition, dismissal with prejudice is an appropriate sanction only upon clear evidence of deliberate delay or upon a showing of contumacious conduct by the plaintiff.	"At least as a general proposition, is dismissal with prejudice an appropriate sanction only upon clear evidence of deliberate delay?"
4082	Alpha Rho Zeta of Lambda Chi Alpha, Inc. v. Inhabitants of City of Waterville, 477 A.2d 1131, 1136 (Me.,1984)	4	Right of taxation, i.e. to levy and collect taxes, is an essential attribute of sovereignty and its exercise is necessary to provide essential needs of state government, i.e. to secure such revenue as will be sufficient and indispensable to preservation of public peace, health and safety. 36 M.R.S.A. S 502.	The right of taxation, i.e. to levy and collect taxes, is an essential attribute of sovereignty and its exercise is necessary to provide the essential needs of State government, i.e. to secure such revenue as will be sufficient and indispensable to the preservation of the public peace, health and safety.	Is the right to tax a crucial attribute of sovereignty?
4084	Townsend v. Seurer, 791 F. Supp. 227, 231 (D.Minn., 1992)	3	Feres doctrine bars action against state civilian employees for injuries arising out of activities incident to military service. 42 U.S.C.A. SS 1981, 1983, 1985; Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 12(b)(6), 28 U.S.C.A.	Because this court finds that the Feres doctrine bars an action against state civilian employees under 42 U.S.C. 1981, 1983, and 1985 for injuries arising out of activities incident to military service, defendants' motion for dismissal of plaintiff's federal claims will be granted.	Does the Feres doctrine bar an action against state civilian employees and injuries arising out of activities incidental to military service?
4089	Voltz v. Dyess, 148 So. 3d 425, 427 (Ala. 2014)	5	A failure to effect service within 120 days does not, alone, warrant summary dismissal of an action absent at least 14 days' notice. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 4(b).	Under Rule 4(b), a failure to effect service within 120 days does not, alone, warrant summary dismissal absent at least 14 days' notice.	"Does a failure to effect service within 120 days not, alone, warrant summary dismissal of an action absent at least 14 days' notice?"
4090	Speer v. Presbyterian Children's Home & Serv. Agency, 847 S.W.2d 227, 229 (Ga.App., 2012)	2	Dismissal of appeal for mootness is not ruling on merits; rather, court's duty to dismiss moot cases arises from proper respect for judicial branch's unique constitutional role to decide contested cases. Vernon's Ann.Texas Const. Art. 2, S 1.	We do nothing of the kind. Dismissal for mootness is not a ruling on the merits. Rather, the court's duty to dismiss moot cases arises from a proper respect for the judicial branch's unique role under our constitution: to decide contested cases.	Is it a court's duty to dismiss a case as moot arises from a proper respect for the judicial branch's unique role?

4096	Appeal of Boeing Co., 930 P.2d 1366, 1371, 261 Kan. 508, 516 (Kan.,1997)	10	"General taxes" are exactions placed upon citizens by taxing authorities for support of government while "special assessments" are imposed upon property within limited area for payment of special or local improvements.	The former are exactions placed upon the citizens by the taxing authorities for the support of the government while the latter are imposed upon property within a limited area for payment of special or local improvements."	"Are ""general taxes"" exactions placed upon citizens by taxing authorities for support of government?"
4097	Miron v. BDO Seidman, LLP, 342 F.Supp.2d 324, 333 (E.D.Pa., 2004)	14	Traditional theory of equitable estoppel allows signatories of arbitration agreements to impose arbitration on non-signatories when the non-signatory knowingly embraces, exploits, or receives the benefits of the agreement containing the arbitration clause, despite having never signed it.	With respect to equitable estoppel, there are two theories of estoppel under which the Deutsche Bank Defendants may be able to compel arbitration. The first and more traditional theory allows signatories to impose arbitration on non-signatories when the non-signatory knowingly embraces, exploits, or receives the benefits of the agreement containing the arbitration clause, despite having never signed it.	Does the traditional theory of equitable estoppel allow signatories of arbitration agreements to impose arbitration on non-signatories?
4098	Oluwabukola Olawoye v. Olufisayo Arubuola, 198 So.3d 1086, 1088 (Fla.App. 1 Dist., 2016)	2	Trial courts exercise discretion in sanctioning a party for failure to attend a pretrial conference, and striking that party's pleadings is an available punishment; however, the severe sanction of striking pleadings and entering a default must be supported by an express finding in the order that the party's conduct was willful and contumacious. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.200(c).	Trial courts exercise discretion in sanctioning a party for failure to attend a pretrial conference, and striking that party's pleadings is an available punishment. Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.200(c). However, the severe sanction of striking pleadings and entering a default must be supported by an express finding in the order "that the party's conduct was willful and contumacious." Schneider v.	"Do trial courts exercise discretion in sanctioning a party for failure to attend a pretrial conference, and striking that party's pleadings is an available punishment?"
4099	Schindler v. Bank of New York Mellon Trust Co., 190 So.3d 102, 104 (Fla.App. 4 Dist., 2015)	4	Prior to exercising its discretion to grant dismissal based on failure to comply with a court order, the court must make a finding that the failure to comply was willful or contumacious. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(b).	Additionally, "[p]rior to exercising its discretion to grant dismissal based on failure to comply with a court order, the court must make a finding that the failure to comply was willful or contumacious."	"Prior to exercising its discretion to grant dismissal based on failure to comply with a court order, should the court make a finding that the failure to comply was willful or contumacious?"
4100	Ruddock v. Burrowes, 243 Conn. 569, 577-84 (1998)	6	Consent to dismissal of action may be inferred from plaintiff's failure to file memorandum in opposition to defendant's motion to strike, or from plaintiff's inordinate delay in appointing administrator or executor.	Baker v. Baningoso, supra, 134 Conn. at 387, 58 A.2d 5; or consented to its dismissal. Such consent may be inferred from a plaintiff's failure to file a memorandum in opposition to a defendant's motion to strike; Hughes v. Berner, 206 Conn. 491, 495, 538 A.2d 703 (1988); or from a plaintiff's inordinate delay in appointing an administrator or executor.	Can consent to dismissal of action be inferred from plaintiff's failure to file memorandum in opposition to defendant's motion to strike?

4103	Old Home Enterprise v. Fleming, 20 Neb. App. 705, 705 (2013)	4	The only way to ensure that an unserved action stands dismissed is to hold that such dismissal occurs by operation of law, without predicate action by the trial court. West's Neb.Rev.St. S 25-217.	The only way to ensure that an unserved action stands dismissed, as required by statute, is to hold that such dismissal occurs by operation of law, without predicate action by the trial court.	"Is without predicate action by a trial court, the only way to ensure that an unserved action stands dismissed to hold that such dismissal occurs by operation of law?"
4104	Vidal v. Perez, 720 So. 2d 605, 606 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1998)	3	Trial judge has broad discretion in declining to dismiss an action if reasonable cause for the failure to effect timely service is documented.	"The trial judge has broad discretion in declining to dismiss an action if reasonable cause for the failure to effect timely service is documented." Morales v. Sperry Rand Corp., 601 So.2d 538, 540 (Fla.1992).	Does a trial judge have broad discretion in declining to dismiss an action if reasonable cause for the failure to effect timely service is documented?
4108	Consol Pennsylvania Coal Co., LLC v. Department of Environmental Protection, 129 A.3d 28, 39 (Pa.Cmwlt., 2015)	6	The existence of a case or controversy requires a real and not a hypothetical legal controversy and one that affects another in a concrete manner so as to provide a factual predicate for reasoned adjudication, with sufficiently adverse parties to sharpen the issues for judicial resolution.	"[T]he existence of a case or controversy requires a real and not a hypothetical legal controversy and one that affects another in a concrete manner so as to provide a factual predicate for reasoned adjudication, with sufficiently adverse parties to sharpen the issues for judicial resolution.	Will a court dismiss an action as moot unless an actual case or controversy exists at all stages of the judicial or administrative process?
4110	Armstrong v. Elmore, 990 S.W.2d 62, 64 (Mo.App. W.D.,1999)	4	The existence of an actual and vital controversy susceptible of some relief is essential to appellate jurisdiction, and, when an event occurs that makes a court's decision unnecessary or makes granting effectual relief by the court impossible, the case is moot and generally should be dismissed.	"The existence of an actual and vital controversy susceptible of some relief is essential to appellate jurisdiction." State ex rel. Wilson v. Murray, 955 S.W.2d 811, 812-813 (Mo.App. W.D.1997). When an event occurs that makes a court's decision unnecessary or makes granting effectual relief by the court impossible, the case is moot and generally should be dismissed.	Is a case moot and to be dismissed where an event occurs that makes a court's decision unnecessary or makes granting effectual relief by the court impossible?
4111	Jones v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc., 604 So.2d 332, 341 (Ala. 1991)	15	Dismissal for failure to comply with court order is warranted where there is clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct by plaintiff. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	Although dismissal for failure to comply with a court order is a "harsh sanction," it is warranted where there is a "clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff."	"Is dismissal for failure to comply with a court order warranted where there is clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct by plaintiff?"
4112	Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital v. Feil, 75 Ill.App.3d 438, 443-44 (1979)	3	Dismissal of a complaint as a sanction for noncompliance with orders of the court is proper only where a party has shown a deliberate, contumacious and unwarranted disregard for the court's authority. Supreme Court Rules, rule 201(e), S.H.A. ch. 110A, S 201(e).	Dismissal of a complaint as a sanction for noncompliance with orders of the court is proper only where a party has shown a deliberate, contumacious and unwarranted disregard for the court's authority (Swedien v. Hadley School For The Blind (1979), 70 Ill.App.3d 466, 27 Ill.Dec.	"Is dismissal of a complaint as a sanction for noncompliance with orders of the court proper only where a party has shown a deliberate, contumacious and unwarranted disregard for the court's authority?"

4113	Brown v. Kidney and Hypertension Associates, L.L.P., 5 So.3d 258, 265, 2008-0919 La.App. 1 Cir. 1/12/09, 8 (La.App. 1 Cir.,2009)	8	The mere intention to take a step in the prosecution or defense of a claim without having actually taken such a step is insufficient to interrupt the abandonment period. LSA-C.C.P. art. 561.	Nevertheless, the mere intention to take a step in the prosecution or defense of a claim without having actually taken such a step is insufficient to interrupt the abandonment period.	Is the mere intention to take a step in the prosecution or defense of a claim without having actually taken such a step insufficient to interrupt the abandonment period?
4115	Ramey v. Haverty Furniture Companies, Inc., 993 So.2d 1014, 1018 (Fla.App. 2 Dist.,2008)	2	Trial court has the inherent authority to dismiss an action as a sanction when the plaintiff has perpetrated a fraud on the court, and such power is indispensable to the proper administration of justice because no litigant has a right to trifle with the courts; however, it is a power which should be exercised cautiously and sparingly, and only upon a clear showing of fraud, pretense, collusion, or similar wrongdoing.	"[A] trial court has the inherent authority to dismiss an action as a sanction when the plaintiff has perpetrated a fraud on the court." "Such power is indispensable to the proper administration of justice, because no litigant has a right to trifle with the courts. It is a power, however, which should be exercised cautiously and sparingly, and only upon a clear showing of fraud, pretense, collusion, or similar wrongdoing."	Do trial courts have the inherent authority to dismiss an action as a sanction when it learns that a plaintiff has perpetrated a fraud on the court?
4116	Martinez v. Thaler, 931 S.W.2d 45, 46 (Tex. App. 1996), writ denied (Mar. 21, 1997)	2	Trial courts have broad discretion in dismissing in forma pauperis actions they find to be frivolous; abuse of discretion occurs if trial court acts arbitrarily, capriciously, and without reference to any guiding rules or principles.	Trial courts have broad discretion in dismissing in forma pauperis actions they find to be frivolous. Thomas v. Texas Dept. of Criminal Justice, Institut. Div., 848 S.W.2d 797, 798 (Tex.App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1993, writ denied). An abuse of discretion occurs if the trial court acts arbitrarily, capriciously, and without reference to any guiding rules or principles.	Do courts have broad discretion in dismissing in forma pauperis suits they find to be frivolous?
4117	Turner v. Marine Inland Transp. Co., 08-594 (La. App. 5 Cir. 1/13/09), 7 So. 3d 756, 757, writ denied, 2009-0335 (La. 4/3/09), 6 So. 3d 777	1	A party takes a "step" in the prosecution or defense of the action, for purposes of abandonment, when he takes formal action on the record of the case before the court or initiates formal discovery intended to hasten the matter to judgment. LSA-C.C. art. 591.	As discussed in Turner, supra, La.Code Civ. Pro. Art. 591 requires three things to defeat a motion to dismiss based on abandonment. First, a party must take some "step" in the prosecution or defense of the action; second, this step must be done on the record of the suit except for formal discovery; and third, the "step" must be made within three years of the last "step." A party takes a "step" in the prosecution or defense of the action when he takes formal action on the record of the case before the court or initiates formal discovery intended to hasten the matter to judgment.	"Does a party take a ""step"" in the prosecution or defense of an action when he takes formal action before the court intended to hasten the matter to judgment?"

4118	Childs v. Huff, 586 So.2d 939, 940–41 (Ala.Civ.App.,1991)	1	Decision whether to allow testimony of witnesses not disclosed as directed in pretrial order is generally matter within sound discretion of trial court and will not be reversed on appeal absent any abuse.	The name of the witness had not been disclosed as directed in the pretrial order. The decision whether to allow *941 the testimony of such witness is generally a matter within the sound discretion of the trial court and will not be reversed on appeal absent any abuse.	Is the decision whether to allow testimony of witnesses within sound discretion of trial court and will not be disturbed absent abuse of that discretion?
4120	Jarecki Mfg. Co. v. Merriam, 104 Kan. 646, 180 P. 224, 225 (1919)	9	While involuntary dismissal of an action is disfavored, it is justified when a party's refusal to obey the trial court's order was willful or deliberate and substantially prejudiced the other party. CR 41(b).	While dismissal is disfavored, it is justified when a party's refusal to obey the trial court's order was willful or deliberate and substantially prejudiced the other party.	"While involuntary dismissal of an action is disfavored, is it justified when a party's refusal to obey the trial court's order was willful or deliberate and substantially prejudiced the other party?"
4121	Cherubino v. Fenstersheib and Fox, P.A., 925 So.2d 1066, 1068 (Fla.App. 4 Dist.,2006)	2	Although a dismissal imposed as a sanction is reviewed under an abuse of discretion standard, the trial court's discretion is narrowed where dismissal is imposed for fraudulent conduct, in which a more stringent abuse of discretion standard is appropriate; such sanction may be imposed only on a clear showing of fraud, pretense, collusion, or similar wrongdoing.	Although a dismissal imposed as a sanction is reviewed under an abuse of discretion standard, the trial court's discretion is narrowed where dismissal is imposed for fraudulent conduct such as that alleged here, in which a more stringent abuse of discretion standard is appropriate. Such sanction may be imposed only on a "clear showing of fraud, pretense, collusion, or similar wrongdoing."	"Although a dismissal imposed as a sanction is reviewed under an abuse of discretion standard, is the trial court's discretion narrowed where dismissal is imposed for fraudulent conduct?"
4122	Lee v. Labor & Industry Review Com'n, 202 Wis.2d 558, 562–63 (Wis.App.,1996)	4	Circuit courts have both statutory authority and inherent authority to dismiss action if party seeking judicial relief fails to obey court orders.	Circuit courts have both *563 statutory authority and the inherent authority to dismiss an action if the party seeking judicial relief fails to obey court orders.	Do circuit courts have both statutory authority and inherent authority to dismiss action if a party seeking judicial relief fails to obey court orders?
4123	Graham v. City of Fort Worth, 75 S.W.2d 930, 933 (Tex. App. 1934)	7	Courts in inquiring into power of municipality to impose a tax apply rule of strict construction against existence of power, but when general power is conceded, or is clearly shown to exist, and inquiry arises on question of exemption from taxation, rule of strict construction is applied against exemption.	It is true that when a judicial inquiry arises as to the power of a municipality, or even the state, to impose a tax, the rule of strict construction is applied against the existence of such power, but when the general power is conceded, or is clearly shown to exist, and the inquiry arises upon a question of exemption from taxation, the rule of strict construction is applied against such exemption.	Do courts in inquiring into power of state to impose a tax apply rule of strict construction against existence of power?

4124	Nye v. Industrial Claim Appeals Office of State of Colo., 883 P.2d 607, 609–10 (Colo.App.,1994)	11	There is no constitutionally protected civil right in workers' compensation benefits; statutory benefits created or allowed under workers' compensation scheme exist only to extent allowed and intended by applicable statute and legislation prospectively limiting or rescinding benefits does not deprive persons of constitutionally protected property interest.	There is no constitutionally protected civil right in workers' compensation benefits. Tomsha v. City of Colorado Springs, 856 P.2d 13 (Colo.App.1992). Statutory benefits created or allowed under the workers' compensation scheme exist only to the extent allowed and intended by applicable statutes, and legislation prospectively limiting or rescinding benefits does not deprive persons of *610 constitutionally protected property interests.	To what extent do statutory benefits under workers compensation exist?
4127	Kedzie & 103rd Currency Exch., Inc. v. Hodge, 156 Ill. 2d 112, 115, 619 N.E.2d 732, 735 (1993)	1	Statute governing involuntary dismissal based upon defects or defenses affords means of obtaining summary disposition of issues of law or of easily proved issues of fact, with reservation of jury trial as to disputed questions of fact. Ill.Rev.Stat.1989, ch. 110, P 2-619.	Generally, section 2–619 affords a “means of obtaining * * * a summary disposition of issues of law or of easily proved issues of fact, with a reservation of jury trial as to disputed questions of fact.”	Can the statute governing involuntary dismissal afford a means of obtaining summary disposition of issues of law or of easily proven issues of fact?
4130	Endless Ocean, LLC v. Twomey, Latham, Shea, Kelley, Dubin & Quartararo, 113 A.D.3d 587, 588, 979 N.Y.S.2d 84 (2014)	2	A motion to dismiss a complaint based on documentary evidence may be granted only if the documentary evidence submitted by the moving party utterly refutes the factual allegations of the complaint, conclusively establishing a defense as a matter of law. McKinney's CPLR 3211(a)(1).	A motion to dismiss a complaint pursuant to CPLR 3211 (a) (1) may be granted only if the documentary evidence submitted by the moving party utterly refutes the factual allegations of the complaint, “conclusively establishing a defense as a matter of law” (Goshen v Mutual Life Ins. Co. of N.Y., 98 NY2d 314, 326 [2002]).	Can a motion to dismiss a complaint based on documentary evidence be granted?
4135	Moransais v. Jordan, 870 So.2d 177, 179 (Fla.App. 2 Dist.,2004)	2	The "record activity" required to survive dismissal of an action for lack of prosecution must be more than a mere passive effort to keep the case on the docket; the activity must constitute an affirmative act calculated to hasten the suit to judgment. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(e).	However, regardless of the lack of qualifying language in the rule, the supreme court has repeatedly declared that the "record activity" required by rule 1.420(e) must be more than a mere passive effort to keep the case on the docket; the activity must constitute an affirmative act calculated to hasten the suit to judgment.	"Should ""record activity"" be more than mere passive effort to keep the case on the docket?"
4138	Kanady v. State, 810 N.E.2d 1068, 1069–70 (Ind.App.,2004)	2	To convict a person of child molesting as a Class C felony, the state must prove the defendant (1) with a child under the age of 14, (2) performed or submitted to any fondling or touching, (3) of either the child or the older person, (4) with intent to arouse or satisfy the sexual desires of the child or the older person. West's A.I.C. 35-42-4-3(b).	In order to convict a person of child molesting as a Class C felony, the State must prove the defendant (1) with a child under fourteen, (2) performed or submitted to any fondling or touching, (3) of either the child or the older person, (4) with intent to arouse or satisfy the sexual desires of the child or the older person. Ind.Code 35-42-4-3(b).	What must the State prove in a prosecution for Class C felony child molesting?

4139	Gannon v. Chicago, M., St. P. & P. Ry. Co., 13 Ill.2d 460, 463 (Ill. 1958)	5	Workmen's compensation act establishes system of liability without fault, designed to distribute the cost of industrial injuries without regard to common-law doctrines of negligence, contributory negligence, assumption of risk, and the like.	To that end it established a system of liability without fault, designed to distribute the cost of industrial injuries without regard to common-law doctrines of negligence, contributory negligence, assumption of risk, and the like.	Does the Workers Compensation Act establish a system of liability without fault?
4140	United States v. Bittinger, 434 F.2d 49, 50-51 (C.A.4 (Va.), 1970)	2	Registrant's status in his church hierarchy may be evidence that he is not a minister as defined by selective service law, but it is not conclusive and whether a registrant is entitled to ministerial classification is matter to be determined largely on basis of his actual duties and functions.	Defendant's status in his church hierarchy may be evidence that he is not a minister as defined by law, but it is not conclusive. Whether a *51 Vacation Pioneer, or a holder of any other rank, is entitled to a ministerial classification is a matter to be determined largely on the basis of his actual duties and functions.	Can the status of a registrant in their church hierarchy be considered as conclusive in a local board's determination that he is not entitled to a ministerial exemption?
4141	James Talcott, Inc. v. Shulman, 82 N.J.Super. 438, 442 (N.J.Super.A.D., 1964)	1	A negotiable promissory note executed prior to effective date of Uniform Commercial Code was governed by the pre-existing Negotiable Instruments Law. R.S. 7:1-1 et seq., N.J.S.A.; N.J.S. 12A:1-101 et seq., 12A:10-101, N.J.S.A.	It is to be noted that the negotiable promissory note, which is the subject matter of plaintiff's action, was executed prior to January 1, 1963, the effective date of the Uniform Commercial Code, L.1961, c. 120; N.J.S. 12A: 1-101 et seq., N.J.S.A., and thus is governed by R.S. 7:1-1 et seq., N.J.S.A., the pre-existing Negotiable Instruments Law. See N.J.S. 12A:10-101, N.J.S.A.	When did the Uniform Commercial Code come into effect replacing the pre-existing Negotiable Instruments Law?
4144	Multiple Use, Inc. v. Morton, 353 F.Supp. 184, 190-91 (D.C.Ariz., 1972)	12	In determining, on application for patent of mining claim, whether mineral deposit is valuable, Secretary of Interior may require a showing that there is a reasonable expectation based on circumstances known at that time that mineral can be extracted, removed and marketed at a profit; and though it need not be proved that claim can in fact be operated at a profit, evidence as to costs of mining may be considered in determining whether person of ordinary prudence would be justified in further investment of labor and capital. 30 U.S.C.A. SS 22, 23.	In determining whether a mineral deposit is valuable, the Secretary may require a showing that there is a reasonable expectation based upon the circumstances known at that time that the mineral can be extracted, removed and marketed at a profit. Coleman, supra. It need not be proved that the claim can in fact be operated at a profit, but the evidence as to costs of mining may be considered in determining *191 whether a person of ordinary prudence would be justified in the further investment of labor and capital.	"Does the Secretary require a showing from the mining claimant that the mineral can be extracted, removed, and marketed at a profit?"
4145	Belden & Blake Corp. v. Com., Dept. of Conservation and Natural Resources, 969 A.2d 528, 532, 600 Pa. 559, 566 (Pa., 2009)	6	One who has the exclusive right to mine coal upon a tract of land has the right of possession even as against the owner of the soil, so far as it is necessary to carry on mining operations.	"One who has the exclusive right to mine coal upon a tract of land has the right of possession even as against the owner of the soil, so far as it is necessary to carry on ... mining operations."	Does one who has the exclusive right to mine coal upon a tract of land have the right of possession even as against the owner of the soil?

4148	Lake Meredith Reservoir Co. v. Amity Mut. Irr. Co., 698 P.2d 1340, 1345 (Colo.,1985)	10	Whether plaintiff has resumed prosecution after lengthy delay should be important factor in trial court's consideration of motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute, but unilateral resumption of prosecution should not insulate plaintiff from dismissal for lack of prosecution as matter of law and in all circumstances. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b)(1, 2).	Whether a plaintiff has resumed prosecution after a lengthy delay should be an important factor in the trial court's consideration of a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute. Nevertheless, a unilateral resumption of prosecution should not insulate a plaintiff from dismissal for lack of prosecution as a matter of law and in all circumstances.	Should a unilateral resumption of prosecution not insulate a plaintiff from dismissal for lack of prosecution?
4149	Weaver v. The Ctr. Bus., 578 So. 2d 427, 429 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1991)	2	Almost any discovery effort filed of record will preclude dismissal for failure to prosecute, unless effort is patently repetitious; court will no longer inquire how well effort advances cause. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(e).	Almost any discovery effort filed of record (unless patently repetitious) will preclude dismissal and a court can no longer inquire how well it advances the cause.	"Will almost any discovery effort filed of record preclude dismissal for failure to prosecute, unless effort is patently repetitious?"
4150	Florez v. City of Miami, 858 So.2d 378, 379 (Fla.App. 3 Dist.,2003)	3	A trial court has discretion to dismiss an action when the only record activity for the previous year was "bad faith activity," which means activity that is frivolous or clearly useless to further prosecute the case.	A trial court "has discretion to dismiss an action when the only record activity for the previous year was bad faith activity, which means activity that is 'frivolous or clearly useless' to further prosecute the case."	"Does a trial court have discretion to dismiss an action when the only record activity for the previous year was a ""bad faith activity""?"
4152	Kuykendall v. Schneidewind, 79 N.E.3d 770, 779 (Ill.App. 5 Dist., 2017)	6	On motion to dismiss on ground that claim is barred by affirmative matter, defendant has initial burden of establishing that affirmative matter defeats plaintiff's claim, and if satisfied, burden shifts to plaintiff to demonstrate that proffered affirmative matter is either unfounded, or requires resolution of material fact. 735 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 5/2-619(a)(9).	The defendant has the initial burden of establishing that an affirmative matter defeats the plaintiff's claim, and if satisfied, the burden shifts to the plaintiff to demonstrate that the proffered affirmative matter is either unfounded, or requires the resolution of a material fact.	Does a defendant bear the initial burden to prove the affirmative matter defeating the plaintiff's claim?
4153	Clennan v. Shinseki, 26 Vet.App. 144, 154 (Vet.App.,2013)	2	A veteran's entitlement to veterans benefits is a property interest protected by the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	In this regard, it is now well established that a veteran's "entitlement to [VA] benefits is a property interest protected by the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution.	Is a veteran's entitlement to veterans benefits a property interest protected by the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution?
4155	Duncan v. Sikorsky Support Services, 736 So.2d 613, 615 (Ala.Civ.App.,1998)	3	Although involuntary dismissal is a harsh sanction, it is warranted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default, or contumacious conduct of the plaintiff; no wrongful motive or intent is necessary to show willful conduct. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	Although a Rule 41(b) dismissal is a harsh sanction, it is warranted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default, or contumacious conduct of the plaintiff. Id. No wrongful motive or intent is necessary to show willful conduct. Id. [4] A Rule 41(b) dismissal is a matter within the discretion of the trial court and will be reversed on appeal only if an abuse of discretion is shown.	Is wrongful motive or intent necessary to show plaintiff's willful conduct supporting dismissal for want of prosecution?

4156	Koutroulis v. Centennial Healthcare Corp., 38,068 (La. App. 2 Cir. 4/14/10), 34 So. 3d 503, 506	3	An action should not be dismissed on grounds of abandonment if a plaintiff has clearly demonstrated before the court that he does not intend to abandon the action; however, a plaintiff's intention to take a step in the prosecution of his claim without a step actually being taken is not sufficient to preclude a finding of abandonment.	An action should not be dismissed if a plaintiff has clearly demonstrated before the court that he does not intend to abandon the action. Clark, supra; Moore v. Eden Gardens Nursing Center, 37,362 (La.App.2d Cir.06/25/03), 850 So.2d 998. However, a plaintiff's intention to take a step in the prosecution of his claim without a step actually being taken is not sufficient to preclude a finding of abandonment.	Was the article allowing dismissal of action for abandonment meant to dismiss those cases in which a plaintiff has clearly demonstrated before the court that she does not intend to abandon the action?
4157	People v. Hanley, 50 Ill.App.3d 651, 659 (1977)	18	Attempt rape includes every element of crime of rape except penetration, and to commit this offense male must intend to accomplish intercourse by force and against female's will and must take a substantial step toward accomplishing his purpose.	Attempt rape includes every element of the crime of rape except penetration, and to commit this offense the male must intend to accomplish intercourse by force and against the female's will and must take a substantial step toward accomplishing his purpose.	Does attempted rape include every element of the crime of rape?
4158	Evans-Marshall v. Board of Educ. of Tipp City Exempted Village School Dist., 624 F.3d 332, 344 (C.A.6 (Ohio),2010)	12	Universities occupy a special niche in the constitutional tradition, and the constitutional rules applicable in higher education do not necessarily apply in primary and secondary schools, where students generally do not choose whether or where they will attend school.	"[U]niversities occupy a special niche in our constitutional tradition" and the constitutional rules applicable in higher education do not necessarily apply in primary and secondary schools, where students generally do not choose whether or where they will attend school.	Do the constitutional rules applicable in higher education apply in primary and secondary schools?
4159	Tims v. City of Jackson, 823 So. 2d 602, 604 (Miss.App., 2002)	2	Because no time limits exist once a complaint has been filed, a dismissal for failure to prosecute will only be upheld in circumstances where the record shows that a plaintiff is guilty of dilatory or contumacious conduct. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	Because no time limits exist once a complaint has been filed, a dismissal for failure to prosecute will only be upheld in circumstances "where the record shows that a plaintiff is guilty of dilatory or contumacious conduct."	Will dismissal for failure to prosecute is upheld only where the record shows that plaintiff has been guilty of dilatory or contumacious conduct?
4160	Fillmore v. Taylor, 2017 IL App (4th) 160309, ¶ 30, 80 N.E.3d 835, 843, aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 2019 IL 122626, ¶ 30, 137 N.E.3d 779	1	On a motion for dismissal with respect to pleadings, the question is whether the complaint states a cause of action for the forms of relief that the plaintiff sought in his complaint. 735 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 5/2-615.	Because the motion for dismissal was pursuant to section 2-615 of the Code of Civil Procedure (735 ILCS 5/2-615 (West 2016)), the question is whether the complaint states a cause of action for mandamus, declaratory relief, or a common-law writ of certiorari: the three forms of relief that plaintiff sought in the three counts of his complaint.	"On a motion for dismissal with respect to pleadings, is the question whether the complaint states a cause of action for the forms of relief that the plaintiff sought in his complaint?"

4161	Qwest Corporation v. Colorado Division of Property Taxation, 304 P.3d 217, 221 (Colo., 2013)	3	A motion to dismiss a complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted serves as a test of the formal sufficiency of a plaintiff's complaint. Colo. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(5)	A motion under C.R.C.P. 12(b)(5) "to dismiss [a complaint] for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted serves as a test of the formal sufficiency of a plaintiff's complaint."	Does a motion to dismiss a complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted serve as a test of the formal sufficiency of a plaintiff's complaint?
4162	Charter One Mortg. Corp. v. Condra, 865 N.E.2d 602, 604 (Ind.,2007)	2	A motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim tests the legal sufficiency of the claim, not the facts supporting it; thus, appellate review of a trial court's grant or denial of a motion to dismiss is de novo. Trial Procedure Rule 12(B)(6).	A motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim tests the legal sufficiency of the claim, not the facts supporting it. Hosler ex rel. Hosler v. Caterpillar, Inc., 710 N.E.2d 193, 196 (Ind.Ct.App.1999), trans. denied. Thus, our review of a trial court's grant or denial of a motion based on Trial Rule 12(B)(6) is de novo.	"Does a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim test the legal sufficiency of the complaint, not the facts supporting it?"
4163	Barksdale v. H.O. Engen, Inc., 237 S.E.2d 794, 796, 218 Va. 496, 498 (Va. 1977)	2	Right to recover under Workmen's Compensation Act, which is not based on negligence and is not barred by common-law tort defenses of contributory negligence, negligence of a fellow servant, or assertion of risk, is a purely statutory right unknown at common law. Code 1950, S 65.1-87.	The right to recover under the Workmen's Compensation Act, which is not based on negligence and is not barred by common law tort defenses of contributory negligence, negligence of a fellow servant, or assumption of risk, is a purely statutory right unknown at common law.	Is the right to recover under the Compensation Act a purely statutory right unknown at common law?
4166	Streu v. City of Colorado Springs ex rel. Colorado Springs Utilities, 239 P.3d 1264, 1268 (Colo., 2010)	7	When evaluating a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute, a court should consider: (1) the length of the delay; (2) the reason for the delay; (3) any prejudice that may result to other parties; (4) any difficulties in trying the case that may have resulted from the delay; and (5) the extent to which the applicant has renewed efforts to prosecute the case.	We have articulated several nonexclusive factors that a court should consider when evaluating a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute. These factors include: the length of the delay; the reason for the delay; any prejudice that may result to other parties; any difficulties in trying the case that may have resulted from the delay; and the extent to which the applicant has renewed efforts to prosecute the case.	What should a court consider when evaluating a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute?
4167	Connaughton v. Chipotle Mexican Grill, Inc., 29 N.Y.3d 137, 144, 75 N.E.3d 1159, 1164 (2017)	10	The mere hope that discovery might provide some factual support for a cause of action is insufficient to avoid dismissal of a patently defective cause of action.	"[T]he mere hope that discovery might provide some factual support for a cause of action is insufficient to avoid dismissal of a patently defective cause of action" (Mandarin Trading Ltd. v. Wildenstein, 65 A.D.3d 448, 451, 884 N.Y.S.2d 47 [1st Dept.2009] [citation omitted]).	Is the mere hope that discovery might provide some factual support for a cause of action insufficient to avoid dismissal of a patently defective cause of action?

4168	Ivory Dev., LLC v. Roe, 135 A.D.3d 1216, 1218–19, 25 N.Y.S.3d 686, 690 (2016)	1	A plaintiff may submit affidavits in opposition to a motion to dismiss a cause of action to rectify defects in an inartfully pleaded complaint, and such affidavits must be given their most favorable intendment. McKinney's CPLR 3211.	A plaintiff may submit affidavits in opposition to a CPLR 3211 motion to rectify defects in an inartfully pleaded complaint, and such affidavits must be "given their most favorable intendment" (Cron v. Hargro Fabrics, 91 N.Y.2d 362, 366, 670 N.Y.S.2d 973, 694 N.E.2d 56 [1998] [internal quotation marks and citation omitted]).	Can a plaintiff submit affidavits in opposition to a motion to dismiss to rectify defects in an inartfully pleaded complaint?
4169	Bramon v. U-Haul, Inc., 945 S.W.2d 676, 679 (Mo.App. E.D., 1997)	5	When ruling on sufficiency of facts pleaded to state a claim, court must consider whether material and essential allegations have not been made, and where petition contains only conclusions and does not contain ultimate facts or any allegations from which to infer those facts, motion to dismiss is properly granted.	When ruling on the sufficiency of the facts pleaded to state a claim, we must consider whether material and essential allegations have not been made. Id. Where a petition contains only conclusions and does not contain the ultimate facts or any allegations from which to infer those facts a motion to dismiss is properly granted.	"In ruling on the sufficiency of the facts pleaded to state a claim, do courts consider whether material and essential allegations have not been made?"
4170	Shope v. Eagle, 551 Pa. 360, 365 (1998)	1	Motion for a "judgment of non pros" is the vehicle by which a litigant asserts his or her common law right to a reasonably prompt conclusion to a case.	A motion for a judgment of non pros is the vehicle by which a litigant asserts his or her common law right to a reasonably prompt conclusion to a case.	"Is motion for a ""judgment of non pros"" the vehicle by which a litigant asserts his or her common law right to a reasonably prompt conclusion to a case?"
4171	Matter of Reyes Compania Naviera S.A., 649 F.Supp. 789, 792 (S.D.N.Y.,1986)	2	Even if original arbitration clause is not broad enough to cover particular claim, parties may evince subsequent agreement for private settlement which would cure any defect in arbitration clause.	Even if an original arbitration clause is not broad enough to cover a particular claim, the parties may "evinc[e] a subsequent agreement for private settlement which would cure any defect in the arbitration clause."	Does evincing a subsequent agreement for private settlement cure any defect in the arbitration clause?
4172	Doherty v. Teamsters Pension Trust Fund of Philadelphia and Vicinity, 16 F.3d 1386, 1393 (C.A.3 (N.J.), 1994)	12	Equitable tolling of time limit for arbitration may be appropriate where defendant has actively misled plaintiff respecting cause of action, plaintiff has in some extraordinary way been prevented from asserting his rights, or plaintiff has raised precise statutory claim in issue but mistakenly done so in wrong forum.	We have stated that equitable tolling may be appropriate at least where "the defendant has actively misled the plaintiff respecting the cause of action," "the plaintiff has in some extraordinary way been prevented from asserting his rights," or "the plaintiff has raised the precise statutory claim in issue but has mistakenly done so in the wrong forum."	Under what circumstances is equitable tolling considered appropriate?
4175	Betancourt v. Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., 344 F.Supp.2d 1253, 1260 (D.Colo., 2004)	10	There is no right under TILA to rescind a loan transaction when the loan at issue involves the creation of a first lien to finance the acquisition of a dwelling in which the customer resides or expects to reside. Truth in Lending Act, S 125(a), (e)(1), as amended, 15 U.S.C.A. S 1635(a), (e)(1).	Thus, there is no statutory right of rescission under 15 U.S.C. 1535(e) where the loan at issue involves the creation of a first lien to finance the acquisition of a dwelling in which the customer resides or expects to reside.	Is there any right to rescind a loan transaction when the loan at issue involves the creation of a first lien to finance the acquisition of a dwelling in which the customer resides or expects to reside?

4176	No-Dent Properties, Inc. v. Comm'r of Town of Hempstead Dep't of Highways, 138 A.D.3d 702, 703, 29 N.Y.S.3d 465, 466 (2016)	1	Highway Law provision setting forth a six-year limitation on the life of an unused public easement does not apply when a town has acquired a fee to the land in question. McKinney's Highway Law § 205(1).	Highway Law § 205(1) "sets forth a six-year limitation on the life of an unused public easement" (Perlmutter v. Four Star Dev. Assoc., 38 A.D.3d 1139, 1141, 833 N.Y.S.2d 679; see New York Cent. & Hudson Riv. R.R. Co. v. City of Buffalo, 200 N.Y. 113, 120, 93 N.E. 520). It does not apply where a town has acquired a fee to the land in question (see Perlmutter v. Four Star Dev. Assoc., 38 A.D.3d at 1141, 833 N.Y.S.2d 679).	Does a limitation on the life of an unused public easement apply where a town has acquired a fee to the land in question?
4177	Patel v. Home Depot USA, Inc., 2012 IL App (1st) 103217, ¶ 10, 964 N.E.2d 1288, 1291	4	In ruling on a motion to dismiss filed under statute governing motions with respect to the pleadings, the court must accept as true all well-pled facts in the complaint and all reasonable inferences which can be drawn therefrom. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-615.	In ruling on a section 2–615 motion to dismiss, the court must accept as true all well-pled facts in the complaint and all reasonable inferences which can be drawn therefrom.	"In ruling on a motion to dismiss filed under statute governing motions with respect to the pleadings, should the court accept as true all well-pled facts in the complaint?"
4178	Schopp v. Matlock, 880 S.W.2d 357, 359 (Mo.App. E.D. 1994)	8	Decision to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction is question of fact left to sound discretion of trial court and will not be reversed on appeal absent abuse of discretion.	The decision to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction is a question of fact left to the sound discretion of the trial court and will not be reversed on appeal absent an abuse of discretion.	Is whether there is subject matter jurisdiction a question of fact left to the sound discretion of the trial court on a motion to dismiss?
4179	Grewell v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., Inc., 102 S.W.3d 33, 36 (Mo. 2003)	4	In a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action, no attempt is made to weigh any facts alleged as to whether they are credible or persuasive; instead, the petition is reviewed in an almost academic manner, to determine if the facts alleged meet the elements of a recognized cause of action, or of a cause that might be adopted in that case.	No attempt is made to weigh any facts alleged as to whether they are credible or persuasive. Instead, the petition is reviewed in an almost academic manner, to determine if the facts alleged meet the elements of a recognized cause of action, or of a cause that might be adopted in that case.	"In a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action, is any attempt made to weigh any facts alleged as to whether they are credible or persuasive?"
4180	Montgomery v. Kennedy, 669 S.W.2d 309, 311 (Tex., 1984)	2	In deciding whether there is a disputed material fact issue precluding summary judgment, evidence favorable to nonmovants will be taken as true; every reasonable inference from evidence must be indulged in favor of nonmovants and any doubts resolved in their favor.	In deciding whether there is a disputed material fact issue precluding summary judgment, evidence favorable to the non-movants will be taken as true. Cowden v. Bell, 157 Tex. 44, 46, 300 S.W.2d 286, 287 (1957). Every reasonable inference from the evidence must be indulged in favor of the non-movants and any doubts resolved in their favor.	Will all conflicts in the evidence be considered when deciding whether there is an issue of material fact precluding summary judgment?

4181	First Nat. Bank of Lafayette v. Gaddis, 250 So.2d 504, 510 (La.App., 1971)	10	Promissory note payable to bearer and secured by mortgage may be transferred by mere delivery and authentic evidence of endorsement or transfer of note is not necessary to enable holder to foreclose by executory process. LSA-R.S. 7:9, 7:30; LSA-C.C.P. art. 2635.	Our law is settled that a promissory note payable to bearer and secured by a mortgage, may be transferred by mere delivery, and authentic evidence of the endorsement or transfer of the note is not necessary to enable the holder to foreclose by executory process.	Can a promissory note which is payable to bearer and secured by a mortgage be transferred by mere delivery?
4182	Hardee's Food Systems, Inc. v. Oreel, 32 F.Supp.2d 342, 344 (E.D.N.C., 1998)	2	If collateral terms and conditions had been agreed upon, they may be omitted from promissory note itself to insure negotiability; accordingly, parol evidence as between the original parties may be admissible so far as it is not inconsistent with express terms of the note.	"If collateral terms and conditions had been agreed upon, they may be omitted from the note itself to insure negotiability. Accordingly, ... parol evidence as between the original parties may well be admissible so far as it is not inconsistent with the express terms of the note."	"If collateral terms and conditions have been agreed upon, can they be omitted from a promissory note itself to ensure negotiability?"
4183	Hauk v. JP Morgan Chase Bank USA, 552 F.3d 1114, 1118 (9th Cir. 2009)	1	The purpose of TILA is to assure a meaningful disclosure of credit terms so that the consumer will be able to compare more readily the various credit terms available to him and avoid the uninformed use of credit, and to protect the consumer against inaccurate and unfair credit billing and credit card practices. Truth in Lending Act, S 102, 15 U.S.C.A. S 1601.	Congress enacted TILA "to assure a meaningful disclosure of credit terms so that the consumer will be able to compare more readily the various credit terms available to him and avoid the uninformed use of credit, and to protect the consumer against inaccurate and unfair credit billing and credit card practices." 15 U.S.C.	Is the purpose of TILA to assure a meaningful disclosure of credit terms?
4185	Wilson v. Phoenix House, 42 Misc. 3d 677, 689, 978 N.Y.S.2d 748, 757 (Sup. Ct. 2013)	1	In deciding a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action, the court's role is ordinarily limited to determining whether the complaint states a cause of action; on such a motion, the court must accept as true the factual allegations of the complaint, and accord the plaintiff all favorable inferences which may be drawn therefrom. McKinney's CPLR 3211(a)(7).	In determining a motion to dismiss pursuant to CPLR 3211(a)(7), the court's role is ordinarily limited to determining whether the complaint states a cause of action. Frank v. DaimlerChrysler Corp., 292 A.D.2d 118, 741 N.Y.S.2d 9 [1st Dept. 2002]. On such a motion, the court must accept as true the factual allegations of the complaint and accord the plaintiff all favorable inferences which may be drawn therefrom.	"In deciding a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action, is the court's role ordinarily limited to determining whether the complaint states a cause of action?"
4186	Woodruff v. Choate, 334 Ga. App. 574, 579, 780 S.E.2d 25, 29 (2015)	4	It is not necessary for a complaint to set forth all of the elements of a cause of action in order to survive a motion to dismiss the complaint for failure to state a claim; if, within the framework of the complaint, evidence may be introduced which will sustain a grant of relief to the plaintiff, the complaint is sufficient.	Contrary to the trial court's order, it is no longer necessary for a complaint to set forth all of the elements of a cause of action in order to survive a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim. If, within the framework of the complaint, evidence may be introduced which will sustain a grant of relief to the plaintiff, the complaint is sufficient.	Is it not necessary for a complaint to set forth all of the elements of a cause of action in order to survive a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim?

4187	Pietrangelo v. Wilmer Cutler Pickering Hale & Dorr, LLP, 68 A.3d 697, 709 (D.C., 2013)	10	Ultimately, to survive a motion to dismiss for the failure to state a claim, a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face. Civil Rules 8(a)(2), 12(b)(6).	Ultimately, to survive a motion to dismiss, "a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face."	"To survive a motion to dismiss for the failure to state a claim, should a complaint contain sufficient factual matter?"
4188	Dawson v. Newman, 845 N.E.2d 1076, 1080 (Ind.App.,2006)	2	Motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted tests the legal sufficiency of a claim, not the facts supporting it. Trial Procedure Rule 12(B)(6).	A Trial Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted tests the legal sufficiency of a claim, not the facts supporting it.	"Does a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted test the legal sufficiency of a claim, not the facts supporting it?"
4191	Speake v. Grantham, 317 F. Supp. 1253, 1265 (S.D.Miss., 1970)	6	A college or university has inherent power to promulgate rules and regulations; the right to discipline; the right to protect itself and its property through lawful means; the right to expect its students to adhere generally to accepted standards of conduct commensurate with their approaching maturity and majority.	A college or university has the inherent power to promulgate rules and regulations; the right to discipline; the right to protect itself and its property through lawful means; the right to expect its students to adhere generally to accepted standards of conduct commensurate with their approaching maturity and majority.	Does a university have a right to discipline students?
4192	Mathews v. Sun Oil Co., 411 S.W.2d 561, 564 (Tex.Civ.App., 1967)	5	Estoppel by deed precludes parties to a valid sealed instrument and their privies from denying its force and effect by evidence of inferior solemnity.	"An estoppel by deed is a preclusion against the competent parties to a valid sealed contract, and their privies, to deny its force and effect by any evidence of inferior solemnity."	Does estoppel by deed preclude parties to a valid sealed instrument and their privies to deny its force and effect by evidence of inferior solemnity?
4193	Otte v. Edwards, 370 S.W.3d 898, 900 (Mo.App. E.D., 2012)	2	When reviewing a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, the Court of Appeals applies the following standard of review: A motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action is solely a test of the adequacy of the plaintiff's petition; it assumes that all of plaintiff's averments are true, and liberally grants to plaintiff all reasonable inferences therefrom; and no attempt is made to weigh any facts alleged as to whether they are credible or persuasive, instead, the petition is reviewed in an almost academic manner, to determine if the facts alleged meet the elements of a recognized cause of action, or of a cause that might be adopted in that case.	When reviewing a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, we apply the following standard of review: A motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action is solely a test of the adequacy of the plaintiff's petition. It assumes that all of plaintiff's averments are true, and liberally grants to plaintiff all reasonable inferences therefrom. No attempt is made to weigh any facts alleged as to whether they are credible or persuasive. Instead, the petition is reviewed in an almost academic manner, to determine if the facts alleged meet the elements of a recognized cause of action, or of a cause that might be adopted in that case.	Is a petition reviewed in an almost academic manner?
4194	Landmark Funding, Inc on Behalf of Naples Syndications, LLC v. Chaluts, 213 So.3d 1078, 1079 (Fla.App. 2 Dist., 2017)	2	A motion to dismiss tests the legal sufficiency of a complaint to state a cause of action and is not intended to determine issues of ultimate fact.	"A motion to dismiss ... tests the legal sufficiency of a complaint to state a cause of action and is not intended to determine issues of ultimate fact."	Does a motion to dismiss test the legal sufficiency of a complaint to state a cause of action and is not intended to determine issues of ultimate fact?

4195	Luna v. Pizzas By Marchelloni, 279 Ill. App. 3d 402, 404, 664 N.E.2d 1112, 1114 (1996)	1	For purposes of motion to dismiss, truth of all well-pleaded facts is accepted and complaint will be dismissed on pleadings only if it clearly appears that no facts can be proved that would entitle plaintiff to recover.	[1] For purposes of a motion to dismiss, the truth of all well-pleaded facts is accepted, (Steinberg v. Chicago Medical School, 69 Ill.2d 320, 13 Ill.Dec. 699, 371 N.E.2d 634 (1977); Johnson v. Franzen, 77 Ill.2d 513, 522, 34 Ill.Dec. 153, 397 N.E.2d 825 (1979); Johnston v. City of Bloomington, 77 Ill.2d 108, 32 Ill.Dec. 319, 395 N.E.2d 549 (1979); Cross v. Wells Fargo Alarm Services, 82 Ill.2d 313, 45 Ill.Dec. 121, 412 N.E.2d 472 (1980)), and a complaint will be dismissed on the pleadings only if it clearly appears that no facts can be proved which would entitle the plaintiff to recover. Charles Hester Enterprises, Inc., v. Illinois Founders Insurance Co., 114 Ill.2d 278, 102 Ill.Dec. 306, 499 N.E.2d 1319 (1986).	"For purposes of a motion to dismiss, is the truth of all well-pleaded facts accepted and a complaint will be dismissed on pleadings only if it clearly appears that no facts can be proved?"
4197	ATCO Sign & Lighting Co., LLC v. Stamm Mfg., Inc., 573, 298 Ga.App. 528, 529 (Ga.App.,2009)	4	To meet its burden of proving the absence of personal jurisdiction, a defendant seeking a dismissal for lack of personal jurisdiction may raise matters not contained in the pleadings; however, when the outcome of the motion depends on unstipulated facts, it must be accompanied by supporting affidavits or citations to evidentiary material in the record.	Further, under our law, [a] defendant moving to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction bears the burden of proving the absence of jurisdiction. To meet that burden, the defendant may raise matters not contained in the pleadings. However, when the outcome of the motion depends on unstipulated facts, it must be accompanied by supporting affidavits or citations to evidentiary material in the record.	"To meet the burden of proving the absence of personal jurisdiction, can a defendant seeking a dismissal for lack of personal jurisdiction raise matters not contained in the pleadings?"
4198	People v. Kruger, 2015 IL App (4th) 131080, ¶ 5 (Ill.App. 4 Dist.,2015)	1	A dismissal for lack of diligence in obtaining service prior to the expiration of applicable statute of limitations is distinct from a dismissal for want of prosecution. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 103(b).	A dismissal for lack of diligence in obtaining service prior to the expiration of applicable statute of limitations under Rule 103(b) is distinct from a dismissal for want of prosecution.	Is dismissal of an action for want of prosecution distinct from a dismissal for lack of diligence in obtaining service prior to expiration of applicable statute of limitations?
4199	Dani v. Miller, 374 P.3d 779, 786, 2016 OK 35, ¶ 11 (Okla., 2016)	9	Where not all claims appear to be frivolous on their face or without merit, dismissal for failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted is premature. 12 Okl.St. Ann. S 2012(B)(6).	Where not all claims appear to be frivolous on their face or without merit, dismissal for failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted is premature.	"Where not all claims appear to be frivolous on their face or without merit, is dismissal for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted premature?"
4200	American Truck Driving Academy, Inc. v. Smith, 998 So.2d 1067, 1069 (Ala.Civ.App.,2008)	3	A dismissal with prejudice for lack of prosecution is proper only where there is a clear record of delay or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff or a serious showing of willful default.	A trial court may dismiss an action, with prejudice, for lack of prosecution only when there is a clear record of delay or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff or a serious showing of willful default.	"Can court dismiss action, for lack of prosecution when there is clear record of delay or contumacious conduct by plaintiff or serious showing of willful default?"

4201	Cameron Cnty. Sav. Ass'n v. Stewart Title Guar. Co., 819 S.W.2d 600, 603 (Tex.App. Corpus Christi,1991)	2	"Actual authority" includes both express and implied authority and usually denotes that authority which principal intentionally confers upon agent, intentionally allowed agent to believe that he possesses or, by want of due care, allows agent to believe that he possesses.	"Actual" authority includes both express and implied authority and usually denotes that authority which a principal a) intentionally confers upon an agent, b) intentionally allows the agent to believe that he possesses, or c) by want of due care allows the agent to believe that he possesses.	Does actual authority mean that the principal by want of due care allows the agent to believe he possessed authority?
4202	City Nat. Bank of Fort Smith, Ark. v. Vanderboom, 290 F.Supp. 592, 610 (Ark. 1968)	6	Under substantive law of Arkansas, giving of renewal note or making partial payments with knowledge at time of false representations on part of payee operates as waiver of that defense and maker is estopped from pleading such defense in action on renewal note.	Under the substantive law of Arkansas the general rule is that the giving of a renewal note or making partial payments with knowledge at the time of false representations on the part of the payee operates as a waiver of that defense, and the maker is thereby estopped from pleading such defenses in an action on the renewal note.	Does renewal or making payment on a note after knowledge of the defense that may be interposed to its collection waives the defense?
4204	Munoz v. Express Auto Sales, 222 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 7 (Cal. App. Dep't Super. Ct. 2014)	1	Under the Automobile Sales Finance Act (ASFA), every conditional sale contract must disclose to the buyer all details concerning the sale, financing and complete costs of purchasing the vehicle. West's Ann.Cal.Civ.Code S 2981.	"Under the ASFA, every conditional sale contract must disclose to the buyer all details concerning the sale, financing and complete costs of purchasing the vehicle.	Should every conditional sales contract must disclose to the buyer all details concerning the sale under the Automobile Sales Finance Act (ASFA)?
4205	Harris v. Grizzle, 599 P.2d 580, 583 (Wyo. 1979)	3	Under Wyoming rules of civil procedure, technical forms of pleading are not required, and each averment of pleading should be simple, concise and direct; whether specificity standard has been satisfied is to be determined in terms of whether pleadings give fair notice to opposing party and not whether it contains conclusions.	Under the Wyoming Rules of Civil Procedure, technical forms of pleading are not required, and each averment of pleading should be simple, concise and direct; whether the specificity standard has been satisfied as to be determined in terms of whether the pleadings give fair notice to the opposing party and not whether it contains conclusions.	Should pleadings be in any technical form?
4206	Succession of Knox, 579 So. 2d 1164, 1166 (La.App. 2 Cir., 1991)	2	Two exceptions to five-year rule of abandonment are recognized: when failure to prosecute was caused by circumstances beyond plaintiff's control, and when defendant waived his right to plead abandonment by taking any action in case inconsistent with intent to treat case as abandoned. LSA-C.C.P. arts. 561, 561 comment.	Two jurisprudential exceptions to the five-year rule of abandonment are recognized: (1) when the failure to prosecute was caused by circumstances beyond plaintiff's control, and (2) when the defendant waived his right to plead abandonment by taking any action in the case inconsistent with an intent to treat the case as abandoned. See LSA-C.C.P. Art. 561, Comment (c) (1960) and authorities cited therein.	What are the two exceptions to rule of abandonment that are recognized?

4207	Avery v. New Hampshire Dept. of Educ., 162 N.H. 604, 606 (N.H., 2011)	2	When the motion to dismiss does not challenge the sufficiency of petitioners' legal claim but, instead, raises certain defenses, trial court must look beyond petitioners' unsubstantiated allegations and determine, based on the facts, whether petitioners have sufficiently demonstrated their right to claim relief.	"When the motion to dismiss does not challenge the sufficiency of the [petitioners'] legal claim but, instead, raises certain defenses, the trial court must look beyond the [petitioners'] unsubstantiated allegations and determine, based on the facts, whether the [petitioners] ha[ve] sufficiently demonstrated [their] right to claim relief."	Is a jurisdictional challenge based upon a lack of standing a defense?
4208	Utley v. Tennessee Dep't of Correction, 118 S.W.3d 705, 712 (Tenn. Ct. App. 2003)	3	A motion to dismiss a complaint for failure to state a claim for which relief can be granted requires the court to review the complaint alone, and to look to the complaint's substance rather than its form. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12.02(6).	A motion to dismiss a complaint for failure to state a claim for which relief can be granted tests the legal sufficiency of the plaintiff's pleading. Givens v. Mullikin , 75 S.W.3d 383, 406 (Tenn.2002); Trau-Med of Am., Inc. v. Allstate Ins. Co. , 71 S.W.3d 691, 696 (Tenn.2002). The motion requires the court to review the complaint alone, Mitchell v. Campbell , 88 S.W.3d 561, 564 (Tenn.Ct.App.2002), and to look to the complaint's substance rather than its form.	Can a motion to dismiss a complaint for failure to state a claim for which relief can be granted require the court to review the complaint alone?
4210	Bilnoski v. Pizza Inn, Inc. , 858 S.W.2d 55, 58 (Tex.App. Hous. [14 Dist.],1993)	8	When deciding whether to dismiss case, court may consider entire history of case, including amount of activity on case, length of time case was on file, request for trial date, and existence of reasonable excuses for delay.	When deciding whether to dismiss a case, a trial court may consider the entire history of the case, including the amount of activity on the case, the length of time the case was on file, the request for a trial date and the existence of reasonable excuses for the delay.	What will the court consider when deciding whether to dismiss case?
4211	Crosby v. Avon Products, Inc. , 474 So.2d 642, 644 (Ala.,1985)	6	Failure of plaintiff to attempt to obtain service over defendant within reasonable time may amount to failure to prosecute action, warranting dismissal of case. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(c).	Failure of a plaintiff to attempt to obtain service over the defendant within a reasonable time may amount to a failure to prosecute the action, warranting a dismissal of the case. Rule 41©	"Will failure of plaintiff to attempt to serve defendant within reasonable time amount to failure to prosecute action, warranting dismissal?"
4212	Succession of Knox , 579 So. 2d 1164, 1166 (La.App. 2 Cir., 1991)	2	Two exceptions to five-year rule of abandonment are recognized: when failure to prosecute was caused by circumstances beyond plaintiff's control, and when defendant waived his right to plead abandonment by taking any action in case inconsistent with intent to treat case as abandoned. LSA-C.C.P. arts. 561, 561 comment.	[2] Two jurisprudential exceptions to the five-year rule of abandonment are recognized: (1) when the failure to prosecute was caused by circumstances beyond plaintiff's control, and (2) when the defendant waived his right to plead abandonment by taking any action in the case inconsistent with an intent to treat the case as abandoned. See LSA-C.C.P. Art. 561, Comment (c) (1960) and authorities cited therein.	What are the two exceptions to five-year rule of abandonment?

4213	Freedman v. Pac. Gas & Elec. Co., 196 Cal. App. 3d 696, 703, 242 Cal. Rptr. 8, 12 (Ct. App. 1987)	2	Policy favoring trial or other disposition of actions on the merits is generally to be preferred over policy that requires dismissal for failure to proceed with reasonable diligence. West's Ann.Cal.C.C.P. S 583.130.	The policy favoring trial or other disposition of actions on the merits is generally to be preferred over the policy that requires dismissal for failure to proceed with reasonable diligence.	Is policy favoring trial or other disposition of actions on the merits generally to be preferred over policy that requires dismissal for failure to proceed with reasonable diligence?
4214	Mathews v. City of Atlanta, 167 Ga. App. 168, 169 (Ga. App. 1983)	3	Generally, a dismissal with prejudice is warranted only where a clear record of delay or contumacious conduct by plaintiff exists and a lesser sanction would not better serve interest or justice.	Generally, a dismissal with prejudice is warranted only where a clear record of delay or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff exists and a lesser sanction would not better serve the interest of justice.	Is a dismissal with prejudice warranted only where a clear record of delay or contumacious conduct by plaintiff exists?
4216	Dakota Cheese, Inc. v. Taylor, 525 N.W.2d 713, 715-16 (S.D.,1995)	4	Dismissal of action for failure to prosecute is extreme remedy to be used only when there is "unreasonable and unexplained delay," which is omission to do something that party might do and might reasonably be expected to do towards vindication or enforcement of his rights.	Second, a dismissal of an action for failure to prosecute is an extreme remedy and should be used only when there is an unreasonable and unexplained delay. Opp, 458 N.W.2d at 356; Schwartzle, 429 N.W.2d at 71; Holmoe, 403 N.W.2d at 31; Duncan, 382 N.W.2d at 427; Simkins, 192 N.W.2d at 732; Chicago & Northwestern R. Co. v. Bradbury, 80 S.D. 610, 129 N.W.2d 540 542 (S.D.1964). An unreasonable and unexplained delay has been defined as an omission to do something "which the party might do and might reasonably be expected to do towards vindication or enforcement of his rights."	"Should dismissal of an action for failure to prosecute be used only when there is an ""unreasonable and unexplained delay""?"
4219	Horobec v. Mueller, 628 S.W.2d 942, 944 (Mo. App. 1982)	9	Decision whether a case should be dismissed for want of prosecution should be determined upon the particular facts and circumstances of the action on a case-by-case basis.	Although the decision whether a case should be dismissed for want of prosecution should be determined upon the particular facts and circumstances of the action on a case- by-case basis	Should decision whether a case be dismissed for want of prosecution be determined upon the particular facts and circumstances of the action on a case-by-case basis?
4220	Stewart v. Whatley, 479 S.W.2d 84, 85 (Tex.Civ.App.-Waco, 1972)	3	The only remedy against a defaulting plaintiff insofar as his cause of action is concerned is an order dismissing his suit without prejudice for want of prosecution.	The Only remedy against the defaulting plaintiff insofar as his cause of action is concerned is an order dismissing his suit for want of prosecution.	"Is the only remedy against a defaulting plaintiff insofar as his cause of action is concerned, an order dismissing his suit without prejudice for want of prosecution?"

4221	Griffin v. Phillips Petroleum Co., 139 S.W.2d 318, 321 (Tex. App. 1940)	1	Every agency carries with it all the powers which are necessary or proper as means to effectuate the purposes for which it was created, and in such respect there is no distinction, whether the authority given to an agent is general or special, express or implied.	Every agency carries with it, or includes in it as an incident, all the powers which are necessary, or proper, or usual, as means to effectuate the purposes for which it was created, and none other. In this respect there is no distinction, whether the authority given to an agent is general or special, expressed or implied.	Does agency carry with it all the powers which are necessary as means to effectuate the purposes for which it was created?
4223	Schultz v. Gould Academy, 332 A.2d 368 , 370 (Me., 1975)	2	Student attending boarding school for young boys and girls had legal status of business invitee to whom school's employee owed duty to exercise reasonable care in taking such measures as were reasonably necessary for student's safety in light of existing circumstances.	Plaintiff, as a student attending the defendant Academy, had the legal status of a business invitee, to whom defendant's employee owned a duty to exercise reasonable care in taking such measures as were reasonably necessary for her safety in light of all then existing circumstances.	Do universities owe a duty to its students to exercise reasonable care in taking measures as were reasonably necessary for their safety?
4224	Lee v. Southern Ry. Co., 228 S.C. 240, 243 (S.C. 1955)	2	"Equitable estoppel" or "estoppel in pais" is a term applied to a situation where, because of something which he has done or omitted to do, a party is denied the right to plead or prove an otherwise important fact.	Equitable estoppel or estoppel in pais is a term applied to a situation where, because of something which he has done or omitted to do, a party is denied the right to plead or prove an otherwise important fact.	Does equitable estoppel occur where a party is denied the right to plead an otherwise important fact because of something which he has done or failed to do?
4225	Cuadros v. Superior Ct., 6 Cal. App. 4th 671, 675, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 18, 20 (1992)	1	Under doctrine of equitable estoppel, defendant may not by his statements or conduct lull plaintiff into false sense of security resulting in inaction.	The doctrine of equitable estoppel affirms that a defendant may not by his statements or conduct lull the plaintiff into a false sense of security resulting in inaction.	Does the doctrine of equitable estoppel affirm that a defendant may not by his statements or conduct lull the plaintiff into a false sense of security resulting in inaction?
4226	Anderson v. Commissioner of Dept. of Human Services, 489 A.2d 1094, 1099 (Me., 1985)	7	Estoppel bars assertion of truth by one whose misleading conduct has induced another to act to his detriment in reliance on what is untrue.	Estoppel bars the assertion of the truth by one whose misleading conduct has induced another to act to his detriment in reliance on what is untrue.	Does estoppel bar the assertion of the truth by one whose misleading conduct has induced another to act to his detriment in reliance on what is untrue?
4227	State ex rel. Burns v. Kelly, 89 Idaho 139, 147 (1965)	2	Statutory grant of authority to State Board of Highway Directors to regulate or prohibit erection or maintenance of unauthorized signs carries with it duty and power to determine what constitutes such obstruction, and such determination made by board is conclusive, in absence of showing of arbitrary exercise of authority or abuse of discretion. I.C. S 40-120(18).	As in California with its Department of Public Works, and in Oklahoma with its Highway Commission, Idaho's Board of highway directors is empowered to regulate or prohibit erection or maintenance of unauthorized signs. I.C. 40-120(18). This grant of authority carries with it the duty and power to determine what constitutes such an obstruction, and such a determination made by the Board is conclusive in the absence of a showing of arbitrary exercise of this authority or an abuse of discretion.	Who determines the obstruction on the Highway?

4228	Coldwell Banker Manning Realty, Inc. v. Cushman and Wakefield of Connecticut, Inc., 47 A.3d 394, 397, 136 Conn.App. 683, 686 (Conn.App., 2012)	8	In ruling on whether a complaint survives a motion to dismiss, a court must take the facts to be those alleged in the complaint, including those facts necessarily implied from the allegations, construing them in a manner most favorable to the pleader.	"In ruling [on] whether a complaint survives a motion to dismiss, a court must take the facts to be those alleged in the complaint, including those facts necessarily implied from the allegations, construing them in a manner most favorable to the pleader.	"In ruling on whether a complaint survives a motion to dismiss, should a court take the facts to be those alleged in the complaint?"
4229	TD Bank, N.A. v. Salce, 169 A.3d 317, 321-322 (Conn.App., 2017)	3	A motion to dismiss admits all facts which are well pleaded, invokes the existing record and must be decided upon that alone; where, however, the motion is accompanied by supporting affidavits containing undisputed facts, the court may look to their content for determination of the jurisdictional issue.	The motion to dismiss ... admits all facts which are well pleaded, invokes the existing record and must be decided upon that *762 alone.... Where, however, as here, the motion is accompanied by supporting affidavits containing undisputed facts, the court may look to their content for determination of the jurisdictional issue"	"Where the motion is accompanied by supporting affidavits containing undisputed facts, can the court look to their content for determination of the jurisdictional issue?"
4230	Manning v. Wilkinson, 264 S.W.3d 620, 624 (Ky.App., 2007)	2	The involuntary dismissal of a case with prejudice should be resorted to only in the most extreme cases and a reviewing court must carefully scrutinize the trial court's exercise of discretion in doing so. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41.02.	Certainly, we would agree that the involuntary dismissal of a case with prejudice "should be resorted to only in the most extreme cases" and a reviewing court must "carefully scrutinize the trial court's exercise of discretion in doing so." Polk v.	Should the involuntary dismissal of a case with prejudice be resorted to only in the most extreme cases and a reviewing court must carefully scrutinize the trial court's exercise of discretion in doing so?
4231	Bennett v. Republic Services, Inc., 179 F.Supp.3d 451, 454 (E.D.Pa., 2016)	1	To survive a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, a plaintiff must plead factual allegations sufficient to raise a right to relief above the speculative level on the assumption that all the allegations in the complaint are true, even if doubtful in fact; the mere possibility of misconduct is not enough. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6).	To survive a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6), a plaintiff must plead factual allegations sufficient "to raise a right to relief above the speculative level ... on the assumption that all the allegations in the complaint are true (even if doubtful in fact)." Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555, 127 S.Ct. 1955, 167 L.Ed.2d 929 (2007). The "mere possibility of misconduct" is not enough.	Should factual allegations be enough to raise a right to relief above the speculative level?
4233	Finney v. Commonwealth, 671 S.E.2d 169, 172, 277 Va. 83, 88 (Va., 2009)	8	For burglary purposes, an actual breaking involves the application of some force, slight though it may be, whereby the entrance is achieved, and merely pushing open a door, turning the key, lifting the latch, or resort to other slight physical force is sufficient to constitute this element of burglary, so long as those acts resulted in an entrance contrary to the will of the occupier of the property. West's V.C.A. SS 18.2-90, 18.2-91.	"Actual breaking involves the application of some force, slight though it may be, whereby the entrance is [achieved]. Merely pushing open a door, turning the key, lifting the latch, or resort to other slight physical force is sufficient to constitute this element of [burglary]," so long as those acts "resulted in an entrance contrary to the will of the occupier of the [property]."	Is use of slight force sufficient for burglary breaking?

4235	Hager v. American West Ins. Co., 732 F.Supp. 1072, 1075 (Mont. 1989)	5	Where automobile liability policy containing "family member" terminology has been issued to a closely held corporation, it is legitimate to conclude that the readily identifiable officers and shareholders of the corporate entity fall within the purview of the term "family member," in determining insured status.	Where an automobile liability policy containing the "family member" terminology has been issued to a closely held corporation, it is entirely legitimate to conclude the readily identifiable officers and shareholders of that corporate entity fall within the purview of that terminology.	Will a policy of insurance issued to a corporation provide uninsured motorist coverage to the officers and shareholders of the corporation?
4236	Lesage v. Dirt Cheap Cigarettes and Beer, Inc., 2002 WL 31300071, at *5 (Mo.App. E.D., 2002)	15	When the trial court concludes that the pleadings do not state a cause of action and when an adequate opportunity to amend has been provided, it is not error for the trial court to dismiss with prejudice.	Further, when the trial court concludes that the pleadings do not state a cause of action and when an adequate opportunity to amend has been provided, it is not error for the trial court to dismiss with prejudice.	"When the trial court concludes that the pleadings do not state a cause of action and when an adequate opportunity to amend has been provided, is it not error for the trial court to dismiss with prejudice?"
4237	Neagle v. Brooks, 373 F.2d 40, 44 (C.A.Kan. 1967)	10	An order of state trial court dismissing action puts an end to that action unless modified or set aside by that court or reversed by supreme court of that state.	An order of the state trial court dismissing the action puts an end to that action unless modified or set aside by that court or reversed by the supreme court of that state.	Does an order of a state trial court dismissing action put an end to that action unless modified or set aside by that court or reversed by the supreme court of that state?
4238	Bryan v. Smith, 174 F.2d 212, 214 (C.A.7 1949)	1	After plaintiff has suffered a nonsuit or has dismissed his cause of action, no counterclaim existing, court is without further jurisdiction and has no right to render any judgment either for or against plaintiff, and parties are out of court for every purpose other than to carry order of dismissal or nonsuit into effect or vacate or modify it.	It is a well-settled rule that after a plaintiff has suffered a nonsuit or has dismissed his cause of action, no counterclaim existing, the court is without further jurisdiction and has no right to render any judgment either for or against the plaintiff. The parties are out of court for every purpose other than to carry the order of dismissal or nonsuit into effect or to vacate or modify it.	"After a plaintiff has suffered a nonsuit or has dismissed his cause of action, is a court without further jurisdiction and has no right to render any judgment either for or against plaintiff?"
4239	Owens v. Ken's Paint and Body Shop, 196 So.2d 17, 18-19 (Fla.App. 1967)	2	Dismissal of an action under statute dealing with abatement of action pending one year without prosecution becomes absolute after passage of one month, so that order of dismissal is final and appealable. 30 F.S.A. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 1.420(e); F.S.A. S 45.19(1); F.S.A.Const. art. 5, S 5(3).	[2] In Zukor v. Hill, Fla.1956, 84 So.2d 554, the Supreme Court held that the dismissal of an action under statute dealing with abatement of action pending one year without prosecution, becomes absolute after the passage of one month. We therefore conclude that the instant order is final and appealable. See art. 5, sec. 5(3) Florida Constitution, F.S.A.	"Does a dismissal of an action under a statute dealing with abatement of action pending one year without prosecution, become absolute after the passage of one month?"
4240	Jones v. Jones, 16-536 (La. App. 5 Cir. 4/26/17), 220 So. 3d 855, 860 (2017)	7	A dismissal without prejudice, or non-suit, merely restores matters to the status occupied before the suit and leaves the party free to again come into court with his complaint.	A dismissal without prejudice, or non-suit, merely "restores matters to the status occupied before the suit and leaves the party free to again come into court with his complaint."	Does a dismissal of suit as of nonsuit restore matters to the status occupied before the suit was instituted and leaves the party free again to come into court with his complaint?

4241	Walker v. Archer, 2016-0171 (La. App. 4 Cir. 10/5/16), 203 So. 3d 330, 335	4	A dismissal without prejudice, or non-suit, merely restores matters to the status occupied before the suit and leaves the party free to again come into court with his complaint.	Thus, a dismissal without prejudice, or non-suit, merely "restores matters to the status occupied before the suit and leaves the party free to again come into court with his complaint." Neal v. Hall, 28 So.2d 131, 133 (La.App. 2d Cir.1946) (emphasis added).	Does a dismissal of suit as of nonsuit restore matters to the status occupied before the suit was instituted and leaves the party free again to come into court with his complaint?
4242	Carr v. Hunt, 651 S.W.2d 875, 879 (Tex.App. 5 Dist.,1983)	3	There must be a meeting of minds as between the parties in establishing an agency relationship, and consent of both principal and agent is necessary to create the agency, although such consent may be implied rather than express; the intention of the parties must find expression either in words or conduct between them.	There must be a meeting of the minds as between the parties in establishing an agency relationship, and consent of both principal and agent is necessary to create the agency, although such consent may be implied rather than express; the intention of the parties must find expression either in words or conduct between them.	Should there be a meeting of minds between the parties to establish an agency relationship?
4243	Crafton Contracting Company v. Swenson Construction Company, Inc., 495 S.W.3d 178, 181 (Mo.App. E.D., 2016)	4	Generally, there are three essential elements to an agency relationship: (1) the agent holds the power to alter the legal relations between the principal and a third party; (2) the agent is a fiduciary with respect to matters within the scope of the agency; and (3) the principal has the right to control the conduct of the agent with respect to matters entrusted to the agent.	Generally, there are three essential elements to an agency relationship: 1) the agent holds the power to alter the legal relations between the principal and a third party; 2) the agent is a fiduciary with respect to matters within the scope of the agency; and 3) the principal has the right to control the conduct of the agent with respect to matters entrusted to the agent.	What are the essential elements of an agency relationship?
4244	Barber v. Ritter, 196 P.3d 238, 248 (Colo., 2008)	16	To determine whether a government mandated financial imposition is a fee or a tax, the dispositive criteria is the primary or dominant purpose of such imposition at the time the enactment calling for its collection is passed.	To determine whether a government mandated financial imposition is a "fee" or a "tax," the dispositive criteria is the primary or dominant purpose of such imposition at the time the enactment calling for its collection is passed.	What are the dispositive criteria to determine whether a government mandated financial imposition is a fee or a tax?
4245	Adams v. City of New York, 226 F.Supp.3d 261, 267 (S.D.N.Y., 2016)fn3	12	Under New York law, offense of disorderly conduct has three elements: (1) the defendant's conduct must be public in nature, (2) it must be done with intent to cause public inconvenience, annoyance or alarm or with recklessness as to a risk thereof, and (3) it must match at least one of the descriptions set forth in the statute. N.Y. Penal Law S 240.20.	The offense of disorderly conduct has three elements: "(i) the defendant's conduct must be 'public' in nature, (ii) it must be done with 'intent to cause public inconvenience, annoyance or alarm' or with recklessness as to 'a risk thereof,' and (iii) it must match at least one of the descriptions set forth in the statute."	What are the necessary elements of a valid disorderly conduct charge?

4246	Landon v. Jarvis, 255 Ill.App.3d 439, 446 (Ill.App. 1 Dist., 1993)	7	Motion to dismiss raising affirmative matter affords parties and court means of disposing of issues of law or of easily proved facts at the onset of case; if defects are not apparent on face of pleadings, affidavits may be employed to bring to light affirmative matters which would bar litigation. Ill.Rev.Stat.1991, ch. 110, P 2-619.	A section 2-619 motion to dismiss affords parties and the court a means of disposing of issues of law or of easily proved facts at the onset of a case. If defects are not apparent on the face of the pleadings, affidavits may be employed to bring to light affirmative matters which would bar litigation.	Does a motion to dismiss afford parties and court means of disposing of issues of law or of easily proved facts at the onset of case?
4247	San Joaquin County, Cal. v. Dewey, 105 Mich.App. 122, 131 (1981)	5	Motion for accelerated judgment seeks to avoid merits of claim by interposing defense barring plaintiff's right to affirmative relief, regardless of whether plaintiff's complaint established prima facie case. GCR 1963, 116.1 et seq.	Rather, the motion for accelerated judgment seeks to avoid the merits of a claim by interposing a defense barring plaintiff's right to affirmative relief, regardless of whether plaintiff's complaint established a prima facie case.	Does a motion for accelerated judgment test merits of complaint?
4248	San Joaquin County, Cal. v. Dewey, 105 Mich.App. 122, 131 (1981)	5	Motion for accelerated judgment seeks to avoid merits of claim by interposing defense barring plaintiff's right to affirmative relief, regardless of whether plaintiff's complaint established prima facie case. GCR 1963, 116.1 et seq.	Rather, the motion for accelerated judgment seeks to avoid the merits of a claim by interposing a defense barring plaintiff's right to affirmative relief, regardless of whether plaintiff's complaint established a prima facie case.	How will a motion for accelerated judgement seek to avoid claim?
4249	San Joaquin County, Cal. v. Dewey, 105 Mich.App. 122, 131 (1981)	5	Motion for accelerated judgment seeks to avoid merits of claim by interposing defense barring plaintiff's right to affirmative relief, regardless of whether plaintiff's complaint established prima facie case. GCR 1963, 116.1 et seq.	Rather, the motion for accelerated judgment seeks to avoid the merits of a claim by interposing a defense barring plaintiff's right to affirmative relief, regardless of whether plaintiff's complaint established a prima facie case.	How can a motion for accelerated judgment seek to avoid merits of claim?
4251	Winnebago Cnty. Citizens for Controlled Growth v. Cnty. of Winnebago, 383 Ill. App. 3d 735, 739, 891 N.E.2d 448, 453 (2008)	2	In a motion to dismiss for defects or defenses, the movant may go beyond the allegations of the complaint and assert affirmative matters that would defeat the plaintiff's claim. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619(a)(9).	In a motion to dismiss brought under section 2-619, the movant may go beyond the allegations of the complaint and assert affirmative matters that would defeat the plaintiff's claim.	Can the movant may go beyond the allegations of the complaint and assert affirmative matters that would defeat the plaintiff's claim?
4252	Wisconsin's Env't Decade, Inc. v. Pub. Serv. Comm'n, 79 Wis. 2d 161, 171, 255 N.W.2d 917, 923-24 (1977), holding modified by State ex rel. Town of Delavan v. Cir. Ct. for Walworth Cnty., 167 Wis. 2d 719, 482 N.W.2d 899 (1992)	13	All that is involved when a case is dismissed upon ground of mootness is a conclusion by court that determination sought cannot have any practical effect upon an existing controversy.	All that is involved when a case is dismissed upon the ground of mootness is a conclusion by the court that the determination sought cannot have any practical effect upon an existing controversy. City of Racine v. J. T. Enterprises of America, Inc., 64 Wis.2d 691, 700, 221 N.W.2d 869 (1974).	Is all that is involved when a case is dismissed upon ground of mootness a conclusion by court that determination sought cannot have any practical effect upon an existing controversy?

4254	White v. Revco Disc. Drug Centers, Inc., 33 S.W.3d 713, 723 (Tenn. 2000)	12	Although the principal's right to control the actions of the agent is an important factor in finding the existence of an agency relationship, the right of control is not necessarily as important as the principal's exercise of actual control over the agent.	Although the principal's right to control the actions of the agent is an important factor in finding the existence of an agency relationship, Jack Daniel Distillery, et al. v. Jackson, 740 S.W.2d 413, 416 (Tenn.1987), the right of control is not necessarily as important as the principal's exercise of actual control over the agent, see Parker v. Vanderbilt Univ., 767 S.W.2d 412, 416 (Tenn.Ct.App.1988).	Is the principal's right to control the actions of the agent as important a factor in finding the existence of an agency relationship as the principal's exercise of actual control?
4255	Jarecki Mfg. Co. v. Merriam, 104 Kan. 646, 180 P. 224, 225 (1919)	2	An essential element of proof of agency is that alleged principal has both right to assign agent's task and to control means and details of process by which agent will accomplish the task.	An essential element of proof of agency is that the alleged principal has both the right to assign the agent's task and to control the means and details of the process by which the agent will accomplish the task.	Is the principal having the right to assign the agent's task and to control the means and details of the process by which the agent will accomplish the task an essential element of agency?
4258	Johnson v. Smith, 215 N.C. 322, 1 S.E.2d 834, 836 (1939)	3	Though it is usual for an indorser to put his name on back of note when he wishes to assume position of indorser thereof, yet it is immaterial where he puts it, and all that is necessary is that he put his name somewhere on note with intention of making a present transfer thereof, and where a note was payable to his order, he could make that order as well on the face as on the back of the note.	It is usual for an indorser to put his name upon the back of a note, when he wishes to assume the position of indorser thereon; yet it is immaterial where he puts it; all that is necessary is that he put his name somewhere on the note with the intention of making a present transfer of it. This note was payable to his order, and he could make that order as well upon the face as upon the back of the note.	What is the effect of the endorser putting his name on the back of a note?
4259	Timmins v. Firestone, 283 So. 2d 63, 65 (Fla.App. 4 Dist., 1973)	3	Though affirmative defense must ordinarily be asserted by answer, affirmative defense appearing on face of prior pleading may be asserted as ground of motion to dismiss for failure to state cause of action. 30 F.S.A. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 1.110(d).	While usually an affirmative defense must be asserted by answer, Rule 1.110(d), RCP, 30 F.S.A., permits an affirmative defense appearing on the face of a prior pleading to be asserted as grounds of a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action.	When is an affirmative defense asserted as ground of motion to dismiss for failure to state cause of action?
4260	LaCaffinie v. Mirk, Inc., 719 A.2d 361, 362 (Pa. Super. Ct. 1998)	1	To remove a judgment of non pros, three elements must be met: (1) a petition to open must be promptly filed; (2) the delay must be reasonably explained; and (3) facts must be shown to exist which support a cause of action. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 3051(b), 42 Pa.C.S.A.	In order to remove a judgment of non pros, three elements must be met: (1) a petition to open must be promptly filed, (2) the delay must be reasonably explained, and (3) facts must be shown to exist which support a cause of action.	"To remove a judgment of non pros, should three elements be met?"

4261	Muriel v. St. Barnabas Hosp., 3 A.D.3d 419, 420, 771 N.Y.S.2d 107, 108 (2004)	2	A case dismissed as abandoned may be restored to the calendar where the plaintiff establishes a meritorious case, a reasonable excuse for the delay in seeking to restore the matter to the calendar, the absence of intent to abandon prosecution and a lack of prejudice to the defendant.	A case dismissed as abandoned may be restored to the calendar where the plaintiff establishes a meritorious case, a reasonable excuse for the delay in seeking to restore the matter to the calendar, the absence of intent to abandon prosecution and a lack of prejudice to the defendant (see Werner v. Tiffany, 291 A.D.2d 305, 305–306, 738 N.Y.S.2d 326; Solovay v. Nicola Paone Corp., 219 A.D.2d 462, 645 N.Y.S.2d 769).	Can a case dismissed as abandoned be restored to the calendar where the plaintiff establishes a meritorious case?
4262	Burton v. Hoffman, 959 S.W.2d 351, 353–54 (Tex. App. 1998)	4	Motion to reinstate case dismissed for want of prosecution is addressed to trial court's discretion; court may consider entire history of proceeding in determining whether to reinstate action.	A *354 motion to reinstate a case dismissed for want of prosecution is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court. See Eustice v. Grandy's, 827 S.W.2d 12, 14 (Tex.App.—Dallas 1992, no writ). The court may consider the entire history of the proceeding in determining whether to reinstate the action.	Is a motion to reinstate a case dismissed for want of prosecution addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court?
4263	Black v. Jackson, 82 S.W.3d 44, 56 (Tex.App. Tyler,2002)	37	Dismissal of action "with prejudice" acts as final determination on the merits, and therefore, dismissal "with prejudice" for lack of subject matter jurisdiction constitutes error.	It is well established that the dismissal of an action "with prejudice" acts as a final determination on the merits. Mossler v. Shields, 818 S.W.2d 752, 754 (Tex.1991). Therefore, a dismissal with prejudice for lack of subject matter jurisdiction constitutes error.	"Does dismissal of action ""with prejudice"" act as final determination on the merits, and therefore, dismissal ""with prejudice"" for lack of subject matter jurisdiction constitute error?"
4264	Pollock v. Feinstein, 2007 PA Super 42, ¶ 4 (2007)	2	Since a motion to strike a judgment of non pros only challenges defects appearing on the face of the record, such a motion may not be granted if the record regarding the entry of the judgment is self-sustaining.	Since a motion to strike a judgment of non pros only challenges defects appearing on the face of the record, "such a motion may not be granted if the record [regarding the entry of the judgment] is self-sustaining."	Can a motion to strike off a judgment of non pros challenge only defects appearing on the face of the record and such a motion not be granted if the record is self-sustaining?
4265	Anthony, Inc. v. City of Omaha, 813 N.W.2d 467, 476, 283 Neb. 868, 877 (Neb.,2012)	7	A "sales tax" is a tax upon the sale, lease, rental, use, storage, distribution, or other consumption of all tangible personal property in the chain of commerce.	A sales tax, on the other hand, is a tax upon the sale, lease, rental, use, storage, distribution, or other consumption of all tangible personal property in the chain of commerce.	"Is a ""sales tax"" a tax upon the sale, lease, rental, use, storage, distribution, or other consumption of all tangible personal property in the chain of commerce?"
4266	Scholastic Book Clubs, Inc. v. State, Dep't of Treasury, Revenue Div., 223 Mich. App. 576, 579, 567 N.W.2d 692, 693 (1997)	1	"Sales tax" is tax imposed upon sellers for privilege of engaging in business of making sales of tangible personal property at retail within state.	Unlike the sales tax, which is a tax imposed upon sellers for the privilege of engaging in the business of making sales of tangible personal property at retail within this state,	Is the sales tax imposed on the seller for the privilege of engaging in the business of making retail sales of tangible personal property in the state?

4267	World Book, Inc. v. Dep't of Treasury, 222 Mich. App. 203, 205, 564 N.W.2d 82, 83 (1997), rev'd, 459 Mich. 403, 590 N.W.2d 293 (1999)	1	"Sales tax" is tax imposed upon sellers for privilege of engaging in business of making sales of tangible personal property at retail within state.	The sales tax is a tax imposed upon sellers for the privilege of engaging in the business of making sales of tangible personal property at retail within this state. Terco, Inc. v. Dep't of Treasury, 127 Mich.App. 220, 225–226, 339 N.W.2d 17 (1983).	Is the sales tax imposed on the seller for the privilege of engaging in the business of making retail sales of tangible personal property in the state?
4268	State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Berthelot, 98-1011 (La. 4/13/99), 732 So. 2d 1230, 1234–35	8	A "sales tax" is a distinct and separate charge which the retail seller is required to collect as a pass through entity for the benefit of the state and locality. LSA-R.S. 47:301 et seq.	In particular, a sales tax is a distinct and separate charge which the retail seller is required to collect as a pass through entity for the benefit of the state and locality.	"Is a ""sales tax"" a distinct and separate charge which the retail seller is required to collect as a pass through entity for the benefit of the state and locality?"
4270	Herold v. Hughes, 141 W. Va. 182, 193-94 (1955)	4	Grant of an easement for public road purposes includes all rights and privileges necessary or convenient to use of the public in travel or transportation of properties of all kinds over, under or along public highways. Code, 17-4-8, 17-16-6.	In view of the holdings of this Court in the cases cited, it seems clear that we are committed to the doctrine that the grant of an easement for public road purposes includes all rights and privileges necessary or convenient to the use of the public in travel or transportation of properties of all kinds over, under or along all public highways.	Does the grant of an easement for public road purposes include all rights and privileges necessary to the use of the public in travel?
4271	Dorofey v. Bethlehem Steel Co., 180 A.2d 562, 565, 407 Pa. 288, 290 (Pa. 1962)	1	On motion to take off compulsory nonsuit, court must view evidence together with all reasonable inferences therefrom in light most favorable to plaintiff.	We are now considering a motion to take off the compulsory nonsuit, and we must view the evidence together with all reasonable inferences therefrom, in the light most favorable to the plaintiffs.	"On a motion to take off a compulsory nonsuit, should a court view evidence together with all reasonable inferences therefrom in a light most favorable to a plaintiff?"
4272	Eldorado Towers by Shaf, Inc. v. Chicago Title and Trust Co., 537 N.E.2d 1042, 1045, 130 Ill.Dec. 713, 716, 182 Ill.App.3d 263, 266 (Ill.App. 1 Dist.,1989)	4	Person seeking to vacate judgment of dismissal more than 30 days after entry is required to bring motion for such relief before judge who rendered original judgment. S.H.A. ch. 110, P 2-1401.	A person seeking to vacate a judgment of dismissal more than 30 days after entry is required to bring a motion for such relief before the judge who rendered the original judgment.	Is a person seeking to vacate judgment of dismissal more than 30 days after entry required to bring a motion for such relief before a judge who rendered original judgment?
4273	Dorn v. State Bank of Stella, 767 F.2d 442, 443 (C.A.8 (Neb.),1985)	2	Although a pretrial motion for leave to amend one's complaint is to be liberally granted, different considerations apply to motions filed after dismissal. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 15(a), 28 U.S.C.A.	Although a pretrial motion for leave to amend one's complaint is to be liberally granted, different considerations apply to motions filed after dismissal.	"Although a pretrial motion for leave to amend one's complaint is to be liberally granted, do different considerations apply to motions filed after dismissal?"
4274	Basye v. Fayette R-III School Dist. Bd. of Educ., 150 S.W.3d 111, 114 (Mo.App. W.D.,2004)	4	The dismissal of a petition without prejudice is generally not adjudication on the merits and permits the party to re-file the action, unless otherwise barred. V.A.M.R. 67.03.	The dismissal of a petition without prejudice is generally not adjudication on the merits and permits the party to re-file the action, unless otherwise barred.	"Is the dismissal of a petition without prejudice generally not an adjudication on the merits and permits the party to re-file the action, unless otherwise barred?"

4275	City of Austin v. L.S. Ranch, Ltd., 970 S.W.2d 750, 753 (Tex.App. Austin,1998)	7	If the plaintiff's pleadings are insufficient to demonstrate the court's jurisdiction, but do not affirmatively show a lack thereof, the proper remedy is to allow the plaintiff an opportunity to amend before dismissing.	Thus, if the plaintiff's pleadings are insufficient to demonstrate the court's jurisdiction, but do not affirmatively show a lack thereof, the proper remedy is to allow the plaintiff an opportunity to amend before dismissing.	"If a plaintiff's pleadings do not affirmatively show a lack of jurisdiction, is the proper remedy to allow the plaintiff an opportunity to amend its pleadings before dismissing the cause?"
4277	C.V. Perry & Co. v. W. Jefferson, 673 N.E.2d 613, 616, 110 Ohio App.3d 23, 27 (Ohio App. 12 Dist.,1996)	2	In action where court has been deprived of subject matter jurisdiction, claimant may refile same action because it would have been dismissed due to lack of subject matter jurisdiction and not brought to end on merits.	In an action where the court has been deprived of subject matter jurisdiction, a claimant may refile the same action because it would have been dismissed due to lack of subject matter jurisdiction and not brought to an end on the merits.	"In action where court has been deprived of subject matter jurisdiction, can a claimant refile a same action because it would have been dismissed due to lack of subject matter jurisdiction?"
4278	Sepulveda v. Krishnan, 839 S.W.2d 132, 134 (Tex. App. 1992), writ granted (June 3, 1993), aff'd, 916 S.W.2d 478 (Tex. 1995)	1	If special exceptions to plaintiff's pleadings are sustained, generally plaintiff must then be given an opportunity to amend before cause may be dismissed for failure to state cause of action; however, trial court need not give plaintiff opportunity to amend when pleading defect is of type that amendment cannot cure. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 91.	If the special exceptions have been sustained, generally the plaintiff must then be given an opportunity to amend before the case may be dismissed for failure to state a cause of action. Texas Department of Corrections v. Herring, 513 S.W.2d 6, 10 (Tex.1974); Moseley, 797 S.W.2d at 242. However, the trial court need not give the plaintiff an opportunity to amend when the pleading defect is of a type that amendment cannot cure.	"If special exceptions to a plaintiff's pleadings are sustained, should a plaintiff then be given an opportunity to amend before cause can be dismissed for failure to state cause of action?"
4279	Albrecht v. Board of Trustees of Internal Imp. Trust Fund, 481 So.2d 555, 556 (Fla.App. 2 Dist.,1986)	1	Generally, trial court must allow litigant opportunity to amend complaint before dismissing its suit with prejudice unless it is clear that pleading cannot be amended so as to state cause of action.	Generally, a trial court must allow a litigant the opportunity to amend a complaint before dismissing its suit with prejudice unless it is clear that the pleading cannot be amended so as to state a cause of action.	Should a trial court allow a litigant an opportunity to amend a complaint before dismissing its suit with prejudice?
4282	Bender v. Schallerer, 293 N.E.2d 411, 413, 9 Ill.App.3d 951, 953 (Ill.App. 1973)	3	A determination of whether there has been a lack of diligent prosecution rests within the sound discretion of trial court and that determination will not be disturbed upon appeal unless reviewing court finds that trial court abused its discretion.	A determination of whether there has been a lack of diligent prosecution rests within the sound discretion of the trial court and that determination will not be disturbed upon appeal unless the reviewing court finds that the trial court abused its discretion.	Does the determination of existence of lack of diligent prosecution rest within sound discretion of trial court?
4284	State v. Watts, 244 N.W.2d 586, 588 (Iowa, 1976)	4	Declaration of mistrial prior to verdict does not in itself bar retrial as trial court has considerable discretion in opting for a mistrial based on procedural error.	Declaration of a mistrial prior to a verdict does not in itself bar retrial as the trial court has considerable discretion in opting for a mistrial based on procedural error.	Does a declaration of mistrial prior to verdict not in itself bar retrial as a trial court has considerable discretion in opting for a mistrial based on procedural error?

4285	Schindler v. Bank of New York Mellon Tr. Co., 190 So. 3d 102, 105 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2015)	6	A trial court cannot dismiss a case with prejudice under rule governing involuntary dismissal for failure to amend if it has not first notified the offending party of the consequences of failing to amend. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(b).	A trial court cannot dismiss a case with prejudice under rule 1.420(b) for failure to amend if it has not first notified the offending party of the consequences of failing to amend. See First Union Nat'l Bank v.	Can a trial court dismiss a case with prejudice for failure to amend if it has not first notified the offending party of the consequences of failing to amend?
4286	In re Valliance Bank, 422 S.W.3d 722, 725 (Tex. App. 2012)	1	A trial court has plenary power to reinstate a case within thirty days after it signs an order of dismissal for want of prosecution. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a(3, 4).	A trial court has plenary power to reinstate a case within thirty days after it signs an order of dismissal for want of prosecution. Tex.R. Civ. P. 165a(3), (4); Neese v.	Does a trial court have plenary power to reinstate a case within thirty days after it signs an order of dismissal for want of prosecution?
4287	Valley Peat & Humus v. Sunnylands, Inc., 398 Pa. Super. 400, 406, 581 A.2d 193, 196 (1990)	7	When entering non pros judgment or when granting petition to open non pros judgment, trial court is bound to consider prejudice to adverse party.	Further, when entering a non pros judgment or when granting a petition to open a non pros judgment, the trial court is bound to consider the prejudice to the adverse party.	"When entering non pros judgment or when granting petition to open non pros judgment, is a trial court bound to consider prejudice to an adverse party?"
4288	K.P. v. Reed, 626 So.2d 1241, 1242 (Ala. 1992)	2	Entry of judgment of dismissal for want of prosecution in absence of clear record of delay, willful default, or contumacious conduct by plaintiff constitutes abuse of discretion.	The entry of a judgment of dismissal for want of prosecution in the absence of "a clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff" constitutes such an abuse.	Is the entry of judgment of dismissal for want of prosecution in absence of clear record of delay constitute abuse of discretion?
4289	Hernandez-Zuniga v. Tickle, 374 S.C. 235, 243 (2007)	6	In determining jurisdictional questions, it must be kept in mind that the basic purpose of the workers' compensation law is the inclusion of employers and employees within its coverage and not their exclusion, and doubts of jurisdiction will be resolved in favor of inclusion rather than exclusion; however, a construction should not be adopted that does violence to the specific provisions of the workers' compensation law.	In determining such jurisdictional questions, it must be kept in mind that the basic purpose of the Workmen's Compensation Act is the inclusion of employers and employees within its coverage and not their exclusion, and doubts of jurisdiction will be resolved in favor of inclusion rather than exclusion. However, a construction should not be adopted that does violence to the specific provisions of the Act.	"In determining jurisdiction, is the basic purpose of the Workmens Compensation Act the inclusion of employers and employees, not their exclusion?"

4290	Black v. McDermott Intern. Inc., 692 So.2d 724, 726, 96-2062 La.App. 4 Cir. 4/2/97, 5 (La.App. 4 Cir.,1997)	2	To be entitled to statutory employer tort immunity under two-contract theory, general contractor/principal must prove that he or she entered general contract to do certain work prior to entering contract with plaintiff's employer to perform part of that work. LSA-R.S. 23:1032, 23:1061.	In order to enjoy the tort immunity available under the two-contract theory, the defendant must show: (1) that the defendant entered into a contract with a third party; (2) that pursuant to that contract, work must be performed; and (3) that in order for defendant to fulfill its contractual obligation to perform the work, defendant entered into a subcontract for all or part of the work performed. Peterson, supra, 652 So.2d at 625. The two-contract theory also has a requirement that the general contractor/principal must prove that he entered a general contract to do certain work prior to entering his contract with the plaintiff's employer to perform a part of that work.	Does the two-contract theory require that the general contractor prove that he entered into a general contract to do a certain work prior to entering into his contract with the plaintiffs employer to perform part of that work?
4291	Brewbaker v. State Bd. of Regents, 843 N.W.2d 466, 472 (Iowa App.,2013)	14	A civil penalty imposed after a criminal penalty will constitute multiple punishments in violation of the Double Jeopardy Clause when the sanction, as applied in the individual case, serves the goal of punishment; however, if the civil sanction is remedial, the Double Jeopardy Clause is not violated. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	A civil penalty imposed after a criminal penalty will constitute multiple punishments in violation of the Double Jeopardy Clause when the sanction, as applied in the individual case, serves the goal of punishment. Id. However, if the civil sanction is remedial, the Double Jeopardy Clause is not violated.	Will a civil penalty imposed after a criminal penalty constitutes multiple punishments in violation of the Double Jeopardy Clause?
4292	United States v. Williams, 720 F.3d 674, 703 (C.A.8 (Neb.), 2013)	42	So long as it is not punitive in nature, a civil forfeiture action does not implicate double jeopardy and is merely a different aspect of a single prosecution. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Second, so long as it is not punitive in nature, a civil forfeiture action does not implicate double jeopardy and is "merely [a] different aspect[] of a single prosecution.	"So long as it is not punitive in nature, does a civil forfeiture action not implicate double jeopardy and is merely a different aspect of a single prosecution?"
4293	United States v. Harriman, 130 F. Supp. 198, 202 (S.D.N.Y., 1955)	6	If a case is taken from the jury without evident necessity and for matter of convenience, a second trial for the same offense will amount to double jeopardy. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	15 On the other hand, if the case is taken from the jury without evident necessity and for mere matter of convenience, a second trial for the same offense will amount to double jeopardy.	"If a case is taken from the jury without evident necessity and for matter of convenience, will a second trial for the same offense amount to double jeopardy?"
4294	State v. Enriquez-Beltran, 9 Neb. App. 459, 459 (2000)	1	Generally, the double jeopardy clause prevents both property or money forfeiture proceedings and criminal charges against a defendant arising from the same incident. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Generally, the Double Jeopardy Clause prevents both property or money forfeiture proceedings and criminal charges against a defendant arising from the same incident.	"Generally, does the double jeopardy clause prevent both property or money forfeiture proceedings and criminal charges against a defendant arising from the same incident?"

4295	United States v. Jones, 111 F.3d 597, 599 (C.A.8 (Mo.), 1997)	3	A single coordinated prosecution involving both civil forfeiture proceedings and criminal proceedings does not violate double jeopardy clause, as civil and criminal proceedings in such a situation are merely different aspects of a single prosecution. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	A single coordinated prosecution involving both civil forfeiture proceedings and criminal proceedings does not violate the double jeopardy clause, as the civil and criminal proceedings in such a situation are "merely different aspects of a single prosecution."	Does a single coordinated prosecution involving both civil forfeiture proceedings and criminal proceedings not violate a double jeopardy clause?
4296	Helvering v. Mitchell, 303 U.S. 391, 399 (1938)	3	Congress may impose both a criminal and a civil sanction in respect to the same act or omission, since the double jeopardy clause of the Constitution prohibits merely punishing twice or attempting a second time to punish criminally for the same offense. U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 5.	Congress may impose both a criminal and a civil sanction in respect to the same act or omission; for the double jeopardy clause prohibits merely punishing twice, or attempting a second time to punish criminally, for the same offense.	Can Congress impose both a criminal and a civil sanction in respect to a same act or omission?
4297	United States v. Levine, 905 F. Supp. 1025, 1032 (M.D. Fla. 1995)	11	Jeopardy attaches in civil forfeiture proceeding at beginning of hearing, when evidence is first presented to trier of fact; jeopardy does not attach when defendant does not make claim and thus does not become party to forfeiture, nor does it attach when there is no trial and property sought to be forfeited is forfeited without opposition. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Jeopardy "attaches" in a civil forfeiture proceeding "at the beginning of the hearing, when evidence is first presented to the trier of fact." United States v. Torres, 28 F.3d 1463, 1465 (7th Cir.1994) (citing Crist v. Bretz, 437 U.S. 28, 31-37, 98 S.Ct. 2156, 2159-61, 57 L.Ed.2d 24 (1978)) Jeopardy does not attach when the defendant does not make a claim and thus, does not become a party to the forfeiture. Id. Further, there is no jeopardy when there is no trial and the property sought to be forfeited is indeed forfeited without opposition.	"For double jeopardy purposes, does jeopardy attach in a civil forfeiture proceeding when evidence is first presented to the trier of fact?"
4298	United States v. Barber, 906 F. Supp. 424, 426-427 (E.D.Mich., 1995)	2	In determining if prior civil forfeiture implicates double jeopardy, there are three key determinations: whether civil forfeiture constitutes "punishment" for double jeopardy purposes; whether civil forfeiture and criminal conviction are punishment for same offense; and whether civil forfeiture and criminal prosecution are separate proceedings. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	In determining *427 if a prior civil forfeiture implicates double jeopardy, there are three key determinations: "(1) whether the civil forfeiture constitutes "punishment " for double jeopardy purposes; (2) whether the civil forfeiture and criminal conviction are punishment for the same offense; and (3) whether the civil forfeiture and criminal prosecution are separate proceedings.	"In determining if prior civil forfeiture implicates double jeopardy, are there three key determinations?"

4300	State v. Tilley, 104 S.W.3d 814, 819 (Mo.App. S.D., 2003)	3	Appellate courts are especially wary of claims that a trial court erred in failing to grant a mistrial sua sponte in criminal cases; generally, the double jeopardy clause of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution bars retrial if a judge grants a mistrial in a criminal case without the defendant's request or consent. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Moreover, appellate courts are especially wary of claims that a trial court erred in failing to grant a mistrial sua sponte in criminal cases. State v. Derrick, 965 S.W.2d 418, 419- 20 n. 1 (Mo.App.1998). This follows because generally the double jeopardy clause of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution bars retrial if a judge grants a mistrial in a criminal case without the defendant's request or consent.	Are appellate courts especially wary of claims that a trial court erred in failing to grant a mistrial sua sponte in criminal cases?
4301	United States v. Ham, 58 F.3d 78, 84 (C.A.4 (W.Va.), 1995)	10	If defendant has opportunity to object to trial court's dismissal of the jury before it decides discrete portion of the case, but fails to do so, defendant impliedly consents to jury's dismissal and cannot raise a double jeopardy defense to further prosecution before a second jury. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Similarly, if a defendant has an opportunity to object to the trial court's dismissal of the jury before it decides a discrete portion of the case, but fails to do so, the defendant impliedly consents to the jury's dismissal and cannot raise a double jeopardy defense to further prosecution before a second jury.	Can defendants not raise a double jeopardy defense to further prosecution before a second jury?
4302	U.S. v. Standefer, 948 F.2d 426, 432 (C.A.8 (Ark.),1991)	7	Absent prosecutorial misconduct, when mistrial is declared at request of criminal defendant, double jeopardy clause does not bar second prosecution; however, double jeopardy principles are implicated when defendant's mistrial motion results from prosecutorial misconduct. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Absent prosecutorial misconduct, when a mistrial is declared at the request of a criminal defendant, the Double Jeopardy Clause does not bar a second prosecution. See United States v. Dinitz, 424 U.S. 600, 96 S.Ct. 1075, 47 L.Ed.2d 267 (1976).Double jeopardy principles are implicated, however, when the defendant's mistrial motion results from prosecutorial misconduct.	"Absent prosecutorial misconduct, when mistrial is declared at a request of a criminal defendant, does a double jeopardy clause not bar a second prosecution?"
4305	Stromberg Carlson Leasing Corp. v. Cent. Welding Supply Co., 750 S.W.2d 862, 866 (Tex.App.-Hous. (14 Dist.), 1988)	10	Motion for reinstatement essentially provides opportunity for dismissed plaintiff to explain failure to prosecute with due diligence and to request court to reconsider decision to dismiss. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a.	A motion for reinstatement essentially provides an opportunity for the dismissed plaintiff to explain his failure to prosecute with due diligence and to request the court to reconsider its decision to dismiss, in much the same manner as a motion for a new trial.	Does a motion for reinstatement essentially provide an opportunity for a dismissed plaintiff to explain failure to prosecute with due diligence?
4306	Brim Laundry Machinery Co., Inc. v. Washex Machinery Corp., 854 S.W.2d 297, 301 (Tex.App. Fort Worth,1993)	10	Trial court may dismiss case for want of prosecution under its inherent power to control its docket, subject to abuse of discretion review.	A trial court may dismiss a case for want of prosecution under its inherent power to control its docket, subject to an abuse of discretion review.	"Can courts dismiss case for want of prosecution under its inherent power to control its docket, subject to abuse of discretion review?"

4307	Ashby & Geddes, P.A. v. Brandt, 806 F.Supp.2d 752, 755 (D.Del., 2011)	4	Under Delaware law, in the context of legal malpractice, a claimant cannot assert both negligence and breach of contract claims based on the same conduct because tort claims and breach of contract claims are not alternative theories of recovery for the same acts.	However, "Delaware courts have recognized that, in the context of legal malpractice, a claimant cannot assert both negligence and breach of contract claims based on the same conduct because tort claims and breach of contract claims are not alternative theories of recovery for the same acts."	"In the context of legal malpractice, can a claimant assert both negligence and breach of contract claims based on the same conduct?"
4309	Rosen v. Cascade Intern., Inc., 21 F.3d 1520, 1527 (C.A.11 (Fla.), 1994)	7	General federal rule of equity is that court may not reach defendant's assets unrelated to underlying litigation and freeze them so that they may be preserved to satisfy potential money judgment.	14 Based upon this fundamental principle of equity jurisprudence, we have explained, " 'the general federal rule of equity is that a court may not reach a defendant's assets unrelated to the underlying litigation and freeze them so that they may be preserved to satisfy a potential money judgment.' "	Can a court reach the defendants assets unrelated to the underlying litigation and freeze them to satisfy a potential money judgement?
4310	Chaara v. Intel Corp., 410 F.Supp.2d 1080, 1091 (D.N.M.,2005)	3	"Domicile" is not necessarily synonymous with residence, and one can reside in one place but be domiciled in another, and for adults, domicile is established by physical presence in a place in connection with a certain state of mind concerning one's intent to remain there.	Domicile is not necessarily synonymous with residence, and one can reside in one place but be domiciled in another. For adults, domicile is established by physical presence in a place in connection with a certain state of mind concerning one's intent to remain there.	"For adults, is domicile established by a physical presence in a place in connection with a certain state of mind concerning one's intent to remain there?"
4311	Bartley v. State, 692 S.W.2d 540, 542 (Tex.App. El Paso 1985)	5	A cause may be retried when a jury is discharged without rendering a verdict and case reverts to its posture before first trial. Vernon's Ann.Texas C.C.P. art. 36.33.	Under Article 36.33, a cause may be retried when a jury is discharged without rendering a verdict. Tex.Code Crim.Pro. Ann. art. 36.33 (Vernon 1981). The case reverts to its posture before the first trial.	Can a cause be retried when a jury is discharged without rendering a verdict and case reverts to its posture before a first trial?
4312	State v. Rodriguez, 521 S.W.3d 1, 16 (Tex.Crim.App., 2017)	25	Under the special needs exception to the search warrant requirement, public school teachers and administrators can search a public school student's locker, desk, person, backpack, or car without a warrant based upon reasonable suspicion rather than probable cause. U.S. Const. Amend. 4.	Under the T.L.O. test, public school teachers and administrators can search a public school student's locker, desk, person, backpack, or car without a warrant based upon reasonable suspicion rather than probable cause.	When is a school official justified to search of a student's backpack?
4313	German v. Fed. Home Loan Mortg. Corp., 885 F.Supp. 537, 569 (S.D.N.Y. 1995)	44	Under traditional common-law doctrines, lease was not regarded as set of mutually dependent promises effecting contract for sale but, rather, was understood to be conveyance of estate for set term and was subject to unique dictates of property law.	Under traditional common-law doctrines, a lease was not regarded as a set of mutually dependent promises effecting a contract for sale. Instead it was understood to be a conveyance of an estate for a set term; thus, it was subject to the unique dictates of property law.	Were leases understood to be a conveyance of an estate according to traditional common law doctrines?

4314	Ex parte Fierro, 79 S.W.3d 54, 56 (Tex.Crim.App.,2002)	2	As a general rule, after a jury has been impaneled and sworn, thus placing the defendant in jeopardy, double jeopardy bars a re-trial if the jury is discharged without reaching a verdict; however, exception to this rule exists when the defendant consents to a re-trial or a mistrial is mandated by manifest necessity. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	As a general rule, after a jury has been impaneled and sworn, thus placing the defendant in jeopardy, double jeopardy bars a re-trial if the jury is discharged without reaching a verdict. Brown v. State, 907 S.W.2d 835, 839 (Tex.Crim.App.1995). An exception to this rule exists when the defendant consents to a re-trial or a mistrial is mandated by "manifest necessity."	Does an exception to the double jeopardy rule apply when the defendant agrees to a retrial?
4315	State v. Blackshire, 344 S.W.3d 400, 405-406 (Tex.Crim.App., 2011)	8	Two conditions are necessary to implicate double jeopardy in the context of a State's appeal: (1) jeopardy must have attached, as when a jury is empaneled and sworn in a jury trial, and (2) the State's appeal must threaten the defendant with an impermissible successive trial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Two conditions *406 are therefore necessary to implicate double jeopardy in the context of a State's appeal: (1) jeopardy must have "attached," as when a jury is empaneled and sworn in a jury trial, and (2) the State's appeal must threaten the defendant with an impermissible successive trial.	What are the two conditions necessary to implicate double jeopardy in the context of a state's appeal?
4317	United States v. Ahrensfield, 698 F.3d 1310, 1322 (10th Cir. 2012)	11	Double Jeopardy Clause embodies two vitally important interests, i.e., the principle that state is not permitted to make repeated attempts to convict individual for same offense and interest in preserving finality of judgments. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The Double Jeopardy Clause "embodies two vitally important interests." Yeager v. United States, 557 U.S. 110, 117, 129 S.Ct. 2360, 174 L.Ed.2d 78 (2009). The first is the principle that the state is not permitted to make repeated attempts to convict an individual for the same offense. Id. at 117-18, 129 S.Ct. 2360. "The second interest is the preservation of the finality of judgments."	What are the two vitally important interests double jeopardy clause embodies?
4318	People v. Wiley, 389 N.E.2d 1283, 1285 (1979)	1	New trial is prohibited even if acquittal was contrary to evidence, questions regarding merits of acquittal being not germane to double jeopardy claim. U.S.C.A. Const. Amend. 5; S.H.A. ch. 38, S 115-4(k).	A new trial is prohibited even if the acquittal was contrary to the evidence, for questions regarding the merits of an acquittal are not germane to a double jeopardy claim.	"Is a new trial prohibited even if acquittal was contrary to evidence, questions regarding merits of acquittal being not germane to double jeopardy claim?"
4319	Cash v. State, 134 S.E.2d 524, 524-25, 108 Ga.App. 656, 656 (Ga.App. 1963)	3	Where verdict is in legal effect an acquittal, accused cannot be again tried for same offense even though a new trial be granted upon his motion.	Where a verdict in a criminal case is in legal effect an acquittal, the accused cannot be again tried for the same offense, 525 even though a new trial be granted upon his own motion.'	"Where a verdict is in legal effect an acquittal, can an accused be tried again for the same offense even though a new trial be granted upon his motion?"

4320	Phillips v. Ct. of Common Pleas, Hamilton Cnty., Ohio, 668 F.3d 804, 811 (6th Cir. 2012)	8	While the Fifth Amendment's Double Jeopardy Clause protects a criminal defendant from repeated prosecutions for the same offense, thus affording a defendant a valued right to have his trial completed by a particular tribunal, that right is not absolute, and the Clause does not guarantee that the state's interest in enforcing the criminal laws against a defendant will be vindicated in a single trial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The Fifth Amendment's Double Jeopardy Clause, applicable to the states through the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, Benton v. Maryland, 395 U.S. 784, 787, 89 S.Ct. 2056, 23 L.Ed.2d 707 (1969), "protects a criminal defendant from repeated prosecutions for the same offense." Oregon v. Kennedy, 456 U.S. 667, 671, 102 S.Ct. 2083, 72 L.Ed.2d 416 (1982). Stated otherwise, the clause "affords a criminal defendant a 'valued right to have his trial completed by a particular tribunal.'" 5 Id. at 672-73, 102 S.Ct. 2083 (quoting Wade v. Hunter, 336 U.S. 684, 689, 69 S.Ct. 834, 93 L.Ed. 974 (1949)). That right, however, is not absolute, and the Clause does not guarantee that the state's interest in enforcing the criminal laws against a defendant will be vindicated in a single trial.	Does the Double Jeopardy Clause guarantee the state's interest in enforcing the criminal laws against a defendant will be vindicated in a single trial?
4321	State v. Brunson, 327 N.C. 244, 247 (1990)	4	Although State cannot establish laws, rules, or procedures that would deprive a defendant of his federally guaranteed freedom from former jeopardy, State is free to establish laws, rules, or procedures which preserve a defendant's Fifth Amendment rights and provide even greater protection than the Federal Constitution mandates. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; Const. Art. 1, S 19.	It is well settled that a state cannot establish laws, rules, or procedures that would deprive a defendant of his federally guaranteed freedom from former jeopardy. See Benton v. Maryland, 395 U.S. at 795, 89 S.Ct. at 2062, 23 L.Ed.2d at 716. A state is free, however, to establish laws, rules, or procedures which preserve a defendant's fifth amendment rights and provide even greater protection than the federal Constitution mandates.	"Can a state establish laws, rules, or procedures that would deprive a defendant of his federally guaranteed freedom from former jeopardy?"
4327	Monge v. California, 524 U.S. 721, 730 (U.S. Cal.,1998)	5	The Double Jeopardy Clause does not provide the defendant with the right to know at any specific moment in time what the exact limit of his punishment will turn out to be. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The Double Jeopardy Clause "does not provide the defendant with the right to know at any specific moment in time what the exact limit of his punishment will turn out to be."	Does the Double Jeopardy Clause provide the defendant with the right to know at any specific moment in time what the exact limit of his punishment will turn out to be?

4329	Towers Tenant Ass'n v. Towers Ltd. P'ship, 563 F. Supp. 566, 570 (D.D.C., 1983)	3	Omission to perform contractual obligation does not ordinarily create cause of action in tort as between contracting parties; rather, action for breach of contract is recognized and appropriate avenue for relief.	The omission to perform a contractual obligation does not ordinarily create a cause of action in tort as between the contracting parties. Wolfe v. Continental Casualty, 647 F.2d 705, 710 (6th Cir.1981) (applying Ohio law). Rather, an action for breach of contract is the recognized and appropriate avenue of relief.	Does omission to perform a contractual obligation not ordinarily create a cause of action in tort as between the contracting parties?
4331	In re Federal–Mogul Global, Inc., 526 B.R. 567, 578 (D.Del., 2015)	24	In order for plaintiff to bring a tort claim along with a contract claim, alleged tortfeasor must have violated some independent legal duty apart from that imposed by contract.	To bring a tort claim along with a contract claim, the tortfeasor must have violated an independent legal duty apart from that imposed by contract.	"In order for plaintiff to bring a tort claim along with a contract claim, should an alleged tortfeasor have violated some independent legal duty apart from that imposed by contract?"
4333	In re Marriage of Ham, 59 S.W.3d 326, 330 (Tex.App.-Texarkana, 2001)	3	Judgment dismissing the action is not the proper remedy for defective pleadings unless the party with the defective pleadings is given the opportunity to amend and either stands by the original pleadings or submits defective amended pleadings.	A judgment dismissing the action is not the proper remedy for defective pleadings unless the party with the defective pleadings is given the opportunity to amend and either stands by the original pleadings or submits defective amended pleadings.	Is judgment dismissing the action not the proper remedy for defective pleadings unless the party with the defective pleadings is given the opportunity to amend?
4334	South Carolina Rentals, Inc. v. Arthur, 187 B.R. 502, 505–06 (D.S.C.,1995)	8	Determination of whether consumer rental-purchase is security agreement or true lease should be made according to factors set forth in South Carolina Uniform Commercial Code (UCC) and existing case law. S.C.Code 1976, S 36-1-201(37).	Thus, "the determination of whether a consumer rental-purchase is a security agreement or a true lease should be made according to the factors set forth in S.C Code Ann. 36-1-201-(37) ...and existing case law."	Should the determination of whether a consumer rental-purchase is a security agreement or true lease be made according to factors?
4335	In re Durham, 260 B.R. 383, 389 (2001)	5	Determination of whether a transaction constitutes a true lease or a disguised security agreement is a matter of state law, and often dependent upon the peculiar facts of each creditor-debtor relationship.	In reaching this conclusion, the Court first notes that the determination of whether a transaction constitutes a true lease or a disguised security agreement is a matter of state law and one which is often dependent upon the peculiar facts of each creditor-debtor relationship.	Does state law determine whether an agreement constitutes a true lease or security agreement?
4336	In re APB Online, Inc., 259 B.R. 812, 816 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2001)	4	Under Connecticut law, whether transaction qualifies as true "lease," or as disguised sale with security agreement, depends upon intention of parties, as determined by facts of case.	Whether the transaction involves a lease or disguised sale under Connecticut law depends on the intention of the parties as determined by the facts of each case.	When should a court examine facts and circumstances of a transaction to determine whether a lease is lease or sale with security agreement?
4338	Campbell v. Area Vocational Technical School No. 2, 159 N.W.2d 817, 821, 183 Neb. 318, 324 (Neb. 1968)	5	School district is creature of legislature and its purpose is to fulfill constitutional duty placed upon legislature to encourage schools and means of instruction; it is a governmental subdivision to which authority to levy taxes may properly be delegated under state Constitution. R.R.S.1943, SS 79-1445.18, 79-1445.23.	A school district is a creation of the Legislature. Its purpose is to fulfill the constitutional duty placed upon the Legislature 'to encourage schools and the means of instruction' and it is a governmental subdivision to which authority to levy taxes may properly be delegated under the Constitution.	Can a school district have authority to levy taxes delegated to it under state Constitution?

4339	Peters v. Lincoln Elec. Co., 285 F.3d 456, 475 (C.A.6 (Ohio), 2002)	30	While an affidavit is required to be sworn to by the affiant in front of an officer authorized to administer oaths, a federal statute allows for unsworn declarations under penalty of perjury to support any matter that legally requires an affidavit to support it. 28 U.S.C.A. § 1746.	While an "affidavit" is required to be sworn to by the affiant in front of an "officer authorized to administer oaths," see Black's Law Dictionary 54 (5th ed.1979), 28 U.S.C. 1746 allows for "unsworn declarations under penalty of perjury" to support any matter that legally requires an affidavit to support it.	Can unsworn declarations and statements be allowed under penalty of perjury to support any matter that legally requires an affidavit to support it?
4340	Bainbridge, Inc. v. Travelers Cas. Co. of Connecticut, 159 P.3d 748, 751 (Colo.App., 2006)	9	Equitable subrogation is a creature of equity having for its purpose the working out of an equitable adjustment between the parties by securing the ultimate discharge of a debt by the person who in equity and good conscience ought to pay it.	It is "a creature of equity having for its purpose the working out of an equitable adjustment between the parties by securing the ultimate discharge of a debt by the person who in equity and good conscience ought to pay it."	Is the purpose of equitable subrogation to require the ultimate discharge of debt by person who in equity and good conscience ought to pay it?
4341	Navajo Nation v. United States Department of Interior, 852 F.3d 1124, 1126 (C.A.D.C., 2017)	1	Congress enacted the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (ISDEAA) to help Indian tribes assume responsibility for programs or services that a federal agency would otherwise provide to the tribes' members. 25 U.S.C.A. § 5301 et seq.	Congress enacted the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act ("ISDEAA") to help Indian tribes assume responsibility for programs or services that a federal agency would otherwise provide to the tribes' members. 25 U.S.C. § 5301 et seq.	Why did the Congress enact the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (ISDEAA)?
4345	Flores v. Georgeson, 191 Cal. App. 4th 881, 887 (2011)	3	A court has inherent power, upon a sufficient factual showing, to dismiss an action shown to be sham, fictitious or without merit in order to prevent abuse of the judicial process.	A court has inherent power, upon a sufficient factual showing, to dismiss an action "shown to be sham, fictitious or without merit in order to prevent abuse of the judicial process."	"Does court have power to dismiss action shown to be sham, fictitious, or without merit? "
4346	Baker v. Fender, 614 So.2d 14, 15 (Fla.App. 3 Dist.,1993)	1	Lack of compliance with trial judge's order to plead with more specificity before discovery was not basis for dismissal with prejudice for failure to state cause of action.	Appellant's lack of compliance with the trial judge's order to plead-before discovery-with more specificity, is no basis for a dismissal with prejudice for failure to state a cause of action.	Is a lack of compliance with a trial judge's order to plead with more specificity before discovery not a basis for dismissal with prejudice for failure to state cause of action?
4348	Armstrong v. Elmore, 990 S.W.2d 62, 64 (Mo.App. W.D.,1999)	4	The existence of an actual and vital controversy susceptible of some relief is essential to appellate jurisdiction, and, when an event occurs that makes a court's decision unnecessary or makes granting effectual relief by the court impossible, the case is moot and generally should be dismissed.	"The existence of an actual and vital controversy susceptible of some relief is essential to appellate jurisdiction." State ex rel. Wilson v. Murray, 955 S.W.2d 811, 812-813 (Mo.App. W.D.1997). When an event occurs that makes a court's decision unnecessary or makes granting effectual relief by the court impossible, the case is moot and generally should be dismissed.	Question Is a case moot and to be dismissed where an event occurs that makes a court's decision unnecessary or makes granting effectual relief by the court impossible?

4349	Allstate Ins. Co. v. Bucelo, 650 So.2d 1128, 1130 (Fla.App. 3 Dist.,1995)	3	Nonrecord activities such as attempted settlement negotiations do not constitute good cause to preclude dismissal for lack of prosecution under rule of civil procedure. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(e).	As Allstate correctly points out, the law is well settled that nonrecord activities such as attempted settlement negotiations do not constitute good cause to preclude a dismissal for lack of prosecution pursuant to Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.420(e).	Do nonrecord activities not constitute good cause to preclude a dismissal for lack of prosecution under a rule of civil procedure?
4350	Cramer v. U.S., 65 S.Ct. 918, 934-35, 325 U.S. 1, 34-35 (U.S., 1945)	9	The minimum function that an "overt act" must perform in treason prosecution is that it show sufficient action by accused, in its setting, to sustain a finding that accused actually gave aid and comfort to the enemy. Cr.Code S 1, 18 U.S.C.A. S 2381; U.S.C.A. Const. art. 3, S 3.	The very minimum function that an overt act 43 must perform in a treason 935 prosecution is that it show sufficient action by the accused, in its setting, to sustain a finding that the accused actually gave 44 aid and comfort to the enemy.	What is the minimum function that an overt act must perform in a treason prosecution?
4351	Corum v. Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co., 67 Cal. App. 2d 891, 894, 155 P.2d 710, 712 (1945)	2	Ordinarily a demurrer for uncertainty does not lie where facts alleged in complaint show a superior knowledge of a particular fact on part of demurring party and it appears that defendant is not injured as result of failure to allege particularly that which is alleged generally.	Ordinarily a demurrer for uncertainty does not lie where the facts alleged in the complaint show a superior knowledge of a particular fact on the part of the demurring party (Brea v. McGlashan, 3 Cal.App.2d 454, 39 P.2d 877; Swasey v. de L'Etanche, 17 Cal.App.2d 713, 62 P.2d 753; Goldstein v. Healy, 187 Cal. 206, 201 P. 462; Schaake v. Eagle, etc., Can Co., 135 Cal. 472, 63 P. 1025, 67 P. 759) and it appears that the defendant is not injured as a result of a failure to allege particularly that which is alleged generally.	Will a demurrer for uncertainty lie when the facts are within the knowledge of the demurring parties?
4352	Cormier v. Clemco Services Corp., 48 F.3d 179, 183 (C.A.5 (La.),1995)	3	Liability for workers' compensation is unitary obligation for indeterminate amount, which the law directs shall be made in a series of regular payments.	However, as the Billizon Court correctly explained, "the liability for workers' compensation is a unitary obligation for an indeterminate amount, which the law directs shall be made in a series of regular payments.	"Is the liability for workers compensation a unitary obligation for an indeterminate amount, which the law directs shall be made in a series of regular payments?"
4353	Feykert v. Hardy, 213 Cal. App. 2d 67, 74, 28 Cal. Rptr. 510, 514 (Ct. App. 1963)	1	When filed, pretrial conference order, unless modified at or before trial, supersedes issues raised by pleadings and controls subsequent course of case. Cal.Rules of Court, rule 216.	It is settled that, when filed, a pretrial conference order, unless modified at or before trial, supersedes the issues raised by the pleadings and controls the subsequent course of the case.	"When filed, does a pretrial conference order supersede issues raised by pleadings and controls subsequent course of a case?"

4356	Intech Metals, Inc. v. Meyer, Wagner & Jacobs, 153 A.3d 406, 410 (Pa.Super., 2016)	1	To dismiss a case for inactivity pursuant to a defendant's motion for non pros, there must first be a lack of due diligence on the part of the plaintiff in failing to proceed with reasonable promptitude; second, the plaintiff must have no compelling reason for the delay; finally, the delay must cause actual prejudice to the defendant.	To dismiss a case for inactivity pursuant to a defendant's motion for non pros there must first be a lack of due diligence on the part of the plaintiff in failing to proceed with reasonable promptitude. Second, the plaintiff must have no compelling reason for the delay. Finally, the delay must cause actual prejudice to the defendant.	Where can the judgment of non pros be entered?
4358	South Jordan City v. Summerhays, 392 P.3d 855, 857 (2017)	5	Concept that no person shall be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb, known as double jeopardy, is fundamental to the American scheme of justice and stems from the underlying premise that a defendant should not be twice tried or punished for the same offense. U.S. Const. Amend. 5.	The Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution provides that no person shall "be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb." U.S. Const. amend. V. This concept, known as double jeopardy, is "fundamental to the American scheme of justice," Benton v. Maryland, 395 U.S. 784, 796, 89 S.Ct. 2056, 23 L.Ed.2d 707 (1969) (internal quotation marks omitted), and "stem[s] from the underlying premise that a defendant should not be twice tried or punished for the same offense,"	What is known as double jeopardy?
4359	Ex parte Fife, 49 S.W.3d 35, 38-39 (Tex.App. Fort Worth,2001)	5	Court may not presume a defendant automatically waives his double jeopardy protections by seeking a mistrial, but, rather, the court must look at the facts that precipitated the mistrial and, if a defendant had no other recourse or remedy other than a mistrial, double jeopardy will prevent retrial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	In other words, we may not presume a defendant automatically waives his double jeopardy protections by seeking a mistrial; we must look at the facts that precipitated the mistrial and, if a defendant had no other recourse or remedy other than a mistrial, double jeopardy will prevent retrial.	Can a court not presume a defendant automatically waives his double jeopardy protections by seeking a mistrial?
4360	Choi v. Immanuel Korean United Methodist Church, 327 Ga.App. 26, 27 (Ga.App., 2014)	3	Motion to dismiss should not be granted unless it appears to a certainty that the plaintiff would be entitled to no relief under any state of facts which could be proved in support of his claim; all facts in the pleadings are to be construed in the light most favorable to the plaintiff with all doubts resolved in his favor even though unfavorable constructions are possible.	A motion to dismiss should not be granted unless it appears to a certainty that the plaintiff would be entitled to no relief under any state of facts which could be proved in support of his claim. All facts in the pleadings are to be construed in the light most favorable to the plaintiff with all doubts resolved in his favor even though unfavorable constructions are possible.	Should a motion to dismiss not be granted unless it appears to a certainty that the plaintiff would be entitled to no relief under any state of facts?
4361	Doe v. Qi, 349 F.Supp.2d 1258, 1292 (N.D.Cal.,2004)	16	Act of state doctrine arises only when the court is required to rule on the legality of an official act of a foreign sovereign performed within its own territory.	The act of state doctrine presupposes an "act of state." It arises only when the court is required to rule on the legality of an "official act of a foreign sovereign performed within its own territory."	Does the act of state doctrine arise only when the court is required to rule on the legality of an official act of a foreign sovereign performed within its own territory?

4363	Drouillard v. Stroh Brewery Co., 536 N.W.2d 530, 533, 449 Mich. 293, 299 (Mich.,1995)	1	Workers' compensation is one unit in loosely connected system of wage-loss protection that also includes unemployment compensation, social security old age, disability, and survivors benefits, aid to families with dependent children, and is designed to restore to employees portion of wages lost because of physical disability, unemployment and old age.	Worker's compensation is one unit in a loosely connected system of wage-loss protection that also includes unemployment compensation, social security old- age, disability, and survivors benefits, aid to families with dependent children, and general assistance. Franks v. White Pine Copper, 422 Mich. 636, 654, 375 N.W.2d 715 (1985). Such wage loss legislation is designed to restore to employees a portion of wages lost because of three major causes of wage loss: physical disability, unemployment, and old age.	Is workers' compensation a loosely connected system of wage-loss protection?
4365	S. B. Beach Properties v. Berti, 39 Cal.4th 374, 380 (2006)	4	A voluntary dismissal is available to a plaintiff as a matter of right and is accomplished by filing with the clerk a written request therefor; if in proper form, the dismissal is effective immediately, the entry is a ministerial, not a judicial, act, and no appeal lies therefrom. West's Ann.Cal.C.C.P. S 581.	A section 581 dismissal "is available to [a] plaintiff as a matter of right and is accomplished by filing with the clerk a written request therefor. If in proper form, the dismissal is effective immediately." (Associated Convalescent Enterprises v. Carl Marks & Co., Inc. (1973) 33 Cal.App.3d 116, 120, 108 Cal.Rptr. 782.) "The entry is a ministerial, not a judicial, act, and no appeal lies therefrom." (Ibid.) Once plaintiffs dismissed their action no lawsuit existed for defendants to move against pursuant to section 425.16, subdivision (c).	Is a voluntary dismissal available to a plaintiff as a matter of right and is accomplished by filing with the clerk a written request therefor?
4366	People v. Munafo, 50 N.Y.2d 326, 331, 406 N.E.2d 780, 783 (1980)	3	In deciding whether an act carries public ramifications, courts are constrained to assess nature and number of those attracted, taking into account surrounding circumstances including time and place of episode under scrutiny.	In deciding whether an act carries public ramifications, courts are constrained to assess the nature and number of those attracted, taking into account the surrounding circumstances, including, of course, the time and the place of the episode under scrutiny (see People v. Phillips, 245 N.Y. 401, 402-403, 157 N.E. 508; People v. Canner, 88 Misc.2d 85, 388 N.Y.S.2d 812, affd. on opn. below 40 N.Y.2d 886, 389 N.Y.S.2d 361, 257 N.E.2d 1016).	In deciding that an act carries public ramifications should the surrounding circumstances be taken into act?
4367	Parker v. City of Saint Joseph, 167 S.W.3d 219, 221 (Mo.App. W.D.,2005)	5	When exhaustion of administrative remedies is required and a party fails to pursue all administrative remedies, the circuit court is without subject matter jurisdiction and the only recourse is to dismiss the cause.	When exhaustion is required and a party fails to pursue all administrative remedies, the circuit court is without subject matter jurisdiction and the only recourse is to dismiss the cause.	"When exhaustion is required and a party fails to pursue all administrative remedies, will the court have subject matter jurisdiction and what is the recourse? "

4368	Austin v. Pickett, 87 S.W.3d 343, 348 (Mo.App. W.D.,2002)	15	To rise to level of waiver, conduct must be so manifestly consistent with, and indicative of, intention to renounce particular right or benefit that no other reasonable explanation of conduct is possible.	"To rise to the level of waiver, the conduct must be so manifestly consistent with and indicative of an intention to renounce a particular right or benefit that no other reasonable explanation of the conduct is possible."	"To rise to the level of waiver, should conduct be so manifestly consistent with an intention to renounce a right that no other reasonable explanation is possible? "
4369	Brown v. Kidney and Hypertension Associates, L.L.P., 5 So.3d 258, 265, 2008-0919 La.App. 1 Cir. 1/12/09, 8 (La.App. 1 Cir.,2009)	8	The mere intention to take a step in the prosecution or defense of a claim without having actually taken such a step is insufficient to interrupt the abandonment period. LSA-C.C.P. art. 561.	Nevertheless, the mere intention to take a step in the prosecution or defense of a claim without having actually taken such a step is insufficient to interrupt the abandonment period.	Is the mere intention to take a step in the prosecution or defense of the claim without having actually taken such a step insufficient to interrupt the abandonment period?
4370	Optopics Laboratories Corp. v. Savannah Bank of Nigeria, Ltd., 816 F.Supp. 898, 906 (S.D.N.Y.,1993)	8	Prerequisite for application of act of state doctrine is that act in question is one which takes effect entirely within boundaries of sovereign nation.	A prerequisite for the application of the act of state doctrine is that the act in question is one which takes effect entirely within the boundaries of the sovereign nation.	Is a prerequisite for the application of the act of state doctrine that the act in question is one which takes effect entirely within boundaries of the sovereign nation?
4371	BAE Sys. Tech. Sol. & Servs., Inc. v. Republic of Korea's Def. Acquisition Program Admin., 195 F. Supp. 3d 776, 786 (D. Md. 2016)	7	A country's prerogative to control and regulate activities within its boundaries, which is an essential, definitional element of sovereignty, gives rise to jurisdiction.	A country's "prerogative to control and regulate activities within its boundaries," which "is an essential, definitional element of sovereignty," gives rise to jurisdiction.	Does a countrys prerogative to control and regulate activities within its boundaries which is an essential definitional element of sovereignty give rise to jurisdiction?
4373	Application of Eichner, 423 N.Y.S.2d 580, 593 (Sup Ct, Dec. 06, 1979)	4	General common-law right to bodily self-determination, which includes right of a competent adult to refuse life-sustaining medical treatment, is subject to being overridden by state interests in appropriate circumstances; among the state interests which must be weighed are interest in protection of third parties, such as minor children, maintenance of latitude for physicians and hospitals to fulfill their ethical obligations and preservation of all human life. U.S.C.A.Const. Amends. 1, 4, 5, 14; Public Health Law S 2803-c.	From all of the foregoing, it is clear that there is a common law right to bodily self-determination, which includes the right of a competent adult to refuse life- sustaining medical treatment. This general right is, however, subject to being overridden by State interests in appropriate circumstances. Among the State interests which must be weighed are interests in the protection of third parties, such as minor children, the maintenance of latitude for physicians and hospitals to fulfill their ethical obligations and, by far the most important, the preservation of all human life.	Is the right of an individual to refuse medical treatment subject to being overridden by states interests in appropriate circumstances?

4374	In re Bill Heard Enterprises, Inc., 423 B.R. 771, 781 (N.D. Ala. 2010)	9	Under Nevada law, equitable subrogation is generally appropriate where: (1) the subrogee made the payment to protect his or her own interest, (2) the subrogee did not act as a volunteer, (3) the subrogee was not primarily liable for the debt paid, (4) the subrogee paid off the entire encumbrance, and (5) subrogation would not work any injustice to the rights of the junior lienholder.	Nevada: "Equitable subrogation is generally appropriate where: (1) the subrogee made the payment to protect his or her own interest, (2) the subrogee did not act as a volunteer, (3) the subrogee was not primarily liable for the debt paid, (4) the subrogee paid off the entire encumbrance, and (5) subrogation would not work any injustice to the rights of the junior lienholder."	Where is equitable subrogation generally appropriate?
4375	Hellenic Lines, Limited v. Moore, 345 F.2d 978, 980 (C.A.D.C. 1965)	6	Because application of doctrine of diplomatic immunity exempts Ambassador from legal procedures necessary to ordered society and often deprives others of remedies for harm they have suffered, courts hesitate to invoke doctrine in novel situation unless its purposes will certainly be served. 22 U.S.C.A. SS 252, 253.	Because application of the doctrine of diplomatic immunity exempts a person from the legal procedures necessary to ordered society and often deprives others of remedies for harm they have suffered, courts hesitate to invoke the doctrine in a novel situation unless its purposes will certainly be served.	What is the purpose of diplomatic immunity?
4377	Chelsea Square Textiles, Inc. v. Bombay Dyeing and Mfg. Co., Ltd., 189 F.3d 289, 295–96 (C.A.2 (N.Y.), 1999)	5	While section of the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) preempts state law that treats arbitration agreements differently from any other contracts, it also preserves general principles of state contract law as rules of decision on whether the parties have entered into an agreement to arbitrate. 9 U.S.C.A. S 2.	Thus, we have stated that while 2 of the FAA preempts state law that treats arbitration agreements differently from any other contracts, 5 it also *296 "preserves general principles of state contract law as rules of decision on whether the parties have entered into an agreement to arbitrate."	Does the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) preserve general principles of state contract law?
4378	Chelsea Square Textiles, Inc. v. Bombay Dyeing and Mfg. Co., Ltd., 189 F.3d 289, 295–96 (C.A.2 (N.Y.), 1999)	5	While section of the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) preempts state law that treats arbitration agreements differently from any other contracts, it also preserves general principles of state contract law as rules of decision on whether the parties have entered into an agreement to arbitrate. 9 U.S.C.A. S 2.	Thus, we have stated that while 2 of the FAA preempts state law that treats arbitration agreements differently from any other contracts, 5 it also *296 "preserves general principles of state contract law as rules of decision on whether the parties have entered into an agreement to arbitrate."	Does the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) pre-empt state law that treats arbitration agreements differently from other contracts?
4379	Tucker v. Signature Flight Support-Savannah, Inc., 219 Ga. App. 834, 834, 466 S.E.2d 694, 695 (1996)	2	Where any one of statutory requirements for granting continuance based on absence of witness is not met, there is no abuse of trial court's discretion to deny continuance. O.C.G.A. S 9-10-160.	[2] [3] OCGA 9-10-160 provides that all applications for continuances based upon the absence of a witness shall set forth eight different requirements. Where any one of these statutory requirements is not met, there is no abuse of the trial court's discretion to deny a continuance.	" Where any one of the eight statutory requirements for granting continuance based upon the absence of a witness is not met, is there an abuse of the trial court's discretion to deny a continuance?"
4380	Crystallex International Corp. v. Petróleos de Venezuela, S.A., 213 F.Supp.3d 683, 696 (D.Del., 2016)	17	Application of the act of state doctrine involves balancing the national interest with the desire of litigants to obtain decisions on the merits of their claims.	The act of state doctrine's application involves balancing the national interest with the desire of litigants to obtain decisions on the merits of their claims.	Does the application of the act of state doctrine involve balancing the national interest with the desire of litigants to obtain decisions on the merits of their claims?

4383	Classic Commercial Services, Inc. v. Baldwin, 784 S.E.2d 44, 47, 336 Ga.App. 183, 186 (Ga.App., 2016)	7	As a rule, the testimony of a party who offers himself as a witness in his own behalf at trial is to be construed most strongly against him when it is self-contradictory, vague or equivocal, and this principle applies in the context of a motion to dismiss on jurisdictional grounds.	As a rule, "the testimony of a party who offers [himself] as a witness in [his] own behalf at trial is to be construed most strongly against [him] when it is self-contradictory, vague or equivocal." (Citation and punctuation omitted.) Conrad v. Conrad, 278 Ga. 107, 110, 597 S.E.2d 369 (2004). This principle applies in the context of a motion to dismiss on jurisdictional grounds.	Does the self-contradictory testimony rule apply in the context of a motion to dismiss on jurisdictional grounds?
4385	Moening v. Alaska Mut. Bank, 751 P.2d 5, 8–9 (Alaska,1988)	8	When note is executed and secured by deed of trust, documents are read and construed together as one contract to ascertain parties' intent.	When a note is executed and secured by a deed of trust, the documents are *9 read and construed together as one contract to ascertain the parties' intent.	"When a note is executed and secured by a deed of trust, are the documents read and construed together as one contract to ascertain the parties' intent? "
4386	Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Lai, 42 F.3d 1299, 1305 (C.A.9 (Cal.),1994)	9	Title VII plaintiff may only be forced to forego her statutory remedies and arbitrate her claims if she has knowingly agreed to submit such disputes to arbitration. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.; Civil Rights Act of 1964, S 701 et seq., 42 U.S.C.A. S 2000e et seq.; Civil Rights Act of 1991, S 118, 105 Stat. 1071.	Thus, we conclude that a Title VII plaintiff may only be forced to forego her statutory remedies and arbitrate her claims if she has knowingly agreed to submit such disputes to arbitration.	Can Title VII plaintiffs be forced to forego the statutory remedies and arbitrate their claims?
4388	Bizios v. Town of Lakewood Village, 453 S.W.3d 598, 600 (Tex.App.-Fort Worth, 2014)	3	Because a municipality possesses authority to regulate land development in its extraterritorial jurisdiction (ETJ) only to the extent the municipality is legislatively granted that authority, legislatively-created express limitations to that grant of authority are construed strictly against the authority of the municipality and in favor of the landowner.	Because a municipality possesses authority to regulate land development in its ETJ only to the extent it is legislatively granted that authority, legislatively-created express limitations to that grant of authority-such as local government code section 212.003-are construed strictly against the authority of the municipality and in favor of the landowner.	Is a city or municipalities authority to regulate land development in its extraterritorial jurisdiction (ETJ) wholly derived from a legislative grant of authority?
4389	U.S. v. Ventresca, 85 S.Ct. 741, 745–46, 380 U.S. 102, 108 (U.S.Mass. 1965)	8	Affidavit on which search warrant is issued may be based on hearsay information and need not reflect direct personal observations of affiant, so long as magistrate is informed of some of underlying circumstances supporting affiant's conclusions and his belief that any involved informant, whose identity need not be disclosed, was credible or his information reliable. U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 4; Fed.Rules Crim.Proc. rule 41, 18 U.S.C.A.	And, in Aguilar we recognized that 'an affidavit may be based on hearsay information and need not reflect the direct personal observations 746 of the affiant,' so long as the magistrate is 'informed of some of the underlying circumstances' supporting the affiant's conclusions and his belief that any informant involved 'whose identity need not be disclosed * * * was 'credible' or his information 'reliable.'"	Can affidavits be based on hearsay?

4391	Donnelly v. Slingshot Sports LLC, 605 F.Supp.2d 613, 616 (D.Del.,2009)	3	In applying the "connection test" for admiralty jurisdiction, court must (1) assess the general features of the type of incident involved and determine whether the incident has a potentially disruptive impact on maritime commerce; and (2) determine whether the general character of the activity giving rise to the incident shows a substantial relationship to traditional maritime activity. 28 U.S.C.A. S 1331(1).	In applying the connection test, the Court must (1) " 'assess the general features of the type of incident involved' ... [and] "determine whether the incident has 'a potentially disruptive impact on maritime commerce;' " and (2) "determine whether the 'general character' of the 'activity giving rise to the incident' shows a 'substantial relationship to traditional maritime activity.' "	How can federal admiralty jurisdiction be invoked over a tort claim?
4392	Fed. Com. & Nav. Co. v. Kanematsu-Gosho, Ltd., 457 F.2d 387, 389 (2d Cir. 1972)	3	Basic purposes of arbitration are to resolve disputes speedily and to avoid expense and delay of extended court proceedings, and overly technical judicial review of arbitration awards would frustrate those basic purposes.	Overly technical judicial review of arbitration awards would frustrate the basic purposes of arbitration: to resolve disputes speedily and to avoid the expense and delay of extended court proceedings.	Will a technical judicial review of arbitration awards frustrate the basic purpose of arbitration?
4394	Becker v. Davis, 491 F.3d 1292, 1298 (C.A.11 (Fla.), 2007)	4	While there is liberal federal policy favoring arbitration agreements, Federal Arbitration Act's (FAA) strong proarbitration policy only applies to disputes that parties have agreed to arbitrate; party cannot be forced to arbitrate any dispute that party has not agreed to submit to arbitration. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	While there is a liberal federal policy favoring arbitration agreements, "the FAA's strong proarbitration policy only applies to disputes that the parties have agreed to arbitrate." Id. A party cannot be forced to arbitrate any dispute that the party has not agreed to submit to arbitration.	Would Federal Arbitration Act's (FAA) strong proarbitration policy apply to disputes that parties have not agreed to arbitrate?
4395	Southland Corp. v. Keating, 465 U.S. 1, 10 (1984)	5	In enacting provision of federal arbitration act that an arbitration provision is valid and irrevocable the Congress declared a national policy favoring arbitration and withdrew power of the states to require a judicial forum for resolution of claims which the contracting parties agreed to resolve by arbitration. 9 U.S.C.A. S 2.	So interpreted the California Franchise Investment Law directly conflicts with 2 of the Federal Arbitration Act and violates the Supremacy Clause. [5] In enacting 2 of the federal Act, Congress declared a national policy favoring arbitration and withdrew the power of the states to require a judicial forum for the resolution of claims which the contracting parties agreed to resolve by arbitration.	Does national policy favoring arbitration apply in both state and federal courts?
4396	Peterson v. Livestock Commission, 120 Mont. 140, 149-50 (1947)	6	A statute which attempts to place the court in the place of a commission or board to try a matter anew as an administrative body is unconstitutional as a delegation to the judiciary of nonjudicial powers. Const. art. 4, S 1.	It is generally held that a statute which attempts to place the court in the place of a commission or board to try a matter anew as an administrative body is unconstitutional as a delegation to the judiciary of non-judicial powers.	Is a statute which attempts to place the court in the place of a commission or board to try a matter anew as an administrative body unconstitutional?

4397	Rychnovsky v. Cole, 119 S.W.3d 204, 211 (Mo.App. W.D.,2003)	16	Where real estate is involved, trespass is the unauthorized entry upon the land of another, regardless of the amount of force used, even if no damage is done or the injury is slight; the unauthorized entry may be made by a person or an object as a result of a person's actions.	Where real estate is involved, "trespass is the unauthorized entry upon the land of another, regardless of the amount of force used, even if no damage is done or the injury is slight." Rosenfeld, 28 S.W.3d at 449. The unauthorized entry may be made by a person or an object as a result of a person's actions.	Is damage done to the property required for the offense of trespass?
4398	Win & Son, Inc. v. City of Philadelphia, 178 F. Supp. 3d 234, 245 (E.D. Pa. 2016)	19	Under Pennsylvania law, one is subject to liability to another for trespass, irrespective of whether he thereby causes harm to any legally protected interest of the other, if he intentionally enters land in the possession of the other, or causes a thing or a third person to do so.	Under Pennsylvania law, [o]ne is subject to liability to another for trespass, irrespective of whether he thereby causes harm to any legally protected interest of the other, if he intentionally ... enters land in the possession of the other, or causes a thing or a third person to do so.	Is the causation of harm to a legally protected interest of another an element of trespass?
4399	Application of Bohlinger, 199 Misc. 941, 972, 106 N.Y.S.2d 953, 981-82 (Sup. Ct. 1951), aff'd sub nom. In re Int'l Workers Ord., 280 A.D. 517, 113 N.Y.S.2d 755 (App. Div. 1952), aff'd sub nom. In re Bohlinger, People by, 305 N.Y. 258, 112 N.E.2d 280 (1953)	10	The Legislature may enact statutes in broad outline leaving to administrative officials enforcing them, the duty of arranging details and such delegation is not unconstitutional.	The courts have long recognized that the legislature may, and indeed in many cases, has no alternative, enact statutes in broad outline, leaving to administrative officials enforcing them, the duty of arranging the details and that such delegation is not unconstitutional.	Can the Legislature enact statutes in broad outline leaving to administrative officials enforcing them the duty of arranging details?
4400	Hutchins v. Mayo, 143 Fla. 707, 710, 197 So. 495, 496 (1940)	2	Sections of statute placing in Citrus Commission extensive plenary authority to regulate grading and labeling of fruit to accomplish the general plan and purpose contemplated by the legislature do not unlawfully delegate power vested in the legislature. F.S.A. SS 595.09, 595.12; F.S.A.Const. art. 2; art. 3, S 1.	It is true that these parts of the act place in the commission extensive plenary authority to regulate the grading and labeling of fruit to accomplish the general plan and purpose contemplated by the legislature but we find in them no unlawful delegation of power vested in the legislature by the organic law.	Is the authority vested in an administrative agency to regulate the grading and labeling of fruit an unlawful delegation of legislative authority?
4403	Warren Cnty. Hum. Servs. v. State Civ. Serv. Comm'n (Roberts), 844 A.2d 70, 73 (Pa. Commw. Ct. 2004)	1	The right to engage in a particular occupation is an important right but not a fundamental right and, therefore, is subject to the rational basis test, i.e., a state may not deprive an individual of that right unless it can be shown that such deprivation is reasonably related to the state interest that is sought to be protected. Const. Art. 1, S 1.	The right to engage in a particular occupation is an important right but not a fundamental right and, therefore, is subject to the rational basis test, i.e., a state may not deprive an individual of that right unless it can be shown that such deprivation is reasonably related to the state interest that is sought to be protected.	Can the state deprive an individual of the ability to work at a particular job?

4404	Klay v. All Defendants, 389 F.3d 1191, 1200 (11th Cir. 2004)	10	Court makes determination of whether parties agreed to arbitrate dispute by applying federal substantive law of arbitrability, applicable to any arbitration agreement within coverage of FAA; inquiry must be undertaken against background of liberal federal policy favoring arbitration agreements, under which it is role of courts to rigorously enforce agreements to arbitrate.	The first step is to determine whether the parties agreed to arbitrate the dispute. Mitsubishi Motors Corp. v. Soler Chrysler–Plymouth, Inc., 473 U.S. 614, 626, 105 S.Ct. 3346, 3353, 87 L.Ed.2d 444 (1985). We must make this determination "by applying the 'federal substantive law of arbitrability, applicable to any arbitration agreement within the coverage of the [FAA].' " 9 Id. (citation omitted). This inquiry must be undertaken against the background of a "liberal federal policy favoring arbitration agreements." Moses H. Cone Mem'l Hosp. v. Mercury Constr. Corp., 460 U.S. 1, 24, 103 S.Ct. 927, 941, 74 L.Ed.2d 765 (1983) ("[Q]uestions of arbitrability must be addressed with a healthy regard for the federal policy favoring arbitration."). Under this policy, it is the role of courts to "rigorously enforce agreements to arbitrate."	Do the courts use state or federal law to determine whether the parties agreed to arbitrate a dispute?
4405	Wiand v. Schneiderman, 778 F.3d 917, 922 (11th Cir. 2015)	3	There is a liberal federal policy favoring arbitration agreements, such that any doubts concerning the scope of arbitrable issues should be resolved in favor of arbitration; thus, a party seeking to avoid arbitration bears the burden of demonstrating a contrary congressional command using a statute's text, its legislative history, or identifying an inherent conflict between arbitration and the statute's underlying purposes.	There is a "liberal federal policy favoring arbitration agreements," such that "any doubts concerning the scope of arbitrable issues should be resolved in favor of arbitration." Moses H. Cone Mem'l Hosp. v. Mercury Constr. Corp., 460 U.S. 1, 24–25, 103 S.Ct. 927, 74 L.Ed.2d 765 (1983). A party seeking to avoid arbitration thus bears the burden of demonstrating a contrary congressional command using a statute's text, its legislative history, or identifying an "inherent conflict between arbitration and the statute's underlying purposes." Shearson, 482 U.S. at 227, 107 S.Ct. 2332.	Can a contrary congressional command assist a party to avoid arbitration?

4406	Adkins v. Labor Ready, Inc., 185 F.Supp.2d 628, 636 (S.D.W.Va., 2001)	1	In determining whether valid arbitration agreement arose between two parties, federal court looks to state law that ordinarily governs formation of contracts; however, while applying state contract law, court nonetheless gives due regard to federal policy favoring arbitration, and ambiguities as to scope of arbitration clause itself must be resolved in favor of arbitration. 9 U.S.C.A. § 2.	In determining whether a valid arbitration agreement arose between two parties, a federal court should look to the state law that ordinarily governs the formation of contracts. 9 U.S.C. § 2; First Options of Chicago, Inc. v. Kaplan, 514 U.S. 938, 943, 115 S.Ct. 1920, 131 L.Ed.2d 985 (1995). However, while applying state contract law, the court is nonetheless to give "due regard ... to the federal policy favoring arbitration, and ambiguities as to the scope of the arbitration clause itself must be resolved in favor of arbitration."	Does the court need to look to the state law in determining whether there is a valid arbitration agreement between parties?
4407	Howell Tp. v. Waste Disposal, Inc., 207 N.J.Super. 80, 96 (1986)	1	Where State Department of Environmental Protection has failed or neglected to act in best interest of citizenry or has arbitrarily, capriciously, or unreasonably acted, then a court should permit interested persons to continue with enforcement litigation under Environmental Rights Act (N.J.S.A. 2A:35A-1 et seq.).	In other words where the state agency has failed or neglected to act in the best interest of the citizenry or has arbitrarily, capriciously or unreasonably acted, then a court should permit interested persons to continue with enforcement under the Environmental Rights Act.	"Can a person bring or continue with an enforcement action under the Environmental Rights Act (ERA) if a state agency has acted arbitrarily, capriciously or unreasonably?"
4408	McDonnell v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc., 620 F.Supp. 152, 157 (D.C.Conn.,1985)	6	In view of overriding federal policy favoring arbitration, waiver of arbitration is not to be highly inferred and mere delay in seeking stay of proceedings without some resulting prejudice to party cannot carry the day.	Nevertheless, "[i]n view of the 'overriding federal policy favoring arbitration,' waiver 'is not to be highly inferred and mere delay in seeking a stay of the proceedings without some resultant prejudice to a party cannot carry the day.' "	"In view of the overriding federal policy favoring arbitration, should waiver be inferred?"
4409	Lamb v. Rizzo, 391 F.3d 1133, 1137 (C.A.10 (Kan.),2004)	4	Under "libel-proof plaintiff doctrine," when a plaintiff's reputation is so diminished at the time of publication of the allegedly defamatory material that only nominal damages at most could be awarded because the person's reputation was not capable of sustaining further harm, the plaintiff is deemed to be libel-proof as a matter of law and is not permitted to burden a defendant with a trial.	"... that when a plaintiff's reputation is so diminished at the time of publication of the allegedly defamatory material that only nominal damages at most could be awarded because the person's reputation was not capable of sustaining further harm, the plaintiff is deemed to be libel-proof as a matter of law and is not permitted to burden a defendant with a trial."	What is libel proof plaintiff doctrine in defamation cases?

4410	Stout v. Robnett, 107 F.Supp.2d 699, 702 (D.S.C., 2000)	3	Pro se complaints and petitions are held to less stringent standard than those drafted by attorneys, and federal district court is charged with liberally construing complaint or petition filed by pro se litigant to allow development of potentially meritorious case.	Such pro se complaints and petitions are held to a less stringent standard than those drafted by attorneys, Gordon v. Leeke, 574 F.2d 1147, 1151 (4th Cir.), cert. denied, Leeke v. Gordon, 439 U.S. 970, 99 S.Ct. 464, 58 L.Ed.2d 431 (1978), and a federal district court is charged with liberally construing a complaint or petition filed by a pro se litigant to allow the development of a potentially meritorious case.	Are pleadings of pro se litigant subject to a less stringent standard than those of lawyers?
4412	Vidrine v. United States, 846 F. Supp. 2d 550, 614 (W.D. La. 2011)	25	Pursuant to Louisiana law governing malicious prosecution claims, when indictment is dismissed, presumption of lack of probable cause arises, which allows malice to be inferred, and thus burden shifts to the defendant to show absence of malice. LSA-C.C. art. 2315.	As previously noted, pursuant to Louisiana law, when an indictment is dismissed, a presumption of a lack of probable cause arises, which allows malice to be inferred, and thus the burden shifts to the defendant to show an absence of malice. Zerbe, at 1231.	When does the presumption of lack of probable cause arise in a malicious prosecution claim?
4413	City of Phoenix v. Kasun, 97 P.2d 210, 212, 54 Ariz. 470, 475 (Ariz. 1939)	6	The distinguishing characteristic of a "public utility" is the devotion of private property to such a use that public generally, or that part which has been served and has accepted the service, has right to demand that the service, so long as continued, shall be conducted with reasonable efficiency and under proper charges.	The distinguishing characteristic of a public utility is the devotion of private property by the owner to such a use that the public generally, or at least that part of the public which has been served and has accepted the service, has the right to demand that such service, so long as it is continued, shall be conducted with reasonable efficiency and under proper charges.	What is the distinguishing characteristic of a public utility?
4414	Chiriboga v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 96 S.W.3d 673, 677 (Tex.App. Austin, 2003)	2	Plaintiffs are accorded right to choose venue first; as long as suit is initially filed in county of proper venue, that is, the county is at least a permissive venue and no mandatory provision applies, plaintiff's venue choice cannot be disturbed.	Plaintiffs are accorded the right to choose venue first; as long as suit is initially filed in a county of proper venue (i.e., the county is at least a permissive venue and no mandatory provision applies), the plaintiff's venue choice cannot be disturbed.	Can a plaintiff's choice of a permissive venue be disturbed if no mandatory provision applies?
4415	Marin Real Estate Partners, L.P. v. Vogt, 373 S.W.3d 57, 91 (Tex. App. 2011)	53	A person acts with "malice" in a malicious prosecution case when he acts with ill will or evil motive to the injury of another, or acts in reckless disregard of the rights of another and with indifference as to whether the other person is injured so as to amount to wanton and willful action knowingly and unreasonably done; malice can be established by either direct or circumstantial evidence and may be inferred from a lack of probable cause.	A person acts with malice in a malicious prosecution case when he acts with ill will or evil motive to the injury of another, or acts in reckless disregard of the rights of another and with indifference as to whether the other person is injured so as to amount to wanton and willful action knowingly and unreasonably done. Id. Malice can be established by either direct or circumstantial evidence and may be inferred from a lack of probable cause.	How is malice defined in the context of a malicious prosecution claim?

4418	Caldwell v. Green, 451 F.Supp.2d 811, 818 (W.D.Va.,2006)	7	Under Virginia law, if there is no reason to doubt the truthfulness of the accomplice when the prosecution was initiated, there is still considered to be probable cause sufficient to negate a malicious prosecution claim even if the witness was later shown to be unworthy of belief.	If there is no reason to doubt the truthfulness of the accomplice when the prosecution was initiated, there is still considered to be probable cause sufficient to negate a malicious prosecution claim even if the witness was later shown to be unworthy of belief.	Will the statements of an accomplice create sufficient probable cause in a malicious prosecution claim?
4419	State v. Archie, 273 Neb. 612, 641-642 (2007)	29	Slightest intrusion into the genital opening is sufficient to constitute penetration, and such element of incest and first-degree sexual assault on a child may be proved by either direct or circumstantial evidence; it is not necessary that the vagina be entered or that the hymen be ruptured, as the entry of the vulva or labia is sufficient. Neb.Rev.St. SS 28-318(6), 28-703(1); S 28-319 (2005).	The slightest intrusion into the genital opening is sufficient to constitute penetration, and such element may be proved by either direct or circumstantial evidence. 58 It is not necessary that the vagina be entered or that the hymen be ruptured; the entry of the vulva or labia is sufficient.	Is slightest intrusion sufficient to constitute penetration?
4420	Pac. Gas & Elec. Co. v. FERC, 306 F.3d 1112, 1115 (D.C. Cir. 2002)	1	Court of Appeals reviews orders of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) under arbitrary and capricious standard, pursuant to which the FERC must be able to demonstrate that it has made a reasoned decision based on substantial evidence in record. 5 U.S.C.A. S 706(2)(A).	The court reviews FERC's Orders under the arbitrary and capricious standard. 5 U.S.C. 706(2) (A); Pub. Utils. Comm'n v. FERC, 254 F.3d 250, 253-54 (D.C.Cir.2001) [hereinafter "CPUC"]. FERC therefore "must be able to demonstrate that it has made a reasoned decision based upon substantial evidence in the record."	Are Federal Energy Regulatory Commission orders reviewed under Administrative Procedure Act's arbitrary and capricious standard?
4421	Smith v. Burge, 222 F. Supp. 3d 669, 690 (N.D.Ill., 2016)	31	Probable cause for a malicious prosecution claim under Illinois law requires more than bare suspicion, but need not be based on evidence sufficient to support a conviction, nor even a showing that the officer's belief is more likely true than false.	As the Seventh Circuit explains, probable cause for a malicious prosecution claim "requires more than bare suspicion but need not be based on evidence sufficient to support a conviction, nor even a showing that the officer's belief is more likely true than false."	Does probable cause require proof of conviction to preclude liability for malicious prosecution?
4422	In re V.F., 157 Cal. App. 4th 962, 971 (2007)	7	A parent may have custody of a child, in a legal sense, even while delegating the day-to-day care of that child to a third party for a limited period of time.	"[A] parent may have custody of a child, in a legal sense, even while delegating the day-to-day care of that child to a third party for a limited period of time."	Can a parent have legal custody of a child even while delegating the day-to-day care of that child to a third party for a limited period?
4424	Jarecki Mfg. Co. v. Merriam, 104 Kan. 646, 180 P. 224, 225 (1919)	9	Under Missouri law, "in pari delicto defense" provides that a person cannot maintain an action if, in order to establish his cause of action, he must rely, in whole or in part, on an illegal or immoral act or transaction to which he is a party.	The in pari delicto defense provides that "a person cannot maintain an action if, in order to establish his cause of action, he must rely, in whole or in part, on an illegal or immoral act or transaction to which he is a party." Dobbs v.	Does the in pari delicto doctrine permit a person to maintain an action if he is a party to the immoral act or wrongdoing?

4425	Wasko v. Manella, 269 Conn. 527, 532–33 (2004)	5	The doctrine of legal or equitable subrogation is broad enough to include every instance in which one person, not acting as a mere volunteer or intruder, pays a debt for which another is primarily liable, and which in equity and good conscience should have been discharged by the latter.	"...As now applied, the doctrine of [legal or] equitable subrogation is broad enough to include every instance in which one person, not acting as a mere volunteer or intruder, pays a debt for which another is primarily liable, and which in equity and good conscience should have been discharged by the latter.	What is the object of equitable subrogation?
4426	Mort v. U.S., 86 F.3d 890, 894 (C.A.9 (Nev.), 1996)	8	Equitable subrogation is generally appropriate where subrogee made payment to protect his or her own interest, subrogee did not act as volunteer, subrogee was not primarily liable for debt paid, subrogee paid off entire encumbrance, and subrogation would not work any injustice to rights of junior lienholder.	Equitable subrogation is generally appropriate where (1) the subrogee made the payment to protect his or her own interest, (2) the subrogee did not act as a volunteer, (3) the subrogee was not primarily liable for the debt paid, (4) the subrogee paid off the entire encumbrance, and (5) subrogation would not work any injustice to the rights of the junior lienholder.	When is equitable subrogation generally appropriate?
4427	Associated Elec. & Gas Ins. Servs. Ltd. v. Am. Int'l Grp., Inc., 166 F. Supp. 3d 1248, 1259 (D. Utah 2015)	10	To obtain subrogation, under Utah law, the party seeking reimbursement, that is, the subrogee, must show that: (1) there is a debt or obligation for which the subrogee was not primarily liable; (2) the subrogee must have made payment to protect his own rights or interest; (3) the subrogee must not have acted merely as a volunteer; and (4) the entire debt must have been paid.	To obtain subrogation, the party seeking reimbursement (the subrogee) must show that: (1) there is a debt or obligation for which the subrogee was not primarily liable; (2) the subrogee must have made payment to protect his own rights or interest; (3) the subrogee must not have acted merely as a volunteer; and (4) the entire debt must have been paid.	What must a subrogee show to obtain subrogation?
4429	Fla. East Coast Ry. Co. v. City of Miami, 372 So.2d 152, 157 (Fla.App., 1979)	4	Doctrine of prior public use, simply stated, denies exercise of delegated power of condemnation where proposed use will destroy existing public use or prevent proposed public use unless authority to do so has been expressly given by legislature or must necessarily be implied.	This is known as the doctrine of prior public use. Simply stated, the rule denies exercise of the above power of condemnation where the proposed use will destroy an existing public use or prevent a proposed public use unless the authority to do so has been expressly given by the legislature or must necessarily be implied.	What does the doctrine of prior public use entail?
4431	In re Hamada, 291 F.3d 645, 649 (9th Cir. 2002)	4	"Subrogation" is substitution of one party in place of another with reference to some lawful claim, demand, or right; it is a derivative right, acquired by satisfaction of loss or claim that third party has against another.	In general terms, subrogation is the substitution of one party in place of another with reference to a lawful claim, demand or right. It is a derivative right, acquired by satisfaction of the loss or claim that a third party has against another.	"Is subrogation the substitution of one party in place of another with reference to a lawful claim, demand, or right? "

4432	In re Jones, 534 B.R. 588, 595 (Bkrtcy.D.Vt., 2015)	2	Equitable subrogation is doctrine which revolves around the substitution of one party for another whose debt the party pays, entitling the paying party to rights, remedies, or securities that would otherwise belong to party whose debt was paid.	Subrogation is a doctrine which revolves around the "substitution of one party for another whose debt the party pays, entitling the paying party to rights, remedies, or securities that would otherwise belong to the [party whose debt was paid]"	Is subrogation the substitution of one party for another whose debt the party pays?
4433	Bierman v. Hunter, 988 A.2d 530, 542–43, 190 Md.App. 250, 270 (Md.App., 2010)	2	"Legal subrogation" arises by operation of law when there is a debt or obligation owed by one person which another person, who is neither a volunteer nor an intermeddler, pays or discharges under such circumstances as in equity entitle him to reimbursement to prevent unjust enrichment.	Legal subrogation is the category at issue in the instant case, and "arises by operation of law when there is a debt or obligation owed by one person which another person, who is neither a volunteer nor an intermeddler, pays or discharges under such circumstances as in equity entitle him to reimbursement to 543 prevent unjust enrichment."	Does legal subrogation take place by operation of law?
4434	Nussbaum Trucking, Inc. v. Illinois Commerce Commission, 99 Ill.App.3d 741, 749–50 (Ill.App., 1981)	8	Public Utilities Act and Illinois Motor Carrier of Property Law are in pari materia and should be construed together to determine legislative intent. S.H.A. ch. 951/212, S 18-307; ch. 1112/323, S 27.	We observe here that the Public Utilities Act and the Illinois Motor Carrier of Property Law are in pari materia and should be construed together to determine legislative intent.	Are the Public Utilities Act and the Motor Carrier of Property Law in pari materia for determining legislative intent?
4436	Postal Tel.-Cable Co. v. Pennsylvania Pub. Util. Comm'n, 154 Pa. Super. 340, 344–46, 35 A.2d 535, 537–38 (1944)	1	The "public," for whose convenience, accommodation, safety and protection the Public Utility Law is concerned, is not only that portion of the public which the utilities serve, or as respects utilities using facilities located along a highway, persons traveling on the highways, but the general public which may come in contact with the utility's facilities. 66 P.S. SS 1101 et seq., 1171, 1183.	Appellant argues that "the public," referred to in these sections as respects a utility using facilities located *345 along the highway, includes no more than persons traveling on the highway, and for this position cites Midland Borough v. Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction Co. et al., 300 Pa. 134, 150 A. 300. [...] The public for whose convenience, accommodation, *346 safety, and protection the act is concerned is not only that portion of the public which the utilities serve, but the general public which may come in contact with the facilities of the utilities.	"Does the convenience, accommodation, safety, and protection of the public under the Public Utility Law consist solely of persons served by the utility?"

4437	State v. Higgins, 149 N.H. 290, 298 (2003)	17	Sexual assault victim's status as a prostitute does not necessarily mean that she will accept every opportunity that comes along to engage in sexual relations or relent to the desires of any paying customer, regardless of her motivation for engaging in prostitution in the first instance; a prostitute does not lose the right of choice, and may consent or not consent according to her own will.	Further, the victim's status as a prostitute does not necessarily mean that she will accept every opportunity that comes along to engage in sexual relations or relent to the desires of any paying customer, regardless of her motivation for engaging in prostitution in the first instance. See Harris, 362 S.E.2d at 213; Patnaude, 438 A.2d at 407. "A prostitute does not lose the right of choice, and may consent or not consent according to her own will."	Does the victim's status as a prostitute prove consent to sexual relations?
4438	Warning Lights & Scaffold Serv., Inc. v. O & G Indus., Inc., 102 Conn. App. 267, 276, 925 A.2d 359, 365 (2007)	13	Subrogation has the objective of preventing an insured from recovering twice for one harm, as would be the case if he or she could recover from both the insurer and from a third person who caused the harm.	Second, in a tort system that is primarily concerned with providing compensation, "[s]ubrogation has the objective of preventing [an] insured from recovering twice for one harm, as would be the case if he or she could recover from both the insurer and from a third person who caused the harm."	"Does subrogation have the objective of preventing an insured from recovering twice for one harm, as would be the case if he or she could recover from both the insurer and from a third person who caused the harm?"
4439	In re Houston, 409 B.R. 799, 808–09 (D.S.C. 2009)	21	Under South Carolina Law, equitable subrogation is appropriate where the following factors are present: (1) party claiming subrogation has paid debt; (2) party was not a volunteer, but had direct interest in discharge of the debt or lien; (3) party was secondarily liable for debt or for discharge of lien; and (4) no injustice will be done to the other party by allowance of the equity.	Under South Carolina Law, equitable subrogation is appropriate where the following factors are present: (1) the party claiming subrogation has paid the debt; (2) the party was not a volunteer but had a direct interest in the discharge of the debt or lien; (3) the party was secondarily liable for the debt or for the discharge of the lien; and (4) no injustice will be done to the other party by the allowance of the equity 9 .	here is equitable subrogation appropriate?
4440	Ripley v. Piehl, 700 N.W.2d 540, 545 (Minn.App.,2005)	5	Under the doctrine of equitable subrogation, a person who has discharged the debt of another may succeed in substitution to the rights and position of the satisfied creditor.	Under the doctrine, a person who has discharged the debt of another may succeed in substitution to the rights and position of the satisfied creditor.	"Under the doctrine of equitable subrogation, could a person who has discharged the debt of another succeed in substitution to the rights and position of the satisfied creditor?"
4441	Ripley v. Piehl, 700 N.W.2d 540, 545 (Minn.App.,2005)	7	Although equitable subrogation is a highly favored doctrine, it is not an absolute right, but rather, one that depends on the equities and attending facts and circumstances of each case.	"Although [equitable] subrogation is a highly favored doctrine, it is not an absolute right, but rather, one that depends on the equities and attending facts and circumstances of each case."	"Is equitable subrogation an absolute right, but one which depends on equities and attending facts and circumstances of each case?"

4442	AJJ Enterprises, LLP v. Jean-Charles, 160 Conn.App. 375, 396–97 (Conn.App., 2015)	9	"Subrogation" is a legal fiction through which one who, not as a volunteer or in his own wrong, and where there are no outstanding and superior equities, pays the debt of another, is substituted to all the rights and remedies of the other, and the debt is treated in equity as still existing for his benefit.	It is a legal fiction through which one who, not as a volunteer or in his own wrong and where there are no outstanding and superior equities, pays the debt of another, is substituted to all the rights and remedies of the other, and the debt is treated in equity as still existing for his *397 benefit."	Is equitable subrogation a legal fiction through which person who pays debt for which another is primarily responsible is substituted or subrogated to all the rights and remedies of the other?
4443	First Fidelity Bank, Nat. Ass'n, South v. Travelers Mortg. Services, Inc., 693 A.2d 525, 528, 300 N.J.Super. 559, 564 (N.J.Super.A.D.,1997)	2	Under remedy of equitable subrogation, surety, upon performance, is placed in position of principal's creditor with respect to that creditor's rights and available securities.	Under the remedy of equitable subrogation, "a surety, upon performance, is placed in the position of a creditor with respect to that creditor's rights and available securities."	"Under remedy of equitable subrogation or subrogation, is a surety, upon performance, placed in position of a principal's creditor with respect to that creditor's rights and available securities?"
4446	Tucker v. Div. Sales, 315 Ill. App. 3d 472, 476 (Ill.App. 3 Dist., 2000)	2	A motion in limine allows a litigant to obtain a pre-trial order which excludes inadmissible evidence and bars questioning of witnesses regarding such evidence; this procedure safeguards against the prejudicial impact resulting from asking questions and making objections before the jury regarding inadmissible evidence.	A motion in limine allows a litigant to obtain a pre-trial order which excludes 169 461 inadmissible evidence and bars questioning of witnesses regarding such evidence. Rutledge v. St. Anne's Hospital, 230 Ill.App.3d 786, 172 Ill.Dec. 495, 595 N.E.2d 1165 (1992).This procedure safeguards against the prejudicial impact resulting from asking questions and making objections before the jury regarding inadmissible evidence.	Does a motion in limine safeguard against the prejudicial impact resulting from asking questions and making objections before the jury regarding inadmissible evidence?
4447	Seels v. Tenet Health System Hahnemann, LLC, 167 A.3d 190, 206 (Pa.Super., 2017)	13	A "motion in limine" is a pretrial mechanism to obtain a ruling on the admissibility of evidence, and it gives the trial judge the opportunity to weigh potentially prejudicial and harmful evidence before the trial occurs, preventing the evidence from ever reaching the jury.	A motion in limine is a pretrial mechanism to obtain a ruling on the admissibility of evidence, and it gives the trial judge the opportunity to weigh potentially prejudicial and harmful evidence before the trial occurs, preventing the evidence from ever reaching the jury.	Is the purpose of a motion in limine to obtain the court's pre-trial ruling on the admissibility of evidence?
4448	Hand v. Pettitt, 258 Ga. App. 170, 172 (2002)	8	When admission of certain evidence is a matter of law instead of a mixed question of law and fact, a trial court does not abuse its discretion in granting a motion in limine, where there are no circumstances under which disputed evidence is admissible.	However, when admission of certain evidence is a matter of law instead of a mixed question of law and fact, the trial court does not abuse its discretion in granting a motion in limine where there are no circumstances under which disputed evidence is admissible.	"When disputed evidence is admissible for any reason, does a trial court abuse its discretion in denying a motion in limine and admitting it?"

4449	Taylor v. Cnty. of Cook, 2011 IL App (1st) 093085, ¶¶ 22-23 (2011)	1	A circuit court's evidentiary rulings regarding the admissibility of testimony and on a motion in limine are within its sound discretion, and the appellate court will not reverse such rulings unless the circuit court abused its discretion.	A circuit court's evidentiary rulings regarding the admissibility of testimony and on a motion in limine are within its sound discretion and this court will not reverse such rulings unless the circuit court abused its discretion.	Are a circuit court's evidentiary rulings regarding the admissibility of testimony and on a motion in limine within its sound discretion?
4450	Pullum v. Robinette, 174 S.W.3d 124, 136–37 (Tenn.Ct.App.,2004)	13	Courts may make pre-introduction rulings on evidence that are conditional or provisional in nature, and, where such conditions do not occur at trial, may change an earlier ruling regarding the admissibility of the evidence.	State courts may make pre-introduction rulings on evidence that are conditional or provisional in nature, and, where such conditions do not occur at trial, may change an earlier ruling regarding the admissibility *137 of the evidence.	Can courts make pre-introduction rulings on evidence that are conditional or provisional in nature and change an earlier ruling regarding the admissibility of the evidence?
4451	In re Flamingo 55, 378 B.R. 893, 906 (D. Nev. 2007)	4	Right of "legal" or "equitable" subrogation arose as a creature of equity and is enforced solely for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of substantial justice.	The right of "legal" or "equitable" subrogation arose as a "creature of equity" and "is enforced solely for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of substantial justice."	"Did the right of ""legal"" or ""equitable"" subrogation arise as a creature of equity and is enforced solely for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of substantial justice?"
4453	Hickory Springs Mfg. Co., Inc. v. Evans, 541 S.W.2d 97, 100 (Tenn. 1976)	5	The doctrine of subrogation is an equitable one and it is recognized that payment of an obligation by a surety entitles him to stand in the place of the creditor and be substituted to all of the rights of the creditor against the principal.	The doctrine of subrogation is an equitable one, and it is recognized that the payment of an obligation by a surety entitles him to stand in the place of the creditor and be substituted to all of the rights of the creditor against the principal.	Is the doctrine of subrogation an equitable one and is it recognized that payment of an obligation by a surety entitles him to stand in the place of the creditor?
4454	Haimes v. Schonwit, 268 A.D. 652, 654–55 (App. Div.), aff'd, 295 N.Y. 577 (1945)	2	A cause of action usually accrues to a party to an express contract only upon termination of the relationship, but a cause of action accrues when a payment falls due, even impliedly, as in contracts of hiring for an indefinite period.	A cause of action usually accrues to a party to an express contract only upon termination of the relationship (Martin v. Camp, 219 N.Y. 170, 114 N.E. 46, L.R.A.1917F, 402; Ga Nun v. Palmer, 202 N.Y. 483, 96 N.E. 99, 36 L.R.A.,N.S., 922), although a cause of action accrues when a payment falls due, even impliedly, as in contracts of hiring for an indefinite period.	Does a cause of action accrue to a party to an express contract upon termination of the relationship?
4455	California Insurance Guarantee Association v. Hill Brothers Transportation, Inc., 497 S.W.3d 67, 75–76 (Tex.App.-Austin, 2016)	15	Generally a cause of action accrues when facts come into existence that authorize a claimant to seek a judicial remedy, when a wrongful act causes some legal injury, or whenever one person may sue another.	"Generally a cause of action accrues when facts come into existence [that] authorize a claimant to seek a judicial *76 remedy, when a wrongful act causes some legal injury, or whenever one person may sue another."	Is legal injury required for a cause of action to accrue?

4456	Penn Cent. Transp. Co. v. City of New York, 438 U.S. 104, 126–28 (U.S.N.Y., 1978)	6	A use restriction on real property may constitute a "taking" if not reasonably necessary to the effectuation of a substantial public purpose or perhaps if it has an unduly harsh impact on the owner's use of the property. U.S.C.A.Const. Amends. 5, 14.	It is, of course, implicit in Goldblatt that a use restriction on real property may constitute a "taking" if not reasonably necessary to the effectuation of a substantial public purpose, see 2661 Nectow v. Cambridge, supra; cf. Moore v. East Cleveland, 431 U.S. 494, 513-514, 97 S.Ct. 1932, 1943, 52 L.Ed.2d 531 (1977) (STEVENSON, J., concurring), or perhaps if it has an unduly harsh impact upon the owner's use of the property.	Does a regulation that burdens private property constitute a taking if not reasonably necessary to the effectuation of a substantial public purpose?
4457	Nnaka v. Federal Republic of Nigeria, 238 F.Supp.3d 17, 32 (D.D.C., 2017)	28	Act of state doctrine only applies to "official state action," that is, to conduct that is by nature distinctly sovereign and cannot be undertaken by a private individual or entity.	But the doctrine only applies to "official" state action: that is, to "conduct that is by nature distinctly sovereign" and "cannot be undertaken by a private individual or entity."	Does the act of state doctrine only apply to official state action to conduct that is by nature distinctly sovereign and cannot be undertaken by a private individual or entity?
4458	Matar v. Dichter, 500 F.Supp.2d 284, 290 (S.D.N.Y.,2007)	7	A head-of-state recognized by the United States government is absolutely immune from personal jurisdiction in United States courts, regardless of whether the claims arise from official or private acts.	"A head-of-state recognized by the United States government is absolutely immune from personal jurisdiction in United States courts," regardless of whether the claims arise from official or private acts.	Is a head-of-state recognized by the United States government absolutely immune from personal jurisdiction in United States courts?
4459	Access Telecom, Inc. v. MCI Telecommunications Corp., 197 F.3d 694, 714 (C.A.5 (Tex.), 1999)	39	Fact that American courts routinely give deference to American agencies empowered to interpret American law and that American courts may give deference to foreign governments before the court does not entail that American courts must give deference to all agency determinations made by all foreign agencies not before the court.	The fact that U.S. courts routinely give deference to U.S. agencies empowered to interpret U.S. law and U.S. courts may give deference to foreign governments before the court does not entail that U.S. courts must give deference to all agency determinations made by all foreign agencies not before the court.	Can American courts give deference to foreign governments prior to the court not entailing that American courts must give deference to all agency determinations made by all foreign agencies not before the court?
4462	Hourani v. Mirtchev, 796 F.3d 1, 13 (D.C. Cir. 2015)	19	When an ambassador speaks in his or her official capacity, that statement must be regarded as an authoritative representation by the foreign government itself and, as such is binding and conclusive in the courts of the United States against that government under the act of state doctrine.	Accordingly, when an ambassador speaks in his or her official capacity, that statement "must be regarded * * * as an authoritative representation by the [foreign] government" itself and, "as such [is] binding and conclusive in the courts of the United States against that government."	"When an ambassador speaks in his or her official capacity, must that statement be regarded as an authoritative representation by the foreign government itself?"
4463	Lauritzen v. Larsen, 345 U.S. 571, 587 (U.S. 1953)	14	Generally, a state is not debarred by any rule of international law from governing conduct of its own citizens upon the high seas or even in foreign countries, when rights of other nations or their nationals are not thereby infringed.	A state 'is not debarred by any rule of international law from governing the conduct of its own citizens upon 931 the high seas or even in foreign countries when the rights of other nations or their nationals are not infringed.'	Is the United States barred by any rule of international law from governing conduct of its citizens upon the high seas?

4467	Allied Bank Intern. v. Banco Credito Agricola de Cartago, 757 F.2d 516, 520 (C.A.2 (N.Y.),1985)	1	"Act of state" doctrine operates to confer presumptive validity on certain acts of foreign sovereigns by rendering nonjusticiable claims that challenge such acts.	The Act of State doctrine confers presumptive validity on certain acts by foreign sovereigns by rendering non-justiciable claims that challenge such acts.	Is the act of state doctrine a judicially created doctrine which operates to confer presumptive validity on certain acts of foreign sovereigns by rendering nonjusticiable claims that challenge such acts?
4468	Heine v. New York Life Ins. Co., 50 F.2d 382, 386 (9th Cir. 1931)	4	United States courts will not inquire into validity, wisdom, or justice of laws of foreign country, or administration of foreign agencies, in action on cause arising in foreign country.	It has also been held that the courts of the United States will not inquire into the validity, wisdom or justice of the laws of a foreign country, or the administration of foreign agencies.	"Will the United States courts inquire into validity, wisdom, or justice of laws of a foreign country, or administration of foreign agencies, in action on causes arising in foreign country?"
4469	Pravin Banker Associates, Ltd. v. Banco Popular del Peru, 895 F.Supp. 660, 664 (S.D.N.Y.,1995)	3	Acts of foreign governments having extraterritorial effect, and thus outside the scope of the act of state doctrine, should nevertheless be extended comity to extent they are consistent with the law and policy of the United States.	30, 87 L.Ed.2d 706 (1985), in which the Second Circuit held that acts of foreign governments having extraterritorial effect- and consequently falling outside the scope of the act of state doctrine 4 - should nevertheless be extended comity to the extent they are consistent with the law and policy of the United States.	Should acts of foreign governments be extended comity to the extent they are consistent with the law and policy of the United States?
4470	In re Petition of Board of Directors of Hopewell Intern. Ins., Ltd., 272 B.R. 396, 412 (S.D.N.Y. 2002)	22	No nation is under an unremitting obligation to enforce foreign interests which are fundamentally prejudicial to those of the domestic forum; the obligation of comity expires when the strong public policies of the forum are vitiated by the foreign act.	"No nation is under an unremitting obligation to enforce foreign interests which are fundamentally prejudicial to those of the domestic forum... the obligation of comity expires when the strong public policies of the forum are vitiated by the foreign act."	A nation is not under an unremitting obligation to enforce foreign interests which are fundamentally prejudicial to those of the domestic forum?
4473	Chrysler First Business Credit Corp. v. Kawa, 914 P.2d 540, 543-44 (Colo.App.,1996)	9	Surety is entitled to be subrogated to benefit of all securities and means of payment under creditor's control, and so, in absence of assent, waiver, or estoppel, he is generally released by any act of creditor which deprives him of such right.	A surety is entitled to be subrogated to the benefit of all the securities *544 and means of payment under the creditor's control, and so, in the absence of assent, waiver, or estoppel, he is generally released by any act of the creditor which deprives him of such right.	Is a surety entitled to be subrogated to the benefit of all securities and means of payment under a creditor's control?
4474	Mackin v. Auberger, 59 F.Supp.3d 528, 553 (W.D.N.Y., 2014)	33	Under federal law, bribery requires a "quid pro quo," or a specific intent to give or receive something of value in exchange for an official act. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201.	Under federal law, bribery requires a "quid pro quo," or a "specific intent to give or receive something of value in exchange for an official act."	Should there be a quid pro quo-a specific intent to give or receive something of value in exchange for an official act?
4475	Langenegger v. U.S., 756 F.2d 1565, 1570 (C.A.Fed.,1985)	11	United States may be held responsible for taking even when its action is not the final direct cause of the property loss or damage. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The United States may be held responsible for a taking even when its action is not the final direct cause of the property loss or damage.	Can the United States be held responsible for a taking even when its action is not the final direct cause of the property loss or damage?

4476	Westgate, Ltd. v. State, 843 S.W.2d 448, 452 (Tex. 1992)	1	Property owner may recover damages in inverse condemnation suit, where government appropriates property without paying adequate compensation. Vernon's Ann.Texas Const. Art. 1, § 17.	If, however, the government appropriates property without paying adequate compensation, the owner may recover the resulting damages in an "inverse condemnation" suit.	"Can the owner recover, the resulting damages in an inverse condemnation suit, if the government appropriates property without paying adequate compensation?"
4478	Risk v. Kingdom of Norway, 707 F.Supp. 1159, 1168 (N.D.Cal.,1989)	9	Purpose of the act of state doctrine is to avoid interference with political branches; where the issue presented is unlikely to affect foreign relations, there is little justification for refusing to hear the case.	The purpose of the act of state doctrine is to avoid interference with the political branches; where the issue presented is unlikely to affect foreign relations, there is little justification for refusing to hear the case.	Is the purpose of the act of state doctrine to avoid interference with political branches?
4479	Perez v. Chase Manhattan Bank, N.A., 61 N.Y.2d 460, 469 (1984)	3	For purposes of act of state doctrine, debt is located within foreign state when that state has power to enforce or collect it; if debtor is present in foreign state and debt is payable there, foreign sovereign then has power to enforce or collect it, and confiscation of that debt amounts to seizure of property within that sovereign's borders.	For purposes of the Act of State doctrine, a debt is located within a foreign State when that State has the power to enforce or collect it. (Weston Banking Corp. v. Turkiye Garanti Bankasi, A.S., 57 N.Y.2d 315, 324, 456 N.Y.S.2d 684, 442 N.E.2d 1195; Zeevi & Sons v. Grindlays Bank [Uganda], 37 N.Y.2d 220, 228, 371 N.Y.S.2d 892, 333 N.E.2d 168, cert. den. 423 U.S. 866, 96 S.Ct. 126, 46 L.Ed.2d 95; Menendez v. Saks & Co., 485 F.2d 1355, 1364, supra; United Bank v. Cosmic Int., 392 F.Supp. 262, affd. 542 F.2d 868, 873 (2nd Cir.).) Since Harris v. Balk, 198 U.S. 215, 222–223, 1 25 S.Ct. 625, 626, 49 L.Ed. 1023, the power to enforce or collect a debt has been dependent on the presence of the debtor. If the debtor is present in the foreign State and the debt is payable there, the foreign sovereign then has power to enforce or collect it, and a confiscation of that debt amounts to a seizure of property within that sovereign's borders.	Is a debt located within a foreign state for the purpose of the act of state doctrine if that state has the power to enforce or collect it?
4480	Interamerican Refining Corp. v. Texaco Maracaibo, Inc., 307 F.Supp. 1291, 1298–99 (D.C.Del. 1970)	8	The "act of state doctrine", based upon proper concepts of sovereignty and separation of powers, commands that conduct of foreign policy reside exclusively in the executive.	The act of state doctrine, based upon proper concepts of sovereignty and separation of powers, commands that conduct of foreign policy reside exclusively in the executive.	"Does the ""act of state doctrine"" command that conduct of foreign policy reside exclusively in the executive?"
4481	Glen v. Club Mediterranee S.A., 365 F. Supp. 2d 1263	1	The act of state doctrine is a judicially-created rule of decision that precludes courts of the United States from inquiring into the validity of the public acts a recognized foreign sovereign power committed within its own territory.	The act of state doctrine is a judicially-created rule of decision that "precludes the courts of this country from inquiring into the validity of the public acts a recognized foreign sovereign power committed within its own territory."	Does the act of state doctrine give validity to governmental acts undertaken by a recognized sovereign within its own territory?

4482	United States v. All Assets Held In Account No. XXXXXXXX, 83 F. Supp. 3d 360, 371 (D.D.C., 2015)	9	Act of state doctrine is applicable when the relief sought or the defense interposed would require an American court to declare invalid the official act of a foreign sovereign performed within its boundaries.	Hence, the act of state doctrine "is applicable when 'the relief sought or the defense interposed would [require] a court in the United States to declare invalid the official act of a foreign sovereign performed within' its boundaries.	Does the act of state doctrine bar an American court from questioning the validity of the act of a foreign sovereign when that act is done within the sovereign's territory?
4485	Jackson v. Joyner, 309 S.W.3d 910, 915 (Tenn. Ct. App. 2009)	2	A motion in limine provides a means by which a party may seek guidance from the trial court regarding an evidentiary question in order to formulate their trial strategy; it essentially substitutes for an evidentiary objection which may be made at trial.	Rather, a motion in limine provides a means by which a party may seek guidance from the trial court regarding an evidentiary question in order to formulate their trial strategy. Id. It essentially substitutes for an evidentiary objection which may be made at trial. Id. A motion in limine is not subject to the same safeguards as a motion for summary judgment or for partial summary judgment.	"Is a motion in limine, essentially, a pre-trial substitute for an evidentiary objection at trial?"
4486	Kjerstad v. Ravellette Publications, Inc., 517 N.W.2d 419, 426 (S.D. 1994)	20	In order for violation of in limine order to serve as basis for new trial, order must be specific in its prohibitions, and violations must be clear; additionally, new trial may follow only where violation prejudiced party or denied him fair trial.	In order for a violation of an in limine motion to serve as the basis for a new trial, the order must be specific in its prohibitions, and violations must be clear. Northern Trust Bank v. Carl, 200 Ill.App.3d 773, 146 Ill.Dec. 488, 493, 558 N.E.2d 451, 456 (1990). Further, a new trial may follow only where the violation has prejudiced the party or denied him a fair trial.	"For a violation of a motion in limine to serve as the basis for a new trial, should the order be specific in its prohibitions, and violations be clear?"
4487	Lewis v. Buena Vista Mut. Ins. Ass'n, 183 N.W.2d 198, 200-01 (Iowa 1971)	3	Generally, that plaintiff may have thin case or defendant tenuous defense is not sufficient justification for prohibiting such party from trying to establish contention.	That a plaintiff may have a thin case or a defendant a tenuous defense is ordinarily insufficient justification for prohibiting such party from trying to establish the contention.	"Is the fact that a plaintiff may have a thin case or a defendant a tenuous defense, sufficient justification for prohibiting such a party from trying to establish contention?"
4488	Kjerstad v. Ravellette Publications, Inc., 517 N.W.2d 419, 426 (S.D. 1994)	20	In order for violation of in limine order to serve as basis for new trial, order must be specific in its prohibitions, and violations must be clear; additionally, new trial may follow only where violation prejudiced party or denied him fair trial.	In order for a violation of an in limine motion to serve as the basis for a new trial, the order must be specific in its prohibitions, and violations must be clear. Northern Trust Bank v. Carl, 200 Ill.App.3d 773, 146 Ill.Dec. 488, 493, 558 N.E.2d 451, 456 (1990). Further, a new trial may follow only where the violation has prejudiced the party or denied him a fair trial.	"Should an in limine order be specific in its prohibition and a violation of the order be clear, to serve as the basis for a mistrial and a later motion for a new trial?"

4489	Chavis v. Director, State Worker's Compensation Div., 924 S.W.2d 439, 446 (Tex.App. Beaumont,1996)	14	Motion in limine merely precludes reference to certain issues without first obtaining ruling on admissibility of those issues outside presence of jury and, accordingly, trial court's ruling on motion in limine preserves no error.	A motion in limine merely precludes reference to certain issues without first obtaining a ruling on the admissibility of those issues outside the presence of the jury. Sims v. State, 816 S.W.2d 502, 504 (Tex.App.-Houston [1st Dist.] 1991, writ denied). Accordingly, a trial court's ruling on motion in limine preserves no error.	Does a trial courts ruling on a motion in limine preserve an error?
4492	Eastern Savings Bank, FSB v. Cach, LLC, 124 A.3d 585, 590 (Del.Supr., 2015)	4	There are five elements necessary to establish a claim for equitable subrogation: (1) payment must have been made by the subrogee to protect his or her own interest, (2) the subrogee must not have acted as a volunteer, (3) the debt paid must have been one for which the subrogee was not primarily liable, (4) the entire debt must have been paid, and (5) subrogation must not work any injustice to the rights of others.	Under the Court of Chancery's precedent, there are five elements necessary to establish a claim for equitable subrogation: (1) payment must have been made by the subrogee to protect his or her own interest; (2) the subrogee must not have acted as a volunteer; (3) the debt paid must have been one for which the subrogee was not primarily liable; (4) the entire debt must have been paid; and (5) subrogation must not work any injustice to the rights of others.	Is it required that subrogation must not work any injustice to the rights of others?
4493	DiCosola v. Bowman, 794 N.E.2d 875, 879, 276 Ill.Dec. 625, 629, 342 Ill.App.3d 530, 535 (Ill.App. 1 Dist.,2003)	4	Trial court is vested with broad discretion to grant a motion in limine as part of its inherent power to admit or exclude evidence.	trial court is "vested with broad discretion to grant a motion in limine 'as part of its inherent power to admit or exclude evidence.	Does a trial court have broad discretion to grant or deny a motion in limine as part of its inherent power to admit or exclude evidence?
4494	Henderson v. Fields, 68 S.W.3d 455, 468 (Mo.App. 2001)	8	The trial court's ruling on a motion in limine is a preliminary ruling on the admissibility of evidence and is subject to change throughout the course of trial; therefore, a complaint about a trial court's in limine ruling preserves nothing for appellate review.	The trial court's ruling on a motion in limine is a preliminary ruling on the admissibility of evidence and is subject to change throughout the course of trial. "Therefore, 'a complaint about a trial court's in limine ruling preserves nothing for appellate review.' "	Does a complaint about a trial court's ruling on a motion in limine preserve the issue for appellate review?

4495	Bagford v. Ephraim City, 904 P.2d 1095, 1098–99 (Utah,1995)	6	Some kinds of contractual rights may be property that can be taken for public use; however, to create protectable property interest, contract must establish rights more substantial in nature than mere unilateral expectation of continued rights or benefits.	Some kinds of contractual rights may also be "property" that can be "taken" for a public use. In Long Island Water Supply Co. v. City of Brooklyn, 166 U.S. 685, 690, 17 S.Ct. 718, 720, 41 L.Ed. 1165 (1897), the Court held that "a contract is property, and like any other property, may be taken under *1099 condemnation proceedings for public use. Its condemnation is of course subject to the rule of just compensation." (Citations omitted.) And in City of Cincinnati v. Louisville & Nashville R.R., 223 U.S. 390, 400, 32 S.Ct. 267, 268, 56 L.Ed. 481 (1912), the Court reiterated that "[e]very contract, whether between the state and an individual, or between individuals only, is subject to this general law [of eminent domain]." See also Lynch v. United States, 292 U.S. 571, 579, 54 S.Ct. 840, 843, 78 L.Ed. 1434 (1934) (valid contracts are property for purposes of Takings Clause). See generally 29A C.J.S. Eminent Domain 56 (1992); 26 Am.Jur.2d Eminent Domain 81 (1966). However, to create a protectable property interest, a contract must establish rights more substantial in nature than a mere unilateral	"Should the interest must be more substantial than a mere unilateral expectation of continued rights or benefits, to be a protectable property interest?"
4497	Aberdeen Cable TV Service, Inc. v. City of Aberdeen, 85 S.D. 57, 63 (S.D. 1970)	6	A legislature cannot by mere fiat or regulatory order convert a private business or enterprise into a public utility, and question of whether or not a particular company or service is a public utility is a judicial one. SDCL 1967, 9-35-3.	So, a legislature cannot by mere fiat or regulatory order convert a private business or enterprise into a public utility, and the question whethr or not a particular company or service is a public utility is a judicial one'.	Can the legislature convert a private business into a public utility by a mere fiat or regulatory order?
4498	Snap-on Business Solutions Inc. v. O'Neil & Associates, Inc., 708 F.Supp.2d 669, 678 (N.D.Ohio, 2010)	3	To make a claim for trespass to chattels, plaintiff must show it had a possessory interest in the chattel and that defendant (1) dispossessed plaintiff of the chattel; (2) impaired the chattel's condition, quality, or value; (3) deprived plaintiff of the chattel's use for a substantial time; or (4) caused bodily harm to plaintiff or to some person or thing in which plaintiff had a legally protected interest.	To make a claim for trespass, Snap-on must show it had a possessory interest in the chattel and that O'Neil (1) dispossessed Snap-on of the chattel; (2) impaired the chattel's condition, quality, or value; (3) deprived Snap-on of the chattel's use for a substantial time; or (4) caused bodily harm to Snap-on or to some person or thing in which Snap- on had a legally protected interest.	What are the elements of a trespass to chattel claim?

4499	America Online, Inc. v. LCGM, Inc., 46 F.Supp.2d 444, 451–52 (E.D.Va., 1998)	10	Under Virginia law, a trespass to chattels occurs when one party intentionally uses or intermeddles with personal property in rightful possession of another without authorization, and one who commits a trespass to chattel is liable to the possessor of the chattel if the chattel is impaired as to its condition, quality, or value.	A trespass to chattels occurs when one party intentionally uses or intermeddles *452 with personal property in rightful possession of another without authorization. AOL v. IMS, CA 98-11-A (citing RESTATEMENT (SECOND) OF TORTS 217(b)). One who commits a trespass to chattel is liable to the possessor of the chattel if the chattel is impaired as to its "condition, quality, or value."	Can intermeddling with personal property lead to a trespass to chattels claim?
4500	Dodge Data & Analytics LLC v. iSqFt, Inc., 183 F.Supp.3d 855, 874 (S.D. Ohio, 2016)	43	Under Ohio law, one who commits a trespass to a chattel is subject to liability to the possessor of the chattel if, but only if: (1) he dispossesses the other of the chattel; (2) the chattel is impaired as to its condition, quality, or value; (3) the possessor is deprived of the use of the chattel for a substantial time; or (4) bodily harm is caused to the possessor, or harm is caused to some person or thing in which the possessor has a legally protected interest. Restatement (Second) of Torts S 218.	(Ohio App.2015). One who commits a trespass to a chattel is subject to liability to the possessor of the chattel if, but only if, (a) he dispossesses the other of the chattel, or (b) the chattel is impaired as to its condition, quality, or value, or (c) the possessor is deprived of the use of the chattel for a substantial time, or (d) bodily harm is caused to the possessor, or harm is caused to some person or thing in which the possessor has a legally protected interest.	How is liability for trespass to chattel proven?
4501	Sch. of Visual Arts v. Kuprewicz, 3 Misc. 3d 278, 281 (Sup. Ct. 2003)	2	One who intentionally interferes with another's chattel is liable for trespass to chattels only if there results in harm to owner's materially valuable interest in the physical condition, quality, or value of the chattel, or if owner is deprived of use of the chattel for substantial time. Restatement (Second) of Torts S 218.	Thus, one who intentionally interferes with another's chattel is liable only if there results in harm to "the [owner's] materially valuable interest in the physical condition, quality, or value of the chattel, or if the [owner] is deprived of the use of the chattel for a substantial time". Restatement (Second) of Torts § 218, com. e.	How can a cause of action for trespass to chattels be proven?
4502	Krusi v. S.J. Amoroso Constr. Co., 81 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1005 (2000), as modified (June 29, 2000), as modified (July 18, 2000)	1	Cause of action for damage to real property accrues when the defendant's act causes immediate and permanent injury to the property or, put it another way, when there is actual and appreciable harm to the property.	It is clear that a cause of action for damage to real property accrues when the defendant's act causes "immediate and permanent injury" to the property or, to put it another way, when there is "[a]ctual and appreciable harm" to the property.	Does a cause of action for damage to real property accrue when the defendant's act causes immediate and permanent injury to the property?
4504	Edward J. Ullrich, Inc. v. State, 178 Misc. 2d 194, 196 (Ct. Cl. 1998)	4	Concept of de facto appropriation has traditionally been limited to situations involving a direct invasion of the condemnee's property or a direct legal restraint on its use.	Nonetheless, the concept of de facto appropriation has traditionally been limited to situations involving a direct invasion of the condemnee's property or a direct legal restraint on its use (City of Buffalo v. Clement Co., supra).	Has the concept of de facto appropriation been limited to situations involving a direct invasion of the condemnee's property or a direct legal restraint on its use?

4505	Rodriguez v. Swartz, 111 F.Supp.3d 1025, 1035 (D.Ariz., 2015)	5	Three factors are relevant to determine the extraterritorial application of the Constitution: (1) the citizenship and status of the claimant, (2) the nature of the location where the constitutional violation occurred, and (3) the practical obstacles inherent in enforcing the claimed right, including but not limited to the consequences for United States actions abroad, the substantive rules that would govern the claim, and the likelihood that a favorable ruling would lead to friction with another country's government.	The Supreme Court stated three factors relevant to determining the extraterritorial application of the Constitution (specifically the Suspension Clause) in Boumediene : (1) the citizenship and status of the claimant, (2) the nature of the location where the constitutional violation occurred, and (3) the practical obstacles inherent in enforcing the claimed right. 553 U.S. at 766-71, 128 S.Ct. 2229. The relevant obstacles included, but were not limited to, the consequences for U.S. actions abroad, the substantive rules that would govern the claim, and the likelihood that a favorable ruling would lead to friction with another country's government.	What factors are relevant to determine the extraterritorial application of a Constitution?
4507	Hernandez v. U.S., 757 F.3d 249, 262 (5th Cir. 2014)	13	Three objective factors and practical concerns are relevant to Court of Appeals' extraterritoriality determination: (1) the citizenship and status of the claimant, (2) the nature of the location where the constitutional violation occurred, and (3) the practical obstacles inherent in enforcing the claimed right.	Specifically, three "objective factors and practical concerns" are relevant to our extraterritoriality determination: (1) the citizenship and status of the claimant, (2) the nature of the location where the constitutional violation occurred, and (3) the practical obstacles inherent in enforcing the claimed right.	Which three factors are relevant to determine the extraterritorial application of the Constitution?
4508	Environmental Tectonics v. W.S. Kirkpatrick, Inc., 847 F.2d 1052, 1058-59 (C.A.3 (N.J.),1988)	4	Award of military procurement contract by foreign government can become, in certain circumstances, a sufficiently formal expression of that government's public interest to trigger application of the act of state doctrine.	First, we agree with the district court's conclusion that the award of a military procurement contract can be, in certain circumstances, a sufficiently formal expression of a government's public interests to trigger application of the doctrine.	"Can an award of a military procurement contract be, in certain circumstances, a sufficient formal expression of a government's public interests?"
4511	Hand v. Pettitt, 258 Ga. App. 170, 172 (2002)	8	When admission of certain evidence is a matter of law instead of a mixed question of law and fact, a trial court does not abuse its discretion in granting a motion in limine, where there are no circumstances under which disputed evidence is admissible.	However, when admission of certain evidence is a matter of law instead of a mixed question of law and fact, the trial court does not abuse its discretion in granting a motion in limine where there are no circumstances under which disputed evidence is admissible.	"When disputed evidence is admissible for any reason, does a trial court abuse its discretion in denying a motion in limine?"

4512	Halifax Paper Co. v. Roanoke Rapids Sanitary Dist., 232 N.C. 421, 429 (1950)	6	The fact that a business or enterprise is, generally speaking, a public utility, does not make every service performed or rendered by it a public service and it may act in a private capacity as distinguished from its public capacity, and, in so doing, is subject to the same rules as a private person.	The fact that a business or enterprise is, generally speaking, a public utility, does not make every service performed or rendered by it a public service, but it may act in a private capacity as distinguished from its public capacity, and in so doing is subject to the same rules as a private person.'	Does a public utility act in private capacity when rendering a service that is not a public service?
4513	Vines v. Branch, 244 Va. 185, 190 (1992)	6	Where person has illegally seized personal property of another and converted it to his own use, owner may bring action in trespass, trover, detinue, or assumpsit.	Where a person has illegally seized the personal property of another and converted it to his own use, the owner may bring an action in trespass, trover, detinue, or assumpsit.	"When a person has illegally seized another's personal property and converted it to his own use, may the owner bring an action for trespass?"
4515	Great Am. Ins. Co. v. Louis Lesser Enterprises, Inc., 353 F.2d 997, 1001 (8th Cir. 1965)	5	Generally, cause of action is deemed to have accrued when facts exist which enable one party to maintain action against another, or at time when party owning cause of action has legal right to sue thereon.	Generally, a cause of action is deemed to have accrued when facts exist which enable one party to maintain an action against another, or at the time when the party owning the cause of action has a legal right to sue thereon.	Will a cause of action accrue on facts that enable a party to legally maintain a suit against another?
4516	Krchnak v. Fulton, 759 S.W.2d 524, 526 (Tex. App. 1988)	4	"Accrual of a cause of action" means right to institute and maintain suit; whenever one person may sue another a cause of action has accrued.	The accrual of a cause of action means the right to institute and maintain a suit and whenever one person may sue another a cause of action has accrued.	Does accrual of a cause of action constitute the right to institute and maintain a suit and whenever one person sue another a cause of action accrue?
4519	Adams v. City of New York, 226 F.Supp.3d 261, 267 (S.D.N.Y., 2016)fn3	12	Under New York law, offense of disorderly conduct has three elements: (1) the defendant's conduct must be public in nature, (2) it must be done with intent to cause public inconvenience, annoyance or alarm or with recklessness as to a risk thereof, and (3) it must match at least one of the descriptions set forth in the statute. N.Y. Penal Law S 240.20.	The offense of disorderly conduct has three elements: "(i) the defendant's conduct must be 'public' in nature, (ii) it must be done with 'intent to cause public inconvenience, annoyance or alarm' or with recklessness as to 'a risk thereof,' and (iii) it must match at least one of the descriptions set forth in the statute."	When can a person be held guilty of disorderly conduct?
4520	State ex rel. State Highway Commission v. Johns, 507 S.W.2d 75, 78 (Mo.App. 1974)	2	Public highways belong, from side to side, and end to end, to the public and any permanent structure or purpresture which materially encroaches upon a public street and impedes travel is a nuisance per se and may be abated, notwithstanding space is left for the passage of the public.	"Public highways belong, from side to side and end to end, to the public,' and any permanent structure or purpresture which materially encroaches upon a public street and impedes travel is a nuisance per se, and may be abated, notwithstanding space is left for the passage of the public.	Is structure maintained upon a public roadway a nuisance subject to abatement?

4521	Alderson v. Southern Co., 321 Ill.App.3d 832, 851 (Ill.App. 1 Dist.,2001)	16	The purpose of requiring utility to obtain a certificate of public convenience and necessity is to prevent unnecessary duplication of facilities and to protect the public from inadequate service and higher rates resulting from such duplication, while simultaneously protecting a utility against indiscriminate or ruinous competition. S.H.A. 220 ILCS 5/8-406.	The Public Utilities Act governs generating facilities within Illinois. 220 ILCS 5/3-105 (West 1996). The purpose of requiring a certificate of public convenience and necessity is to prevent unnecessary duplication of facilities and to protect the public from inadequate service and higher rates resulting from such duplication, while simultaneously protecting a utility against indiscriminate or ruinous competition.	Why is a certificate of public convenience and necessity issued?
4522	Philip Electronics North America v. Wright, 348 Md. 209, 226 (1997)	11	Workers' Compensation Act benefits State's taxpayers in helping to prevent State from having to assume financial responsibility of caring for injured workers and their dependents. Code, Labor and Employment, S 9-101 et seq.	The Act also benefits the taxpayers of the State of Maryland in helping to prevent the State from having to assume the financial responsibility of caring for injured workers and their dependents.	Does the Act to protect workers and their families benefit state taxpayers in helping to prevent a state from having to assume the financial responsibility of caring for injured workers and their dependents?
4523	Hasam Realty Corp. v. Dade Cnty., 178 So.2d 747, 748-49 (Fla. App. 1965)	1	If plaintiff has no valid cause of action on facts existing at time of filing suit, defect cannot ordinarily be remedied by accrual of cause while suit is pending and this remains true though rules provide for amended or supplemental pleadings. 30 F.S.A. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 1.15(d, e).	If a plaintiff has no valid cause of action on the facts existing at the time of filing suit, the defect cannot ordinarily be remedied by the accrual of one while the suit is pending. We do not find *749 that this rule has been changed by the Rules of Civil Procedure which provide for amended or supplemental pleadings. Rule 1.15(d) and (e), Florida Rules of Civil Procedure, 30 F.S.A.	"If plaintiff has no valid cause of action on facts existing at the time of filing suit, can a defect be remedied by accrual of cause while suit is pending?"
4525	Golden Gate Scenic S. S. Lines, Inc. v. Pub. Utilities Comm'n, 57 Cal. 2d 373, 379 (1962)	10	The purpose of grandfather clause is to give those engaged in business being brought under regulation the right to continue their existing business without being subjected to certification requirements that would be applicable if the business were then being started for first time.	The purpose of a grandfather clause is to give those engaged in a business being brought under regulation the right to continue their existing business without being subjected to certification requirements that would be applicable if the business were then being started for the first time.	What is the purpose of the grandfather clause concerning certification requirements of existing businesses?

4526	Merchants Parcel Delivery v. Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, 150 Pa.Super. 120, 129 (Pa.Super. 1942)	2	The test in determining whether a person is a "common carrier" or a "private carrier" is whether such person holds himself out, expressly or impliedly, as engaged in the business of supplying his product or service to the public, as a class, or to any limited portion of it, as contradistinguished from holding himself out as serving or ready to serve only particular individuals. 66 P.S. § 1101 et seq., and §§ 1102(5-7), 1301.	Differentiating between common and private (contract) carriers, this court held that the test is whether or not such person holds himself out, expressly or impliedly, as engaged in the business of supplying his product or service to the public, as a class, or to any limited portion of it, as contradistinguished from holding himself out as serving or ready to serve only particular individuals. Brink's Express Co. v. Public Service Commission et al., 117 Pa. Super. 268, 274, 178 A.	What is the test that lays down the differentiation between private and common carriers?
4527	Interested Underwriters at Lloyds v. Ducor's Inc., 103 A.D.2d 76, 77 (1984), aff'd, 65 N.Y.2d 647 (1985)	1	Absent any indication of overreaching or unconscionability, waiver of subrogation rights provision violates neither General Obligations Law nor any other public policy of New York. McKinney's General Obligations Law § 5-323.	At the outset we note that, absent any indication of overreaching or unconscionability, a waiver of subrogation rights provision "violate[s] neither section 5-323 of the General Obligations Law nor any other public policy ..." of this state.	"Absent any indication of overreaching or unconscionability, does a waiver of a subrogation rights provision violate General Obligations Law?"
4528	TX. C.C. v. Wilson/Barnes Gen. Contractors, 233 S.W.3d 562, 567 (Tex.App.-Dallas, 2007)	8	A "waiver of subrogation clause" is a risk-shifting provision premised upon the recognition that it is economically inefficient for parties to a contract to insure against the same risk.	A waiver of subrogation clause is a risk-shifting provision premised upon the recognition that it is economically inefficient for parties to a contract to insure against the same risk.	Is a subrogation waiver a risk-shifting provision premised upon the recognition that it is economically inefficient for parties to a contract to insure against the same risk?
4529	Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v Perfect Knowledge, 299 A.D.2d 524, 525-26 (N.Y.A.D. 2 Dept., Nov. 25, 2002)	5	Waiver of subrogation provisions exist as part and parcel of a risk allocation agreement whereby liability is shifted to the insurance carriers of the parties to the agreement, and such an agreement is necessarily premised on the procurement of insurance by the parties.	Waiver of subrogation provisions exist as part and parcel of a risk allocation agreement whereby liability is shifted to the insurance carriers of the parties to the agreement (see Viacom Intl. v. Midtown Realty Co., supra). Such an agreement is necessarily premised on the procurement of insurance by the parties.	Do waiver of subrogation provisions exist as part and parcel of a risk allocation agreement?
4530	Willman v. Beheler, 499 S.W.2d 770, 778 (Mo. 1973), abrogated by State ex rel. Leonardi v. Sherry, 137 S.W.3d 462 (Mo. 2004)	24	The relief granted by equity is governed by the conditions and exigencies of the case shown to exist at time of entry of the decree, and not by circumstances existing at time suit is filed.	The relief granted by equity is governed by the conditions and exigencies of the case shown to exist at the time of the entry of the decree, and not by circumstances existing at the time suit is filed.	Is the relief granted by equity governed by the conditions and exigencies of the case shown to exist at time of entry of the decree?

4531	Stonega Coke & Coal Co. v. Price, 106 F.2d 411, 419 (C.C.A.4 (W.Va.), 1939)	10	In equity suit, the decree should speak as of the date of the decree, not merely as of the date of institution of suit, and adjudicate the parties' rights as of that time with provision for enforcement of rights accruing in the future under the instruments sued on, if proper basis therefor is laid in the pleadings.	As this was a suit in equity, we think it proper that the decree should speak as of the date of the decree, and not merely as of the date of institution of suit, and adjudicate the rights of the parties as of that time with provision for the enforcement of rights to accrue in the future under the instruments sued on, if proper basis therefor is laid in the pleadings.	"In an equity suit, should the decree speak as of the date of the decree?"
4532	Wallace Grain & Supply Co. v. Cary, 374 Ill. 57, 59 (1940)	7	The defense of "laches" may be urged when it appears that the one against whom action is taken has suffered damage by reason of the delay caused by the other party.	This defense is one of laches and may be urged when it appears that the one against whom the action is taken has suffered damage by reason of the delay caused by the other party.	"Does the defense of ""laches"" be urged when it appears that the one against whom the action is taken has suffered damage by reason of the delay caused by the other party?"
4533	CPR (USA) Inc. v. Spray, 187 F.3d 245, 255 (C.A.2 (N.Y.),1999)	16	Postexpiration grievances arise under a contract, and are therefore arbitrable: (1) when the dispute involves facts and occurrences that arose before expiration; (2) when postexpiration action infringes a right that accrued or vested under the agreement; or (3) when under normal principles of contract interpretation, the disputed contractual right survives expiration of the remainder of the agreement.	The Litton Court explained that post-expiration grievances arise under the contract, and are therefore arbitrable: (1) when the dispute "involves facts and occurrences that arose before expiration;" (2) when post-expiration action "infringes a right that accrued or vested under the agreement;" or (3) when "under normal principles of contract interpretation, the disputed contractual right survives expiration of the remainder of the agreement." Id.	Is a post-expiration grievance that arises under a contract arbitrable?
4534	Wronke v. Marsh, 603 F. Supp. 407, 412 (C.D. Ill. 1985), rev'd, 787 F.2d 1569 (Fed. Cir. 1986)	8	If applicable regulations are interpreted by the Army in reasonable manner, any charge of procedural irregularity must fail even though petitioner may present another reasonable interpretation of the regulations; thus, where military regulation is susceptible to equally reasonable constructions, court may not substitute alternative interpretation for interpretation of the military service.	If the applicable regulations are interpreted by the Army in a reasonable manner, any charge of procedural irregularity must fail even though the petitioner may present another reasonable interpretation of the regulations. See Cunningham v. Hoffman, 420 F.Supp. 325, 328 (M.D.Tenn.1976). Thus where a military regulation is susceptible to equally reasonable constructions, a court may not substitute an alternative interpretation for the interpretation of the military service.	Do charges of procedural irregularity fail when the applicable regulations are interpreted by the armed services in a reasonable manner?

4535	In re Cowles' Will, 22 A.D.2d 365, 370 (1965), aff'd, 17 N.Y.2d 567 (1966)	8	If defendant or respondent has valid interest in having action or proceeding continue for determination of issues presented by him, he may resist proposed discontinuance as to him, and matter then rests in sound discretion of court which may protect party's interests by refusing discontinuance. CPLR § 1003; Rule 3217.	If the defendant or respondent has a valid interest in having the action or proceeding continue for a determination of issues presented by him, he may resist a proposed discontinuance as to him. Thereupon, the matter rests in the sound discretion of the court which may protect the party's interests by refusing the discontinuance.	Can the courts deny discontinuance to protect the interests of the parties?
4536	New York Mortg. Tr., Inc. v. Dasdemir, 116 A.D.3d 679, 679 (2014)	1	In general, absent a showing of special circumstances, including prejudice to a substantial right of the defendant or other improper consequences, a motion for a voluntary discontinuance should be granted without prejudice. McKinney's CPLR 3217(c).	In general, absent a showing of special circumstances, including prejudice to a substantial right of the defendant or other improper consequences, a motion for a voluntary discontinuance should be granted without prejudice	"Absent a showing of special circumstances, should a motion for a voluntary discontinuance be granted without prejudice?"
4537	Mossanen v. Monfared, 77 Cal. App. 4th 1402, 1409 (2000)	1	Plaintiff's right to voluntarily dismiss an action before commencement of trial is not absolute; statute governing dismissals recognizes exceptions to the right, and other limitations, which have evolved through the courts' construction of the term "commencement of trial," generally arise where the action has proceeded to a determinative adjudication, or to a decision that is tantamount to an adjudication. West's Ann.Cal.C.C.P. § 581.	The right of a plaintiff to voluntarily dismiss an action before commencement of trial is not absolute. Code of Civil Procedure section recognizes exceptions to the right; other limitations have evolved through the courts' construction of the term 'commencement of trial.' These exceptions generally arise where the action has proceeded to a determinative adjudication, or to a decision that is tantamount to an adjudication."	"Is the right to voluntarily dismiss an action or special proceeding before the commencement of trial not absolute, as the statutes recognize exceptions?"
4538	Shirk v. City of Lancaster, 313 Pa. 158, 165–66 (1933)	8	Where state constitutes commission with general powers of regulation over utilities, it includes all such bodies, municipal or otherwise, unless there is definite classification and exemption therefrom.	Where a 561 state constitutes a commission *166 with general powers of regulation over utilities, it includes all such bodies, municipal or otherwise, unless there is definite classification and exemption therefrom.	"Does a state include all bodies, municipal or otherwise, while constituting a commission with general power of regulation over utilities?"
4539	Metmor Financial, Inc. v. Landoll Corp., 976 S.W.2d 454, 462 (Mo.App. W.D.,1998)	11	Party seeking equitable subrogation must prove by clear and convincing evidence that equity requires another party to bear the loss.	A party seeking equitable subrogation must prove by clear and convincing evidence that equity requires another party to bear the loss.	Should a party seeking subrogation or equitable subrogation prove by clear and convincing evidence that equity requires another party to bear the loss?
4540	Metmor Financial, Inc. v. Landoll Corp., 976 S.W.2d 454, 462 (Mo.App. W.D.,1998)	11	Party seeking equitable subrogation must prove by clear and convincing evidence that equity requires another party to bear the loss.	A party seeking equitable subrogation must prove by clear and convincing evidence that equity requires another party to bear the loss.	Should a party seeking equitable subrogation prove by clear and convincing evidence that equity requires another party to bear the loss?

4541	State ex rel. Core v. Green, 160 Ohio St. 175, 179-180 (1953)	3	The General Assembly has broad powers to provide fair and efficient system of schools by taxation and for organization, administration, and control thereof. Const. art. 6, SS 1-3.	By Sections 1, 2, and 3 of Article VI of the Ohio Constitution, the General Assembly is given broad powers to provide a thorough and efficient system of common schools by taxation and for the organization, administration, and control thereof.	"Does the General Assembly have broad powers to provide a fair and efficient system of schools by taxation and for the organization, administration, and control thereof?"
4543	Prime Medical Corp. v. First Medical Corp., 291 S.C. 296, 300 (Ct. App. 1987)	1	A plaintiff is entitled to a voluntary nonsuit without prejudice as a matter of right unless there is a showing of legal prejudice to defendant. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(a)(2); Circuit Court Rule 45(2) (Repealed).	Both the Supreme Court, applying Rule 41(a)(2) of the new rules, and this court, applying Circuit Court Rule 45(2), have recently reasserted the rule set forth in Gullett that "a plaintiff is entitled to a voluntary nonsuit without prejudice as a matter of right, unless there is a showing of legal prejudice to the Defendant."	Is a plaintiff entitled to a voluntary nonsuit without prejudice as a matter of right unless there is a showing of legal prejudice to the defendant?
4545	Christenson v. Gutman, 249 A.D.2d 805, 806 (1998)	1	Motion for voluntary discontinuance is generally granted, absent showing of special circumstances, including prejudice or other improper consequences. McKinney's CPLR 3217(b).	Absent a showing of special circumstances, including prejudice or other improper consequences, a motion for voluntary discontinuance is generally granted (see, Tucker v. Tucker, 55 N.Y.2d 378, 383-384, 449 N.Y.S.2d 683, 434 N.E.2d 1050; Mancinelli v. Mancinelli, 228 A.D.2d 747, 643 N.Y.S.2d 736).	"Is a motion for voluntary discontinuance generally granted, in the absence of showing of special circumstances, including prejudice or other improper consequences?"
4546	In re Machinery Builders, 47 N.Y.S.2d 735, 737 (Sup Ct, Mar. 13, 1944)	1	Ordinarily and in absence of crossclaim for affirmative relief a party can, with or without reason, have his action or proceeding discontinued before issues have been committed to court or jury. Civil Practice Act, SS 457, 469.	There is no question that ordinarily and in the absence of a cross claim for affirmative relief a party can, with or without reason, have his action or proceeding discontinued before the issues have been committed to the court or jury.	"Ordinarily and in absence of crossclaim for affirmative relief, can a party have his action or proceeding discontinued before issues have been committed to court or jury?"
4547	Hurrell-Harring v. State, 112 A.D.3d 1213, 1215 (2013)	3	Delay, frustration and expense in preparation of a contemplated defense do not constitute prejudice warranting denial of a motion for a voluntary discontinuance. McKinney's CPLR 3217(b).	More importantly, "[d]elay, frustration and expense in preparation of a contemplated defense do not constitute prejudice warranting denial of a motion for a voluntary discontinuance under CPLR 3217(b)"	"Do delay, frustration and expense in preparation of a contemplated defense constitute prejudice warranting denial of a motion for a voluntary discontinuance?"
4548	Price v. Price, 1989 OK CIV APP 50, ¶ 1 (1989)	1	Generally, subject to few exceptions, complainant has common law and statutory right to control his cause by dismissal at his pleasure on payment of costs. 12 O.S.1981, S 684.	Generally, subject to few exceptions, a complainant has a common law and statutory right to control his cause by dismissal at his pleasure on payment of costs.	"Subject to a few exceptions, does a complainant have common law and statutory right to control his cause by dismissal at his pleasure on payment of costs?"

4549	Auchan USA, Inc. v. Houston Lighting & Power Co., 961 S.W.2d 197, 201 (Tex.App.-Hous. (1 Dist.), 1996)	9	Fact issue of reasonableness of public utility tariff can be raised by proof that damages caused may be large as compared to minute recovery allowed by tariff, and that utility may allow problem to persist for long time even though it can solve it quickly. Vernon's Ann.Texas Civ.St. art. 1446c-0, S 1.002.	A fact issue of reasonableness of a tariff can be raised by proof that 1) damages caused may be large as compared to the minute recovery allowed by the tariff, and 2) the company may allow the problem to persist for a long time even though it can solve it quickly.	How can a fact issue of reasonableness of a tariff be raised?
4550	Polgar v. Focacci, 2 Misc. 3d 836, 839 (Sup. Ct. 2003)	2	Ordinarily, plaintiff has right to discontinue pending action at any time, unless substantial rights have accrued or adversary's rights would be prejudice thereby. McKinney's CPLR 3217(b).	Ordinarily a plaintiff has the right to discontinue a pending action at any time, unless substantial rights have accrued or the adversary's rights would be prejudice thereby.	Does a plaintiff have a right to discontinue a pending action without prejudice at any time unless substantial rights have accrued or his adversary's rights would be prejudiced thereby?
4554	Adams Outdoor Advertising, Ltd. v. Borough of Stroudsburg, 667 A.2d 21, 24 (Pa.Cmwlt.,1995)	2	Even though imposition of or exemption from tax may advance other governmental concerns, such as manufacturing exemption from state taxation which serves to encourage manufacturing within state, primary purpose of taxes is always to raise money for taxing authority.	Even though the imposition of or exemption from a tax may advance other governmental concerns, e.g., the manufacturing exemption from state taxation serves to encourage manufacturing within Pennsylvania, the primary purpose of taxes is always to raise money for the taxing authority.	Is raising money for the taxing authority the primary purpose of taxes?
4555	United States v. Fattah, 223 F. Supp. 3d 336, 355 (E.D.Pa., 2016)	10	Under the bribery statute, it is unlawful for a public official to accept anything of value in return for being influenced in the performance of an official act; a promise to perform an official act is sufficient to constitute a bribery offense if done in exchange for a thing of value, whether or not the official act ever occurs. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201.	Under the bribery statute, 18 U.S.C. 201, it is unlawful for a public official to accept anything of value in return for being influenced in the performance of an official act. A promise to perform an official act is sufficient to constitute a bribery offense if done in exchange for a thing of value, whether or not the official act ever occurs.	Is a promise to perform an official act sufficient to constitute a bribery offense if done in exchange for a thing of value?
4556	State v. Herrin, 6 Ohio App. 3d 68, 70 (1982)	5	Burglary requires only that person by force, stealth, or deception trespass in occupied structure with purpose to commit therein theft offense or any felony, and does not require that felony offense actually be committed; if in fact felony is committed, that gives life to new and separately chargeable offense.	As mentioned in the second assignment of error, burglary requires only that a person by force, stealth or deception, trespass in an occupied structure with a purpose to commit therein a theft offense, or any felony. It does not require that the felony offense actually be committed. If in fact the felony is committed, that gives life to a new and separately chargeable offense.	"Does burglary require stealth, force or deception?"

4557	Ilagan v. McAbee, 634 N.E.2d 827, 829 (Ind. App. 1994)	3	"Retraxit" is open and voluntary renunciation by plaintiff of suit in court, made when trial is called on, by which plaintiff forever loses action, or is barred from commencing another action in same cause; retraxit operates as dismissal of cause with prejudice.	A retraxit is an open and voluntary renunciation by a plaintiff of his suit in court, made when the trial is called on, by which he forever loses his action, or is barred from commencing another action for the same cause. A retraxit operates as a dismissal of the cause with prejudice.	"Is ""retraxit"" an open and voluntary renunciation by a plaintiff of a suit in court, made when trial is called on?"
4559	Bowie v. Montfort Jones Memorial Hosp., 861 So.2d 1037, 1042 (Miss., 2003)	7	Trial judges are afforded considerable discretion in managing the pre-trial discovery process in their courts, including the entry of scheduling orders setting out various deadlines to assure orderly pre-trial preparation resulting in timely disposition of the cases.	Our trial judges are afforded considerable discretion in managing the pre-trial discovery process in their courts, including the entry of scheduling orders setting out various deadlines to assure orderly pre-trial preparation resulting in timely disposition of the cases.	"Do trial judges have a right to expect compliance with their pretrial orders, and when parties or attorneys or both fail to adhere to the provisions of these orders?"
4560	Nantahala Power & Light Co. v. Whiting Mfg. Co., 209 N.C. 560, 184 S.E. 48, 49 (N.C. 1936)	5	At common law, a voluntary nonsuit was an abandonment of the cause by plaintiff, who allowed judgment for costs to be entered against him by absenting himself or failing to answer when called upon to hear the verdict.	At common law, a voluntary nonsuit was an abandonment of the cause by a plaintiff, who allowed judgment for costs to be entered against him by absenting himself or failing to answer when called upon to hear the verdict.	"Is a ""voluntary nonsuit"" an abandonment of a cause by a plaintiff and allows a judgment for costs to be entered against him?"
4562	McCain Foods USA, Inc. v. Cent. Processors, Inc., 275 Kan. 1, 18-19 (2002)	15	The pretrial order controls the course of the action unless modified to prevent manifest injustice; an issue or claim for relief that is not contained in the pretrial order should not be entertained by the trial court. Rules Civ.Proc., K.S.A. 60-216(e).	The pretrial order under K.S.A.2001 Supp. 60-216(e) controls the course of the action unless modified to prevent manifest injustice. An issue or claim for relief that is not contained in the pretrial order should not be entertained by the trial court.	Should the trial court entertain an issue or claim for relief that is not contained in the pretrial order?
4564	Sullwold v. Barcus, 17 Kan. App. 2d 410, 417 (1992)	7	Unless modified to prevent manifest injustice, pretrial order controls course of action, and issue or claim for relief that is not contained in pretrial order should not be entertained by trial court. Rules Civ.Proc., K.S.A. 60-216.	Unless modified to prevent manifest injustice, the pretrial order under K.S.A.1991 Supp. 60-216 controls the course of the action, and an issue or claim for relief that is not contained in the pretrial order should not be entertained by the trial court.	Should an issue or claim for relief that is not contained in pretrial order be entertained by the trial court?
4568	Storedahl Properties, LLC v. Clark Cnty., 143 Wash. App. 489, 496 (2008)	4	Charges imposed for purposes other than raising money to fund the public treasury, such as for regulating activities, are not taxes and are not subject to constitutional taxation constraints. West's RCWA Const. Art. 7, S 1.	In contrast, charges imposed for purposes other than raising money to fund the public treasury, such as for regulating activities, are not taxes and are not subject to constitutional taxation constraints.	Are charges imposed for purposes other than raising money to fund the public treasury subject to constitutional taxation constraints?
4569	Amalgamated Transit Union Loc. 587 v. State, 142 Wash. 2d 183, 219 (2000), as amended (Nov. 27, 2000), opinion corrected, 27 P.3d 608 (Wash. 2001)	60	"Tax" has as its common meaning a pecuniary charge imposed by legislative or other public authority upon persons or property for public purposes, or a forced contribution of wealth to meet the public needs of a government.	As a noun, the term tax has as its common meaning a pecuniary charge imposed by legislative or other public authority upon persons or property for public purposes : a forced contribution of wealth to meet the public needs of a government.	Is tax a forced contribution of wealth to meet the public needs of a government?

4570	Heatherly v. State, 189 N.C. App. 213, 221 (2008)	5	A "tax" is a charge levied and collected as a contribution to the maintenance of the general government; it is imposed upon the citizens in common at regularly recurring periods for the purpose of providing a continuous revenue.	"A TAX [I]S 'A CHARGE' LEVIED and collected as a contribution to the maintenance of the general government ... [It is] imposed upon the citizens in common at regularly recurring periods for the purpose of providing a continuous revenue."	"Is ""tax"" a charge levied and collected as a contribution to the maintenance of the general government?"
4571	Hanson v. Griffiths, 204 Misc. 736, 738 (Sup. Ct. 1953), aff'd, 283 A.D. 662 (App. Div. 1954)	2	Generally speaking "taxes" are burdens of a pecuniary nature imposed generally upon individuals or property for defraying the cost of governmental functions, whereas charges are sustainable as "fees" where they are imposed upon a person to defray or help defray the cost of particular services rendered for his account.	Generally speaking, taxes are burdens of a pecuniary nature imposed generally upon individuals or property for defraying the cost of governmental functions, while, on the other hand, charges are sustainable as fees where they are imposed upon a person to defray or help defray the cost of particular services rendered for his account.	Are taxes a burden of a pecuniary nature?
4572	Willingham v. United States, 35 Fed. Cl. 633, 646, aff'd, 104 F.3d 374 (Fed. Cir. 1996)	13	When meaning of military regulations and instructions are at issue, armed service's own interpretation must be given controlling weight and deference, especially when regulation has been consistently interpreted over long period of time.	Moreover, when the meaning of military regulations and instructions are at issue, the armed service's own interpretation must be given controlling weight and deference, especially when it has been consistently interpreted over a long period of time.	"When the interpretation of military regulations and instructions are at issue, should the military's own interpretation be given controlling weight and deference?"
4573	Touloumis v. Chalem, 156 A.D.2d 230, 232–33 (1989)	6	Party seeking to avoid release on grounds of fraud must allege every material element of fraud with specific and detailed evidence in record sufficient to establish prima facie case.	In order to avoid a release on the grounds of fraud, a party must allege every material element of fraud with specific and detailed evidence in the record sufficient to establish a prima facie case. (Matter of O'Hara, 85 A.D.2d 669, 445 N.Y.S.2d 201).	What must a party seeking to avoid release on grounds of fraud allege?
4574	Callas v. Eisenberg, 192 A.D.2d 349, 350, 595 N.Y.S.2d 775, 776 (1993)	1	In order to maintain cause of action for fraud, plaintiff must allege representation of material existing fact, falsity, scienter, justifiable reliance, and damages.	In order to maintain a cause of action for fraud, a plaintiff must allege a representation of a material existing fact, falsity, scienter, justifiable reliance and damages	"Must a plaintiff allege a representation of a material existing fact, to plead a cause of action for fraud?"
4578	Whisman v. Fawcett, 470 N.E.2d 73, 76 (Ind. 1984)	1	When pretrial order specifies issues of case, parties will not be permitted to go into other issues, unless pretrial order is amended, since express purpose of trial rule is to provide for a pretrial conference in which to simplify the issues raised by the pleadings and to define these issues within a pretrial order. Trial Procedure Rule 16(J).	"When a pre-trial order specifies the issues of the case, the parties will not be permitted to go into other issues, unless the pre-trial order is amended," since "[t]he express purpose of Trial Rule 16 is to provide for a pre-trial conference in which to simplify the issues raised by the pleadings and to define these issues within a pre-trial order."	Will parties be permitted to go into other issues when pretrial order specifies issues of the case?

4580	Wooten v. Hinton, 202 P.3d 1148, 1153 (Alaska 2009)	9	Voluntary dismissal with prejudice carries a heavy price for a plaintiff; unless the court has made some other provision, a dismissal with prejudice is subject to the rules of res judicata, and one who acquiesces to a dismissal with prejudice waives the right to an appeal. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(a)(2).	Voluntary dismissal with prejudice carries a heavy price for a plaintiff: unless the court has made some other provision, a dismissal with prejudice is subject to the rules of res judicata, and one who acquiesces to a dismissal with prejudice waives the right to an appeal.	Does a voluntary dismissal with prejudice carry a heavy price for a plaintiff?
4581	Livorno v. Brandt, 225 Cal. App. 2d 301, 305, 37 Cal. Rptr. 279, 282 (Ct. App. 1964)	2	The pretrial order supersedes issues raised by pleadings and controls subsequent course of case as long as it remains unmodified. Cal.Rules of Court, rule 216.	In People ex rel. Dept. Public Works v. Valley Drive-in Theater Corp., 206 Cal.App.2d 309, 23 Cal.Rptr. 626, this court held that the pretrial order supersedes the issues raised by the pleadings and controls the subsequent course of the case as long as it remains unmodified.	Does the pretrial order supersede issues raised by pleadings and controls subsequent course of case as long as it remains unmodified?
4582	Samland v. J. White Transp. Co., Inc., 675 S.W.2d 92, 96 (Mo.App. W.D., 1984)	3	Once a plaintiff voluntarily dismisses his action, nothing remains before court upon which it can act; even an order reinstating the case on trial docket at plaintiff's request is a nullity because legal situation is as though the suit had never been brought. V.A.M.R. 67.01.	Once a plaintiff voluntarily dismisses his action, nothing remains before the court upon which it can act; even an order reinstating the case on the trial docket at the plaintiff's request is a nullity. Emigh Engineering Co., Inc. v. Rickhoff, 605 S.W.2d 173, 174 (Mo.App.1980). The legal situation is as though the suit had never been brought.	"Once a plaintiff files a voluntary dismissal of his or her petition, is even an order reinstating the case on the trial docket at the plaintiff's request a nullity?"
4583	Milton Meyer & Co. v. Curro, 239 Cal. App. 2d 480, 484, 48 Cal. Rptr. 812, 814-15 (Ct. App. 1966)	5	When filed, pretrial conference order, unless modified at or before trial, supersedes issues raised by pleadings and controls subsequent course of case.	It is settled that, when filed, a pretrial conference order, unless modified at or before trial, supersedes the issues raised by the pleadings and controls the subsequent course of the case.	"When filed, does a pretrial conference order supersede issues raised by pleadings and controls subsequent course of a case?"
4585	In re Carolina Tobacco Co., 360 B.R. 702, 721 (D.Or. 2007)	22	"Tax" is: (1) involuntary pecuniary burden, regardless of name, laid upon individuals or property; (2) imposed by, or under authority of, the legislature; (3) for public purposes, including purpose of defraying expenses of government or undertakings authorized by it; and (4) under the police or taxing power of state.	A tax is (1) an involuntary pecuniary burden, regardless of name, laid upon individuals or property; (2) imposed by, or under authority of the legislature; (3) for public purposes, including the purposes of defraying expenses of government or undertakings authorized by it; and (4) under the police or taxing power of the state.	"Is tax imposed by, or under authority of the legislature?"
4586	In re Carolina Tobacco Co., 360 B.R. 702, 721 (D.Or. 2007)	22	"Tax" is: (1) involuntary pecuniary burden, regardless of name, laid upon individuals or property; (2) imposed by, or under authority of, the legislature; (3) for public purposes, including purpose of defraying expenses of government or undertakings authorized by it; and (4) under the police or taxing power of state.	A tax is (1) an involuntary pecuniary burden, regardless of name, laid upon individuals or property; (2) imposed by, or under authority of the legislature; (3) for public purposes, including the purposes of defraying expenses of government or undertakings authorized by it; and (4) under the police or taxing power of the state.	Is tax under the police or taxing power of state?

4587	Mayor and City Council of Baltimore v. Williams, 61 F.2d 374, 376 (C.A.4 1932)	2	"Tax" is enforced contribution of money or other property, assessed in accordance with reasonable rule of apportionment by sovereign state's authority on persons or property within its jurisdiction, to defray expenses.	A tax is an enforced contribution of money or other property, assessed in accordance with some reasonable rule or apportionment by authority of a sovereign state on persons or property within its jurisdiction for the purpose of defraying the public expenses. 7. Taxes.	Is tax assessed in accordance with some reasonable rule or apportionment by authority of a sovereign state?
4588	Beattie v. East China Charter Tp., 403 N.W.2d 490, 492-93, 157 Mich.App. 27, 33 (Mich.App.,1987)fn2	1	Taxes levied or exemptions created under state's police powers do not fall within realm of property tax laws, and are thus not within jurisdiction of Tax Tribunal. M.C.L.A. S 205.731.	Taxes levied (or exemptions created) 2 , under the state's police powers do not fall within the realm of property tax 493 laws and are thus not within the jurisdiction of the Tax Tribunal:	Do taxes levied or exemptions created under state's police powers fall within the realm of property tax laws?
4589	City of Philadelphia v. Pennsylvania Public Utility Com'n, 676 A.2d 1298, 1307 (Pa.Cmwlth.,1996)	14	Classic "tax" is imposed by legislature upon many or all citizens, raises money, contributed to general fund, and spent for benefit of entire community.	The classic tax is "imposed by a legislature upon many, or all citizens ... raises money, contributed to a general fund, and spent for the benefit of the entire community".	Is the classic tax imposed by a legislature upon many or all citizens and spent for the benefit of the entire community?
4590	United States v. McDonough, 727 F.3d 143, 152 (C.A.1 (Mass.), 2013)	4	To support a conviction of bribery of a public official, because the illegal conduct is taking or agreeing to take money for a promise to act in a certain way, the government must prove that an agreement for a quid pro quo existed; that is, the receipt of something of value "in exchange for" an official act. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201.	In addition, because "[t]he illegal conduct is taking or agreeing to take money for a promise to act in a certain way," United States v. Brewster, 408 U.S. 501, 526, 92 S.Ct. 2531, 33 L.Ed.2d 507 (1972), the government must prove that an agreement for a quid pro quo existed; that is, the receipt of something of value "in exchange for" an official act.	"Does a ""quid pro quo"" agreement need to be tied to a specific act?"
4591	United States v. Redzic, 627 F.3d 683, 691-692 (C.A.8, 2010)	10	To prove the payment of an illegal bribe, the government must present evidence of a quid pro quo, but an illegal bribe may be paid with the intent to influence a general course of conduct. 18 U.S.C.A. S 666(a)(2).	To prove the payment of an illegal bribe, the government must present evidence of a quid pro quo, but an illegal bribe may be paid with the intent to influence a general course of conduct.	"To prove a case of illegal bribe, should the payment be made with the intent to influence a general course of conduct?"
4593	Tait v. Nash, 27 Mich. App. 446, 448 (1970)	1	Purpose of pretrial conference is to narrow factual and legal issues for trial, and it is for this reason that pretrial statement must be given the effect specified in the rule, that is to control the subsequent course of the action. GCR 1963, 301.3.	It has long been an accepted purpose of the pretrial conference to narrow the factual and legal issues for trial. It is for this reason that the pretrial statement must be given the effect specified in 593 the rule, that is to control the subsequent course of the action. GCR 1963, 301.3.	Is the purpose of pretrial conference to narrow factual and legal issues for trial?

4594	Mordecai v. Cain, 790 S.E.2d 539, 544 (Ga.App., 2016)	6	When a party requests that qualification of prospective jurors be done during voir dire and in open court, the trial court's discretion when and where to qualify them is, in fact, limited; that is, although so-called "prequalification" may be permitted, a party who asks that qualification of prospective jurors be done during voir dire and in open court is entitled to that procedure, regardless whether prospective jurors are prequalified by a court employee before they are sent to the courtroom.	Accordingly, we conclude that existing precedent establishes that, when a party requests that qualification of prospective jurors be done during voir dire and in open court, the trial court's discretion when and where to qualify them is, in fact, limited. That is, although so-called "prequalification" 7 may be permitted, a party who asks that qualification of prospective jurors be done during voir dire and in open court is entitled to that procedure, regardless whether prospective jurors are prequalified by a court employee before they are sent to the courtroom.	What is a party filing a proposed pretrial order required to do?
4596	Universal Underwriters Ins. Co. v. Superior Ct. for Los Angeles Cnty., 250 Cal. App. 2d 722, 728, 58 Cal. Rptr. 870, 874 (Ct. App. 1967)	8	Principal purposes of pretrial are to find out what lawsuit is about, to simplify and define issues to be litigated, and to determine how trial may proceed most expeditiously; and another purpose is to give notice of matters not necessarily revealed by pleadings where such matters may be issues in case. Cal. Rules of Court, rules 210, 216; West's Ann.Code Civ.Proc. SS 473, 2030.	The principal purposes of pretrial are to find out what the lawsuit is about, to simplify and define the issues to be litigated, and to determine how the trial may proceed most expeditiously. It is also to give notice of matters not necessarily revealed by the pleadings where such matters may be issues in the case.'	Is the purpose of pretrial conference and subsequent pretrial order of the court to simplify the issues after parties have completed discovery?
4598	Anderson v. Section 11, Inc., 626 P.2d 1027, 1029, 28 Wash.App. 814, 817 (Wash.App., 1981)	2	If a new issue is introduced after parties have entered into pretrial order, court may consider issue and modify order to prevent manifest injustice.	If a new issue is introduced after the parties have entered into a pretrial order, the court may consider the issue and modify the order to prevent manifest injustice.	Will a court consider issue and modify order to prevent manifest injustice if a new issue is introduced after parties have entered into pretrial order?
4599	Harris v. Billings, 16 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1402, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718, 721 (1993)	4	Plaintiff may not obtain dismissal without prejudice following adverse arbitration award and filing of request for trial de novo.	A plaintiff may not obtain a dismissal without prejudice following an adverse arbitration award and the filing of a request for trial de novo.	Can a plaintiff obtain a dismissal without prejudice following an adverse arbitration award and filing of a request for a trial de novo?
4601	Starling v. Union Pac. R. Co., 22 S.W.3d 213, 215 (Mo.App., 1977)	1	Under court rule that allows a plaintiff to dismiss a lawsuit voluntarily without a court order at any time before introduction of evidence at trial, even if motions are pending, the circuit court loses jurisdiction to take any further action to rule on those motions as of the date that the plaintiff dismisses the lawsuit. V.A.M.R. 67.02(a).	Rule 67.02(a) allows a plaintiff to dismiss a lawsuit voluntarily without a court order at any time before introduction of evidence at trial. Even if motions are pending, the circuit court loses jurisdiction to take any further action to rule on those motions as of the date that the plaintiff dismisses the lawsuit.	Will a rule allow a plaintiff to dismiss a lawsuit voluntarily without a court order at any time before introduction of evidence at trial?

4602	Pennymac Corp. v. Labeau, 180 So. 3d 1216, 1219 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2015)	2	Liberal standard for relief from a technical admission arising out of the failure to respond to a request for admissions within 30 days of the request reflects the strong preference that genuinely disputed claims be decided upon their merits rather than technical rules of default. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.370.	Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.370 governs Requests for Admission. It provides, in pertinent part: [...] The liberal standard for relief under this rule reflects the strong preference that genuinely disputed claims be decided upon their merits rather than technical rules of default.	Should the liberal standard for relief from a technical admission be decided upon their merits rather than technical rules of default?
4605	Wilcox v. Orellano, 443 Md. 177, 183, 115 A.3d 621, 624 (2015)	4	Even though res judicata may not prevent a plaintiff who has voluntarily dismissed a claim from refiling the claim, the statute of limitations-if it has expired in the meantime-may do so. Md.Rule 2-506.	Thus, even though res judicata may not prevent a plaintiff who has voluntarily dismissed a claim from refiling the claim, the statute of limitations—if it has expired in the meantime—may do so.	"Even though res judicata may not prevent a plaintiff who has voluntarily dismissed a claim from refiling the claim, may the statute of limitations-if it has expired in the meantime do so?"
4606	Dyson v. Adrenaline Dreams Adventures, 757 N.E.2d 401, 403, 143 Ohio App.3d 69, 72 (Ohio App. 8 Dist.,2001)	4	While a plaintiff's voluntary dismissal generally divests a court of jurisdiction, a court may consider collateral issues not related to the merits of the action. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(A)(1).	While a voluntary dismissal under Civ.R. 41(A)(1) generally divests a court of jurisdiction, a court may consider collateral issues not related to the merits of the action.	"While a plaintiff's voluntary dismissal generally divests a court of jurisdiction, may a court consider collateral issues not related to the merits of the action?"
4607	Application for Water Rights of Hines Highlands Ltd. Partnership, 929 P.2d 718, 728 (Colo.,1996	13	Plaintiff has right afforded by rule to dismiss claim without prejudice, provided that court can ensure defendant will not be unfairly prejudiced. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(a)(2).	That rule gives the plaintiff the right to dismiss a claim without prejudice, provided the court can ensure the defendant will not be unfairly prejudiced.	"Does a plaintiff have a right afforded by rule to dismiss the claim without prejudice, provided that court can ensure the defendant will not be unfairly prejudiced?"
4608	Alley v. U.S., 6 Cl.Ct. 99, 101 (Cl.Ct.,1984)	2	Fact that military employment relationship is generally referred to as a statutory relationship does not mean that it is inappropriate to examine agreements entered into within framework of that relationship in light of traditional contract principles.	The fact that the military employment relationship is generally referred to as a statutory relationship does not mean that it is inappropriate to examine agreements entered into within the framework of that relationship in light of traditional contract principles.	Is it inappropriate to examine military employment agreements in light of traditional contract principles?
4609	Roberts v. City of Baton Rouge, 236 La. 521, 535–36 (LA 1958)	2	The terms "excise tax", "license tax" and "privilege tax" are synonymous and are used interchangeably to extent that they are all "indirect taxes" which are imposed upon the acts of persons, whereas a "direct tax" is one which is imposed upon persons themselves or upon property owned by them.	From the foregoing it is manifest that the terms 'excise tax', 'license tax' and 'privilege tax' are synonymous and are used interchangeably to the extent that they are all 'indirect taxes' which are imposed upon the acts of persons, whereas a 'direct tax' is one which is imposed upon the persons themselves or upon the property owned by them.	"Are the terms ""excise tax"", ""license tax"" and ""privilege tax"" synonymous and used interchangeably?"
4610	United States v. Jennings, 160 F.3d 1006, 1014 (C.A.4 (Md.), 1998)	24	When instructing the jury on bribery of a public official, a trial court must explain that a payment is made with corrupt intent only if it was made or promised with the intent to corrupt the particular official. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(b)(1)(A).	When instructing the jury on 201(b), a trial court must explain that a payment is made with "corrupt intent" only if it was made or promised with the intent to corrupt the particular official.	"When instructing the jury on bribery of a public official, is a trial court required to explain that a payment is made with corrupt intent only if it was made with the intent to corrupt the particular official?"

4612	United States v. Harvey, 532 F.3d 326, 335 (C.A.4 (Va.), 2008)	8	Not every gift, favor or contribution to a government or political official constitutes bribery; bribery occurs only if the gift is coupled with a particular criminal intent to receive a specific benefit in return for the payment. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(b)(1)(A), (b)(2)(A).	Not every gift, favor or contribution to a government or political official constitutes bribery. It is universally recognized that bribery occurs only if the gift is coupled with a particular criminal intent." U.S.	"Is every gift, favor, or contribution to a government or political official bribery?"
4613	State v. Rush, 18 Kan. App. 2d 694, 697 (1993)	1	Criminal trespass is not lesser included crime of aggravated burglary because criminal trespass contains additional element of intruder's actual or constructive notice that intruder has no authority to enter or remain within structure. K.S.A. 21-3721.	610, 614-15, 556 P.2d 184 (1976), the Supreme Court concluded criminal trespass, under K.S.A. 21-3721 (Weeks), was not a lesser included crime of aggravated burglary because criminal trespass contains the additional element of the intruder's actual or constructive notice that the intruder has no authority to enter or remain within the structure.	Is criminal trespass lesser included offense than aggravated burglary?
4614	Gold v. Portland Lumber Corp., 16 A.2d 111, 112 (Me. 1940)	3	The approach to an intersection must always be attended with use of reasonable watchfulness and caution so as to have approaching vehicle under control, and, where a collision is indicated, the motorist who can do so by exercise of ordinary care should avoid doing injury although it necessitates yielding the right of way. Rev.St.1930, c. 29, S 7.	Always the approach to an intersection must be attended with the use of reasonable watchfulness and caution so as to have such approaching vehicle under control and, where a collision is indicated, the driver who can do so by the exercise of ordinary care should avoid doing injury although it necessitates yielding his right of way.	What elements must be attended to or considered before approaching an intersection?
4615	Miller Bros. Co. v. State of Md., 347 U.S. 340, 345 (U.S. 1954)	15	Certain activities or transactions carried on within a state, such as the use and sale of property, may give jurisdiction to tax whomsoever engages therein, and the use of highways may justify certain types of taxation.	Certain activities or transactions carried on within a state, such as the use 14 and sale 15 of property may give jurisdiction to tax whomsoever engages therein, and the use of highways may subject the use to certain types of taxation.	Which activities or transactions carried on within a state can give jurisdiction to impose tax?
4616	State ex rel. Harvey v. Wells, 955 S.W.2d 546, 547 (Mo., 1997)	1	Fact pleading identifies, narrows, and defines issues so that trial court and parties know what issues are to be tried, what discovery is necessary, and what evidence may be admitted at trial. V.A.M.R. 55.08.	Fact pleading identifies, narrows and defines the issues so that the trial court and the parties know what issues are to be tried, what discovery is necessary, and what evidence may be admitted at trial.	"Does fact pleading identify, narrow, and define the issues so that the trial court and the parties know what issues are to be tried?"
4617	Polansky v. Berenji, 393 S.W.3d 362, 367 (Tex.App.-Austin, 2012)	4	Although the nonsuit immediately renders the merits of the case moot, the trial court need not immediately dismiss the suit when notice of nonsuit is filed. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 162.	Although the nonsuit immediately renders the merits of the case moot, the trial court need not immediately dismiss the suit when notice of nonsuit is filed.	"Although the nonsuit immediately renders the merits of the case moot, should the trial court immediately dismiss the suit when notice of nonsuit is filed?"
4619	Lake v. Sterling, 220 Cal. App. 2d 35, 37, 33 Cal. Rptr. 584, 586 (Ct. App. 1963)	3	Willful dismissal terminates action for all time and affords appellate court no jurisdiction to review rulings on demurrers or motions made prior to dismissal.	A willful dismissal terminates the action for all time and affords the appellate court no jurisdiction to review rulings on demurrers or motions made prior to the dismissal.'	Does a wilful dismissal terminate the action for all time and affords the appellate court no jurisdiction to review motions made prior to the dismissal?

4620	MacDonald v. Cottle, 133 Or.App. 35, 39 (Or.App.,1995)	2	Rule which provides that, when trial court allows amendment of admission, original matter is no longer conclusively established and proponent of disputed fact continues to have burden of establishing its existence does not prohibit initial response from being admitted into evidence. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 45, subd. D.	The rule provides that, when a trial court allows an amendment under ORCP 45 D, the original matter admitted is no longer conclusively established, and the proponent of the disputed fact continues to have the burden of establishing its existence. The rule does not prohibit the initial response from being admitted into evidence.	"When a trial court allows an amendment, does the original matter admitted is conclusively established?"
4623	Crowley v. Coles, 760 S.W.2d 347, 349 (Tex.App.-Hous. (1 Dist.), 1988)	3	Any matter deemed admitted is conclusively established as to party making such admission, unless on motion it is withdrawn or amended with permission of the court. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 169, subd. 1.	Any matter deemed admitted under rule 169 is conclusively established as to the party making such admission, unless on motion it is withdrawn or amended with permission of the court.	"When admissions are deemed, are matters conclusively established against admitting party unless court on motion permits withdrawal or amendment of admissions?"
4624	Dover Corp. v. Perez, 587 S.W.2d 761, 766 (Tex.Civ.App., 1979)	7	Ruling on motion for continuance based on absence of counsel is within discretion of trial court, and ruling on motion will be reversed only upon showing of court's discretion. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 253.	Rule 253, T.R.C.P., places the ruling on a motion for continuance based on the absence of counsel within the discretion of the trial court, and the ruling of the motion will be reversed only upon a showing of abuse of the court's discretion.	"Is a ruling on a motion for continuance based on absence of counsel is within discretion of trial court, and ruling on motion will be reversed only upon showing of court's discretion?"
4625	The Anaconda v. Am. Sugar Ref. Co., 322 U.S. 42, 45 (1944)	3	Section 8 of the Arbitration Act contemplates that one who has agreed to arbitrate may, nevertheless, prosecute his cause of action in admiralty, and protects his opponent's right to arbitration by court order. United States Arbitration Act, S 8, 9 U.S.C.A. S 8.	Here again the Act plainly contemplates that one who has agreed to arbitrate may, nevertheless, prosecute his cause of action in admiralty, and protects his opponent's right to arbitration by court order.	Can a party who has agreed to arbitrate prosecute his cause of action in admiralty and protect his opponents right to arbitration by court order?
4629	Austin v. Bearden, 566 So. 2d 1003, 1006 (La. Ct. App.), writ denied, 568 So. 2d 1086 (La. 1990)	2	While a litigant is not guaranteed representation by counsel in a civil case, our system of justice does not permit unrepresented litigants to be unfairly dealt with, and courts are alert and diligent to see that litigants are not left in the lurch by attorneys who have agreed to represent them.	This is a civil case, and a litigant is not guaranteed representation by counsel in a civil case. However, the courts are alert and diligent to see that litigants are not left in the lurch by attorneys who have agreed to represent them. Our system of justice does not permit unrepresented litigants to be unfairly dealt with.	Is a litigant guaranteed representation by counsel in a civil case?
4631	J.M. Parker & Sons, Inc. v. William Barber, Inc., 208 N.C.App. 682, 688 (N.C.App., 2010)	5	Where one party fails to timely respond to another's request for admissions, the facts in question are deemed to be judicially admitted. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36(a), West's N.C.G.S.A. S 1A-1.	Where one party fails to timely respond to another's request for admissions, the facts in question are deemed to be judicially admitted under Rule 36 of the North Carolina Rules of Civil Procedure.	"Where one party fails to timely respond to another's request for admissions, are the facts in question deemed to be judicially admitted?"

4632	Dobbelaere v. Cosco, Inc., 697 N.E.2d 1016, 1024, 120 Ohio App.3d 232, 244 (Ohio App. 3 Dist.,1997)	10	Where party files written request for admission, failure of opposing party to timely answer request constitutes conclusive admission, and also satisfies written answer requirement of summary judgment rule. Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 36, 56(C).	"[W]here a party files a written request for admission[,] a failure of the opposing party to timely answer the request constitutes a conclusive admission pursuant to Civ.R. 36 and also satisfies the written answer requirement of Civ.R. 56(C) in the case of a summary judgment." Id.	"Where a party files a written request for admission, does a failure of the opposing party to timely answer the request constitutes a conclusive admission?"
4633	Bryant v. Robledo, 938 So.2d 413, 420 (Ala.Civ.App., 2005)	7	A matter in a request for admissions is deemed admitted unless a written answer or objection is served within the applicable time frame; the duty to respond is not fulfilled by having previously responded to the complaint with a denial of every material allegation. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36(b).	Pursuant to Rule 36(b), Ala. R. Civ. P., a matter is deemed admitted unless a written answer or objection is served within the applicable time frame; the duty to respond is not fulfilled by having previously responded to the complaint with a denial of every material allegation.	When is a matter in a request for admissions deemed admitted?
4634	Calkins v. Smith, 78 P.2d 74, 76 (Mont. 1938)	5	Taxes are levied against a person, and his property serves as a basis for computing measure of liability and as security for discharge of lien, but obligation created by levy is not a continuing personal obligation. Rev.Codes 1935, SS 2152, 2154.	It, therefore, becomes obvious that, while this court has repeatedly declared that taxes are levied against a person with his property serving as a basis for computing the measure of liability and as security for the discharge of the lien, Christofferson v. Chouteau County, 105 Mont. 577, 74 P.2d 427, the obligation created by the levy of taxes is not a continuing personal obligation.	Do taxes levied against property serve only as a basis for computing each person's measure of liability and as security for the discharge of the lien which the tax imposes?
4635	United States v. Anderson, 509 F.2d 312, 332 (D.C. Cir. 1974)	30	Donor may be convicted of giving a bribe despite the fact that the recipient had no intention of altering his official activities, or even lacked the power to do so. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(a, b).	Thus the donor may be convicted of giving a bribe despite the fact that the recipient had no intention of altering his official activities, or even lacked the power to do so.	"If the recipient of a bribe has no intention of altering his official activities, or even lacked the power to do so, will the donor be convicted of giving a bribe?"
4636	United States v. Evans, 344 F.3d 1131, 1135 (C.A.11 (Fla.), 2003)	4	To determine whether any particular individual is public official, within meaning of gratuity statute, proper inquiry is whether person occupies position of public trust with official federal responsibilities. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(a)(1).	To determine whether any particular individual [is a public official], the proper inquiry is ... whether the person occupies a position of public trust with official federal responsibilities."	"What is the proper inquiry to determine, within the meaning of the gratuity statute, whether a person occupies the position of a ""public official""?"
4637	Bates v. Richland Sales Corp., 803 N.E.2d 977, 984, 281 Ill.Dec. 356, 363, 346 Ill.App.3d 223, 230–31 (Ill.App. 4 Dist.,2004)	7	For purposes of legal sufficiency of complaint depending on well-pleaded facts rather than conclusions, allegations of defendant's knowledge, especially defendant's knowledge of someone else's future conduct, are conclusory absent facts that might reasonably lead one to attribute such knowledge to defendant.	The legal sufficiency of a complaint depends on well-pleaded facts rather than *231 conclusions (McMahon v. City of Chicago, 339 Ill.App.3d 41, 45, 273 Ill.Dec. 447, 789 N.E.2d 347, 349 (2003)), and allegations of a defendant's knowledge, especially the defendant's knowledge of someone else's future conduct, are conclusory absent facts that might reasonably lead one to attribute such knowledge to the defendant	Is the allegation of a defendant's knowledge a conclusion?

4639	City of Muncie v. Peters, 709 N.E.2d 50, 55 (Ind.App.,1999)	2	Failure to respond in a timely manner to a request for admissions causes those matters to be admitted and conclusively established by operation of law. Trial Procedure Rule 36	Moreover, 'the failure to respond in a timely manner to a request for admissions causes those matters to be admitted and conclusively established by operation of law.'	Does failure to respond in a timely manner to a request for admissions cause those matters to be conclusively established by operation of law?
4640	Ronollo v. Ronollo, 643 S.W.2d 646, 647 (Mo. Ct. App. 1982)	1	An abuse of discretion with respect to denial of a continuance does not exist in absence of compliance with rule setting forth information which is to be contained in an application for continuance. V.A.M.R. 65.04.	Rule 65.04 sets forth the information which is to be contained in an application for continuance. An abuse of discretion does not exist in the absence of compliance with that rule.	Does an abuse of discretion with respect to a denial of a continuance exist in the absence of compliance with a rule setting forth information which is to be contained in an application for continuance?
4641	Matter of Tax Appeal of Trade Wind Tours of Hawaii, Inc., 6 Haw. App. 260, 260 (Hawaii App. 1986)	6	Standard for determining whether party should be allowed to withdraw admissions by permitting later filing of answers to request for admissions, as set forth under Rules of Civil Procedure, is whether presentation of merits of action will be subserved, and whether party who obtained admission will be prejudice in maintaining action or defense on merits. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36(b).	The standard in determining whether a party should be allowed to withdraw admissions by permitting the late filing of answers is as set forth in Rule 36(b), HRCPC: (1) whether presentation of merits of the action will be subserved; and (2) whether the party who obtained the admission will be prejudiced in maintaining his action or defense on the merits.	What is the applicable standard in determining whether a party should be allowed to withdraw admissions under Rule 36(b)?
4642	Libertarian Party of Ohio v. Husted, 302 F.R.D. 472, 476 (S.D. Ohio, 2014)	5	Once the deposing party has had a full opportunity to question a witness, doing that for a second time is presumptively duplicative and it is appropriate to ask the party requesting a second deposition of the same witness to explain what else might be asked that has not already been covered adequately in the first proceeding. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 30, 28 U.S.C.A.	It also explains the restriction on a second deposition of the same witness; once the deposing party has had a full opportunity to question a witness, doing that for a second time is presumptively duplicative and it is appropriate to ask the requesting party to explain what else might be asked that has not already been covered adequately in the first proceeding.	Can a deposition of a witness be taken second time for purpose of explaining evidence before given or for purpose of obtaining testimony concerning additional facts?
4643	Ayr-Way Stores, Inc. v. Chitwood, 300 N.E.2d 335, 338, 261 Ind. 86, 91 (Ind. 1973)	4	Party moving for continuance on basis of amendment of pleadings must show that allowing the amendment would prejudice his rights in maintaining his action or defense.	But in such a case, the party moving for a continuance must show that allowing the amendment would prejudice his rights in maintaining his action or defense.	Should a party moving for continuance on the basis of amendment of pleadings show that allowing the amendment would prejudice his rights in maintaining his action or defense?
4644	Hook v. Springfield, 141 Ohio App. 3d 260, 266 (2001)	4	The rights of injured employees and the dependents of killed employees to recover from or participate in the workers' compensation fund are neither constitutional rights, inherent rights, nor common-law rights, but are wholly statutory.	" '[T]he rights of injured employees and the dependents of killed employees to recover from or participate in the [workers' compensation] fund are neither constitutional rights, inherent rights, nor common-law rights, but are wholly statutory[.]' "	"In the workers compensation context, is the right of injured employees to recover from or participate in the state insurance fund constitutional rights, inherent rights, common law rights, or statutory rights?"

4645	Com. v. Cost, 238 Pa. Super. 591, 601, 362 A.2d 1027, 1032 (1976)	4	Purpose of inclusion of "open to the public" clause in burglary statute was to prevent prosecution and conviction of burglary for events taking place in public places, to change substantive law of burglary and to bring law of burglary closer to its common-law ancestor which sought to protect private premises from crime. 18 Pa.C.S.A. § 3502.	[4] We believe that the purpose of the inclusion of the 'open to the public' clause in section 3502 of the new Crimes Code was to prevent the prosecution and conviction of burglary in cases such as in the instant appeal, to change the substantive law of burglary as articulated in Commonwealth v. Schultz, supra, and to bring the law of burglary closer to its common law ancestor which sought to protect private premises from crime.	What is the purpose of including the open to public clause in the burglary statute?
4646	Burnham v. Nehren, 503 P.2d 122, 127, 7 Wash.App. 860, 865 (Wash.App., 1972)	9	It is the duty of a driver approaching a crossing to maintain a continuing observation in order to avoid injuring a pedestrian, and failure on driver's part to yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian constitutes negligence per se if the pedestrian was seen or should have been seen by driver. RCWA 46.61.235.	It is the duty of a driver approaching a crossing to maintain a continuous observation in order to avoid injuring a pedestrian and failure on the part of a driver to yield the right- of-way to a pedestrian constitutes negligence per se if the pedestrian was seen or should have been seen by the driver.	When does a drivers failure to yield the right-of-way to pedestrian constitute negligence per se?
4647	Becker v. Becker, 138 S.E.2d 507, 509, 262 N.C. 685, 688 (N.C. 1964)	3	An amended pleading at the session the case is called for trial, which raises additional issues of fact, may justify the continuance of the case on motion of the opposing party; however, such amendment will not ordinarily justify a continuance on motion of party submitting amendment.	An amended pleading at the session the case is called for trial, which raises additional issues of fact, may justify the continuance of the case on motion of the opposing party. However, such amendment will not ordinarily justify a continuance on motion of the party submitting the amendment.	"Could an amended pleading at the session the case is called for trial, justify the continuance of the case on motion of the opposing party?"
4650	J & B Slurry Seal Co. v. Mid-South Aviation, Inc., 88 N.C.App. 1, 17 (N.C.App., 1987)	10	Since judgment without necessary joinder is void, trial court should, on its own motion, order continuance to provide reasonable time for necessary parties to be joined.	Since a judgment without such necessary joinder is void, a trial court should, on its own motion, order a continuance to provide a reasonable time for necessary parties to be joined.	"Should a trial court, on its own motion, order a continuance to provide a reasonable time for necessary parties to be joined?"
4651	Texas Gen. Indem. Co. v. Lee, 570 S.W.2d 231, 233 (Tex.Civ.App.-Eastland, 1978)	3	Rule governing request for admissions contemplates that unanswered requests for admission which were not requests for relevant matters of fact but called for conclusions, opinions, and statements of subjective intent should not be deemed admitted facts. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 169.	The rule contemplates that unanswered requests for admission which were not requests for relevant matters of fact but called for conclusions, opinions, and statements of subjective intent should not be deemed admitted facts.	Does the rule governing a request for admissions contemplate that unanswered requests for admission which are not requests for relevant matters of fact be not deemed admitted facts?
4652	Whiteman v. Chesapeake Appalachia, L.L.C., 729 F.3d 381, 388 (4th Cir. 2013)	10	Incident to mineral estate ownership, a mineral estate owner in West Virginia has a right to use the surface in such manner and with such means as would be fairly necessary to enjoy the mineral estate.	Notwithstanding their dissimilarity to this case, Porter and Squires enshrine the overarching principle that, incident to mineral estate ownership, a mineral estate owner in West Virginia has a right to use the surface "in such manner and with such means as would be fairly necessary" to enjoy the mineral estate.	"Does the owner of the mineral underlying land possess, as incident to this ownership, the right to use the surface in such manner and with such means as would be fairly necessary for the enjoyment of the mineral estate?"

4654	Every v. City of New Orleans, 514 So. 2d 556, 558 (La. Ct. App.), writ denied, 515 So. 2d 1111 (La. 1987)	1	Even though a litigant whose lawyer withdraws at or near trial may be entitled to a continuance to employ another attorney, absent unfairness to the parties, a plaintiff is not entitled to indefinite continuances simply because he has discharged his lawyer, because the court cannot be closed to a defendant who desires to bring a case to trial. LSA-C.C.P. art. 1601.	Unless it would be unfair to the parties, a litigant whose lawyer withdraws at or near trial may be entitled to a continuance to employ another attorney. Sands v. State Through La. State Med., 458 So.2d 960 (La.App. 4th Cir.1984), writ denied, 460 So.2d 1044 (La.1984); Marpco, Inc. v. South States Pipe & Supply, 377 So.2d 525 (La.App. 3rd Cir.1979). Nonetheless, because the court cannot be closed to a defendant who desires to bring the case to trial, a plaintiff is not entitled to indefinite continuances simply because he has discharged his lawyer.	Will a litigant whose lawyer withdraws at or near trial be entitled to continuance to employ another attorney?
4656	Arcata Graphics Co. v. Heidelberg Harris, Inc., 874 S.W.2d 15, 22 (Tenn.App.,1993)	5	When trial court grants motion to amend, opposing party must request continuance if it believes it has been prejudiced; if continuance is not requested, party against whom amendment was granted may not complain on appeal. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 15.01.	When the trial court grants a motion to amend, the opposing party must request a continuance if it believes it has been prejudiced. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Fox, 1990 WL 8058 at *12 (Tenn.App. 6 Feb. 1990). If a continuance is not requested, the party against whom the amendment was granted may not complain on appeal.	"When the trial court grants a motion to amend a pleading, must the opposing party request a continuance if it believes it has been prejudiced?"
4657	Desson v. Trustees of Net Realty Holding Tr., 229 A.D.2d 512, 512–13, 646 N.Y.S.2d 31, 32 (1996)	1	Discovery of evidence of subsequent similar accidents, while material in cases where defect is alleged in design or creation of product or structure, is irrelevant and inappropriate in cases where no inherent defect is alleged.	Discovery of evidence of subsequent similar accidents, while material in cases where a defect is alleged in the design or creation of a product or structure, is irrelevant and inappropriate in cases such as this, where no inherent defect is alleged (see, Kolody v. Supermarkets General Corporation, 163 A.D.2d 276, 277, 557 N.Y.S.2d 145; Yoon v. F.W. Woolworth Co., 202 A.D.2d 575, 576, 609 N.Y.S.2d 260).	Is discovery of evidence of subsequent similar accidents irrelevant and inappropriate in cases where no inherent defect is alleged?
4658	People v. Wolfe, 257 Cal. App. 2d 420, 425, 64 Cal. Rptr. 855, 858 (Ct. App. 1967)	1	To obtain a "burglary" conviction the prosecution must prove that the entry was made with intent to commit grand or petit larceny, or any felony, the "intent to commit larceny" meaning the intent to deprive the owner of his property permanently. West's Ann.Pen.Code, S 459.	For a burglary conviction the prosecution must prove that the entry was made 'with intent to commit grand or petit larceny or any felony' (s 459, Pen.Code), but the intent to commit larceny means the intent to deprive the owner of his property permanently.	"In an offence of burglary, with intent to commit larceny, should there be intent to deprive the owner of his property permanently?"

4660	Gillespie v. Fields, 958 S.W.2d 228, 232 (Tex. App. 1997)	8	Party's right to take nonsuit is unqualified and absolute as long as other party has not made claim for affirmative relief, and use of creative pleading that merely restates defenses in form of declaratory judgment action cannot deprive party of this right. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 162.	A party's right to take a nonsuit is unqualified and absolute as long as the other party has not made a claim for affirmative relief. The use of a creative pleading that merely restates defenses in the form of a declaratory judgment action cannot deprive a party of this right.	Can the use of a creative pleading that merely restates defenses in the form of a declaratory judgment action deprive the plaintiff of the right to nonsuit?
4661	McDonough v. Stackley, 245 F.Supp.3d 1, 5 (D.D.C., 2017)	6	A military board of correction may meet its obligation to provide a reasoned explanation for its decision by referring to a clearly relevant source, such as an advisory opinion.	A military board of correction may meet its obligation to provide a reasoned explanation by referring to a clearly relevant source, such as an advisory opinion.	Is a military board of correction obliged to provide a reasoned explanation for its decision by referring to a clearly relevant source?
4665	Matter of Aloha Airlines, Inc., 65 Haw. 1, 12-13 (Hawaii, 1982)	2	States have wide latitude in imposing general revenue taxes and there is no requirement under the due process clause that the amount of general revenue taxes collected from a particular activity must be reasonably related to the value of services provided to the activity; moreover, such latitude is not divested by the commerce clause merely because the taxed activity has some connection to interstate commerce, particularly when the tax is levied on an activity conducted within the state. U.S.C.A.Const.Art. 1, S 8, cl. 3; Amends. 5, 14.	The Court customarily affords states wide latitude in imposing general revenue taxes, and there is no requirement under the Due Process Clause that the amount of general revenue taxes collected from a particular activity must be reasonably related to the value of the services provided to the activity. Moreover, this latitude is not divested by the Commerce Clause merely because the taxed activity has some connection to interstate commerce, particularly when the tax is levied on an activity conducted within the state. 3.	Are states vested with great latitude in imposing general revenue taxes?
4666	Baker v. Barber, 673 F.2d 147, 148-49 (C.A.Ky., 1982)	2	Military medical malpractice immunity statute immunizes military physicians and makes tort claims against government the exclusive remedy available in a malpractice action. 10 U.S.C.A. S 1089(a).	The malpractice immunity statute, 10 U.S.C. s 1089(a), however, immunizes military physicians and *149 makes tort claims against the government the exclusive remedy available in a malpractice action.	Does medical malpractice immunity statute immunize military physicians and makes tort claims against government the exclusive remedy available?
4669	Firmes v. Chase Manhattan Auto. Fin. Corp., 50 A.D.3d 18, 37-38, 852 N.Y.S.2d 148, 163 (2008)	26	Trial court may permit post-trial collateral source discovery if the defendant can demonstrate prejudice not of its own making, such as where benefits became payable after the filing of a note of issue.	However, a court may, in the exercise of its discretion, permit posttrial collateral source discovery if the defendant can demonstrate prejudice not of its own making, such as where benefits became payable after the filing of a note of issue (see Hoffman v. S.J. Hawk, Inc., 177 Misc.2d at 308-309, 676 N.Y.S.2d 448).	Can a trial court permit post-trial collateral source discovery if the defendant can demonstrate prejudice not of its own making?

4672	U.S. v. Jefferson, 634 F.Supp.2d 595, 602 (E.D.Va.,2009)	4	Where a public official charged with bribery is a congressman, the universe of "official acts" described by bribery statute is not limited to so-called "legislative acts" such as voting on or introducing a piece of legislation; rather, all of the acts normally thought to constitute a congressman's legitimate use of his office are "official acts." 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(a)(3).	Thus, where, as here, the charged public official is a congressman, the universe of "official acts" described by 201(a)(3) is not limited to so-called "legislative acts" such as voting on or introducing a piece of legislation; rather, 201(a)(3) has been read "sufficiently broadly to encompass all of the acts normally thought to constitute a congressman's legitimate use of his office."	Is an official act under the bribery statute limited solely to legislative acts?
4673	United States v. Terry, 707 F.3d 607, 615 (C.A.6 (Ohio), 2013)	15	Without anything more, a jury could not reasonably infer that a campaign contribution to a public official is a bribe solely because the official accepts the contribution and later takes an action that benefits a donor, but when the official acts as the donor's marionette, jury can reject legitimate explanations for a contribution and infer that it flowed from a bribery agreement. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(b)(2).	Without anything more, a jury could not reasonably infer that a campaign contribution is a bribe solely because a public official accepts a contribution and later takes an action that benefits a donor. See, e.g., McCormick, 500 U.S. at 272, 111 S.Ct. 1807. But when a public official acts as a donor's marionette-by deciding a case to a donor's benefit immediately after the donor asks him to and without reading anything about the case-a jury can reject legitimate explanations for a contribution and infer that it flowed from a bribery agreement.	Is a campaign contribution a bribe if the official later takes an action that benefits the donor?
4675	Stelly v. Papania, 927 S.W.2d 620, 622 (Tex., 1996)	4	Trial court has broad discretion to permit or deny the withdrawal of deemed admissions; appellate court should set aside trial court's ruling only if, after reviewing entire record, it is clear that trial court abused its discretion. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 169, subd. 2.	A trial court has broad discretion to permit or deny the withdrawal of deemed admissions. Halton, 792 S.W.2d at 464. An appellate court should set aside the trial court's ruling only if, after reviewing the entire record, it is clear that the trial court abused its discretion.	Does a trial court have broad discretion to permit or deny the withdrawal of deemed admissions?
4676	McCormick v. Allmond, 18 Neb. App. 56, 60, 773 N.W.2d 409, 413 (2009)	5	A party making a motion for discovery sanctions, under court rule permitting an award of costs when a party fails to admit, has the burden to prove the truth of the matter that was previously denied and that reasonable expenses were incurred in doing so; the burden then shifts to the nonmoving party to prove that one of the four exceptions enumerated in the rule applies. Neb.Ct.R. S 6-337(c).	The party making the motion for sanctions has the burden to prove the truth of the matter that was previously denied and that reasonable expenses were incurred in doing so. The burden then shifts to the nonmoving party to prove that one of the four exceptions stated in § 6-337(c) applies	Does a party making a motion for discovery sanctions have the burden to prove the truth of the matter that was previously denied and that reasonable expenses were incurred in doing so?

4678	Morris v. Slappy, 461 U.S. 1, 11–12 (U.S.,1983)	2	Broad discretion must be granted trial courts on matters of continuances and only unreasoning and arbitrary insistence upon expeditiousness in face of justifiable request for delay violates right to assistance of counsel. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 6.	Consequently, broad discretion must be granted trial courts on matters of continuances; only an unreasoning and arbitrary "insistence upon expeditiousness in the face of a justifiable *12 request for delay" violates the right to the assistance of counsel.	"Are continuances granted upon valid grounds, sufficient to challenge the judicial discretion of trial court?"
4680	State ex rel. Roddey v. Byrnes, 219 S.C. 485, 513-514 (1951)	19	Except in so far as it is limited by state and federal Constitutions, taxing power of state is general and absolute and extends to all persons, property, and business within its jurisdiction or reach.	Except in so far as it is limited by the state and federal Constitutions, the taxing power of the state is general *514 and absolute and extends to all persons, property, and business within its jurisdiction or reach.'	"Is the taxing power of state absolute to extend to all persons, property, and business within its jurisdiction?"
4681	Franklin Cnty. ex rel. Parks v. Franklin Cnty. Com'n, 269 S.W.3d 26, 31 (Mo. 2008)	11	The Supreme Court is not free to add limitations on the legislature's authority regarding taxation and revenue that are not enumerated in the Missouri Constitution or the United States Constitution.	This Court is not free to add limitations on the legislature's authority regarding taxation and revenue that are not enumerated in the Missouri Constitution or the United States Constitution.	Is the Supreme Court free to add limitations on the legislature's authority regarding taxation and revenue that are not enumerated in the state constitution or the Federal Constitution?
4682	Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp. v. Amgen, Inc., 882 F.2d 806, 813 (C.A.3 (Del.),1989)	4	Preservation of status quo does not operate as separate test for determining whether district court acted within its jurisdictional authority in issuing injunction; rather, preservation of status quo represents goal of preliminary injunctive relief in any litigation, including arbitrable dispute.	As our previous discussion indicates, we disagree that the "preservation of the status quo " operates as a separate test for determining whether the district court acted within its jurisdictional authority. Rather, the "preservation of the status quo " represents the goal of preliminary injunctive relief in any litigation, including in an arbitrable dispute.	Does ensuring the preservation of the status quo operate as a separate test for determining whether the court acted within its jurisdictional authority?
4683	United States v. Evans, 344 F.3d 1131, 1135 (C.A.11 (Fla.), 2003)	5	To be "public official," within meaning of gratuity statute, individual must possess some degree of official responsibility for carrying out federal program or policy; person need not be employee of federal government, and definition of "public official" is broad enough to cover persons working for private organizations. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(a)(1).	"To be a public official under section 201(a), an individual must possess some degree of official responsibility for carrying out a federal program or policy." Id. at 1181. The person need not be an employee of the federal government: the definition of "public official" is broad enough to cover persons working for private organizations.	Who is a public official under federal bribery statute?
4685	United States v. Ciavarella, 716 F.3d 705, 729 (C.A.3 (Pa.), 2013)	30	Bribery-and-kickback theory of honest services fraud requires a quid pro quo, that is, a specific intent to give or receive something of value in exchange for an official act. 18 U.S.C.A. S 1346.	The bribery-and-kickback theory of honest services fraud requires "a quid pro quo, that is, a specific intent to give or receive something of value in exchange for an official act.	What is the quid pro quo requirement under the bribery-and-kickback theory of honest services fraud?

4686	United States v. Jennings, 160 F.3d 1006, 1018 (C.A.4 (Md.), 1998)	18	Quid pro quo requirement for bribery of a public official is satisfied so long as the evidence shows a course of conduct of favors and gifts flowing to a public official in exchange for a pattern of official actions favorable to the donor; thus, all that must be shown is that payments were made with the intent of securing a specific type of official action or favor in return. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(b)(1)(A).	The quid pro quo requirement is satisfied so long as the evidence shows a "course of conduct of favors and gifts flowing to a public official in exchange for a pattern of official actions favorable to the donor." Id. (internal quotation omitted). Thus, all that must be shown is that payments were made with the intent of securing a specific type of official action or favor in return.	Does the government need to show that the defendant intended for his or her payments to be tied to specific official acts or omissions in order to prove bribery of a public official?
4688	Total E & P USA Inc. v. Kerr-McGee Oil and Gas Corp., 719 F.3d 424, 429-430, fn6, (C.A.5 (La.), 2013)	1	Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act (OCSLA) authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to grant and manage leases for the recovery of oil, gas, and other minerals from submerged lands located on the Outer Continental Shelf, and thus vests the federal government with a proprietary interest in the Outer Continental Shelf and establishes a regulatory scheme governing leasing and operations there. Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act, S 2 et seq., 43 U.S.C.A. S 1331 et seq.	"[OCSLA] authorizes the Secretary of the [Interior] to grant and manage leases for recovery of oil, gas, and other minerals from submerged lands located on the Outer Continental Shelf." Mesa Operating Ltd. P'ship v. U.S. Dep't of Interior, 931 F.2d 318, 319 (5th Cir.1991). "OCSLA thus vests the federal government with a proprietary interest in the [outer continental shelf] and establishes a regulatory scheme governing leasing and operations there."	Does OCSLA (Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act) vest the federal government with a proprietary interest in the out continental shelf?
4694	Davis v. Kania, 836 A.2d 480, 482, 48 Conn.Supp. 141, 142 (Conn.Super.,2003)	2	A motion to dismiss shall be used to assert lack of jurisdiction over the subject matter, essentially asserting that the plaintiff cannot as a matter of law and fact state a cause of action that should be heard by the court. Practice Book 1998, S 10-31(a)(1).	"A motion to dismiss shall be used to assert lack of jurisdiction over the subject matter, essentially asserting that the plaintiff cannot as a matter of law and fact state a cause of action that should be heard by the court."	Shall the motion to dismiss be used to assert lack of jurisdiction over the subject matter?
4695	New York Party Shuttle, LLC v. Bilello, 414 S.W.3d 206, 217 (Tex. App. 2013)	33	The absence of a material witness provides sufficient cause for a continuance, but only if the party requesting the continuance has exercised proper diligence to procure the testimony of the witness. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 252.	The absence of a material witness provides sufficient cause for a continuance, but only if the party requesting the continuance has exercised proper diligence to procure the testimony of the witness.	Does the absence of a material witness provide sufficient cause for a continuance only if the party has exercised proper due diligence to procure the testimony of the witness?
4696	Wilder Chiropractic, Inc. v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co., 2014 IL App (2d) 130781, ¶ 80, 13 N.E.3d 194, 213–14	28	The determination of whether the defendant has established a prima facie case of lack of diligence in serving defendant must be made on a case-by-case basis. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 103(b).	"[T]he determination of whether the defendant has established a prima facie case of lack of diligence must be made on a case-by-case basis."	Must the determination of whether a defendant has established a prima facie lack of diligence case in serving defendant be made on a case-by-case basis?
4698	Cox v. Burke, 706 So.2d 43, 46 (Fla.App. 5 Dist.,1998)	4	Trial court has inherent authority, within exercise of sound judicial discretion, to dismiss action when plaintiff has perpetrated fraud on court, or where party refuses to comply with court orders.	The trial court has the inherent authority, within the exercise of sound judicial discretion, to dismiss an action when a plaintiff has perpetrated a fraud on the court, or where a party refuses to comply with court orders.	Does a trial court have the inherent authority to dismiss an action when it finds that a plaintiff has perpetrated a fraud on the court?

4699	Pembaur v. Leis, 1 Ohio St.3d 89, 90–91 (Ohio,1982)	1	Power to dismiss for lack of prosecution is within sound discretion of trial court, and appellate review is confined solely to whether trial court abused that discretion. Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 41(B), (B) (1, 3), 41 note.	The power to dismiss for lack of prosecution is within the sound discretion of the trial court, and appellate review is confined solely to whether the trial court abused that discretion.	"Does the decision to dismiss a case for failure to prosecute or to comply with court order rest within the sound discretion of the trial court, and appellate review is limited solely to whether the trial court abused that discretion?"
4700	People v. Abreu, 283 A.D.2d 194, 194, 726 N.Y.S.2d 10, 11 (2001)	1	A trier of fact can readily infer from a defendant's conduct and the surrounding circumstances that defendant came within dangerous proximity of commission of rape.	A trier of fact can readily infer from defendant's conduct and the surrounding circumstances that defendant came within "dangerous proximity" of the commission of rape (see, People v. Pereau, 64 N.Y.2d 1055, 489 N.Y.S.2d 872, 479 N.E.2d 217; People v. Brace, 41 N.Y.2d 296, 392 N.Y.S.2d 412, 360 N.E.2d 1094).	Can a trier of fact infer from defendant's conduct and the surrounding circumstances that defendant came within dangerous proximity of the commission of rape?
4701	Madera Production Co. v. Atlantic Richfield Co., 107 S.W.3d 652, 660 (Tex. App. 2003)	9	Suit over the ownership of proceeds from mineral interests must be filed in the county in which the real property is located, even though the cause of action is for declaratory judgment over monies. V.T.C.A., Civil Practice & Remedies Code S 15.011.	A suit over the ownership of proceeds from mineral interests must be filed in the county in which the real property is located even though the cause of action is for a declaratory judgment over monies.	Is an action seeking royalty and overriding royalty in minerals considered a suit on real property interests that must be filed where the property is located?
4702	Maziar v. State, Dept. of Corrections, 151 Wash.App. 850, 853 (Wash.App. Div. 2, 2009)	1	The state's workers' compensation scheme is the product of a compromise between employers and workers; in it, the legislature abolished all common law civil actions for personal injuries that occur during a worker's employment and, in exchange, employers accept limited liability for claims that might not have been compensable under the common law. West's RCWA 51.04.010.	[L]ike other workers' compensation schemes, is the product of a compromise between employers and workers. Cowlitz Stud Co. v. Clevenger, 157 Wash.2d 569, 572, 141 P.3d 1 (2006). In it, the legislature abolished all common law civil actions for personal injuries that occur during a worker's employment and, in exchange, employers accept limited liability for claims that might not have been compensable under the common law.	"Is the workers compensation scheme a product or result of compromise, and what was exchanged in the compromise?"
4703	United States v. Potter, 402 F. Supp. 1161, 1164-1165 (D.Mass., 1975)	3	Rule that administrative agency must follow its own regulations is especially important in selective service cases where area of discretion of local boards is broad and scope of review correspondingly narrow.	It is axiomatic that an administrative agency must follow its own regulations. See, e. g., Morton v. Ruiz, 415 U.S. 199, 235, 94 S.Ct. 1055, 39 L.Ed.2d 270 (1974), and cases cited; United States v. Leahey, 434 F.2d 7 (1st Cir. 1970). This general rule is especially important in Selective Service cases where the area of discretion of local boards is so broad and the scope of review correspondingly narrow.	Should an administrative agency follow its own regulations in selective service cases?

4707	Rucker v. Taylor, 828 N.W.2d 595, 601 (Iowa, 2013)	9	Good cause must be considered in deciding to dismiss a petition for untimely service, and this standard considers all the surrounding circumstances, including circumstances that would make it inequitable for a defendant to successfully move to dismiss. I.C.A. Rule 1.302(5).	But, in both instances, good cause must be considered in deciding to dismiss a petition for untimely service, and Wilson informs us that this standard considers all the surrounding circumstances, including circumstances that would make it inequitable for a defendant to successfully move to dismiss.	Should good cause be considered in deciding to dismiss a petition for untimely service?
4708	Rucker v. Taylor, 828 N.W.2d 595, 603 (Iowa, 2013)	22	Dismissal without prejudice under for failure to serve process is intended to leave the plaintiff in the same position as if the action never had been filed. I.C.A. Rule 1.302(5).	As observed under the analogous federal rule, [a] dismissal without prejudice under Rule 4(m) for failure to serve process is intended to leave the plaintiff in the same position as if the action never had been filed.	Is dismissal without prejudice under for failure to serve process intended to leave the plaintiff in the same position as if the action never had been filed?
4710	E.I. Dupont De Nemours & Co. v. Sidran, 140 So. 3d 620, 624 (Fla. Dist. App. 2014)	4	To support a dismissal based upon a fraud on the court, the court must find the false testimony was directly related to the central issue in the case.	To support a dismissal the court must find the "false testimony was directly related to the central issue in the case."	"To support a dismissal based upon a fraud on the court, should the court find the false testimony was directly related to the central issue in the case?"
4713	State ex rel. Nixon v. Griffin, 291 S.W.3d 817, 820 (Mo.App. W.D., 2009)	3	When an event occurs that makes a court's decision unnecessary or makes it impossible for the court to grant effectual relief, the case is "moot" and generally should be dismissed.	When an event occurs that makes a court's decision unnecessary or makes it impossible for the court to grant effectual relief, the case is moot and generally should be dismissed.	Is a case moot and to be dismissed when an event occurs that makes a court's decision unnecessary or makes it impossible for the court to grant effectual relief?
4714	Wetovick v. Cnty. of Nance, 279 Neb. 773, 783–84, 782 N.W.2d 298, 309 (2010)	12	Unless an exception applies, a court or tribunal must dismiss a moot case when changed circumstances have precluded it from providing any meaningful relief because the litigants no longer have a legally cognizable interest in the dispute's resolution.	Unless an exception applies, a court or tribunal must dismiss a moot case when changed circumstances have precluded it from providing any meaningful relief because the litigants [sic] no longer have a legally cognizable interest in the dispute's resolution.	Should a court or tribunal dismiss a moot case?
4715	J.P. v. District Court In and For 2nd Judicial Dist. of Denver, 873 P.2d 745, 751 (Colo.,1994)	5	In imposing sanctions pursuant to discovery violations, trial judge should exercise informed discretion in imposing sanction which is commensurate with the seriousness of the disobedient party's conduct. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 16.	In imposing sanctions pursuant to discovery violations, "[t]he trial judge should exercise informed discretion in imposing a sanction which is commensurate with the seriousness of the disobedient party's conduct."	Should a trial judge exercise informed discretion in imposing sanction which is commensurate with the seriousness of a disobedient party's conduct?
4717	In re Peoples, 250 S.E.2d 890, 912, 296 N.C. 109, 148 (N.C., 1978)	13	Unlike question of jurisdiction, issue of mootness is not determined merely by examining facts in existence at commencement of action, for if issues before court or administrative body become moot at any time during course of proceedings, usual response should be to dismiss the action.	Unlike the question of jurisdiction, the issue of mootness is not determined solely by examining facts in existence at the commencement of the action. If the issues before a court or administrative body become moot at any time during the course of the proceedings, the usual response should be to dismiss the action.	Should an action be dismissed if the issues before the court become moot?

4720	Goodyear Mortg. Corp. v. Montclair Development Corp., 2 N.C. App. 138, 140 (1968)	2	When title to real estate may be affected by an action it is local and is removable to county where land is situated by proper motion made in apt time. G.S. S 1-76.	When title to real estate may be affected by an action, it is held to be local and removable to the county where the land is situated by proper motion made in apt time.	"When a title to real estate may be affected by an action, is it local and removable to the county where the land is situated?"
4721	Sedco, Inc. v. Petroleos Mexicanos Mexican Nat. Oil Co. (Pemex), 767 F.2d 1140, 1147 (C.A.5 (Tex.), 1985)	6	Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.) requires district courts to compel arbitration of pendent arbitrable claims when one of the parties files a motion to compel, even where the result would be the possible inefficient maintenance of separate proceedings in different forums.	the Arbitration Act requires district courts to compel arbitration of pendent arbitrable claims when one of the parties files a motion to compel, even where the result would be the possible inefficient maintenance of separate proceedings in different forums.	Can a district court exercise its discretion in directing parties to proceed to arbitration?
4722	Nowlin v. United States, 81 F. Supp. 3d 514, 526 (N.D. Miss. 2015), aff'd, 667 F. App'x 512 (5th Cir. 2016)	18	For the court to entertain a charge for theft or bribery concerning programs receiving federal funds, the particular program involved in the theft or bribery need not be the recipient of federal funds. 18 U.S.C.A. S 666.	Indeed, the jurisdictional net is broad enough that, for the court to entertain a charge under S 666, "[t]he particular program involved in the theft or bribery need not be the recipient of federal funds."	"For the court to entertain a charge for theft or bribery concerning programs receiving federal funds, does the particular program involved needs to be the recipient of federal funds?"
4723	Noblesville Redevelopment Com'n v. Noblesville Associates Ltd. Partnership, 674 N.E.2d 558, 563 (Ind.,1996)	13	Whereas theory pleading required complaint to delineate specific legal theory to which plaintiff would adhere throughout trial, "notice pleading" in effect under current rules merely requires pleading the operative facts so as to place defendant on notice as to evidence to be presented at trial. Trial Procedure Rule 8(A).	Whereas theory pleading required the complaint to delineate a specific legal theory to which the plaintiff would adhere throughout the trial, notice pleading "merely requires pleading the operative facts so as to place the defendant on notice as to the evidence to be presented at trial." Id.	Does notice pleading merely require pleading the operative facts?
4724	Schneider v. Seibutis, 3 Ill.App.3d 323, 325-326 (1972)	4	Because of the potential inconvenience to the parties, the witnesses and the court, especially grave reasons for granting a delay must be given once a case has reached the trial stage, and this is particularly true where previous continuances have been granted, both parties have declared themselves ready for trial, and movant's opponent has concluded the presentation of his evidence. Supreme Court Rules, rule 231(a, f), S.H.A. ch. 110A, S 231(a, f).	Because of the potential inconvenience to the parties, the witnesses and the court, especially grave reasons for granting a delay must be given once a case has reached the trial stage. This is particularly true where previous continuances have been granted, both parties have declared themselves ready for trial, and the movant's opponent has concluded the presentation of his evidence.	Can a court give reasons for granting a delay when a case has reached the trial stage due to potential inconvenience to the parties?

4725	The Florida Bar v. Eubanks, 752 So. 2d 540, 543 (Fla., 1999)	1	Court may impose sanctions for party's failure to attend status conference, including striking pleadings and entering a default against the offending party; however, the sanction imposed must be commensurate with the offense, and this most severe sanction should be used sparingly and reserved to those instances where the conduct is flagrant, willful, or persistent. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.200(c).	Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.200(c) permits the court to impose sanctions for failing to attend a status conference. It is well established that sanctions under this rule can include striking pleadings and entering a default against the offending party; however, the sanction imposed must be commensurate with the offense, and this most severe sanction "should be used 'sparingly and reserved to those instances where the conduct is flagrant, willful or persistent.' " Drakeford v.	"Does a trial court have power, implicit under rule authorizing pretrial conferences and orders establishing pretrial agreements of parties, to sanction for failing to obey the court's pretrial orders?"
4726	In re S.M., 775 S.E.2d 782, 785, 333 Ga.App. 326, 330 (Ga.App.,2015)	5	Dismissal of a complaint for failure to comply with a court order is the most severe sanction available and one that is generally warranted where the plaintiff has engaged in contumacious conduct or has wilfully disregarded a court order.	The dismissal of a complaint for failure to comply with a court order is the most severe sanction available and one that is generally warranted where the plaintiff has engaged in contumacious conduct or has wilfully disregarded a court order.	Is dismissal of a complaint for failure to comply with a court order the most severe sanction available?
4727	Lentworth v. Trahan, 981 S.W.2d 720, 722–23 (Tex. App. 1998)	10	Dismissal is properly made with prejudice in the following situations: (1) as sanction for abuse of discovery, (2) on failure of plaintiff to amend deficient pleadings when given that opportunity, (3) for violation of pretrial order, and (4) on agreement of the parties. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 215.	Dismissal is properly made with prejudice in the following situations: (1) as a sanction for abuse of discovery, see TEX. R. CIV. P. 215; (2) on the failure of a plaintiff to amend deficient pleadings when given that *723 opportunity, see Hubler v.	In which situations is a dismissal properly made with prejudice?
4728	Hale v. Cottrell, Inc., 456 S.W.3d 481, 491 (Mo. App. 2014)	11	Fraud on the court, as could support imposition of sanction of dismissal, may be established by circumstantial evidence; an actual representation may be inferred from the circumstances surrounding the transaction, and a claim may arise from the intentional creation of a false impression.	"Fraud may be established by circumstantial evidence; an actual 'representation' may be inferred from the circumstances surrounding the transaction; [and] a claim may arise from the intentional creation of a false impression[.]"	"Can fraud on the court, as could support imposition of sanction of dismissal, be established by circumstantial evidence?"
4729	Surrency v. Winn & Lovett Grocery Co., 160 Fla. 294, 297 (1948)	3	A plaintiff, invoking court's jurisdiction and seeking to avail himself thereof, must abide by all lawful statutes, rules and orders applicable to him, and court has inherent power to impose sanction of dismissal for its coercive effect.	When a plaintiff invokes the jurisdiction of a court and seeks to avail himself of it he does so with the understanding that he must abide by all lawful statutes, rules and orders applicable to him, and the court has inherent power to impose the sanction of dismissal, for its coercive effect.	"Should a plaintiff abide by all lawful statutes, rules and orders applicable to him?"
4730	Suarez v. Benihana Nat. of Florida Corp., 88 So. 3d 349, 352–53 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2012)	3	When reviewing a case for fraud on the court, the trial court should consider the proper mix of factors and carefully balance a policy favoring adjudication on the merits with competing policies to maintain the integrity of the judicial system.	When reviewing a case for fraud, the court should consider the proper mix of factors and carefully balance a policy favoring adjudication on the merits with competing policies to maintain the integrity of the judicial system."	"When reviewing a case for fraud, should the court consider the proper mix of factors?"

4731	Coulter v. Stewart, 726 So.2d 726, 728 (Ala.Civ.App.,1999)	2	Failure of a plaintiff to attempt service on a defendant within a reasonable time may amount to a failure to prosecute the action, thus warranting a dismissal of the case. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	The failure of a plaintiff to attempt service on a defendant within a reasonable time may amount to a failure to prosecute the action, thus warranting a dismissal of the case.	Should the failure of a plaintiff to attempt service on a defendant within a reasonable time amount to a failure to prosecute the action?
4732	Henyan v. Peek, 199 S.W.3d 51, 54, 359 Ark. 486, 492 (2004)	2	Service of process must be accomplished within 120 days after the filing of the complaint, unless the plaintiff has timely filed a motion to extend; if service is not obtained within that time and no timely motion to extend is made, dismissal of the action is mandatory. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 4(i).	Thus, service of process under this rule must be accomplished within 120 days after the filing of the complaint, unless the plaintiff has timely filed a motion to extend. Id. If service is not obtained within that time and no timely motion to extend is made, dismissal of the action is mandatory.	Should service of process be accomplished within 120 days after the filing of the complaint unless the plaintiff has filed a motion to extend?
4733	Cross v. Pumpco, Inc., 910 So.2d 324, 327 (Fla.App. 4 Dist.,2005)	1	While a trial judge has the inherent authority to dismiss actions based on fraud and collusion, this power of dismissal should be used cautiously and sparingly, and only upon the most blatant showing of fraud, pretense, collusion, or other similar wrongdoing.	While a trial judge has the inherent authority to dismiss actions based on fraud and collusion, this power of dismissal should be used "cautiously and sparingly," and "only upon the most blatant showing of fraud, pretense, collusion, or other similar wrongdoing.	Does a trial judge have an inherent authority to dismiss actions based on fraud?
4736	Sewell Masonry Co. v. DCC Const., Inc., 862 So. 2d 893, 896 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2003)	4	One-year period of inactivity specified in rule governing dismissal for failure to prosecute is to be measured by calculating time between date of last record activity and date of filing of motion to dismiss. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(e).	The one-year period specified in Rule 1.420(e) is to be measured by calculating the time between the date of the last record activity and the date of filing of the motion to dismiss.	Is the one-year period of inactivity specified in rule governing dismissal for failure to prosecute to be measured by calculating time?
4737	Johnston v. Lehman, 676 A.2d 1287, 1289 (Pa.Cmwlt., 1996)	2	Where there are intervening changes in factual circumstances of case which eliminate actual controversy and make it impossible to grant requested relief, legal question is rendered moot and case should be dismissed.	In addition, where there are intervening changes in the factual circumstances of a case which eliminate an actual controversy and make it impossible to grant the requested relief, the legal question is rendered moot and the case should be dismissed.	Is a legal question rendered moot where there are intervening changes in factual circumstances of case?
4738	Turner v. Marine Inland Transp. Co., 08-594 (La. App. 5 Cir. 1/13/09), 7 So. 3d 756, 757, writ denied, 2009-0335 (La. 4/3/09), 6 So. 3d 777	2	A party takes a "step" in the prosecution or defense of the action, for purposes of abandonment, when he takes formal action on the record of the case before the court or initiates formal discovery intended to hasten the matter to judgment. LSA-C.C. art. 591.	A party takes a "step" in the prosecution or defense of the action when he takes formal action on the record of the case before the court or initiates formal discovery intended to hasten the matter to judgment.	Does a party take a step in the prosecution or defense of a suit when he takes formal action intended to hasten the matter to judgment?
4739	Manekofsky v. Baker, 92 R.I. 377, 381 (R.I. 1961)	3	Trial court possesses inherent power to enforce its own orders, and in appropriate circumstances action at law may be dismissed pursuant to that power.	This court has recognized that a trial court possesses an inherent power to enforce its own orders and that in appropriate circumstances an action at law may be dismissed pursuant to that power.	"Does a trial court possess an inherent power to enforce its own orders, and in appropriate circumstances action at law can be dismissed pursuant to that power?"

4741	McCann v. Hatchett, 19 S.W.3d 218, 222 (Tenn.,2000)(fn 2)	3	Foreseeability is typically a tort law concept, and concepts of proximate cause or foreseeability as utilized in the law of torts do not necessarily govern or define coverage under the workers' compensation statutes.	"Foreseeability" is typically a tort law concept; as we have previously stated, "[c]oncepts of 'proximate cause' or 'foreseeability' as utilized in the law of torts do not necessarily govern or define coverage under the workers' compensation statutes.	"Do the concepts of proximate cause or foreseeability, as utilized in torts, govern or define coverage under workers compensation statutes?"
4742	Clouston v. Board of Cnty. Com'rs of Johnson Cnty., 715 P.2d 29, 30–31, 11 Kan.App.2d 112, 113–14 (Kan.App.,1986)	1	The Workmen's Compensation Act, K.S.A. 44-501 et seq., establishes complete and exclusive remedy provision covering every phase of right to compensation and makes no provision for maintenance of common-law actions.	The Kansas Workmen's Compensation Act, K.S.A. 44- 501 et seq., establishes 31 a complete and exclusive remedy provision covering every phase of the right to compensation and makes no provision for the maintenance of common-law actions.	Is the Workmens Compensation Act complete and exclusive covering every phase of the right to compensation?
4743	Stanley Shenker & Assocs., Inc. v. World Wrestling Fed'n Ent., Inc., 48 Conn. Supp. 357, 371, 844 A.2d 964, 973 (Super. Ct. 2003)	5	Where a litigant's conduct abuses the judicial process, whether through flagrant discovery violations or through other serious litigation misconduct, dismissal is an appropriate sanction.	It is a long and well established principle, both in Connecticut courts and in state and federal courts throughout the country, that where a litigant's conduct abuses the judicial process, whether through flagrant discovery violations or through other serious litigation misconduct, dismissal is an appropriate sanction.	"Where a litigant's conduct abuses the judicial process through flagrant discovery violations or through other serious litigation misconduct, is dismissal an appropriate sanction?"
4744	In re Rubin, 769 F.2d 611, 619 (C.A.9,1985)	13	Discovery sanctions are intended as a tool to compel production of evidence and to deter misconduct; trial court should not go beyond necessities of situation to foreclose merits of controversies as punishment for general misbehavior. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 37, 28 U.S.C.A.	But the Rule 37 sanctions are intended as a tool to compel production of evidence and to deter misconduct; a court should not go beyond the necessities of the situation to foreclose the merits of controversies as punishment for general misbehavior.	Can a trial judge go beyond the necessities of a situation to foreclose trial on merits as punishment for general misbehavior?
4745	Catledge v. Dowling, 2017 IL App (1st) 162033, ¶ 11, 82 N.E.3d 781, 784	1	A motion to dismiss under statute on dismissals based upon certain defects or defenses admits the legal sufficiency of all well-pleaded facts, but allows for the dismissal of claims barred by an affirmative matter defeating those claims or avoiding their legal effect. 735 Ill. Comp. Stat. Ann. 5/2-619.	Standard of Review [1] [2] [3] [4] [5] 11 A motion to dismiss under section 2-619 of the Code admits the legal sufficiency of all well-pleaded facts, but allows for the dismissal of claims barred by an affirmative matter defeating those claims or avoiding their legal effect.	Will a motion to dismiss based on other affirmative matter avoiding the legal effect of or defeating the claim admit the legal sufficiency of the complaint?

4746	Rainbow Ridge Resort, LLC v. Branch Banking & Tr. Co., 525 S.W.3d 252, 259–60 (Tenn. App. 2016)	9	For a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim to be used as a vehicle to assert an affirmative defense, the applicability of the defense must clearly and unequivocally appear on the face of the complaint; in other words, the plaintiff's own allegations in the complaint must show that an affirmative defense exists and that this defense legally defeats the claim for relief. Tenn. R. Civ. P. 12.02(6).	For a Tenn. R. Civ. P. 12.02(6) motion to be used as a vehicle to assert an affirmative defense, the applicability of the defense must "clearly and unequivocally appear[] on the face of the complaint." Givens v. Mullikin ex rel. Estate of McElwaney , 75 S.W.3d 383, 404 (Tenn. 2002) (quoting Anthony v. Tidwell , 560 S.W.2d 908, 909 (Tenn. 1977)). In other words, the plaintiff's own allegations in the complaint must show that an affirmative defense exists and that this defense legally defeats the claim for relief.	Will the applicability of the defense that clearly and unequivocally appears on the face of the complaint be used as a vehicle to assert an affirmative defense?
4749	Vane Mins. (US), LLC v. United States, 116 Fed. Cl. 48, 62 (2014)	24	The established test to determine validity of a mining claim is that it must be of such a character that a person of ordinary prudence would be justified in the further expenditure of his labor and means, with a reasonable prospect of success, in developing a valuable mine.	The established test to determine validity of a mining claim is that "it must be of such a character that 'a person of ordinary prudence would be justified in the further expenditure of his labor and means, with a reasonable prospect of success, in developing a valuable mine.'" Hafen , 30 Fed.Cl. at 473 (quoting Chrisman , 197 U.S. at 322, 25 S.Ct. 468).	What is the established test to determine the validity of a mining claim?
4752	Hall v. Metro. Dade Cty., 760 So. 2d 1051, 1052 (Fla. App. 2000)	2	The inquiry on a motion to dismiss for lack of prosecution involves a two-step inquiry: first, the defendant is required to show there has been no record activity for the year preceding the motion, and second, if there has been no record activity, the plaintiff has an opportunity to establish good cause why the action should not be dismissed. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(e).	The inquiry on a motion to dismiss for lack of prosecution involves a two-step inquiry. "First, the defendant is required to show there has been no record activity for the year preceding the motion. Second, if there has been no record activity, the plaintiff has an opportunity to establish good cause why the action should not be dismissed."	Does the resolution of a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute involve a two-step process?
4753	Kelly v. Kelly, 2005 WL 1084636	3	If the record does not contain evidence of a plaintiff's act of willfulness, bad faith, or fault, a single failure of a plaintiff to appear may not be sufficient support for a dismissal of the plaintiff's claim, with prejudice. LSA-C.C.P. art. 1672(A)(1).	If the record does not contain evidence of a plaintiff's act of "willfulness, bad faith, or fault," a single failure of a plaintiff to appear may not be sufficient support for a dismissal of the plaintiff's claim, with prejudice.	"Is a single failure of a plaintiff to appear sufficient support for a dismissal of the plaintiff's claim, with prejudice?"
4755	Schreiner v. Karson, 52 Ohio App.2d 219, 222-223 1977)	5	Lesser sanctions than dismissal with prejudice before trial should be applied unless a plaintiff's conduct is so negligent, irresponsible, contumacious or dilatory as to provide substantial grounds for dismissal for failure to prosecute or obey a court order. Civ.R. 41(B)(1).	Lesser sanctions than dismissal with prejudice before trial should be applied unless a plaintiff's conduct is so negligent, irresponsible, contumacious, or dilatory as to provide substantial grounds for such a dismissal.	Can a party's conduct provide grounds for a dismissal with prejudice for a failure to prosecute or to obey a court order?

4756	Cornelius v. Benefield, 168 So.3d 1028, 1037 (Miss.App., 2013)	10	While delay or contumacious conduct provides a sufficient basis for a trial judge to dismiss an action with prejudice for failure to prosecute, the trial judge should also consider whether a lesser sanction would serve the best interests of justice; such sanctions may include fines, costs, or damages against plaintiff or his counsel, attorney disciplinary measures, conditional dismissal, dismissal without prejudice, and explicit warnings. (Per Carlton, J., with four judges concurring and one judge concurring in result.) Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	While "delay or contumacious conduct provides a sufficient basis for a trial judge to dismiss pursuant to Rule 41(b)," the trial judge should also consider whether "a lesser sanction would ... serve the best interests of justice." Hanson, 106 So.3d at 347 (9) (citing Holder, 54 So.3d at 198 (20)). "Lesser sanctions may include 'fines, costs, or damages against plaintiff or his counsel, attorney disciplinary measures, conditional dismissal, dismissal without prejudice, and explicit warnings.	Is a showing of delay or contumacious conduct sufficient for a dismissal for failure to prosecute?
4757	Doe No. 3 v. Nur-Ul-Islam Academy, Inc., 217 So.3d 85, 87 (Fla.App. 4 Dist., 2017)	3	If the face of the complaint contains allegations which demonstrate the existence of an affirmative defense then such defense can be considered on motion to dismiss; otherwise an affirmative defense may not be considered on motion to dismiss a complaint. Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.110(d).	"If the face of the complaint contains allegations which demonstrate the existence of an affirmative defense then such defense can be considered on motion to dismiss. Otherwise an affirmative defense may not be considered on motion to dismiss a complaint."	"Can a defense be considered on motion to dismiss, if the face of the complaint contains allegations which demonstrate the existence of an affirmative defense?"
4759	Piggly Wiggly Operators' Warehouse, Inc. v. Piggly Wiggly Operators' Warehouse Independent Truck Drivers Union, Local No. 1, 611 F.2d 580, 583 (C.A.La., 1980)	7	Before arbitration can actually proceed, it is necessary for parties to supplement the agreement to arbitrate by defining the issue to be submitted to the arbitrator and by explicitly giving him authority to act.	Before arbitration can actually proceed, it is necessary for the parties to supplement the agreement to arbitrate by defining the issue to be submitted to the arbitrator and by explicitly giving him authority to act.	Is it necessary for the parties to supplement the arbitration agreement by defining the issue to be submitted to the arbitrator and by explicitly giving him authority to act before proceeding to arbitration?
4760	Lane, Ltd. v. Larus & Brother Company, 243 F.2d 364, 367 (C.A.2 1957)	2	A party cannot raise unjustifiable objections to a valid demand for arbitration, all the while protesting its willingness in principle to arbitrate and then, when other side has been forced to abandon its demand, seek to defeat a judicial determination by asking for arbitration after suit has been commenced. 9 U.S.C.A. § 3.	A party cannot raise unjustifiable objections to a valid demand for arbitration, all the while protesting its willingness in principle to arbitrate and then, when the other side has been forced to abandon its demand, seek to defeat a judicial determination by asking for arbitration after suit has been commenced.	Can a party raise unjustifiable objections to a valid demand for arbitration?

4763	Shelley v. U.S., 142 F.Supp. 436, 439 (W.D.Ky., 1956)	1	The term "total disability" within war risk policy does not mean helplessness or complete disability, but includes that which is more than partial permanent disability and means that which is continuing, as opposed to that which is temporary, and while separate periods do not constitute that which is permanent, mere fact that one has done some work after lapse of policy is not sufficient to defeat claim of total permanent disability.	492 that total disability does not mean helplessness or complete disability but includes that which is more than partial permanent disability and means that which is continuing as opposed to that which is temporary and that while separate and distinct periods of temporary disability do not constitute that which is permanent, the mere fact that one has done some work after the lapse of his policy is not of itself sufficient to defeat his claim of total, permanent disability.	What does the phrase permanent disability mean?
4765	Cox v. Burke, 706 So.2d 43, 47 (Fla.App. 5 Dist.,1998)	8	Where party lies about matters pertinent to party's own claim, or portion of it, and perpetrates a fraud that permeates entire proceeding, dismissal of whole case for fraud on court is proper.	And "where a party lies about matters pertinent to his own claim, or a portion of it, and perpetrates a fraud that permeates the entire proceeding, dismissal of the whole case is proper.	"Where a party lies about matters pertinent to a party's own claim, or portion of it, is dismissal of the whole case for fraud on court proper?"
4766	Cartee v. Community Spirit Bank, 214 So.3d 362, 366 (Ala.Civ.App., 2015)	5	The interest in disposing of the litigation on the merits is overcome and a dismissal may be granted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default, or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff; "willful default" or conduct is a conscious or intentional failure to act, and is used in contradistinction to accidental or involuntary noncompliance. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	In Alabama, and many federal courts, the interest in disposing of the litigation on the merits is overcome and a dismissal may be granted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff. Willful default or conduct is a conscious or intentional failure to act. "Willful" is used in contradistinction to accidental or involuntary noncompliance.	"Can a dismissal be granted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default, or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff?"
4770	Mattera v. Capric, 54 A.D.3d 827, 827, 864 N.Y.S.2d 98, 99 (2008)	2	To avoid dismissal of a complaint as abandoned, a plaintiff must offer a reasonable excuse for his or her delay and must demonstrate that the complaint is meritorious. McKinney's CPLR 3215(c).	"To avoid dismissal of the complaint as abandoned pursuant to CPLR 3215(c), a plaintiff must offer a reasonable excuse for his or her delay and must demonstrate that the complaint is meritorious"	"Should a plaintiff offer a reasonable excuse pursuant to CPLR 3215(c) for his or her delay and demonstrate that the complaint is meritorious, to avoid dismissal of a complaint as abandoned?"
4771	Freeman v. Stephens Production Co., 171 S.W.3d 651, 654 (Tex. App. 2005)	5	"Estoppel by deed" stands for the general proposition that all parties to a deed are bound by the recitals therein, which operate as an estoppel, working on the interest in the land if it be a deed of conveyance, and binding both parties and privies; privies in blood, privies in estate, and privies in law.	"Estoppel by deed stands for the general proposition that 'all parties to a deed are bound by the recitals therein, which operate as an estoppel, working on the interest in the land if it be a deed of conveyance, and binding both parties and privies; privies in blood, privies in estate, and privies in law.'	Does estoppel by deed stand for the general proposition that all parties to a deed are bound by the recitals therein?

4772	AmRhein v. Eden, 779 N.E.2d 1197, 1208–09 (Ind.App.,2002)	25	Generally speaking, when a street or highway is vacated or abandoned, the title to the land reverts to the abutting property owners; this rule is based upon the presumption that the abutting landowners own to the center of the street or highway subject only to an easement of the public to use the street or highway.	"Generally speaking when a street or highway is vacated or abandoned the title to the land reverts to the abutting property owners." Gorby v. McEndarfer, 135 Ind.App. 74, 191 N.E.2d 786, 791 (1963). This rule is based upon the presumption that the abutting landowners own to the center of the street or highway subject only to an easement of the public to use the street or highway.	Do abutting owners own the center of the street or highway?
4773	WakeMed v. Surgical Care Affiliates, LLC, 243 N.C. App. 820, 823, 778 S.E.2d 308, 311 (2015)	2	A complaint is properly dismissed for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted when (1) the complaint, on its face, reveals that no law supports the plaintiff's claim; (2) the complaint, on its face, reveals an absence of facts sufficient to make a good claim; or (3) some fact disclosed in the complaint necessarily defeats the plaintiff's claim. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(6), West's N.C.G.S.A. S 1A-1.	"A complaint is properly dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) when (1) the complaint, on its face, reveals that no law supports the plaintiff's claim; (2) the complaint, on its face, reveals an absence of facts sufficient to make a good claim; or (3) some fact disclosed in the complaint necessarily defeats the plaintiff's claim."	When is a complaint properly dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) to state a claim upon which relief can be granted?
4774	Piro v. McKeever, 782 S.E.2d 367, 370 (2016)	1	While the concept of notice pleading is liberal in nature, a complaint must nonetheless state enough to give the substantive elements of a legally recognized claim or it may be dismissed for failure to state a claim. (Per Bryant, with one Judge concurring in the result.) Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 8(a)(1), 12(b)(6), West's N.C.G.S.A. S 1A-1.	"While the concept of notice pleading is liberal in nature, a complaint must nonetheless state enough to give the substantive elements of a legally recognized claim or it may be dismissed under Rule 12(b) (6)." "	"While concept of notice pleading is liberal in nature, should a complaint nonetheless state enough to give substantive elements of a legally-recognized claim?"
4775	Cantley v. Lincoln Cty. Comm'n, 655 S.E.2d 490, 492 (W. Va. 2007)	5	The trial court's consideration of a motion to dismiss for failure to state claim begins with the proposition that the complaint is construed in the light most favorable to plaintiff, and its allegations are to be taken as true. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(6).	The trial court's consideration begins, therefore, with the proposition that "[f]or purposes of the motion to dismiss, the complaint is construed in the light most favorable to plaintiff, and its allegations are to be taken as true."	"Is the policy of the rule that, for purposes of the motion to dismiss, the complaint is construed in the light most favorable to plaintiff, and its allegations to be taken as true?"
4776	Bridges v. Wilcoxon, 786 So.2d 264, 268, 34,660 La.App. 2 Cir. 5/9/01, 5 (La.App. 2 Cir.,2001)	5	Article providing for abandonment of action is not intended to dismiss those cases in which plaintiff clearly demonstrates before court, within prescribed time period, that he does not intend to abandon action. LSA-C.C.P. art. 561.	The provision was not intended to dismiss those cases in which the plaintiff clearly demonstrates before the court, within the prescribed time period, that he does not intend to abandon the action.	Does the article governing abandonment of an action is intended to dismiss cases where plaintiff has clearly demonstrated before the court the during prescribed period that he does not intend to abandon action?

4777	Nolan v. Hillard, 309 Ill.App.3d 129, 138 (Ill.App. 1 Dist.,1999)	5	On motion for involuntary dismissal, all well-pleaded facts in the complaint, together with all reasonable inferences drawn therefrom, are deemed admitted, and all pleadings and supporting documents are construed in a light most favorable to the non-moving party. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	*138 All well-pleaded facts in the complaint together with all reasonable inferences drawn therefrom are deemed admitted (Lawson, 278 Ill.App.3d at 634, 215 Ill.Dec. 237, 662 N.E.2d at 1382), and all pleadings and supporting documents are construed in a light most favorable to the non-moving party. In re Chicago Flood Litigation, 176 Ill.2d 179, 184, 223 Ill.Dec.	Are all well-pleaded facts along with all reasonable inferences that can be drawn from those facts deemed admitted on a motion to dismiss?
4779	Nelson v. State Acc. Ins. Fund, 43 Or.App. 155, 159 (Or.App., 1979)	1	Benefits awarded under Workers' Compensation Law are purely statutory, and claimant must strictly follow prescribed procedures to recover. ORS 656.001 et seq.; ORS 656.319(1)(d), Laws 1969, c. 206.	The benefits awarded under the workers' compensation law are purely statutory, and a claimant must strictly follow the prescribed procedures in order to recover under the law.	Are benefits awarded under the workers' compensation law purely statutory and should a claimant strictly follow the prescribed procedures to recover under the law?
4783	Mourning v. Allison Transmission, Inc., 72 N.E.3d 482, 487 (Ind.App., 2017)	4	The basic purpose of a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim is to test the legal sufficiency of the complaint to state an actionable claim, not to test the truth of the facts alleged in the complaint. Ind. R. Trial P. 12(B)(6).	The basic purpose of a Trial Rule 12(B)(6) motion to dismiss is to test the legal sufficiency of the complaint to state an actionable claim, not to test the truth of the facts alleged in the complaint.	Is the basic purpose of a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim to test the legal sufficiency of the complaint to state an actionable claim?
4784	Hughes v. Fink, Fink & Assocs., 718 A.2d 316, 318 (Pa. 1998)	4	Judgment of non pros is properly entered when: (1) a party to the proceeding has shown a want of due diligence in failing to proceed with reasonable promptitude, (2) there is no compelling reason for the delay, and (3) the delay has caused some prejudice to the adverse party.	our Supreme Court announced that judgment of non pros is properly entered when: (1) a party to the proceeding has shown a want of due diligence in failing to proceed with reasonable promptitude; (2) there is no compelling reason for the delay; and (3) the delay has caused some prejudice to the adverse party.	Is judgment of non pros properly entered when there is no compelling reason for the delay?
4786	Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. ex rel. Mika v. Kogut, 354 Ill.App.3d 1, 7-8 (Ill.App. 1 Dist.,2004)	9	Dismissing an action against a plaintiff or entering judgment against a defendant is the most drastic of sanctions and should be imposed reluctantly and only as a last resort when all other enforcement powers at the court's disposal have failed to advance the litigation; these sanctions should be imposed only where the actions of the party show a deliberate, contumacious, and unwarranted disregard of the court's authority.	Dismissing an action against a plaintiff or entering judgment against a defendant "is the most drastic of sanctions and should *8 be imposed reluctantly and only as a last resort when all other enforcement powers at the court's disposal have failed to advance the litigation." Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center for Will-Grundy Counties, Inc. v. Current Development Corp., 307 Ill.App.3d 48, 51, 240 Ill.Dec. 215, 716 N.E.2d 809 (1999).These sanctions should be imposed only " where the actions of the party show a deliberate, contumacious and unwarranted disregard of the court's authority.	"Is dismissing an action against a plaintiff or entering judgment against a defendant, the most drastic of sanctions?"

4787	Gray Holdco, Inc. v. Cassidy, 654 F.3d 444, 456 (3rd Cir. 2011)	13	Where the party moving for a preliminary injunction does so before filing for arbitration, it can avoid waiving its right to arbitrate by notifying the opposing party of its intent to invoke arbitration in the future.	Even where the party moving for a preliminary injunction does so before filing for arbitration, it can avoid waiving its right to arbitrate by notifying the opposing party of its intent to invoke arbitration in the future.	Can a party moving for a preliminary injunction avoid waiving its right to arbitrate by notifying the opposing party of its intent to invoke arbitration in the future?
4789	145 Kisco Ave. Corp. v. Dufner Enterprises, Inc., 198 A.D.2d 482, 482–83, 604 N.Y.S.2d 963, 964 (1993)	1	When motion to dismiss for failure to state cause of action attacks pleading on its face, allegations of pleading are deemed to be true and pleader is entitled to every favorable inference that might be drawn.	It is well settled that when a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action attacks the pleading on its face, the allegations of the pleading are deemed to be true, and the pleader is entitled to every favorable inference that might be drawn therefrom (see, Rovello v. Orofino Realty Co. , 40 N.Y.2d 633, 389 N.Y.S.2d 314, 357 N.E.2d 970; Toma v. Charbonneau , 186 A.D.2d 846, 588 N.Y.S.2d 219; Licensing Dev. Group v. Freedman , 184 A.D.2d 682, 585 N.Y.S.2d 456; Mark Hampton, Inc. v. Bergreen , 173 A.D.2d 220, 570 N.Y.S.2d 799; Siegel , N.Y.Prac. § 265 [2d ed.], at 394–395).	"When a motion to dismiss attacks the pleading on its face, are the allegations of the pleading deemed to be true?"
4790	Kantrowitz & Goldhamer, P.C. v. Geller, 265 A.D.2d 529, 529, 697 N.Y.S.2d 137, 137 (1999)	1	Bare legal conclusions and factual claims which are flatly contradicted by the record are not presumed to be true on a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action.	Bare legal conclusions and factual claims which are flatly contradicted by the record are not presumed to be true on a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action (see, Morone v. Morone , 50 N.Y.2d 481, 429 N.Y.S.2d 592, 413 N.E.2d 1154; Meyer v. Guinta , 262 A.D.2d 463, 692 N.Y.S.2d 159).	Are bare legal conclusions and factual claims which are flatly contradicted by the evidence not presumed to be true on a motion to dismiss?
4793	Mathews v. Diaz, 426 U.S. 67, 78–79 (1976)	7	The fact that all persons, aliens and citizens alike, are protected by the due process clause does not lead to the further conclusion that all aliens are entitled to enjoy all of the advantages of citizenship or, indeed, to the conclusion that all aliens must be placed in a single homogeneous legal classification. U.S.C.A.Const. Amends. 5, 14.	The fact that all persons, aliens and citizens alike, are protected by the Due Process Clause does not lead to the further conclusion that all aliens are entitled to enjoy all the advantages of citizenship or, indeed, to the conclusion that all aliens must be placed in a single homogeneous legal classification.	Are aliens protected by the Due Process Clause?

4794	Ward v. Stanford, 443 S.W.3d 334, 343 (Tex. App. 2014)	10	A promissory note is a negotiable instrument if it is a written unconditional promise to pay a sum certain in money, upon demand or at a definite time, and is payable to order or to bearer; a note is non-negotiable, however, if another instrument must be examined to determine the rights and obligations under the note.	A promissory note is a negotiable instrument if it is a written unconditional promise to pay a sum certain in money, upon demand or at a definite time, and is payable to order or to bearer. Id. at 407 (citing TEX. BUS. & COM.CODE ANN. § 3.104(a)). A note is non-negotiable, however, if another instrument must be examined to determine the rights and obligations under the note.	"Can a promise to pay, in a promissory note, not unconditional, and does not involve a sum certain, be a note of negotiable instrument?"
4795	Barrett v. JP Morgan Chase Bank, N.A., 445 F.3d 874, 875–76 (C.A.6 (Ky.),2006)	2	When a loan made in a consumer credit transaction is secured by the borrower's principal dwelling, the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) permits the borrower to rescind the loan agreement up to three business days after the transaction. Truth in Lending Act, § 125(a), 15 U.S.C.A. § 1635(a).	"[W]hen a loan made in a consumer credit transaction is secured by the borrower's principal dwelling," the Act permits the borrower to "rescind the loan agreement," Beach v. Ocwen Fed. Bank, 523 U.S. 410, 411, 118 S.Ct. 1408, 140 L.Ed.2d 566 (1998), up to three business days after the transaction, see 15 U.S.C. § 1635(a).	Does a consumer-borrower have the right to rescind a loan secured by the borrower's principal dwelling within three business days of the transaction?
4798	Arkansas State Claims Com'n v. Duit Const. Co., Inc., 445 S.W.3d 496, 503, 2014 Ark. 432, 8 (Ark., 2014)	12	For purposes of a motion to dismiss, courts treat only the facts alleged in a complaint as true, but not a party's theories, speculation, or statutory interpretation.	For purposes of a motion to dismiss, we treat only the facts alleged in a complaint as true, but not a party's theories, speculation, or statutory interpretation.	"For purposes of a motion to dismiss, do courts treat only the facts alleged in a complaint as true, but not a party's theories, speculation, or statutory interpretation?"
4799	In re Est. of Boyar, 2012 IL App (1st) 111013, ¶ 27, 964 N.E.2d 1248, 1257, rev'd, 2013 IL 113655, ¶ 27, 986 N.E.2d 1170	2	In ruling on a motion to dismiss based upon certain defects or defenses, all pleadings and supporting documents must be construed in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	In ruling on a section 2–619 motion, all pleadings and supporting documents must be construed in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party.	"In ruling on a motion to dismiss based upon certain defects or defenses, should all pleadings and supporting documents be construed in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party?"
4801	Yoon Ja Kim v. James Jh Song, 2016 IL App (1st) 150614-B, ¶ 41, 61 N.E.3d 184, 194	6	In ruling on a motion to dismiss the complaint for legal insufficiency, the court must accept as true all well-pleaded facts in the complaint and all reasonable inferences which can be drawn therefrom; the question is whether the allegations of the complaint, when viewed in the light most favorable to the plaintiff, are sufficient to state a cause of action upon which relief can be granted. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-615.	In ruling on a section 2–615 motion, the court must accept as true all well-pleaded facts in the complaint and all reasonable inferences which can be drawn therefrom. Id. The question is whether the allegations of the complaint, when viewed in the light most favorable to the plaintiff, are sufficient to state a cause of action upon which relief can be granted.	"Considering the sufficiency of complaint, does a court accept as true all well-pleaded allegations and all reasonable inferences that can be drawn therefrom?"

4802	Grimes v. Saikley, 388 Ill.App.3d 802, 810 (2009)	1	In ruling on a motion to dismiss, the trial court accepts all well-pleaded facts in the complaint as true and draws all reasonable inferences from those facts in favor of the nonmoving party.	In ruling on a motion to dismiss under either section 2-615 or section 2-619 of the Code, the trial court accepts all well-pleaded facts in the complaint as true and draws all reasonable inferences from those facts in favor of the nonmoving party.	"In ruling on a motion to dismiss for failure to state claim, should a court accept as true all well-pleaded facts in a complaint and all reasonable inferences which can be drawn therefrom?"
4803	Shulver v. Slocum, 566 So. 2d 1089, 1091 (La.App. 2 Cir., 1990)	2	Exceptions to five-year rule of abandonment of action are recognized when failure to prosecute was caused by circumstances beyond plaintiff's control, and when defendant waived his right to plead abandonment by taking action in case inconsistent with intent to treat case as abandoned. LSA-C.C.P. art. 561.	Two exceptions to the five year rule of abandonment are recognized by the courts: when the failure to prosecute was caused by circumstances beyond plaintiff's control; and, when the defendant waived his right to plead abandonment by taking action in the case inconsistent with an intent to treat the case as abandoned. Article 561 is to be liberally interpreted and any action or step taken to move a case toward judgment should be considered.	When are exceptions to the five-year rule of abandonment of action recognized?
4804	King v. Bankerd, 303 Md. 98, 107 (Md., 1985)	8	Agent holding broad power of attorney lacks power to make gift of principal's property unless that power is expressly conferred, arises as a necessary implication from conferred powers, or is clearly intended by parties as evidenced by surrounding facts and circumstances.	For the reasons below, we conclude that an agent holding a broad power of attorney lacks the power to make a gift of the principal's property, unless that power (1) is expressly conferred, (2) arises as a necessary implication from the conferred powers, or (3) is clearly intended by the parties, as evidenced by the surrounding facts and circumstances.	Should authority be expressly conferred in a Power of Attorney?
4806	Mowatt v. U.S. Parole Com'n, 815 F.Supp.2d 199, 204 (D.D.C.,2011)	6	To survive a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, a plaintiff need only plead enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face, as opposed to merely conceivable. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 12(b)(6), 28 U.S.C.A.	To survive a motion to dismiss under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), a plaintiff need only plead "enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face," as opposed to merely conceivable.	"To survive a 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss, should a complaint plead enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face?"
4809	Harris v. Barbera, 96 A.D.3d 904, 906, 947 N.Y.S.2d 548, 550 (2012)	6	A court may freely consider affidavits submitted by the plaintiff to remedy any defects in the complaint, and upon considering such an affidavit, the facts alleged therein must also be assumed to be true.	Moreover, "[a] court may freely consider affidavits submitted by the plaintiff to remedy any defects in the complaint, and upon considering such an affidavit, the facts alleged therein must also be assumed to be true" (Kopelowitz & Co., Inc. v. Mann, 83 A.D.3d at 797, 921 N.Y.S.2d 108 [citations and internal quotation marks omitted]).	Can a court freely consider affidavits submitted by the plaintiff to remedy any defects in the complaint?

4810	Lomelo v. Schultz, 422 So. 2d 1050, 1051 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1982)	2	Motion to dismiss raises question of sufficiency of facts alleged to state cause of action and complaint need not anticipate affirmative defenses.	A motion to dismiss raises the question of the sufficiency of facts alleged to state a cause of action. Kest v. Nathanson, 216 So.2d 233 (Fla. 4th DCA 1968). The complaint need not anticipate affirmative defenses.	"In order to defeat a motion to dismiss, should a complaint only state facts sufficient to indicate that a cause of action exists and need not anticipate affirmative defenses? "
4813	Walker v. Columbus Ins. Agency, 156 Ga. App. 199, 200, 274 S.E.2d 159, 160-61 (1980)	2	Under "three minute" rule, when case is sounded for trial, parties shall immediately announce ready or move for continuance, and if three minutes shall elapse before announcement or motion to continue, case will be dismissed. Code, SS 24-3341, 81A-141(b)	Under the "three minute" rule (Code Ann. s 24-3341), when a case is sounded for trial the parties shall immediately announce ready or move for continuance and if three minutes shall elapse "before the announcement or motion to continue, the plaintiff's case will be dismissed."	Will case be dismissed if three minutes shall elapse before announcement or motion to continue?
4817	Nowak v. Capitol Motors, Inc., 158 Conn. 65, 69 (Conn. 1969)	2	To establish apparent authority, acts of principal must be such that (1) principal held agent out as possessing sufficient authority to embrace act in question, or knowingly permitted him to act as having such authority, and (2) in consequence thereof person dealing with agent, acting in good faith, reasonably believed, under all circumstances, that agent had necessary authority.	And the acts of the principal must be such that (1) the principal held the agent out as possessing sufficient authority to embrace the act in question, or knowingly permitted him to act as having such authority, and (2) in consequence thereof the person dealing with the agent, acting in good faith, reasonably believed, under all the circumstances, that the agent had the necessary authority.	Can apparent authority be determined by the agents own act?
4818	Meadowbrook-Richman, Inc. v. Associated Financial Corp., 253 F.Supp.2d 666, 677 (S.D.N.Y., 2003)	11	Where an agent defends a suit arising out of a business properly conducted on the principal's behalf, the agent is entitled to indemnification of its legal fees, under New York law.	"Where an agent defends a suit arising out of a business properly conducted on the principal's behalf, it is black-letter law that the agent is entitled to indemnification of its legal fees."	Is an agent entitled to indemnification of the legal fee to defend a suit arising out of a business properly conducted on the principal's behalf?
4819	Com. v. Eastern Motor Exp., Inc., 157 A.2d 79, 89, 398 Pa. 279, 297 (Pa. 1959)	5	While it is true that what a tax or an act is called by the Legislature is entitled to weight and is prima facie what it is, the nature of the tax, in the last analysis, depends not upon its label but on its incidence, i. e., its practical operation and effect.	However, while it is true that what a tax or an Act is called by the Legislature, is entitled to weight and is prima facie what it is, it is well settled that in the last analysis the nature of the tax depends not upon its label, but upon its incidence, i. e., its practical operation and effect.	"Does the nature of the tax depend upon its incidence, i. e., its practical operation and effect?"
4821	Berkowski v. St. Louis Cnty. Bd. of Election Com'rs, 854 S.W.2d 819, 823 (Mo.App. E.D. 1993)	4	In assessing sufficiency of petition, all facts properly pleaded are assumed true, averments are given literal construction, and petition is accorded all reasonable inferences fairly deductible from facts stated, but mere conclusions of pleader not supported by factual allegations are disregarded.	In assessing the sufficiency of a petition, all facts properly pleaded are assumed true, the averments are given a liberal construction, and the petition is accorded all reasonable inferences fairly deductible from the facts stated. Commercial Bank of St. Louis Co. v. James, 658 S.W.2d 17, 21-22 (Mo. banc 1983). However, mere conclusions of the pleader not supported by factual allegations are disregarded.	"In assessing sufficiency of a petition, are all facts properly pleaded taken as true and averments given liberal construction?"

4822	Bilnoski v. Pizza Inn, Inc., 858 S.W.2d 55, 57 (Tex.App. Hous. [14 Dist.],1993)	1	Trial court may dismiss case for want of prosecution when party fails to appear at hearing or at trial, when case has not been disposed of within Supreme Court's guidelines, and when case has not been prosecuted with due diligence; authority to dismiss is derived both from rules of civil procedure and from court's inherent powers. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165.	A trial court may dismiss a case for want of prosecution (1) when a party fails to appear at a hearing or at trial, (2) when the case has not been disposed of within the supreme court's guidelines, and (3) when a case has not been prosecuted with due diligence. City of Houston v. Thomas, 838 S.W.2d 296, 297 (Tex.App.-Houston [1st Dist.] 1992, no writ). The trial court's authority to dismiss is derived both from TEX.R.CIV.P. 165 and its own inherent powers.	Can court dismiss case for want of prosecution when party fails to appear at a hearing or at trial?
4824	Parker v. DeKalb Chrysler Plymouth, 673 F.2d 1178, 1181 (C.A.Ga., 1982)	4	Strict technical compliance with the Truth in Lending Act, regardless of actual injury, promotes the standardization of credit terms for the benefit of all borrowers, not just the individual claimant. Truth in Lending Act, S 102 et seq., 15 U.S.C.A. S 1601 et seq.	Strict technical compliance, regardless of actual injury, promotes the standardization of credit terms for the benefit of all borrowers, not just the individual claimant.	"Does the strict technical compliance, regardless of actual injury, promote the standardization of credit terms for the benefit of only an individual claimant?"
4825	McDade v. Siazon, 208 N.J. 463, 480 (N.J., 2011)	18	"Equitable estoppel" is conduct, either express or implied, which reasonably misleads another to his prejudice so that a repudiation of such conduct would be unjust in the eyes of the law.	Equitable estoppel "is conduct, either express or implied, which reasonably misleads another to his prejudice so that a repudiation of such conduct would be unjust in the eyes of the law.	Is equitable estoppel conduct which reasonably misleads another to his prejudice so that a repudiation of such conduct would be unjust in the eyes of the law?
4826	Layton v. Cook, 248 Miss. 690, 696-97 (Miss. 1964)	3	Pedestrian has right to use and travel upon any portion of public highway at any time of day or night, in absence of statute to contrary, and his rights and rights of one operating a vehicle thereupon are mutual, reciprocal and equal. Code 1942, S 8176.	In the absence of a statute to the contrary, a pedestrian has the right to use and travel upon any portion of a public highway at any time of the day or night, 'and his rights and the rights of one operating a vehicle thereupon are mutual, reciprocal, and equal.	Is pedestrians right and rights of one operating a vehicle mutual?
4828	Esworthy v. Williams, 678 P.2d 1149, 1150, 100 Nev. 212, 213-14 (Nev.,1984)	2	When party has been accurately notified of time and place of hearing, party's failure to appear may amount to failure to prosecute and may be proper ground for dismissal. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41.	When a party has been accurately notified of the time and *214 place of a hearing, the party's failure to appear may amount to failure to prosecute and may be a proper ground for dismissal.	Does a party's failure to appear amount to failure to prosecute and is a proper ground for dismissal where party has been accurately notified of time and place of hearing?
4829	Farber v. Green Shoe Mfg. Co., 596 P.2d 398, 400, 42 Colo.App. 255, 256-57 (Colo.App., 1979)	3	A motion to dismiss for want of prosecution should not be granted if the plaintiff resumes diligent prosecution of his claim, even though, at some prior period of time, he has been guilty of gross negligence. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 41(b)(1).	A motion to dismiss for want of prosecution should not be granted if the plaintiff resumes diligent prosecution of his claim, even though, at some prior period of time, he has been guilty of gross negligence.	Should a motion to dismiss for want of prosecution be granted if plaintiff resumes diligent prosecution of his claim?

4831	Popkin v. Crispen, 213 So.2d 445, 448 (Fla.App. 1968)	5	Judicial restraint should be practiced in the courts' inherent power to dismiss actions for want of prosecution to the end that persons have the guarantee and privilege of having the merits of cause adjudicated. 30 F.S.A. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 1.420(e).	We feel that judicial restraint should be practiced in the courts' inherent power to dismiss actions for want of prosecution to the end that persons have the guarantee and privilege of having the merits of his cause adjudicated.	Should judicial restraint be practiced in the courts' inherent power to dismiss actions for want of prosecution?
4832	Hartmann Realtors v. Biffar, 13 N.E.3d 350, 356 (Ill. App. 2014)	4	When deciding a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, the court may not consider affidavits, the products of discovery, documentary evidence not incorporated into the pleadings as exhibits, testimonial evidence, or other evidentiary materials. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-615.	When deciding a section 2-615 motion to dismiss, the court may not consider affidavits, the products of discovery, documentary evidence not incorporated into the pleadings as exhibits, testimonial evidence, or other evidentiary materials.	"In ruling on a motion to dismiss, can the court not consider affidavits and documentary evidence not incorporated into the pleadings as exhibits?"
4833	Quinones v. Schaap, 91 A.D.3d 739, 740, 937 N.Y.S.2d 262, 264 (2012)	3	A court may consider any factual submissions made in opposition to a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action in order to remedy pleading defects. McKinney's CPLR 3211(c).	In addition, a court may consider any factual submissions made in opposition to a motion to dismiss in order to remedy pleading defects (see CPLR 3211[c]; Ryan v. Cover, 75 A.D.3d 502, 503, 904 N.Y.S.2d 750; Tarzia v. Brookhaven Natl. Lab., 247 A.D.2d 605, 669 N.Y.S.2d 230).	Can a court consider any factual submissions made in opposition to a motion to dismiss in order to remedy pleading defects?
4835	Griffin v. Phillips Petroleum Co., 139 S.W.2d 318, 321 (Tex. App. 1940)	1	Every agency carries with it all the powers which are necessary or proper as means to effectuate the purposes for which it was created, and in such respect there is no distinction, whether the authority given to an agent is general or special, express or implied.	Every agency carries with it, or includes in it as an incident, all the powers which are necessary, or proper, or usual, as means to effectuate the purposes for which it was created, and none other. In this respect there is no distinction, whether the authority given to an agent is general or special, expressed or implied.	Does an agency carry with it all the powers which are necessary to effectuate the purpose for which it was created?
4836	Griffin v. Phillips Petroleum Co., 139 S.W.2d 318, 321 (Tex. App. 1940)	1	Every agency carries with it all the powers which are necessary or proper as means to effectuate the purposes for which it was created, and in such respect there is no distinction, whether the authority given to an agent is general or special, express or implied.	Every agency carries with it, or includes in it as an incident, all the powers which are necessary, or proper, or usual, as means to effectuate the purposes for which it was created, and none other. In this respect there is no distinction, whether the authority given to an agent is general or special, expressed or implied.	Does the agency carry all powers necessary to effectuate the purpose for which it was created?
4837	Griffin v. Phillips Petroleum Co., 139 S.W.2d 318, 321 (Tex. App. 1940)	1	Every agency carries with it all the powers which are necessary or proper as means to effectuate the purposes for which it was created, and in such respect there is no distinction, whether the authority given to an agent is general or special, express or implied.	Every agency carries with it, or includes in it as an incident, all the powers which are necessary, or proper, or usual, as means to effectuate the purposes for which it was created, and none other. In this respect there is no distinction, whether the authority given to an agent is general or special, expressed or implied.	Is there any distinction to the powers of an agent if the authority given is express or implied?

4838	Jones v. Bank of Chapel Hill, 1 S.E.2d 135, 136 (N.C. 1939)	3	A principal is liable on agent's contracts, made within scope of agent's actual authority, or his apparent authority, unless third person has notice that agent is exceeding actual authority, and on agent's contracts ratified by the principal.	In Tiffany on Agency, Chap. VIII, p. 180, it is held: "The principal is liable upon a contract duly made by his agent with a third person—(1) When the agent acts within the scope of his actual authority; (2) When the contract, although unauthorized, has been ratified; (3) When the agent acts within the scope of his apparent authority, unless the third person has notice that the agent is exceeding his actual authority.	Is the principal liable upon a contract made by his agent with a third person when the third person has notice that the agent is exceeding his actual authority?
4839	Morpul Research Corp. v. Westover Hardware, Inc., 263 N.C. 718, 721 (N.C. 1965)	2	A general agent may usually bind principal as to all acts within scope of agency including not only authority actually conferred but such as is usually confided to agent employed to transact business, and as to third persons, "real and apparent authority" is one and same and may not be restricted by special or private instructions of principal, unless limitations are known to such persons or act or power in question is of such unusual character as to put man of reasonable business prudence upon inquiry as to existence of particular authority claimed.	And it is the recognized rule that such an agent may usually bind his principal as to all acts within the scope of his agency including not only the authority actually conferred, but such as is usually 'confided to an agent employed to transact the business which is given him to do,' and it is held that, as to third persons, this real and apparent authority is one and the same, and may not be restricted by special or private instructions of the principal, unless the limitations sought to be placed upon it are known to such persons, or the act or power in question is of such an unusual character as to put a man of reasonable business prudence upon inquiry as to the existence of the particular authority claimed.	Can the principal be held liable if he ratifies an unauthorized contract made by his agent with a third person?
4840	Bethel School Dist. No. 403 v. Fraser, 106 S.Ct. 3159, 3166, 478 U.S. 675, 686 (U.S.Wash., 1986)	7	Given school's need to be able to impose disciplinary sanctions for wide range of unanticipated conduct disruptive of educational process, school disciplinary rules need not be as detailed as criminal code which imposes criminal sanctions.	Given the school's need to be able to impose disciplinary sanctions for a wide range of unanticipated conduct disruptive of the educational process, the school disciplinary rules need not be as detailed as a criminal code which imposes criminal sanctions.	Do school disciplinary rules need to be as detailed as a criminal code when imposes criminal sanctions?
4841	State ex rel. State Highway Commission v. Johns, 507 S.W.2d 75, 78 (Mo.App. 1974)	2	Public highways belong, from side to side, and end to end, to the public and any permanent structure or purpresture which materially encroaches upon a public street and impedes travel is a nuisance per se and may be abated, notwithstanding space is left for the passage of the public.	"Public highways belong, from side to side and end to end, to the public,' and any permanent structure or purpresture which materially encroaches upon a public street and impedes travel is a nuisance per se, and may be abated, notwithstanding space is left for the passage of the public.	Do public highway belong from side to side and end to end to the public?

4843	Tierney v. Burlington N. R. Co., 240 Ill. App. 3d 526, 529 (Ill.App. 1 Dist., 1992)	2	Effect of voluntary dismissal without prejudice is to render proceedings a nullity and leave parties in same position as if case had never been filed.	398.) However, it is well settled that the effect of a voluntary dismissal without prejudice is to render the proceedings a nullity and leave the parties in the same position as if the case had never been filed.	Is the effect of a dismissal without prejudice to render the proceedings a nullity and leave the parties in the same position as if the case had never been filed?
4845	Nelson v. Baptist Memorial Hospital-North Mississippi, Inc., 972 So.2d 667, 674 (Miss.App.,2007)	10	Dismissal with prejudice, which prevents the plaintiff from bringing a new suit based on the same cause of action, is extreme and harsh, and only the most egregious cases warrant such dismissals.	On the other hand, dismissal with prejudice, which prevents the plaintiff from bringing a new suit based on the same cause of action, is extreme and harsh, and only the most egregious cases warrant such dismissals. Miss. Dep't of Human Servs.	"Is dismissal with prejudice, which prevents the plaintiff from bringing a new suit based on the same cause of action, extreme and harsh?"
4846	Porter v. Grayson Cnty., 224 S.W.3d 855, 860 (Tex. App. 2007)	16	If a plaintiff has been provided a reasonable opportunity to amend after a governmental entity files its plea to the jurisdiction, and the plaintiff's amended pleading still does not allege facts that would constitute a waiver of immunity, then the trial court should dismiss the plaintiff's action, and such a dismissal is with prejudice because a plaintiff should not be permitted to relitigate jurisdiction once that issue has been finally determined.	But if a plaintiff has been provided a reasonable opportunity to amend after a governmental entity files its plea to the jurisdiction, and the plaintiff's amended pleading still does not allege facts that would constitute a waiver of immunity, then the trial court should dismiss the plaintiff's action. Id. Such a dismissal is with prejudice because a plaintiff should not be permitted to relitigate jurisdiction once that issue has been finally determined.	"As a general rule, is a dismissal with prejudice improper when the plaintiff is capable of remedying the jurisdictional defect?"
4847	Kosmowski v. Atlantic City Medical Center, 175 N.J. 568, 575 (N.J.,2003)	6	Because dismissal with prejudice is the ultimate sanction when an expert is unavailable for the first time, it will normally be ordered only when no lesser sanction will suffice to erase the prejudice suffered by the non-delinquent party.	Because "dismissal with prejudice is the ultimate sanction [when an expert is unavailable for the first time], it will normally be ordered only when no lesser sanction will suffice to erase the prejudice suffered by the non-delinquent party."	Will dismissal with prejudice normally be ordered only when no lesser sanction will suffice to erase the prejudice suffered by the non-delinquent party?
4848	Mississippi Dept. of Human Services v. Guidry, 830 So.2d 628, 632 (Miss.,2002)	8	Dismissal of action with prejudice is extreme and harsh sanction that deprives litigant of opportunity to pursue his claim, and any dismissals with prejudice are reserved for most egregious cases.	This Court is mindful of the fact that "dismissal with prejudice is an extreme and harsh sanction that deprives a litigant of the opportunity to pursue his claim, and any dismissals with prejudice are reserved for the most egregious cases."	"Is dismissal of action with prejudice an extreme and harsh sanction that deprives litigant of opportunity to pursue his claim, and any dismissals with prejudice are reserved for most egregious cases?"
4849	Light v. Womack, 113 S.W.3d 872, 874 (Tex. App. 2003)	4	A dismissal for failure to comply with the rules governing the filing of in forma pauperis suits is not a ruling on the merits; if the deficiency in the inmate's suit may be remedied in a subsequent filing, then a dismissal with prejudice is improper. V.T.C.A., Civil Practice & Remedies Code S 14.004.	A dismissal for failure to comply with the rules governing the filing of in forma pauperis suits is not a ruling on the merits. Hughes v. Massey, 65 S.W.3d 743, 746 (Tex.App.-Beaumont 2001, no pet.). If the deficiency in the inmate's suit may be remedied in a subsequent filing, then a dismissal with prejudice is improper.	Is a dismissal for failure to comply with the rules governing the filing of in forma pauperis suits not a ruling on the merits?

4850	Kamm's Estate v. C.I.R., 349 F.2d 953, 956 (C.A.N.J. 1965)	5	Fact that an agent represents several sellers who have given various instructions concerning disposition of their several shares and proceeds does not derogate from individual agency relation between each seller and common agent.	Of course, the fact that an agent represents several sellers, who have given various instructions concerning the disposition of their several shares in the proceeds, does not derogate from the individual agency relation between each seller and the common agent.	Will the fact that an agent represents several sellers derogate from the individual agency relation between each seller and the common agent?
4851	Arizona v. United States, 567 U.S. 387, 394–95 (2012)	1	Government of United States has broad, undoubted power over subject of immigration and status of aliens, resting, in part, on its constitutional power to "establish an uniform Rule of Naturalization," and its inherent power as sovereign to control and conduct relations with foreign nations. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 1, § 8, cl. 4.	First, the federal government "has broad, undoubted power over the subject of immigration and the status of aliens," authority that rests on the constitutional power to "establish an uniform Rule of Naturalization," Art. I, § 8, cl. 4, and on the national government's "inherent power as sovereign to control and conduct relations with foreign nations."	Does the Federal Government have sovereign power to control and conduct relations with foreign nations?
4852	Takahashi v. Fish and Game Commission, 68 S.Ct. 1138, 1142, 334 U.S. 410, 419 (U.S. 1948)	5	State laws which impose discriminatory burdens upon entrance of residence of aliens lawfully within the United States conflict with constitutionally derived federal power to regulate immigration and are invalid.	State laws which impose discriminatory burdens upon the entrance or residence of aliens lawfully within the United States conflict with this constitutionally derived federal power to regulate immigration, and have accordingly been held invalid.	Can states enact laws imposing discriminatory burdens upon the residence of aliens?
4853	Takahashi v. Fish and Game Commission, 68 S.Ct. 1138, 1142, 334 U.S. 410, 419 (U.S. 1948)	5	State laws which impose discriminatory burdens upon entrance of residence of aliens lawfully within the United States conflict with constitutionally derived federal power to regulate immigration and are invalid.	State laws which impose discriminatory burdens upon the entrance or residence of aliens lawfully within the United States conflict with this constitutionally derived federal power to regulate immigration, and have accordingly been held invalid.	Are state laws which impose discriminatory burdens upon the entrance of aliens valid?
4854	Bonhiver v. State Bank of Clearing, 331 N.E.2d 390, 397, 29 Ill.App.3d 794, 803 (Ill.App. 1975)	3	A nonnegotiable time certificate of deposit is transferable by assignment; the bank's obligation is to pay the payee or assignee but the assignee stands in no better position than his assignor when demand for payment is made.	It has been the opinion of this court that a time certificate of deposit is transferable by assignment and the bank's obligation is to pay the assignee, who stands in no better position than the assignor when demand for payment is made	Is time certificate of deposit transferable by assignment and the bank obliged to pay the payee or assignee?
4856	Landon v. Jarvis, 255 Ill.App.3d 439, 446 (Ill.App. 1 Dist., 1993)	7	Motion to dismiss raising affirmative matter affords parties and court means of disposing of issues of law or of easily proved facts at the onset of case; if defects are not apparent on face of pleadings, affidavits may be employed to bring to light affirmative matters which would bar litigation. Ill.Rev.Stat.1991, ch. 110, P 2-619.	A section 2-619 motion to dismiss affords parties and the court a means of disposing of issues of law or of easily proved facts at the onset of a case. If defects are not apparent on the face of the pleadings, affidavits may be employed to bring to light affirmative matters which would bar litigation.	Can affidavits be employed to bring to light affirmative matters which would bar litigation if defects are not apparent on face of pleadings?

4857	Gardner v. Hollifield, 96 Idaho 609, 611 (1975)	4	If affirmative defense is not disclosed by complaint itself defense may not be raised by motion to dismiss except for matters outside the pleading are presented to and not excluded by court, in which case, the motion shall be treated as one for summary judgment. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 12(b)(6).	If an affirmative defense is not disclosed by the complaint itself, the defense may not be raised by motion to dismiss, except where 'matters outside the pleading are presented to and not excluded by the court,' in which case 'the motion shall be treated as one for summary judgment.'	Can an affirmative defense be raised by motion to dismiss if it is not disclosed by complaint?
4858	Croft v. Young, 188 So.2d 859, 860 (Fla.App. 1966)	2	Affirmative defenses may not be asserted as grounds for motion to dismiss complaint, even though availability of defense as bar to action may appear on face of complaint. 30 F.S.A. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 1.8(d).	Williams this court held that affirmative defenses may not be asserted as grounds for a motion to dismiss a complaint, even though the availability of the defense as a bar to the action may appear on the face of the complaint. 2 It is not contended that such affirmative defenses, even though not pleaded, were tried by the express or implied consent of the parties as permitted by the applicable rules of procedure.	Can affirmative defenses be asserted even though availability of defense as bar to action may appear on face of complaint?
4862	Doe v. Visionaire Corp., 13 S.W.3d 674, 676 (Mo.App. E.D.,2000)	6	Dismissal without prejudice may operate to preclude a party from bringing another action for the same cause and may be res judicata of what the judgment actually decided, as exception to general rule that dismissal without prejudice is not final and appealable.	A dismissal without prejudice may operate to preclude a party from bringing another action for the same cause and may be res judicata of what the judgment actually decided.	"Is a dismissal without prejudice not a final judgment and, therefore cannot be appealed?"
4863	Cornelius v. CJ Morrill, 302 S.W.3d 176, 179 (Mo.App. E.D.,2009)	2	A pleader may literally plead himself out of court, and when facts constituting a defense appear affirmatively on the face of the petition, the defense may be interposed by motion to dismiss without the necessity of a specific motion or answer.	However, "a pleader may literally plead himself out of court, and when facts constituting a defense appear affirmatively on the face of the petition, the defense may be interposed by motion to dismiss without the necessity of a specific motion or answer.	Will the defense be interposed by motion to dismiss without the necessity of a specific motion or answer?
4864	Missner v. Clifford, 393 Ill.App.3d 751, 759–60 (Ill.App. 1 Dist., 2009)	3	When reviewing a motion to dismiss, the circuit court must determine whether the motion and the documents supporting it disclose any disputed issues of fact and, ultimately, whether the affirmative defense negates the plaintiff's cause of action in its entirety. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619(a)(9).	However, in the end, it is a distinction without a difference. When reviewing a motion to dismiss under section 2-619, the circuit court must determine whether the motion and the documents supporting it disclose any disputed issues of fact and, ultimately, whether the affirmative *760 defense negates the plaintiff's cause of action in its entirety.	What should the court determine when reviewing a motion to dismiss?
4865	Tyler v. Gibbons, 368 Ill. App. 3d 126, 128 (Ill.App. 3 Dist., 2006)	2	An involuntary dismissal motion raises certain defects or defenses and questions whether defendant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	A section 2-619 motion to dismiss raises certain defects or defenses and questions whether defendant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. .	Will an involuntary dismissal motion raise certain defects or defenses and questions whether defendant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law?

4866	In re Mario S., 38 Misc. 3d 444, 455–56, 954 N.Y.S.2d 843, 852–53 (Fam. Ct. 2012)	12	Juvenile court's function in deciding motion for special findings which would permit juvenile to file application for adjustment of status as a special immigrant juvenile (SIJ) is limited in scope: court must determine whether, under state law, juvenile is under age 21, unmarried, dependent upon court through order of placement or other court order, whether reunification with one or both parents is not possible due to abuse, neglect, or abandonment, and whether it would be contrary to juvenile's best interest to be returned to his or her previous country of nationality, and court need not determine any other issues, such as juvenile's motivation in moving for required findings, whether allowing particular child to remain in the country might pose threat to public safety, or whether United States Customs and Immigration Services (USCIS), the federal agency charged with enforcing immigration laws, may or may not grant juvenile's application for adjustment of status as a SIJ. Immigration and Nationality Act, S 101(a)(27)(J), 8 U.S.C.A. S 1101(a)(27)(J); 8 C.F.R. S 204.11(c)	The function of the juvenile court in deciding an application for special findings which would permit a juvenile to file an application for adjustment of status as a special immigrant juvenile is limited in scope. The juvenile court is simply called upon to determine whether, under state law, the juvenile is under the age of 21, unmarried, dependent upon the court through an order of placement or other court order, whether reunification with one or both of the juvenile's parents is not possible due to abuse, neglect, or abandonment of the child, and whether it would be contrary to the juvenile's best interest to be returned to his or her previous country of nationality. The statute and regulation commit these specific and limited issues to state juvenile courts. The juvenile court need not determine any other issues, such as what the motivation of the juvenile in making application for the required findings might be (In the Interest of T.J., 59 So.3d 1187, 1191 [Fla. Ct. App.2011]; F.L.M. v. Department of Children and Families. 912	Should a juvenile court be concerned with whether the juvenile application constitutes a potential misuse of SIJS provisions?
4867	Michigan Hospital Service v. Sharpe, 339 Mich. 357, 370 (Mi. 1954)	1	If there is no hazard or peril, as contemplated by statute defining insurance, but a mere contract entitling certificate holders to medical services or supplies at reduced rates, contract is not one of "insurance". Comp.Laws 1948, S 550.501 et seq.	If there is no hazard or peril, as contemplated by a statute defining insurance, but a mere contract entitling certificate holders to medical services or supplies at free or reduced rates, the contract is not one of insurance.'	Does a contract entitling certificate holders to medical services or supplies at free or reduced rates amount to insurance?
4868	Bailey v. B. F. Coggins Granite & Marble Industries, 14 S.E.2d 568, 569, 192 Ga. 72, 74 (Ga. 1941)	2	Essential facts giving rise to cause of action must be pleaded directly and positively, and, although the facts not within complainant's personal knowledge may in certain instances be charged upon information and belief, it must nevertheless be charged as a fact.	To obviate such indefiniteness those essential facts giving rise to the cause of action must be pleaded directly and positively; and although in certain instances a fact not within the personal knowledge of the complainant may be charged upon information and belief, it must nevertheless be charged as a fact.	Should facts be pleaded directly and positively?
4870	Ackerman v. Sobol Family Partnership, LLP, 4 A.3d 288, 299, 298 Conn. 495, 509 (Conn., 2010)	12	The principal can properly give notification of the termination of the agent's apparent authority by giving publicity by some method reasonably adapted to give the information to such third person. Restatement (Second) of Agency S 136(3).	In addition, the principal can properly give notification of the termination of the agent's authority by ... (b) giving publicity by some ... method reasonably adapted to give the information to such third person.	Can a principal give notification of the termination of the agent's authority by any method reasonably adapted to give the information to such third person?

4871	Wallace Berrie & Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization, 40 Cal. 3d 60, 66, 707 P.2d 204, 208-09 (1985)	5	Sales and use taxes are mutually exclusive but complementary, and designed to exact equal tax based upon percentage of purchase price of property in question.	The two taxes, sales and use, are mutually exclusive but complementary, and are designed to exact an equal tax based on a percentage of the purchase price of the property in question.	"Are the two taxes, sales and use designed to exact an equal tax based on a percentage of the purchase price of the property in question?"
4872	Arborwood Idaho, L.L.C. v. City of Kennewick, 89 P.3d 217, 222, 151 Wash.2d 359, 367 (Wash.,2004)	7	An assessment is a valid excise tax if (1) the obligation to pay an excise tax is based upon the voluntary action of the person taxed in performing the act, enjoying the privilege, or engaging in the occupation which is the subject of the excise tax, and (2) the element of absolute and unavoidable demand is lacking.	Our cases establish that an assessment is a valid excise tax if (1) the obligation to pay an excise tax is based upon the voluntary action of the person taxed in performing the act, enjoying the privilege, or engaging in the occupation which is the subject of the excise tax, and (2) the element of absolute and unavoidable demand is lacking.	When is an assessment a valid excise tax?
4873	Spritzer v. United States, 968 F. Supp. 206, 209-210 (D.N.J., 1997)	6	Penalties imposed under False Claims Act (FCA) are civil and do not constitute "punishment," and thus, imposition of civil penalties subsequent to court order of restitution does not facially violate Fifth Amendment's double jeopardy clause, though in rare case civil penalty may be so disproportionate to damages caused as to constitute "punishment." U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Penalties imposed under the FCA are civil and do not constitute punishment; thus, the imposition of civil penalties subsequent to a court order of restitution does not facially violate the Fifth Amendment's double jeopardy clause. See *210 Halper, 490 U.S. at 442, 109 S.Ct. at 1898-99. In the "rare case," however, a civil penalty may be so disproportionate to the damages caused as to constitute punishment.	"Are penalties imposed under the False Claims Act civil and do not constitute ""punishment""?"
4876	Frangis v. Duquesne Light Co., 232 Pa.Super. 420, 423 (1975)	2	In passing on motion to remove judgment of compulsory nonsuit, plaintiff must be given benefit of all evidence favorable to him, together with all reasonable inferences of fact arising from evidence and all conflicts in evidence must be resolved in favor of plaintiff.	In passing on a motion to remove a judgment of compulsory non-suit, the plaintiff must be given the benefit of all evidence favorable to him, together with all reasonable inferences of fact arising from the evidence. Further, all conflicts in the evidence must be resolved in favor of the plaintiff.	"In passing on motion to remove judgment of compulsory nonsuit, should a plaintiff be given a benefit of all evidence favorable to him?"
4877	Moore v. Gannon, 178 So.2d 618, 620 (Fla.App., 1965)	1	The good cause necessary under statute to reinstate a suit dismissed for failure to prosecute must essentially be made to appear by petition for reinstatement. F.S.A. S 45.19.	The good cause necessary under the statute to reinstate a suit dismissed for failure to prosecute must essentially be made to appear by the petition for reinstatement.	Should the good cause necessary under statute to reinstate a suit dismissed for failure to prosecute essentially be made to appear by petition for reinstatement?

4878	Dobroslavic v. Bexar Appraisal Dist., 397 S.W.3d 725, 728–29 (Tex. App. 2012)	5	Plaintiffs received adequate notice of trial court's intent to dismiss for want of prosecution either under the rules of civil procedure for failure to comply with time standards established by the Texas Supreme Court or under the trial court's inherent authority, where the trial court clerk's notice did not make dismissal contingent on plaintiffs' failure to make an announcement, and the notice expressly stated that plaintiffs' case had been "on file for an extended period of time," that it had "not been prosecuted," that "the court (was) of the opinion that in accordance with the Supreme Court guidelines" the case should be "specially set for dismissal," and that the case would be dismissed "unless good and sufficient cause" was "shown for (its) retention on the docket." Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a(2).	In the present case, the notice does not make dismissal contingent on the appellants' failure to make an announcement. Rather, the notice expressly states that appellants' case had been "on file for an extended period of time" and had "not been prosecuted," and that "the court [was] of the opinion that in accordance with the Supreme Court guidelines" the case should be "specially set for dismissal." When considered as a whole, the dismissal notice in this case could fairly be read as informing the plaintiffs of the trial court's intent to dismiss for want of prosecution under either Rule 165a(2) for failure to comply with time standards established by the Texas Supreme Court or the trial court's inherent authority.	"Once prima facie case of lack of notice is established under a rule extending time to set aside dismissal for want of prosecution, does failure to hold a hearing and make a finding constitute abuse of discretion?"
4880	Ellmossallamy v. Huntsman, 830 S.W.2d 299, 302 (Tex.App. Hous. [14 Dist.],1992)	4	Motion to reinstate provides dismissed plaintiff the opportunity to explain failure to prosecute with due diligence and ask trial court to reconsider its decision to dismiss.	A motion for reinstatement essentially provides an opportunity for the dismissed plaintiff to explain his failure to prosecute with due diligence and to request the court to reconsider its decision to dismiss, in much the same manner as a motion for a new trial.	Does a motion to reinstate provide a dismissed plaintiff the opportunity to explain the failure to prosecute with due diligence?
4882	McKane Family Limited Partnership v. Sacajawea Family Limited Partnership, 211 So.3d 117, 121 (Fla.App. 4 Dist., 2017)	6	A party's failure to comply with a statute's pleading requirement that a pre-suit demand be made is not necessarily fatal, and the demand may be made post-suit and alleged in an amended complaint.	We find that, likewise, a party's failure to comply with a statute's pleading requirement that a pre-suit demand was made is not necessarily fatal and that the demand may be made post-suit and alleged in an amended complaint. Based on the foregoing, we reverse the trial court's dismissal with prejudice of the unjust enrichment claim and the derivative claims.	Is a party's failure to comply with a statute's pleading requirement that a pre-suit demand be made not necessarily fatal?
4883	Delia & Wilson, Inc. v. Wilson, 448 So. 2d 621, 622 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1984)	2	A dismissal with prejudice should not be ordered without giving party offering the defective pleading an opportunity to amend unless it is clear that pleading cannot be amended so as to state a cause of action.	A dismissal with prejudice should not be ordered without giving the party offering the defective pleading an opportunity to amend unless it is clear that the pleading cannot be amended so as to state a cause of action.	Should a dismissal with prejudice not be ordered without giving the party an opportunity to amend unless it is clear the pleading cannot be amended?
4884	City of Austin v. L.S. Ranch, Ltd., 970 S.W.2d 750, 753 (Tex.App. Austin,1998)	7	If the plaintiff's pleadings are insufficient to demonstrate the court's jurisdiction, but do not affirmatively show a lack thereof, the proper remedy is to allow the plaintiff an opportunity to amend before dismissing.	Thus, if the plaintiff's pleadings are insufficient to demonstrate the court's jurisdiction, but do not affirmatively show a lack thereof, the proper remedy is to allow the plaintiff an opportunity to amend before dismissing.	"When the plaintiff's pleadings show a lack of jurisdiction, is the proper remedy to allow the plaintiff an opportunity to amend before dismissing?"

4885	Henderson v. Blalock, 465 S.W.3d 318, 321 (Tex. App. 2015)	3	A trial court's power to dismiss a case for want of prosecution stems from two sources: (1) the Rules of Civil Procedure; and (2) the trial court's inherent authority to manage its own docket. Tex. R. Civ. P. 165.	A trial court's power to dismiss a case for want of prosecution stems from two sources: (1) Texas Rule of Civil Procedure 165a; and (2) the trial court's inherent authority to manage its own docket.	Does a court's power to dismiss a case for want of prosecution stem from the Rules of Civil Procedure?
4886	Jenkins v. Tucker, 18 So. 3d 265, 269 (Miss. Ct. App. 2009)	1	Trial courts have the inherent authority to dismiss cases for lack of prosecution as a means of controlling the court's docket and ensuring the orderly expedition of justice. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	Trial courts have the inherent authority to dismiss cases for lack of prosecution as a means of controlling the court's docket and ensuring the "orderly expedition of justice."	Is the authority inherent to the courts to dismiss an action for lack of prosecution necessary as a means to the orderly expedition of justice and the court's control of its own docket?
4887	Fox v. Wardy, 225 S.W.3d 198, 199 (Tex. App. 2005)	3	Decision to dismiss a case for want of prosecution rests within the sound discretion of the trial court, and can be disturbed on review only if it amounted to a clear abuse of discretion.	The decision to dismiss a case for want of prosecution rests within the sound discretion of the trial court, and can be disturbed on review only if it amounted to a clear abuse of discretion.	Can the decision to dismiss a case for want of prosecution rest within the sound discretion of the trial court?
4889	Smith v. McKee, 145 S.W.3d 299, 302 (Tex. App. 2004)	2	The common law vests the trial court with the inherent power to dismiss independently of the rules of civil procedure when a plaintiff fails to prosecute his or her case with due diligence. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a.	In addition, the common law vests the trial court with the inherent power to dismiss independently of the rules of procedure when a plaintiff fails to prosecute his or her case with due diligence.	Does a court possess the inherent power to dismiss a case for want of prosecution independently of the rules of procedure?
4890	Stein v. Maryland State Police, 62 Md. App. 702, 705 (1985)	1	Decision whether a case ought to be dismissed for lack of prosecution generally rests in the sound discretion of the trial judge. Md.Rule 530.	The decision whether a case ought to be dismissed pursuant to Rule 530 for lack of prosecution generally rests in the sound discretion of the trial judge.	Does the decision whether a case ought to be dismissed for lack of prosecution generally rest in the sound discretion of the trial judge?
4893	Pine Tp. Water Co., Inc. v. Felmont Oil Corp., 425 Pa. Super. 473, 477 (1993)	3	In order to open non pros judgment, three factors must be satisfied, (1) petition to open must be promptly filed, (2) delay must be reasonably explained, and (3) facts must be shown to exist which support cause of action. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 3051, 42 Pa.C.S.A.	In order to open a non pros judgment three factors must be satisfied: 1) the petition to open must be promptly filed; 2) the delay must be reasonably explained; and 3) facts must be shown to exist which support a cause of action. Id. Pa.R.C.P. 3051.	"Before a court can grant petition to open judgment non pros, should there be a reasonable explanation or excuse for default?"
4894	Young v. United States, 94 Fed. Cl. 671, 677 (2010)	14	Board of Veterans' Appeals possesses jurisdiction to adjudicate claims for the recovery of separation pay deducted from veteran's disability compensation. 10 U.S.C.A. S 1174(h)(2); 38 U.S.C.A. SS 511(a), 7104.	Contrary to plaintiff's suggestion, the Board of Veterans' Appeals possesses jurisdiction to adjudicate claims for the recovery of separation pay deducted from veterans disability compensation by operation of section 1174(h)(2).	Does the Board of Veterans' Appeals possess jurisdiction to adjudicate claims for the recovery of separation pay deducted from veteran's disability compensation?

4896	In re P.S., 676 N.E.2d 656, 659, 221 Ill.Dec. 853, 856, 175 Ill.2d 79, 84 (Ill.,1997)	2	Civil in rem forfeiture action is not "punishment" for purposes of double jeopardy clause, and therefore, may be pursued independently of criminal action based on same underlying misconduct. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5, 14.	In Urserly, the Supreme Court reaffirmed the view that a civil in rem forfeiture action is not punishment for purposes of the double jeopardy clause and therefore may be pursued independently of a criminal action based on the same underlying misconduct.	Can civil in rem forfeiture action be pursued independently of a criminal action based on a same underlying misconduct?
4897	Creighton v. Hall, 310 F.3d 221, 226–27 (C.A.1 (Mass.),2002)	8	If defendant requests or consents to mistrial, "manifest necessity" standard does not apply, and Double Jeopardy Clause ordinarily will not bar retrial, even though the request/consent to mistrial is in response to prosecutorial or judicial error. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	If, on the other hand, a defendant requests or consents to a mistrial, the "manifest necessity" standard does not apply and the Double Jeopardy Clause ordinarily will not bar retrial, even when the request or consent to a mistrial is in response to prosecutorial or judicial error.	"If defendant requests or consents to mistrial, does the ""manifest necessity"" standard not apply?"
4898	Gilliam v. Foster, 75 F.3d 881, 893 (4th Cir. 1996)	6	If criminal proceeding is terminated by mistrial without final resolution of guilt or innocence, defendant may be retried in certain circumstances, and when defendant seeks or consents to grant of mistrial, double jeopardy clause does not bar his later retrial; however, when defendant opposes grant of mistrial, he may not be retried unless there was manifest necessity for grant of mistrial or failure to grant mistrial would have defeated ends of justice. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Nevertheless, if a criminal proceeding is terminated by mistrial without a final resolution of guilt or innocence, a defendant may be retried in certain circumstances. When a defendant seeks or consents to the grant of a mistrial, there is no bar to his later retrial. But, when a defendant opposes the grant of a mistrial, he may not be retried unless there was a manifest necessity for the grant of the mistrial or the failure to grant the mistrial would have defeated the ends of justice.	"If a criminal proceeding is terminated by mistrial without final resolution of guilt or innocence, can a defendant be retried in certain circumstances?"
4900	Gilliam v. Foster, 75 F.3d 881, 893 (4th Cir. 1996)	6	If criminal proceeding is terminated by mistrial without final resolution of guilt or innocence, defendant may be retried in certain circumstances, and when defendant seeks or consents to grant of mistrial, double jeopardy clause does not bar his later retrial; however, when defendant opposes grant of mistrial, he may not be retried unless there was manifest necessity for grant of mistrial or failure to grant mistrial would have defeated ends of justice. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Nevertheless, if a criminal proceeding is terminated by mistrial without a final resolution of guilt or innocence, a defendant may be retried in certain circumstances. ¹⁵ Id. When a defendant seeks or consents to the grant of a mistrial, there is no bar to his later retrial. ¹⁶ Kennedy, 456 U.S. at 672–73, 102 S.Ct. at 2087–88. But, when a defendant opposes the grant of a mistrial, he may not be retried unless there was a manifest necessity for the grant of the mistrial or the failure to grant the mistrial would have defeated the ends of justice.	"If a criminal proceeding is terminated by mistrial without final resolution of guilt or innocence, can a defendant be retried in certain circumstances?"

4901	State v. Cornelious, 258 S.W.3d 461, 468 (Mo.App. W.D., 2008)	13	Generally, if the trial court declares a mistrial without the defendant's request for or consent to a mistrial, the double jeopardy clause bars retrial of the defendant. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Generally, if the trial court declares a mistrial without the defendant's request for or consent to a mistrial, the Double Jeopardy Clause bars retrial of the defendant.	"If the trial court declares a mistrial without the defendant's request for or consent to a mistrial, does the double jeopardy clause bar retrial of the defendant?"
4902	Dawkins v. Commonwealth, 41 S.E.2d 500, 503, 186 Va. 55, 61 (Va. 1947)	3	"Malice" inheres in the doing of a wrongful act intentionally or without just cause or excuse, or as a result of ill will, and it may be directly evidenced by words or inferred from acts and conduct which necessarily result in injury.	Malice inheres in the doing of a wrongful act intentionally, or without just cause or excuse, or as a result of ill will. It may be directly evidenced by words, or inferred from acts and conduct which necessarily result in injury.	"Does malice inhere in the doing of a wrongful act intentionally, or without just cause or excuse, or as a result of ill will?"
4903	Kennedy v. Board of Sup'rs of Warminster Tp., 243 Pa.Super. 46, 52 (Pa.Super. 1976)	2	Requirements that must be met before judgment of non pros may be opened are: petition to open judgment should be timely filed; default must be reasonably explained or excused; and facts constituting grounds for cause of action should be alleged. Pa.R.C.P. No. 1037(a), 42 Pa.C.S.A.	The requirements that must be met before a judgment of non pros may be opened are as follows: (1) the petition to open should be timely filed; (2) the reason for the default -here the failure to file a complaint- must be reasonably explained, or excused; and (3) facts constituting grounds for a cause of action should be alleged.	"Before a judgment of non pros can be opened, should the petition to open be timely filed?"
4904	Haefner v. Sprague, 343 Pa. Super. 342, 345 (1985)	1	In situations in which claimants seek to reactivate complaints which were dismissed for unreasonable inactivity, it must be shown that the petition for reactivation is timely filed, the reason for inactivity must be reasonably explained, and facts constituting meritorious cause of action must be alleged.	Indeed, in International Telephone, supra, the court adopted an "open judgment" standard for reactivation of complaints which were dismissed for unreasonable inactivity. Thus, in such situations it must be shown that: (1) the petition [for reactivation] is timely filed; (2) the reason for default [inactivity] is reasonably explained; and, (3) facts constituting a meritorious cause of action be alleged.	"In order to show good cause to reactivate a complaint which has been terminated for unreasonable inactivity, should a petitioner show that a petition for reactivation is timely filed?"
4907	Mansfield v. State, 29 A.3d 569, 580, 422 Md. 269, 287 (Md., 2011)	7	Because jeopardy attaches before the judgment becomes final, the constitutional protection also embraces the defendant's valued right to have his trial completed by a particular tribunal. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	This is so in order to ensure fairness to the defendant: "Because jeopardy attaches before the judgment becomes final, the constitutional protection also embraces the defendant's 'valued right to have his trial completed by a particular tribunal.'	Will the constitutional protection embrace the defendant's valued right if jeopardy is attached before the judgment becomes final?
4908	Sallee v. State, 785 N.E.2d 645, 653 (Ind.App., 2003)	15	Indiana's double jeopardy clause is violated when there is conviction and punishment for an enhancement of a crime where the enhancement is imposed for the very same behavior or harm as another crime for which the defendant has been convicted and punished. West's A.I.C. Const. Art. 1, S 14.	Under this formulation, Indiana's double jeopardy clause is violated when there is "conviction and punishment for an enhancement of a crime where the enhancement is imposed for the very same behavior or harm as another crime for which the defendant has been convicted and punished."	Is double jeopardy clause violated when there is conviction and punishment for an enhancement of a crime where the enhancement is imposed for the very same behavior or harm as another crime for which the defendant has been convicted and punished?

4909	Attorney General of Texas, on Behalf of State of Wash. v. Rideaux, 838 S.W.2d 340, 341 (Tex.App. Hous. [1 Dist.],1992)	1	Trial court has inherent power and authority to dismiss lawsuit for party's failure to prosecute suit with due diligence. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a.	A trial court has both the inherent power and authority under rule 165a to dismiss a lawsuit for the party's failure to prosecute it with due diligence.	Does the trial court have inherent power and authority to dismiss lawsuit for party's failure to prosecute suit with due diligence?
4910	Specie v. Howerton Elec. Co., 344 S.W.2d 314, 315 (Mo.App., 1961)	1	Definitions of words employer and employee, as well as whole of Workmen's Compensation Law, should be broadly and liberally construed to effectuate legislative intent to afford compensation to employees. Sections 287.020, 287.030 RSMo 1949, V.A.M.S.	Gianladis, Mo.App., 159 S.W.2d 706, 708, the court said: 'These definitions as well as the whole of the Workmen's Compensation Law should be broadly and liberally construed by the courts in order to effectuate the legislative intent to afford compensation to an employee * * *.'	"In Workmens Compensation law, how should the definition of employee be construed by the courts?"
4911	State v. Fennell, 431 Md. 500, 515-16 (2013)	11	Jeopardy attaches when the jury is empaneled and sworn, and thus, the defendant's right to be free from double jeopardy embraces also his right to have his trial completed by a particular tribunal. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Jeopardy attaches when the jury is empaneled and sworn, Illinois v. Somerville, 410 U.S. 458, 467, 93 S.Ct. 1066, 1072, 35 L.Ed.2d 425, 433 (1973); State v. Woodson, 338 Md. 322, 329, 658 A.2d 272, 276 (1995), and thus, the defendant's right to be free from double jeopardy embraces also his or her "right to have his [or her] trial completed by a particular 640 tribunal."	Will the defendant's right to be free from double jeopardy also embrace his right to have his trial completed by a particular tribunal?
4912	State v. Harris, 104 P.3d 1250, 1257-1258 (Utah, 2004)	5	Double jeopardy provisions in both the federal and state constitutions generally prohibit the state from making repeated attempts to convict an individual for the same offense after jeopardy has attached, which in jury trials occurs after a jury has been selected and sworn. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5, 14; West's U.C.A. Const. Art. 1, S 12.	The double jeopardy provisions in both the United States 4 and Utah 5 Constitutions generally prohibit the State from making repeated attempts to convict an individual *1258 for the same offense after jeopardy has attached, which in jury trials occurs after a jury has been selected and sworn.	What does the double jeopardy provisions in both the federal and state constitutions generally prohibit?
4913	Hoyle v. Ada Cnty., 501 F.3d 1053, 1059-60 (9th Cir. 2007)	4	Under the Fifth Amendment, a verdict of acquittal is final, ending a defendant's jeopardy, and even when not followed by any judgment, is a bar to a subsequent prosecution for the same offense. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	"It has long been settled under the Fifth Amendment that a verdict of acquittal is final, ending a defendant's jeopardy, and even when not followed by any judgment, is a bar to a subsequent prosecution for the same offence."	"Is a verdict of acquittal final, ending a defendant's jeopardy, and is a bar to a subsequent prosecution for the same offense even when not followed by any judgment?"

4914	Ex Parte Huddlestun, 505 S.W.3d 646, 656 (Tex.App.-Texarkana, 2016)	2	Despite the general prohibition against jeopardy-based trials, there are two exceptions when a criminal defendant may be tried a second time without violating double-jeopardy principles if the prosecution ends prematurely as the result of a mistrial, including (1) if the criminal defendant consents to retrial or (2) there was a manifest necessity to grant a mistrial; these exceptions exist because of the variety of circumstances that may make it necessary to discharge a jury before a trial is concluded and because those circumstances do not invariably create unfairness to the accused. U.S. Const. Amend. 5.	Yet, [d]espite the general prohibition against jeopardy-based trials, there are two exceptions when a criminal defendant may be tried a second time without violating double-jeopardy principles if the prosecution ends prematurely as the result of a mistrial: (1) if the criminal defendant consents to retrial or (2) there was a manifest necessity to grant a mistrial. Id. at 769-70. These exceptions exist because of "the variety of circumstances that may make it necessary to discharge a jury before a trial is concluded, and because those circumstances do not invariably create unfairness to the accused" Washington, 434 U.S.	Can a defendant be put in jeopardy by the state twice?
4915	People v. Smith, 128 Misc. 2d 733	2	Where proof at trial falls below prescribed standard for conviction, accused is entitled to an acquittal and cannot constitutionally be thereafter tried on the charge; statutes, to extent that they could be construed to the contrary, are constitutionally unenforceable. U.S.C.A. Const. Amends. 5, 14; Const. art. 1, S 6; CPL 40.20, 280.20, 310.60, subd. 2, 360.55, 440.10, subd. 6, 470.55	Moreover, where, at a trial, the proof falls below the prescribed standard for conviction, the accused is entitled as a matter of law to an acquittal (People v. Ledwon, 153 N.Y. 10, 46 N.E. 1046). Having previously been put at the risk of conviction, and been acquitted of the charge of criminal impersonation (see also, People v. Schwartzman, 24 N.Y.2d 241, 250, 299 N.Y.S.2d 817, 825, 247 N.E.2d 642, 647—648; People v. Vidal, 26 N.Y.2d 249, 253, 309 N.Y.S.2d 336, 339, 257 N.E.2d 886, 889), constitutionally defendant could not thereafter be tried on this charge (People v. Goldfarb, 152 App.Div. 870, 874, 138 N.Y.S. 62, 65, affd. 213 N.Y. 664, 107 N.E. 1083; Green v. United States, 355 U.S. 184, 78 S.Ct. 221, 2 L.Ed.2d 199). To the extent that the cited sections of the Criminal Procedure Law may be construed to the contrary, they are constitutionally unenforceable.	"Where proof at trial falls below prescribed standard for conviction, is an accused entitled to an acquittal and cannot constitutionally be thereafter tried on the charge?"

4916	U.S. v. Hunt, 212 F.3d 539, 548–49 (C.A.10 (Colo.),2000)	10	An appeal is not barred on double jeopardy grounds simply because a ruling in favor of a defendant is based upon facts outside the face of the indictment; rather, a defendant is acquitted only when the ruling of the judge, whatever its label, actually represents a resolution in the defendant's favor, correct or not, of some or all of the factual elements of the offense charged. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	It has been held, however, that "an appeal is not barred simply because a ruling in favor of a defendant is based upon facts outside the face of the indictment.... Rather, a defendant is acquitted only when the ruling of the judge, whatever its label, actually represents a resolution in the defendant's favor, correct or not, of some or all of the factual elements of the offense charged." Scott, 437 U.S. at 96-97, 98 S.Ct. 2187 (citation and internal quotation marks omitted).	Is an appeal not barred on double jeopardy grounds simply because a ruling in favor of a defendant is based upon facts outside the face of the indictment?
4917	U.S. v. One 1988 Prevost Liberty Motor Home, 952 F.Supp. 1180, 1202 (S.D.Tex.,1996)	2	In rem civil forfeiture is remedial civil sanction, distinct from potentially punitive in personam civil penalties such as fines, and does not constitute punishment under Double Jeopardy Clause. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; 18 U.S.C.A. S 981(a)(1)(A).	The Supreme Court has established that in rem civil forfeiture is a remedial civil sanction, distinct from potentially punitive in personam civil penalties such as fines, and does not constitute a punishment under the Double Jeopardy Clause.	"Is in rem civil forfeiture a remedial civil sanction, distinct from potentially punitive in personam civil penalties such as fines?"
4919	Mansfield v. U.S., 800 F.Supp.2d 84, 88–89 (D.D.C.,2011)	4	The Double Jeopardy Clause of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution affords a criminal defendant with three basic protections: (1) it protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal; (2) it protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after conviction; and (3) it protects against multiple punishments for the same offense. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The Double Jeopardy Clause of the Fifth Amendment to the United States *89 Constitution 4 affords a criminal defendant with three basic protections: (1) it protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal; (2) it protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after conviction; and (3) it protects against multiple punishments for the same offense.	What are the three protections afforded by the double jeopardy clause?
4923	Love v. Morton, 112 F.3d 131, 133 (C.A.3 (N.J.),1997)	2	Mistrials declared with defendants' consent do not bar later prosecution and, even without their consent, defendants may be retried when, taking all circumstances into consideration, there is manifest necessity for mistrial, or the ends of public justice would otherwise be defeated. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Mistrials declared with the defendants' consent do not bar a later prosecution. United States v. Dinitz, 424 U.S. 600, 607, 96 S.Ct. 1075, 1079-1080, 47 L.Ed.2d 267 (1976). Even without their consent, defendants may be retried when, "taking all the circumstances into consideration, there is a manifest necessity for the [mistrial], or the ends of public justice would otherwise be defeated.	Does a mistrial not bar further proceedings if there was a manifest necessity for declaring one?
4926	U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Com'n v. Hunter Wise Commodities, LLC, 1 F.Supp.3d 1311, 1316, n. 5, (S.D.Fla.,2014)	1	The Commodity Exchange Act is a remedial statute that serves the crucial purpose of protecting the innocent individual investor, who may know little about the intricacies and complexities of the commodities market, from being misled or deceived. Commodity Exchange Act, S 1 et seq., 7 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	5 The Commodity Exchange Act "is a remedial statute that serves the crucial purpose of protecting the innocent individual investor-who may know little about the intricacies and complexities of the commodities market-from being misled or deceived.	Is the Commodity Exchange Act a remedial statute to protect the innocent individual investor?

4927	Adkins v. Bordenkircher, 517 F.Supp. 390, 401 (D.C.W.Va., 1981)	12	At common law, questions of double jeopardy normally arose after conviction or acquittal but, under the Constitution, jeopardy attaches prior to judgment and double jeopardy protections are implicated when trial is terminated without a verdict. U.S.C.A.Const. Amends. 5, 14.	At common law questions of double jeopardy normally arose after conviction or acquittal, however, under the Constitution jeopardy attaches prior to judgment, United States v. Martin Linen Supply Co., 430 U.S. 564, 569, 97 S.Ct. 1349, 1353, 51 L.Ed.2d 642 (1977), and as a consequence, double jeopardy protections are implicated when, as in this case, trial is terminated without a verdict.	"At common law, do questions of double jeopardy normally arise after conviction or acquittal?"
4928	United States v. Sisk, 629 F.2d 1174, 1179 (C.A.6 (Tenn.), 1980)	5	Where a trial judge's uninvited error gives rise to juror prejudice, the judge may not discharge the jury and subject defendants to a second trial. U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 5.	When it is a trial judge's uninvited error which gives rise to juror prejudice, the judge may not discharge the jury and subject defendants to a second trial.	"Where a trial judge's uninvited error gives rise to juror prejudice, can the judge not discharge the jury and subject defendants to a second trial?"
4932	Davis v. Farmers Ins. Grp. of Companies, 86 Mich. App. 45, 47, 272 N.W.2d 334, 336 (1978)	2	Statutes of limitations and notice provisions have different objectives; statutes of limitations are intended to prevent stale claims and put an end to fear of litigation while notice provisions are designed to provide time to investigate and to appropriate funds for settlement purposes.	Notice provisions have different objectives than statutes of limitation. Notice provisions are designed, Inter alia, to provide time to investigate and to appropriate funds for settlement purposes. Statutes of limitation are intended to prevent stale claims and to put an end to fear of litigation.	How are notice provisions different from the statute of limitation?
4933	Standard Meat Co. v. Taco Kid of Springfield, Inc., 554 S.W.2d 592, 595 (Mo.App. 1977)	3	Although contemporaneous agreements dealing with same subject matter may be construed together as an aid in ascertaining intention of parties, this does not mean that those agreements constitute a single contract, for liability of guarantor remains primarily dependent upon guaranty contract.	While it is held that contemporaneous agreements dealing with the same subject matter may be construed together as an aid in ascertaining the intention of the parties, this does not mean that those agreements constitute a single contract (Elliott v. Richter, 496 S.W.2d 860, 864(2) (Mo.1973)) for the liability of the guarantor remains primarily dependent upon the guaranty contract.	Will a guaranty contract contain express conditions on the guarantors liability?
4935	Camico Mut. Ins. Co. v. Citizens Bank, 474 F.3d 989, 992–93 (C.A.7 (Ill.), 2007)	3	Under Illinois law, contracts are interpreted according to the "four corners" rule, under which an agreement, when reduced to writing, must be presumed to speak the intention of the parties who signed it; intention must be determined by the language used and is not to be changed by extrinsic evidence.	Under Illinois law, which the parties agree governs, contracts are interpreted according to the *993 "four corners" rule: "[a]n agreement, when reduced to writing, must be presumed to speak the intention of the parties who signed it. It speaks for itself, and the intention with which it was executed must be determined by the language used. It is not to be changed by extrinsic evidence."	What is the significance and purpose of the four corners rule under the US Law?

4937	In re Fahle's Estate, 105 N.E.2d 429, 431, 90 Ohio App. 195, 197-98 (Ohio App. 1950)	3	The distinction between actual and constructive notice is in the manner in which notice is obtained or assumed to have been obtained rather than in the amount of information obtained, and wherever from competent evidence the trier of facts is entitled to hold as a conclusion of fact and not as a presumption of law that information was personally communicated to or received by a party, the notice is "actual".	The distinction between actual and constructive notice is in the manner in which notice is obtained or assumed to have been obtained rather than in the amount of 430 information obtained. Wherever from competent evidence the trier of the facts is entitled to hold as a conclusion of fact and not as a presumption of law that information was personally communicated to or received by a party, the notice is actual.	What is the distinction between actual notice and constructive notice?
4939	Slater v. Varney, 136 W. Va. 406, 427 (1951)	10	A candidate who is ineligible or disqualified to hold office at time of election, in order to occupy it, must remove his disqualification at or before commencement of term of office to which he was elected according to election returns.	Application of this rule in this jurisdiction means that a candidate who is ineligible or disqualified to hold the office at the time of the election, in order to occupy it, must remove his disqualification at or before the commencement of the term of office to which he was elected according to the election returns.	Does a candidate who is ineligible or disqualified to hold the office at the time of the election have to remove his disqualification before the commencement of the term of office to which he was elected?
4940	Georgiades v. Di Ferrante, 871 S.W.2d 878, 880 (Tex.App. Hous. [14 Dist.],1994)	1	Plaintiff has absolute and unqualified right to take nonsuit upon timely motion so long as defendant has not made claim for affirmative relief.	A plaintiff has an absolute and unqualified right to take a nonsuit upon timely motion so long as the defendant has not made a claim for affirmative relief.	" Is the plaintiff's right to take a nonsuit unqualified and absolute, as long as the defendant has not made a claim for affirmative relief?"
4941	Parker v. Southern Farm Bureau Cas. Ins. Co., 326 Ark. 1073, 1081 (Ark.,1996)	1	Motion for production of documents must be considered in light of particular circumstances which give rise to it, and need of movant for information requested.	A motion for production of documents must be considered in the light of the particular circumstances which give rise to it, and the need of the movant for the information requested.	"Should a motion for production of documents be considered in light of particular circumstances which give rise to it, and need of movant for information requested?"
4945	Nelson v. Blacker, 701 P.2d 135, 137 (Colo. App. 1985)	2	Motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute should not be granted if plaintiff resumes the diligent prosecution of his claim, even though, at some prior period of time, he may have been guilty of gross negligence.	Pursuant to C.R.C.P. 41(b)(2), the trial court has discretion to dismiss an action for failure to prosecute with due diligence after reasonable notice. Schleining v. Sunday, 163 Colo. 424, 431 P.2d 464 (1967). A motion to dismiss on these grounds should not be granted if the plaintiff resumes the diligent prosecution of his claim, even though, at some prior period of time, he may have been guilty of gross negligence.	Should a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute be granted if a plaintiff resumes the diligent prosecution of his claim?

4946	State v. Bryant, 110 So. 3d 1191, 1196 (La.App. 5 Cir., 2013)	3	The elements of forcible rape are: (1) anal or vaginal sexual intercourse regardless of degree of penetration; (2) lack of consent of the victim; (3) a victim who was prevented from resisting by force or threat of physical violence; and (4) a victim who reasonably believed that resistance would not prevent the rape. LSA-R.S. 14:42.1.	Thus, the elements of forcible rape are: (1) anal or vaginal sexual intercourse regardless of degree of penetration; (2) lack of consent of the victim; (3) a victim who was prevented from resisting by force or threat of physical violence; and (4) a victim who reasonably believed that resistance would not prevent the rape.	Is lack of consent an essential element of forcible rape?
4947	Kauffman v. Kauffman, 93 Cal. App. 2d 808, 811, 210 P.2d 29, 31 (1949)	1	United States war risk insurance is a contract made in pursuance of federal statute and must be construed with reference to such statute, the regulations promulgated thereunder, and the decisions applicable thereto, rather than by laws and decisions governing private companies. National Life Insurance Act of 1940, SS 601-618, 38 U.S.C.A. SS 101, 701 et seq.	War Risk Insurance is a contract made in pursuance of Federal Statute and must be construed with reference to such statute, the regulations promulgated thereunder, and the decisions applicable thereto, rather than by laws and decisions governing private companies.	Are the only relations of contract under a policy issued pursuant to War Risk Insurance between the government and the insured?
4948	Abar v. Rogers, 23 Cal. App. 3d 506, 516, 100 Cal. Rptr. 344, 350-51 (Ct. App. 1972)	8	Owner of land subject to an easement for a public highway has a remedy for damages, injunction or ejectment for any encroachment on his property rights therein.	It seems worthy of note that the owner of land subject to an easement for a public highway has his remedy for damages (People ex rel. Dept. of Pub. Wks. v. Presley, 239 Cal.App.2d 309, 312, 48 Cal.Rptr. 672), or for injunction (Schaufele v. Doyle, 86 Cal. 107, 24 P. 834; Fitzgerald v. Smith, 94 Cal.App. 480, 485, 271 P. 507; Baldocchi v. Four Fifty Sutter Street Corp., 129 Cal.App. 383, 388, 18 P.2d 682), or in ejectment (351 Weyle v. Sonoma Valley R.R. Co., 69 Cal. 202, 206, 10 P. 510), or for any encroachment on his property rights therein.	"Does the owner of land subject to an easement for a public highway have remedies for damages, injunction, and ejectment or for an encroachment on his property right?"
4951	Cino v. Hopewell Tp. Government, 715 A.2d 1242, 1242-43 (Pa.Cmwlth.,1998)	1	To remove judgment of non pros, petitioner must demonstrate to trial court's satisfaction that petition to open was promptly filed, provide reasonable explanation for delay, and demonstrate existence of facts to support cause of action.	To remove a judgment of non pros, the petitioner must demonstrate to the trial court's satisfaction that the petition to open was promptly filed, provide a reasonable explanation for the delay, and demonstrate the *1243 existence of facts to support the cause of action.	" In order to remove a judgment of non pros, what should a party have?"

4952	Intech Metals, Inc. v. Meyer, Wagner & Jacobs, 153 A.3d 406, 410 (Pa.Super., 2016)	1	To dismiss a case for inactivity pursuant to a defendant's motion for non pros, there must first be a lack of due diligence on the part of the plaintiff in failing to proceed with reasonable promptitude; second, the plaintiff must have no compelling reason for the delay; finally, the delay must cause actual prejudice to the defendant.	To dismiss a case for inactivity pursuant to a defendant's motion for non pros there must first be a lack of due diligence on the part of the plaintiff in failing to proceed with reasonable promptitude. Second, the plaintiff must have no compelling reason for the delay. Finally, the delay must cause actual prejudice to the defendant.	Can judgment of non pros be entered where there has been no compelling reason for the delay?
4953	Poteet v. Sauter, 766 A.2d 150, 159, 136 Md.App. 383, 400-01 (2001)	2	Subrogation is founded upon the equitable powers of the court, is intended to provide relief against loss and damage to a meritorious creditor who has paid the debt of another, and is a legal fiction whereby an obligation extinguished by a payment made by a third person is treated as still subsisting for the benefit of this third person.	Writing on *401 behalf of the Court of Appeals, Judge Cathell recently explained subrogation, stating: "Subrogation is founded upon the equitable powers of the court. It is intended to provide relief against loss and damage to a meritorious creditor who has paid the debt of another. The doctrine is a legal fiction whereby an obligation extinguished by a payment made by a third person is treated as still subsisting for the benefit of this third person."	Is subrogation intended to provide relief against loss and damage to a meritorious creditor who has paid the debt of another?
4955	State ex rel. Utilities Com'n v. Town of Kill Devil Hills, 194 N.C.App. 561, 567 (2009)	4	The several provisions of the public utilities statutes must be construed together so as to accomplish its primary purpose that the public is entitled to adequate service at reasonable rates.	Moreover, the "several provisions [of the public utilities statutes] must be construed together so as to accomplish its primary purpose ... that the public is entitled to adequate service at reasonable rates.	Should public utilities statutes be construed together to accomplish its primary purpose of providing adequate service at a reasonable charge?
4956	In re Olson, 355 B.R. 649, 657 (Bkrtcy.E.D.Tenn.,2006)	16	Under Tennessee law, "subrogation" is the substitution of another person in the place of a creditor, so that the person in whose favor it is exercised succeeds to the rights of the creditor in relation to the debt.	Tennessee courts define subrogation as "the substitution of another person in the place of a creditor, so that the person in whose favor it is exercised succeeds to the rights of the creditor in relation to the debt."	"Is subrogation the substitution of another person in the place of a creditor, so that the person in whose favor it is exercised succeeds to the rights of the creditor in relation to the debt?"
4957	Chadron Energy Corp. v. First Nat. Bank of Omaha, 236 Neb. 173, 194 (Neb.,1990)	36	"Subrogation" is substitution of one person in place of another with reference to lawful claim, demand, or right, so that the one who is substituted succeeds to rights of other in relation to debt or claim and its rights, remedies, or securities.	Subrogation is the substitution of one person in the place of another with reference to a lawful claim, demand, or right, so that the one who is substituted succeeds to the rights of the other in relation to the debt or claim, and its rights, remedies, or securities.	"Does subrogation involve substitution of one person in place of another with reference to lawful claim, demand, or right?"
4958	Mujica v. Occidental Petroleum Corp., 381 F.Supp.2d 1164, 1189 (C.D.Cal., 2005)	32	Act of state issues only arise when court must decide, that is, when outcome of case turns upon, effect of official action by foreign sovereign.	"Act of state issues only arise when a court must decide-that is, when the outcome of the case turns upon -the effect of official action by a foreign sovereign."	Do act of state issues only arise when the outcome of the case turns upon the effect of official action by foreign sovereign?

4959	Chicago Exhibitors Corp. v. Jeepers! of Illinois, Inc., 876 N.E.2d 129, 136, 315 Ill.Dec. 129, 136, 376 Ill.App.3d 599, 606 (Ill.App. 1 Dist.,2007)	1	A motion in limine is addressed to the trial court's inherent power to admit or exclude evidence, and, generally, the Appellate Court will not disturb the trial court's ruling on a motion in limine absent a clear abuse of discretion.	A motion in limine is addressed to the trial court's inherent power to admit or exclude evidence," and, generally, this "court will not disturb the trial court's ruling on a motion in limine absent a clear abuse of discretion.	Is a motion in limine addressed to the trial court's inherent power to admit or exclude evidence?
4960	Hand v. Pettitt, 258 Ga. App. 170, 172 (2002)	8	When admission of certain evidence is a matter of law instead of a mixed question of law and fact, a trial court does not abuse its discretion in granting a motion in limine, where there are no circumstances under which disputed evidence is admissible.	However, when admission of certain evidence is a matter of law instead of a mixed question of law and fact, the trial court does not abuse its discretion in granting a motion in limine where there are no circumstances under which disputed evidence is admissible.	"When disputed evidence is admissible for any reason, does trial court abuse its discretion in denying a motion in limine?"
4961	Rathbun v. Health Net of the Northeast, Inc., 315 Conn. 674, 688 (Conn. 2015)	7	In its simplest form, "subrogation" allows a party who has paid a debt to step into the shoes of another, usually the debtee, to assume his or her legal rights against a third party to prevent that party's unjust enrichment.	"In its simplest form, subrogation allows a party who has paid a debt to step into the shoes of another (usually the debtee) to assume his or her legal rights against a third party to prevent that party's unjust enrichment.....	Does subrogation allow a party who has paid a debt to step into the shoes of the debtee?
4962	McCoy v. Feinman, 99 N.Y.2d 295, 301, 785 N.E.2d 714, 718 (2002)	1	Legal malpractice claim accrues for limitations purposes when all the facts necessary to the cause of action have occurred and an injured party can obtain relief in court. McKinney's CPLR 214, subd. 6.	A legal malpractice claim accrues "when all the facts necessary to the cause of action have occurred and an injured party can obtain relief in court" (Ackerman v. Price Waterhouse, 84 N.Y.2d 535, 541, 620 N.Y.S.2d 318, 644 N.E.2d 1009 [1994]).	Does a legal malpractice claim accrue when all the facts necessary to the cause have occurred and the injured party can obtain relief in court?
4963	In re Trask, 462 B.R. 268, 277 (1st Cir.BAP (Me.), 2011)	17	Under Maine law, equitable subrogation is a device adopted by equity to compel the ultimate discharge of an obligation by him who in good conscience ought to pay it.	The Supreme Judicial Court of Maine has stated that equitable subrogation is "a device adopted by equity to compel the ultimate discharge of an obligation by him who in good conscience ought to pay it."	Is equitable subrogation a device adopted by equity to compel the ultimate discharge of an obligation by him who in good conscience ought to pay it?
4964	Kuwait Pearls Catering Company, WLL v. Kellogg Brown & Root Services, Incorporated, 853 F.3d 173, 185 (C.A.5 (Tex.), 2017)	13	In deciding whether the act-of-state doctrine applies, courts must look not only to the acts of the named parties, but to any sovereign acts the validity of which would be called into question by adjudication of the action; the burden lies on the proponent of the doctrine to establish the factual predicate for its application.	In deciding whether this doctrine applies, courts must look not only to the acts of the named parties, but to any sovereign acts the validity of which would be called into question by adjudication of the action. Walter Fuller Aircraft Sales, Inc. v. Republic of the Philippines, 965 F.2d 1375, 1387-88 (5th Cir. 1992). "The burden lies on the proponent of the doctrine to establish the factual predicate for [its] application."	"In deciding whether the act-of-state doctrine applies, should the courts look only to the acts of the named parties?"

4965	AT&T Mobility LLC v. Concepcion, 563 U.S. 333, 341–42 (2011)	7	In light of the preemptive effect of the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA), a court may not rely on the uniqueness of an agreement to arbitrate as a basis for a state-law holding that enforcement would be unconscionable, for this would enable the court to effect what the state legislature cannot. 9 U.S.C.A. S 2.	We said that a court may not "rely on the uniqueness of an agreement to arbitrate as a basis for a state-law holding that enforcement would be unconscionable, for this would enable the court to effect what ... the state legislature cannot."	Can courts rely on the uniqueness of an agreement to arbitrate as a basis for a state-law holding that enforcement would be unconscionable?
4966	Lehndorff Geneva, Inc. v. Warren, 74 Wis.2d 369, 381 (Wis. 1976)	9	Once Congress and the executive have exercised powers of immigration and naturalization, aliens lawfully within country have a right to enter and abide in any state in the union on an equality of legal privileges with all citizens under nondiscriminatory laws.	Once Congress and the executive have exercised this power, '... aliens lawfully within this country have a right to enter and abide in any State in the Union 'on an equality of legal privileges with all citizens under nondiscriminatory laws.'	Do aliens have a right to enter any State in the Union on an equality of legal privileges with all citizens?
4967	In re Pihl, 560 B.R. 1, 9 (D.Mass. 2016)	4	Equitable subrogation occurs when one party, by virtue of its payment of another's obligation, steps into the shoes of the party who was owed the obligation for purposes of getting recompense for its payment.	"Equitable subrogation occurs where one party, by virtue of its payment of another's obligation, steps into the shoes of the party who was owed the obligation for purposes of getting recompense for its payment."	Does subrogation occur when one party steps into the shoes of the party who was owed the obligation for purpose of getting recompense for its payment?
4968	Allstate Ins. Co. v. Palumbo, 952 A.2d 1235, 1240, 109 Conn.App. 731, 735–36 (Conn.App.,2008)	1	Object of equitable subrogation is the prevention of injustice; it is designed to promote and to accomplish justice, and is the mode which equity adopts to compel the ultimate payment of a debt by one who, injustice, equity, and good conscience, should pay it.	The object of [equitable] subrogation is the prevention of injustice. It is designed to promote and to accomplish justice, and is the mode which equity adopts to compel the ultimate payment of a debt by one who, in justice, equity, and good conscience, should pay it.	Is subrogation an equitable doctrine which seeks to impose ultimate responsibility for a loss on one who in equity and good conscience should bear it?
4969	Dees v. Logan, 637 S.E.2d 424, 426, 281 Ga.App. 837, 838 (Ga.App.,2006)	3	Because the grant of a motion in limine forecloses the admission of the evidence at trial, the grant of a motion in limine excluding evidence is a judicial power which must be exercised with great care.	Because the grant of a motion in limine forecloses the admission of the evidence at trial, "the grant of a motion in limine excluding evidence is a judicial power which must be exercised with great care."	Should the judicial power be exercised with great care in the grant of a motion in limine excluding evidence because it forecloses the admission of the evidence at trial?
4970	United States v. Menendez, 137 F. Supp. 3d 709, 718 (D.N.J., 2015)	6	Under the stream of benefits doctrine, the bribery statute's quid pro quo requirement is satisfied so long as the evidence shows a course of conduct of favors and gifts flowing to a public official in exchange for a pattern of official actions favorable to the donor. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201.	To repeat, under the stream of benefits doctrine bribery's "quid pro quo requirement is satisfied so long as the evidence shows a course of conduct of favors and gifts flowing to a public official in exchange for a pattern of official actions favorable to the donor	What is the stream of benefits doctrine in regards to bribery?

4971	In re Deepwater Horizon, 745 F.3d 157, 163 (5th Cir. 2014)	5	Courts typically assess jurisdiction under the OCSLA in terms of whether: (1) the activities that caused the injury constituted an operation conducted on the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) that involved the exploration and production of minerals, and (2) the case arises out of, or in connection with, the operation. Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act, S 23(b)(1), 43 U.S.C.A. S 1349(b)(1).	Courts typically assess jurisdiction under this provision in terms of whether (1) the activities that caused the injury constituted an "operation" "conducted on the outer Continental Shelf" that involved the exploration and production of minerals, and (2) the case "arises out of, or in connection with" the operation.	How is jurisdiction assessed under The Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act?
4972	In re Stamell, 252 B.R. 8, 22 (Bkrtcy.E.D.N.Y.,2000)	7	Under rule of strictissimi juris, as applied under New York law to contracts of guaranty or surety, the liability of guarantors and obligations of sureties are strictly construed; they are held only to the express terms of their respective agreements, and their liability is strictly limited by terms, scope, and meaning of the agreement executed.	The liability of a guarantor or the obligation of a surety is strictly construed. They are held only to the express terms of their respective agreements, and their liability is strictly limited by the terms, scope, and meaning of the agreement executed.	Can a guarantor or surety be held beyond the express terms of his contract?
4975	Richardson v. Railway Exp. Agency, Inc., 258 Or. 170, 181 (Or. 1971)	3	Character of contract of insurance cannot be concealed or changed by use or absence of word "insurance" and even fact that contract expressly states that it is not contract of insurance is not controlling; and courts will look beyond terminology used and will consider contract in its entirety to ascertain what parties intended to accomplish.	It is true that the character of a contract of insurance cannot be concealed or changed by the use or absence of the word 'insurance' and that even the fact that a contract expressly states that it is not a contract of insurance is not controlling, but that the courts will look behind the terminology used and will consider the contract in its entirety to ascertain what the parties intended to accomplish.	How do courts interpret the terminology of insurance contracts?
4976	Federal Sav. & Loan Ins. Corp. v. Urschel, 157 P.2d 805, 812, 159 Kan. 674, 684 (Kan. 1945)	12	Under statute providing that no conveyance of realty shall be valid except as between the parties and as to those who have "actual notice" until deposited for record, actual notice may be express when it consists of knowledge actually conveyed, or it may be implied when it consists of knowledge of facts so informing that reasonably cautious person would be led by them to the ultimate fact. Gen.St.1935, 67-223.	Under the statute providing that no conveyance of real estate shall be valid, except as between the parties and as to those who have actual notice, until it is deposited for record (Gen.St.1909, 1672), actual notice may be express, when it consists of knowledge actually brought personally home, or it may be implied when it consists of knowledge of facts so informing that a reasonably cautious person would be led by them to the ultimate fact.	How is actual notice classified under the law?

4981	Am. Farm Lines v. Black Ball Freight Serv., 397 U.S. 532, 539, 90 S. Ct. 1288, 1292, 25 L. Ed. 2d 547 (1970)	5	It is always within discretion of court or administrative agency to relax or modify its procedural rules adopted for orderly transaction of business before it, when, in given case, the ends of justice require it, and such action is not reviewable except on showing of substantial prejudice to the complaining party.	Thus there is no reason to exempt this case from the general principle that '(i)t is always within the discretion of a court or an administrative agency to relax or modify its procedural rules adopted for the orderly transaction of business before it when in a given case the ends of justice require it. The action of either in such a case is not reviewable except upon a showing of substantial prejudice to the complaining party.'	Can an agency relax or modify its procedural rules in order to meet the ends of justice?
4982	Simmons Foods v. H. Mahmood J. Al-Bunnia & Sons Co., 634 F.3d 466, 468-469 (N.C. App., 2010)	4	Order to arbitrate grievance should not be denied unless it may be said with positive assurance that arbitration clause is not susceptible of interpretation that covers asserted dispute; however, party who has not agreed to arbitrate dispute cannot be forced to do so. 9 U.S.C.A. SS 1-16.	"[A]n order to arbitrate the particular grievance should not be denied unless it may be said with positive assurance that the arbitration clause is not susceptible of *469 an interpretation that covers the asserted dispute. However, a party who has not agreed to arbitrate a dispute cannot be forced to do so."	Can a court deny an order to arbitrate a grievance if the asserted dispute is not covered?
4983	New Jersey Shore Builders Ass'n v. Township of Jackson, 199 N.J. 449, 452 (N.J.,2009)	2	Municipalities must exercise their powers relating to zoning and land use in a manner that will strictly conform with provisions of Municipal Land Use Law (MLUL). N.J.S.A. 40:55D-42.	As we have previously held, municipalities must exercise their powers relating to zoning and land use in a manner that will strictly conform with that statute's provisions.	Should municipalities exercise their powers relating to zoning and land use in a manner that will strictly conform with provisions of Municipal Land Use Law (MLUL)?
4984	People v. Poindexter, 361 N.W.2d 346, 351 (1984)	7	Elements of extortion are: (1) a communication, (2) threatening accusation of any crime or offense or any injury to the person or property or mother, father, husband, wife, or child of another, (3) with intent thereby to extort money or pecuniary advantage as to compel the person so threatened to do or refrain from doing an act against his will. M.C.L.A. S 750.213.	The elements of extortion are: *332 "1) a communication, 2) threatening accusation of any crime or offense or any injury to the person or property or mother, father, husband, wife, or child of another, 3) with intent thereby to extort money or pecuniary advantage as to compel the person so threatened to do or refrain from doing an act against his will."	What are the elements of extortion?
4985	Pierce v. Warner Bros Entertainment, Inc., 237 F.Supp.3d 1375, 1378 (M.D.Ga., 2017)	2	Under Georgia law, defamation requires: (1) a false and defamatory statement concerning the plaintiff; (2) an unprivileged communication to a third party; (3) fault by the defendant at least amounting to negligence; and (4) special harm or the actionability of the statement irrespective of special harm.	Under Georgia law, defamation requires: "(1) a false and defamatory statement concerning the plaintiff; (2) an unprivileged communication to a third party; (3) fault by the defendant at least amounting to negligence; and (4) special harm or the actionability of the statement irrespective of special harm."	Is unprivileged communication required in a defamation claim?

4986	Mitchell v. Baltimore Sun Co., 164 Md.App. 497, 508 (Md.App., 2005)	2	In order to prevail on a cause of action for trespass, the plaintiff must establish: (1) an interference with a possessory interest in his property; (2) through the defendant's physical act or force against that property; and (3) which was executed without his consent.	In order to prevail on a cause of action for trespass, the plaintiff must establish: (1) an interference with a possessory interest in his property; (2) through the defendant's physical act or force against that property; (3) which was executed without his consent.	What must the plaintiff establish to prevail on a cause of action for trespass?
4988	Phillips v. Sun Oil Co., 307 N.Y. 328, 331, 121 N.E.2d 249, 250–51 (1954)	1	Trespass is an intentional harm, and while trespasser, to be liable, need not intend or expect damaging consequence of his intrusion, he must intend act which amounts to or produces unlawful invasion, and intrusion must at least be immediate or inevitable consequence of what he willfully does, or does so negligently as to amount to willfulness.	Trespass is an intentional harm at least to this extent: while the trespasser, to be liable, need not intend or expect the damaging consequence of his intrusion, he must intend the act which amounts to or produces the unlawful invasion, and the intrusion must at least be the immediate or inevitable consequence of what he willfully does, or which he does so negligently as to amount to willfulness.	Does trespass require the intent to produce the damaging consequences?
4989	Douglas v. Judge, 568 P.2d 530, 533, 174 Mont. 32, 38 (Mont., 1977)	3	When the legislature confers authority upon an administrative agency, it must lay down the policy or reasons behind the statute and also prescribe standards and guides for the grant of power which has been made to the agency.	When the Legislature confers authority upon an administrative agency, it must lay down the policy or reasons behind the statute and also prescribe standards and guides for the grant of power which has been made to the administrative agency.	What must the legislature do to lawfully confer authority upon an administrative agency?
4992	Mundi v. Union Sec. Life Ins. Co., 555 F.3d 1042, 1044 (C.A.9 (Cal.),2009)	2	In determining whether parties have agreed to arbitrate dispute, federal court applies general state-law principles of contract interpretation, while giving due regard to federal policy in favor of arbitration by resolving ambiguities as to scope of arbitration in favor of arbitration. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	In determining whether parties have agreed to arbitrate a dispute, we apply "general state-law principles of contract interpretation, while giving due regard to the federal policy in favor of arbitration by resolving ambiguities as to the scope of arbitration in favor of arbitration."	What laws do courts apply to contract disputes in arbitration proceedings?
4993	Peoples Sec. Life Ins. Co. v. Monumental Life Ins. Co., 867 F.2d 809, 813 (C.A.4 (Md.), 1989)	3	Federal Arbitration Act is a statement of congressional intent to uphold private parties' arrangements for dispute resolution; thus, policies of the Act should be effectuated whenever possible and federal courts should rigorously enforce agreements to arbitrate. 9 U.S.C.A. SS 1-14.	The Act is a statement of Congressional intent in upholding private parties' arrangements for dispute resolution. Thus, the policies of the Act should be effectuated whenever possible, and federal courts should "rigorously enforce agreements to arbitrate."	What is the Congressional intent in enacting Federal Arbitration Act?

4994	People v. Hubbard, 64 Cal. App. 27, 33, 220 P. 315, 318 (Cal. Ct. App. 1923)	2	A defendant could be guilty of manslaughter though the shooting was accidental if the shot was fired in the commission of an unlawful act not amounting to a felony, or if the shot was fired in the commission of a lawful act if the defendant was using the weapon without due caution and circumspection, under Pen.Code, S 192, subd. 2.	Defendant could be guilty of manslaughter, notwithstanding the shooting was accidental, if the shot was fired in the commission of an unlawful act not amounting to a felony, or even though it was fired in the commission of a lawful act, if at the time defendant was using the weapon without due caution and circumspection.	Can a crime be committed by an otherwise lawful act performed without due caution?
5001	Groat v. Town Bd. of Town of Glenville, 73 A.D.2d 426, 429, 426 N.Y.S.2d 339, 341 (1980)	1	Administrative proceedings which require hearing and trial of issues on evidence and testimony under oath, with right of cross-examination, had sufficient attributes of judicial proceedings to be considered such for purposes of cause of action for malicious prosecution. Civil Service Law S 75; Town Law S 155.	In our opinion, administrative proceedings which require a hearing and trial of the issues on evidence and testimony under oath, with the right of cross-examination, have sufficient attributes of judicial proceedings to be considered judicial proceedings for the purposes of a cause of action for malicious prosecution.	Can administrative proceedings form the basis of a cause of action for malicious prosecution?
5002	Zurich Am. Ins. Co. v. Superior Ct. for State of California, 326 F.3d 816, 826 (7th Cir. 2003)	14	Although Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) represents federal policy to be vindicated by federal courts where otherwise appropriate, FAA does not suggest that state courts are less competent to give effect to its provisions. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	Although the FAA represents "federal policy to be vindicated by the federal courts where otherwise appropriate," Moses H. Cone, 460 U.S. at 25 n. 32, 103 S.Ct. 927, it does not suggest that state courts are less competent to give effect to its provisions.	Are state courts competent to give effect to provisions of the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA)?
5003	Murphy v. Canadian Imperial Bank of Com., 709 F. Supp. 2d 242, 245 (S.D.N.Y. 2010)	1	Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) compels judicial enforcement of a wide range of written arbitration agreements, and applies to agreements to arbitrate disputes arising out of employment in the securities industry. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	"[T]he FAA compels judicial enforcement of a wide range of written arbitration agreements," Circuit City Stores, Inc. v. Adams, 532 U.S. 105, 112, 121 S.Ct. 1302, 149 L.Ed.2d 234 (2001), and applies to agreements to arbitrate disputes arising out of employment in the securities industry,	Does the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) apply to agreements to arbitrate disputes arising out of employment in the securities industry?
5004	Cloverleaf Car Co. v. Phillips Petroleum Co., 540 N.W.2d 297, 302, 213 Mich.App. 186, 195 (Mich.App., 1995)	21	Trespass is an unauthorized invasion upon private property of another; however, actor must intend to intrude at a place without authorization to do so and if intrusion was due to accident caused by negligence or abnormally dangerous condition, action for trespass is not proper.	A trespass is an unauthorized invasion upon the private property of another. Gelman Sciences, supra at 253, 508 N.W.2d 142. However, the actor must intend to intrude on the property of another without authorization to do so. If the intrusion was due to an accident caused by negligence or an abnormally dangerous condition, an action for trespass is not proper.	Should intrusion be intentional to constitute trespass?

5005	Terre Aux Boeufs Land Co. v. J.R. Gray Barge Co, 803 So.2d 86, 95 (La.App. 4 Cir., 2001)	10	Civil trespass is generally considered to be an intentional tort, requiring proof that the defendant took some intentional action that resulted in harm to the plaintiff.	Concerning intent, civil trespass is generally considered to be an intentional tort, requiring proof that the defendant took some intentional action that resulted in harm to the plaintiff.	Does the tort of civil trespass require the proof that the defendant took some intentional action that resulted in harm to the plaintiff to be qualified as an intentional tort?
5006	Detrex Chemical Industries, Inc. v. Employers Ins. of Wausau, 681 F.Supp. 438, 454 (N.D.Ohio,1987)	7	Administrative board acts in judicial capacity when it hears evidence and witnesses, parties are given opportunity to brief and argue their versions of facts and present arguments, and parties are given opportunity to seek court review of any adverse findings.	An administrative board acts in a judicial capacity when it hears evidence and witnesses, the parties are given an opportunity to brief and argue their versions of the facts and present arguments, and the parties are given an opportunity to seek court review of any adverse findings.	When is an administrative agency said to have acted in judicial capacity?
5008	Vill. of Monsanto v. Touchette, 63 Ill. App. 2d 390, 400-01, 211 N.E.2d 471, 476 (Ill. App. Ct. 1965)	6	Purpose of Public Utilities Act is to maintain general control over operation of utilities to extent of preventing them from exacting unjust, unreasonable and discriminatory, rates, and to assure adequate service and fair opportunity to secure reasonable return.	Its purpose has been a maintain a general control over the operation of utilities in the State to the extent of preventing them from exacting from their patrons unjust, unreasonable, and discriminatory rates, and the theory of regulation of public utilities is protection of the public and the assurance of adequate service on the one hand, and, on the other, a fair opportunity to the tuality to, by business economy, secure a reasonable return from such service.	What is the purpose of the Public Utilities Act (Act)?
5009	Campbell v. Louisiana Intrastate Gas Corp., 528 So.2d 626, 628 (La.App. 2 Cir.,1988)	2	"St. Julien Doctrine" provides method of acquiring utility servitudes without formal expropriation proceedings when utility has used private property in public interest in good faith and with landowner's consent or acquiescence for period of time. LSA-R.S. 19:14.	This doctrine, now statutorily recognized, provides a method of acquiring utility servitudes without formal expropriation proceedings when a utility company has used private property in the public interest in good faith and with the landowner's consent or acquiescence for a period of time. LRS 19:14; St. Julien v.	What is the St. Julien Doctrine concerning utility services?
5010	Dickson v. Wojcik, 22 F.Supp.3d 830, 835 (W.D.Mich.,2014)	2	Any private remedy against a federal employee for a tort committed during the scope of his or her federal employment must be sought against the United States under the Federal Tort Claims Act (FTCA). 28 U.S.C.A. S 2679(b)(1).	Any private remedy against a federal employee for a tort committed during the scope of his or her federal employment must be sought against the United States under the FTCA. *.	"Is there any private remedy for a tort committed by a federal employee, while acting within the scope of his employment, against the United States under the Federal Tort Claims Act?"

5011	In re Bevan, 327 F.3d 994, 997 (9th Cir. 2003)	7	Equitable subrogation is generally appropriate where (1) the subrogee made the payment to protect his or her own interest, (2) the subrogee did not act as a volunteer, (3) the subrogee was not primarily liable for the debt paid, (4) the subrogee paid off the entire encumbrance, and (5) subrogation would not work any injustice to the rights of the junior lienholder.	We have described the doctrine this way: Equitable subrogation is generally appropriate where (1) the subrogee made the payment to protect his or her own interest, (2) the subrogee did not act as a volunteer, (3) the subrogee was not primarily liable for the debt paid, (4) the subrogee paid off the entire encumbrance, and (5) subrogation would not work any injustice to the rights of the junior lienholder.	When is equitable subrogation appropriate?
5012	Mort v. U.S., 86 F.3d 890, 894 (C.A.9 (Nev.), 1996)	8	Equitable subrogation is generally appropriate where subrogee made payment to protect his or her own interest, subrogee did not act as volunteer, subrogee was not primarily liable for debt paid, subrogee paid off entire encumbrance, and subrogation would not work any injustice to rights of junior lienholder.	Equitable subrogation is generally appropriate where (1) the subrogee made the payment to protect his or her own interest, (2) the subrogee did not act as a volunteer, (3) the subrogee was not primarily liable for the debt paid, (4) the subrogee paid off the entire encumbrance, and (5) subrogation would not work any injustice to the rights of the junior lienholder.	When is equitable subrogation appropriate?
5014	In re Monaco, 514 B.R. 477, 485 (Bkrtcy.W.D.Tex., 2014)	9	Texas courts interpret the doctrine of equitable subrogation liberally and apply it in every instance in which one person, not acting voluntarily, has paid a debt for which another was primarily liable and which in equity should have been paid by the latter.	Texas courts interpret the doctrine of equitable subrogation liberally and apply it "in every instance in which one person, not acting voluntarily, has paid a debt for which another was primarily liable and which in equity should have been paid by the latter."	Do courts liberally apply the doctrine of equitable subrogation?
5017	Agric. Lab. Rels. Bd. v. California Coastal Farms, Inc., 31 Cal. 3d 469, 478, 645 P.2d 739, 743 (1982)	2	In discharging its delegated responsibilities choice between proceeding by general rule or by ad hoc adjudication lies primarily in informed discretion of administrative agency.	As this court noted in ALRB v. Superior Court, supra, 16 Cal.3d 392, 413, 128 Cal.Rptr. 183, 546 P.2d 687, it is a well settled principle of administrative law that "in discharging its delegated responsibilities the choice between proceeding by general rule or by ad hoc adjudication 'lies primarily in the informed discretion of the administrative agency.'	"While discharging delegated responsibilities, does an administrative agency have discretion to choose between proceeding by general rule or by ad hoc adjudication?"
5018	Morvant v. P.F. Chang's China Bistro, Inc., 870 F.Supp.2d 831, 841 (N.D.Cal., 2012)	19	When state law prohibits outright the arbitration of a particular type of claim, the analysis is straightforward: the conflicting rule is displaced by the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA). 9 U.S.C.A. § 1 et seq.	"When state law prohibits outright the arbitration of a particular type of claim, the analysis is straightforward: The conflicting rule is displaced by the FAA."	"When state law prohibits outright the arbitration of a particular type of claim, does the FAA displace the conflicting rule?"

5019	Public Utility Dist. No. 1 of Grays Harbor Cnty. Wash. v. IDACORP Inc., 379 F.3d 641, 650 (C.A.9 (Wash.), 2004)	20	"Filed rate doctrine," applied in a variety of contexts, is grounded in an agency's exclusive rate-setting authority and, at its most basic, provides that state law, and some federal law, such as antitrust law, may not be used to invalidate a filed rate nor to assume a rate would be charged other than the rate adopted by the federal agency in question.	The Filed Rate Doctrine [19] [20] [21] Closely related to these preemption issues is the "filed rate doctrine." 11 This doctrine, applied in a variety of contexts, is grounded in an agency's exclusive rate-setting authority. TANC, 295 F.3d at 929-30. "At its most basic, the filed rate doctrine provides that state law, and some federal law (e.g. antitrust law), may not be used to invalidate a filed rate nor to assume a rate would be charged other than the rate adopted by the federal agency in question."	Can courts use state and federal law to invalidate a filed rate under the filed rate doctrine?
5021	Smith v. Campbell, 782 F.3d 93, 100-101 (C.A.2 (N.Y.), 2015)	11	Under New York law, malicious prosecution suits require, as an element of the offense, the termination of the proceeding in favor of the accused, and the tort cannot stand unless the underlying criminal cases finally end in failure.	It is true that, in New York, "[m]alicious prosecution suits require, as an element of the offense, the termination of the proceeding in favor of the accused.... [and] the tort cannot stand unless the underlying criminal cases finally *101 end in failure."	Is it necessary for the Plaintiff to show termination of the underlying suit in their favor to prevail on a claim for malicious prosecution?
5022	Tr. Co. of Chicago v. City of Chicago, 408 Ill. 91, 97 (Ill., 1951)	2	The constitutional declaration that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation or without due process of law is subordinated to interests of public welfare as expressed through exercise of state's police power.	The constitutional declaration that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation or without due process of law is subordinated always to the interests of the public welfare as expressed through the exercise of the police power of the State.	Are the rights of private property subordinate to the higher demands of the public welfare?
5024	Mort v. U.S., 86 F.3d 890, 894 (C.A.9 (Nev.), 1996)	9	Equitable subrogation is broad equitable remedy, and therefore it applies whenever one person, not acting as mere volunteer or intruder, pays debt for which another is primarily liable, and which in equity and good conscience should have been discharged by latter.	As now applied, the doctrine of ... equitable subrogation is broad enough to include every instance in which one person, not acting as a mere volunteer or intruder, pays a debt for which another is primarily liable, and which in equity and good conscience should have been discharged by the latter."	Is equitable subrogation applied broadly?
5025	In re Monaco, 514 B.R. 477, 485 (Bkrtcy.W.D.Tex., 2014)	9	Texas courts interpret the doctrine of equitable subrogation liberally and apply it in every instance in which one person, not acting voluntarily, has paid a debt for which another was primarily liable and which in equity should have been paid by the latter.	Texas courts interpret the doctrine of equitable subrogation liberally and apply it "in every instance in which one person, not acting voluntarily, has paid a debt for which another was primarily liable and which in equity should have been paid by the latter."	Do courts interpret the doctrine of equitable subrogation liberally?

5031	Anderson v. Moreno's Air Conditioning, Inc., 140 So.3d 841, 853, 2014-27 La.App. 3 Cir. 6/4/14, 16 (La.App. 3 Cir., 2014)	13	In regulating pretrial discovery, trial courts have broad discretion in ruling on discovery matters that are presented during the course of litigation, including the scope of discovery, and such discretion will not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse.	In regulating pretrial discovery, "Trial courts have broad discretion in ruling on discovery matters that are presented during the course of litigation, including the scope of discovery. Such discretion will not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse."	"In regulating pretrial discovery, do trial courts have broad discretion in ruling on discovery matters that are presented during the course of litigation?"
5033	In re Olson, 355 B.R. 649, 657 (Bkrtcy.E.D.Tenn.,2006)	20	Under Tennessee law, when deciding whether to employ subrogation as a remedy, the court should balance the equities involved, and the case must be "strong and clear."	When deciding whether to employ subrogation as a remedy, the court should balance the equities involved, and the case must be "strong and clear."	"When deciding whether to employ subrogation as a remedy, should the court balance the equities involved, and must the case be ""strong and clear""?"
5034	Twin City Fire Ins. Co. v. Jones, 918 So. 2d 403, 404-405 (Fla.App. 5 Dist., 2006)	3	The purpose of equitable subrogation is to prevent unjust enrichment by assuring that the person responsible for the debt ultimately answers for its discharge.	This rule serves the purpose of equitable subrogation, which is to prevent unjust enrichment *405 by assuring that the person responsible for the debt ultimately answers for its discharge.	Is the purpose of equitable subrogation to prevent unjust enrichment by assuring that the person responsible for the debt ultimately answers for its discharge?
5035	DePuy, Inc. v. Farmer, 847 N.E.2d 160, 170 (Ind.,2006)	19	The main goals of common law subrogation are to reimburse the subrogee for payments made by it, and prevent unjust enrichment of the subrogor.	The main goals of common law subrogation is to reimburse the subrogee for payments made by it, and prevent unjust enrichment of the subrogor.	"Are the main goals of common law subrogation to reimburse the subrogee for payments made by it, and prevent unjust enrichment of the subrogor?"
5036	In re Wiley, 438 B.R. 331, 333 (Bankr. D.N.M. 2010)	2	Under New Mexico law, "subrogation" is equitable remedy of civil law origin, whereby, through a supposed succession to legal rights of another, a loss is put ultimately on the one who in equity and good conscience should pay it.	Subrogation ... is an equitable remedy of civil law origin whereby through a supposed succession to the legal rights of another, a loss is put ultimately on that one who in equity and good conscience should pay it.	Is subrogation an equitable remedy of civil law origin?
5040	Hunsberger v. Perkiomen Nat. Bank, 108 Pa.Super. 443, 450 (1933)	5	General rule is that accommodation indorser of note is to be treated as surety for maker and, as such, within limits of doctrine of subrogation, entitled to protection of collateral security deposited by maker with indorsee.	The general rule, that an accommodation indorser is to be treated as a surety for the maker and, as such, is, within the limits of the doctrine of subrogation, ordinarily entitled to the protection which collateral security deposited by the maker with the indorsee affords him, is well established.	Is an accommodation indorser treated as a surety for the maker within the limits of doctrine of subrogation?
5041	In re Deuel, 361 B.R. 509, 517 (9th Cir. 2006)	3	"Subrogation" is derivative right whereby one party is substituted in place of another with reference to lawful claim, demand, or right.	Subrogation is a derivative right whereby one party is substituted in the place of another with reference to a lawful claim, demand, or right.	"Is subrogation a derivative right whereby one party is substituted in place of another with reference to a lawful claim, demand, or right?"

5042	In re Pihl, Inc., 529 B.R. 414, 426 (D.Mass. 2015)	10	If party with notice of surety's equitable subrogation rights receives funds from contract owner, equity requires that the party hold the funds for surety's benefit.	Moreover, if a party with notice of the surety's rights receives funds from a contract owner, equity requires that the party holds the funds for the surety's benefit.	"If a party with notice of a surety's equitable subrogation rights receives funds from contract owner, does equity require that the party hold the funds for the surety's benefit?"
5043	National American Ins. Co. v. U.S., 498 F.3d 1301, 1304 (C.A.Fed.,2007)	3	Equitable subrogation, which is enforced solely for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of substantial justice, is independent of any contractual relations between the parties.	Equitable subrogation " 'is a creature of equity; is enforced solely for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of substantial justice; ... is independent of any contractual relations between the parties,'	"Is equitable subrogation, which is enforced solely for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of substantial justice, independent of any contractual relations between the parties?"
5045	Washington Mut. Bank v. Chiappetta, 584 F. Supp. 2d 961, 972 (N.D. Ohio 2008)	11	Under Ohio law, the right to equitable subrogation depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case, and the basis for the claim must be readily apparent.	The right to equitable subrogation depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case, and the basis for the claim must be readily apparent.	"Does the right to equitable subrogation depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case, and the basis for the claim must be readily apparent?"
5046	Bailey v. Ameriquet Mortg. Co., 346 F.3d 821, 824 (C.A.8 (Minn.),2003)	2	When agreement to arbitrate encompasses statutory claims, arbitrator has authority to enforce substantive statutory rights, even if those rights are in conflict with contractual limitations in agreement that would otherwise apply.	When an agreement to arbitrate encompasses statutory claims, the arbitrator has the authority to enforce substantive statutory rights, even if those rights are in conflict with contractual limitations in the agreement that would otherwise apply.	Does an arbitrator have the authority to enforce substantive statutory rights if those rights are in conflict with contractual limitations in the agreement?
5047	Bayou Fleet, Inc. v. Bollinger Shipyards, Inc., 197 So.3d 797, 806, 2015-0487 La.App. 4 Cir. 7/21/16, 12 (La.App. 4 Cir., 2016)	13	Trial court is granted broad discretion in its ruling on evidentiary issues, such as motions in limine regarding spoliation of evidence, which will not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear abuse of that discretion.	The trial court is granted broad discretion in its ruling on evidentiary issues, such as motions in limine regarding spoliation of evidence, which will not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear abuse of that discretion.	Is a trial court granted broad discretion in its ruling on evidentiary issues?
5048	Robinette v. Lafon Nursing Facility of the Holy Family, 223 So.3d 68, 75 (La.App. 4 Cir., 2017)	4	The proper procedural vehicle for excluding evidence of non-party fault is not by a motion in limine, but by a motion for summary judgment. La. Code Civ. Proc. Ann. art. 966(G).	We must also point out that the proper procedural vehicle for excluding evidence of non-party fault is not by a motion in limine, but by a motion for summary judgment under La. Code Civ. P. art. 966(G).	Is the proper procedural vehicle for excluding evidence of non-party fault a motion in limine or a motion for summary judgment?
5050	Hawkes v. Casino Queen, Inc., 336 Ill. App. 3d 994, 1005 (2003)	12	The purpose of the motion in limine is to promote a trial free of prejudicial material and to avoid highlighting the evidence to the jury through objection.	"The purpose of the motion [in limine] is to promote a trial free of prejudicial material and to avoid highlighting the evidence to the jury through objection."	Is the purpose of a motion in limine to promote a trial free of prejudicial material and to avoid highlighting the evidence to the jury through objection?
5051	State v. Winston, 71 Ohio App. 3d 154, 158 (1991)	1	"Motion in limine" is request that court limit or exclude use of evidence which movant believes to be improper, and is made in advance of actual presentation of evidence to trier of fact, usually before trial.	A motion in limine is a request that the court limit or exclude use of evidence which the movant believes to be improper, and is made in advance of the actual presentation of the evidence to the trier of fact, usually prior to trial.	Is a motion in limine essentially a request to limit or exclude evidence or testimony at trial?

5052	Cundiff v. Patel, 982 N.E.2d 175, 178, 367 Ill.Dec. 497, 500, 2012 IL App (4th) 120031, ¶ 20 (Ill.App. 4 Dist., 2012)	3	Generally, a trial court's ruling on a motion in limine is interlocutory and remains subject to reconsideration by the court throughout the trial, and the proponent's failure to make an offer of proof at trial forfeits review of the trial court's granting a motion in limine.	Generally, a trial court's ruling on a motion in limine is interlocutory and remains subject to reconsideration by the court throughout the trial (Guski v. Raja, 409 Ill.App.3d 686, 695, 350 Ill.Dec. 903, 949 N.E.2d 695, 704 (2011)) and the proponent's failure to make an offer of proof at trial forfeits review of the trial court's granting a motion in limine	Are motions in limine interlocutory orders which are subject to reconsideration by the district court during the trial?
5053	Chapman v. Hubbard Woods Motors, Inc., 812 N.E.2d 389, 399, 285 Ill.Dec. 569, 579, 351 Ill.App.3d 99, 110 (Ill.App. 1 Dist., 2004)	20	Trial court has broad discretion to grant or deny a motion in limine, and as such, the reviewing court will not reverse the trial court's decision to grant or deny such a motion absent a clear abuse of discretion.	Assuming, arguendo, that we were to address the merits of this issue, we recognize that a trial court has broad discretion to grant or deny a motion in limine, and as such, we will not reverse the trial court's decision to grant or deny such a motion absent a clear abuse of discretion.	Does the reviewing court reverse the trial court's decision to grant or deny such a motion in limine absent a clear abuse of discretion?
5054	Kryder v. State, 214 Ind. 419, 425–26 (Ind. 1938)	12	The validity of legislation regulating public utilities rests, in many instances, on the single limitation that rates and charges fixed by administrative boards and commissions shall be reasonable. Const. art. 3, § 1.	The validity of legislation regulating public utilities rests, in many instances, upon the single limitation that rates and charges fixed by administrative boards and commissions shall be reasonable.	Can the legislature delegate to the administrative boards or commission regulating public utilities to determine what are or what are not reasonable rates under particular facts?
5056	Am. Contractors Indem. Co. v. Saladino, 115 Cal. App. 4th 1262, 1268, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 835, 840 (2004)	6	The prerequisites to the assertion of a right of subrogation are: (1) payment must have been made by the subrogee to protect his or her own interest; (2) the subrogee must not have acted as a volunteer; (3) the debt paid must be one for which the subrogee was not primarily liable; (4) the entire debt must have been paid; and (5) subrogation must not work any injustice to the rights of others.	“The prerequisites to the assertion of a right of subrogation are these: ‘ (1) Payment must have been made by the subrogee to protect his own interest. (2) The subrogee must not have acted as a volunteer. (3) The debt paid must be one for which the subrogee was not primarily liable. (4) The entire debt must have been paid. (5) Subrogation must not work any injustice to the rights of others.’ ”	What certain prerequisites must be satisfied by one who claims to be equitably subrogated to the rights of a secured creditor?
5057	Cole v. Celotex Corp., 599 So.2d 1058, 1063 (La., 1992)	2	Generally, determinative point in time separating prospective from retroactive application of enactment is date that cause of action accrues; once party's cause of action accrues, it becomes vested property right that may not constitutionally be divested. LSA-C.C. art. 6.	Generally, the determinative point in time separating prospective from retroactive application of an enactment is the date the cause of action accrues. 15 Once a party's cause of action accrues, it becomes a vested property right that may not constitutionally be divested.	Does the party owning the action has a vested interest when a cause of action has accrued?

5058	Fetzer v. Wood, 569 N.E.2d 1237, 1243, 155 Ill.Dec. 626, 632, 211 Ill.App.3d 70, 79 (Ill.App. 2 Dist.,1991)	11	In medical malpractice action in which the discovery rules apply, cause of action accrues when plaintiff knows or reasonably should have known of an injury and also knows or should have known that it was wrongfully caused.	* In medical malpractice actions in which the so-called discovery rule is applied, the cause of action accrues when the plaintiff knows or reasonably should know of an injury and also knows or reasonably should know that it was wrongfully caused.	Does cause of action accrue when plaintiff knows or reasonably should have known of an injury in medical practice action in which discovery rules apply?
5059	Moore v. Jackson Park Hosp., 95 Ill.2d 223, 232 (Ill.,1983)	1	In medical malpractice cases in which discovery rule is applied, cause of action accrues when plaintiff knows or reasonably should know of injury and also knows or reasonably should know that it was wrongfully caused. S.H.A. ch. 83, P 22.1.	In medical malpractice cases in which the discovery rule is applied the cause of action accrues when the plaintiff knows or reasonably should know of an injury and also knows or reasonably should know that it was wrongfully caused.	Does cause of action accrue when plaintiff knows or reasonably should have known of an injury in medical practice action in which discovery rules apply?
5060	United States v. Sum of $70,990,605, 234 F. Supp. 3d 212, 238-39 (D.D.C. 2017)	18	The act of state doctrine, under which federal and state courts in the United States must presume the validity of an official act of a foreign sovereign performed within its own territory, applies only when a court must decide, that is, when the outcome of the case turns upon, the effect of official action by a foreign sovereign.	Under the act of state doctrine, federal and state courts in the United States must "presume the validity of an 'official act of a foreign sovereign performed within its own territory.' . . . As exemplified by each of these cases, the act of state doctrine applies only "when a court must decide—that is, when the outcome of the case turns upon—the effect of official action by a foreign sovereign."	Does the act of state doctrine presume the validity of the official acts a recognized foreign sovereign power performs within its own territory?
5061	Spectrum Stores, Inc. v. Citgo Petroleum Corp., 632 F.3d 938, 949 (C.A.5 (Tex.), 2011)	4	In contrast to political question claims, and unlike a claim of sovereign immunity, which merely raises a jurisdictional defense, the act of state doctrine provides foreign states with a substantive defense on the merits.	In contrast to political question claims, and "[u]nlike a claim of sovereign immunity, which merely raises a jurisdictional defense," the Supreme Court has stated that "the act of state doctrine provides foreign states with a substantive defense on the merits."	Is the act of state doctrine distinct from immunity and does it provide foreign states with a substantive defense on the merits?
5062	U.S. v. One Etched Ivory Tusk of African Elephant, 871 F.Supp.2d 128, 142 (E.D.N.Y.,2012)	8	Under the Act of State doctrine, the courts of one country will not sit in judgment on the acts of the government of another done within its territory.	The traditional idea of the Act of State doctrine is that "the courts of one country will not sit in judgment on the acts of the government of another done within its territory."	"Under the Act of State doctrine, will the courts of one country sit in judgment on the acts of the government of another done within its territory?"
5063	Republic of Ecuador v. Dassum, 146 So.3d 58, 61 (Fla.App. 3 Dist., 2014)	2	The act of state doctrine gives effect to the primacy of the executive branch of the federal government in the conduct of international relations with other countries.	The doctrine gives effect to the primacy of the executive branch of our own federal government in the conduct of international relations with other countries.	Does the act of state doctrine give effect to the primacy of the executive branch of the federal government in the conduct of international relations with other countries?
5064	In re Refined Petroleum Prod. Antitrust Litig., 649 F.Supp.2d 572, 581 (S.D. Tex. 2009)	6	"Act of state doctrine" provides that the act within its own boundaries of one sovereign state becomes a rule of decision for United States courts.	the act of state doctrine provides that "the act within its own boundaries of one sovereign State ... becomes ... a rule of decision for the courts of this country."	Does the act of state doctrine provide that the act within its own boundaries of one sovereign state becomes a rule of decision for United States courts?

5065	Jovic v. L-3 Services, Inc., 69 F.Supp.3d 750, 765 (N.D.Ill., 2014)	30	The "act of state doctrine" is a judicial rule that generally forbids an American court to question the act of a foreign sovereign that is lawful under the sovereign's laws.	"The act of state doctrine is a judicial rule that generally forbids an American court to question the act of a foreign sovereign that is lawful under the sovereign's laws."	"Is the ""act of state doctrine"" a judicial rule that generally forbids an American court to question the act of a foreign sovereign that is lawful under the sovereign's laws?"
5066	Norwood v. Raytheon Co., 455 F.Supp.2d 597, 601 (W.D.Tex.,2006)	1	Under the "act of state doctrine", the courts of one country will not sit in judgment on the acts of the government of another, done within its own territory.	The essential principle of the act of state doctrine is that "the courts of one country will not sit in judgment on the acts of the government of another, done within its own territory."	"Is the act of state doctrine that the courts of one country will not sit in judgment on the acts of the government of another, done within its own territory?"
5067	United States v. Giffen, 326 F. Supp. 2d 497, 502 (S.D.N.Y., 2004)	2	Under "act of state" doctrine, court is required to deem the acts of foreign sovereigns taken within their own jurisdictions as lawful and valid.	As such, the act of state doctrine requires a court to deem the "acts of foreign sovereigns taken within their own jurisdictions" as lawful and valid.	"Under ""act of state"" doctrine, is a court required to deem the acts of foreign sovereigns taken within their own jurisdictions as lawful and valid?"
5068	In re Rosacometta, S.r.l, 336 B.R. 557, 564 (Bkrtcy.S.D.Fla.,2005)	10	Every person who deals with foreign corporation impliedly subjects himself to such laws of the foreign government, affecting powers and obligations of corporation with which he voluntarily contracts, as the known and established policy of that government authorizes.	Moreover, "every person who deals with a foreign corporation impliedly subjects himself to such laws of the foreign government, affecting the powers and obligations of the corporation with which he voluntarily contracts, as the known and established policy of that government authorizes." Id.	What laws of a foreign government does a person who deals with a foreign corporation impliedly subject himself to?
5069	Triad Assocs. v. Robinson, 10 F.3d 492, 499 (C.A.7 (Ill.), 1993)	21	Courts will not resolve cases requiring resolution of political questions, nor cases that necessitate determination of validity of act of foreign state.	For example, courts will not resolve cases requiring the resolution of political questions, see Gilligan v. Morgan, 413 U.S. 1, 93 S.Ct. 2440, 37 L.Ed.2d 407 (1973), nor cases that necessitate the determination of the validity of an act of a foreign state, see Banco Nacional de Cuba v.	Will courts resolve cases requiring resolution of political questions or cases that necessitate determination of validity of an act of foreign state?
5070	Republic of Iraq v. ABB AG, 768 F.3d 145, 165 (C.A.2 (N.Y.), 2014)	10	In considering the applicability of the act-of-state doctrine, that is, the affirmative defense that precludes the courts of this country from inquiring into the validity of the public acts a recognized foreign sovereign power committed within its own territory, courts distinguish between public and private acts of a foreign official.	For instance, in considering the applicability of the act-of-state doctrine- the affirmative defense that "precludes the courts of this country from inquiring into the validity of the public acts a recognized foreign sovereign power committed within its own territory," Banco Nacional de Cuba v. Sabbatino, 376 U.S. 398, 401, 84 S.Ct. 923, 11 L.Ed.2d 804 (1964) ("Sabbatino")- courts distinguish "between public and private acts of a foreign official,"	Does the act of state doctrine apply to affirmative defenses?

5072	Hawkes v. Casino Queen, Inc., 336 Ill. App. 3d 994, 1005 (2003)	12	The purpose of the motion in limine is to promote a trial free of prejudicial material and to avoid highlighting the evidence to the jury through objection.	"The purpose of the motion [in limine] is to promote a trial free of prejudicial material and to avoid highlighting the evidence to the jury through objection."	Is the purpose of the motion in limine to promote a trial free of prejudicial material and to avoid highlighting the evidence to the jury through objection?
5074	Gollihue v. Consolidated Rail Corp., 120 Ohio App. 3d 378, 390 (1997)	4	Motion in limine is an interlocutory ruling, granting of which operates as a tentative order which can be later modified, depending on circumstances at trial.	As we previously stated, a motion in limine is an interlocutory ruling, the granting of which operates as a tentative order which can be later modified depending on the circumstances at trial.	"Is a motion in limine an interlocutory ruling, the granting of which operates as a tentative order which can be later modified, depending on circumstances at trial?"
5075	Jones v. Rallos, 384 Ill.App.3d 73, 87-88 (Ill.App. 1 Dist.,2008)	14	A ruling on a motion in limine is a determination addressing an admissibility of evidence issue likely to arise at trial and is subject to reconsideration.	A ruling on a motion in limine is a determination addressing an admissibility of evidence issue likely to arise at trial and is subject to reconsideration.	Is a ruling on a motion in limine a determination addressing an admissibility of evidence issue likely to arise at trial and subject to reconsideration?
5076	Hercules, Inc. v. AIU Ins. Co., 784 A.2d 481, 500 (Del. 2001)	13	A "motion in limine" typically concerns the admissibility of evidence and is a preliminary motion directed at establishing the ground rules applicable at trial.	A motion in limine typically concerns the admissibility of evidence and is a preliminary motion directed at establishing the "ground rules applicable at trial."	Does a motion in limine typically concern the admissibility of evidence and is a preliminary motion directed at establishing the ground rules applicable at trial?
5077	Napoli v. Hinsdale Hosp., 213 Ill. App. 3d 382, 387, 572 N.E.2d 995, 998 (1991)	3	Whether doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is applicable is question of law which must be decided by trial court; this determination may be made at pre-trial motion stage.	Whether the doctrine is applicable is a question of law which must be decided by the trial court. (Metz, 32 Ill.2d at 449, 207 N.E.2d 305; Woodward v. Mettelle (1980), 81 Ill.App.3d 168, 36 Ill.Dec. 354, 400 N.E.2d 934.) This determination may be made at the pre-trial motion stage.	Can the question whether doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is applicable be determined at pre-trial motion stage?
5079	In re Schubert, 437 B.R. 787, 792 (Bkrtcy.D.Md.,2010)	2	Under Maryland law, as soon as surety pays the debt of principal debtor, equity subrogates him to place of creditor that is paid and gives him every right, lien and, security to which creditor could have resorted for payment of debt.	So soon as a surety pays the debt of a principal debtor, equity subrogates him to the place of the creditor and gives him every right, lien, and security to which the creditor could have resorted for the payment of his debt.	Does a surety who pays the debt for a principal obligor become subrogated to the rights of the creditor including rights in the security?
5081	U.S. v. Alfisi, 308 F.3d 144, 149 (C.A.2 (N.Y.),2002)	3	The "corrupt" intent necessary to a bribery conviction is in the nature of a quid pro quo requirement; that is, there must be a specific intent to give something of value in exchange for an official act. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(b)(1)(A).	The "corrupt" intent necessary to a bribery conviction is in the nature of a quid pro quo requirement; that is, there must be "a specific intent to give ... something of value in exchange for an official act.	Is the corrupt intent required by the bribery statute a specific intent to enter into an unlawful quid pro quo?
5082	United States v. Ciavarella, 716 F.3d 705, 731 (C.A.3 (Pa.), 2013)	39	A payment constitutes a "bribe" as long as the essential intent, a specific intent to give or receive something of value in exchange for an official act, exists.	A payment constitutes a bribe "as long as the essential intent-a specific intent to give or receive something of value in exchange for an official act-exists.	"Does a payment constitute a bribe when a specific intent to give or receive something of value in exchange for an official act, exists?"

5083	Bass Enterprises Production Co. v. U.S., 45 Fed.Cl. 120, 122 (Fed.Cl.,1999)	2	Two categories of regulatory action are compensable as takings without case-specific inquiry into the public interest advanced in support of the restraint: the first is regulations that cause a property owner to suffer a physical invasion of his property; the second is regulations that deny a landowner all economically beneficial or productive use of his land.	The Supreme Court set out two categories of regulatory action that are compensable "without case-specific inquiry into the public interest advanced in support of the restraint." Lucas, 505 U.S. at 1015, 112 S.Ct. 2886. The first is regulations that cause a property owner to suffer a physical invasion of his property. Id. The second is regulations that deny a landowner all economically beneficial or productive use of his land.	Is the Fifth Amendment violated when land-use regulation does not substantially advance legitimate state interests or denies an owner economically viable use of his land?
5084	Yuba Nat. Res., Inc. v. United States, 904 F.2d 1577, 1580–81 (Fed. Cir. 1990)	2	In the case of a temporary taking, because the property is returned to the owner when the taking ends, just compensation to which the owner is entitled is the value of the use of the property during the temporary taking, i.e., the amount which the owner lost as result of the taking.	In the case of a temporary taking, however, since the property is returned to the owner when the taking ends, the just compensation to which the owner is entitled is the value of the use of *1581 the property during the temporary taking, i.e., the amount which the owner lost as a result of the taking.	"Since the property is returned to the owner when the taking ends, what amounts to be the just compensation to which the owner is entitled is the value of the use of the property during the temporary taking?"
5085	San Diego Metro. Transit Dev. Bd. v. Handlery Hotel, Inc., 73 Cal. App. 4th 517, 530–31, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 473, 484 (1999)	12	Whether there has been unreasonable precondemnation conduct by public entity, and what constitutes a direct and substantial impairment of property rights for purposes of compensation, constitute questions of fact. West's Ann.Cal. Const. Art. 1, S 19.	Whether there has been unreasonable conduct by the condemner and what constitutes a direct and substantial impairment of property *531 rights for purposes of compensation constitute questions of fact.	Does the question whether there has been unreasonable conduct by the condemner and what constitutes a direct and substantial impairment of property rights for purposes of compensation constitute questions of fact?
5086	Allied Bank Intern. v. Banco Credito Agricola de Cartago, 566 F.Supp. 1440, 1443 (D.C.N.Y.,1983)	3	Even where defense of sovereign immunity does not apply to bar suit against a foreign party, act of state doctrine may prevent recovery.	Even where the defense of sovereign immunity does not apply, nevertheless the act of state doctrine may prevent recovery.	"Even if a defense of sovereign immunity does not apply to bar suit against a foreign party, may an act of state doctrine prevent recovery?"
5087	Kiker v. City of Philadelphia, 346 Pa. 624, 631 (Pa. 1943)	4	While any cession or recession of jurisdiction by one sovereignty to another requires an acceptance in order to render it effective, such acceptance will be presumed in absence of contrary intent. U.S.C.A.Const. art. 1, S 8, cl. 17.	While any cession, or recession, of jurisdiction by one sovereignty to another requires an acceptance in order to render it effective (Yellowstone Park Transp. Co. v. Gallatin County, 9 Cir., 31 F.2d 644), such acceptance will be presumed in the absence of a contrary intent.	Does any cession or recession of jurisdiction by one sovereignty to another require an acceptance in order to render it effective?
5088	United States v. States of La., Tex., Miss., Ala. & Fla., 363 U.S. 1, 35 (U.S.Fla., 1960)	10	The right to exercise jurisdiction and control over seabed and subsoil of Continental Shelf is not internationally restricted by limit of territorial waters.	For, as the Government readily concedes, the right to exercise jurisdiction and control over the seabed and subsoil of the Continental Shelf is not internationally restricted by the limit of territorial waters.	Is the right to exercise jurisdiction and control over seabed and subsoil of the continental shelf internationally restricted by limit of territorial waters?

5089	Hourani v. Mirtchev, 796 F.3d 1, 16 (D.C. Cir. 2015)	21	The function of the act of state doctrine is to promote international comity, respect for the sovereignty of foreign nations on their own territory, and the avoidance of embarrassment to the executive branch in its conduct of foreign relations.	The function of the Act of State doctrine is to promote "international comity, respect for the sovereignty of foreign nations on their own territory, and the avoidance of embarrassment to the Executive Branch in its conduct of foreign relations."	Is the purpose of the Act of State Doctrine to avoid adjudication of actions that foreign states take on their own soil that might embarrass the Executive Branch or interfere with foreign policy?
5090	Garcia v. Chase Manhattan Bank, N.A., 735 F.2d 645, 650 (N.Y. 1984)	6	Under act of state doctrine, United States courts will not question the validity of action of foreign government carried out within their own borders.	With regard to its second argument, Chase is correct that under the act of state doctrine United States courts will not question the validity of the actions of foreign governments carried out within their own borders.	"Under the act of state doctrine, will United States courts question the validity of the actions of foreign governments carried out within their own borders?"
5093	Doe I v. State of Israel, 400 F.Supp.2d 86, 113 (D.D.C.,2005)	55	The act of state doctrine reflects the judiciary's reluctance to complicate foreign affairs by validating or invalidating the actions of foreign sovereigns.	It reflects the judiciary's reluctance to complicate foreign affairs by validating or invalidating the actions of foreign sovereigns.	Does the act of state doctrine reflect the judiciary's reluctance to complicate foreign affairs by validating or invalidating the actions of foreign sovereigns?
5094	Hernandez v. U.S., 757 F.3d 249, 262 (5th Cir. 2014)	13	Three objective factors and practical concerns are relevant to Court of Appeals' extraterritoriality determination: (1) the citizenship and status of the claimant, (2) the nature of the location where the constitutional violation occurred, and (3) the practical obstacles inherent in enforcing the claimed right.	Specifically, three "objective factors and practical concerns" are relevant to our extraterritoriality determination: (1) the citizenship and status of the claimant, (2) the nature of the location where the constitutional violation occurred, and (3) the practical obstacles inherent in enforcing the claimed right.	Which objective factors and principles are relevant to the extraterritoriality determination?
5095	Beanal v. Freeport-McMoran, Inc., 197 F.3d 161, 167 (C.A.5 (La.),1999)	10	It is only when nations of world have demonstrated that the wrong is of mutual and not merely several concern, by means of express international accords, that a wrong generally recognized becomes international law violation within meaning of Alien Tort Statute (ATS). 28 U.S.C.A. § 1350.	"It is only where the nations of the world have demonstrated that the wrong is of mutual, and not merely several, concern, by means of express international accords, that a wrong generally recognized becomes an international law violation."	When does a wrong become an international violation within meaning of the Alien Tort Claims Act?
5097	In re Vitamin C Antitrust Litigation, 584 F.Supp.2d 546, 550 (E.D.N.Y. 2008)	3	The act of state doctrine is aimed at reserving for the executive branch decisions that may significantly affect international relations.	Thus, the act of state doctrine is aimed at reserving for the executive branch decisions that may significantly affect international relations.	Is the act of state doctrine aimed at reserving for the executive branch decisions that may significantly affect international relations?
5098	Nocula v. UGS Corp., 520 F.3d 719, 727 (C.A.7 (Ill.), 2008)	16	The act-of-state doctrine is a judicial rule that generally forbids an American court to question the act of a foreign sovereign that is lawful under that sovereign's laws.	The act-of-state doctrine is a judicial rule that "generally forbids an American court to question the act of a foreign sovereign that is lawful under that sovereign's laws."	Is the act-of-state doctrine a judicial rule that generally forbids an American court to question the act of a foreign sovereign that is lawful under that sovereign's laws?

5099	United States v. Noriega, 746 F. Supp. 1506, 1521 (S.D.Fla., 1990)	11	According to act of state doctrine, every sovereign is bound to respect independence of every other sovereign state, and courts of one country will not sit in judgment on acts of government of another done within its own territory.	"Every sovereign state is bound to respect the independence of every other sovereign state, and the courts of one country will not sit in judgment on the acts of the government of another, done within its own territory."	"According to act of state doctrine, is every sovereign bound to respect independence of every other sovereign state?"
5100	Gross v. German Found. Indus. Initiative, 456 F.3d 363, 392–93 (3d Cir. 2006)	14	A court may deny comity to a foreign legislative, executive, or judicial act if it finds that the extension of comity would be contrary or prejudicial to the interest of the United States.	But a court may deny comity to a foreign legislative, executive, or judicial act if it finds that the extension of comity "would be contrary or prejudicial to the interest" of the United States.	Can United States courts extend comity to foreign proceedings and when doing so would it be contrary to policies or prejudicial to interests of the United States?
5101	Chicago Exhibitors Corp. v. Jeepers! of Illinois, Inc., 876 N.E.2d 129, 136, 315 Ill.Dec. 129, 136, 376 Ill.App.3d 599, 606 (Ill.App. 1 Dist.,2007)	1	A motion in limine is addressed to the trial court's inherent power to admit or exclude evidence, and, generally, the Appellate Court will not disturb the trial court's ruling on a motion in limine absent a clear abuse of discretion.	A motion in limine is addressed to the trial court's inherent power to admit or exclude evidence," and, generally, this "court will not disturb the trial court's ruling on a motion in limine absent a clear abuse of discretion.	Is a motion in limine addressed to the trial court's inherent power to exclude evidence?
5102	Montz v. Hill-Mont Land Co., 329 N.W.2d 657, 657 (Iowa,1983)	2	An application for separate adjudication of law points is properly considered only when questions of law arise from uncontroverted pleadings, and is inappropriate when material facts are disputed. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 105.	An application for separate adjudication of law points is properly considered only when the questions of law arise from uncontroverted pleadings. The application is inappropriate when material facts are disputed.	Does the application for separate adjudication of law points have to arise from uncontroverted facts in the pleadings to be properly considered?
5107	Hand v. Pettitt, 258 Ga. App. 170, 172 (2002)	8	When admission of certain evidence is a matter of law instead of a mixed question of law and fact, a trial court does not abuse its discretion in granting a motion in limine, where there are no circumstances under which disputed evidence is admissible.	However, when admission of certain evidence is a matter of law instead of a mixed question of law and fact, the trial court does not abuse its discretion in granting a motion in limine where there are no circumstances under which disputed evidence is admissible.	Does a trial court abuse its discretion in denying a motion in limine and admitting disputed evidence?
5110	Fort Worth Hotel Ltd. P'ship v. Enserch Corp., 977 S.W.2d 746, 757 (Tex. App. 1998)	16	The trial court's ruling on a motion in limine is not a ruling that excludes or admits evidence, but is merely a tentative ruling that prohibits a party from asking a certain question or offering certain evidence in front of the jury without first approaching the bench for a ruling.	The trial court's ruling on a motion in limine is not a ruling that excludes or admits evidence; it is merely a tentative ruling that prohibits a party from asking a certain question or offering certain evidence in front of the jury without first approaching the bench for a ruling.	Is the granting of a motion in limine a final ruling on the evidence?
5111	ADP Marshall, Inc. v. Noresco, LLC, 710 F.Supp.2d 197, 245 (D.R.I., 2010)	24	Although subrogation may originate from a contractual agreement, it is a creature of equity, is enforced solely for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of substantial justice, and is independent of any contractual relations between the parties.	Although subrogation may originate from a contractual agreement, "[i]t is a creature of equity; it is enforced solely for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of substantial justice; and is independent of any contractual relations between the parties."	Is subrogation enforced solely for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of substantial justice?

5112	In re Monaco, 514 B.R. 477, 485 (Bkrtcy.W.D.Tex., 2014)	9	Texas courts interpret the doctrine of equitable subrogation liberally and apply it in every instance in which one person, not acting voluntarily, has paid a debt for which another was primarily liable and which in equity should have been paid by the latter.	Texas courts interpret the doctrine of equitable subrogation liberally and apply it "in every instance in which one person, not acting voluntarily, has paid a debt for which another was primarily liable and which in equity should have been paid by the latter."	Do courts liberally interpret the doctrine of equitable subrogation?
5113	Dryden v. Cincinnati Bell Tel. Co., 734 N.E.2d 409, 416, 135 Ohio App.3d 394, 404 (Ohio App. 1 Dist., 1999)	19	Trespasser to chattel is liable if, but only if: (1) he dispossesses the other of the chattel; or (2) the chattel is impaired as to its condition, quality, or value; or (3) the possessor is deprived of the use of the chattel for a substantial time; or (4) bodily harm is caused to the possessor, or harm is caused to some person or thing in which the possessor has a legally protected interest. Restatement (Second) of Torts S 218.	According to Section 218 of the Restatement 2d, Torts, a trespasser to chattel is liable "if, but only if," one of the following occurs: "(a) he dispossesses the other of the chattel, or "(b) the chattel is impaired as to its condition, quality, or value, or "(c) the possessor is deprived of the use of the chattel for a substantial time, or "(d) bodily harm is caused to the possessor, or harm is caused to some person or thing in which the possessor has a legally protected interest."	Does the interference required to make a claim for trespass to chattels need to be more than intermeddling?
5119	Gulf Power Co. v. U.S., 998 F.Supp. 1386, 1394 (Fla. 1998)	3	Facts that an industry is heavily regulated, and that a property owner acquired the property knowing that it is heavily regulated, do not diminish a physical taking to something less than a taking. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Moreover, "the facts that an industry is heavily regulated, and that a property owner acquired the property knowing that it is heavily regulated, do not diminish a physical taking to something less than a taking."	"Does the facts that an industry is heavily regulated, and that a property owner acquired the property knowing that it is heavily regulated, diminish a physical taking to something less than a taking?"
5121	United States v. Cardales, 168 F.3d 548, 553 (C.A.1 (Puerto Rico), 1999)	2	Under the "territorial principle" of international law, a state has jurisdiction to prescribe and enforce a rule of law in the territory of another state to the extent provided by international agreement with the other state.	Under the "territorial principle" of international law, a "state has jurisdiction to prescribe and enforce a rule of law in the territory of another state to the extent provided by international agreement with the other state.	"Under the ""territorial principle"" of international law, does a state have jurisdiction to prescribe and enforce a rule of law in the territory of another state to the extent provided by international agreement with the other state?"
5122	United States v. Redzic, 627 F.3d 683, 691-692 (C.A.8, 2010)	10	Under "passive personality principle," state may apply law, particularly criminal law, to act committed outside its territory by person not its national when victim of act was its national. Restatement (Third) of Foreign Relations Law S 402 comment.	This case, however, clearly falls within at least one such theory, the so-called "passive personality principle." That principle "asserts that a state may apply law -particularly criminal law-to an act committed outside its territory by a person not its national where the victim of the act was its national." RESTATEMENT (THIRD) OF FOREIGN RELATIONS LAW 402 cmt. g (1987).	"Under the ""passive personality principle,""" may a state apply law to acts committed outside its territory by a person not its national when victim of act was its national?"

5123	Hernandez v. U.S., 757 F.3d 249, 262 (5th Cir. 2014)	13	Three objective factors and practical concerns are relevant to Court of Appeals' extraterritoriality determination: (1) the citizenship and status of the claimant, (2) the nature of the location where the constitutional violation occurred, and (3) the practical obstacles inherent in enforcing the claimed right.	Specifically, three "objective factors and practical concerns" are relevant to our extraterritoriality determination: (1) the citizenship and status of the claimant, (2) the nature of the location where the constitutional violation occurred, and (3) the practical obstacles inherent in enforcing the claimed right.	What factors are relevant to determine the extraterritorial application of a Constitution?
5125	Litecubes, LLC v. Northern Light Products, Inc., 523 F.3d 1353, 1367 (C.A.Fed. (Mo.), 2008)	20	Whether an accused action is within the extraterritorial limitation should be treated as an element of the claim, not a predicate for subject matter jurisdiction, unless Congress has clearly provided that the limitation is jurisdictional.	That is, whether an accused action is within the extraterritorial limitation should be treated as an element of the claim, not a predicate for subject matter jurisdiction, unless Congress has clearly provided that the limitation is jurisdictional.	Should the question of whether an accused action is within the extraterritorial limitation be treated as an element of the claim?
5126	Alibalogun v. First Coast Security Solutions, Inc., 67 F.Supp.3d 211, 216 (D.D.C., 2014)	3	In order to state a claim under District of Columbia law for breach of contract based on termination of at-will employment, the plaintiff bears the burden of alleging facts sufficient to show that the parties intended that termination be subject to specific preconditions.	In order to state a claim for breach of contract based on termination of at-will employment, a plaintiff "bears the burden of alleging facts sufficient to show that 'the parties intended that termination be subject to specific preconditions.'"	Should facts be alleged to state a claim for breach of contract?
5127	Pullum v. Robinette, 174 S.W.3d 124, 136–37 (Tenn.Ct.App.,2004)	13	Courts may make pre-introduction rulings on evidence that are conditional or provisional in nature, and, where such conditions do not occur at trial, may change an earlier ruling regarding the admissibility of the evidence.	State courts may make pre-introduction rulings on evidence that are conditional or provisional in nature, and, where such conditions do not occur at trial, may change an earlier ruling regarding the admissibility *137 of the evidence.	Can courts make rulings on evidence that are conditional or provisional in nature and change an earlier ruling regarding the admissibility of the evidence?
5128	Chapman v. Hubbard Woods Motors, Inc., 812 N.E.2d 389, 399, 285 Ill.Dec. 569, 579, 351 Ill.App.3d 99, 110 (Ill.App. 1 Dist., 2004)	20	Trial court has broad discretion to grant or deny a motion in limine, and as such, the reviewing court will not reverse the trial court's decision to grant or deny such a motion absent a clear abuse of discretion.	Assuming, arguendo, that we were to address the merits of this issue, we recognize that a trial court has broad discretion to grant or deny a motion in limine, and as such, we will not reverse the trial court's decision to grant or deny such a motion absent a clear abuse of discretion.	"Does the trial court have broad discretion to grant or deny a motion in limine, and as such, the reviewing court will only reverse the trial court's decision to grant or deny such a motion with a clear abuse of discretion?"
5129	Miller-Stauch Const. Co. v. Williams-Bungart Elec., Inc., 959 S.W.2d 490, 495 (Mo.App. W.D.,1998)	5	While rights and liabilities of a surety are measured by those of principal, performance bond surety confers a benefit upon obligee and thus becomes subrogated not only to rights of principal but also to rights of the obligee, and has a right to retained funds free from set-off by obligee.	However, while it is true that the rights and liabilities of a surety are measured by those of the principal, it is also true that a performance bond surety confers a benefit upon the obligee and thus becomes subrogated not only to the rights of the principal but also to the rights of the obligee, and has a right to retained funds free from set-off by the obligee.	Does a performance bond surety confer a benefit upon an obligee?

5130	Leimer v. State Mut. Life Assur. Co. of Worcester, Mass., 108 F.2d 302, 305 (C.A.8 1940)	5	Mere lapse of time does not constitute "laches" which is to be determined by consideration of justice which is dependent upon the circumstances of each particular case.	So far as laches is concerned, it has been repeatedly held that mere lapse of time does not constitute laches. 'It is to be determined by consideration of justice, and that is dependent upon the circumstances of each particular case.'	Does a mere lapse of time constitute laches which is to be determined by consideration of justice which is dependent upon the circumstances of each particular case?
5131	United-Bilt Homes, Inc. v. Sampson, 315 Ark. 156, 158, 864 S.W.2d 861, 862 (1993)	2	Cause of action on entire debt owed under installment sales contract with optional acceleration clause does not arise until option is exercised.	We also observe that a cause of action on an entire debt owed under an installment sales contract with an optional acceleration clause does not arise until the option is exercised.	Does cause of action on entire debt owed under installment sales contract with optional acceleration clause arise until option is exercised?
5132	Borde v. Hake, 170 N.W.2d 768, 770-71, 44 Wis.2d 22, 28-29 (Wis. 1969)	2	Cause of action arises when there is an invasion of a primary right of a plaintiff as a consequence of closely related incidents or operative facts.	Ipsen (1965), 27 Wis.2d 578, 583, 135 N.W.2d 284, we reaffirmed and restated the Pomeroy proposition that a cause of action arises when there is *29 an invasion of a primary right of a plaintiff as a consequence of closely 771 related incidents or operative facts.	Does cause of action arise when there is an invasion of a primary right of a plaintiff as a consequence of closely related incidents or operative facts?
5137	Reynolds v. Farmers & Merchants Nat. Bank of Nocona, 135 S.W.2d 556, 558 (Tex.Civ.App. 1939)	5	The defense of "laches" and stale demand cannot be invoked to resist the enforcement of a purely legal right, however asserted, and in such cases defendant must rely on the statute of limitations.	4, page 19, in discussing the defense of laches and stale demand, it is said: "It is settled, however, that the defense may not be invoked to resist the enforcement of a purely legal right, however asserted; in such cases the defendant must rely on the statute of limitations."	Can the defense of laches be invoked to resist the enforcement of a purely legal right?
5138	Schaefer v. Berinstein, 180 Cal. App. 2d 107, 134, 4 Cal. Rptr. 236, 253 (Ct. App. 1960)	40	A court of equity will make final disposition of litigation governed by circumstances shown to exist at time judgment is rendered, rather than at inception of litigation, and a supplemental pleading is not necessary to that end.	A court of equity will make a final disposition of the litigation governed by the circumstances as shown to exist at the time judgment is rendered rather than at the inception of the litigation. A supplemental pleading is not necessary to that end.	Will a court of equity having jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter make a final disposition of the litigation governed by the circumstances as they are shown to exist at the time the decree is made?
5140	Rapid City School Dist. 51-4 v. Vahle, 733 F.Supp. 1364, 1368 (D.S.D., 1990)	1	Under Education of the Handicapped Act, reviewing court must make an independent determination of appropriateness of placement of child based on preponderance of the evidence, but is cautioned not to substitute its own notions of educational policy for those of school authorities. Education of the Handicapped Act, S 615(e), (e)(2), as amended, 20 U.S.C.A. S 1415(e), (e)(2).	The district court must make an independent determination of the appropriateness of the placement of the child based on a preponderance of the evidence, but is cautioned not to substitute its own notions of educational policy for those of the school authorities.	Can the courts substitute their own notions of sound educational policy for those of the school authorities which they review?

5142	Jindra v. Diederich Flooring, 181 Wis. 2d 579, 599, 511 N.W.2d 855, 861 (1994)	4	Party seeking to impose subrogation upon another party has burden of showing both that there would be some basis for asserting subrogation in that instance, and that subrogation must be applied in equity in those circumstances. (Per Day, J., with two Justices concurring and two Justices concurring in result.)	The same rule and burden of proof apply when a party seeks to impose subrogation. The party seeking to impose subrogation has the burden of showing both (a) that there would be some basis for asserting subrogation in that instance, and, (b) that subrogation must be applied in equity in those circumstances.	Should the party seeking to impose subrogation upon another party have burden of showing that there would be some basis for asserting subrogation in that instance?
5143	Bowker v. City of Worcester, 136 N.E.2d 208, 215, 334 Mass. 422, 433 (Mass. 1956)	14	A court of equity may find and consider facts existing at time of entry of decree, irrespective of whether they came into existence after commencement of suit.	A court of equity may find and consider facts existing at the time of entry of the decree whether they came into existence after the commencement of suit or not.	Will a court of equity find and consider facts existing at the time of entry of decree if they came into existence after commencement of the suit or not?
5145	Town of Kaneville v. Meredith, 361 Ill. 556, 569 (Ill., 1935)	8	In law action rights of parties are determined as of time of beginning of action, but where relief is granted in chancery it is such as nature of case, the law and the facts demand, not at time of inception of litigation, but at time decree is entered therein.	While in an action at law the rights of the parties are determined as of the time of the beginning of the action, a decree in chancery is a determination of the rights of the parties to the suit according to equity and good conscience, and where relief is granted by a decree, it is such as the nature of the case, the law and the facts demand, not at the time of the inception of the litigation, but at the time the decree is entered therein.	"In actions at law, are the rights of the parties generally determined as of the time of beginning of the action?"
5148	Cresvale Int'l Inc. v. Reuters Am., Inc., 257 A.D.2d 502, 505, 684 N.Y.S.2d 219, 222 (1999)	5	Where a waiver of subrogation clause is limited to a specific type of loss, a subrogation action is barred only to the extent it seeks recovery for that species of loss; conversely, where a broad waiver clause extends to all losses covered by an insurance policy, or where the subrogation action is inconsistent with the express provisions of the waiver of subrogation clause, all subrogation actions will be barred.	Where a waiver of subrogation clause is limited to a specific type of loss, a subrogation action is barred only to the extent it seeks recovery for those species of losses (see, Kaf-Kaf v. Rodless Decorations, 90 N.Y.2d 654, 660, 665 N.Y.S.2d 47, 687 N.E.2d 1330 ["a waiver of subrogation clause cannot be enforced beyond the scope of the specific context in which it appears"]). Conversely, where a broad waiver clause extends to all losses covered by the policy, or where subrogation action is "inconsistent with the express provisions of the waiver of subrogation clause", all subrogation actions will be barred (id. at 660-661, 665 N.Y.S.2d 47, 687 N.E.2d 1330).	"Where a waiver of subrogation clause is limited to a specific type of loss, is a subrogation action barred only to the extent it seeks recovery for that species of loss?"

5150	State v. Ole Olsen, Ltd., 38 A.D.2d 967, 968, 331 N.Y.S.2d 761 (1972)	4	Court may, in equity action, mold relief to be granted to exigencies of case as they exist at close of trial, with reference to facts, law and equities then existing.	Moreover, in an equity action, the court may mold the relief to be granted to the exigencies of the case as they exist at the close of the trial, with reference to the facts, the law and the equities then existing (Matter of Galewitz, 3 A D 2d 280, 295, affd. 5 N Y 2d 721; Lightfoot v. Davis, 198 N. Y. 261, 273).	"May a court, in an equity action, mold relief to be granted to exigencies of case as they exist at the close of trial?"
5151	Shirey v. Campbell, 151 So. 2d 557, 562 (La. Ct. App. 1963)	11	What constitutes laches is to be determined in the light of the circumstances of a particular case, and application of doctrine is controlled by equitable considerations and it cannot be invoked to defeat justice and will be applied only where enforcement of asserted right will not work injustice.	What constitutes laches is to be determined in the light of the circumstances of a particular case. The doctrine's application is controlled by equitable considerations; it cannot be invoked to defeat justice; it will be applied only where the enforcement of an asserted right would not work injustice.	"Can the doctrine of ""laches"" be invoked to defeat justice?"
5153	NECA Ins. Ltd. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa., 595 F.Supp. 955, 958 (D.C.N.Y.,1984)	2	Service of suit clause in parties' agreement was designed to guarantee enforcement of arbitration awards and was not designed to supercede an obligation to arbitrate disputes within scope of the arbitration clause.	The service of suit clause is therefore designed to guarantee the enforcement of arbitration awards and is not designed to supercede an obligation to arbitrate disputes within the scope of the arbitration clause. See In the Matter of the Petition of J.W.	Is a service of suit clause designed to guarantee the enforcement of arbitration awards or designed to supersede an obligation to arbitrate disputes within the scope of an arbitration clause?
5154	Parker v. Levy, 417 U.S. 733, 756 (U.S.Pa. 1974)	8	For the reasons which differentiate military society from civilian society, Congress is permitted to legislate both with greater breadth and with greater flexibility when prescribing the rules by which the military shall be governed than it is when prescribing rules for the civilian society. 10 U.S.C.A. SS 933, 934.	For the reasons which differentiate military society from civilian society, we think Congress is permitted 2562 to legislate both with greater breadth and with greater flexibility when prescribing the rules by which the former shall be governed than it is when prescribing rules for the latter.	Is Congress permitted to legislate military regulations with greater breadth and with greater flexibility than when prescribing rules for the civilian society?
5155	Font v. Laird, 318 F.Supp. 891, 896 (Md. 1970)	7	Congress' power to raise and maintain armies is based on constitutional power that is broad and sweeping and does not depend on contemporaneous existence of a war and may be exercised in time of peace. Military Selective Service Act of 1967, S 6(j), 50 U.S.C.A. App. S 456(j).	As background to the constitutional argument, it should be remembered that Congress's power to raise and maintain armies itself has a constitutional base, namely Article I, Section 8. This constitutional power is broad and sweeping, does not depend on the contemporaneous existence of a war and may be exercised in time of peace.	Does Congress' power to raise and maintain armies depend on the contemporaneous existence of a war?
5156	Wells Fargo Bank, N.A. v. Fisch, 103 A.D.3d 622, 622-23, 959 N.Y.S.2d 260, 260 (2013)	2	General rule is that plaintiff should be permitted to discontinue action without prejudice, unless defendant would be prejudiced thereby. McKinney's CPLR 3217(b).	"The general rule is that plaintiff should be permitted to discontinue the action without prejudice, unless defendant would be prejudiced thereby"	Is there a general rule that plaintiff should be permitted to discontinue the action without prejudice unless defendant would be prejudiced thereby?

5157	In re New York Skyline, Inc., 432 B.R. 66, 83 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2010)	26	Under New York law, meaning of "with prejudice" language in stipulation of discontinuance is subject to the usual rules of contract interpretation through which the court gives effect to the intention of the parties.	Nevertheless, the meaning of the "with prejudice" language is subject to the usual rules of contract interpretation through which the Court gives effect to the intention of the parties.	"Is the meaning of ""with prejudice"" language subject to the usual rules of contract interpretation through which the court gives effect to the intention of the parties?"
5158	C/S Solutions, Inc. v. Energy Maintenance Services Group LLC, 274 S.W.3d 299, 306–07 (Tex.App. Houston [1 Dist.],2008)	5	The distinction between a pure Rule 162 nonsuit, which voluntarily dismisses the entire case, and a voluntary dismissal that abandons the case as to certain parties and/or claims has no practical effect when a plaintiff files a written "nonsuit" that abandons the case as to certain claims so long as the written "nonsuit" does not run afoul of the time restrictions in pleading rule that allows a plaintiff to file an amended pleading that omits a claim, as under the liberal pleading rules, the document is in substance an amended pleading voluntarily dismissing the claims, notwithstanding the fact that the word "nonsuit" appears. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 63, 71, 162, 163.	Based on these rules, treatises have drawn a distinction between a pure Rule 162 nonsuit, which voluntarily dismisses the entire case, and a voluntary dismissal that abandons the case as to certain parties and/or claims. See 5 ROY W. MCDONALD & ELAINE A. CARLSON, TEXAS CIVIL PRACTICE 27.43 (1999); 1 TEX. JUR.3D Actions 248, 267, 271 (2004). This distinction has no practical effect when a plaintiff files a written "nonsuit" that abandons the case as to certain claims so long as the written "nonsuit" does not run afoul of the time restrictions in Rule 63. 6 Under our liberal pleading rules, the *307 document is in substance an amended pleading voluntarily dismissing the claims, notwithstanding the fact that the word "nonsuit" appears.	What is the distinction between a pure Rule 162 nonsuit and a voluntary dismissal?
5159	Citigroup Global Markets Inc. v. Abbar, 761 F.3d 268, 274 (C.A.2 (N.Y.), 2014)	3	Arbitration rules of an industry self-regulatory organization such as the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) are interpreted like contract terms; the organization's arbitration provision should thus be interpreted to give effect to the parties' intent as expressed by the plain language of the provision.	The arbitration rules of an industry self-regulatory organization such as FINRA 4 are interpreted like contract terms; "the organization's arbitration provision 'should thus be interpreted to give effect to the parties' intent as expressed by the plain language of the provision.	"Is the interpretation of the arbitration rules of an industry self-regulatory organization (or SRO), similar to contract interpretation?"
5160	In re Bunker Hill Urb. Renewal Project 1B of Cmty. Redevelopment Agency of City of Los Angeles, 61 Cal. 2d 21, 73, 389 P.2d 538, 571 (1964)	41	Subject to constitutional restrictions, Legislature has absolute power over organization, dissolution, powers and liability of flood control districts and school districts.	The non-chartered taxing agencies here involved, the flood control and school districts, derive their taxing power from the general law and, subject to constitutional restrictions, the Legislature has absolute power over the organization, dissolution, powers, and liability of such corporations.	"Subject to constitutional restrictions, does legislature have absolute power over organization, dissolution, powers, and liability of flood control districts and school districts?"
5161	Chappy v. Labor and Industry Review Com'n, 381 N.W.2d 552, 557, 128 Wis.2d 318, 326 (Wis.App.,1985)	12	Worker's compensation statutes are economic regulations by which legislature has balanced competing societal interests as a matter of public policy.	Worker's compensation statutes are economic regulations by which the legislature has balanced competing societal interests as a matter of public policy.	Are workers compensation statutes economic regulations by which the legislature has balanced competing societal interests as a matter of public policy?

5162	Board of Ed. of City of Chicago v. Chicago Teachers Union, Local No. 1, 402 N.E.2d 641, 645, 37 Ill.Dec. 639, 643, 82 Ill.App.3d 354, 359 (Ill.App. 1 Dist., 1980)	5	Although Workmen's Compensation Act provides an employee with exclusive statutory remedy against employer for industrial accident, Act does not prevent parties from agreeing to contract to supplement benefits conferred by Act. S.H.A. ch. 48, SS 138.1 et seq., 138.5(a), 138.11.	Although these sections and other provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act provide an employee with an exclusive statutory remedy against his employer for an industrial accident (Duley v. Caterpillar Tractor Co. (1969), 44 Ill.2d 15, 253 N.E.2d 373), they do not prevent the parties from agreeing by contract to supplement the benefits conferred by the Act.	Can parties enter into contracts to supplement benefits conferred by the Workers Compensation Act?
5163	Sanders v. Doe, 831 F.Supp. 886, 891 (S.D.Ga., 1993)	9	Workers' compensation laws shift risk of work-related injury from employee to employer but compromise employee's right to sue at common law.	Workers' compensation laws shift the risk of work-related injury from the employee to the employer but compromise the employee's right to sue at common law.	"Do workers compensation laws shift the risk of work-related injury from the employee to the employer, but compromise the employees right to sue at common law?"
5164	J. Schnarr & Co. v. Virginia-Carolina Chemical Corp., 118 Fla. 258, 264 (Fla. 1935)	15	Nonsuit is "voluntary" when plaintiff allows judgment to be entered against him for costs by absenting himself or failing to answer when called on to hear verdict (Comp.Gen.Laws 1927, S 4357).	It is voluntary when the plaintiff allows judgment to be entered against him for costs by absenting himself or failing to answer when called upon to hear the verdict.	"Is a nonsuit ""voluntary"" when a plaintiff allows judgment to be entered against him for costs by absenting himself or failing to answer when called on to hear a verdict?"
5165	Duke v. Sun Oil Co., 320 F.2d 853, 861 (C.A.Tex. 1963)	21	Check is simply a written order on a bank, executory in nature, instructing bank to make certain payment, and so far as payee's rights against drawee are concerned, order may be revoked by drawer at any time before check is paid or in some manner accepted by bank on which it is drawn.	A check is simply a written order on a bank, executory in nature, instructing the bank to make certain payment, and so far as the payee's rights against the drawee are concerned, this order may be revoked by the drawer at any time before the check is paid or in some manner accepted by the bank on which it is drawn.	Can a check be revoked by the drawer?
5167	Jenkins v. Devine Foods, 3 N.J. 450, 458, 70 A.2d 736, 739 (1950)	5	The purpose of pre-trial conference is to simplify the issues, amend pleadings where necessary and avoid unnecessary proof of facts at the trial. Rules 3:16, 3:79.	'The purpose of the pre-trial conference is to simplify the issues, amend the pleadings where necessary, and to avoid unnecessary proof of facts at the trial.' McDonald v.	"Is purpose of pre-trial conference to simplify the issues, amend pleadings where necessary and avoid unnecessary proof of facts at the trial?"
5168	State ex rel. Weirton Med. Ctr. v. Mazzone, 214 W. Va. 146, 151 (2002)	4	Ordinarily, the scheduling order entered by a trial court controls the course of litigation of a case unless modified by a subsequent order. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 16(b).	5 Ordinarily, the scheduling order entered by a trial court pursuant to Rule 16 controls the course of litigation of a case unless modified by a subsequent order.	Does the scheduling order entered by a trial court control the course of litigation of a case unless modified by a subsequent order?

5170	Woodward v. Heritage Const. Co., 887 N.E.2d 994, 1000 (Ind. Ct. App. 2008)	11	The purpose of a pre-trial order is to recite agreements made by the parties during the pre-trial hearing and, once entered, a pre-trial order shall control the subsequent course of action unless modified thereafter to prevent manifest injustice. Trial Procedure Rule 16(J).	"[T]he purpose of a pre-trial order is to recite agreements made by the parties during the pre-trial hearing and ..., once entered, a pre-trial order shall control the subsequent course of action unless modified thereafter to prevent manifest injustice." Hamlin v. Sourwine, 666 N.E.2d 404, 409 (Ind.Ct.App.1996) (citing T.R. 16(J)).	Does a pre-trial order control the subsequent course of the action?
5171	Feykert v. Hardy, 213 Cal. App. 2d 67, 74, 28 Cal. Rptr. 510, 514 (Ct. App. 1963)	4	Until presented with request for its modification, trial judge has right to rely on posture of case defined by pretrial conference order.	Until presented with a request for its modification, the trial judge has a right to rely on the posture of the case defined by the pretrial conference order.	"Until presented with request for its modification, does a trial judge have a right to rely on posture of a case defined by a pretrial conference order?"
5172	Mitsubishi Motors Corp. v. Soler Chrysler-Plymouth, Inc., 473 U.S. 614, 615 (U.S.Puerto Rico, 1985)	8	Potential complexity of antitrust matters does not suffice to ward off arbitration nor does arbitration panel pose too great a danger of innate hostility to constraints on business conduct that antitrust law imposes. 9 U.S.C.A. § 1 et seq.	So too, the potential complexity of antitrust matters does not suffice to ward off arbitration; nor does an arbitration panel pose too great a danger of innate hostility to the constraints on business conduct that antitrust law imposes.	Will an arbitration panel pose too great a danger of innate hostility to the constraints on business conduct that antitrust law imposes?
5173	Payne v. Nichols, 176 S.W.2d 961, 963 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943), writ refused W.O.M. (Feb. 2, 1944)	3	Plaintiff's statutory right to dismiss his suit voluntarily is absolute, and is without prejudice to his subsequent assertion of the matters asserted therein. Rev.St.1925, art. 2182.	[3] [4] [5] The right of a plaintiff to dismiss voluntarily his suit under Art. 2182 is absolute. And it is without any prejudice to any subsequent assertion by him of the matters he asserted in such suit.	"Is a plaintiff's statutory right to dismiss his suit voluntarily absolute, and is it without prejudice to his subsequent assertion of the matters asserted therein?"
5174	Brown v. United Ins. Co. of America, 233 S.E.2d 298, 300, 268 S.C. 254, 258 (S.C. 1977)	5	Pretrial conference should be utilized to shorten and simplify the trial process and, if necessary, to eliminate it; conference is designed, at least in part, to cut down on time needlessly spent in the courtroom, at heavy expense to judiciary and the bar as well as to the parties and the public. Circuit Court Rules, rule 43.	In the present case the trial judge was furthering the purpose of the pretrial conference: to shorten and simplify the trial process; if necessary, to eliminate it. The conference is designed, at least in part, to cut down on time needlessly spent in the courtroom, at heavy expense to the judiciary and bar, the parties and the public.	How should a Pretrial conference be utilized and designed?
5175	Benware v. Means, 752 So.2d 841, 845-46, 1999-1410 La. 1/19/00, 6-7 (La.,2000)	1	Because the pre-trial conference is an invaluable tool for promoting a fair and speedy trial and aiding in the reduction of the court's backlog of cases, pre-trial orders must be strictly adhered to by the parties. LSA-C.C.P. art. 1551.	Because the pre-trial conference is an invaluable tool for promoting a fair and speedy trial and aiding in the reduction of the court's backlog of cases, pre-trial orders must be strictly adhered to by the parties.	Should the pre-trial orders be strictly adhered to for promoting a fair and speedy trial?

5176	Malloy v. Vanwinkle, 94-2060 (La. App. 4 Cir. 9/28/95), 662 So. 2d 96, 99 (1995)	2	One purpose of pretrial order is to narrow issues for trial to what is really in dispute and save time and effort that otherwise would be expended proving facts as to which there is no real contest. LSA-C.C.P. art. 1551.	[2] One purpose of the pretrial order is to narrow the issues for trial to what is really in dispute and save the time and effort that otherwise would be expended proving facts as to which there is no real contest. See La.Code Civ.Proc. art. 1551 (and the Reporter's foreword thereto).	Would narrowing the issues for trial be the only purpose of a pretrial order?
5177	King v. Zimmerman, 266 Mont. 54, 66 (Mont.,1994)	15	Purpose of pretrial orders is to prevent surprise, simplify issues, and permit counsel to prepare their case for trial on basis of pretrial orders.	The purpose of pretrial orders is to prevent surprise, simplify the issues, and permit counsel to prepare their case for trial on the basis of the pretrial order.	"Is the purpose of pretrial orders to prevent surprise, simplify issues, and permit counsel to prepare their case for trial on basis of pretrial orders?"
5178	Itron, Inc. v. Consort Inc., 109 A.3d 583, 587 (Del.Ch., 2015)	4	Courts generally hold stipulations, agreements, or statements of counsel made at the pretrial conference to be binding for purposes of the trial.	"Courts generally hold stipulations, agreements, or statements of counsel made at the pretrial conference binding for purposes of the trial."	"Do courts generally hold stipulations, agreements, or statements of counsel made at the pretrial conference to be binding for purposes of the trial?"
5181	Karlseng v. Cooke, 286 S.W.3d 51, 57 (Tex. App. 2009)	5	When the basis for a requested continuance is want of testimony, the movant must show (1) the testimony is material, (2) due diligence has been used to obtain the testimony, (3) there is an explanation given for the failure to obtain the testimony, and (4) the testimony cannot be procured from another source.	When the basis for the requested continuance is "want of testimony," the movant must show (1) the testimony is material, (2) due diligence has been used to obtain the testimony, (3) there is an explanation given for the failure to obtain the testimony, and (4) the testimony cannot be procured from another source.	What should the movant show when the basis for a requested continuance is want of testimony?
5182	Cooper v. Rosser, 207 S.E.2d 513, 515, 232 Ga. 597, 598 (Ga. 1974)	3	Pretrial order should be liberally construed to allow consideration of all questions fairly within ambit of contested issues and where question of precluding issues is raised, matter is within discretion of trial judge. Code, S 81A-116.	A pre-trial order should be liberally construed to allow the consideration of all questions fairly within the ambit of the contested issues. Where the question of precluding issues is raised the matter is within the discretion of the trial judge.	"Is the matter within discretion of the trial judge, where a question of precluding issues is raised?"
5183	Cockrell v. Garton, 507 N.W.2d 38, 41, 244 Neb. 359, 363 (Neb.,1993)	5	In relation to evidence, pretrial conference is designed for and primarily used to restrict evidence to issues formulated, secure admissions or stipulations, and avoid unduly cumulative evidence and necessity of proving foundation for clearly competent evidence; it is neither designed for nor intended to arbitrarily exclude noncumulative evidence pertinent to issues simply because it was not mentioned at pretrial hearing.	In relation to evidence, the pretrial conference is designed for and primarily used to restrict evidence to the issues formulated, secure admissions or stipulations, and avoid unduly cumulative evidence and the necessity of proving foundation in clearly competent evidence; it is neither designed for nor intended to arbitrarily exclude noncumulative evidence pertinent to the issues simply because it was not mentioned at the pretrial hearing.	How is a pretrial conference designed in relation to evidence?

5184	Reyna Financial Corp. v. Lewis Service Center, Inc., 229 Neb. 878, 879 (Neb.,1988)	1	Issue specified at pretrial conference control the course of the action unless altered by the trial court, and constitute issues upon which case is to be tried.	However, our cases hold that "[i]ssues specified at a pretrial conference control the course of an action and, unless altered by the court, constitute the issues on which the case is tried."	Does an issue specified at the pretrial conference control the course of the action unless altered by the trial court?
5185	Woodward v. Heritage Const. Co., 887 N.E.2d 994, 1000 (Ind. Ct. App. 2008)	11	The purpose of a pre-trial order is to recite agreements made by the parties during the pre-trial hearing and, once entered, a pre-trial order shall control the subsequent course of action unless modified thereafter to prevent manifest injustice. Trial Procedure Rule 16(J).	"[T]he purpose of a pre-trial order is to recite agreements made by the parties during the pre-trial hearing and ..., once entered, a pre-trial order shall control the subsequent course of action unless modified thereafter to prevent manifest injustice." Hamlin v. Sourwine, 666 N.E.2d 404, 409 (Ind.Ct.App.1996) (citing T.R. 16(J)).	Does a pre-trial order control the subsequent course of the action?
5186	Klinghoffer v. Barasch, 4 Cal. App. 3d 258, 261-62, 84 Cal. Rptr. 350, 352 (Ct. App. 1970)	2	Where a complaint in intervention seeks only to resist plaintiff's cause of action, plaintiff still retains privilege of voluntary dismissal, which will apply to intervenor as well. West's Ann.Code Civ.Proc. SS 387, 581, subds. 1, 5.	But where a complaint in intervention seeks only to resist the plaintiff's cause of action, plaintiff still retains the privilege of a voluntary dismissal, which will apply to the intervenor as well.	"Where a complaint in intervention seeks only to resist a plaintiff's cause of action, does the plaintiff still retain a privilege of voluntary dismissal?"
5187	Black v. Don Schmid Motor, Inc., 657 P.2d 517, 526, 232 Kan. 458, 468 (Kan., 1983)	14	Purpose of pretrial order is to define and clarify the issues and, when entered pursuant to statute, the order has full force and effect of other orders of the court and controls the subsequent course of the trial unless modified to prevent manifest injustice. Rules Civ.Proc., K.S.A. 60-216.	This court has often held that the purpose of the pretrial order is to define and clarify the issues, and when entered pursuant to K.S.A. 60-216, has the full force and effect of other orders of the court and controls the subsequent course of trial unless modified to prevent manifest injustice.	Do orders at pretrial conference have full force of other orders?
5188	People ex rel. Du Page Cnty. v. Smith, 21 Ill.2d 572, 583 (1961)	20	Service charges, tolls, water rates and the like are contractual in nature, either express or implied, and are compensation for the use of another's property or of an improvement made by another, and their amount is determined by cost of property or improvement and the consideration of return which such an expenditure should yield.	Service charges, tolls, water rates and the like are, on the other hand, contractual in nature, either express or implied, and are compensation for the use of another's property, or of an improvement made by another, and their amount is determined by the cost of the 492 property or improvement and the consideration of the return which such an expenditure should yield.	What is the contrast between a tax and a service charge?
5189	McLeod v. Columbia Cnty., 278 Ga. 242, 244 (Ga.,2004)	4	A legislative body's characterization of the amounts collectible for services rendered as being fees is not controlling on the question of whether they constitute fees or taxes.	A legislative body's characterization of the amounts collectible "for services rendered as being fees is not controlling on the question of whether they constitute fees or taxes....	Is a legislative body's characterization of the amounts collectible for services rendered as being fees controlling on the question of whether they constitute fees or taxes?

5190	Nixon v. Secretary of Navy, 422 F.2d 934, 937 (C.A.N.Y. 1970)	2	The Navy is bound by its own validly promulgated regulations, and federal district courts are free to entertain suits by servicemen requesting compliance with such rules.	While the courts are reluctant to interfere in military affairs, the Navy is bound by its own validly promulgated regulations, and the district courts are free to entertain suits by servicemen requesting compliance with such rules.	Are the federal district courts free to entertain suits by servicemen requesting compliance with rules promulgated by the Navy?
5192	Bowman v. Benouttas, 519 S.W.3d 586, 603 (Tenn.Ct.App., 2016)	32	A trial court has the discretion to enter a scheduling order that, inter alia, limits the time to complete and respond to discovery. Tenn. R. Civ. P. 16.01.	A trial court has the discretion to enter a scheduling order that, inter alia, limits the time to complete and respond to discovery.	"Does a trial court have the discretion to enter a scheduling order that, inter alia, limits the time to complete and respond to discovery?"
5193	Marrow v. State Farm Ins. Co., 264 Ark. 227, 237 (Ark., 1978)	5	Motion for production of documents must be considered in light of particular circumstances which give rise to it and need of moving party for information requested.	A motion for production of documents must be considered in the light of the particular circumstances which give rise to it and the need of the movant for the information requested.	Must a motion for production of documents be considered in light of particular circumstances which give rise to it and need of movant for information requested?
5194	Norton v. Ewaskio, 241 S.C. 557, 561 (S.C. 1963)	2	Motion for continuance based on absence of material witness is addressed to sound discretion of trial judge, and his ruling will not be disturbed in absence of an abuse of discretion.	A motion for a continuance based on the ground of the absence of a material witness is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial Judge, and it is well settled that the trial Judge's ruling will not be disturbed unless it be shown that there was an abuse of discretion.	"In a motion for continuance based on the absence of a material witness, will a trial judge's ruling not be disturbed in absence of an abuse of discretion?"
5195	In re Team Rocket, L.P., 256 S.W.3d 257, 260 (Tex. 2008)	5	Once a ruling is made on the merits, as in a summary judgment, that decision becomes final as to that issue and cannot be vitiated by nonsuiting and refiling the case. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 162.	Once a ruling is made on the merits, as in a summary judgment, that decision becomes final as to that issue and cannot be vitiated by nonsuiting and refiling the case.	"Once a ruling is made on the merits, as in a summary judgment, does that decision become final as to that issue and cannot be vitiated by nonsuiting and refiling the case?"
5196	Hawk v. Branjes, 97 Wash. App. 776, 782-83 (1999)	3	While a voluntary dismissal generally divests a court of jurisdiction to decide a case on the merits, an award of attorney fees pursuant to a statutory provision or contractual agreement is collateral to the underlying proceeding; as a result, the court retains jurisdiction for the limited purpose of considering a defendant's motion for fees. CR 41(a)(1).	While a voluntary dismissal under CR 41(a)(1) generally divests a court of jurisdiction to decide a case on the merits, an award of attorneys' fees pursuant to a statutory provision *783 or contractual agreement is collateral to the underlying proceeding. As a result, the court retains jurisdiction for the limited purpose of considering a defendant's motion for fees.	"Once a case is voluntarily dismissed, is a trial court divested of jurisdiction to proceed in the case in any manner?"
5197	Neal v. Hall, 28 So.2d 131, 133 (La.App. 2 Cir. 1946)	6	A dismissal of suit as of nonsuit restores matters to the status occupied before the suit was instituted and leaves the party free again to come into court with his complaint.	A voluntary dismissal, without prejudice, restores matters to the status occupied before the suit was instituted and leaves the party free again to come into court with his complaint.	Does a dismissal without prejudice restore matters to the status occupied before the suit was instituted and leaves the party free to again come into court with his complaint?

5199	Kelly v. Colston, 977 So.2d 692, 694 (Fla.App. 1 Dist.,2008)	2	The effect of a voluntary dismissal prior to submission of case to the court is immediate, final, and irreversible; it terminates the litigation and instantaneously divests the court of its jurisdiction to enter further orders. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420.	The effect of a voluntary dismissal prior to submission is immediate, final, and irreversible. It terminates the litigation and instantaneously divests the court of its jurisdiction to enter further orders.	"Is the effect of a voluntary dismissal prior to submission of case to the court immediate, final, and irreversible?"
5200	School Dist. of City of Scranton v. Dale and Dale Design and Development, Inc., 559 Pa. 398, 406 (1999)	7	In determining whether a tax duplicates another tax and results in double taxation prohibited to local taxing authorities, the operation or incidence of the two taxes is controlling as against mere differences in terminology from time to time employed in describing taxes in various cases; the incidence of a tax embraces the subject matter thereof and, more important, the measure of the tax, i.e., the base or yardstick by which the tax is applied.	It is well-established that [i]n determining whether a tax duplicates another tax and results in double taxation prohibited to local taxing authorities, the operation or incidence of the two taxes is controlling as against mere differences in terminology from time to time employed in describing taxes in various cases. The incidence of a tax embraces the subject matter thereof and, more important, the measure of the tax, i.e., the base or yardstick by which the tax is applied.	How is double taxation determined?
5201	Fish v. Industrial Commission, 472 P.2d 97, 101, 12 Ariz.App. 486, 490 (Ariz.App. 1970)	1	Industrial compensation is not based on good moral character of claimant but is founded on claim coming within scope of workmen's compensation statutes. A.R.S. SS 23-1041, 23-1046, subsec. B, 23-1064.	Also, industrial compensation is not based on the good moral character of the claimant but is founded simply on an injury *121 1312 that is within the scope of the Workers' Compensation statutes.	Is industrial compensation based on good moral character of the claimant or founded on a claim coming within the scope of the workmens compensation statutes?
5203	United States v. Gatling, 96 F.3d 1511, 1522 (C.A.D.C., 1996)	13	Central difference between accepting bribe and accepting gratuity is degree of culpable intent on part of recipient; to convict defendant for accepting bribe, jury must find that defendant acted corruptly, whereas to convict for accepting gratuity, jury need only find that defendant acted knowingly and willingly. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201.	A central difference between accepting a bribe and accepting a gratuity is the degree of culpable intent on the part of the recipient; to convict a defendant for accepting a bribe a jury must find that the defendant acted "corruptly," whereas to convict for accepting a gratuity the jury need only find that the defendant acted "knowingly and willingly	What is the central difference between accepting a bribe and accepting a gratuity?
5204	Yorkshire Worsted Mills v. Nat'l Transit Co., 325 Pa. 427, 428, 190 A. 897, 898 (1937)	1	"Bill of discovery" in aid of action at law is equitable remedy to enable litigant to obtain, prior to trial, such information as is in exclusive possession of adverse party and is necessary to establishment of complainant's case.	A bill of discovery in aid of an action at law is an equitable remedy to enable a litigant to obtain, prior to trial, such information as is in exclusive possession of the adverse party and is necessary to the establishment of the complainant's case.	Is a bill of discovery an equitable remedy in law?
5206	Kidd v. Cincinnati Transit Co., 24 Ohio App.2d 101, 102 (Ohio App. 1970)	4	It is the policy of the law that parties to an action should have the benefit of personal attendance of material witnesses to a trial whenever reasonably practicable.	It is the policy of the law that the parties to an action should have the benefit of the personal attendance of material witnesses to a trial whenever reasonably practicable.	Is it the policy of the law that parties to an action should have the benefit of personal attendance of material witnesses to a trial whenever reasonably practicable?

5208	Medina v. Osiecki, 916 N.E.2d 541, 544 (Ohio Mun. 2009)	3	A case that has been voluntarily dismissed is treated as though it had never been filed; the parties are returned to the position they were in prior to commencement of the action.	"A case that has been voluntarily dismissed is treated as though it had never been filed. Zimmie v. Zimmie (1984), 11 Ohio St.3d 94, 95, 11 OBR 396, 464 N.E.2d 142. The parties are returned to the position they were in prior to commencement of the action.	Is a case that has been voluntarily dismissed treated as though it had never been filed and do the parties return to the position they were in prior to commencement of the action?
5209	Richter v. Prairie Farms Dairy, Inc., 2016 IL 119518, ¶ 39 (Ill., 2016)	26	A voluntary dismissal terminates the entire action and renders immediately appealable all final orders entered therein that were not previously appealable. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-1009.	A voluntary dismissal pursuant to section 2-1009 terminates the entire action and renders immediately appealable all final orders entered therein that were not previously appealable.	Does a voluntary dismissal terminate the entire action and renders immediately appealable all final orders entered therein that were not previously appealable?
5213	Velasco v. Chambliss, 295 Ga. App. 376, 376, 671 S.E.2d 870, 871 (2008)	2	The trial court is vested with broad discretion to permit withdrawal of an admission made by reason of the failure to make a timely response to the request. West's Ga.Code Ann. S 9-11-36(b).	Under OCGA § 9-11-36(b), the trial court is vested with broad discretion to permit withdrawal of an admission made by reason of the failure to make a timely response to the request.	Does a trial court have broad discretion to permit the withdrawal of an admission made by failing to timely respond to a request?
5215	Bonds v. Byrd, 765 So.2d 1205, 1209 (La.App. 2 Cir.,2000)	6	Trial court's discretion to grant a voluntary dismissal is not unbridled; a trial court may not dismiss a suit without prejudice if substantive rights acquired by the defendant would thereby be lost or if the dismissal would deprive the defendant of a just defense.	This discretion is not unbridled; a trial court may not dismiss a suit without prejudice if substantive rights acquired by the defendant would thereby be lost or if the dismissal would deprive the defendant of a just defense.	"Is a trial court's discretion to grant a voluntary dismissal, unbridled?"
5216	Ashpole v. Millard, 778 S.W.2d 169, 171 (Tex.App. Hous. [1 Dist.],1989)	4	Taking of voluntary nonsuit does not constitute litigating of issues in case and does not prejudice parties against seeking the same relief in subsequent suit.	The taking of a voluntary nonsuit does not constitute a litigating of the issues in a case, and does not prejudice the parties against seeking the same relief in a subsequent suit.	Does taking of a voluntary nonsuit constitute litigation of issues in a case and does not prejudice parties against seeking the same relief in a subsequent suit?
5217	Liberman v. Liberman, 844 S.W.2d 79, 81 (Mo.App. E.D. 1992)	5	When plaintiff voluntarily dismisses action without prejudice before introduction of evidence at trial, trial court loses jurisdiction as of date of dismissal. V.A.M.R. 67.01.	When a plaintiff voluntarily dismisses an action without prejudice before introduction of evidence at trial, the trial court loses jurisdiction as of the date of dismissal.	"When a plaintiff voluntarily dismisses an action without prejudice before introduction of evidence at trial, does the trial court lose jurisdiction as of the date of dismissal?"
5221	Lugue v. Hercules, Inc., 12 F. Supp. 2d 1351, 1359 (S.D. Ga. 1997)	15	Under Georgia law, no proof of actual injury to the land or a diminution in the property's value is required to maintain an action for trespass, and nominal damages can be awarded when the amount of actual injury is unclear. O.C.G.A. S 51-9-1.	It is well established that no proof of actual injury to the land or a diminution in the property's value is required to maintain an action for trespass. Marshall v. Georgia Power Co., 134 Ga.App. 479, 480, 214 S.E.2d 728, 730 (1975); Batson v. Higginbotham, 7 Ga.App. 835, 838, 68 S.E. 455 (1910); Pausch v. Guerrard, 67 Ga. 319, 323 (1881). Nominal damages can be awarded when the amount of actual injury is unclear.	Can nominal damages can be awarded when the amount of actual injury is unclear in a trespass action?

5222	McGarrah v. State Acc. Ins. Fund Corp., 296 Or. 145, 160–61 (Or.,1983)	2	The theory underlying workers' compensation acts is the financial burden of losses due to injuries occurring in business should be treated as business expenses or production costs to be borne, not by the employee, but by the employer, who can transfer the burden to the consumer. ORS 656.001 et seq.	The theory underlying workers' compensation acts is that the financial burden of losses due to injuries occurring in business should be treated as business expenses or production costs to be borne, not by the employee, but by the employer, who can transfer the burden to the 169 consumer.	What is the theory underlying workers compensation acts?
5223	McGough v. McCarthy Imp. Co., 206 Minn. 1, 5 (Minn. 1939)	5	A basic thought underlying the compensation act is that the business or industry shall in the first instance pay for accidental injuries to employees as a business expense or as a part of the cost of production. Mason's Minn.St.1927, S 4261 et seq. (M.S.A. S 176.02 et seq.).	A basic thought underlying the compensation act is that the business or industry shall in the first instance pay for accidental injuries as a business expense or a part of the cost of production.' Id., 139 Minn. page 209, 166 N.W. page 187, 3 A.L.R. 1347.	Should business or industry pay for accidental injuries as a business expense or as part of the cost of production?
5224	American Mut. Liability Ins. Co. v. Reed Cleaners, 265 Minn. 503, 509–10 (MINN 1963)	7	Liability of employer or compensation carrier to pay compensation benefits does not depend upon any cause of action employee might have against a third party, as liability exists whenever injury incurred arose out of and in the course of employment, regardless of negligence. M.S.A. s 176.011, subd. 16.	The liability of the employer or its insurer to pay compensation benefits clearly does not depend upon any cause of action the employee might have against a third party, as liability exists in any event where the injury was incurred 'arising out of and in the course of' his employment, regardless of negligence of anyone. Minn.St. 176.011, subd. 16.	What does the employer or compensation carriers liability to pay compensation benefits not depend on?
5225	Anderson v. Laird, 437 F.2d 912, 914 (C.A.III. 1971)	3	In matters properly within area of military discretion, it is not for civil courts to judge whether the military has properly determined balance between military needs and personal rights.	And, in matters properly within the area of military discretion, it is not for civil courts to judge whether the military has properly determined the balance between military needs and personal rights.	Is it for the civil courts to judge whether the military has properly determined balance between military needs and personal rights?
5228	People v. Latora, 128 A.D.2d 807, 807, 513 N.Y.S.2d 509, 511 (1987)	1	To obtain conviction of burglary in first degree, State was required to prove that complainant suffered "physical injury," which is defined as "impairment of physical condition or substantial pain." McKinney's Penal Law SS 10.00, subd. 9, 140.30, subd. 2.	To obtain a conviction of burglary in the first degree (Penal Law § 140.30[2]), the People were required to prove that the complainant suffered a "physical injury", which is defined as "impairment of physical condition or substantial pain" (Penal Law § 10.00[9]).	Does first degree burglary conviction require physical injury to the victim?

5229	Einhaus v. O. Ames Co., 547 S.W.2d 821, 825 (Mo.App. 1977)	4	General allegation of negligence predicated on act of defendant causing plaintiff's injury is sufficient as against an objection that no cause of action is stated, and it is not necessary to state specific facts showing the negligence in order to state a cause of action; plaintiff must, however, allege facts sufficient to inform defendant of breach of duty with which he is charged, and, if facts are within plaintiff's knowledge, he should be required to state them with reasonable particularity.	In Missouri a general allegation of negligence predicated on an act of the defendant causing plaintiff's injury is sufficient as against an objection that no cause of action is stated, and it is not necessary to state specific facts showing the negligence in order to state a cause of action. A plaintiff must, however, allege facts sufficient to inform the defendant of the breach of duty with which he is charged, and, if the facts are within the plaintiff's knowledge, he should be required to state them with reasonable particularity.	Should a plaintiff allege facts sufficient to inform the defendant of the breach of duty with which he is charged?
5230	City of Krum v. Rice, 508 S.W.3d 808, 824 (Tex.App.-Fort Worth, 2016)	20	A trial court may allow the withdrawal of a deemed admission upon a showing of (1) good cause and (2) no undue prejudice. Tex. R. Civ. P. 198.3.	[A] trial court may allow the withdrawal of a deemed admission upon a showing of (1) good cause and (2) no undue prejudice. Tex.	May a trial court allow the withdrawal of a deemed admission upon a showing of (1) good cause and (2) no undue prejudice?
5231	Dwight v. Girard Medical Center, 623 A.2d 913, 916, 154 Pa.Cmwlth. 326, 333 (Pa.Cmwlth., 1993)	7	If subject matter of admissions is broad and far-reaching, court should permit withdrawal of admissions in absence of bad faith or substantial prejudice. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 4014(d), 42 Pa.C.S.A.	Furthermore, if the subject matter of the admissions is broad and far-reaching, a court should permit withdrawal in the absence of bad faith or substantial prejudice.	"If subject matter of admissions is broad and far-reaching, should a court permit a withdrawal of admissions in absence of bad faith or substantial prejudice?"
5234	Marshall v. District of Columbia, 391 A.2d 1374, 1379 (D.C., 1978)	1	Unless party demonstrates prejudice by reliance on previous admissions, trial court should extend permission to withdraw or amend admissions. D.C.C.E. SCR, Civil Rule 36(b).	Accordingly, unless a party demonstrates prejudice by reliance upon previous admissions, the trial court can and should extend permission to withdraw or amend.	"Unless a party demonstrates prejudice by reliance on previous admissions, should a trial court extend permission to withdraw or amend admissions?"
5236	Cleveland Tr. Co. v. Willis, 20 Ohio St. 3d 66, 67, 485 N.E.2d 1052, 1053 (1985)	2	Trial court may permit withdrawal of a matter admitted under Rule 36 regarding request for admission if withdrawal will aid in presenting merits of case and party who obtained admission fails to satisfy court that withdrawal will prejudice him in maintaining his action. Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 36, 36(B).	Any matter admitted under Civ.R. 36 is conclusively established unless the court on motion permits withdrawal or amendment of the admission. Civ.R. 36(B). The court may permit the withdrawal if it will aid in presenting the merits of the case and the party who obtained the admission fails to satisfy the court that withdrawal will prejudice him in maintaining his action.	May a trial court permit withdrawal of a matter admitted under Rule 36?
5237	United States v. Gatling, 96 F.3d 1511, 1522 (C.A.D.C., 1996)	16	Timing is not determinative of whether payment constitutes bribe or gratuity for purposes of bribery statute, since statute proscribes offers and promises of bribes as well as giving of bribes, and it is only logical that in certain situations bribe will not actually be conveyed until act is done. 18 U.S.C.A. § 201.	Timing is not determinative of whether a payment constitutes a bribe or a gratuity, since "[t]he statute proscribes offers and promises of bribes as well as the giving of bribes, and it is only logical that in certain situations the bribe will not actually be conveyed until the act is done	"For purpose of bribery, do bribes have to be given before the official acts are done?"

5238	People v. Longo, 119 Cal. App. 2d 416, 420, 259 P.2d 53, 56 (1953)	5	It was not an essential of the crime of bribery that bribe was offered to official with actual authority as long as official's act falls within general scope of duties, and he purported to act in official capacity . Pen.Code, S 671/212.	Second, it is not essential to the crime of bribery that the officer's action is with actual authority so long as it falls within the general scope of his duties and he is purporting to act in his official capacity .	Is it essential to the crime of bribery that an officer's action is with actual authority so long as it falls within the general scope of his duties?
5239	Careau & Co. v. Sec. Pac. Bus. Credit, Inc., 222 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1390, 272 Cal. Rptr. 387, 396-97 (Ct. App. 1990)	11	Complaint must allege ultimate facts necessary to statement of actionable claims; it is both improper and insufficient for plaintiff to simply plead evidence by which he hopes to prove such ultimate facts.	A complaint must allege the ultimate facts necessary to the statement of an actionable claim. It is both improper and insufficient for a plaintiff 397 to simply plead the evidence by which he hopes to prove such ultimate facts.	Must a complaint allege the ultimate facts necessary to the statement of an actionable claim?
5240	Joachim v. Travelers Ins. Co., 279 S.W.3d 812, 816 (Tex. App. 2008), rev'd, 315 S.W.3d 860 (Tex. 2010)	9	A nonsuit returns the litigants to the positions they occupied before the plaintiff invoked the court's jurisdiction, rendering the merits of the case moot.	A nonsuit returns the litigants to the positions they occupied before the plaintiff invoked the court's jurisdiction.	"Does a nonsuit return the litigants to the positions they occupied before the plaintiff invoked the court's jurisdiction, rendering the merits of the case moot?"
5241	Norris v. Hearst Trust, 500 F.3d 454, 461 (5th Cir. 2007)	3	Under Texas law, subject to certain conditions, plaintiff who takes nonsuit is not precluded from filing subsequent suit seeking the same relief, and nonsuit may have effect of vitiating earlier interlocutory orders. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 162.	It is recognized that under Texas law "[s]ubject to certain conditions, a plaintiff who takes a nonsuit is not precluded from filing a subsequent suit seeking the same relief," Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v. Specia, 849 S.W.2d 805, 806 (Tex.1993), and "a nonsuit may have the effect of vitiating earlier interlocutory orders.	May a nonsuit have the effect of vitiating earlier interlocutory orders?
5242	Mireles v. Indiana Harbor Belt R.R. Corp., 154 Ill.App.3d 547, 554 (Ill.App. 1 Dist.,1987)	7	Where more than one attorney is involved in case, absence of one attorney at time of trial does not mean that case should be continued, especially where attorney who tries case has had prior involvement in case and is competent to try case.	Where more than one attorney is involved in a case, the absence of one of the attorneys at the time of trial does not mean that the case should be continued, especially where the attorney who tries the case has had prior involvement 134 470 in the case and is competent to try it.	"Where more than one attorney is involved in case, does absence of one attorney at time of trial mean that case should be continued, especially where attorney who tries case has had prior involvement in case and is competent to try the case?"
5243	Wilborn v. GE Marquette Med. Sys., Inc., 163 S.W.3d 264, 267 (Tex. App. 2005)	4	When the ground specified in a motion for a continuance is the withdrawal of counsel, movants must show that the failure to be represented at trial was not due to their own fault or negligence.	When the ground for the continuance is the withdrawal of counsel, movants must show that the failure to be represented at trial was not due to their own fault or negligence.	"When the ground for the continuance is the withdrawal of counsel, must movants show that the failure to be represented at trial was not due to their own fault or negligence?"
5244	Sims v. Day, 2004 WY 124, ¶ 15 (Wyo.,2004)	7	Withdrawal of an attorney does not entitle the party to a continuance if he created the situation and an unwarranted delay of judicial proceedings would occur.	Our settled rule states that the withdrawal of an attorney does not entitle the party to a continuance if he created *970 the situation and an unwarranted delay of judicial proceedings would occur.	Does withdrawal of an attorney not entitle the party to a continuance if he created the situation and an unwarranted delay of judicial proceedings would occur?

5245	Lowe v. City of Arlington, 453 S.W.2d 379, 382 (Tex.Civ.App., 1970)	3	Where it is shown that defendant's attorney has withdrawn from the case, it is duty of court to continue case a sufficient length of time to permit defendant to employ other counsel and to enable the new counsel to investigate the case and make defense.	of Tenn., Middle Sec., 1941, no writ hist.), the court said: [3] 'Where it is shown that defendant's attorney had withdrawn from the case, it is the duty of the court to continue the case a sufficient length of time to permit defendant to employ other counsel and to enable the new counsel to investigate the case and make defense.	"When a trial court allows an attorney to voluntarily withdraw, will it give the party time to secure new counsel and time for the new counsel to investigate the case and prepare for trial?"
5247	In re Estate of Herring, 970 S.W.2d 583, 589 (Tex. App. 1998)	18	It is improper to request that opposing party admit or deny each and every allegation made in his or her petition, and such request will not result in deemed admission. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 169.	For instance, it is improper to request that the opposing party admit or deny each and every allegation made in his or her petition, and such a request will not result in a deemed admission.	"Is it improper to request that opposing party admit or deny each and every allegation made in his or her petition, and such request will not result in a deemed admission?"
5249	Ramsey v. Edgepark, Inc., 66 Ohio App. 3d 99, 112 (Ohio App. 10 Dist., 1990)	17	Failure to respond at all to request for admissions will result in requests becoming admissions, and matter admitted conclusively established for purpose of pending action. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36.	Failure to respond at all to the requests will result in the requests becoming admissions, and the matter admitted conclusively established for the purpose of the pending action.	"Will failure to respond at all to request for admissions result in requests becoming admissions, and a matter admitted conclusively established for purpose of pending action?"
5250	Turner v. Mize, 280 Ga. App. 256, 259 (Ga.App., 2006)	14	Evidence is not admissible to controvert matters deemed to have been admitted by failure to answer requests for admission even if the substance of the matter deemed admitted was denied in the answer to the complaint. West's Ga.Code Ann. S 9-11-36(a)(2).	Nonetheless, we note that "evidence [is] not admissible to controvert matters deemed to have been admitted by failure to answer requests for admission even though the substance of the matter deemed admitted had been denied in the answer to the complaint." (Citation omitted.) Wurlitzer Co.	Is evidence not admissible to controvert matters deemed to have been admitted by failure to answer requests for admission even if the substance of the matter deemed admitted was denied in the answer to the complaint?
5251	Rafferty v. Scurry, 117 Ohio App.3d 240, 244 (Ohio App. 12 Dist.,1997)	4	When party fails to respond, without justification, to properly served request for admissions, those matters to which requests were addressed will be deemed admitted. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36.	When a party fails to respond, without justification, to a properly served request for admissions, those matters to which the requests were addressed will be deemed admitted. Civ.R. 36; Cleveland Trust Co.	"When a party fails to respond, without justification, to properly served request for admissions, will those matters to which requests were addressed be deemed admitted?"
5252	Hudson v. Winn, 859 S.W.2d 504, 506-07 (Tex. App. 1993)	3	Copy of requests for admissions, together with proof of service, must be filed with clerk of court, and proof of service is required before admissions will be deemed against a party. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 169, subd. 1.	Moreover, a copy of the requests for admissions, together with proof of service, *507 must be filed with the clerk of the court. Proof of service is required before admissions will be deemed against a party.	"Must a copy of requests for admissions, together with proof of service, be filed with the clerk of court, and proof of service is required before admissions will be deemed against a party?"
5253	Bliss v. Carmona, 418 So.2d 1017, 1019 (Fla.App. 3 Dist.,1982)	4	Certainty is required when pleading defenses and claims alike and pleading conclusions of law unsupported by allegation of ultimate fact is legally insufficient.	Certainty is required when pleading defenses, and pleading conclusions of law unsupported by allegations of ultimate fact is legally insufficient.	"Is certainty required when pleading defenses, and pleading conclusions of law unsupported by allegations of ultimate fact is legally insufficient?"

5254	Moss v. Malone, 880 S.W.2d 45, 50 (Tex. App. 1994)	2	When ground for continuance is withdrawal of counsel, movant must show that failure to be represented at trial was not due to her fault or negligence.	While the trial court's course of action will not be disturbed unless the record discloses a clear abuse of discretion; when the ground for the continuance is the withdrawal of counsel, the movant must show that the failure to be represented at trial was not due to their own fault or negligence.	"When ground for continuance is withdrawal of counsel, must a movant show that failure to be represented at trial was not due to her fault or negligence?"
5255	Garrett v. Bracy, 187 Kan. 207, 209 (1960)	2	Absence of attorney does not necessarily require that continuance be granted when associate counsel competent to represent party seeking continuance is in attendance.	Certainly the absence of an attorney does not necessarily require that a continuance be granted when associate counsel competent to represent the party seeking the continuance is in attendance.	Does absence of an attorney not necessarily require that a continuance be granted when associate counsel competent to represent party seeking continuance is in attendance?
5256	King v. Peeples, 328 Ga. App. 814, 818 (Ga.App., 2014)	8	Whether to grant a continuance is a matter for the trial court's discretion, even in the face of the sudden withdrawal of retained counsel.	Whether to grant a continuance is a matter for the trial court's discretion, even in the face of the "sudden withdrawal of retained counsel."	"Is the question of whether to grant a continuance a matter for the trial court's discretion, even in the face of the sudden withdrawal of retained counsel?"
5257	Pandozy v. Shamis, 254 S.W.3d 596, 601 (Tex. App. 2008)	8	When the ground for continuance is the withdrawal of counsel, the movants must show that the failure to be represented at trial was not due to their own fault or negligence. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 251.	However, when the ground for continuance is the withdrawal of counsel, the movants must show that the failure to be represented at trial was not due to their own fault or negligence.	"When the ground for a continuance is the withdrawal of counsel, must the movant show that the failure to be represented at trial was not due to her own fault or negligence?"
5258	First Interstate Bank of Texas, N.A. v. Burns, 951 S.W.2d 237, 240 (Tex.App. Austin,1997)	1	Legislative continuance statute allows parties represented by attorneys who are members of state legislature to obtain continuances under certain circumstances. V.T.C.A., Civil Practice & Remedies Code S 30.003.	The legislative continuance statute allows parties represented by attorneys who are members of the state legislature to obtain continuances under certain circumstances.	Does the legislative continuance statute allow parties represented by attorneys who are members of state legislature to obtain continuances under certain circumstances?
5259	Ruiz v. Nicolas Trevino Forwarding Agency, Inc., 888 S.W.2d 86, 89 (Tex. App. 1994)	4	When admissions are deemed, matters are conclusively established against admitting party unless court on motion permits withdrawal or amendment of admissions. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 169.	When admissions are deemed, the matters are conclusively established against the admitting party unless the court, on motion, permits withdrawal or amendment of the admissions.	"When admissions are deemed, are matters conclusively established against an admitting party unless a court on motion permits withdrawal or amendment of admissions?"
5260	Watts v. Lane Cnty., 142 Or. App. 489, 493, 922 P.2d 686, 689 (1996)	4	In appropriate cases, party that prevails at trial after opposing party denied requests for admission can recover its trial expenses, including attorney fees. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 46, subd. C.	In appropriate cases, a party that prevails at trial after the opposing party denied its requests for admission can recover its trial expenses, including attorney fees, under ORCP 46 C.	"Can a party that prevails at trial, after opposing party denies requests for admission, recover its trial expenses including attorney fees?"
5263	Ethridge v. Perryman, 363 S.W.2d 696, 703 (Mo. 1963)	12	Where it appears from pleadings, application for continuance and testimony that parties have prepared to meet issues tendered by amendment, a continuance on account of the amendment is not necessary. V.A.M.R. Civil Rule 55.53; Section 509.490 RSMo 1959, V.A.M.S.	where it appears from the pleadings, application for continuance and testimony that the parties have prepared to meet the issues tendered by the amendment, a continuance on account of the amendment is not necessary.	"Where it appears from pleadings that an application for continuance and testimony that parties have prepared to meet issues tendered by amendment, is a continuance on account of the amendment not necessary?"

5265	Soe v. Sex Offender Registry Bd., 466 Mass. 381, 392 (2013)	9	The decision whether to grant a continuance or stay ultimately requires and must rest upon a particularized inquiry into the circumstances of, and the competing interests in, the case.	The decision whether to grant the continuance or stay "ultimately requires and must rest upon 'a particularized inquiry into the circumstances of, and the competing interests in, the case.' "	"Does the decision whether to grant a continuance or stay, rest upon a particularized inquiry into the circumstances of the case?"
5267	Ward v. Stanford, 443 S.W.3d 334, 343 (Tex. App. 2014)	10	A promissory note is a negotiable instrument if it is a written unconditional promise to pay a sum certain in money, upon demand or at a definite time, and is payable to order or to bearer; a note is non-negotiable, however, if another instrument must be examined to determine the rights and obligations under the note.	A promissory note is a negotiable instrument if it is a written unconditional promise to pay a sum certain in money, upon demand or at a definite time, and is payable to order or to bearer. Id. at 407 (citing TEX. BUS. & COM.CODE ANN. § 3.104(a)). A note is non-negotiable, however, if another instrument must be examined to determine the rights and obligations under the note.	Should a negotiable instrument contain an unconditional promise to pay a certain sum of money?
5268	U.S. v. Arthur, 544 F.2d 730, 735 (C.A.4 (W.Va.), 1976)&(fn8)	11	Crucial distinction between "goodwill" expenditures and bribery is the existence or nonexistence of criminal intent that the benefit be received by the public official as a quid pro quo for some official act, pattern of acts, or agreement to act favorably to the donor when necessary. Code W.Va., 61-5A-3, 61-5A-6; 18 U.S.C.A. § 656.	The crucial distinction between "goodwill" expenditures and bribery is, then, the existence or nonexistence of criminal intent that the benefit be received by the official as a quid pro quo for some official act, pattern of acts, or agreement to act favorably to the donor when necessary.	"What is the crucial distinction between ""goodwill"" expenditures and bribery?"
5269	People v. Teitelbaum, 138 A.D.2d 647, 648, 526 N.Y.S.2d 230, 231 (1988)	2	Public official is guilty of bribe receiving in second degree if he solicits, accepts or agrees to accept benefit on understanding or agreement that actions will be influenced thereby. McKinney's Penal Law § 200.10(1973).	In order to support a verdict of guilty of bribe receiving in the second degree, the People must prove that the public official solicited or accepted or agreed to accept a benefit upon the understanding or agreement that his actions would thereby be influenced (see, Penal Law former § 200.10; People v. Charles, 61 N.Y.2d 321, 473 N.Y.S.2d 941, 462 N.E.2d 118).	When is a public official guilty of bribe receiving in the second degree?
5271	Saddle Hills Community Ass'n v. Cavallari, 150 Ill.App.3d 134, 137 (1986)	2	Party wishing to rely on admission requested, but not answered, must raise other party's failure to respond at some point in trial before failure will have any effect.	However, a party wishing to rely on an admission requested, but not answered, must raise the other party's failure to respond at some point in the trial before the failure will have any effect.	"Must a party wishing to rely on an admission requested, but not answered, raise the other party's failure to respond at some point in trial before failure will have any effect?"
5272	Gregg v. Cecil, 844 S.W.2d 851, 853 (Tex. App. 1992)	2	In ruling on motion for continuance, court must look at the entire record in the case and not just the sworn allegations set forth in the motion.	In ruling on a motion for a continuance the Court must look at the entire record in the case and not just the sworn allegations set forth in the motion for continuance.	"In ruling on motion for continuance, must the court look at the entire record in the case and not just the sworn allegations set forth in the motion?"

5274	Carter v. Carter, 3 So.3d 397, 398 (Fla.App. 4 Dist.,2009)	1	While personal financial information is fully discoverable when relevant to the subject matter of the pending action, it may cause irreparable harm to a person who is forced to disclose it when the information is not relevant or is overbroad.	While personal financial information is fully discoverable when relevant to the subject matter of the pending action, it may cause irreparable harm to a person who is forced to disclose it when the information is not relevant.	Can disclosure of personal financial information cause irreparable harm to a person forced to disclose it in a case in which the information is not relevant?
5275	Cho v. Seagate Technology Holdings, Inc., 99 Cal.Rptr.3d 436, 448, 177 Cal.App.4th 734, 748 (Cal.App. 1 Dist.,2009)	18	Objecting class members are not entitled to discovery concerning settlement negotiations between the parties without evidence indicating that there was collusion between plaintiffs and defendants in the negotiating process.	that objectors are not entitled to discovery concerning settlement negotiations between the parties without evidence indicating that there was collusion between plaintiffs and defendants in the negotiating process.	Are objecting class members not entitled to discovery concerning settlement negotiations between the parties without evidence indicating that there was collusion?
5277	Deer Consumer Prod., Inc. v. Little, 35 Misc. 3d 374, 387, 938 N.Y.S.2d 767, 778 (Sup. Ct. 2012)	18	Although the decision to grant jurisdictional discovery is left to the discretion of the court, in order to be entitled to discovery, a plaintiff must make a threshold showing that there is some basis for the assertion of jurisdiction.	Moreover, “[a]lthough the decision to grant jurisdictional discovery is left to the discretion of the [...] court, (Royalty Network Inc. v. Dishant.com, LLC, at 425, citing Jazini v. Nissan Motor Co., 148 F.3d 181, 186 [2d Cir.1998]; Marine Midland Bank, N.A. v. Miller, 664 F.2d 899, 904 [2d Cir.1981]), to be entitled to discovery, a plaintiff must make a “threshold showing that there is some basis for the assertion of jurisdiction” (Royalty, citing Daval Steel Prods. v. M.V. Juraj Dalmatinac, 718 F.Supp. 159, 162 [S.D.N.Y.1989]).	"In order to be entitled to discovery, must a plaintiff make a threshold showing that there is some basis for the assertion of jurisdiction?"
5278	Shea v. Gamco, Inc., 81 R.I. 12, 17 (1953)	4	Generally, both employer and employee are bound to cooperate and deal fairly with each other in order that they may have the benefit of the express provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act. Gen.Laws 1938, c. 300, art. 1, § 1 et seq.	We have held generally that both employer and employee are bound to cooperate and deal fairly with each other in order that both may have the benefit of the express provisions of the act.	Are both the employer and employee bound to cooperate and deal fairly with each other in order for them to have the benefit of the express provisions of the workmens compensation act?
5279	Industrial Electronics Corp. of Wisconsin v. iPower Distribution Group, Inc., 215 F.3d 677, 681 (C.A.7 (Wis.),2000)	6	Dispute that arises under one agreement may be litigated notwithstanding mandatory arbitration clause in second agreement, even where two agreements are closely intertwined.	A dispute that arises under one agreement may be litigated notwithstanding a mandatory arbitration clause in a second agreement, even where the two agreements are closely intertwined.	Can a dispute that arises under one agreement be litigated when there is a mandatory arbitration clause in a closely intertwined second agreement?
5280	Wells v. State, 144 Ga. App. 841, 841, 242 S.E.2d 752, 752 (1978)	1	While mere illegal entry alone does not satisfy elements of crime of burglary and there must be some evidence of an intent to commit theft separate and apart from unauthorized entry, question of intent is for determination of jury under facts and circumstances proved.	While mere illegal entry alone does not satisfy the elements of the crime of burglary and there must be some evidence of an intent to commit theft separate and apart from the unauthorized entry, the question of intent is for the determination of the jury under the facts and circumstances proved.	Does mere illegal entry constitute burglary?

5282	Cook v. City of Winston-Salem, 85 S.E.2d 696, 700–01, 241 N.C. 422, 428–29 (N.C. 1955)	9	Generally, a blind, or otherwise handicapped person, in using public ways, must exercise, for his own safety, due care, or care commensurate with the known or reasonably foreseeable dangers.	It seems to be the general rule that a blind, or otherwise handicapped person, in using the public ways, must exercise for his own safety due care, or care commensurate with the known or reasonably foreseeable dangers.	Is a blind person required to exercise due care while using public ways?
5283	ClearOne, Inc. v. Revolabs, Inc., 2016 UT 16, ¶ 35, 369 P.3d 1269, 1281, abrogated by Raser Techs., Inc. by & through Houston Phoenix Grp., LLC v. Morgan Stanley & Co., LLC, 2019 UT 44, ¶ 35, 449 P.3d 150	16	A party seeking discovery regarding personal jurisdiction has the obligation to present facts to the court which show why jurisdiction would be found if discovery were permitted.	But the party seeking discovery has “the obligation to present facts to the court which show why jurisdiction would be found if discovery were permitted.”	Does a party seeking discovery regarding personal jurisdiction have the obligation to present facts to the court which show why jurisdiction would be found if discovery were permitted?
5284	Warburton/Buttner v. Superior Ct., 103 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1191, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706, 722 (2002)	17	Facts that are normally within the knowledge of corporate, or tribal, officers, relating to jurisdictional issues, are ordinarily subject to discovery.	Facts that are normally within the knowledge of corporate, or in this case, tribal, officers, relating to jurisdictional issues, are ordinarily subject to discovery.	"Are facts that are normally within the knowledge of corporate or tribal, officers, relating to jurisdictional issues ordinarily subject to discovery?"
5288	Thorn v. Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Fla., Inc., 192 F.R.D. 308, 309 (M.D. Fla. 2000)	2	Rule governing motions for leave to amend filed beyond the time prescribed by a scheduling order requires a showing of good cause to deviate from the deadline set in the scheduling order; in demonstrating good cause, the moving party must establish that the scheduling deadlines cannot be met despite a party's diligent efforts. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 16(b), 28 U.S.C.A.	Rule 16(b), Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (Rule(s)), governs motions for leave to amend filed beyond the time prescribed by a scheduling order. See Tampa Bay Storm, Inc. v. Arena Football League, Inc., No. 96–29–CIV–T–17C, 1998 WL 182418, at *1 (M.D.Fla. Mar.19, 1998) (citing Payne v. Ryder Sys., Inc., 173 F.R.D. 537, 540 (M.D.Fla.1997)). Rule 16(b) requires a showing of good cause to deviate from the deadline set in the scheduling order. In demonstrating good cause, the moving party must establish that the "scheduling deadlines cannot be met despite a party's diligent efforts."	What should a party show for an order to deviate from or extend the deadline set in a scheduling order?
5289	In re Elias, 29 A.D.2d 118, 119, 286 N.Y.S.2d 371, 376 (1967)	3	Generally there must appear a basis for inquiry on face of complaint as prerequisite for permitting examination before trial in shareholders' derivative suit.	The general rule is that there must appear a “basis for inquiry” on the face of the complaint as a prerequisite for permitting an examination before trial in the stockholders' derivative suit (Pearson v. Rosenberg, 22 A.D.2d 225, 254 N.Y.S.2d 690; see, Hegener v. Party Tyme Prods., 24 A.D.2d 742, 263 N.Y.S.2d 479).	Must there appear a basis for inquiry on face of a complaint as a prerequisite for permitting examination before trial in a shareholders' derivative suit?

5290	Broome v. Perlman, 178 Misc. 873, 874, 36 N.Y.S.2d 729, 730 (N.Y. Mun. Ct. 1942)	2	The practice of examining an adverse party before trial should not be hampered by technical requirements so long as the inquiry is directed to relevant issues. Civil Practice Act, § 288 et seq.	The time has come when courts should let it be definitely understood that the practice of examining an adverse party before trial should not be hampered by technical requirements so long as the inquiry is directed to relevant issues. * * * The trend of present day thought is to permit great liberality in such examinations.'	Should the practice of examining an adverse party before trial not be hampered by technical requirements so long as the inquiry is directed to relevant issues?
5291	Brand v. Butts, 242 A.D. 149, 150, 273 N.Y.S. 181, 183 (App. Div. 1934)	4	Civil Practice Act, simplifying practice of taking testimony by depositions and abolishing technical requirements of Code of Civil Procedure and general rules of practice, is remedial and should be liberally construed to further justice and effectuate its provisions. Civil Practice Act, § 288.	The intent and purpose of the Civil Practice Act was to simplify the practice and to abolish the innumerable technical requirements of the Code of Civil Procedure and the general rules of practice. This legislation is remedial and should be liberally construed in furtherance of justice and to effectuate its provisions.	Is the Civil Practice Act remedial and should be liberally construed to further justice and effectuate its provisions?
5292	Hudak v. Fox, 521 A.2d 889, 890, 215 N.J.Super. 233, 235 (1987)	2	Prima facie proof of legal right to recover punitive damages is prerequisite to discovery of defendant's financial condition.	Defendant contends, and plaintiffs do not dispute, that "prima facie proof of the legal right to recover punitive damages is a prerequisite to the discovery of a defendant's financial condition."	Is the prima facie proof of a legal right to recover punitive damages a prerequisite to discovery of a defendant's financial condition?
5294	Greer v. SYSCO Food Servs., 475 S.W.3d 655, 666 (Mo. 2015)	11	Workers' compensation law is entirely a creature of statute, and when interpreting the law, the court must ascertain the intent of the legislature by considering the plain and ordinary meaning of the terms and give effect to that intent if possible. Mo. Ann. Stat. § 287.010 et seq.	"Workers' compensation law is entirely a creature of statute, and when interpreting the law the court must ascertain the intent of the legislature by considering the plain and ordinary meaning of the terms and give effect to that intent if possible."	Is workers compensation law entirely a creature of statute?
5295	Evans v. United States, 129 Fed.Cl. 126, 129 (Fed.Cl., 2016)	6	The decision of a military corrections board must be sufficiently detailed for the court to ascertain the reasoning behind the denial of relief to the applicant.	The corrections board decision must be sufficiently detailed for the court to ascertain the reasoning behind the denial of relief to the applicant.	Should the decision of a military corrections board be sufficiently detailed for the court to ascertain the reasoning behind the denial of relief to the applicant?
5296	Peoples v. U.S., 87 Fed. Cl. 553, 576 (2009)	34	The Board for Correction of Naval Records (BCNR) is not required to explain the reasons for its decision in great detail, but must provide an applicant for correction of military records with sufficient notification to permit him, if he may, to rebut BCNR's action. 10 U.S.C.A. § 1552(a); 32 C.F.R. § 723.6(a)(3).	The BCNR is not required to explain the reasons for its decision "in great detail," but must provide an applicant with "sufficient notification ... to permit him, if he may, to rebut [its] action."	Is the Board for Correction of Naval Records required to explain the reasons for its decision in great detail?

5297	Woodward v. United States, 871 F.2d 1068, 1071 (Fed. Cir. 1989)	1	Secretary of Navy's statutory authority to release a reserve officer from active duty is not subject to any procedural or substantive limitation. 10 U.S.C.A. SS 681, 681(a).	The statutory authority given to the Secretary of the Navy to release a reserve officer from active duty is not subject to any procedural or substantive limitation. It is contained in 10 U.S.C. § 681(a) (1982) and provides that "the Secretary concerned may at any time release a Reserve under his jurisdiction from active duty."	Is the Secretary of Navy's statutory authority to release a reserve officer from active duty subject to any procedural or substantive limitation?
5298	In re Dana Corp., 138 S.W.3d 298, 301 (Tex.,2004)	4	A discovery order requiring document production from an unreasonably long time period or from distant and unrelated locales is impermissibly overbroad and may be subject to mandamus relief.	A discovery order "requiring document production from an unreasonably long time period or from distant and unrelated locales" is impermissibly overbroad and may be subject to mandamus relief.	Can a discovery order requiring document production be subject to mandamus relief?
5299	Moulder v. Steele, 118 Ga.App. 87, 87 (Ga.App. 1968)	2	The Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act provides for stays of proceedings to which persons in military service are parties, but it does not authorize a stay because witnesses are in the service. Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940, S 201, 50 U.S.C.A.App. S 521.	The Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act, supra, provides for stay of proceedings to which persons in military service are parties, it does not authorize a stay because witnesses are in the service.	Does the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act provide for stay of proceedings to which persons in military service are parties?
5300	Rotert v. Faulkner, 660 S.W.2d 463, 469 (Mo.App. S.D. 1983)	8	Even though note does not possess quality of negotiability, its owner may nonetheless, by assignment, transfer his interest to another, and any language, however informal, if it shows intention of owner of chose in action to transfer it, and sufficiently identifies subject matter, is sufficient to vest property therein in assignee.	It is thus established in Missouri that even though a note does not possess the quality of negotiability, its owner may nonetheless, by assignment, transfer his interest to another. Any language, however informal, if it shows the intention of the owner of a chose in action 10 to transfer it, and sufficiently identifies the subject matter, is sufficient to vest the property therein in the assignee.	Does any informal language of the owner of the property to transfer it is sufficient to vest the property therein in the assignee?
5301	Rikkors v. Ryan, 76 Wis. 2d 185, 188 (Wis. 1977)	4	Conveyance of property abutting on a street or highway transfers legal title to the land to the center of the adjacent street or highway, in absence of a clear intent to contrary.	the Rikkors primarily rely upon the rule of law that the conveyance of property abutting on a street or highway transfers the legal title to the land to the center of the adjacent street or highway, in the absence of a clear intent to the contrary.	"Does the conveyance of property abutting on a street or highway, transfer legal title to the land to the center of the adjacent street or highway?"
5302	Leidholt v. District Court In and For City and Cnty. of Denver, 619 P.2d 768, 771 (Colo., 1980)	6	In tort action, prima facie proof of triable issue on liability for punitive damages is necessary to discover information relating to defendant's financial status. C.R.S. '73, 13-21-102; Rules of Civil Procedure, Rule 26(b)(1).	We hold that prima facie proof of a triable issue on liability for punitive damages is necessary to discover information relating to the defendant's financial status.	"Is evidence of a defendant's financial worth discoverable if the plaintiff demonstrates prima facie proof of a ""triable issue"" on liability for punitive damages?"

5304	Wilson v. Pershing, LLC, 253 N.C. App. 643, 650, 801 S.E.2d 150, 156 (2017)	5	Standing, which is properly challenged by motion to dismiss, is a necessary prerequisite to a court's proper exercise of subject matter jurisdiction. N.C. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(1).	Standing, which is properly challenged by a Rule 12(b)(1) motion to dismiss, Fuller v. Easley, 145 N.C.App. 391, 395, 553 S.E.2d 43, 46 (2001), "is a necessary prerequisite to a court's proper exercise of subject matter jurisdiction."	"Is standing, which is properly challenged by motion to dismiss, a necessary prerequisite to a court's proper exercise of subject matter jurisdiction?"
5305	Vermont Coll. of Fine Arts v. City of Montpelier, 2017 VT 12, ¶ 12, 204 Vt. 215, 221, 165 A.3d 1065, 1070 (2017)	6	A party's failure to exhaust administrative remedies permits a court to dismiss the action for lack of subject matter jurisdiction.	Understanding this statutory scheme is important to this case because "[a] party's failure to exhaust administrative remedies permits a court to dismiss the action for lack of subject matter jurisdiction."	Does a party's failure to exhaust administrative remedies permit a court to dismiss an action for lack of subject matter jurisdiction?
5306	Pollack v. Watts, 134 Ohio App.3d 560, 565 (1999)	5	A trial court may dismiss a complaint for lack of subject matter jurisdiction based on (1) the complaint alone, (2) the complaint supplemented by undisputed facts evidenced in the record, or (3) the complaint supplemented by undisputed fact plus the court's resolution of disputed facts. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(H)(3).	A trial court may dismiss a complaint for lack of subject matter jurisdiction based on "(1) the complaint alone, (2) the complaint supplemented by undisputed facts evidenced in the record, or (3) the complaint supplemented by undisputed facts plus the court's resolution of disputed facts."	Can a motion to dismiss a complaint by reason of the court's lack of subject matter jurisdiction be made at any stage of a proceeding?
5307	City of Wenatchee v. Chelan Cnty. Public Utility Dist. No. 1, 325 P.3d 419, 424, 181 Wash.App. 326, 337 (Wash.App. Div. 3, 2014)	6	When it comes to statutes dealing with taxation, legislative power is particularly broad and it is inherent in the exercise of the power that the State or its delegee, within the scope of its delegation, be free to select the objects or subjects of taxation.	When it comes to statutes dealing with taxation, legislative power is particularly broad and it is inherent in the exercise of the power that the State, or here, its delegee, within the scope of its delegation, be free to select the objects or subjects of taxation.	How broad is the legislative power when it comes to statutes dealing with taxation?
5308	United States v. Albertini, 472 U.S. 675, 685 (U.S.Hawai'i, 1985)	9	There is no generalized constitutional right to make political speeches or distribute leaflets on military bases even if they are generally open to the public. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.	There is "no generalized constitutional right to make political speeches or distribute leaflets," id., at 838, 96 S.Ct., at 1217, on military bases, even if they are generally open to the public.	"Is there a generalized constitutional right to make political speeches or distribute leaflets on military bases, even if they are generally open to the public?"
5310	United States v. Jefferson, 562 F. Supp. 2d 687, 690 (E.D.Va., 2008)	2	An indictment charging bribery must allege each of the following elements: (1) that the defendant is a public official; and (2) that defendant corruptly demanded, sought, received, accepted, or agreed to receive or accept (3) anything of value (4) in return for being influenced in the performance of (5) an official act. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(b)(2)(A).	An indictment charging bribery must therefore allege each of the following elements: (i) that the defendant is a public official, and (ii) that defendant corruptly demanded, sought, received, accepted, or agreed to receive or accept (iii) anything of value (iv) in return for being influenced in the performance of (v) an official act.	What should an indictment charging bribery allege?

5312	State v. Hair, 114 N.C.App. 464, 468 (1994)	4	Offeror of bribe to public official possesses requisite "corrupt intent" if his purpose in offering bribe is to gain some advantage for himself, without regard to whether he seeks performance or nonperformance of official duty. G.S. S 14-218.	The offeror of a bribe to a public official therefore possesses a corrupt intent if his purpose in offering the bribe is to gain some advantage for himself, without regard to whether he seeks the performance or the nonperformance of an official duty.	"When does the offeror of a bribe to a public official possess the requisite ""corrupt intent"" for a bribery conviction?"
5313	Fischer v. First Nat. Bank, 55 Idaho 251, 254 (Idaho 1935)	4	Custom or usage relating to particular business in order to be available for purpose of determining rights of parties must be reasonable, uniform, general as to place or locality, and not contrary to law.	Custom or usage relating to a particular business, in order to be available for the purpose of determining the rights of parties, must be reasonable, uniform, general as to the place or locality, and not contrary to law.	Does custom have to be uniform in order to be used for the purpose of determining the rights of parties?
5315	City of Chicago v. Beretta U.S.A. Corp., 821 N.E.2d 1099, 1113, 290 Ill.Dec. 525, 539, 213 Ill.2d 351, 369 (Ill., 2004)	12	Despite the requirement that the complaint must contain allegations of fact bringing the case within the cause of action, the plaintiff is not required to set out evidence; only the ultimate facts to be proved should be alleged, not the evidentiary facts tending to prove such ultimate facts.	However, despite the requirement that the complaint must contain allegations of fact bringing the case within the cause of action, "the plaintiff is not required to set out evidence; only the ultimate facts to be proved should be alleged, not the evidentiary facts tending to prove such ultimate facts.	"Is a plaintiff required to allege only the ultimate facts to be proved, and not the evidentiary facts to prove the ultimate facts?"
5316	City of Houston v. Riner, 896 S.W.2d 317, 319 (Tex.App.-Hous. (1 Dist.), 1995)	2	Trial court possesses broad discretion to permit or deny withdrawal of deemed admissions, and its ruling will be set aside on appeal only upon clear abuse of discretion; "abuse of discretion" occurs when court acts without reference to guiding rules or principles, or acts arbitrarily or unreasonably. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 169.	A trial court possesses broad discretion to permit or deny the withdrawal of deemed admissions, and its ruling will be set aside on appeal only upon a clear abuse of discretion. Esparza v. Diaz, 802 S.W.2d 772, 776 (Tex.App.-Houston [14th Dist.] 1990, no writ). An abuse of discretion occurs when a court acts without reference to guiding rules or principles, or acts arbitrarily or unreasonably.	Does a trial court have broad discretion to permit or deny the withdrawal of deemed admissions?
5322	Providence Volunteer Fire Department v. Town of Weddington, 800 S.E.2d 425, 432 (N.C.App., 2017)	11	If a defendant moving to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction submits supportive evidence, for example an affidavit, along with the motion to dismiss, the complaint's allegations can no longer be taken as true or controlling and the plaintiff cannot rest on the allegations of the complaint.	If, however, the defendant submits supportive evidence-for example an affidavit-along with the motion to dismiss, the complaint's allegations "can no longer be taken as true or controlling and [the] plaintiff[] cannot rest on the allegations of the complaint."	"If the defendant submits supportive evidence along with the motion to dismiss, can the complaints allegations be taken as true or controlling?"

5323	Kelly v. General Interior Const., Inc., 301 S.W.3d 653, 659 (Tex., 2010)	14	To negate jurisdiction on a factual basis, a nonresident defendant can present evidence that it has no contacts with Texas, effectively disproving the plaintiff's allegations; the plaintiff can then respond with its own evidence that affirms its allegations, and it risks dismissal of its lawsuit if it cannot present the trial court with evidence establishing personal jurisdiction.	The defendant can negate jurisdiction on either a factual or legal basis. Factually, the defendant can present evidence that it has no contacts with Texas, effectively disproving the plaintiff's allegations. The plaintiff can then respond with its own evidence that affirms its allegations, 6 and it risks dismissal of its lawsuit if it cannot present the trial court with evidence establishing personal jurisdiction.	"To negate jurisdiction on a factual basis, can a nonresident defendant can present evidence that it has no contacts, effectively disproving the plaintiff's allegations?"
5324	Greer v. Buss, 918 N.E.2d 607, 613 (Ind. App. 2009)	1	A motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction presents a threshold question concerning the court's power to act. Trial Procedure Rule 12(B)(1).	A motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction "presents a threshold question concerning the court's power to act."	Does a motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction present a threshold question concerning the court's power to act?
5325	Ex parte Chemical Waste Management, Inc., 929 So.2d 1007, 1010 (Ala., 2005)	4	When a party without standing purports to commence an action, the trial court acquires no subject-matter jurisdiction and has no alternative but to dismiss the action.	"When a party without standing purports to commence an action, the trial court acquires no subject-matter jurisdiction."	"When a party without standing purports to commence an action, does the trial court acquire no subject-matter jurisdiction and has no alternative but to dismiss the action?"
5326	Emerick v. Town of Glastonbury, 145 Conn.App. 122, 127 (Conn.App.,2013)	1	A motion to dismiss for lack of standing properly attacks the jurisdiction of the court, essentially asserting that the plaintiff cannot as a matter of law and fact state a cause of action that should be heard by the court.	"A motion to dismiss [for lack of standing] ... properly attacks the jurisdiction of the court, essentially asserting that the plaintiff cannot as a matter of law and fact state a cause of action that should be heard by the court.	Does a motion to dismiss for lack of standing properly attack the jurisdiction of the court?
5329	United States v. Miller, 340 F.2d 421, 424 (C.A.4 (Md.), 1965)	7	It is immaterial whether official action which briber seeks to influence is right or wrong, in sense that it is expected to result in pecuniary injury to government or that it calls upon bribe recipient to do something other than what he is legally obligated to do. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201.	It is immaterial whether the official action which the briber seeks to influence is right or wrong, in the sense that it is expected to result in pecuniary injury to the Government or that it calls upon the bribe recipient to do something other than what he is legally obligated to do.	Will an intention to influence official behavior or an intention to induce unlawful action supply the culpability required by the bribery statute?
5331	Defenders of Wildlife v. Bureau of Ocean Energy Management, Regulation, Enforcement, 871 F.Supp.2d 1312, 1315 (S.D.Ala.,2012)	1	Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act (OCSLA) prescribes a sequence of four distinct statutory stages to developing an offshore oil well: (1) formulation of a five-year leasing plan by the Department of the Interior, (2) lease sales, (3) exploration by the lessees, and (4) development and production. Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act, S 2 et seq., 43 U.S.C.A. S 1331 et seq.	OCSLA, as amended, Congress prescribed a sequence of "four distinct statutory stages to developing an offshore oil well: (1) formulation of a five year leasing plan by the Department of the Interior; (2) lease sales; (3) exploration by the lessees; (4) development and production."	What are the four stages to developing an offshore oil well?

5332	Watkins v. Certain-Teed Prod. Corp., 231 S.W.2d 981, 984 (Tex. Civ. App. 1950)	5	An adverse entry upon surface of land extends downward and includes title to underlying minerals where at time of entry there has been no severance of the mineral estate. Vernon's Ann.Civ.St. arts. 5509, 5510.	The rule is well established in Texas that an adverse entry upon the surface of land extends downward and includes title to the underlying minerals where at the time of entry there had been no severance of the mineral estate.	Does an adverse entry upon the surface extend downward and include the underlying minerals where at the time of entry there had been no severance of the mineral estate?
5333	Indiana Alcoholic Beverage Commission v. State ex rel. Harmon, 269 Ind. 48, 59 (Ind.,1978)	15	Granting of motion for continuance is within discretion of trial court, but such motion should not be denied if moving party can show good cause for continuance.	The granting of a motion for continuance is within the discretion of the trial court, but such motion should not be denied if the moving party can show good cause for the continuance.	"Is the granting of a motion for continuance within discretion of a trial court, but such motion should not be denied if a moving party can show good cause for continuance?"
5335	Providence Volunteer Fire Department v. Town of Weddington, 800 S.E.2d 425, 432 (N.C.App., 2017)	11	If a defendant moving to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction submits supportive evidence, for example an affidavit, along with the motion to dismiss, the complaint's allegations can no longer be taken as true or controlling and the plaintiff cannot rest on the allegations of the complaint.	If, however, the defendant submits supportive evidence-for example an affidavit-along with the motion to dismiss, the complaint's allegations "can no longer be taken as true or controlling and [the] plaintiff[] cannot rest on the allegations of the complaint."	What must a court consider when a defendant submits supportive evidence on a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction?
5339	Rubio v. Home Depot, U.S.A., Inc., 188 S.W.3d 26, 29 (Mo. Ct. App. 2006)	2	A court shall dismiss an action whenever it appears by suggestion of the parties or otherwise that the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction; the quantum of proof is not high, as it must appear by the preponderance of the evidence that the court is without jurisdiction. V.A.M.R. 55.27(g)(3).	"A court shall dismiss the action whenever it 'appears' by suggestion of the parties or otherwise that the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction. Rule 55.27(g)(3). As the term 'appears' suggests, the quantum of proof is not high; it must appear by the preponderance of the evidence that the court is without jurisdiction."	Shall a court dismiss an action whenever it appears by suggestion of the parties or otherwise that the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction?
5340	Moody v. Frazeyburg, 2006-Ohio-3028, ¶ 9, 167 Ohio App. 3d 106, 108, 854 N.E.2d 212, 213	3	The standard of review for a dismissal for want of subject-matter jurisdiction is whether any cause of action cognizable by the forum has been raised in the complaint; this determination involves a question of law that the Court of Appeals will review de novo. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(B)(1).	The standard of review for a dismissal for want of subject-matter jurisdiction pursuant to Civ.R. 12(B)(1) is whether any cause of action cognizable by the forum has been raised in the complaint. Prosen v. Dimora (1992), 79 Ohio App.3d 120, 606 N.E.2d 1050; State ex rel. Bush v. Spurllock (1989), 42 Ohio St.3d 77, 537 N.E.2d 641. This determination involves a question of law that we will review de novo.	Is the standard of review for a dismissal for want of subject-matter jurisdiction whether any cause of action cognizable by the forum has been raised in the complaint?
5342	Dalot v. Smith, 551 A.2d 448, 449 (Me.,1988)	1	Excessive or unreasonable delay in service of process may be ground for dismissal unless shown to be result of mistake or excusable neglect. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 3.	Although we have not previously decided the question, we now conclude that excessive or unreasonable delay in service may be a ground for dismissal unless shown to be the result of mistake or excusable neglect.	Is excessive or unreasonable delay in service of process the grounds for dismissal unless shown to be a result of mistake or excusable neglect?

5344	Mohr v. Mohr, 859 N.W.2d 377, 379 (Neb.App., 2015)	4	Under statute providing for dismissal of unserved petitions, an action is commenced on the date the complaint is filed with the court; the action shall stand dismissed without prejudice as to any defendant not served within six months from the date the complaint was filed. Neb. Rev. Stat. S 25-217.	This statute states that an "action is commenced on the date the complaint is filed with the court. The action shall stand dismissed without prejudice as to any defendant not served within six months from the date the complaint was filed."	"Under a statute providing for dismissal of un-served petitions, when shall the action stand dismissed?"
5345	Montgomery Cnty. v. Waters Landing Ltd. Partnership, 635 A.2d 48, 54–55, 99 Md.App. 1, 13 (Md.App., 1994)	3	Factors to consider under three-part test to help distinguish between "property tax" and "excise tax" are: designation placed on tax by legislature, subject matter of tax, and incidents of tax, i.e., manner in which it is assessed and measure of tax.	A three-part test , however, has been developed to help distinguish between property and excise taxes , which is: (1) the designation placed on the tax by the legislature; (2) the subject matter of the tax ; and (3) the incidents of the tax, i.e., the manner in which it is assessed and the measure of the tax.	"What factors are considered under the three-part test to help distinguish between ""property tax"" and ""excise tax""?"
5347	Ivax Corp. v. B. Braun of America, Inc., 286 F.3d 1309, 1315–16 (C.A.11 (Fla.), 2002)	5	Court uses two-part test in determining whether a party has waived its right to arbitrate , under which it first decides if, under the totality of the circumstances, the party has acted inconsistently with the arbitration right , and second, whether by doing so that party has in some way prejudiced the other party.	17 In determining whether a party has waived its right to arbitrate, we have established a two-part test . First, we decide if, "under the totality of the circumstances," the party "has acted inconsistently with the arbitration *1316 right," and, second, we look to see whether, by doing so, that party "has in some way prejudiced the other party." S & H Contractors, Inc.	What test do courts use to determine whether a party has waived its right to arbitrate?
5348	Arndt v. U.S., 222 F.2d 484, 486 (C.A.5 1955)	3	Draft boards have been invested with great authority over lives and actions of people, and that authority must be exercised only after scrupulous observance of protective safeguards provided by Constitution and statutes.	These boards have been invested with great authority over the lives and actions of the people, and that authority must be exercised only after scrupulous observance of the protective safeguards provided by the Constitution and Statutes.	Should the authority of selective service boards be exercised only after scrupulous observance of the protective safeguards provided by the constitution and statutes?
5349	United States v. Whitfield, 590 F.3d 325, 345 (C.A.5 (Miss.), 2009)	5	Although the conduct prohibited by the statute governing federal program bribery need not actually affect the federal funds received by the agency , there must be some nexus between the criminal conduct and the agency receiving federal assistance. 18 U.S.C.A. S 666.	. This court has held that "[a]lthough the conduct prohibited by section 666 need not actually affect the federal funds received by the agency , there must be some nexus between the criminal conduct and the agency receiving federal assistance.	"Under law, with regard to the prohibited conduct that affect administration of federal funds, should there be some nexus between the criminal conduct and the agency receiving federal assistance?"
5350	People v. $1,124,905 U.S. Currency and One 1988 Chevrolet Astro Van, 177 Ill.2d 314, 339 (1997)	25	Whether particular allegation is deemed to be ultimate fact or conclusion is matter to be determined by careful consideration of needs of administering particular litigation.	Whether a particular allegation is deemed to be an ultimate fact or a conclusion is a matter to be determined by a careful consideration of the needs of administering particular litigation.	"Is the determination of whether a particular allegation is a fact or conclusion, a matter to be determined by careful consideration of needs of administering particular litigation?"

5352	Manifold v. Ragaglia, 94 Conn.App. 103, 119 (Conn.App., 2006)	15	Although a motion to dismiss is the preferred means of challenging the court's subject matter jurisdiction, there is no authority for the proposition that subject matter jurisdiction can never be challenged through any other procedural vehicle, most importantly by means of a motion for summary judgment.	Although a motion to dismiss is certainly the preferred means of challenging the court's subject matter jurisdiction, we know of no authority for the proposition that subject matter jurisdiction can never be challenged through any other procedural vehicle, most importantly by means of a motion for summary judgment.	Can subject matter jurisdiction be challenged through any other procedural vehicle other than a motion to dismiss?
5353	Wilder Chiropractic, Inc. v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co., 2014 IL App (2d) 130781, ¶ 80, 13 N.E.3d 194, 213	27	No absolute time frame exists that will shift the burden and require the plaintiff to offer an explanation for his or her actions in delaying service on defendant. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 103(b).	"No absolute time frame exists that will shift the burden and require the plaintiff to offer an explanation for his or her actions."	Does no absolute time frame exist that will shift the burden and require the plaintiff to offer an explanation for his or her actions in delaying service on a defendant?
5354	Christian v. Lincoln Automotive Co., 403 Ill.App.3d 1038, 1043 (Ill.App. 3 Dist., 2010)	11	The policy factor favoring adjudication of controversies on the merits is not an appropriate factor for consideration, when objectively determining whether a plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence to obtain service on a defendant. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 103(b).	Based on the foregoing discussion, in answer to the trial court's first query, we consider that the policy factor favoring adjudication of controversies on the merits is not an appropriate factor for consideration in objectively determining whether a plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence to obtain service on a defendant.	Is the policy factor favoring adjudication of controversies on the merits not an appropriate factor for consideration?
5355	Voltz v. Dyess, 148 So. 3d 425, 428 (Ala. 2014)	6	A trial court is required to give plaintiffs at least 14 days' notice before dismissing an action against a defendant on whom service was not effected. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 4(b).	We hold, therefore, that a trial court is required to give plaintiffs at least 14 days' notice before dismissing an action against a defendant on whom service was not effected.	Is a trial court required to give plaintiffs at least 14 days' notice before dismissing an action against a defendant on whom service was not effected?
5357	Young v. Est. of Sweeney, 808 N.E.2d 1217, 1219 (Ind. Ct. App. 2004)	3	Dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction takes precedence over the determination of and action upon other substantive and procedural rights of the parties.	As we have previously explained, "dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction takes precedence over the determination of and action upon other substantive and procedural rights of the parties."	Does a dismissal for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction take precedence over the determination of and action upon other substantive and procedural rights of the parties?
5359	Rucker v. Taylor, 828 N.W.2d 595, 603 (Iowa, 2013)	22	Dismissal without prejudice under for failure to serve process is intended to leave the plaintiff in the same position as if the action never had been filed. I.C.A. Rule 1.302(5).	As observed under the analogous federal rule, [a] dismissal without prejudice under Rule 4(m) for failure to serve process is intended to leave the plaintiff in the same position as if the action never had been filed.	Is dismissal without prejudice for failure to serve process intended to leave the plaintiff as if the action was never filed?
5361	Alvarez v. Alvarez, 638 So.2d 153, 153 (Fla.App. 2 Dist.,1994)	2	Imposition of most severe sanctions contemplated by rules should be reserved for those occasions where violation is flagrant, persistent, willful, or otherwise aggravated.	The rule followed by this court is that the imposition of the most severe sanctions contemplated by the rules should be reserved for those occasions where the violation is flagrant, persistent, willful or otherwise aggravated.	"Should imposition of the most severe sanctions contemplated by rules be reserved for those occasions where violation is flagrant, persistent, willful, or otherwise aggravated?"

5364	Wilson Foods Corp. v. Turner, 218 Ga. App. 74, 77, 460 S.E.2d 532, 535 (1995)	10	Sanction of precluding calling of witnesses not listed in valid pretrial order cannot be upheld if less harsh sanctions are available and appropriate.	Moreover, the harsh sanction of precluding the calling of witnesses not listed in a valid pretrial order cannot be upheld if less harsh sanctions are available and appropriate.	Can the sanction of precluding calling of witnesses not listed in valid pretrial order be upheld if less harsh sanctions are available and appropriate?
5365	Duncan v. Johnson, 14 So.3d 760, 762 (Miss.App.,2009)	2	Trial courts possess an inherent authority to dismiss frivolous complaints, sua sponte, even prior to service of process on the defendants.	Our trial courts possess an inherent authority to dismiss frivolous complaints, sua sponte, even prior to service of process on the defendants.	"Do courts possess an authority to dismiss frivolous complaints, even prior to service of process on the defendants?"
5366	Whitten v. Whitten, 956 So. 2d 1093, 1096–97 (Miss. Ct. App. 2007)	4	The plaintiff bears the burden to demonstrate the existence of good cause for the failure to timely serve process in order to prevent dismissal of the action. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 4(h).	The plaintiff bears the burden to demonstrate the existence of *1097 good cause for the failure to timely serve process.	Does the plaintiff bear the burden to demonstrate the existence of good cause for the failure to timely serve process in order to prevent dismissal of the action?
5368	Whitten v. Whitten, 956 So. 2d 1093, 1097 (Miss. Ct. App. 2007)	6	A plaintiff must be diligent in serving process if he is to show good cause in failing to serve process within 120 days to avoid dismissal of action. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 4(h).	"A plaintiff must be diligent in serving process if he is to show good cause in failing to serve process within 120 days."	Should a plaintiff be diligent in serving process if he is to show good cause in failing to serve process within 120 days to avoid dismissal of action?
5372	Application of Kaul, 933 P.2d 717, 725, 261 Kan. 755, 766 (Kan., 1997)	8	Power to levy taxes is inherent in power to govern, but exercise of that power is dependent upon existence of legislation designating kinds of property to be taxed.	The power to levy taxes is inherent in the power to govern, but the exercise of that power is dependent upon the existence of legislation designating the kinds of property to be taxed.	Is the power to levy taxes inherent in power to govern but exercise of that power is dependent upon existence of legislation designating kinds of property to be taxed?
5373	PC Const. Co. v. City of Salisbury, 871 F. Supp. 2d 475, 481 (D.Md., 2012)	6	In the arbitration context, the doctrine of equitable estoppel recognizes a party may be estopped from asserting the lack of its signature on a written contract precludes enforcement of the contract's arbitration clause when it has consistently maintained the other provisions of the same contract should be enforced to benefit it; in other words, a nonsignatory is estopped from refusing to comply with an arbitration clause when it receives a direct benefit from a contract containing an arbitration clause.	One way in which this may occur is through the doctrine of equitable estoppel. In the arbitration context, this doctrine "recognizes that a party may be estopped from asserting that the lack of his signature on a written contract precludes enforcement of the contract's arbitration clause when he has consistently maintained that the other provisions of the same contract should be enforced to benefit him." Id. at 418. In other words, "[a] nonsignatory is estopped from refusing to comply with an arbitration clause when it receives a 'direct benefit' from a contract containing an arbitration clause." Id.	What does the doctrine of equitable estoppel mean in the context of arbitration?
5374	Ohio-Sealy Mattress Mfg. Co. v. Kaplan, 712 F.2d 270, 272 (C.A.III.,1983)	1	To determine whether party has defaulted in proceeding with arbitration, thereby waiving arbitration agreement, court must analyze all facts and circumstances.	To determine whether a party has defaulted in proceeding with arbitration, thereby waiving the arbitration agreement, the court must analyze all the facts and circumstances.	Should a court analyze all the facts and circumstances to determine whether a party has defaulted in proceeding with arbitration thereby waving the arbitration agreement?

5375	Allen v. Wilkinson, 129 F.Supp. 73, 76 (D.C.Pa. 1955)	10	Neither a minor soldier nor his parents, even where no consent has been given, may void an enlistment made while under age or effect release of such soldier when he is held for a military offense or is under sentence for a military offense.	Moreover, the overwhelming weight of authority is that neither a minor soldier or his parents, even where no consent has been given, may void such an enlistment or effect the release of such soldier when he is held for a military offense or is under sentence for a military offense.	Can a minor soldier or his parents void an enlistment or effect the release of such soldier when he is held for a military offense?
5376	Herrington v. Boatright, 633 S.W.2d 781, 783 (Tenn.App. 1982)	5	Insurance policies of National Service Life Insurance are contracts of the United States and possess same legal incidents as other government contracts, and validity and construction of such policies present questions of federal law.	This policy is a National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) policy with the United States Government as the insurer. Policies of NSLI are contracts of the United States and possess the same legal incidents as other government contracts, and the validity and construction of such policies present questions of federal law.	Are National Service Life Insurance policies considered contracts of the United States?
5377	United States v. Kay, 359 F.3d 738, 743 (C.A.5 (Tex.), 2004)	7	Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (FCPA) did not criminalize every payment to foreign official, but only those payments intended to (1) influence foreign official to act or make decision in his official capacity, or (2) induce such official to perform or refrain from performing some act in violation of his duty, or (3) secure some wrongful advantage to payor, and Act criminalized such payments only if result they are intended to produce will assist, or is intended to assist, payor in efforts to get or keep some business. Securities Exchange Act of 1934, S 104(a), 15 U.S.C.A. S 78dd-2(a).	None contend that the FCPA criminalizes every payment to a foreign official: It criminalizes only those payments that are intended to (1) influence a foreign official to act or make a decision in his official capacity, or (2) induce such an official to perform or refrain from performing some act in violation of his duty, or (3) secure some wrongful advantage to the payor. And even then, the FCPA criminalizes these kinds of payments only if the result they are intended to produce- their quid pro quo-will assist (or is intended to assist) the payor in efforts to get or keep some business for or with "any person.	What kind of payments to foreign officials does FCPA criminalize?
5378	Hammerman v. Louis Watch Co., 7 A.D.2d 817, 818, 181 N.Y.S.2d 65, 67 (1958)	1	Although it is true that person may have more than one residence for venue purposes, to consider a place as such, he must stay there for some length of time and have bona fide intent to retain place as residence with at least some degree of permanency.	Although it is true that a person may have more than one residence for venue purposes, to consider a place as such, he must stay there for some length of time and have the bona fide intent to retain the place as a residence with at least some degree of permanency (Hurley v. Union Trust Co. of Rochester, 244 App.Div. 590, 280 N.Y.S. 474; Bradley v. Plaisted, 277 App.Div. 620, 102 N.Y.S.2d 295).	What must a person do to consider a place as his residence?

5379	Bowman v. Benouttas, 519 S.W.3d 586, 603 (Tenn.Ct.App., 2016)	33	It is within the trial judge's discretion to decide what orders, if any, to issue as a consequence of a party's failure to obey a scheduling order. Tenn. R. Civ. P. 16.06.	However, "[i]t is within the trial judge's discretion to decide what orders, if any, to issue as a consequence of a party's failure to obey a scheduling order."	"Is it within the trial judge's discretion to decide what orders, if any, to issue as a consequence of a party's failure to obey a scheduling order?"
5381	Jones v. Ohio Edison Co., 2014-Ohio-5466, ¶ 6, 26 N.E.3d 834, 837	2	The standard of review for a dismissal pursuant to rule allowing the defense of lack of subject matter jurisdiction to be made by motion is whether any cause of action cognizable by the forum has been raised in the complaint. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(B)(1).	A motion to dismiss for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction is made pursuant to Civ.R. 12(B)(1), and "[t]he standard of review for a dismissal pursuant to Civ.R. 12(B)(1) is whether any cause of action cognizable by the forum has been raised in the complaint."	Is dismissal due to lack of subject matter jurisdiction inappropriate if any cause of action cognizable by the forum has been raised in the complaint?
5383	Kramer v. Crout, 279 S.W.2d 932, 935 (Tex.Civ.App. 1955)	3	Granting or refusing of second motion for continuance is matter in discretion of trial court, which will not be disturbed in absence of clear showing of abuse of discretion.	Further, the granting or refusing of a second motion for continuance is a matter in the discretion of the Trial Court, which will not be disturbed in the absence of a clear showing of an abuse of such discretion.	Would a court grant or refuse the second motion for continuance which will not be disturbed in absence of clear showing of abuse of discretion?
5384	Cronin v. Kottke Associates, LLC, 975 N.E.2d 680, 691, 363 Ill.Dec. 654, 665, 2012 IL App (1st) 111632, ¶ 39 (Ill.App. 1 Dist., 2012)	5	Pursuant to its inherent authority, a trial court may dismiss a cause of action with prejudice where a party has deliberately and contumaciously disregarded the court's authority.	Pursuant to this inherent power, a court may dismiss a cause of action with prejudice where a party has deliberately and contumaciously disregarded the court's authority.	"Pursuant to its inherent power, can a trial court dismiss a cause of action with prejudice where a party has deliberately and contumaciously disregarded the court's authority?"
5385	Peterson v. McCawley, 135 Idaho 282, 284 (2000)	4	In fashioning sanctions, a trial court should balance the equities by comparing the culpability of the disobedient party with the resulting prejudice to the innocent party.	In fashioning sanctions, a trial court should "balance the equities by comparing the culpability of the disobedient party with the resulting prejudice to the innocent party."	"In fashioning sanctions, should a trial court balance the equities by comparing the culpability of the disobedient party with the resulting prejudice to the innocent party?"
5386	Webber v. St. Louis Cnty., No. ED 94271, 2010 WL 4628625, at *4 (Mo. Ct. App. Nov. 16, 2010)	8	A case becomes moot and should be dismissed when an event occurs that makes a court's decision unnecessary or makes granting effectual relief by the court impossible.	Likewise, a case becomes moot and should be dismissed "[w]hen an event occurs that makes a court's decision unnecessary or makes granting effectual relief by the court impossible [.]"	"Does a case become moot and dismissed, when an event occurs that makes granting effectual relief by the court impossible?"
5389	Cowan v. Patrick, 448 S.W.2d 336, 339, 247 Ark. 886, 890 (Ark. 1969)	7	There are circumstances under which the circuit court has power to dismiss an action which is shown to have been brought without merit and which constitutes an abuse of process.	Yet, this court has recognized that there are circumstances under which a circuit court has the power to dismiss an action which is shown to have been brought without merit and which constitutes an abuse of process.	Are there circumstances under which the circuit court has power to dismiss an action which is shown to have been brought without merit and which constitutes an abuse of process?
5390	Modica v. Verhulst, 195 Wis.2d 633, 651 (Wis.App.,1995)	18	When scheduling order is violated, trial courts may make such orders as are just, including requiring party who failed to obey order to pay reasonable costs and attorney fees caused by failure. W.S.A. 802.10(3)(d), 804.12(2)(b), 805.03.	When a scheduling order is violated, trial courts may make such orders as are just, including requiring the party who failed to obey the order to pay reasonable costs and attorney fees caused by the failure. Sections 802.10(3)(d), 805.03 and 804.12(2)(b)	Is the finding of egregious conduct required for imposition of expenses for violation of a scheduling order?

5391	Shimanovsky v. Gen. Motors Corp., 692 N.E.2d 286, 292–93 (Ill. 1998)	10	Destruction or alteration of evidence does not automatically entitle party to specific sanction; rather, court must consider unique factual situation that each case presents and then apply appropriate criteria to those facts to determine what sanction, if any, should be imposed. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 219(c).	Contrary to defendant's contention, a party is not automatically entitled to a specific sanction just because evidence is destroyed or altered. Rather, a court must consider the unique factual situation that each case presents and then apply the appropriate criteria to these facts in order to determine what particular sanction, if any, should be imposed.	Should the sanction of dismissal be applied automatically without full consideration of the dynamics of an individual case?
5392	Kinter v. Baskin, 1974 OK 36, ¶ 4 (Okla., 1974)	1	A court has discretionary power to dismiss without prejudice a lawsuit for want of prosecution, for failure of plaintiff to appear at a hearing, or for refusal of plaintiff to comply with an order concerning the proceeding.	A court has discretionary power to dismiss without prejudice a lawsuit for want of prosecution, or where a plaintiff fails to appear at a hearing or refuses to comply with an order concerning the proceeding.	Does a court have discretionary power to dismiss without prejudice a lawsuit for want of prosecution?
5396	Dockery v. Dockery, 559 S.W.2d 952, 954 (Tenn.App. 1977)	1	Although a case may originally have presented a genuine and existing controversy requiring present adjudication of present rights, if, before decision, the case loses that essential character through the act of the parties or some other cause, it is the duty of the court to dismiss the case.	The courts in this State have consistently followed the principle that to invoke the jurisdiction of the court it is primarily essential that there be a genuine and existing controversy requiring present adjudication of present rights. Although the case may have originally presented such a controversy, if before decision it has lost that essential character through the act of the parties or some other cause, it is the duty of the court, upon the presentment of that fact, to dismiss it.	"Is it the duty of the court to dismiss the case if, before decision, the case loses that essential character through the act of the parties or some other cause?"
5397	Flores v. Georgeson, 191 Cal. App. 4th 881, 887 (2011)	3	A court has inherent power, upon a sufficient factual showing, to dismiss an action shown to be sham, fictitious or without merit in order to prevent abuse of the judicial process.	A court has inherent power, upon a sufficient factual showing, to dismiss an action "shown to be sham, fictitious or without merit in order to prevent abuse of the judicial process."	Do courts have inherent power to dismiss actions on grounds that they are fictitious or sham?
5401	Smith v. Gold Dust Casino, 526 F.3d 402, 406 (C.A.8 (S.D.), 2008)	7	While parties who do not comply with court orders may face sanctions, the punishment should fit the crime, and not every instance of failure to comply with an order of the court, however inexcusable, justifies total extinction of a client's cause of action. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 41(b), 28 U.S.C.A.	While parties who do not comply with court orders may face sanctions, we reiterate that "the punishment should fit the crime, and not every instance of failure to comply with an order of [the] court, however inexcusable, justifies total extinction of a client's cause of action."	Should punishment for disregard of a court order fit the crime?

5402	Alabama Dept. of Labor v. Dental Referral Service, LLC, 181 So.3d 1061, 1064 (Ala.Civ.App., 2014)	3	If a case has become moot, or if a judgment would not accomplish an end recognized as sufficient in law, there is no necessity for the judgment, the court will decline to consider the merits, and the court will dismiss the case.	"[I]f a case has become moot, or [if a] judgment would not accomplish an end recognized as sufficient in law, there is no necessity for the judgment, the court will decline to consider the merits, and [the court will] dismiss the case."	Will a court dismiss the case if a judgment would not accomplish an end recognized as sufficient in law?
5407	State ex rel. Chastain v. City of Kansas City, 968 S.W.2d 232, 237 (Mo.App. W.D., 1998)	4	When event occurs that makes decision on appeal unnecessary or makes it impossible for appellate court to grant effectual relief, appeal is moot and generally should be dismissed.	When an event occurs that makes a decision on appeal unnecessary or makes it impossible for the appellate court to grant effectual relief, the appeal is moot and generally should be dismissed.	Will a case be moot when an intervenient event occurs which makes a court's decision unnecessary or granting effectual relief impossible?
5408	Lyons v. Dohman, 2007-0053 La.App. 3 Cir. 5/30/07, 2 (La. App. 3 Cir., 2007)	1	A step taken by a plaintiff after the three-year period for abandonment has run is ineffective to prevent a judgment of dismissal from being granted. LSA-C.C.P. art. 561(A)(1).	*A step taken by a plaintiff after the three-year period has run is ineffective to prevent a judgment of dismissal from being granted.	Is a step taken by a plaintiff after the three-year period for abandonment has run ineffective to prevent a judgment of dismissal from being granted?
5409	In re Cty. Treasurer, 2013 IL App (3d) 120999, 999 N.E.2d 748, 757 (2013)	2	Under statute that allows a litigant to obtain an involuntary dismissal of a claim against him if that claim is completely negated or defeated by other "affirmative matter" in the nature of a defense, lack of standing may be raised as a basis for dismissal. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619(a)(9).	Under section 2-619(a)(9), which allows a litigant to obtain an involuntary dismissal of a claim against him if that claim is completely negated or defeated by other "affirmative matter" in the nature of a defense (735 ILCS 5/2-619(a)(9) (West 2010); Van Meter, 207 Ill.2d at 367, 278 Ill.Dec. 555, 799 N.E.2d 273), lack of standing may be raised as a basis for dismissal	Will a litigant be allowed to obtain an involuntary dismissal of a claim against him if that claim is completely negated or defeated by other affirmative matter in the nature of a defense?
5410	Schutz v. U.S., 422 F.2d 991, 998 (C.A.5 (Ala.), 1970)	3	Every registrant is required to report for induction as ordered even though he may have valid legal grounds for refusing to submit to induction. Military Selective Service Act of 1967, S 12, 50 U.S.C.A. App. S 462.	My brothers concluded that Schutz was prohibited from raising this defense, stating that 'every registrant is required to report for induction as ordered even though he may have valid legal grounds for refusing to submit to induction * * *.' I am of the opinion that the district court erred in prohibiting Schutz from raising an 'order of call' defense.	Does every registrant have the duty to report for induction even though he may have valid legal grounds for refusing to submit to induction?
5411	Gerhard v. Stephens, 68 Cal. 2d 864, 879, 442 P.2d 692, 705 (1968)	8	Exclusive right to drill for and produce oil inhering in landowner by virtue of his title to the land is a valuable right which he may transfer, and such right, when granted, is a "profit a prendre", which is a right to remove a part of the substance of the land.	'The owner of land has the exclusive right on his land to drill for and produce oil. This right inhering in the owner by virtue of his title to the land is a valuable right which he may transfer, The right when granted is a profit a prendre, a right to remove a part of the substance of the land.	Is the exclusive right to drill for and produce oil when granted a profit a prendre?

5412	Flores v. Georgeson, 191 Cal. App. 4th 881, 887 (2011)	3	A court has inherent power, upon a sufficient factual showing, to dismiss an action shown to be sham, fictitious or without merit in order to prevent abuse of the judicial process.	A court has inherent power, upon a sufficient factual showing, to dismiss an action "shown to be sham, fictitious or without merit in order to prevent abuse of the judicial process."	Does a Superior Court have inherent power to dismiss action which is made to appear fictitious and sham?
5413	Patel v. Home Depot USA, Inc., 2012 IL App (1st) 103217, ¶ 9 (Ill.App. 1 Dist.,2012)	3	A motion to dismiss under statute governing motions with respect to the pleadings attacks the legal sufficiency of the complaint; such a motion to dismiss does not raise affirmative factual defenses, but alleges defects appearing on the face of the pleadings. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-615.	A motion to dismiss under section 2- 615 attacks the legal sufficiency of the complaint. Such a motion to dismiss does not raise affirmative factual defenses, but alleges defects appearing on the face of the pleadings.	Will a motion to dismiss with respect to the pleadings challenge the legal sufficiency of a complaint and raise affirmative factual defenses?
5414	Webber v. St. Louis Cnty., No. ED 94271, 2010 WL 4628625, at *3 (Mo. Ct. App. Nov. 16, 2010)	3	Where an affirmative defense is asserted in a motion to dismiss, a trial court may dismiss the petition only if the petition clearly establishes on its face and without exception that the defense applies and the claim is barred. V.A.M.R. 55.08.	Where an affirmative defense is asserted in a motion to dismiss, a trial court may dismiss the petition only if the petition clearly establishes "on its face and without exception" that the defense applies and the claim is barred.	Can a petition be dismissed based on an affirmative defense unless the petition establishes on its face and without exception that the defense applies?
5415	Weydert Homes, Inc. v. Kammes, 395 Ill. App. 3d 512, 516, 917 N.E.2d 64, 68 (2009)	1	A motion to dismiss based on defects or defenses which avoid or defeat claims admits the legal sufficiency of the complaint and raises defects, defenses, or other affirmative matters that defeat the claim. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619(a)(9).	A section 2–619 motion to dismiss admits the legal sufficiency of the complaint while it raises defenses, defects, or other affirmative matters that defeat the claim.	"Will a motion to dismiss raise defects, defenses, or other affirmative matters that avoid the legal effect or defeat a claim?"
5416	Speedway Motorsports, Inc. v. Pinnacle Bank, 315 Ga.App. 320, 323 (2012)	6	A motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim can properly be granted upon an affirmative defense only when the elements of the defense are admitted by the plaintiff or completely disclosed on the face of the pleadings.	A motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim can properly be granted upon an affirmative defense only when the elements of the defense are admitted by the plaintiff or "completely disclosed on the face of the pleadings."	Will a motion to dismiss for a failure to state a claim be granted upon an affirmative defense?
5424	New Bar Partnership v. Martin, 729 S.E.2d 675, 680 (N.C.App., 2012)	3	A complaint may be properly dismissed for absence of law to support a claim, absence of facts sufficient to make a good claim, or the disclosure of some fact that necessarily defeats the claim. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(6).	A complaint may be properly dismissed for absence of law to support a claim, absence of facts sufficient to make a good claim, or the disclosure of some fact that necessarily defeats the claim.	"Can a complaint be dismissed for absence of sufficient facts to make a good claim, or disclosure of some fact that necessarily defeats the claim?"
5425	Stephanie W. v. Maxwell V., 319 P.3d 219, 227 (Alaska, 2014)	12	Trial court's discretion to impose litigation-ending discovery sanctions is narrowly limited to extreme situations, and such sanctions cannot be imposed where an alternative remedy would suffice to make the adverse party whole. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 37.	In particular, "the trial court's discretion to impose [litigation- ending] sanctions is narrowly limited to extreme situations," and such sanctions cannot be imposed "where an alternative remedy would suffice to make the adverse party whole."	Is a trial court's discretion to order litigation-ending sanctions severely limited?
5426	Sewell Masonry Co. v. DCC Const., Inc., 862 So.2d 893, 897 (Fla.App. 5 Dist., 2003)	8	Documents filed of record concerning discovery may, but do not always, constitute record activity sufficient to avoid dismissal for failure to prosecute. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(e).	Documents filed of record concerning discovery may, but do not always, constitute record activity sufficient to avoid a dismissal for failure to prosecute.	"Can documents filed of record concerning discovery constitute ""record activity"" sufficient to avoid dismissal for failure to prosecute?"

5427	Barnett Bank of East Polk Cnty. v. Fleming, 508 So.2d 718, 720 (Fla.,1987)	3	Motion to dismiss for lack of prosecution, whether initiated by court or a party, cannot be deemed "record activity" sufficient to defeat dismissal of case for lack of prosecution. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(e).	Accordingly, we hold that a motion to dismiss for lack of prosecution pursuant to Rule 1.420(e), whether initiated by the court or a party, cannot be deemed "record activity" sufficient to defeat dismissal of the case for lack of prosecution.	"Can a motion to dismiss for lack of prosecution be deemed a ""record activity"" sufficient to defeat a dismissal of a case for lack of prosecution?"
5428	Peruvian Connection, Ltd. v. Christian, 977 F.Supp. 1107, 1112 (D.Kan.,1997)	8	Whether parties enter into formal written agreement or merely ask arbitrator to decide claims submitted, they have in effect empowered arbitrator to decide issues stated in grievance, and grievance itself becomes submission agreement and defines limits of arbitrator's authority.	*1112 [8] [9] Whether the parties enter into a formal written agreement or merely ask the arbitrator to decide the claims submitted, "they have in effect empowered him to decide the issues stated in the grievance. The grievance itself becomes the submission agreement and defines the limits of the arbitrator's authority." Piggly Wiggly, 611 F.2d at 584.	When does a grievance become a submission agreement?
5429	Citizens and Southern Nat. Bank v. Scheider, 228 S.E.2d 611, 612, 139 Ga.App. 475, 476 (Ga.App. 1976	2	New note given in lieu of existing note between same parties and for same indebtedness, even at higher rate of interest and due at latter date is not given for new consideration and therefore does not constitute a novation.	A new note given in lieu of an existing note between the same parties and for the same indebtedness, even at a higher rate of interest and due at a later date, is not given for a new consideration, and therefore does not constitute a novation.	Will a new note given in lieu of an existing note between the same parties for the same indebtedness constitute a novation?
5430	Kansas Bankers Sur. Co. v. Ford Cnty. State Bank, 184 Kan. 529, 531-32 (Kan. 1959)	1	The Uniform Negotiable Instruments Law was designed to harmonize decisions of courts of last resort in respect to commercial paper, and to give to negotiable instruments a degree of certainty that would be universal in its application in states enacting it. G.S.1949, 52-101 et seq.	The Uniform Negotiable Instruments Law (hereafter N.I.L.) was designed to harmonize decisions of courts of last resort in respect to commercial paper, and to give to negotiable instruments a degree of certainty that would be universal in its application in the states enacting it.	Why was Uniform Negotiable Instruments Law designed?
5434	Elliott v. Berry, 245 P.2d 726, 729, 206 Okla. 594, 596 (Okla. 1952)	5	Term "royalty" is construed in broad sense of denoting mineral rights when there is no oil and gas lease on property, but is construed in restricted sense of denoting interest in production when property is under lease for oil and gas.	The term 'royalty' is construed in the broad sense of denoting mineral rights when there is no oil and gas lease upon the property but is construed in the restricted sense of denoting an interest in the production when the property is under lease for oil and gas.	Is the term royalty construed in the broad sense of denoting mineral rights when there is no oil or gas lease upon the property?
5436	Lujan v. City of Albuquerque, 2003-NMCA-104, ¶ 10, 134 N.M. 207, 210, 75 P.3d 423, 426	2	A district court has authority to dismiss claims with prejudice for a party's failure to prosecute or to comply with procedural rules or court orders. NMRA, Rules 1-037, 1-041.	A district court has authority to dismiss claims with prejudice for a party's failure to prosecute or to comply with procedural rules or court orders.	Does a district court have authority to dismiss claims with prejudice for a party's failure to prosecute or to comply with procedural rules or court orders?

5437	Gilbert v. Eckerd Corp. of Florida, 34 So. 3d 773, 776 (Fla. App. 2010)	8	If the motion to dismiss for fraud on the court would not likewise survive a motion for summary judgment, the trial court should presume the matter not subject to dismissal.	We note that, as a preliminary matter, if the motion to dismiss for fraud would not likewise survive a motion for summary judgment, the trial court should presume the matter not subject to dismissal.	"If the motion to dismiss for fraud on the court would not likewise survive a motion for summary judgment, should the trial court presume the matter not subject to dismissal?"
5439	Brodbeck v. Gonzalez, 336 So.2d 475, 476 (Fla.App. 1976)	1	Dismissal as punishment for plaintiff's failure to comply with court order is in large measure discretionary matter with trial judge. 30 West's F.S.A. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 1.380(b)(2).	A dismissal as punishment for the plaintiff's failure to comply with a court order is in large measure a discretionary matter with the trial judge.	Is dismissal as a punishment for a plaintiff's failure to comply with a court order is in large measure a discretionary matter with a trial judge?
5440	Jackson v. Carolina Hardwood Co., Inc., 120 N.C.App. 870, 872-73 (N.C.App.,1995)	7	Where complaint discloses unconditional affirmative defense which defeats claim asserted or pleads facts which deny right to any relief on alleged claim, complaint may properly be dismissed for failure to state claim upon which relief can be granted. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(6), G.S. S 1A-1.	Where the complaint discloses an unconditional affirmative defense which defeats the claim asserted or pleads facts which deny the right to any relief on the alleged claim, the complaint may properly be dismissed by a motion under Rule 12(b)(6).	What happens if a complaint discloses an unconditional affirmative defense which defeats the claim asserted?
5442	Cox v. McDonald, 28 Vet.App. 318, 328 (Vet.App., 2016)	11	When the Veterans Affairs' (VA) interpretation of a statute is clear from its existing regulations, any discrepancy between the VA's internal adjudications manual and the agency's properly promulgated regulations does not confer any rights on a claimant.	However, when VA's interpretation of a statute is clear from its existing regulations, any discrepancy between the VA's internal Adjudications Manual and the agency's properly promulgated regulations "does not confer any rights" on a claimant.	Does a discrepancy between the VA's internal adjudications manual and the agency's properly promulgated regulations confer any rights on a claimant?
5443	Northridge v. Grenier, 278 Mass. 438, 439-40 (Mass. 1932)	1	Negotiable Instrument Law must be construed in conformity to its obvious meaning, without regard to previous law of commonwealth, unless necessary to resolve some doubt or obscurity. G.L. c. 107, SS 23, 26 (M.G.L.A. c. 106 SS 3-102(1)(b), 3-104(1), 3-109).	It is our duty to construe the provisions of the Negotiable Instrument Act in conformity to their obvious meaning without regard to the previous law of the commonwealth unless necessary to resolve some doubt or obscurity.	Should the provisions of the Negotiable Instrument Act be construed in conformity to their obvious meaning without regard to the previous law?
5446	Oakman v. Ogilvie, 193 S.E. 920, 923 (S.C. 1937)	7	Every traveler on the highway, exercising due care, in the absence of any circumstances which reasonably should put him on notice to the contrary, is entitled to assume and to act upon the assumption, that others using it in common with him will exercise reasonable care.	Every traveler on the highway, exercising due care himself, in the absence of any circumstances which reasonably should put him on notice to the contrary, is entitled to assume, and to act upon the assumption, that others using it in common with him will exercise reasonable care.	Can a traveler assume that others would also exercise reasonable care?
5448	Capaci v. Folmar Kenner, LLC, 43 So.3d 1229, 1233 (Ala.Civ.App.,2008)	3	Because the trial judge is in the best position to assess the conduct of plaintiff and the degree of noncompliance, his decision to grant a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute will be accorded considerable weight by a reviewing court. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	"Because the trial judge is in the best position to assess the conduct of the plaintiff and the degree of noncompliance, his decision to grant a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute will be accorded considerable weight by a reviewing court."	"Should involuntary dismissal for failure of plaintiff to prosecute or to comply with rules or any order of court, be carefully scrutinized?"

5449	Scottsdale Ins. Co. v. Lakeside Community Committee, 2016 IL App (1st) 141845, ¶¶ 18-19	3	A motion to dismiss based upon certain defects or defenses admits the legal sufficiency of the complaint, but asserts that the claim is defeated based on certain defects, defenses, or other affirmative matter. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	19 A motion to dismiss based on section 2-619 admits the legal sufficiency of the complaint, but asserts that the claim is defeated based on certain defects, defenses, or other affirmative matter.	Would a motion to dismiss based upon certain defects or defenses admit the legal sufficiency of the complaint?
5450	Schafer v. City of Defiance Police Dept., 529 F.3d 731, 736 (C.A.6 (Ohio),2008)	4	District courts have the authority to dismiss an action for failure of a plaintiff to prosecute the claim or to comply with the federal rules of civil procedure or any order of the court. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 41(b), 28 U.S.C.A.	Dismissal for failure to prosecute [4] [5] Rule 41(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure confers on district courts the authority to dismiss an action for failure of a plaintiff to prosecute the claim or to comply with the Rules or any order of the court.	Does the district court have authority to dismiss claims with prejudice for a party's failure to prosecute or to comply with procedural rules or court orders?
5452	Spates v. Howell, 420 S.W.3d 776, 780 (Tenn.Ct.App., 2013)	2	A defendant who files a motion to dismiss admits the truth of all of the relevant and material allegations contained in the complaint, but asserts that the allegations fail to establish a cause of action. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12.02(6).	"A defendant who files a motion to dismiss 'admits the truth of all of the relevant and material allegations contained in the complaint, but ... asserts that the allegations fail to establish a cause of action.' "	Does a defendant who files a motion to dismiss admit the truth of all of the relevant and material allegations contained in the complaint?
5453	Wells Fargo Bank v. Country Place Condo. Ass'n, 304 Mich. App. 582, 589, 848 N.W.2d 425, 429-30 (2014)	3	A motion for summary disposition for alleged failure to state a valid defense against a claim asserted tests the sufficiency of the defendant's pleadings, and is appropriately granted where the defendant has failed to state a valid defense to a claim. MCR 2.116(C)(9).	A motion for summary disposition pursuant to MCR 2.116(C)(9) tests the sufficiency of the defendant's pleadings, and is appropriately granted where the defendant has failed to state a valid defense to a claim.	Does a motion for summary disposition for failure to state a valid defense to the claim test the legal sufficiency of a defense?
5454	Pub. Res. Prot. Assn. v. Dep't of Forestry & Fire Prot., 7 Cal. 4th 111, 120, 865 P.2d 728, 734 (1994)	4	Legislature has given Board of Forestry authority to adopt forest practice rules and regulations in order to assure continuous growing and harvesting of commercial forest tree species and to protect environment, which authority includes power to review and revise rules and to withhold approval of timber harvesting plan if director determines that existing rules are insufficient to prevent significant harm to state's natural resources. West's Ann.Cal.Gov.Code SS 11342.1, 11342.2; West's Ann.Cal.Pub.Res.Code SS4551, 4553.	The Legislature has vested in the board the authority to adopt forest practice rules and regulations "to assure the continuous growing and harvesting of commercial forest tree species and to protect the soil, air, fish, and wildlife, and water resources...." (§ 4551.) It has expressly granted to the board the power to continuously review and revise those rules (§ 4553), and, in section 4555, specifically authorizes the director of the department to withhold approval of a timber harvesting plan if the director determines that existing rules are insufficient to prevent significant harm to the natural resources of the state.	Has the legislature vested in the board the authority to adopt forest practice rules and regulations?
5455	Mathews v. Sun Oil Co., 411 S.W.2d 561, 564 (Tex. Civ. App. 1966)	5	Estoppel by deed precludes parties to a valid sealed instrument and their privies from denying its force and effect by evidence of inferior solemnity.	Estoppel by deed precludes parties to a valid sealed instrument and their privies to deny its force and effect by evidence of inferior solemnity.	Is estoppel by deed a preclusion against the competent parties to a valid sealed instrument to deny its force and effect by any evidence of inferior solemnity?

5456	Bassim v. Hassett, 184 A.D.2d 908, 909–10, 585 N.Y.S.2d 566, 568 (1992)	1	"Prima facie tort," which may be pleaded in the alternative with traditional torts, consists of unjustified or inexcusable intentional infliction of harm, causing special damages, by an act or series of acts which would otherwise be lawful.	Prima facie tort, which may be pleaded in the alternative with traditional torts, consists of unjustified or inexcusable intentional infliction *910 of harm, causing special damages, by an act or series of acts that would otherwise be lawful (Curiano v. Suozzi, 63 N.Y.2d 113, 117, 480 N.Y.S.2d 466, 469 N.E.2d 1324; see, Burns Jackson Miller Summit & Spitzer v. Lindner, 59 N.Y.2d 314, 332–333, 464 N.Y.S.2d 712, 451 N.E.2d 459).	Can prima facie tort be pleaded in the alternative?
5457	Leon v. Martinez, 84 N.Y.2d 83, 88, 638 N.E.2d 511, 513 (1994)	3	In assessing motion to dismiss for failure to state cause of action, court may freely consider affidavits submitted by plaintiff to remedy any defects in complaint. McKinney's CPLR 3211(a), par. 7.	. In assessing a motion under CPLR 3211(a)(7), however, a court may freely consider affidavits submitted by the plaintiff to remedy any defects in the complaint	In assessing a motion to dismiss for failure under CPLR 3211(a)(7) is the criterion is that proponent of the pleading has a cause of action to state a cause of action?
5458	Est. of Radvin ex rel. Radvin v. City of New York, 38 Misc. 3d 821, 822, 956 N.Y.S.2d 818, 820 (Sup. Ct. 2012)	1	The criterion in considering a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action is whether the proponent of the pleading has a cause of action, not whether he has stated one. McKinney's CPLR 3211(a)(7).	The criterion in considering a motion to dismiss under CPLR 3211(a)(7) "is whether the proponent of the pleading has a cause of action, not whether he has stated one" (Allen v. City of New York, 49 A.D.3d 1126, 1127, 855 N.Y.S.2d 279 [3d Dept.2008] (citing Guggenheimer v. Ginzburg, 43 N.Y.2d 268, 275, 401 N.Y.S.2d 182, 372 N.E.2d 17 [1977]; see Griffin v. Anslow, 17 A.D.3d 889, 891, 793 N.Y.S.2d 615 [3d Dept.2005])).	Is the criterion in considering a motion to dismiss for failure under CPLR 3211(a)(7) to state a cause of action whether the proponent of the pleading has a cause of action?
5459	Hutchison v. Tompkins, 259 So.2d 129, 132 (Fla., 1972)	4	Where allegations of complaint show invasion of legal right, plaintiff may recover at least nominal damages and motion to dismiss should be overruled.	It is well established in Florida that where the allegations of a complaint show the invasion of a legal right, the plaintiff on the basis thereof may recover at least nominal damages, and a motion to dismiss should be overruled.	"Where the allegations of a complaint show the invasion of a legal right, can the plaintiff on the basis thereof recover at least nominal damages?"

5460	Theilmann v. Rutland Hosp., Inc., 455 F.2d 853, 855 (2d Cir. 1972)	1	Dismissal with prejudice is harsh remedy to be utilized only in extreme situations, but authority to invoke it for lack of prosecution, both on defendant's motion and sua sponte is an inherent control vested in courts. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc. rule 41(b), 28 U.S.C.A.	Dismissal with prejudice is a harsh remedy to be utilized only in extreme situations. Flaksa v. Little River Marine Construction Co., 389 F.2d 885, 888 (5th Cir.), cert. denied, 392 U.S. 928, 88 S.Ct. 2287, 20 L.Ed.2d 1387 (1968); Syracuse Broadcasting Corp. v. Newhouse, 271 F.2d 910, 914 (2d Cir. 1959). Nevertheless, the authority to invoke it for lack of prosecution, both on defendant's motion and sua sponte, is an inherent "... control necessarily vested in courts to manage their own affairs so as to achieve the orderly and expeditious disposition of cases."	Is a dismissal with prejudice a harsh remedy to be utilized only in extreme situations?
5463	Summerlin v. Com., 37 Va. App. 288, 297 (2002)	11	A "threat," in the criminal context, is recognized to be a communication avowing an intent to injure another's person or property; the communication, taken in its particular context, must reasonably cause the receiver to believe that the speaker will act according to his expression of intent. Code 1950, § 18.2-83.	A threat, in the criminal context, is recognized to be a communication avowing an intent to injure another's person or property. The communication, taken in its particular context, must reasonably cause the receiver to believe that the speaker will act according to his expression of intent.	How is a threat in the criminal context recognized?
5464	Graig Shipping Co. v. Midland Overseas Shipping Corp., 259 F.Supp. 929, 931 (D.C.N.Y. 1966)	3	Though statute contemplates that party to arbitration agreement may bring libel to obtain benefit of security by attachment, statute does not give libellant unrestricted privilege of utilizing pre-trial procedures, and though it may be permissible to allow libellant discovery of information relating to security, any attempt to go to merits and to retain still the right to arbitration is clearly impermissible. 9 U.S.C.A. § 8.	contemplates that a party to an arbitration agreement may bring a libel to obtain the benefit of security by attachment, The Sydfold, 25 F.Supp. 662 (S.D.N.Y.1938), that section does not give a libellant the unrestricted privilege of utilizing pre-trial procedures. While it may be permissible to allow a libellant discovery of information related to security, any attempt to go to the merits and to retain still the right to arbitration is clearly impermissible.	Can a party to an arbitration agreement bring a libel to obtain the benefit of security by attachment?
5465	Aspenhof Corp. v. State Tax Com'n of Missouri, 789 S.W.2d 867, 869 (Mo.App. E.D. 1990)	5	Assessed valuation of property is its true value in money; true value in money is fair market value of property on valuation date, and is function of its highest and best use, which is use of property which will produce greatest return in reasonably near future.	The assessed valuation of property is its true value in money. True value in money is the fair market value of the property on the valuation date, Hermel, 564 S.W.2d at 897, and is a function of its highest and best use, which is the use of the property which will produce the greatest return in the reasonably near future.	Is true value an absolute figure or an estimate of the fair market value of the property on the valuation date?

5466	Proctor v. Bank of New Hampshire, N.A., 123 N.H. 395, 398 (1983)	1	In determining whether a motion to dismiss should be granted, all facts properly pleaded are assumed to be true, and reasonable inferences therefrom are construed most favorably to the plaintiff; if the plaintiff could recover on any set of facts under the pleadings, the motion to dismiss as to that count should be denied.	In determining whether a motion to dismiss should be granted, all facts properly pleaded are assumed to be true, and the reasonable inferences therefrom are construed most favorably to the plaintiff. If the plaintiff could recover upon any set of facts under the pleadings, the motion to dismiss as to that count should be denied.	"In considering a motion to dismiss, does the court assume the petitioner's pleadings to be true and construes all reasonable inferences drawn therefrom most favorably to him?"
5470	W. Radio Servs. Co., Inc. v. Allen, 147 F. Supp. 3d 1132, 1145 (D. Or. 2015)	19	Under Oregon law, the theory of unjust enrichment provides a remedy where no enforceable contract exists, and (1) one party has conferred a benefit on another, (2) the recipient is aware that a benefit has been received, and (3) under the circumstances, it would be unjust to allow retention of the benefit without requiring the recipient to pay for it.	Unjust enrichment is a theory of "quasi-contract" based on an implied contract. See Summer Oaks Ltd. P'ship v. McGinley, 183 Or.App. 645, 654, 55 P.3d 1100 (2002). The theory of unjust enrichment provides a remedy where no enforceable contract exists, and 1) one party has conferred a benefit on another, 2) the recipient is aware that a benefit has been received, and 3) "under the circumstances, it would be unjust to allow retention of the benefit without requiring the recipient to pay for it."	Is unjust enrichment a remedy?
5471	Federal Commerce & Nav. Co. v. Kanematsu-Gosho, Limited, 457 F.2d 387, 389 (C.A.2, 1972)	2	It is not function of reviewing court, in guise of interpreting scope of submission agreement, to substitute its judgment on law for what arbitrators thought with good reason to be relevant.	It is not the function of a reviewing court, in the guise of interpreting the scope of the submission agreement, to substitute its judgment on the law for what the arbitrators thought with good reason to be relevant.	Can the reviewing court substitute its judgment on the law for what an arbitrator thought with good reason to be relevant?
5472	Bonner v. Michigan Logistics Incorporated, 250 F.Supp.3d 388, 394 (D.Ariz., 2017)	6	A court cannot expand the parties' agreement to arbitrate in order to achieve greater efficiency, and the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) requires piecemeal resolution when necessary to give effect to an arbitration agreement. 9 U.S.C.A. § 1 et seq.	However, a court "cannot expand the parties' agreement to arbitrate in order to achieve greater efficiency [and] the [FAA] 'requires piecemeal resolution when necessary to give effect to an arbitration agreement.' "	Does the Federal Arbitration Act require piecemeal resolution when necessary to give effect to arbitration agreement?

5473	Joca-Roca Real Est., LLC v. Brennan, 772 F.3d 945, 948 (1st Cir. 2014)	7	In determining whether a conduct-based waiver of the contractual right to arbitration has occurred, the court asks whether there has been an undue delay in the assertion of arbitral rights and whether, if arbitration supplanted litigation, the other party would suffer unfair prejudice, and that determination is informed by a salmagundi of factors, including the length of the delay, the extent to which the party seeking to invoke arbitration has participated in the litigation, the quantum of discovery and other litigation-related activities that have already taken place, the proximity of the arbitration demand to an anticipated trial date, and the extent to which the party opposing arbitration would be prejudiced.	In determining whether a conduct-based waiver has occurred, we ask whether there has been an undue delay in the assertion of arbitral rights and whether, if arbitration supplanted litigation, the other party would suffer unfair prejudice. See Marie v. Allied Home Mortg. Corp., 402 F.3d 1, 15 (1st Cir.2005); Rankin v. Allstate Ins. Co., 336 F.3d 8, 12 (1st Cir.2003). That determination is informed by a salmagundi of factors, including: the length of the delay, the extent to which the party seeking to invoke arbitration has participated in the litigation, the quantum of discovery and other litigation-related activities that have already taken place, the proximity of the arbitration demand to an anticipated trial date, and the extent to which the party opposing arbitration would be prejudiced.	What should the court examine in order to determine whether a conduct based waiver of the contractual right to arbitration has occurred?
5474	Berhorst v. J.L. Mason of Missouri, Inc., 764 S.W.2d 659, 663–64 (Mo.App. E.D. 1988)	5	Actions constituting waiver of right to arbitrate may include applicant's engaging in some combination of filing answer, setting up counterclaim, pursuing discovery and moving for continuance prior to seeking stay pending arbitration. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	Actions constituting waiver of the right to arbitrate may include the applicant's engaging in some combination of *664 filing an answer, setting up a counterclaim, pursuing discovery, and moving for a continuance prior to a stay pending arbitration.	What do actions constituting waiver of arbitration include?
5476	Betancourt v. Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., 344 F.Supp.2d 1253, 1260 (D.Colo., 2004)	10	There is no right under TILA to rescind a loan transaction when the loan at issue involves the creation of a first lien to finance the acquisition of a dwelling in which the customer resides or expects to reside. Truth in Lending Act, S 125(a), (e)(1), as amended, 15 U.S.C.A. S 1635(a), (e)(1).	Thus, there is no statutory right of rescission under 15 U.S.C. 1535(e) where the loan at issue involves the creation of a first lien to finance the acquisition of a dwelling in which the customer resides or expects to reside.	Is there a statutory right of rescission when the loan at issue involves the creation of a first lien to finance the acquisition of a dwelling in which the customer resides or expects to reside?
5477	Sears v. Ogden City, 572 P.2d 1359, 1362 (Utah, 1977)	2	In a proceeding to set aside a street vacation order, a complainant should allege that by reason of closing street he has suffered special damage different in kind from damage to general public; however, a taxpayer is not required to show special damage or injury where right to relief is grounded on illegal acts claimed to operate as constructive fraud affecting city and its citizens.	In a proceeding to set aside a vacation order, a complainant should allege that by reason of closing the street he has suffered special damages different in kind from the damage to the general public. However, a taxpayer is not required to show special damage or injury where the right to relief is grounded on illegal acts of the council claimed to operate as a constructive fraud affecting the city and its citizens.	Does a complainant have to suffer a special injury different in kind to the public in general to have standing to challenge the validity of a vacation of a street?

5479	M.S.P.C. v. U.S. Customs and Border Protection, 60 F.Supp.3d 1156, 1167 (D.N.M., 2014)	12	The fact that aliens within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States are protected by the Due Process Clause does not lead to the conclusion that all aliens are entitled to the same rights as citizens or to the conclusion that all aliens must be treated alike. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The fact that aliens within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States are protected by the Due Process Clause, however, does not lead to the conclusion that all aliens are entitled to the same rights as citizens or to the conclusion that all aliens must be treated alike.	Does the fact that aliens are protected by the Due Process Clause mean that aliens are entitled to enjoy all the advantages of citizenship?
5481	Harwell v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 896 S.W.2d 170, 173 (Tex., 1995)	2	When determining whether summary judgment was proper, appellate court reviews evidence in light most favorable to nonmovant, taking all evidence in favor of nonmovant as true and resolving all doubts as to existence of genuine issue of material fact in its favor.	When determining whether summary judgment was proper, we review the evidence in the light most favorable to the nonmovant, taking all evidence in favor of the nonmovant as true and resolving all doubts as to the existence of a genuine issue of material fact in its favor.	Is evidence reviewed in the light most favorable to the nonmovant when deciding summary judgment?
5486	Ericksen v. Rush Presbyterian St. Luke's Medical Center, 289 Ill.App.3d 159, 165 (Ill.App. 1 Dist., 1997)	1	Motion to dismiss admits all well-pleaded facts in complaint and all documents submitted in support of motion must be considered in light most favorable to nonmoving party, and motion will be granted if there exist no disputed issues of fact. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	A section 2-619 motion to dismiss admits all well-pleaded facts in the complaint. All documents submitted in support of the motion must be considered in a light most favorable to the nonmoving party, and the motion will be granted if there exist no disputed issues of fact. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	"In considering a motion to dismiss, does a court accept as true all well-pleaded facts and draws all inferences from those facts in favor of a nonmovant?"
5487	Thompson v. Williams, 752 So. 2d 525, 527 (Ala.Civ.App., 1999)	5	Interest in disposing of litigation on the merits is overcome and a dismissal may be granted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff; willful default or conduct is a conscious or intentional failure to act.	In Alabama, and many federal courts, the interest in disposing of the litigation on the merits is overcome and a dismissal may be granted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff. Willful default or conduct is a conscious or intentional failure to act. 'Willful' is used in contradistinction to accidental or involuntary noncompliance.	"Can a dismissal be granted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff?"
5489	Rodash v. AIB Mortg. Co., 16 F.3d 1142, 1144 (C.A.11 (Fla.),1994)	3	Congress intended Truth in Lending Act (TILA) to create system of private attorneys general to aid its enforcement; thus, to further its remedial purpose, Court of Appeals construes language in favor of consumer. Truth in Lending Act, S 102 et seq., 15 U.S.C.A. S 1601 et seq.	Congress intended the statute to create a system of private attorneys general to aid its enforcement; thus, to further its remedial purpose, we liberally construe its language in favor of the consumer. McGowan v. King, Inc., 569 F.2d 845, 848 (5th Cir.1978).	How did Congress aid the enforcement of Truth in Lending Act (TILA)?
5491	Koch v. Dakota Cnty., 151 Neb. 506, 511 (Neb. 1949)	7	The statutory provision that a petition for establishment or vacation of a public road shall be signed by at least ten electors residing within five miles of road, is jurisdictional. R.S.1943, S 39-105.	The statutory provision that a petition for the establishment or vacation of a public road shall be signed by at least ten electors residing within five miles of the road is jurisdictional.	"Is it necessary that a petition be signed by ten electors, or petitioners residing within five miles of the road?"

5494	CitiMortgage, Inc. v. Gaudiano, 68 A.3d 101, 102, 142 Conn.App. 440, 441 (Conn.App., 2013)	1	When a court decides a question raised by a pretrial motion to dismiss, it must consider the allegations of the complaint in their most favorable light; in this regard, a court must take the facts to be those alleged in the complaint, including those facts necessarily implied from the allegations, construing them in a manner most favorable to the pleader.	When a ... court decides a ... question raised by a pretrial motion to dismiss, it must consider the allegations of the complaint in their most favorable light.... In this regard, a court must take the facts to be those alleged in the complaint, including those facts necessarily implied from the allegations, construing them in a manner most favorable to the pleader.	"When a court decides a question raised by a pretrial motion to dismiss, should it consider the allegations of the complaint in their most favorable light?"
5495	P.E. Systems, LLC v. CPI Corp., 176 Wash.2d 198, 210–11 (Wash., 2012)	17	When considering a motion for judgment on the pleadings, a trial court must presume that the plaintiff's allegations are true and may consider hypothetical facts that are not included in the record. CR 12(c).	In making this determination, a trial court must *211 presume that the plaintiff's allegations are true and may consider hypothetical facts that are not included in the record.	"When dismissing a complaint on the pleadings, should a trial court presume that the plaintiff's allegations are true and can consider hypothetical facts that are not included in the record?"
5496	Pietrangelo v. Wilmer Cutler Pickering Hale & Dorr, LLP, 68 A.3d 697, 709 (D.C. App. 2013)	7	On a motion to dismiss for failure to state claim on which relief could be granted, the Court of Appeals will construe the complaint in the light most favorable to the plaintiff by taking the facts alleged in the complaint as true. Civil Rule 12(b)(6).	We review the trial court's decision to dismiss a complaint for failure to state a claim de novo. Grayson v. AT & T Corp., 15 A.3d 219, 228 (D.C.2011) (en banc) (citation omitted). We construe the complaint in the light most favorable to the plaintiff by taking the facts alleged in the complaint as true.	"On a motion to dismiss for failure to state claim on which relief could be granted, are all facts alleged in the complaint taken as true?"
5497	Shapiro v. Columbia Union Nat. Bank and Trust Co., 576 S.W.2d 310, 312 (Mo., 1978)	1	Supreme Court's review of dismissal of plaintiff's petition would allow pleading its broadest intentment; Supreme Court would treat all facts alleged as true, construe allegations favorably to plaintiff and determine whether averments invoke principles of substantive law.	Our review of the dismissal of the petition allows the pleading its broadest intentment, we treat all facts alleged as true, construe the allegations favorably to the plaintiff and determine whether the averments invoke principles of substantive law.	"Are all facts alleged in a petition are regarded as true, for purposes of a motion to dismiss?"
5499	Ackerman v. Sobol Family Partnership, LLP, 4 A.3d 288, 299, 298 Conn. 495, 509 (Conn., 2010)	11	Unless otherwise agreed, there is a notification by the principal to the third person of revocation of an agent's apparent authority or other fact indicating its termination: (1) when the principal states such fact to the third person, or (2) when a reasonable time has elapsed after a writing stating such fact has been delivered by the principal to the other personally. Restatement (Second) of Agency S 136(1).	Unless otherwise agreed, there is a notification by the principal to the third person of revocation of an agent's [apparent] authority or other fact indicating its termination: (a) when the principal states such fact to the third person; or (b) when a reasonable time has elapsed after a writing stating such fact has been delivered by the principal (i) to the other personally....	Can apparent authority be terminated if a third person has notice of the agents authority being terminated?
5500	Ping v. Beverly Enterprises, Inc., 376 S.W.3d 581, 594–95 (Ky., 2012)	19	Equitable estoppel is a defensive doctrine founded on the principles of fraud, under which one party is prevented from taking advantage of another party whom it has falsely induced to act in some injurious or detrimental way.	Equitable estoppel is a defensive doctrine founded on the principles of fraud, under which one party is prevented *595 from taking advantage of another party whom it has falsely induced to act in some injurious or detrimental way.	Is equitable estoppel a defensive doctrine found on the principles of fraud?

5501	Anderson v. Wilken, 377 P.3d 149, 150–51 (Okla.Civ.App. Div. 4, 2015)	2	In a traditional motion to dismiss, the trial court takes as true all of the factual allegations together with all reasonable inferences that can be drawn from them, and dismissal will be granted only when there are no facts consistent with the allegations under any cognizable legal theory or there are insufficient facts under a cognizable legal theory.	In a traditional *151 motion to dismiss, the trial court "takes as true all of the factual allegations together with all reasonable inferences that can be drawn from them." Wilson v. State ex rel. State Election Bd., 2012 OK 2, 4, 270 P.3d 155, and dismissal will be granted "only when there are no facts consistent with the allegations under any cognizable legal theory or there are insufficient facts under a cognizable legal theory."	"In a traditional motion to dismiss, does the trial court take as true all of the factual allegations together with all reasonable inferences that can be drawn from them?"
5502	Weiss v. Indiana Parole Bd., 838 N.E.2d 1048, 1050 (Ind. Ct. App. 2005)	2	A motion to dismiss a claim for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted tests the sufficiency of a claim, not the facts supporting it. Trial Procedure Rule 12(B)(6).	A motion to dismiss based on Trial Rule 12(B)(6) for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted tests the sufficiency of a claim, not the facts supporting it.	"Does a motion to dismiss a claim for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted test the sufficiency of a claim, not the facts supporting it?"
5503	Connolly v. Sebeco, Inc., 89 So.2d 482, 484 (Fla., 1956)	3	For purpose of passing upon a motion to dismiss a complaint, the court must assume all facts alleged in the complaint to be true and must decide motion on questions of law only.	For the purpose of passing upon a motion to dismiss the Court must assume all facts alleged in the complaint to be true. Consequently a motion to dismiss a complaint must be decided on questions of law and questions of law only.	"For purpose of passing upon motion to dismiss, should a court assume all facts alleged in a complaint to be true?"
5505	Landmark Funding, Inc on Behalf of Naples Syndications, LLC v. Chaluts, 213 So.3d 1078, 1079 (Fla.App. 2 Dist., 2017)	3	When passing on a motion to dismiss, the trial court is limited to considering the four corners of the complaint along with the attachments incorporated into the complaint.	As such, when passing on a motion to dismiss, the trial court "is limited to considering the four corners of the complaint along with the attachments incorporated into the complaint."	"When passing on a motion to dismiss, is the trial court limited to considering the four corners of the complaint along with the attachments incorporated into the complaint?"
5506	Bilnoski v. Pizza Inn, Inc., 858 S.W.2d 55, 57 (Tex.App. Hous. [14 Dist.],1993)	1	Trial court may dismiss case for want of prosecution when party fails to appear at hearing or at trial, when case has not been disposed of within Supreme Court's guidelines, and when case has not been prosecuted with due diligence; authority to dismiss is derived both from rules of civil procedure and from court's inherent powers. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165.	A trial court may dismiss a case for want of prosecution (1) when a party fails to appear at a hearing or at trial, (2) when the case has not been disposed of within the supreme court's guidelines, and (3) when a case has not been prosecuted with due diligence. City of Houston v. Thomas, 838 S.W.2d 296, 297 (Tex.App.-Houston [1st Dist.] 1992, no writ). The trial court's authority to dismiss is derived both from TEX.R.CIV.P. 165 and its own inherent powers.	Can a court dismiss a case for want of prosecution when the case has not been disposed of within Supreme Court's guidelines?

5507	Youngworth v. Stark, 232 Cal. App. 3d 395, 401, 283 Cal. Rptr. 668, 671 (Ct. App. 1991)	2	Policies guiding trial court's management of delay reduction program are reduction of delay in litigation and expeditious and timely resolution of cases, and resolution of cases on their merits rather than dismissal on procedural grounds. West's Ann.Cal.Gov.Code S 68601 (Repealed).	The management of the trial court's delay reduction program is an area within the court's discretion and will not be disturbed unless it appears that the exercise of that discretion was a clear abuse or a miscarriage of justice. (Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal.3d 557, 566, 86 Cal.Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193; Moyal v. Lanphear (1989) 208 Cal.App.3d 491, 498, 256 Cal.Rptr. 296.) Guiding the disposition of this issue are two competing policies: (1) the reduction of delay in litigation and the expeditious and timely resolution of cases, and (2) the resolution of cases on their merits rather than dismissal on procedural grounds. (See Denham v. Superior Court, supra, 2 Cal.3d at p. 566, 86 Cal.Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193; Barrington v. A.H. Robins Co. (1985) 39 Cal.3d 146, 152, 216 Cal.Rptr. 405, 702 P.2d 563; Holder v. Sheet Metal Worker's Internat. Assn. (1981) 121 Cal.App.3d 321, 325, 175 Cal.Rptr. 313.)	What are the policies guiding trial court's management of delay reduction program?
5508 5509	O.S.G. by L.G. v. G.B., Jr., 805 S.W.2d 704, 706 (Mo.App. S.D. 1991) Bucchiere v. New England Tel. & Tel. Co., 396 Mass. 639, 641, 488 N.E.2d 1, 2 (1986)	4 2	In deciding whether to order dismissal for failure to prosecute, trial court may consider not only the length of the delay but attendant circumstances. Power to invoke sanction of dismissal for want of prosecution, Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b)(2), 43A M.G.L.A., is critical to orderly and expeditious disposition of cases and the calendar as a whole.	In deciding whether to order dismissal for failure to prosecute, a trial court may consider not only the length of delay, but attendant circumstances. "The power to invoke [the sanction of dismissal for want of prosecution] is necessary in order to prevent undue delays in the disposition of pending cases and to avoid congestion in the calendars...." Link v. Wabash R.R. Co., supra, 370 U.S. at 629–630, 82 S.Ct. at 1388. See State Realty Co. of Boston, Inc. v. MacNeil Bros. Co., 358 Mass. 374, 379, 265 N.E.2d 85 (1970); Massachusetts Gen. Hosp. v. Grassi, 356 Mass. 1, 2, 247 N.E.2d 594 (1969); Bancroft v. Sawin, 143 Mass. 144, 146–147 (1887). Of "ancient origin," that power is critical to the orderly and expeditious disposition of cases and the calendar as a whole.	Will the court consider not only the length of the delay but also attendant circumstances in deciding whether to order dismissal for failure to prosecute? Is power to invoke sanction of dismissal for want of prosecution critical to orderly and expeditious disposition of cases and the calendar as a whole?

5510	Comstock Const. Co. v. LHG Inv. Co., 337 N.W.2d 82, 84, 126 Mich.App. 408, 411 (Mich.App.,1983)	1	Failure of an attorney to appear after due notice has been given is a sufficient ground for either the entry of a default or an involuntary nonsuit.	It is clear that the failure of an attorney to appear after due notice has been given is a sufficient ground for either the entry of a default or an involuntary nonsuit.	"Is failure of an attorney to appear after due notice has been given, a sufficient ground for either the entry of a default or an involuntary nonsuit?"
5511	Troester v. Sisters of Mercy Health Corp., 328 N.W.2d 308, 311 (Iowa, 1982)	5	It is proper to challenge plaintiff's capacity to sue by motion to dismiss based on facts that occurred subsequent to filing of petition.	We have also indicated that it is proper to challenge a plaintiff's capacity to sue by a motion to dismiss based on facts that occurred subsequent to the filing of the petition.	Is it proper to challenge plaintiff's capacity to sue by motion to dismiss based on facts that occurred subsequent to filing of petition?
5512	Becky v. Norwest Bank Dillon, N.A., 798 P.2d 1011, 1015, 245 Mont. 1, 8 (Mont.,1990)	5	Party moving for dismissal for failure to prosecute must demonstrate that plaintiff has delayed action on a claim for an unreasonable period of time and once delay has been shown, plaintiff must proffer a reasonable excuse for the delay; an unreasonable delay raises a presumption of prejudice and defendant is under no obligation to demonstrate injury from the delay, but if plaintiff comes forward with a reasonable excuse for the delay, burden shifts to defendant to show actual prejudice. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	The party moving for dismissal must demonstrate that the plaintiff has delayed action on the claim for an unreasonable period of time. Once an unreasonable delay has been shown, the plaintiff must proffer a reasonable excuse for the delay. Calaway v. Jones, 177 Mont. 516, 520, 582 P.2d 756, 758 (1978). An unreasonable delay raises a presumption of prejudice to the defendant, and the defendant is under no obligation to demonstrate injury from the delay. Shackelton, 207 Mont. at 102, 672 P.2d at 1115. However, if the plaintiff comes forward with a reasonable excuse for the delay, the burden shifts to the defendant to show actual prejudice.	"Should party moving for dismissal due to failure to prosecute, demonstrate that plaintiff has unreasonably delayed prosecution of his claims?"
5513	Gen. Pump & Well v. Miller, 326 Ga. App. 546, 546 (2014)	1	A defendant moving to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction under the long-arm statute bears the burden of proving the absence of jurisdiction; to meet that burden, the defendant may raise matters not contained in the pleadings. West's Ga.Code Ann. S 9-11-43(b).	Further, under our law, [a] defendant moving to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction bears the burden of proving the absence of jurisdiction. To meet that burden, the defendant may raise matters not contained in the pleadings.	Does a defendant moving to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction bear the burden of proving the absence of jurisdiction?

5515	Winter v. Am. Inst. of Med. Scis. & Educ., 242 F. Supp. 3d 206, 221 (S.D.N.Y. 2017)	18	Under New York and New Jersey law, student cannot request judicial review of purely academic determinations that would require court to evaluate course of instruction or soundness of educational methodology.	While Defendant is correct that a student cannot request judicial review of purely academic determinations that would require the Court to evaluate "the course of instruction" or "the soundness of educational methodology" under either New York (Paladino v. Adelphi Univ., 89 A.D.2d 85, 92, 454 N.Y.S.2d 868, 872-73 (2d Dep't 1982)) or New Jersey law (Myers v. Medford Lakes Bd. of Ed., 199 N.J.Super. 511, 489 A.2d 1240, 1241 (N.J. App. Div. 1985)), the Court finds that New York law is slightly broader than New Jersey law regarding student-university conflicts.	Can a student request judicial review of academic determinations?
5516	Trisler v. Berry, 470 S.W.3d 387, 389 (Mo. Ct. App. 2015)	2	Dismissal without prejudice permits the party to bring another civil action for the same cause, unless the civil action is otherwise barred.	"A dismissal without prejudice permits the party to bring another civil action for the same cause, unless the civil action is otherwise barred."	"Does dismissal without prejudice permit the party to bring another civil action for the same cause, unless the civil action is otherwise barred?"
5517	O.S.G. by L.G. v. G.B., Jr., 805 S.W.2d 704, 706 (Mo. Ct. App. 1991)	4	In deciding whether to order dismissal for failure to prosecute, trial court may consider not only the length of the delay but attendant circumstances.	In deciding whether to order dismissal for failure to prosecute, a trial court may consider not only the length of delay, but attendant circumstances.	Will court consider not only the length of the delay but attendant circumstances in deciding whether to order dismissal for failure to prosecute?
5518	Crawford v. Crawford, 39 Ill. App. 3d 457, 463, 350 N.E.2d 103, 108 (1976)	7	Dismissal of valid cause of action is error unless plaintiff is guilty of inexcusable delay in litigating controverted matter.	Schallerer, 9 Ill.App.3d 951, 952-53, 293 N.E.2d 411, 413), it must be remembered that a dismissal of a valid cause of action is error unless the plaintiff is guilty of an inexcusable delay in litigating the controverted matter.	Is dismissal of valid cause of action an error unless plaintiff is guilty of inexcusable delay in litigating controverted matter?
5519	Rossi v. Mathers, 749 P.2d 964, 965 (Colo. App. 1987)	2	In absence of showing by plaintiff of mitigating circumstances or reasonable excuse for delay, unusual delay in prosecuting action justifies dismissal with prejudice. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 121(b), Standard S 1-10 (1987).	Thus, in the absence of a showing by the plaintiff of mitigating circumstances or a reasonable excuse for the delay, an unusual delay in prosecuting an action justifies dismissal with prejudice.	"In the absence of a showing by the plaintiff of a reasonable excuse for the delay, does an unusual delay in prosecuting an action justify dismissal with prejudice?"
5520	Stoot v. S. Pac. Co., 527 S.W.2d 765, 767 (Tex. Civ. App. 1975)	3	A suit may be dismissed for want of prosecution even though the plaintiff objects to dismissal at the hearing thereon and manifests his intention to prosecute the suit to judgment.	A suit may be dismissed for want of prosecution even though the appellant objects to the dismissal at the hearing thereon and manifests his intention to prosecute the suit to judgment.	Can a suit be dismissed for want of prosecution even though the plaintiff objects to dismissal at the hearing thereon and manifests his intention to prosecute the suit to judgment?

5521	Yellam v. Woerner, 77 Wash. 2d 604, 608, 464 P.2d 947, 949 (1970)	3	Rule providing for dismissal for want of prosecution is punitive or administrative in nature and every reasonable opportunity should be afforded to permit the parties to reach the merits of the controversy. CR 41(b) (1), (b) (2) (C).	The rule providing for dismissal for want of prosecution is punitive or administrative in nature and every reasonable opportunity should be afforded to permit the parties to reach the merits of the controversy.	Should every reasonable opportunity be afforded to permit the parties to reach the merits of the controversy?
5522	Andra v. Left Gate Prop. Holding, 453 S.W.3d 216, 224 (Mo. 2015)	4	When a nonresident defendant's motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction is based on facts not appearing in the record, a trial court may consider affidavits and depositions properly filed in support of the motion. Mo. Sup. Ct. R. 55.28.	When the motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction is based on facts not appearing in the record, a court may also consider affidavits and depositions properly filed in support of the motion to dismiss.	Should a court consider any proper affidavits that are filed in connection with a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction?
5523	Granada Condo. III Ass'n v. Palomino, 78 A.D.3d 996, 996 (N.Y. 2010)	2	A motion to dismiss a complaint may be granted only if documentary evidence submitted by defendant utterly refutes the factual allegations of complaint, and conclusively establishes defense to claims as matter of law. McKinney's CPLR 3211(a)(1).	A motion to dismiss a complaint pursuant to CPLR 3211(a)(1) may be granted only if the documentary evidence submitted by the defendant utterly refutes the factual allegations of the complaint and conclusively establishes a defense to the claims as a matter of law.	"Are neither affidavits, deposition testimony, nor letters considered ""documentary evidence"" for purposes of a motion to dismiss a complaint?"
5524	Ferreira v. Pringle, 255 Conn. 330, 346, 766 A.2d 400, 410 (2001)	15	Motion to dismiss admits all facts which are well pleaded, invokes existing record, and must be decided upon that alone.	"The motion to dismiss ... admits all facts which are well pleaded, invokes the existing record and must be decided upon that alone....	"Does a motion to dismiss admit all facts that are well pleaded, invokes the existing record, and must be decided upon that alone?"
5526	Rich Printing Co. v. McKellar's Est., 46 Tenn. App. 444, 487, 330 S.W.2d 361, 379-80 (1959)	12	Authority cannot be lawfully delegated which is illegal, immoral or opposed to public policy, nor can one delegate an act which is personal in its nature, such as designating an agency to perform a personal duty or personal trust.	It is also axiomatic that authority cannot be 380 lawfully delegated which is illegal, immoral or opposed to public policy, nor can one delegate an act which is personal in its nature, such as designating an agency to perform a personal duty or a personal trust.	"Can authority to do an act which is illegal, immoral or opposed to public policy be lawfully delegated?"
5528	United States v. Marine Shale Processors, 81 F.3d 1329, 1348 (5th Cir. 1996)	17	Equitable estoppel responds to unfairness inherent in denying claimant some benefit after it has reasonably relied on misrepresentations of adverse party.	Rather, equitable estoppel responds to the unfairness inherent in denying the claimant some benefit after it has reasonably relied on the misrepresentations of the adverse party.	Does equitable estoppel respond to the unfairness inherent in denying the claimant some benefit after it has reasonably relied on the misrepresentations of the adverse party?
5529	Nelson v. Cool, 230 Neb. 859, 860 (1989)	6	Petition should not leave uncertain theory on which plaintiff chooses to proceed, but should state facts which constitute cause of action, define issues to which defendant must respond, and inform court of real matter in dispute.	A petition should not leave uncertain the theory on which the plaintiff chooses to proceed, but should 34 state the facts which constitute the cause of action, define the issues to which defendant must respond, and inform the court of the real matter in dispute.	Can a petition leave uncertainty as to the theory on which the pleader wishes to proceed?

5530	Builders Bank v. Barry Finkel & Assocs., 790 N.E.2d 30, 34 (Ill. App. 1st Dist. 2003)	5	The relevant inquiry on appeal of an involuntary dismissal that was based on defects or defenses is whether the existence of a genuine issue of material fact should have precluded the dismissal or, absent such an issue of fact, whether dismissal is proper as a matter of law. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	Appellate review of a dismissal pursuant to section 2–619 is de novo, and thus, a reviewing court need not defer to the circuit court's reasoning. Spillyards v. Abboud, 278 Ill.App.3d 663, 215 Ill.Dec. 218, 662 N.E.2d 1358 (1996).The relevant inquiry on appeal is “whether the existence of a genuine issue of material fact should have precluded the dismissal or, absent such an issue of fact, whether dismissal is proper as a matter of law.”	Is the relevant inquiry on appeal whether the existence of a genuine issue of material fact should have precluded the dismissal?
5532	Rodolico v. Rubin & Licatesi, P.C., 114 A.D.3d 923, 925, 981 N.Y.S.2d 144, 146 (2014)	3	The evidence submitted in support of a motion to dismiss a complaint on the ground that a defense is founded on documentary evidence must be "documentary" or the motion must be denied; neither affidavits, deposition testimony, nor letters are considered documentary evidence. McKinney's CPLR 3211(a)(1).	Further, the evidence submitted in support of a motion pursuant to CPLR 3211(a)(1) to dismiss a complaint on the ground that a defense is founded on documentary evidence “must be ‘documentary’ or the motion must be denied” (Cives Corp. v. George A. Fuller Co., Inc., 97 A.D.3d 713, 714, 948 N.Y.S.2d 658, quoting Fontanetta v. John Doe 1, 73 A.D.3d 78, 84, 898 N.Y.S.2d 569 [internal quotation marks omitted]; see Rodolico v. Rubin & Licatesi, P.C., 112 A.D.3d at 610, 977 N.Y.S.2d 264). “ [N]either affidavits, deposition testimony, nor letters are considered documentary evidence within the intendment of CPLR 3211(a)(1)’ ”	"Should the evidence submitted in support of a motion to dismiss a complaint on the ground that a defense is founded on documentary evidence be ""documentary"" or the motion must be denied?"
5534	Botton v. Elbaz, 722 So. 2d 974, 975 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1999)	1	Dismissal based on forum non conveniens, if not evident from the allegations appearing on the face of the complaint, must be supported by record evidence, either in the form of affidavits or live testimony. West's F.S.A. S 47.122; West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.061.	[A] dismissal based on forum non conveniens, if not evident from the allegations appearing on the face of the complaint, must be supported by record evidence, either in the form of affidavits or live testimony.	Should a dismissal based on forum non conveniens be supported by record evidence?
5535	Quality Christmas Trees Co. v. Florico Foliage, 689 So. 2d 1222, 1223 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1997)	3	Defendant, by filing motion to dismiss complaint for lack of personal jurisdiction, may contest jurisdictional allegations of complaint or claim lack of sufficient minimum contacts; such challenges must be made by supporting affidavit, and once such affidavits are filed, burden shifts to plaintiff to establish by affidavit its basis for jurisdiction. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 14.	The defendant may challenge the legal sufficiency of the complaint by filing a motion to dismiss the complaint alleging lack of personal jurisdiction. In doing so, the defendant may contest the jurisdictional allegations of the complaint or claim a lack of sufficient minimum contacts. Such challenges must be made by supporting affidavit. Once such affidavits are filed, the burden shifts to the plaintiff to establish by affidavit its basis for jurisdiction.	Should a defendant wishing to contest allegations of a complaint concerning jurisdiction or to raise contention of minimum contacts file affidavits in support of his position?

5536	Orbe v. Orbe, 651 So. 2d 1295, 1296 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1995)	3	Defendant may challenge the sufficiency of jurisdictional allegations of complaint by filing motion to dismiss, but must support his or her position by affidavit; burden then shifts to plaintiff to show by affidavit the basis upon which jurisdiction may be obtained.	A defendant may challenge the sufficiency of jurisdictional allegations of a complaint by filing a motion to dismiss, but must support his position by affidavit. The burden then shifts to the plaintiff to show by affidavit the basis upon which jurisdiction may be obtained.	Should the defendant challenging the sufficiency of jurisdictional allegations of complaint by filing a motion to dismiss support his or her position by affidavit?
5537	Mulgrew v. Spectraseis, 436 S.W.3d 798, 800 (Tex. App. 2014)	3	When the legislature grants an administrative agency exclusive jurisdiction over a dispute, the district court lacks jurisdiction to the extent of the agency's exclusive authority to decide the dispute, and until the party has exhausted all administrative remedies, the trial court must dismiss without prejudice the claims within the agency's exclusive jurisdiction for lack of subject matter jurisdiction.	When the legislature grants an administrative agency exclusive jurisdiction over a dispute, the district court lacks jurisdiction to the extent of the agency's exclusive authority to decide the dispute. See Thomas, 207 S.W.3d at 340. Until the party has exhausted all administrative remedies, the trial court must dismiss without prejudice the claims within the agency's exclusive jurisdiction for lack of subject matter jurisdiction.	"When the legislature grants an administrative agency exclusive jurisdiction over a dispute, does the district court lack jurisdiction to the extent of the agency exclusive authority to decide the dispute?"
5541	Am. Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Everett, 38 Del. Ch. 352, 358, 152 A.2d 295, 299 (1959)	2	The name given to a tax is not the controlling factor in determining its nature, a "property tax" being one clearly and directly on property while an "occupation tax" is imposed on the voluntary action of the person taxed in performing the act or occupation in question.	However, the name given to a tax is not the controlling factor in determining its nature, a property tax being one clearly and directly on property while an occupation tax is imposed on the voluntary action of the person taxed in performing the act or occupation in question,	Is the name given to a tax the controlling factor in determining its nature?
5542	Scheuer v. Rhodes, 416 U.S. 232, 236 (1974)	1	When a federal court reviews sufficiency of complaint, before reception of any evidence either by affidavit or admissions, issue is not whether plaintiff will ultimately prevail or is likely to prevail but whether claimant is entitled to offer evidence to support claims.	When a federal court reviews the sufficiency of a complaint, before the reception of any evidence either by affidavit or admissions, its task is necessarily a limited one. The issue is not whether a plaintiff will ultimately prevail but whether the claimant is entitled to offer evidence to support the claims.	"When a court reviews the sufficiency of a complaint, before the reception of any evidence, is its task necessarily a limited one?"
5543	Gonzalez v. Safe & Sound Sec. Corp., 185 N.J. 100, 115 (2005)	4	Because the dismissal of a plaintiff's cause of action with prejudice is a drastic remedy, it should be invoked sparingly, such as when the plaintiff's violation of a rule or order evinces a deliberate and contumacious disregard of the court's authority. R. 1:2-4(a); R. 1:9-1; R. 4:37-2(a).	Because the dismissal of a plaintiff's cause of action with prejudice is a drastic remedy, it should be invoked sparingly, such as when the plaintiff's violation of a rule or order evinces " 'a deliberate and contumacious disregard of the court's authority.' "	Is the dismissal of a plaintiff's cause of action with prejudice a drastic remedy and should be invoked sparingly?

5544	Rotert v. Faulkner, 660 S.W.2d 463, 469 (Mo. Ct. App. 1983)	8	Even though note does not possess quality of negotiability, its owner may nonetheless, by assignment, transfer his interest to another, and any language, however informal, if it shows intention of owner of chose in action to transfer it, and sufficiently identifies subject matter, is sufficient to vest property therein in assignee.	It is thus established in Missouri that even though a note does not possess the quality of negotiability, its owner may nonetheless, by assignment, transfer his interest to another. Any language, however informal, if it shows the intention of the owner of a chose in action to transfer it, and sufficiently identifies the subject matter, is sufficient to vest the property therein in the assignee.	Is any language sufficiently identifying the intent of the owner to transfer sufficient to vest the property with the assignee?
5546	Selby v. Money, 403 So. 2d 218, 220 (Ala. 1981)	8	Interest in disposing of litigation on the merits is overcome and dismissal may be granted when there is clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct by plaintiff. Rules of Civil Procedure, Rule 41(b).	In Alabama, and many federal courts, the interest in disposing of the litigation on the merits is overcome and a dismissal may be granted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff. Smith v. Wilcox County Board of Education, 365 So.2d at 661.	"Can dismissal be granted when there is clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct by plaintiff?"
5547	Laird v. Jobes, 580 S.W.2d 413, 416 (Tex. Civ. App. 1979)	3	A party to a suit is always charged with notice that suit may be dismissed for want of prosecution where there is inaction for a long period of time. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 165a.	A party to a suit is always charged with notice that it may be dismissed for want of prosecution where there is inaction for a long period of time.	Is party to suit always charged with notice that it may be dismissed for want of prosecution where there is inaction for a long period of time?
5548	Mamet v. Mamet, 132 A.D.2d 479, 480, 518 N.Y.S.2d 5, 7 (1987).	1	Case marked off trial calendar and not restored within one year shall be deemed abandoned and shall be dismissed; furthermore, for case to be restored to calendar, order of restoration must be entered within one-year period. McKinney's CPLR 3404.	CPLR 3404 provides that a case marked off the trial calendar and not restored within one year shall be deemed abandoned and shall be dismissed. Furthermore, for a case to be restored to the calendar, an order of restoration must be entered within the one-year period.	Should a case marked off trial calendar and not restored within one year be deemed abandoned and shall be dismissed?
5549	Beltrone v. Gen. Schuyler & Co., 223 A.D.2d 938, 939, 636 N.Y.S.2d 917, 918 (1996)	1	Affidavits submitted by defendant in connection with motion to dismiss will seldom if ever warrant relief sought, unless affidavits establish conclusively that plaintiff has no cause of action.	On a motion to dismiss, however, affidavits submitted by a defendant will seldom if ever warrant the relief he seeks unless the affidavits establish conclusively that plaintiff has no cause of action (see, Rovello v. Orofino Realty Co., 40 N.Y.2d 633, 636, 389 N.Y.S.2d 314, 357 N.E.2d 970; see also, Pietrosanto v. NYNEX Corp., 195 A.D.2d 843, 600 N.Y.S.2d 802).	Will affidavits submitted by a defendant in connection with motion to dismiss seldom if ever warrant the relief sought?

5550	Magnum Capital v. Carter & Assocs., 905 So. 2d 220, 221 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2005)	2	If documents are attached to a complaint and conclusively negate a claim, the pleadings can be dismissed on a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action; if it is apparent that the claim cannot be cured by amendment, the dismissal may be with prejudice.	However, if documents are attached to a complaint and conclusively negate a claim, the pleadings can be dismissed. See Franz Tractor Co. v. J.I. Case Co., 566 So.2d 524, 526 (Fla. 2d DCA 1990). If it is apparent that the claim cannot be cured by amendment, the dismissal may be with prejudice.	"If documents are attached to a complaint and conclusively negate a claim, can the pleadings be dismissed on a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action?"
5551	Samanie & Barnes v. Lawler, 619 So. 2d 1166, 1169 (La. Ct. App. 1993)	2	Judgment dismissing action shall be rendered upon application of any party when plaintiff fails to appear on day set for trial. LSA-C.C.P. art. 1672, subd. A.	LSA-C.C.P. Art. 1672 A provides that a judgment dismissing an action shall be rendered upon application of any party, when the plaintiff fails to appear on the day set for trial.	"When the plaintiff fails to appear on the day set for trial, should the trial court determine whether the judgment of dismissal shall be with or without prejudice?"
5552	Mages Sports Arenas, Inc. v. Winston Park Shopping Ctr., Inc., 251 N.E.2d 334, 336 (Ill. App. 1st Dist. 1969)	1	At common law a dismissal for want of prosecution does not prejudice case of party against whom dismissal is entered and does not bar filing of new complaint.	At common law a dismissal for want of prosecution did not prejudice the case of the party against whom it was entered. 54 A.L.R.2d, 473, 478. In Wood v. Maxwell, 238 Ill.App. 597, and in Motel v. Andracki, 299 Ill.App. 166, 19 N.E.2d 832, the courts held that a dismissal for want of prosecution did not bar the filing of a new complaint.	"At common law, does a dismissal for want of prosecution not prejudice a case of a party against whom dismissal is entered and does not bar filing of a new complaint?"
5553	Peaslee v. Michalski, 167 So. 2d 242, 244 (Fla. 2d Dist. App. 1964)	3	Where nonsuit is granted, appropriate procedure to conclude case is to procure entry of final judgment from which appeal may be taken as a matter of right regardless of whether nonsuit was voluntary or involuntary or whether granting of nonsuit was proper or improper, though such factors may influence determination of appeal on its merits. F.S.A. S 54.09; F.S.A.Const. art. 5, S5(3).	The foregoing cases clearly show that an appropriate and regular way to conclude a case nonsuited is to procure the entry of a final judgment from which judgment an appeal may be taken 'as a matter of right,' Section 5(3) of Article V of the Constitution, F.S.A., and the right to appeal does not depend on whether the nonsuit was voluntary or involuntary or whether the granting of the nonsuit was proper or improper. However, these factors may influence the success of the appeal when the appeal is determined on its merits.	Is the appropriate way to conclude a case nonsuited to procure a final judgment?

5555	Klein v. MTA-Long Island Bus, 61 A.D.3d 722, 722–23, 877 N.Y.S.2d 195, 196–97 (2009)	1	Statute providing for dismissal for failure to prosecute is an extremely forgiving statute which never requires, but merely authorizes, a trial court to dismiss an action based on the plaintiff's unreasonable neglect to proceed. McKinney's CPLR 3216.	The Supreme Court did not improvidently exercise its discretion *723 in granting that branch of the plaintiffs' motion which was to vacate the dismissal of the action pursuant to CPLR 3216, and restore the action to the trial calendar. CPLR 3216 is an "extremely forgiving statute" which "never requires, but merely authorizes, 197 the Supreme Court to dismiss a plaintiff's action based on the plaintiff's unreasonable neglect to proceed"	Is a court authorised to dismiss a plaintiff's action based on plaintiff's unreasonable neglect to proceed?
5556	Brennan v. Mead, 73 A.D.2d 926, 927, 423 N.Y.S.2d 678, 679 (1980)	2	Cause of action contained in cross claim shall be treated, as fair as practicable, as if it were contained in complaint, and in cases where plaintiff's action against defendant is dismissed on merits, court may still adjudicate cross claims against that defendant. CPLR 3019(d).	A cause of action contained in a cross claim shall be treated, as far as practicable, as if it were contained in a complaint (CPLR 3019, subd. d), and in cases where the plaintiff's action against a defendant is dismissed on the merits, the court may still adjudicate cross claims against that defendant (see 3 Weinstein-Korn-Miller N.Y.Civ.Prac., par. 3019.32; Edelman v. Edelman, 88 Misc.2d 156, 386 N.Y.S.2d 331).	Can counterclaims against a plaintiff be adjudicated after a plaintiff's action against a defendant is dismissed on merits?
5557	City of Marion v. Baioni, 312 Ark. 423, 426, 850 S.W.2d 1, 2 (1993)	3	Governmental levy or fee, in order not to be denominated tax, must be fair and reasonable and bear reasonable relationship to benefits conferred on those receiving services.	In this case, the chancellor reviewed considerable legal authority leading him to the general conclusion that a governmental levy or fee, in order not to be denominated a tax, must be fair and reasonable and bear a reasonable relationship to the benefits conferred on those receiving the services.	Must a fee be fair and reasonable and bear a reasonable relationship to the benefits conferred in order not to be denominated a tax?
5559	Pallas v. State, 636 So. 2d 1358, 1361 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1994)	4	Statute defining offense of aggravated stalking proscribes willful, malicious, and repeated acts of harassment which are directed at specific person, which serve no legitimate purpose, and which would cause substantial emotional distress in reasonable person. West's F.S.A. S 784.048(3).	The same principle applies to the definition of "harasses" under the stalking statute; the legislature has proscribed willful, malicious, and repeated acts of harassment which are directed at a specific person, which serve no legitimate purpose, and which would cause substantial emotional distress in a reasonable person.	What does the statute defining the offense of aggravated stalking proscribe?

5561	Arizona v. United States, 567 U.S. 387, 394–95 (2012)	1	Government of United States has broad, undoubted power over subject of immigration and status of aliens, resting, in part, on its constitutional power to "establish an uniform Rule of Naturalization," and its inherent power as sovereign to control and conduct relations with foreign nations. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 1, S 8, cl. 4.	First, the federal government "has broad, undoubted power over the subject of immigration and the status of aliens," authority that rests on the constitutional power to "establish an uniform Rule of Naturalization," Art. I, 8, cl. 4, and on the national government's "inherent power as sovereign to control and conduct relations with foreign nations."	Does the federal government have the constitutional power to establish a uniform rule of naturalization?
5563	Associated Bonded Const. Co. v. Griffin Corp., 438 A.2d 1088, 1091 (R.I., 1981)	5	A defending party who fails to plead affirmative defense, thereby waiving it, may not later move to dismiss opponent's complaint using waived affirmative defense as basis for dismissal. Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 8(c), 12, 12(b)(6).	We hold therefore that a defending party who fails to plead an affirmative defense, thereby waiving it, may not later move to dismiss the opponent's complaint under Super.R.Civ.P. 12, using that waived affirmative defense as a basis for dismissal.	Can a defending party dismiss opponents complaint using waived affirmative defense as basis for dismissal?
5565	Smith v. McKee, 145 S.W.3d 299, 306 (Tex. App. 2004)	10	It is not within the discretion of the trial court to fail to hold an oral hearing on a timely-filed, properly verified motion to reinstate. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a.	It is not within the discretion of the trial court to fail to hold an oral hearing on a timely-filed, properly verified motion to reinstate. Thordson v. City of Houston, 815 S.W.2d 550, 550 (Tex.1991); see Gulf Coast Inv.	"Is it not within the discretion of the trial court to fail to hold an oral hearing on a timely-filed, properly verified motion to reinstate?"
5566	Infinite Sec. Sols. v. Karam Properties I, Ltd., 2 N.E.3d 297, 301 (2013)	5	When an action is dismissed pursuant to a stated condition, such as the existence of a settlement agreement, the court retains the authority to enforce such an agreement in the event the condition does not occur.	Further, "[w]hen an action is dismissed pursuant to a stated condition, such as the existence of a settlement agreement, the court retains the authority to enforce such an agreement in the event the condition does not occur." Estate of Berger v.	"When an action is dismissed pursuant to a stated condition, does the court retain the authority to enforce such an agreement in the event the condition does not occur?"
5567	Williams v. S. Union Co., 364 S.W.3d 228, 232 (Mo. Ct. App. 2011)	4	A judgment of nonsuit and a judgment of dismissal serve the same purpose, have the same legal effect, and arrive at the same end, and hence should be treated alike and allowed the same office in the everyday administration of the law.	Thus, "a judgment of nonsuit and a judgment of dismissal serve the same purpose, have the same legal effect, and arrive at the same end, and hence should be treated alike and allowed the same office in the everyday administration of the law."	"Does a judgment of nonsuit and a judgment of dismissal serve the same purpose, have the same legal effect, and arrive at the same end?"
5568	Kiefer v. Rust-Oleum Corp., 394 Ill. App. 3d 485, 494 (2009)	9	Where a dismissal order does not explicitly state that it is entered with prejudice or without prejudice, it is necessary to look to the substance of what was actually decided by the dismissal order to determine if the order is final.	[9] Where, as here, a dismissal order does not explicitly state that it is entered "with prejudice" or "without prejudice," it is necessary "to look to the substance of what was actually decided by the dismissal order" to determine if the order is final.	"Where a dismissal order does not explicitly state that it is entered with prejudice or without prejudice, is it necessary to look to the substance of what was actually decided by the dismissal order?"

5570	In re Adams, 302 B.R. 535, 544 (B.A.P. 6th Cir. 2003)	13	When title to bonds or shares of stock or other securities is vested in a person who undertakes to hold subject to the directions of the person who caused the property to be vested in him, he is an "agent" since he is acting subject to the control of another, even though he is also "trustee" since he is vested with the title to the property.	This is the case, for example, where the title to bonds or shares of stock or other securities is vested in a person who undertakes to hold subject to the directions of the person who caused the property to be vested in him. He is an agent since he is acting subject to the control of another, even though he is also trustee since he is vested with the title to the property.	Can a person be both an agent and a trustee for another?
5572	Fonseca v. Fong, 167 Cal. App. 4th 922, 930 (2008)	6	Federal authority to regulate immigration derives from various sources, including the federal government's power to establish a uniform rule of naturalization, its power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and its broad authority over foreign affairs. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 1, cl. 3, 4.	Federal authority to regulate immigration derives from various sources, including the federal government's power "[t]o establish [a] uniform rule of naturalization" (U.S. Const., art. I, 8, cl. 4), its power "[t]o regulate commerce with foreign nations" (id., cl. 3), and its broad authority over foreign affairs.	From what sources does federal authority to regulate immigration derive from?
5573	Fonseca v. Fong, 167 Cal. App. 4th 922, 931 (2008)	8	Not every state enactment or action which may in any way deal with aliens is a regulation of immigration and thus per se pre-empted by the federal constitutional power, whether latent or exercised. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 6, cl. 2.	Nevertheless, not every state enactment or action "which [may] in any way deal[] with aliens is a regulation of immigration and thus per se pre-empted by this constitutional power, whether latent or exercised."	Is every state enactment which in any way deals with aliens considered a regulation of immigration?
5574	Fonseca v. Fong, 167 Cal. App. 4th 922, 931 (2008)	9	Standing alone, the fact that aliens are the subject of a state statute does not render it a regulation of immigration, which is essentially a determination of who should or should not be admitted into the country, and the conditions under which a legal entrant may remain.	[S]tanding alone, the fact that aliens are the subject of a state statute does not render it a regulation of immigration, which is essentially a determination of who should or should not be admitted into the country, and the conditions under which a legal entrant may remain.	Does the fact that aliens are the subject of a state statute render it a regulation of immigration?
5575	Fonseca v. Fong, 167 Cal. App. 4th 922, 931 (2008)	8	Not every state enactment or action which may in any way deal with aliens is a regulation of immigration and thus per se pre-empted by the federal constitutional power, whether latent or exercised. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 6, cl. 2.	Nevertheless, not every state enactment or action "which [may] in any way deal[] with aliens is a regulation of immigration and thus per se pre-empted by this constitutional power, whether latent or exercised."	Is every state enactment which in any way deals with aliens per se pre-empted?
5576	Garcia-Torres v. Holder, 660 F.3d 333, 335–36 (8th Cir. 2011)	4	The exclusionary rule does not apply in an Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) civil deportation hearing conducted solely to determine if the alien is eligible to remain in the United States, not to criminally punish any unlawful entry, even though that is a crime.	The Court concluded that the exclusionary rule does not apply "in an INS civil deportation hearing" conducted solely to determine if the alien is eligible to remain in the U.S., not to criminally punish any unlawful entry, even though that is a crime.	Does the exclusionary rule apply in civil deportation hearings?

5579	Jones v. Virginian Ry. Co., 116 W. Va. 201, 179 S.E. 71, 72 (1935)	2	Whatever facts are necessary to constitute cause of action must be directly and distinctly stated in declaration, and not left to be inferred from other facts distinctly alleged therein, and arguments, inferences, and matters of law should be excluded.	It is a general rule that whatever facts are necessary to constitute the cause of action should be directly and distinctly stated in the declaration, and such facts should not be left to be inferred from other facts, distinctly alleged therein, and arguments, inferences, and matters of law should be excluded.'	Should facts that are necessary to constitute the cause of action be directly and distinctly stated in the declaration?
5580	In re Valliance Bank, 422 S.W.3d 722, 725 (Tex. App. 2012)	2	A verified motion to reinstate a case filed within thirty days of a dismissal for want of prosecution extends the trial court's plenary power to reinstate the case in the same manner as a motion for new trial. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a(3, 4).	A verified motion to reinstate a case filed within thirty days of a dismissal for want of prosecution extends the trial court's plenary power in the same manner as a motion for new trial.	Is an unverified motion to reinstate a case a nullity and does not extend the trial court's plenary jurisdiction or the deadlines for perfecting an appeal?
5581	Higginbotham v. Pub. Serv. Comm'n of Maryland, 171 Md. App. 254, 275–76, 909 A.2d 1087, 1099 (2006)	25	It is within the court's discretion to grant the plaintiff leave to amend his or her complaint to attempt to remedy the defects that led to dismissal, and court's decision to deny leave to amend will be reversed only upon a finding that the court abused that discretion.	It is within the court's discretion to grant the plaintiff leave to amend his or her complaint to attempt to remedy the defects that led to dismissal. G & H Clearing and Landscaping v. Whitworth, 66 Md.App. 348, 356 n. 5, 503 A.2d 1379 (1986); Gaskins v. Marshall Craft Associates, Inc., 110 Md.App. 705, 716, 678 A.2d 615 (1996). "[T]he circuit court's decision to deny leave to amend will be reversed only upon a finding that the court abused that discretion."	Is it within the court discretion to grant the plaintiff leave to amend his or her complaint to attempt to remedy the defects that led to dismissal?
5582	Conoco v. Tinklenberg, 121 P.3d 893, 896 (Colo. App. 2005)	3	A "sales tax" is a tax on a purchase, whereas a "use tax" is a levy upon the privilege of storing, using, or consuming tangible personal property purchased at retail.	A sales tax is a tax on a purchase, whereas a use tax is a levy upon the privilege of storing, using, or consuming tangible personal property purchased at retail.	"Is a ""use tax"" a levy upon the privilege of storing, using or consuming tangible personal property purchased at retail?"
5583	Louisiana Paving Co. v. St. Charles Par. Pub. Sch., 604 So. 2d 593, 595 (La. Ct. App. 1992)	1	Purpose of sales/use tax scheme is to make all tangible personal property used or consumed within state subject to uniform tax burden irrespective of whether it is acquired in state, making it subject to sales tax, or acquired from without state, making it subject to use tax at same rate.	The purpose of a sales/use tax scheme is to make all tangible personal property used or consumed within the state subject to a uniform tax burden irrespective of whether it is acquired in the state, making it subject to the sales tax, or acquired from without the state, making it subject to the use tax at the same rate.	What is the purpose of a sales and use tax scheme?

5588	Allied Prodd. Co. v. Green, 334 S.E.2d 389, 390 (Ga. App. 1985)	3	All costs of earlier proceeding, whether due court officers or opposite party, must be paid before commencement of second suit.	In Williams, the plaintiff paid the clerk and sheriff "such portion of the costs as had not been previously paid to them by the defendant," but made no payment or tender to the defendant of the costs which the defendant had paid in the earlier proceeding. The Williams court held that all costs, whether due to court officers or the opposite party, had to be paid before the commencement of the second suit.	"Should all costs of earlier proceeding, whether due court officers or opposite party, be paid before commencement of a second suit?"
5589	Bobbin v. Sail the Sounds, LLC, 153 Conn. App. 716, 726 (2014)	7	A trial court ruling on a motion to dismiss for lack of diligence is confronted with endless gradations of diligence, and in its sound discretion, the court must determine whether the party's diligence falls within the "reasonable" section of the diligence spectrum. Practice Book 1998, S 14-3.	"The ultimate determination regarding a motion to dismiss for lack of diligence is within the sound discretion of the court.... Under [Practice Book 14-3], the trial court is confronted with endless gradations of diligence, and in its sound discretion, the court must determine whether the party's diligence falls within the reasonable section of the diligence spectrum....	Is the court ruling on a motion to dismiss for lack of diligence confronted with endless gradations of diligence?
5590	Chacha v. Transp. USA, 78 So. 3d 727, 730 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2012)	1	A trial court has the inherent authority to dismiss a plaintiff's entire case when there is clear and convincing evidence that the plaintiff has committed a fraud on the court which permeates the entire proceedings.	A trial court has the inherent authority to dismiss a plaintiff's entire case when there is clear and convincing evidence that the plaintiff has committed "a fraud on the court which permeates the entire proceedings."	Does a court have the authority to dismiss a plaintiff's entire case when there is evidence that the plaintiff has committed a fraud on the court which permeates the entire proceedings?
5591	Hung v. Bullock, 180 S.W.3d 931, 932 (Tex. App. 2006)	2	The trial court's authority to dismiss a case for want of prosecution derives from two sources: the Rules of Civil Procedure and the court's inherent power. Vernon's Ann. Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a.	A trial court's authority to dismiss for want of prosecution stems from two sources: (1) Rule 165a of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure; and (2) the court's inherent power.	What are the two sources from where the trial court's authority to dismiss a case for want of prosecution derive from?
5592	Bartlett v. Peak, 107 Idaho 284, 285, 688 P.2d 1189, 1190 (1984)	2	Trial court's power to dismiss a case because of failure to prosecute with due diligence is inherent and independent of any statute or rule of court. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	This distinction is simply not relevant, since the trial court's power to dismiss a case because of failure to prosecute with due diligence is inherent and independent of any statute or rule of court.	Is the Trial courts power to dismiss a case because of failure to prosecute with due diligence inherent and independent of any statute or rule of court?

5594	Bessler v. Bd. of Ed. of Chartered Sch. Dist. No. 150 of Peoria Cty., 69 Ill. 2d 191, 198-99 (Ill. 1977)	5	Measure of damages for breach of teacher's employment contract would be salary provided in contract reduced by such sums as wrongfully discharged teacher had earned or by reasonable diligence could have earned in other employment subsequent to discharge, and employer has burden of showing that employee could or did have other earnings subsequent to wrongful discharge and that those earnings stemmed from employment incompatible with employment from which she was wrongfully discharged. Ill.Rev.Stat.1971, ch. 122, S 24-11.	The measure of damages is the salary provided in the contract (School Directors v. Reddick, 77 Ill. 628) reduced by such sums as the wrongfully discharged teacher has earned or by *199 reasonable 1054 27 diligence could have earned in other employment subsequent to the discharge (Doherty v. Schipper & Block, 250 Ill. 128, 95 N.E. 74). The employer has the burden of showing that the employee could or did have other earnings subsequent to the wrongful discharge and that those earnings stemmed from employment incompatible with the employment from which he was wrongfully discharged.	What remedies are available to teachers who are wrongfully discharged?
5595	Asociacion de Educacion Privada de Puerto Rico v. Garcia-Padilla, 490 F.3d 1, 11 (1st Cir. 2007)	6	State has right and power to promulgate reasonable regulations affecting private primary and secondary schools to ensure that minimum educational standards are met.	By the same token, we also acknowledge the right and power of the state to promulgate reasonable regulations affecting private primary and secondary schools to ensure that minimum educational standards are met.	Does the state have the right and power to promulgate reasonable regulations affecting primary and secondary schools?
5596	Cook v. Peacock, 154 S.W.2d 688, 690 (Tex. Civ. App.--Eastland 1941), writ refused W.O.M. (Nov. 12, 1941)	3	Where a managing partner has failed to keep accurate accounts of his transactions with or for partnership, the burden rests upon him to show that he has performed his duty of keeping accounts fairly, impartially, and honestly.	The duties and responsibilities of a managing partner are in substance stated in Dial v. Martin, Tex.Civ.App., 37 S.W.2d 166, 180, as follows: "It is the duty of the managing partner to keep an accurate account of his transactions with or for the partnership, and, if he fails to keep such account, all doubts respecting particular items will ordinarily be resolved against him on an accounting. Where he has failed to keep accurate accounts, the burden rests upon him, as managing partner, to show that he has performed his duty fairly, impartially, and honestly, and all doubts respecting particular items will ordinarily be resolved against him.	Does the burden of proof of accounting rest upon the managing partner when he has failed to keep accurate accounts?

5597	Baum v. McBride, 152 Neb. 152, 158, 40 N.W.2d 649, 653 (1950)	9	It is the duty of a partner to account to the partnership for any benefit, and hold as trustee for it any profits derived by him without the consent of the other partner from any transaction connected with the formation, conduct, or liquidation of the partnership or from any use of its property.	It is the duty of a partner to account to the partnership for any benefit, and hold as trustee for it, any profits derived by him without the consent of the other partners from any transaction connected with the formation, conduct, or liquidation of the partnership or from any use of its property.'	Does a partner have a duty to account for any benefit he derived from his use of partnership property?
5598	McDermott v. Reynolds, 260 Va. 98, 102 (2000)	5	Court must consider the nature of the cause of action pleaded, not merely its form, in determining whether a plaintiff has stated a cause of action that will permit recovery of damages for the conduct alleged.	We must consider the nature of the cause of action pleaded, not merely its form, in determining whether a plaintiff has stated a cause of action that will permit recovery of damages for the conduct alleged.	"In determining whether a plaintiff has stated a cause of action, should the nature of the cause of action or its form be considered?"
5600	DeSantis v. Gaudioso, 39 Conn. Supp. 222, 223, 476 A.2d 149, 150–51 (Super. Ct. 1983)	2	Under workers' compensation statute, employee surrenders his right to bring common-law action against employer, thereby limiting employer's liability to the statutory amount. C.G.S.A. S 31-284.	Under the statute, the employee surrenders his right to bring a common law action against the employer, thereby limiting the 151 employer's liability to the statutory amount.	"Under the Workers' Compensation Act, does the employee surrender his right to bring a common law action against the employer limiting the employers liability to the statutory amount?"
5602	Stephens v. Messick, 2002 PA Super 117, ¶ 8 (2002)	5	Decision whether to enter a judgment of non pros is committed to the sound discretion of the trial court and will not be disturbed on appeal absent an abuse of discretion.	The decision whether to enter a judgment of non pros is committed to the sound discretion of the trial court and will not be disturbed on appeal absent an abuse of discretion.	Is the decision whether to enter a judgment of non pros committed to the sound discretion of the trial court?
5603	Shushunov v. Illinois Dep't of Fin. & Prof'l Regulation, 74 N.E.3d 71, 84 (2017)	28	A civil penalty generally is not considered a punishment for purposes of double jeopardy, unless it is so punitive in nature or effect that it is the functional equivalent of a criminal penalty. U.S. Const. Amend. 5; Ill. Const. art. 1, S 10.	However, a civil penalty generally is not considered a punishment for purposes of double jeopardy, unless it is so punitive in nature or effect that it is the "functional equivalent" of a criminal penalty.	"Is a civil penalty generally not considered a punishment for purposes of double jeopardy, unless it is so punitive in nature?"
5604	People v. Anderson, 117 Cal. App. Supp. 763	29	A defendant's conviction of the underlying substantive offense does not on double jeopardy grounds bar further proceedings, such as retrial, on a penalty allegation. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	a defendant's conviction of the underlying substantive offense does not (on double jeopardy grounds) bar further proceedings, such as retrial, on a penalty allegation.	"Does a defendant's conviction of the underlying substantive offense, on double jeopardy grounds bar further proceedings, such as retrial, on a penalty allegation?"
5606	People v. McDougal, 109 Cal. App. 4th 571, 581, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 160, 168 (2003)	8	A defendant who seeks dismissal before the jury has rendered a verdict consents to the dismissal and by that consent waives any argument that jeopardy has attached so as to bar an appeal. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; West's Ann.Cal. Const. Art. 1, S 15.	Moreover, it is settled that a defendant who seeks dismissal before the jury has rendered a verdict consents to the dismissal and by that consent waives any argument that jeopardy has attached so as to bar an appeal.	Does a defendant who seeks dismissal before the jury has rendered verdict consents to the dismissal and by that consent waives any argument that jeopardy has attached so as to bar an appeal?

5607	State v. Chase, 2000 ME 114, ¶ 6 (2000)	2	Motion by defendant for mistrial is ordinarily assumed to remove any barrier to reprosecution, even if defendant's motion is necessitated by prosecutorial or judicial error.	A motion by the defendant for mistrial, however, "is ordinarily assumed to remove any barrier to reprosecution, even if the defendant's motion is necessitated by prosecutorial or judicial error."	"Is a motion by defendant for mistrial ordinarily assumed to remove any barrier to reprosecution, even if a defendant's motion is necessitated by prosecutorial or judicial error?"
5608	People v. Brandon, 40 Cal. App. 4th 1172, 1175, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383, 385 (1995)	3	Consent to mistrial may be implied from affirmative conduct, such as moving for mistrial or stating that there is no objection to mistrial, but will not be inferred from silence or simply bringing matter of concern to trial court's attention.	Consent to mistrial may be implied from affirmative conduct, such as moving for mistrial or stating that there is no objection to mistrial, but will not be inferred from silence or simply bringing a matter of concern to the trial court's attention.	"Can consent to mistrial be implied from affirmative conduct, such as moving for mistrial or stating that there is no objection to mistrial?"
5609	State v. Dow, 152 A.3d 437, 451 (2016)	29	Following a mistrial, retrial is not automatically barred when a criminal proceeding is terminated without finally resolving the merits of the charges against the accused; defendant's right to have the trial concluded by a particular tribunal is sometimes subordinate to the public interest in affording the prosecutor one full and fair opportunity to present his or her evidence to an impartial jury.	Retrial is not, however automatically barred "when a criminal proceeding is terminated without finally resolving the merits of the charges against the accused." Arizona, 434 U.S. at 505, 98 S.Ct. 824. Defendant's right to have "the trial concluded by a particular tribunal is sometimes subordinate to the public interest in affording the prosecutor one full and fair opportunity to present his [or her] evidence to an impartial jury."	"Following a mistrial, is a retrial not automatically barred when a criminal proceeding is terminated without finally resolving the merits of the charges against the accused?"
5610	State v. Fassero, 256 S.W.3d 109, 115 (Mo. 2008)	4	If the defendant opposes the mistrial, double jeopardy will bar retrial unless there is a manifest necessity for the trial court's declaration of mistrial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	If the defendant opposes the mistrial, double jeopardy will bar retrial unless there is a "manifest necessity" for the trial court's declaration of mistrial.	"If the defendant opposes the mistrial, will double jeopardy bar retrial unless there is a manifest necessity for the trial court's declaration of a mistrial?"
5611	Ullmo ex rel. Ullmo v. Gilmour Acad., 273 F.3d 671, 679 (6th Cir. 2001)	15	Under IDEA, responsibility for ensuring that disabled students receive a free appropriate public education lies with the state educational agency (SEA), which distributes a substantial portion of the state's IDEA funds to local educational agencies (LEAs), and LEAs in turn directly provide disabled students with a free appropriate public education. Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, S 611(g)(1), 1412(a)(11), as amended, 20 U.S.C.A. SS 1411(g)(1), 1412(a)(11).	Under the IDEA, the responsibility for ensuring that disabled students receive a free appropriate public education lies with the state educational agency (SEA). 20 U.S.C. 1412(a)(11) (recognizing the SEA as the primary authority for establishing a state's compliance with the IDEA). The SEA distributes a substantial portion of the state's IDEA funds to local educational agencies (LEAs), which directly provide disabled students with a free appropriate public education.	"Under IDEA, does the state educational agency has the responsibility for ensuring that disabled students receive a free appropriate public education?"

5612	Ex parte Baker, 459 So. 2d 873, 876 (Ala. 1984)	2	Because reinstatement of cause of action under rule of civil procedure pertaining to relief from final judgment after dismissal with prejudice is extraordinary relief, a movant has the burden of proving extraordinary circumstances and/or extreme hardship or injustice sufficient to entitle him to relief under rule. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 60(b), (b)(6).	Moreover, because Rule 60(b) relief is extraordinary relief, a movant has the burden of proving extraordinary circumstances and/or extreme hardship or injustice sufficient to entitle him to relief under Rule 60(b)(6).	Does a movant have the burden of proving extraordinary circumstances and/or extreme hardship or injustice sufficient to entitle him to relief under rule?
5613	Koehler v. State, 519 P.2d 442, 448 (Alaska 1974)	5	Under the State and Federal Constitutions jeopardy attaches when a defendant is placed on trial before a court of competent jurisdiction and a jury sworn; if the court discharges the jury without a verdict being reached, the defendant cannot be retried unless he consented to the discharge or manifest necessity required. Const. art. 1, S 9; U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 5.	Under the Alaska and United States Constitutions, jeopardy attaches when a defendant is placed on trial before a court of competent jurisdiction and a jury sworn. 20 If the court discharges the jury without a verdict being reached, the defendant cannot be retried unless he consented to the discharge or 'manifest necessity' required it.	"If a court discharges a sworn jury before a verdict is reached, can a defendant be retried unless he consented to discharge or manifest necessity required it?"
5614	City of Jefferson v. Capital City Oil Co., 286 S.W.2d 65, 68 (Mo. Ct. App. 1956)	2	Courts have inherent power, in the exercise of a sound judicial discretion, to dismiss a case for failure to prosecute with due diligence, and such action will not be disturbed on appeal unless such discretion was abused.	The general rule is that courts have the inherent power, in the exercise of a sound judicial discretion, to dismiss a case for failure to prosecute with due diligence, and that the action thereon will not be disturbed on appeal unless such discretion was abused.	"Do courts have the inherent authority, in exercise of sound discretion, to dismiss for failure to prosecute?"
5615	Prograph Int'l Inc. v. Barhydt, 928 F. Supp. 983, 991 (N.D. Cal. 1996)	18	Nonsignatory successors and alleged alter egos are entitled to compel arbitration under clauses signed by corporations whose liabilities they are alleged to have assumed.	Nonsignatory successors and alleged alter egos are entitled to compel arbitration under clauses signed by the corporations whose liabilities they are alleged to have assumed.	Are nonsignatory successors entitled to compel arbitration under clauses signed by the corporations whose liabilities they are alleged to have assumed?
5616	MicroStrategy v. Lauricia, 268 F.3d 244, 249 (4th Cir. 2001)	3	Party may waive its right to insist on arbitration if that party so substantially utilizes litigation machinery that to subsequently permit arbitration would prejudice party opposing the stay.	A party may waive its right to insist on arbitration if the party "so substantially utiliz[es] the litigation machinery that to subsequently permit arbitration would prejudice the party opposing the stay."	Will a party waive its right to arbitration if it substantially utilizes litigation machinery that prejudices the party opposing a stay?
5618	Caballero v. Martinez, 186 N.J. 548, 557–58, 897 A.2d 1026, 1032 (2006)	5	Under New Jersey law, the term "resident," although present in many statutes, is not fixed in meaning, and instead, courts define the term by looking to the purpose of the statute and the context in which the term is found.	Under New Jersey law, the term resident, although present in many statutes, is not fixed in meaning. Instead, courts define the term by looking to the purpose of the statute and the context in which the term is found.	"Is the term ""resident,"" although present in many statutes, not fixed in meaning?"
5620	Dietz v. City of Medora, 333 N.W.2d 702, 705 (N.D. 1983)	4	A legal residence is place where an individual has established his home, where he is habitually present, and which he intends to return to when he is away for business or pleasure. NDCC 54-01-26, subd. 1.	A legal residence is the place where an individual has established his home, where he is habitually present, and which he intends to return to when he is away for business or pleasure.	"Is a legal residence a place where an individual has established his home, where he is habitually present, and which he intends to return to when he is away for business or pleasure?"

5621	In re Marriage of Weiss, 87 Ill. App. 3d 643, 647, 409 N.E.2d 329, 333 (1980)	3	"Residence" denotes one's permanent abode, while "domicile" is a place where a person lives and has his true permanent home and to which he intends to return whenever he is absent.	Residence denotes one's permanent abode, (Rosenshine), while domicile has been defined as the place where a person lives and has his true permanent home, to which he intends to return whenever he is absent.	"Is ""domicile a place where a person lives and has his true permanent home and to which he intends to return whenever he is absent?"
5622	Ziebell v. State, 788 N.E.2d 902, 910 (Ind. Ct. App. 2003)	19	Sentence enhancements based on prior criminal convictions do not constitute multiple punishment in violation of double jeopardy clause; under the habitual offender statute, defendant is subjected to greater sentence neither for prior crimes nor for the status of habitual offender, but rather the enhanced sentence is imposed for the last crime committed. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; West's A.I.C. 35-50-2-8.	The State argues that "Indiana courts have long recognized that sentence enhancements based on prior criminal convictions do not constitute multiple punishment in violation of the double jeopardy clause." Appellee's Brief at 10. We agree. Our supreme court considered this issue in Wise v. State, 272 Ind. 498, 400 N.E.2d 114 (Ind.1980). In Wise, our supreme court held that, under the habitual offender statute, "[t]he individual is subjected to the greater sentence neither for the prior crimes nor for the status of habitual offender, but rather the enhanced sentence is imposed for the last crime committed."	Do sentence enhancements based on prior criminal convictions constitute multiple punishment in violation of double jeopardy clause?
5623	State v. Picot, 724 So. 2d 236, 238 (La. Ct. App. 1998)	1	Habitual Offender Law creates no independent offense, but rather prescribes conditions under which there is enhanced penalty for current offense, and does not violate constitutional prohibitions against double jeopardy. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The Habitual Offender Law creates no independent offense, but rather prescribes the conditions under which there is an enhanced penalty for the current offense and does not violate constitutional prohibitions against double jeopardy.	Does Habitual Offender Law prescribe conditions under which there is enhanced penalty for current offense?
5625	Does 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, & 7 v. State, 164 Or. App. 543, 548, 993 P.2d 822, 827 (1999)	4	A prayer for the wrong relief following a pleading that sets forth facts entitling the pleader to some relief does not operate to deny the proper relief.	Moreover, "a prayer for the wrong relief following a pleading that sets forth facts entitling the pleader to some relief does not operate to deny the proper relief[.]"	"Will a prayer for the wrong relief, following a pleading that sets forth facts entitling the pleader to some relief, operate to deny the proper relief?"
5626	Johnson v. Elayyan, No. 14-01-00381-CV, 2002 WL 959518, at *2 (Tex. App. May 9, 2002)	4	Trial court has inherent power under the common law to dismiss a case when the plaintiff fails to prosecute the case with due diligence.	Independent of its express authority under Rule 165a, the trial court has inherent power under the common law to dismiss a case when the plaintiff fails to prosecute the case with due diligence.	Does a trial court have inherent power under the common law to dismiss a case when the plaintiff fails to prosecute the case with due diligence?
5627	In re Nationwide Auto., 250 B.R. 900, 904-05 (S.D. Ohio 2000)	6	When term of agreement consumes majority of useful life of goods in question, agreement resembles purchase contract, or financing arrangement, rather than lease.	Where the term of the agreement consumes the majority of the useful life of the goods in question, that agreement resembles a purchase contract or financing arrangement rather than a lease.	"When a term of agreement consumes a majority of useful life of goods in question, does an agreement resemble a purchase contract?"

5628	United States v. Dutcher, 851 F.3d 757, 761 (7th Cir. 2017)	5	Communication is "true threat," of kind required to support prosecution for knowingly and willfully making any threat to take the life of, to kidnap, or to inflict bodily harm upon the President of the United States, if reasonable person would foresee that the statement would be interpreted by those to whom the maker communicates the statement as a serious expression of an intention to inflict bodily harm upon, or to take life of, the President. 18 U.S.C.A. § 871(a).	Section 871(a) criminalizes "knowingly and willfully" making "any threat to take the life of, to kidnap, or to inflict bodily harm upon the President of the United States." The charged statement must be a "true threat," which has been defined for First Amendment purposes as "a serious expression of an intent to commit an act of unlawful violence to a particular individual or group of individuals." Virginia v. Black, 538 U.S. 343, 359, 123 S.Ct. 1536, 155 L.Ed.2d 535 (2003). In United States v. Fuller, 387 F.3d 643, 646 (7th Cir. 2004), we held that a "true threat" for purposes of section 871(a) is defined objectively. A communication, we wrote, "is a 'true threat' if a reasonable person would foresee that the statement would be interpreted by those to whom the maker communicates the statement as a serious expression of an intention to inflict bodily harm upon or to take the life of the President."	"What is a ""true threat"" for the purposes of a prosecution for knowingly and willfully making any threat?"
5629	Lamb v. State Work Relief Comp. Fund, 127 Pa. Super. 44, 47 (1937)	2	Who is the responsible employer in case of injury to employee depends largely on control or right of control of the employee, not only with regard to work to be done, but also as to method and manner of performing it.	Who the responsible employer in case of injury depends largely on the control or right of control of the employee, not only with regard to the work to be done, but also as to the method and manner of performing it.	"Does being an employer with the right of control mean not only regarding to the work being done, but also the method and manner of performing it?"
5630	Kendall v. State, 429 Md. 476, 485 (2012)	5	In a nonjury trial, jeopardy ordinarily attaches when the first witness is sworn, although in some circumstances it may attach without the appearance of a witness if the defendant is subjected to the risk of conviction. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	In a nonjury trial, jeopardy ordinarily attaches when the first witness is sworn, Crist v. Bretz, 437 U.S. 28, 37 n. 15, 98 S.Ct. 2156, 57 L.Ed.2d 24 (1978), although in some circumstances it may attach without the appearance of a witness if the defendant is "subjected to the risk of conviction." Daff v.	"Can the jeopardy attach without the appearance of a witness, if the defendant is subjected to the risk of conviction?"

5631	State v. Baranski, 173 Ohio App. 3d 410, 412–13 (2007)	3	Jeopardy attaches in a bench trial when the court first hears evidence and in a jury trial when the jury is empaneled and sworn; jeopardy would also attach upon a plea of guilty or no contest and a subsequent finding of guilt by the trial court. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; Const. Art. 1, S 10.	Jeopardy attaches in a bench trial when the court first hears evidence and in a jury trial when the jury is empaneled and sworn. State v. Meade (1997), 80 Ohio St.3d 419, 424, 687 N.E.2d 278, citing United States v. *413 Martin Linen Supply Co. (1977), 430 U.S. 564, 569, 97S.Ct. 1349, 51 L.Ed.2d 642. Jeopardy would also attach upon a plea of guilty or no contest and a subsequent finding of guilt by the trial court.	Will jeopardy attach when the court first hears evidence?
5632	People v. Lett, 466 Mich. 206, 215 (2002)	3	Jeopardy is said to attach when a jury is selected and sworn, and the Double Jeopardy Clause therefore protects an accused's interest in avoiding multiple prosecutions even where no determination of guilt or innocence has been made. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	13, 528 N.W.2d 136 (GRIFFIN, J.), and the Double Jeopardy Clause therefore protects an accused's interest in avoiding multiple prosecutions even where no determination of guilt or innocence has been made.	How does the double jeopardy clause protect an accused's interest?
5633	People v. Barragan, 32 Cal. 4th 236, 241 (2004)	1	In the noncapital sentencing context, retrial of a prior conviction allegation does not violate the double jeopardy clause of the federal Constitution. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	in the noncapital sentencing context, retrial of a prior conviction allegation does not violate the double jeopardy clause of the federal Constitution.	Does retrial of a prior conviction allegation violate the double jeopardy clause of the federal Constitution in the noncapital sentencing context?
5634	Righetti v. Eighth Judicial Dist. Court of State in & for Cty. of Clark, 388 P.3d 643, 649 (2017)	10	Double Jeopardy Clause was designed to protect defendants from harassment and oppression, not to shield defendants from their decisions to gamble on novel interpretations of law which ultimately prove unsuccessful. U.S. Const. Amend. 5; Nev. Const. art. 1, S 8.	Eighth Judicial District Court, "[t]he Double Jeopardy Clause was designed to protect defendants from harassment and oppression, not *607 to shield defendants from their decisions to gamble on novel interpretations of law which ultimately prove unsuccessful." 133 Nev. ----, 388 P.3d 643, 649 (2017) (internal citations omitted).	Was double Jeopardy Clause designed to protect defendants from harassment and oppression?
5635	Sanabria v. United States, 437 U.S. 54, 75 (1978)	26	Where trial terminates with a judgment of acquittal, double jeopardy principles governing permissibility of retrial after declaration of mistrial have no bearing. U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 5.	Where a trial terminates with a judgment of acquittal, as here, "double jeopardy principles governing the permissibility of retrial after a declaration of mistrial,"	"Where a trial terminates with a judgment of acquittal, do double jeopardy principles governing the permissibility of retrial after declaration of mistrial has any bearing?"
5636	State v. Muhannad, 286 Neb. 567, 575–76 (2013)	2	Traditionally, the Double Jeopardy Clause safeguards three interests of defendants: (1) the interest in being free from successive prosecutions, (2) the interest in the finality of judgments, and (3) the interest in having the trial completed in front of the first tribunal. U.S. Const. Amend. 5	Traditionally, the Double Jeopardy Clause has been viewed as safeguarding three interests of defendants: (1) the interest in being free from successive prosecutions, (2) the interest in the finality of judgments, and (3) the interest in having 800 the trial completed in front of the first tribunal.	Does the double jeopardy clause safeguard the interest in being free from successive prosecutions?

5637	Sweets v. State, 2013 WY 98, ¶¶ 19-20 (2013)	8	The Double Jeopardy Clauses of the United States and Wyoming constitutions afford three distinct protections: 1) protection against a second prosecution for the same offense following an acquittal; 2) protection against a second prosecution for the same offense after a conviction; and 3) protection against multiple punishments for the same offense. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; West's Wyo.Stat.Ann. Const. Art. 1, S 11.	The double jeopardy clauses of the United States and Wyoming constitutions afford three distinct protections: "1) [P]rotection against a second prosecution for the same offense following an acquittal; 2) protection against a second prosecution for the same offense after a conviction; and 3) protection against multiple punishments for the same offense."	What are the three distinct protections double jeopardy clauses afford?
5638	Odem v. State, 175 Md. App. 684, 699 (2007)	2	Maryland recognizes the prohibition against twice placing a criminal defendant in jeopardy as both a common law principle and by virtue of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5, 14.	Maryland recognizes the prohibition against twice placing a criminal defendant in jeopardy as both a common law principle and by virtue of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution.	Does Maryland recognize the prohibition against twice placing a criminal defendant in jeopardy?
5639	State in Interest of M.B., 217 So. 3d 555, 563 (2017)	17	Double jeopardy provisions protect an accused not only from a second prosecution for the same offense, but also from multiple punishments for the same criminal act. U.S. Const. Amend. 5; La. Const. art. 1, S 15.	Double jeopardy provisions protect an accused not only from a second prosecution for the same offense, but also from multiple punishments for the same criminal act.	"Does ""Double jeopardy"" protect an accused not only from a second prosecution for the same offense but also multiple punishments for the same criminal act?"
5641	State v. Linton, 122 Wash. App. 73, 76 (2004)	1	Double jeopardy clause of the state constitution, like its counterpart in the United States Constitution, offers several, related protections: it protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal, a second prosecution for the same offense after conviction, and multiple punishments for the same offense. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; West's RCWA Const. Art. 1, S 9.	Thus, the double jeopardy clause of the state constitution, like its counterpart in the United States Constitution, offers several, related protections: "It protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal. It protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after conviction. And it protects against multiple punishments for the same offense."	Does double jeopardy protect against a second prosecution or the same offense after conviction?
5642	Doe 30's Mother v. Bradley, 58 A.3d 42	17	When making a futility determination based on a proposed amendment to a complaint, the court accepts as true all of the well-pled facts presented therein. Superior Court Civil Rule 15.	When making a futility determination based on a proposed amendment, the court accepts as true all of the well-pled facts presented therein.	"When making a futility determination based on a proposed amendment to a complaint, does the court accept as true all of the well-pled facts presented therein?"

5643	State v. Cooley, 47 N.C. App. 376, 384 (1980)	4	Double jeopardy clause of Fifth Amendment precludes retrial of defendant in some circumstances where proceedings are terminated prior to judgment and interest of accused which is protected in such cases is his right to retain a given tribunal. U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 5.	We recognize that the Double Jeopardy Clause of the Fifth Amendment 5 precludes retrial of a defendant in some circumstances where the proceedings are terminated prior to judgment. 6 Arizona v. Washington, 434 U.S. 497, 98 S.Ct. 824, 54 L.Ed.2d 717 (1978). The interest of the accused which is protected in such cases is his right to retain a given tribunal.	Double the jeopardy clause of the Fifth Amendment preclude retrial of a defendant in some circumstances where proceedings are terminated prior to judgment?
5644	United States v. Cessa, 861 F.3d 121, 140 (5th Cir. 2017)	23	Doctrine of double jeopardy bars retrial when the defendant has been acquitted, or when an appellate court reverses on grounds of evidentiary insufficiency; however, double jeopardy does not apply when a conviction is set aside because of an error in the proceedings leading to conviction. U.S. Const. Amend. 5.	The doctrine of double jeopardy bars retrial when the defendant has been acquitted, or when an appellate court reverses "on grounds of evidentiary insufficiency." Burks v. United States, 437 U.S. 1, 16, 98 S.Ct. 2141, 57 L.Ed.2d 1 (1978). However, double jeopardy does not apply when a "conviction is set aside because of an error in the proceedings leading to conviction.	"Does the doctrine of double jeopardy bar retrial when the defendant has been acquitted, or when an appellate court reverses on grounds of evidentiary insufficiency?"
5647	Green v. Cont'l Rentals, 292 N.J. Super. 241, 253, 678 A.2d 759, 764-65 (1994)	8	Inclusion of contractual provision that, upon compliance with lease terms, customer shall become owner of property for no additional consideration, identifies agreement as security interest as matter of law.	The inclusion of a contractual provision that upon compliance with the lease terms the customer shall become 765 the owner of the property for no additional consideration, identifies the agreement as a security interest as a matter of law.	When should a customer become an owner of property for no additional consideration?
5648	Pepin v. City of Danbury, 171 Conn. 74, 82 (1976)	8	Included within the General Assembly's discretion to levy taxes is the power to authorize municipalities to collect taxes, for example, by granting them a charter.	Included within the General Assembly's discretion is the power to authorize municipalities to collect taxes, for example, by granting them a charter.	"Is the power to authorize municipalities to collect taxes by granting them a charter, included within the General Assembly's discretion to levy taxes?"
5649	Mobil Oil Corp. v. Town of Huntington, 380 N.Y.S.2d 466, 474 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1975)	15	Power to assess and collect taxes may be delegated to localities but delegation must be made in express terms by proper enabling act.	The power to assess and collect taxes may be delegated to localities (Matter of Roosevelt Raceway v County of Nassau, 18 NY2d 30, mot to amd den 18 NY2d 720, app dsmd 385 U.S. 453), but the delegation must be made in express terms by a proper enabling act (see 16 McQuillin, Municipal Corporations, § 44.05; County Securities v Seacord, supra).	Should the power to assess and collect taxes delegated to localities be made in express terms by proper enabling act?
5650	Parate v. Isibor, 868 F.2d 821, 831 (6th Cir. 1989)	9	Public education in America is committed to the control of local and state authorities; therefore, courts cannot intervene to resolve educational conflicts that do not sharply implicate basic constitutional values.	Moreover, because public education in America is committed to the control of local and state authorities, the courts cannot intervene to resolve educational conflicts that do not "sharply implicate basic constitutional values.	Can courts intervene to resolve educational conflicts that do not implicate basic constitutional values?

5652	In re Forfeiture of U.S. Currency in Amount of Ninety-One Thousand Three Hundred Fifty-Seven & 12/100 Dollars ($91,357.12), 595 So. 2d 998, 1000 (Fla. 4th Dist. App. 1992)	6	"Equitable subrogation" applies where claimant satisfied obligation of another and then stands in shoes of satisfied creditor; doctrine prevents unjust forfeiture and windfall amounting to unjust enrichment.	The doctrine of equitable subrogation is designed to apply where the claimant satisfied an obligation of another and then stands in the shoes of the satisfied creditor. The doctrine is founded on established principles of equity to prevent an unjust forfeiture, on the one hand, and a windfall amounting to unjust enrichment, on the other.	"Is doctrine of equitable subrogation recognized as one founded on established principles of equity to prevent unjust forfeiture, and windfall amounting to unjust enrichment on the other? "
5653	In re Shavers, 418 B.R. 589, 605 (Bankr. S.D. Miss. 2009)	21	In Mississippi, the doctrine of equitable subrogation applies, in general, wherever any person other than a mere volunteer pays a debt or demand which in equity and good conscience should have been satisfied by another, or where one person finds it necessary for his own protection to pay the debt for which another is primarily liable.	In Mississippi, this doctrine applies, in general, "wherever any person other than a mere volunteer pays a debt or demand which in equity and good conscience should have been satisfied by another, or where one person finds it necessary for his own protection to pay the debt for which another is primarily liable...." Prestridge v.	When is the doctrine of equitable subrogation applied?
5654	Employers Ins. of Wausau v. Com., Dep't of Transp., 581 Pa. 381, 392, 865 A.2d 825, 832 (2005)	12	Doctrine of equitable subrogation for a bond surety is not founded on contract law, but arises from society's recognition of the contractor's statutory obligation to provide the bonds in questions, and society's concomitant belief that any monies otherwise due the contractor should, in fairness, be employed to recompense the bondsman.	Thus, the doctrine of equitable subrogation itself is not founded on contract law, but rather arises from society's recognition of the contractor's statutory obligation to provide the bonds in questions, and society's concomitant belief that any monies otherwise due the contractor should, in fairness, be employed to recompense the bondsman.	Is equitable subrogation a creature of equity and is independent of any contractual relations?
5656	Nowlin v. United States, 81 F. Supp. 3d 514, 526 (N.D. Miss. 2015), aff'd, 667 F. App'x 512 (5th Cir. 2016)	18	For the court to entertain a charge for theft or bribery concerning programs receiving federal funds, the particular program involved in the theft or bribery need not be the recipient of federal funds. 18 U.S.C.A. § 666.	Indeed, the jurisdictional net is broad enough that, for the court to entertain a charge under § 666, "[t]he particular program involved in the theft or bribery need not be the recipient of federal funds."	"For the court to entertain a charge for theft or bribery concerning programs receiving federal funds, does the particular program involved in the theft or bribery have to be the recipient of federal funds?"
5657	Bd. of Trustees of Cmty. Coll. Dist. No. 502, Cty. of Du Page v. Dep't of Prof'l Regulation, 363 Ill. App. 3d 190, 196, 842 N.E.2d 1255, 1261 (2006)	4	A motion for involuntary dismissal based upon certain defects or defenses admits the legal sufficiency of the complaint and raises defects, defenses, or other affirmative matters that appear on the face of the complaint or are established by external submissions and that act to defeat the plaintiff's claim. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	A motion to dismiss under section 2-619(a)(9) admits the legal sufficiency of the complaint and raises defects, defenses, or other affirmative matters that appear on the face of the complaint or are established by external submissions and that act to defeat the plaintiff's claim.	Will the legal sufficiency of the complaint be admitted when proceeding on a motion to dismiss?

5658	Jenner v. Illinois Dept. of Com. and Econ. Opportunity, 59 N.E.3d 204, 208-09 (Ill. App. 4th Dist. 2016)	6	A motion for dismissal on the ground that the claim asserted is barred by affirmative matter avoiding the legal effect of or defeating the claim admits the legal sufficiency of the complaint but raises a defense outside the complaint, an "affirmative matter," that defeats the action. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619(a)(9).	Under section 2-619(a)(9) of the Code of Civil Procedure (735 ILCS 5/2-619(a)(9) (West 2014)), the defendant "may, within the time for pleading, file a motion for dismissal of the action" on the ground that "the claim asserted against defendant is barred by * * * affirmative matter avoiding the legal effect of or defeating the claim." A motion for dismissal under this section admits the legal sufficiency of the complaint but raises "a defense outside the complaint," an "affirmative matter," that defeats the action.	Will a motion for dismissal be barred by affirmative matter avoiding the legal effect of or defeating the claim admit the legal sufficiency of the complaint?
5660	Volt Info. Scis., Inc. v. Bd. of Trustees of Leland Stanford Junior U., 489 U.S. 468, 475-76 (1989)	2	In applying general state-law principles of contract interpretation to interpretation of arbitration agreement within scope of Federal Arbitration Act, due regard must be given to federal policy favoring arbitration, and ambiguities as to scope of arbitration clause itself resolved in favor of arbitration. 9 U.S.C.A. § 1 et seq.	These cases of course establish that, in applying general state-law principles of contract interpretation to the interpretation of an arbitration agreement within the scope of the Act, see Perry v. Thomas, 482 U.S. 483, 493, n. 9, 107 S.Ct. 2520, 2527, n. 9, 96 L.Ed.2d 426 (1987), due regard must be given to the federal policy favoring arbitration, and ambiguities as to the scope of the arbitration clause itself resolved in favor of arbitration.	What should the court consider while interpreting an agreement covered by Federal Arbitration Act?
5662	Duran v. Hyundai Motor Am., 271 S.W.3d 178, 192 (Tenn. Ct. App. 2008)	6	A "motion in limine" enables a trial court, prior to trial, to exclude anticipated evidence that would clearly be inadmissible for any purpose at trial.	It enables the trial court, prior to trial, to exclude anticipated evidence that would clearly be inadmissible for any purpose at trial.	"Does a ""motion in limine"" enable a trial court, prior to trial, to exclude anticipated evidence that would clearly be inadmissible for any purpose at trial?"
5663	Kosydar v. Wolman, 353 F. Supp. 744, 751 (S.D. Ohio 1972)	4	State has an important and recognized interest in maintaining minimum educational, safety and health standards in all schools operated within the state.	The state has an important and recognized interest in maintaining minimum educational, safety and health standards in all schools operated within the state.	"Does a state have an important and recognized interest in maintaining minimum educational, safety and health standards in all schools operated within the state?"
5664	King v. Indus. Comm'n of Utah, 850 P.2d 1281, 1295 (Utah Ct. App. 1993)	20	Workers' Compensation Act is based on contract principles and employee's right to benefits arises when he suffers work-related injury. U.C.A.1953, 35-1- to 35-1-107.	Moreover, the Utah Workers' Compensation Act is based on contract principles and an employee's right to benefits arises when he suffers a work-related injury.	Is the Workers Compensation Act based on contract principles and employees rights to benefits arise when they suffer a work-related injury?

5665	United States v. Redzic, 627 F.3d 683, 691-92 (8th Cir. 2010)	10	To prove the payment of an illegal bribe, the government must present evidence of a quid pro quo, but an illegal bribe may be paid with the intent to influence a general course of conduct. 18 U.S.C.A. § 666(a)(2).	To prove the payment of an illegal bribe, the government must present evidence of a quid pro quo, but an illegal bribe may be paid with the intent to influence a general course of conduct.	"In a case of illegal bribe, should the payment be made with the intent to influence a general course of conduct?"
5668	Triffin v. Dillabough, 448 Pa. Super. 72, 91, 670 A.2d 684, 693 (1996)	23	Purpose of Uniform Commercial Code (UCC) is to meet contemporary needs of fast-moving commercial society, and to enhance marketability of negotiable instruments, allowing bankers, brokers and general public to trade in confidence.	Our conclusion is consistent with the purpose of the Uniform Commercial Code "to meet the contemporary needs of a fast moving commercial society," Arcuri v. Weiss, 198 Pa.Super. 506, 510, 184 A.2d 24, 26 (1962), and to "enhance the marketability of negotiable instruments [allowing] bankers, brokers, and the general public to trade in confidence."	Is the purpose of Commercial Code to enhance the marketability of negotiable instruments?
5669	Joca-Roca Real Est., LLC v. Brennan, 772 F.3d 945, 948 (1st Cir. 2014)	7	In determining whether a conduct-based waiver of the contractual right to arbitration has occurred, the court asks whether there has been an undue delay in the assertion of arbitral rights and whether, if arbitration supplanted litigation, the other party would suffer unfair prejudice, and that determination is informed by a salmagundi of factors, including the length of the delay, the extent to which the party seeking to invoke arbitration has participated in the litigation, the quantum of discovery and other litigation-related activities that have already taken place, the proximity of the arbitration demand to an anticipated trial date, and the extent to which the party opposing arbitration would be prejudiced.	In determining whether a conduct-based waiver has occurred, we ask whether there has been an undue delay in the assertion of arbitral rights and whether, if arbitration supplanted litigation, the other party would suffer unfair prejudice. See Marie v. Allied Home Mortg. Corp., 402 F.3d 1, 15 (1st Cir.2005); Rankin v. Allstate Ins. Co., 336 F.3d 8, 12 (1st Cir.2003). That determination is informed by a salmagundi of factors, including: the length of the delay, the extent to which the party seeking to invoke arbitration has participated in the litigation, the quantum of discovery and other litigation-related activities that have already taken place, the proximity of the arbitration demand to an anticipated trial date, and the extent to which the party opposing arbitration would be prejudiced.	"As this Court explained in Currency Conversion III, a party may impliedly waive its right to enforce a contractual arbitration clause when it engages in protracted litigation that results in prejudice to the opposing party. "
5672	Gorman v. Gilliam, 2010 Ark. App. 118, 5–6, 374 S.W.3d 117, 121 (2010)	1	In determining whether to dismiss a complaint for failure to state facts upon which relief can be granted, it is improper for the trial court to look beyond the complaint. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(6).	In determining whether to dismiss a complaint under Rule 12(b)(6), it is improper for the trial court to look beyond the complaint.	"In determining whether to dismiss a complaint under Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state facts upon which relief can be granted, is it improper for the trial court to look beyond the complaint?"

5673	Brewington v. State, 7 N.E.3d 946, 964 (Ind. 2014)	24	True threats depend on two necessary elements: that the speaker intend his communications to put his targets in fear for their safety, and that the communications were likely to actually cause such fear in a reasonable person similarly situated to the target. West's A.I.C. 35-45-2-1(c).	We therefore hold that "true threats" under Indiana law depend on two necessary elements: that the speaker intend his communications to put his targets in fear for their safety, and that the communications were likely to actually cause such fear in a reasonable person similarly situated to the target.	What are the two necessary elements that true threats depend on?
5677	McDonnell v. McPartlin, 192 Ill. 2d 505, 535 (2000)	36	Error that occurs through the violation of a motion in limine will be deemed an appropriate ground for mistrial only where the violation resulted in the denial of a fair trial.	Error that occurs through the violation of a motion in limine is subject to the same analysis, i.e., such a violation will be deemed an appropriate ground for mistrial only where the violation resulted in the denial of a fair trial.	Will an error that occurs through the violation of a motion in limine be deemed an appropriate ground for mistrial only where the violation resulted in the denial of a fair trial?
5680	Tolman v. Underhill, 249 P.2d 280, 282 (Cal. 1952)	1	Laws passed by legislature under its general police power prevail over regulations made by regents of university of California with regard to matters which are not exclusively university affairs.	It is well settled, however, that laws passed by the Legislature under its general police power will prevail over regulations made by the regents with regard to matters which are not exclusively university affairs.	Do laws passed by the legislature under its general police power prevail over regulations made by regents of university?
5681	Manning v. North, 82 S.W.3d 706, 709 (Tex. App. 2002)	4	Power of a trial court to dismiss for want of prosecution is not unbridled as it rests in the exercise of sound judicial discretion, subject to review; thus, on appeal, the trial court's judgment of dismissal will not be reversed unless, as a matter of law, the trial court clearly abused its discretion. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a.	The power of a trial court to dismiss for want of prosecution is not unbridled as it rests in the exercise of sound judicial discretion, subject to review. Thus, on appeal, the trial court's judgment of dismissal will not be reversed unless, as a matter of law, the trial court clearly abused its discretion.	Is the power of a trial court to dismiss for want of prosecution unbridled as it rests in the exercise of sound judicial discretion?
5682	Rhodes v. Blair, 919 S.W.2d 561, 563 (Mo. Ct. App. 1996)	4	"In limine" is defined as "in or at the beginning," and motion in limine is designed to accomplish, at beginning of litigation, some purpose which may only be known by reference to the context thereof.	"In limine" is defined as "in or at the beginning," and such a motion is designed to accomplish, at the beginning of litigation, some purpose which may be known only by reference to the context thereof.	"Is in limine defined as ""in or at the beginning,""" and motion in limine is designed to accomplish, at beginning of litigation, some purpose which may only be known by reference to the context thereof? "
5683	Butler Univ. v. Bahssin, 892 So. 2d 1087, 1089 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2004)	1	When a complaint fails to state a cause of action, the proper approach is for the trial court to allow leave to amend, not to dismiss the complaint with prejudice. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.190(a).	When a complaint fails to state a cause of action, the proper approach is for the trial court to allow leave to amend, not to dismiss the complaint with prejudice.	"When a complaint fails to state a cause of action, is the proper approach for the trial court to allow leave to amend? "

5685	Turner v. 1212 S. Michigan P'ship, 355 Ill. App. 3d 885, 891, 823 N.E.2d 1062, 1069 (2005)	2	A motion to dismiss based on claims being barred by other affirmative matters avoiding legal effect of or defeating the claims furnishes a mechanism for the disposition of issues of law and easily proved issues of fact; as such, it amounts essentially to a summary judgment procedure. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619(a)(9).	A "motion to dismiss pursuant to section 2-619(a)(9) presents affirmative matters that avoid the legal effect of [a] plaintiff's claim." Hopewell v. Vitullo, 299 Ill.App.3d 513, 516, 233 Ill.Dec. 456, 701 N.E.2d 99, 101 (1998). The section thereby "furnishes a mechanism for the disposition of issues of law and easily proved issues of fact." Davis v. Chicago Police Board, 268 Ill.App.3d 851, 854, 206 Ill.Dec. 269, 645 N.E.2d 274, 276 (1995). As such, "it amounts essentially to a summary judgment procedure."	Will a motion to dismiss furnish a mechanism for the disposition of issues of law and easily prove issues of fact?
5686	In re Jones, 534 B.R. 588, 596 (D. Vt. 2015)	3	Equitable subrogation may be used to remedy a situation in which, as result of mistake, a party stands to suffer unfair consequences.	Equitable subrogation may be used to remedy a situation in which, as a result of a mistake, a party stands to suffer unfair consequences.	May equitable subrogation be used to remedy a situation in which as a result of a mistake a party stands to suffer unfair consequences?
5687	Shatswell v. Shatswell, 758 F. Supp. 662, 663 (D. Kan. 1991)	3	Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act does not empower district court to collaterally review, vacate or impede decisions of state court. Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940, S 1 et seq., 50 U.S.C.A.App. S 501 et seq.	The provisions of the Soldiers and Sailors Relief Act may be applied by federal and state courts. 50 U.S.C.App. § 512(1). But, the Act does not empower this court to collaterally review, vacate or impede the decisions of a state court.	"Does the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act empower district court to collaterally review, vacate or impede decisions of state court?"
5688	B & D Fabricators v. D.H. Blair Inv. Banking Corp., 220 Ga. App. 373, 375, 469 S.E.2d 683, 686 (1996)	10	Court has duty to inquire into its jurisdiction, upon its own motion where there is doubt, and is authorized to dismiss case against defendant where personal jurisdiction is lacking.	Finally, we note that a court has a duty to inquire into its jurisdiction, upon its own motion where there is doubt, and is authorized to dismiss a case against a defendant where personal jurisdiction is lacking.	"Does a court have a duty to inquire into its jurisdiction, upon its own motion where there is doubt, and is authorized to dismiss a case against a defendant where personal jurisdiction is lacking?"
5689	Loftus v. Primero Mining Corp., 230 F. Supp. 3d 1209, 1229 (C.D. Cal. 2017)	12	The act of state doctrine in its traditional formulation precludes courts from inquiring into the validity of the public acts a recognized foreign sovereign power committed within its own territory.	"The act of state doctrine in its traditional formulation precludes the courts of this country from inquiring into the validity of the public acts a recognized foreign sovereign power committed within its own territory."	Does the act of state doctrine bar an American court from questioning the validity of the act of a foreign sovereign when that act is done within the sovereign's territory?

5691	Hollander v. Nance, 888 So. 2d 1275, 1277-78 (Ala. Civ. App. 2004)	2	Although dismissal of action for want of prosecution because of the plaintiff's failure to appear at trial is a harsh sanction, it is warranted where there is a clear record of delay, willful default, or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff.	" 'The dismissal of a civil action for want of prosecution because of the plaintiff's failure to appear at trial falls within the *73 judicial discretion of a trial court and will not be reversed upon an appeal except for an abusive use of that discretionary power.' Although dismissal is a harsh sanction, it is warranted where there is a clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff.	"Is dismissal of action for failure to prosecute or to comply with rules or order warranted when there is clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct of plaintiff? "
5692	Onstad v. Wright, 54 S.W.3d 799, 805 (Tex. App. 2001)	9	When a trial court issues an order granting a motion in limine, the opposing party has a duty to comply with that order and to instruct the witnesses to do the same; noncompliance with that order may lead to contempt or other sanctions the trial court deems appropriate.	When a trial court issues an order granting such a motion in limine, the opposing party has a duty to comply with that order and to instruct the witnesses to do the same. Noncompliance with that order may lead to contempt or other sanctions the trial court deems appropriate.	"When a trial court issues an order granting a motion in limine, does the opposing party have a duty to comply with that order and to instruct the witnesses to do the same?"
5694	MMA Consultants 1 v. Republic of Peru, 245 F. Supp. 3d 486, 519–20 (S.D.N.Y. 2017)	42	The act of state doctrine confers presumptive validity on certain acts of foreign sovereigns by rendering non-justiciable claims that challenge such acts; its applicability depends, in part, on whether judicial examination of the sovereign's act would embarrass or hinder the executive in the realm of foreign relations.	The act of state doctrine "confer[s] presumptive validity on certain acts of foreign sovereigns by rendering non-justiciable claims that challenge such acts." *520 Allied Bank Int'l v. Banco Credito Agricola de Cartago, 757 F.2d 516, 520 (2d Cir. 1985). Its applicability depends, in part, on whether judicial examination of the sovereign's act "would embarrass or hinder the executive in the realm of foreign relations."	Does the act of state doctrine confer presumptive validity on certain acts of foreign sovereigns by rendering non-justiciable claims that challenge such acts?
5695	State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Johnson, 18 So. 3d 1099, 1100 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2009)	4	The doctrine of equitable subrogation is based on the policy that no person should benefit by another's loss, and it may be invoked wherever justice demands its application, irrespective of technical legal rules.	Equitable or legal subrogation is not created by a contract but by the legal consequences of the acts and relationships of the parties. Id. at 646. The doctrine is based on the policy that no person should benefit by another's loss, and it "may be invoked wherever justice demands its application, irrespective of technical legal rules."	Is the doctrine of equitable subrogation based on the policy that no person should benefit by another's loss?

5696	In Matter of CUA Autofinder, 387 B.R. 906, 912 (M.D. Ga. 2008)	5	Under Georgia law, equitable subrogation requires a party to prove: (1) that it paid debt in order to protect its own interest; (2) that it was not acting as volunteer in making payment; (3) that it was not primarily liable for debt, (4) that entire debt was paid; and (5) that subrogation would not cause injustice to rights of third parties.	Equitable subrogation requires that a party show that (1) it paid a debt in order to protect its own interest, (2) it was not acting as a volunteer in making the payment, (3) it was not primarily liable for the debt, (4) the entire debt was paid, and (5) subrogation would not cause an injustice to the rights of third parties.	What does equitable subrogation require a party to prove?
5697	Rex v. Warner, 183 Kan. 763, 769 (1958)	13	True test to determine when cause accrued is to ascertain when plaintiff could first have maintained his action to a successful result.	See Colormatch Exteriors v. Hickey, 275 Ga. 249, 251(1), 569 S.E.2d 495 (2002) ("The true test to determine when a cause of action accrues is to ascertain the time when the plaintiff could first have maintained his or her action to a successful result.") (Citation and punctuation omitted.).	Is the true test to determine when cause accrued to ascertain when plaintiff could first have maintained his action to a successful result?
5699	Pressman v. Estate of Steinvorth, 860 F. Supp. 171, 179 (S.D.N.Y. 1994)	14	Party seeking accounting must first establish: (1) relations of mutual and confidential nature; (2) money or property entrusted to defendant imposing upon him burden of accounting; (3) that there is no adequate legal remedy; and (4) in some cases, demand for accounting and refusal.	[14] A party seeking an accounting must first establish four conditions: "(1) relations of a mutual and confidential nature; (2) money or property entrusted to the defendant imposing upon him a burden of accounting; (3) that there is no adequate legal remedy; and (4) in some cases, a demand for an accounting and a refusal." 300 Broadway Realty Corp.	What are the elements to establish a claim of accounting?
5700	People v. Hunter, 331 Ill. App. 3d 1017, 1026 (2002)	3	The essential elements necessary to prove forgery are (1) a document apparently capable of defrauding another; (2) a making or altering of such document by one person in such manner that it purports to have been made by another; (3) knowledge by defendant that it has been thus made; (4) knowing delivery of the document, and (5) intent to defraud.	The essential elements necessary to prove forgery in this case are (1) a document apparently capable of defrauding another; (2) a making or altering of such document by one person in such manner that it purports to have been made by another; (3) knowledge by defendant that it has been thus made; (4) knowing delivery of the document; and (5) intent to defraud.	What is required to prove forgery under law?

5701	Little v. State Indus. Comm'n, 1936 OK 817	5	Forgery statute is aimed primarily at safeguarding confidence in genuineness of documents relied upon in commercial and business activity; such purpose underlies not only prohibition against forging false instrument but also against possessing or uttering such an instrument. W.S.A. 943.38.	A forgery statute is "aimed primarily at safeguarding confidence in the genuineness of documents relied upon in commercial and business activity." LaFave & Scott, Handbook on Criminal Law, p. 671 (1972). This purpose underlies not only the prohibition against forging a false instrument but also that against possessing or uttering such an instrument. Perkins, Criminal Law, pp. 339-40 (2d ed. 1969).	What is the purpose of forgery statute?
5705	Adams, Kleemeier, Hagan, Hannah & Fouts, PLLC v. Jacobs, 158 N.C. App. 376, 382 (2003)	21	A verified complaint may be treated as an affidavit if it: (1) is made on personal knowledge, (2) sets forth such facts as would be admissible in evidence, and (3) shows affirmatively that the affiant is competent to testify to the matters stated therein.	It is true that a "verified complaint may be treated as an affidavit if it (1) is made on personal knowledge, (2) sets forth such facts as would be admissible in evidence, and (3) shows affirmatively that the affiant is competent to testify to the matters stated therein.'	Can a verified complaint be treated as an affidavit?
5706	NAC Tex Hotel Co. v. Greak, 481 S.W.3d 327, 332 (Tex. App. 2015)	11	The doctrine of adverse possession itself is a harsh one, taking real estate from a record owner without express consent or compensation; before taking such a severe step, the law reasonably requires that the parties' intentions be very clear. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code Ann. S 16.026(a).	But the doctrine of adverse possession itself is a harsh one, taking real estate from a record owner without express consent or compensation. Id. Before taking such a severe step, the law reasonably requires that the parties' intentions be very clear.	Is the element of intention essential to prove adverse possession?
5707	Jaffe v. Bank of America, N.A., 667 F. Supp. 2d 1299, 1318 (S.D. Fla. 2009)	4	An important aspect of a letter of credit is that it is subject to the "independence principle," which provides that, absent any fraud in connection with the letter of credit itself, the issuer's obligation to make payment to the beneficiary is independent of any party's performance on any other underlying contract; thus, a letter of credit can be distinguished from a guarantee since the issuer is primarily liable and cannot assert defenses available to the customer that arise from a breach in the underlying contract.	An important aspect of the letter of credit is that it is subject to the independence principle, which provides that, absent any fraud in connection with the letters of credit itself, the issuer's obligation to make payment to the beneficiary is independent of any party's performance on any other underlying contract. In re Air Conditioning, Inc. of Stuart, 72 B.R. 657, 660 (S.D.Fla.1987). "Thus, the letter of credit can be distinguished from a guarantee because the issuer is primarily liable and cannot assert defenses available to the customer that arise from a breach in the underlying contract." Dibrell Bros.	Is the independence principle an aspect of letter of credit?

5708	Japan Gas Lighter Ass'n v. Ronson Corp., 257 F. Supp. 219, 224-25 (D.N.J. 1966)	9	The concepts of personal jurisdiction and of venue are closely related, but nonetheless distinct; often several district courts are competent to hear the matter and can assert jurisdiction over the defendant, and venue then is decisive as to where the suit may be brought.	The concepts of personal jurisdiction and of venue are closely related, but nonetheless distinct. Olberding v. Illinois Central R.R. Co., 346 U.S. 338, 74 S.Ct. 83, 98 L.Ed. 39 (1953); Polizzi v. Cowles Magazine, Inc., 345 U.S. 663, 73 S.Ct. 900, 97 L.Ed. 1331 (1953). 1 The *225 distinction between venue and personal jurisdiction is important precisely because often several district courts are competent to hear the matter, and can assert jurisdiction over the defendant; venue then is decisive as to where the suit may be brought.	Are personal jurisdiction and venue different concepts?
5709	Kurek v. Luszyk, 28 N.Y.S.3d 550, 551 (N.Y. App. Term. 2015)	2	Because a life tenant has the exclusive right to the property during her life, the remainderman or reversioner has no right to possession or any present right of enjoyment, or tangible or physical ownership, of the land.	Because a life tenant has the exclusive right to the property during her life, "the remainderman or reversioner has no right to possession or any present right of enjoyment, or tangible or physical ownership, of the land" (56 NY Jur 2d, Estates, Powers, and Restraints on Alienation § 184; see Novakovic v Novakovic, 25 Misc 3d 94 [App Term, 2d Dept, 2d, 11th & 13th Jud Dists 2009]).	"Does the remainderman or reversioner have a right to possession or any present right of enjoyment, or tangible or physical ownership, of the land during the term of the life tenancy?"
5712	Wall v. Airport Parking Co. of Chicago, 244 N.E.2d 190, 192-93 (Ill. 1969)	2	In order to establish a bailor-bailee relationship there must be either an express agreement or agreement by implication, which may be gathered from the circumstances surrounding the transaction, such as the benefits to be received by the parties, their intentions, the kind of property involved, and the opportunities of each to exercise control over the property.	In order to establish a bailorbailee relationship there must be either an express agreement (there is none here) or an agreement by implication, which may be gathered from the circumstances surrounding the transaction, such as the benefits to be received by the parties, their intentions, the kind of property involved, and the opportunities of each to exercise control over the property.	Does a bailor-bailee relationship require the existence of a contract?
5713	Vallo v. Gayle Oil Co., Inc., 646 So. 2d 859, 865 (La. 1994)	8	When unconstitutionality of statute is specifically pled, claim must be raised in petition (the original petition, an amended and supplemental petition or petition in an incidental demand), exception, motion or answer; it cannot be raised in memorandum, opposition or brief as those documents do not constitute pleadings. LSA-C.C.P. art. 852.	Therefore, when the unconstitutionality of a statute is specifically pled, the claim must be raised in a petition (the original petition, an amended and supplemental petition or a petition in an incidental demand), an exception, a motion or an answer. It cannot be raised in a memorandum, opposition or brief as those documents do not constitute pleadings.	Can constitutionality of a statute be challenged in a memorandum?

5714	Hinkle v. Bauer Lumber & Home Bldg. Ctr., 158 W. Va. 492, 494–95, 211 S.E.2d 705, 706–07 (1975)	2	Whenever it is determined that a court has no jurisdiction to entertain subject matter of a civil action, forum court must take no further action in case other than to dismiss it from docket. R.C.P. rule 12(b)(1), (h)(2).	Whenever it is determined that a court has no jurisdiction to entertain the subject matter of a civil action, the *495 forum court must take no further action in the case other than to dismiss it from the docket.	What action must a forum court take when it is determined that a court has no jurisdiction in a matter?
5716	Env'tl. Integrity Project v. E.P.A., 425 F.3d 992, 995 (D.C. Cir. 2005)	2	Interpretation by Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) of a legislative rule cannot be modified without the notice and comment procedure that would be required to change the underlying regulation; otherwise, an agency could easily evade notice and comment requirements by amending a rule under the guise of reinterpreting it.	However, an interpretation of a legislative rule "cannot be modified without the notice and comment procedure that would be required to change the underlying regulation-otherwise, an agency could easily evade notice and comment requirements by amending a rule under the guise of reinterpreting it."	Can an interpretation to a regulation given by an agency modified only through the process of notice and comment rulemaking?
5717	Erickson v. Dir., N. Dakota Dep't of Transp., 507 N.W.2d 537, 539 (N.D. 1993)	1	Appeal from administrative hearing officer's decision involving license suspension is governed by Administrative Agencies Practices Act. NDCC 28-32-01 et seq., 39-20-04.1.	An appeal from an administrative hearing officer's decision involving a license suspension under N.D.C.C. 39-20-04.1 is governed by the Administrative Agencies Practice Act, N.D.C.C.	Does Administrative Agencies Practice Act govern an appeal from administrative hearing officer's decision involving a license suspension?
5718	Seureau v. ExxonMobil Corp., 274 S.W.3d 206, 225 (Tex. App. 2008)	30	A contract that restricts a governmental entity's freedom to decide whether to initiate eminent domain or condemnation proceedings would be illegal and void.	Thus, a contract that restricts a governmental entity's freedom to decide whether to initiate eminent domain or condemnation proceedings would be illegal and void.	What is the effect of a contract that restricts a governmental entity's freedom to decide whether to initiate eminent domain?
5720	Peltz ex rel. Estate of Peltz v. Sears, Roebuck & Co., 367 F. Supp. 2d 711, 717 (E.D. Pa. 2005)	5	Arbitration is a matter of contract; if there is a written provision in a contract evidencing a transaction involving commerce to settle by arbitration any controversy, the contract falls within the scope of the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA). 9 U.S.C.A. § 1 et seq.	[5] Arbitration, of course, is a matter of contract. Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, 537 U.S. 79, 83, 123 S.Ct. 588, 154 L.Ed.2d 491 (2002). If there is "[a] written provision in ... a contract evidencing a transaction involving commerce to settle by arbitration any controversy," the contract falls within the scope of the FAA. 9 U.S.C.	How is it determined whether a written provision in a contract to settle by arbitration falls within the scope of the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA)?
5721	Sokol Holdings v. BMB Munai, 542 F.3d 354, 358 (2d Cir. 2008)	2	Persons are generally entitled to have their dispute settled by ruling of court of law, and it is essentially only by making commitment to arbitrate that one gives up this right of access to court of law in favor of arbitration.	"Persons are generally entitled to have their dispute settled by the ruling of a court of law. It is essentially only by making a commitment to arbitrate that one gives up the right of access to a court of law in favor of arbitration."	How does a person give up the right to access the court of law in favor of arbitration?
5722	Sokol Holdings v. BMB Munai, 542 F.3d 354, 358 (2d Cir. 2008)	2	Persons are generally entitled to have their dispute settled by ruling of court of law, and it is essentially only by making commitment to arbitrate that one gives up this right of access to court of law in favor of arbitration.	"Persons are generally entitled to have their dispute settled by the ruling of a court of law. It is essentially only by making a commitment to arbitrate that one gives up the right of access to a court of law in favor of arbitration."	How can one give up the right of access to a court of law in favor of arbitration?

5723	Shearson/Am. Exp. v. McMahon, 482 U.S. 220, 220 (1987)	1	Arbitration Act establishes federal policy favoring arbitration, requiring that courts rigorously enforce arbitration agreements, and courts' duty is not diminished when party bound by agreement raises claim founded on statutory rights. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	The Arbitration Act establishes a federal policy favoring arbitration, requiring that the courts rigorously enforce arbitration agreements. This duty is not diminished when a party bound by an agreement raises a claim founded on statutory rights.	Does the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) establish a federal policy favoring arbitration?
5724	Circuit City Stores v. Adams, 279 F.3d 889, 892 (9th Cir. 2002)	1	Pursuant to Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) provision that arbitration agreements shall be valid, irrevocable, and enforceable, save upon such grounds that exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any contract, federal courts determining the validity of an agreement to arbitrate should apply ordinary state-law principles that govern the formation of contracts; thus, although courts may not invalidate arbitration agreements under state laws applicable only to arbitration provisions, general contract defenses such as fraud, duress, or unconscionability, grounded in state contract law, may operate to invalidate arbitration agreements. 9 U.S.C.A. S 2.	Section 2 of the FAA provides that arbitration agreements "shall be valid, irrevocable, and enforceable, save upon such grounds that exist at law or in equity for the revocation of any contract." 9 U.S.C. 2 (emphasis added). In determining the validity of an agreement to arbitrate, federal courts "should apply ordinary state-law principles that govern the formation of contracts." First Options of Chicago, Inc. v. Kaplan, 514 U.S. 938, 944, 115 S.Ct. 1920, 131 L.Ed.2d 985 (1995). Thus, although "courts may not invalidate arbitration agreements under state laws applicable only to arbitration provisions," general contract defenses such as fraud, duress, or unconscionability, grounded in state contract law, may operate to invalidate arbitration agreements.	Under state law can courts invalidate an arbitration agreement?
5725	Hooters of Am. v. Phillips, 39 F. Supp. 2d 582, 613 (D.S.C. 1998)	21	Although Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) manifests liberal federal policy favoring arbitration agreements, and questions of arbitrability must be addressed with regard for policy, FAA leaves interpretation of agreement to application of common law principles of contract law. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	"Although the Federal Arbitration Act manifests a liberal federal policy favoring arbitration agreements, and questions of arbitrability must be addressed with regard for the policy, the Act leaves the interpretation of an agreement to the application of common law principles of contract law."	How does the Federal Arbitration Act interpret an arbitration agreement?
5727	Letsinger v. Drury Coll., 68 S.W.3d 408, 411 (Mo. 2002)	7	Essentials of a landlord-tenant relationship are: (1) a reversion in the landlord; (2) the creation of an estate in the tenant either at will or for a term less than that which the landlord holds; (3) the transfer of exclusive possession and control of the premises, or a portion thereof, to the tenant; and (4) a contract, either express or implied, between the parties.	The essentials of a landlord-tenant relationship are: (1) a reversion in the landlord; (2) the creation of an estate in the tenant either at will or for a term less than that which the landlord holds; (3) the transfer of exclusive possession and control of the premises, or a portion thereof, to the tenant; and (4) a contract, either express or implied, between the parties.	How is a landlord-tenant relationship created?

5728	Kelly v. St. Mary Hosp., 778 A.2d 1224, 1226 (Pa. Super. Ct. 2001)	2	In order to establish a claim of negligence, the plaintiff has the burden of proving four elements: (1) a duty or obligation recognized by law; (2) a breach of that duty; (3) a causal connection between the conduct and the resulting injury; and (4) actual damages.	In order to establish a claim of negligence the plaintiff has the burden of proving four elements: 1) a duty or obligation recognized by law; 2) a breach of that duty; 3) a causal connection between the conduct and the resulting injury; and 4) actual damages.	What are the elements that a plaintiff must establish to prevail in a negligence action?
5729	Burlington N. & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Pub. Serv. Co. of Oklahoma, 636 F.3d 562, 568 (10th Cir. 2010)	4	So long as parties have not specifically agreed to submit arbitrability question itself to arbitration, i.e., to arbitrate arbitrability, court will decide independently whether merits of parties' dispute is arbitrable; thus, party who has not agreed to arbitrate will normally have right to court's decision about merits of its dispute.	So long as the parties have not specifically agreed to submit the arbitrability 2 question itself to arbitration (i.e., to arbitrate arbitrability), a court will decide independently whether the merits of the parties' dispute is arbitrable. First Options of Chicago v. Kaplan, 514 U.S. 938, 943, 115 S.Ct. 1920, 131 L.Ed.2d 985 (1995). Thus, "a party who has not agreed to arbitrate will normally have a right to a court's decision about the merits of its dispute."	"When parties have agreed to arbitrate can courts decide the merits of a dispute, which parties have not agreed to arbitrate?"
5730	Straube v. Bowling Green Gas Co., 360 Mo. 132, 138, 227 S.W.2d 666, 668-69 (1950)	2	Public Service Commission is an administrative body only, and it has no power to exercise or perform a judicial function, or to promulgate an order requiring a pecuniary reparation or refund, and has no power to declare or enforce any principle of law or equity, and cannot determine damages. V.A.M.S. SS 393.110 et seq., 393.130; V.A.M.S. Const. art. 5, SS 1, 14.	The Public Service Commission is an administrative body only, and not a court, and hence the commission has no power to exercise or perform a judicial function, or to promulgate an order requiring a pecuniary reparation or refund.' State ex rel. Laundry, Inc., v. Public Service Commission, 327 Mo. 93, 34 S.W.2d 37, 46; May Dept. Stores Co. v. Union Electric Light & Power Co., 341 Mo. 299, 107 S.W.2d 41, 57; State ex rel. Rutledge v. Public Service Commission, 316 Mo. 233, 289 S.W. 785, 787. 'The commission 'has no power to declare or enforce any principle of law or equity' * * * and as a result it cannot determine damages or award pecuniary relief.'	Can a Public Service Commission promulgate an order requiring a pecuniary reparation or refund?

5731	Coggins v. Gregorio, 97 F.2d 948, 950 (11th Cir. 1938)	5	To constitute the relation of "landlord and tenant" there must be permission or consent on the part of the landlord, subordination of the tenant to the landlord's title and rights, a reversion in the landlord, an estate in the tenant, and the transfer of possession and control of the premises to the tenant under a contract express or implied.	To constitute the relation of landlord and tenant these elements must be present: Permission or consent on the part of the landlord, subordination to the landlord's title and rights on the part of the tenant, a reversion in the landlord, an estate in the tenant, and the transfer of possession and control of the premises to the tenant under a contract either express or implied between the parties.	Can a Landlord and Tenant relationship be created by an express or implied contract?
5732	Robert Lawrence Co. v. Devonshire Fabrics, 271 F.2d 402, 410 (2d Cir. 1959)	6	Any doubts as to construction of Arbitration Act ought to be resolved in line with its liberal policy of promoting arbitration both to accord with original intention of parties and to help ease congestion of court calendars. 9 U.S.C.A. SS 2, 3.	Finally, an doubts as to the construction of the Act ought to be resolved in line with its liberal policy of promoting arbitration both to accord with the original intention of the parties and to help ease the current congestion of court calendars.	How do courts resolve a dispute when there is doubt as to the construction of the Arbitration Act?
5733	Matter of Head, 204 B.R. 1022, 1025 (Bankr. N.D. Ala. 1997)	3	Under Alabama law, "chose in action" is personal right to demand money or property by action, and includes infinite variety of contracts, covenants, and promises which confer on one party right to recover personal chattel or sum of money from another by action.	A chose in action is "a personal right to demand money or property by an action." Peavy Lumber Co., 130 So.2d at 340. The term includes an infinite variety of contracts, covenants, and promises which confer on one party a right to recover a personal chattel or a sum of money from another by action.	Can a thing in action be termed as a right to demand money or property?
5734	State Tax Comm'n v. Shor, 371 N.E.2d 523, 524 (N.Y. 1977)	2	The ownership interest of a tenant shareholder in a cooperative apartment is sui generis; it reflects only an ownership of a proprietary lease and, therefore, arguably an interest in a chattel real which is, however, conditional on the tenant shareholder's interest in the cooperative corporation, an interest always treated as personal property.	The ownership interest of a tenant-shareholder in a co- operative apartment is sui generis. It reflects only an ownership of a proprietary lease, and therefore arguably an interest in a chattel real, conditional however upon his shareholder interest in the co-operative corporation, an interest always treated as personal property.	Is a cooperative apartment personal property or real property?
5735	Groce v. Dept. of Envtl. Protec., 921 A.2d 567, 582 (Pa. Cmmw. 2007)	15	Where a Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) decision is appealed to the Environmental Hearing Board (EHB), the EHB is required to conduct a hearing de novo to determine whether the evidence taken by the EHB can sustain the DEP's decision.	Where a DEP decision is appealed to the EHB, the EHB is required to conduct a hearing de novo to determine whether the evidence taken by the EHB can sustain the DEP's decision.	Is the Environmental Hearing Board (EHB) required to conduct a hearing de novo where a Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) decision is appealed to the EHB?

5736	Cummings v. Gen. Motors Corp., 365 F.3d 944, 951 (10th Cir. 2004)	6	Under Oklahoma law, to establish a manufacturer's product liability, a plaintiff must prove that (1) the product was the cause of the injury, (2) the defect existed in the product at the time the product left the manufacturer's possession and control, and (3) the defect made the article unreasonably dangerous.	Under Oklahoma law, to establish a manufacturer's product liability, a plaintiff must prove that (1) "the product was the cause of the injury," (2) the defect existed in the product "at the time the product left the manufacturer's possession and control," and (3) "the defect made the article unreasonably dangerous.	What are the elements to prove a claim of manufacturer's product liability?
5737	Skolnick v. Martin, 32 Ill. 2d 55, 59 (1964)	4	The Civil Practice Act was designed to eliminate formalized rules of common-law pleading and to provide a procedure whereby substantive rights could be determined with a minimum of delay, technicality and expense.	Furthermore, the Civil Practice Act was designed to eliminate the formalized rules of common-law pleading and to provide a procedure whereby substantive rights could be determined with a minimum of delay, technicality and expense.	Does the Civil Practice Act eliminate the common law practice of pleading?
5738	Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa & Chippewa Indians v. Office of U.S. Atty. for W. Div. of Michigan, 369 F.3d 960, 968 (6th Cir. 2004)	4	Federal recognition of a tribe requires: (1) a legal basis for recognition, i.e. Congressional or Executive action, and (2) the empirical indicia of recognition, namely, a continuing political relationship with the group, such as by providing services through the Bureau of Indian Affairs.	A prominent treatise on federal Indian law states that federal recognition of a tribe requires (1) a legal basis for recognition (i.e. Congressional or Executive action) and (2) the empirical indicia of recognition, namely, a "continuing political relationship with the group, such as by providing services through the Bureau of Indian Affairs."	How can an Indian tribe be federally recognized?
5739	Palazzolo v. Mire, 10 So. 3d 748, 768 (La. Ct. App. 2009)	4	Every child custody case must be viewed within its own particular set of facts; each case must be viewed in light of the child's age, the situation of the parents, and any other factor relevant to the particular case. LSA-C.C. art. 131.	Every child custody case must be viewed within its own particular set of facts. McKenzie, supra. Each case must be viewed in light of the child's age, the situation of the parents, and any other factor relevant to the particular case.	Should every child custody case be viewed within its own particular set of facts?
5740	Modine Mfg. Co. v. Pollution Control Bd., 193 Ill. App. 3d 643, 647 (1990)	1	Legislature has vested the Pollution Control Board with broad discretionary powers in the imposition of civil penalties, and its order will not be disturbed upon review unless it is clearly arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. S.H.A. ch. 1111/212, P 1033(b).	The legislature has vested the PCB with broad discretionary powers in the imposition of civil penalties, and its order will not be disturbed upon review unless it is clearly arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.	Does the Pollution Control Board (PCB) have broad discretionary powers in imposing civil penalties?
5742	Town of Oronoco v. City of Rochester, 293 Minn. 468, 471, 197 N.W.2d 426, 429 (1972)	3	Balancing-of-public-interests test is adopted for resolution of conflicts which arise between exercise by governmental agencies of their police power and their right of eminent domain.	Therefore, we adopt a balancing-of-public-interests test for the resolution of conflicts which arise between the exercise by governmental agencies of their police power and their right of eminent domain.	What test does the court adopt for resolving the conflicts between the exercise by governmental agencies of their police power and their right of eminent domain?

5743	Terada v. Eli Lilly & Co., 2015 IL App (5th) 140170, ¶ 24	6	Second factor in determining transactional venue-where the cause of action springs into existence-considers, among other things, where any significant negotiations were carried on between the parties, where an agreement was signed, the place where it was, or was supposed to be performed, or where matters occurred that plaintiff has the burden of proving. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-101.	The second factor in determining transactional venue-where the cause of action springs into existence -considers, among other things, where "any significant negotiations were carried on between the parties, where an agreement was signed, the place where it was, or was supposed to be performed, or where matters occurred that plaintiff has the burden of proving." "	What do the courts look for when considering where the cause of action arose in determining transactional venue?
5745	Schattner v. Girard, 668 F.2d 1366, 1368-69 (D.C. Cir. 1981)	2	Although claims will not be barred unless they come within scope of an arbitration agreement, the strong federal policy in favor of voluntary commercial arbitration requires that the scope of such agreements not be read too narrowly.	Although claims will not be barred unless they come within the scope of an arbitration agreement, see *1369 337 Davis v. Chevy Chase Financial Ltd., No. 80-1297 (D.C. Cir. October 15, 1981), the "strong federal policy in favor of voluntary commercial arbitration" requires that we not read the scope of such agreements too narrowly.	Is there a strong federal policy in favor of voluntary commercial arbitration?
5746	Thun v. City of Bonney Lake, 265 P.3d 207, 213 (Wash. App. Div. 2 2011)	19	The federal final decision requirement for ripeness of a takings claim follows from the principle that only a regulation that "goes too far" results in a taking; a court cannot determine whether a regulation has gone "too far" unless it knows how far the regulation goes. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; West's RCWA Const. Art. 1, S 16.	The federal "final decision" requirement "follows from the principle that only a regulation that 'goes too far' results in a taking." Suitum, 520 U.S. at 734, 117 S.Ct. 1659 (quoting Pennsylvania Coal Co. v. Mahon, 260 U.S. 393, 415, 43 S.Ct. 158, 67 L.Ed. 322 (1922)). "A court cannot determine whether a regulation has gone 'too far' unless it knows how far the regulation goes."	Is there a requirement following the principle that only a regulation that goes too far results in a taking?
5750	St. Marys v. Auglaize Cty. Bd. of Comms., 115 Ohio St. 3d 387, 398 (2007)	19	Where an entity serves such a substantial part of the public that its rates, charges and methods of operation become a public concern, it can be characterized as a public utility.	In sum, where an entity "serves such a substantial part of the public that its rates, charges and methods of operation become a public concern, it can be characterized as a public utility."	"Can an entity serving a substantial part of the public causing its rates, charges and methods of operation to become a public concern, be characterized as a public entity?"
5751	St. Marys v. Auglaize Cty. Bd. of Comms., 115 Ohio St. 3d 387, 396 (2007)	15	One of the most important attributes of a public utility is that it provides an essential good or service to the general public which has a legal right to demand or receive this good or service.	One of the most important attributes of a public utility is that it provides "an essential good or service to the general public which has a legal right to demand or receive this good or service."	Does a public utility provide essential goods and services to the general public that has the legal right to demand or receive such goods?

5752	Reynolds v. Menard, 365 Ill. App. 3d 812, 820 (2006)	9	In action for malicious prosecution, "probable cause" is defined as a state of facts that would lead a person of ordinary caution and prudence to believe, or to entertain an honest and strong suspicion, that the person arrested committed the offense charged.	Probable cause is defined as " 'a state of facts that would lead a person of ordinary caution and prudence to believe, or to entertain an honest and strong suspicion, that the person arrested committed the offense charged.' "	Is actual guilt or innocence of the accused required to establish the probable cause in a malicious prosecution claim?
5753	Hall v. IKEA Property Inc., 171 F. Supp. 3d 634, 639-40 (E.D. Mich. 2016)	2	Under Michigan law, courts are not bound by the labels that parties attach to their claims; the gravamen of an action is determined by reading the complaint as a whole, and by looking beyond mere procedural labels to determine the exact nature of the claim.	With respect to premises liability and ordinary negligence claims, Michigan case law holds the following: Courts are not bound by the labels that parties attach to their claims. Indeed, "[i]t is well settled that the gravamen of an action is determined by reading the complaint as a whole, and by looking beyond mere procedural labels to determine the exact nature of the claim."	Is a court bound by the label a party assigns to its claims?
5755	Diaz v. Michigan Logistics Inc., 167 F. Supp. 3d 375, 380 (E.D.N.Y. 2016)	3	Discovery and a fact-intensive analysis is required for a determination of whether plaintiffs were independent contractors, rather than employees subject to a contract of employment for purposes of the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA). 9 U.S.C.A. S 2.	Discovery and a fact-intensive analysis is required for a determination of whether Plaintiffs were "independent contractors," rather than "employees" subject to a "contract of employment" for purposes of the FAA.	Is discovery and fact-intensive analysis required to determine whether the Plaintiff is an employee or independent contractor?
5756	Shearson Hayden Stone v. Liang, 493 F. Supp. 104, 106 (N.D. Ill. 1980)	1	Interstate commerce is necessary basis for application of United States Arbitration Act and contract or agreement not predicated upon interstate commerce must be governed by state arbitration law. 9 U.S.C.A. SS 1, 2.	Interstate commerce is a necessary basis for application of the United States Arbitration Act, and a contract or agreement not predicated upon interstate commerce must be governed by state arbitration law.	can a contract or agreement not predicated upon interstate commerce be governed under the Federal Arbitration Act?
5757	Roodveldt v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, 585 F. Supp. 770, 779 (E.D. Pa. 1984)	11	Interstate commerce is necessary basis for application of Federal Arbitration Act, and contract or agreement not predicated upon interstate commerce must be governed by state arbitration law. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	Interstate commerce is a necessary basis for application of the Arbitration Act, and a contract or agreement not predicated upon interstate commerce must be governed by state arbitration law.	Can a contract or agreement not predicated upon interstate commerce be governed under the Federal Arbitration Act?
5758	Pollack v. Hogan, 703 F.3d 117, 120 (D.C. Cir. 2012)	4	It is a prerequisite to the maintenance of any action for specific relief that the plaintiff claim an invasion of his legal rights, either past or threatened; if he does not, he has not stated a cause of action; this is true whether the conduct complained of is sovereign or individual.	As the Court stated in full: It is a prerequisite to the maintenance of any action for specific relief that the plaintiff claim an invasion of his legal rights, either past or threatened.... If he does not, he has not stated a cause of action. This is true whether the conduct complained of is sovereign or individual.	Is it a prerequisite to the maintenance of any action for specific relief that the plaintiff claims an invasion of his legal rights?

5760	Vargas v. Spirit Delivery & Distrib. Services, Inc., 245 F. Supp. 3d 268, 279 (D. Mass. 2017)	2	The independent contractor provision of the Massachusetts Wage Act (MWA) establishes a standard to determine whether an individual performing services for another shall be deemed an employee or independent contractor for purposes of Massachusetts wage statutes. Mass. Gen. Laws Ann. ch. 149, § 148B.	The independent contractor provision of the MWA “ ‘ establishes a standard to determine whether an individual performing services for another shall be deemed an employee or independent contractor for purposes of [Massachusetts] wage statutes.’	What is the purpose of establishing an independent contractor statute?
5761	Arceo v. City of Junction City, Kansas, 182 F. Supp. 2d 1062, 1807-88 (D. Kan. 2002)	14	Persons supplying information to a public prosecutor will not be liable for malicious prosecution under Kansas law when the prosecutor initiates criminal proceedings, if the person supplies the information in good faith and represents all the information available to the informant through diligent effort. Restatement (Second) of Torts § 653 comment.	Persons supplying information to a public prosecutor will not be liable for malicious prosecution when the prosecutor initiates criminal proceedings, if the person supplies the information in good faith and represents all the information available to the informant through diligent effort.	Will an informer to a public prosecutor be liable for malicious prosecution upon the instigation of criminal proceedings by the prosecutor?
5762	Lefoldt for Natchez Reg'l Med. Ctr. Liquidation Tr. v. Horne, L.L.P., 853 F.3d 804, 814-15 (5th Cir. 2017)	14	Even if another provision of the parties' contract, or the contract as a whole, is invalid, unenforceable, voidable, or void, that does not prevent a court from enforcing a specific agreement to arbitrate because, as a matter of substantive federal arbitration law, an arbitration provision is severable from the remainder of the contract.	The Supreme Court has held that even if "another provision of the contract, or ... the contract as a whole," is invalid, unenforceable, *815 voidable, or void, that "does not prevent a court from enforcing a specific agreement to arbitrate" because, "[a]s a matter of substantive federal arbitration law, an arbitration provision is severable from the remainder of the contract.	Is an arbitration clause severable from the remainder of the contract?
5763	Omstead v. Dell, 533 F. Supp. 2d 1012, 1014 (N.D. Cal. 2008)	2	Where an arbitration agreement contains a choice-of-law clause, the court must apply the appropriate analysis to determine which state's laws govern the validity of the agreement to arbitrate. 9 U.S.C.A. § 1.	Where an arbitration agreement contains a choice-of-law clause, the court must apply the appropriate analysis to determine which state's laws govern the validity of the agreement to arbitrate.	How do courts determine which state's laws govern the validity of an agreement to arbitrate when there is a choice-of-law clause?
5764	Henson v. Nat'l Aeronautics & Space Admin., 14 F.3d 1143, 1147 (6th Cir.), opinion corrected on reh'g, 23 F.3d 990 (6th Cir. 1994)	4	Determination of whether employee was acting within scope of employment for purposes of Federal Tort Claims Act is question of law, not fact, made in accordance with law of state where conduct occurred. 28 U.S.C.A. § 2679(d)(1).	A determination of whether an employee was acting within the scope of employment is a question of law, not fact, made in accordance with the law of the state where the conduct occurred.	Is the determination of whether an employee was acting within the scope of his employment a question of law or a question of fact?

5766	In re Alfred H.H., 233 Ill. 2d 345, 355 (2009)	4	Under the public interest exception to the mootness doctrine, a court may consider an otherwise moot case when (1) the question presented is of a public nature, (2) there is a need for an authoritative determination for the future guidance of public officers, and (3) there is a likelihood of future recurrence of the question.	The Public Interest Exception [4] [5] Respondent's first established exception to the mootness doctrine is the "public interest" exception. The public interest exception allows a court to consider an otherwise moot case when (1) the question presented is of a public nature; (2) there is a need for an authoritative determination for the future guidance of public officers; and (3) there is a likelihood of future recurrence of the question.	Will the public interest exception permits review of an otherwise moot appeal or case?
5767	In re Trampush, 552 B.R. 817, 821 (Bankr. W.D. Wis. 2016)	1	Under Wisconsin law, subrogation is an equitable doctrine intended to avoid unjust enrichment, and may properly be applied whenever a person other than a mere volunteer pays a debt which in equity and good conscience should be satisfied by another.	Subrogation is an equitable doctrine intended to "avoid unjust enrichment, and may properly be applied whenever a person other than a mere volunteer pays a debt which in equity and good conscience should be satisfied by another."	Does subrogation avoid unjust enrichment?
5769	Casa de Cambio Comdiv S.A. de C.V. v. United States, 48 Fed. Cl. 137, 143-44 (2000)	8	Under the Tucker Act, illegal exaction jurisdiction lies in the Court of Federal Claims where a plaintiff has paid money over to the government, directly or in effect, and seeks return of all or part of that sum arguing that it was improperly paid, exacted, or taken from it in contravention of the Constitution, a statute, or a regulation. 28 U.S.C.A. S 1491(a)(1).	Under the Tucker Act, illegal exaction jurisdiction lies where a plaintiff "has paid money over to the Government, directly or in effect," and "seeks return of all or part of that sum arguing" that it "was improperly paid, exacted, or taken from [it] in contravention of the Constitution, a statute, or a regulation."	When does an illegal exaction occur under the law?
5770	Clark v. D.C., 241 F. Supp. 3d 24, 33-34 (D.C. 2017)	12	Under District of Columbia law, a plaintiff must show termination of the underlying suit in the plaintiff's favor in order to prevail on a claim for malicious prosecution; in this context, the termination must reflect on the merits of the underlying action.	Indeed, under District of Columbia law, a Plaintiff must show termination of the underlying suit in the Plaintiff's favor *34 in order to prevail on a claim for malicious prosecution. Harris v. District of Columbia, 696 F.Supp.2d 123, 134 (D.D.C. 2010). Furthermore, "the termination must reflect on the merits of the underlying action.	Is it necessary for the Plaintiff to show termination of the underlying suit in their favor to prevail on a claim for malicious prosecution?
5771	Zimmerman v. Al Jazeera Am., LLC, 246 F. Supp. 3d 257, 272-73 (D.D.C. 2017)	8	Under District of Columbia law, to evaluate whether a statement is capable of defamatory meaning, courts employ a two-part framework that asks (1) whether a communication is capable of bearing a particular meaning, and (2) whether that meaning is defamatory, after which the jury determines whether the communication was in fact so understood by its recipient.	To evaluate whether a statement is capable of defamatory meaning, courts employ a two-part framework that asks: " '(a) whether a communication is capable of bearing a particular meaning, and (b) whether that meaning is defamatory.' The jury then determines whether the communication was in fact so understood by its recipient."	What is the role of the Court and jury in determining the defamatory meaning of a statement?

5772	In re Healthcare Am. Med. Grp., 289 B.R. 442, 446 (M.D. Fla. 2002)	1	To invoke the doctrine of equitable subrogation under Florida law, a party must establish that: (1) the party paid the debt, (2) the party had a liability, right, or fiduciary relationship which equated a direct interest in discharging the debt or lien, and (3) no injustice is visited on the other party by applying equitable subrogation.	The doctrine of equitable subrogation has long been recognized by Florida courts. In order to invoke the doctrine, the party must establish the following: (1) that the party paid the debt; (ii) that the party had a liability, right or fiduciary relationship which equated a direct interest in discharging the debt or lien; and (iii) that no injustice is visited on the other party by applying equitable subrogation.	When can the doctrine of equitable subrogation be invoked?
5773	Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Allstate Ins. Co., 672 A.2d 939, 944 (Conn. 1996)	4	"Conventional subrogation" occurs where one having no interest or any relation to matter pays debt of another, and by agreement is entitled to rights and securities of creditor so paid; it can take effect only by agreement and has been said to be synonymous with assignment.	"Conventional subrogation can take effect only by agreement and has been said to be synonymous with assignment. It occurs where one having no interest or any relation to the matter pays the debt of another, and by agreement is entitled to the rights and securities of the creditor so paid."	How can conventional subrogation take effect?
5774	Miccosukee Tribe of Indians of Florida v. Cypress, 2013 WL 2158422	2	Indian tribes have inherent power to determine tribal membership, to regulate domestic relations among members, to prescribe rules of inheritance for members, and to punish tribal offenders.	Some such matters—but by no means an exhaustive list—include the inherent power to determine tribal membership, to regulate domestic relations among members, to prescribe rules of inheritance for members, and the power to punish tribal offenders. Montana v. U.S., 450 U.S. 544, 564, 101 S.Ct. 1245, 67 L.Ed.2d 493 (1981).	Does an Indian tribe retain power to regulate tribal membership and domestic relations among members?
5777	Villarreal v. Harris Cnty., 226 S.W.3d 537, 544 (Tex. App.--Hous. [1st Dist.] 2006)	18	"Eminent domain" refers to the power to take private property for public use by the state, municipalities, and private persons or corporations authorized to exercise functions of state power.	" 'Eminent domain' refers to '[t]he power to take private property for public use by the state, municipalities, and private persons or corporations authorized to exercise functions of state power.' "	Is the State's intentional act of taking property for public use an exercise of its eminent domain powers?
5778	Kansas Gas & Elec. Co. v. State Corp. Comm'n, 239 Kan. 483, 491 (1986)	4	State Corporation Commission has been granted by legislature full and exclusive authority and jurisdiction to supervise, control, and regulate public utilities of the state, and, when acting in exercise of its delegated powers, is not acting as quasi-judicial body, but rather is performing a legislative function.	The legislature created the Kansas Corporation Commission and granted it full and exclusive authority and jurisdiction to supervise, control, and regulate the public utilities of this state and, when acting in the exercise of its delegated powers, the Commission is not a quasi-judicial body.	Is the regulation of public utilities legislative in nature?
5780	Houle v. Sch. Dist. of Ashland, 267 Wis. 2d 708, 713 (2003)	4	"Legal subrogation," also known as equitable subrogation, derives from doctrine of preventing unjust enrichment, and it applies when person other than mere volunteer pays debt that in equity and good conscience, another should pay.	Legal subrogation, also known as equitable subrogation, derives from the doctrine of preventing unjust enrichment and it applies when a person other than a mere volunteer pays a debt that in equity and good conscience, another should pay.	Is equitable subrogation related to or derived from the equitable principle against unjust enrichment?

5781	Acuity v. McGhee Eng'g, 297 S.W.3d 718, 724 (Tenn. Ct. App. 2008)	4	Equitable subrogation is based on the principle that substantial justice should be attained regardless of form, that is, its basis is the doing of complete, essential, and perfect justice between all the parties without regard to form.	Equitable subrogation is based on the principle that " 'substantial justice should be attained regardless of form, that is, its basis is the doing of complete, essential, and perfect justice between all the parties without regard to form.' "	Is equitable subrogation based on the principle that substantial justice should be attained regardless of form?
5782	Neu v. Gibson, 928 N.E.2d 556, 560 (Ind. 2010)	3	In considering whether to order subrogation and, thus, bypass the general principle of priority, courts base their decisions on the equities, particularly the avoidance of windfalls and the absence of any prejudice to the interests of junior lienholders.	In considering whether to order subrogation and thus bypass the general principle of priority, courts base their decisions on the equities, particularly the avoidance of windfalls and the absence of any prejudice to the interests of junior lienholders.	What must courts consider when deciding to order subrogation?
5783	Patients Comp. Fund v. Lutheran Hosp.-LaCrosse, 223 Wis. 2d 439, 450 (1999)	3	Subrogation rights arise by operation of law when a person other than a mere volunteer pays a debt which in equity and good conscience should be satisfied by another.	Subrogation rights arise by operation of law "when a person other than a mere volunteer pays a debt which in equity and good conscience should be satisfied by another.	Does the right to subrogation arise when a person other than a mere volunteer pays a debt which should be satisfied by another?
5784	W. Am. Ins. Co. v. Yellow Cab Co. of Orlando, Inc., 495 So. 2d 204, 206 (Fla. 5th Dist. App. 1986)	2	"Subrogation" provides an equitable remedy for restitution to one who in performance of some duty has discharged a legal obligation which should have been met, either wholly or partially, by another.	Subrogation provides an equitable remedy for restitution to one who in the performance of some duty has discharged a legal obligation which should have been met, either wholly or partially, by another.	"Does equitable subrogation apply when a legal obligation ought to have been met, either wholly or partially, by another?"
5786	Wasko v. Manella, 849 A.2d 777, 781 (Conn. 2004)	3	The right of legal or equitable subrogation is not a matter of contract; it does not arise from any contractual relationship between the parties, but takes place as a matter of equity, with or without an agreement to that effect.	By contrast, [t]he right of [legal or equitable] subrogation is not a matter of contract; it does not arise from any contractual relationship between the parties, but takes place as a matter of equity, with or without an agreement to that effect.	"Does legal subrogation take place as a matter of equity, without any agreement to that effect?"
5788	Am. Fam. Ins. Group v. Cleveland, 827 N.E.2d 490, 494 (Ill. App. 4th Dist. 2005)	1	Under the doctrine of "subrogation," a person who has paid a debt for which another is primarily liable succeeds to the rights of the person whose debt has been paid in relation to the debt or claim; it includes every instance in which one person, not a mere volunteer, pays a debt for which another is primarily liable and in which equity and good conscience should have been paid by the latter.	Under the doctrine of subrogation, a person who has paid a debt for which another is primarily liable succeeds to the rights of the person whose debt has been paid in relation to the debt or claim. The doctrine includes every instance in which one person, not a mere volunteer, pays a debt for which another is primarily liable and in which equity and good conscience should have been paid by the latter.	"Under the doctrine of "subrogation," does a person who has paid a debt for which another is primarily liable succeed to the rights of the person whose debt has been paid in relation to the debt or claim?"

5789	In re Climate Control Mech. Servs., 570 B.R. 673, 678 (M.D. Fla. 2017)	6	When, upon default of contractor, surety pays all the bills of the job to date and completes the job, surety stands in shoes of contractor insofar as there are receivables due it, in the shoes of laborers and materialmen who have been paid by surety, who may have liens, and in the shoes of the government, for whom job was completed.	"When, on default of the contractor, [the surety] pays all the bills of the job to date and completes the job, it stands in the shoes of the contractor insofar as there are receivables due it; in the shoes of laborers and material men who have been paid by the surety-who may have had liens; and, not least, in the shoes of the government, for whom the job was completed."	Is a surety who pays claims of laborers and materialmen only entitled to stand in shoes of those laborers and materialmen who might have had liens but for the surety's payment?
5791	Pearlman v. Reliance Ins. Co., 371 U.S. 132, 136-37, 83 S. Ct. 232, 235, 9 L. Ed. 2d 190 (1962)	4	Surety paying debt of another is, by doctrine generally known as "subrogation," entitled to all rights of person paid to enforce his right to be reimbursed.	And probably there are few doctrines better established than that a surety who pays the debt of another is entitled to all the rights of the person he paid to enforce his right to be reimbursed.	Does the subrogation doctrine establish a right of a surety who pays the debt of another to assert all rights of the person surety paid to enforce surety's right to be reimbursed?
5792	Gardner v. Shearson, Hammill & Co., 433 F.2d 367, 368 (5th Cir. 1970)	3	Under Securities Exchange Act of 1934, voluntary submission to arbitration of existing controversy is valid and, absent fraud or basic fault in arbitration proceedings, such proceedings are valid.	We agree with the Third Circuit that 'under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, the voluntary submission to arbitration of an existing controversy is a valid one and, absent fraud or a basic fault in the proceedings, the proceeding is a valid one.'	Is the voluntary submission to arbitration of an existing controversy valid under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934?
5793	Kruse v. AFLAC Int'l, 458 F. Supp. 2d 375, 387 (E.D. Ky. 2006)	21	District court's duty to enforce arbitration agreement under the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) is not diminished when party bound by the agreement raises claims arising from statutory rights. 9 U.S.C.A. § 1 et seq.	"A district court's duty to enforce an arbitration agreement under the FAA is not diminished when a party bound by the agreement raises claims arising from statutory rights."	Does a district court's duty to enforce an arbitration agreement diminish when a party to the agreement asserts a statutory claim?
5797	Premium Cigars Int'l, Ltd. v. Farmer-Butler-Leavitt Ins. Agency, 208 Ariz. 557, 572 (Ct. App. 2004)	39	A "motion in limine" filed in a civil case is generally used as a substitute for evidentiary objections at trial and as a means to exclude evidence from trial for violations of the disclosure rules.	57 A motion in limine filed in a civil case "is generally used as a substitute for evidentiary objections at trial" and "as a means to exclude evidence from trial for violations of the disclosure rules."	Is a pretrial motion in limine used generally as a substitute for evidentiary objections at trial?
5798	Kinda v. Carpenter, 203 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183, 195 (2016)	14	Motions in limine are designed to facilitate the management of a case, generally by deciding difficult evidentiary issues in advance of trial.	Motions in limine are "designed to facilitate the management of a case, generally by deciding difficult evidentiary issues in advance of trial."	Are motions in limine designed to facilitate the management of a case by deciding difficult evidentiary issues in advance of trial?
5799	Amtower v. Photon Dynamics, 158 Cal. App. 4th 1582, 1593 (Cal. App. 2008)	2	In limine motions are designed to facilitate the management of a case, generally by deciding difficult evidentiary issues in advance of trial.	Strictly speaking, Photon's motion was not an in limine motion. In limine motions are designed to facilitate the management of a case, generally by deciding difficult evidentiary issues in advance of trial.	Are motions in limine designed to facilitate the management of a case by deciding difficult evidentiary issues in advance of trial?

5800	In re Estate of McCreath, 240 P.3d 413, 422 (Colo. App. 2009)	20	At any time after the last required pleading, with or without supporting affidavits, a party may move for determination of a question of law. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 56(h).	At any time after the last required pleading, with or without supporting affidavits, a party may move for determination of a question of law.	"Can a party move for determination of a question of law at any time after the last required pleading, with or without supporting affidavits?"
5802	Taylor v. Dowling Gosslee & Assocs., Inc., 44,654 (La. App. 2 Cir. 10/7/09), 22 So. 3d 246, 253, writ denied, 2009-2420 (La. 2/5/10), 27 So. 3d 299	4	A motion in limine presents an evidentiary matter that is subject to the great discretion of the trial court; this great discretion extends to the trial court's assessment of the probative value of evidence.	A motion in limine presents an evidentiary matter that is subject to the great discretion of the trial court. Heller v. Nobel Insurance Group, 2000-0261 (La.2/2/2000), 753 So.2d 841; Randall v. Concordia Nursing Home, 2007-101 (La.App. 3d Cir.8/22/07), 965 So.2d 559, writ denied, 2007-2153 (La.1/7/08), 973 So.2d 726. This great discretion extends to the trial court's assessment of the probative value of evidence.	Does a motion in limine present an evidentiary matter that is subject to the great discretion of the trial court?
5803	In re ADL Contracting Corp., 184 B.R. 436, 441 (S.D.N.Y. 1995)	4	Once surety satisfies its obligation under payment or performance bond, surety accedes by equitable doctrine of subrogation to rights of party whose rights were satisfied by its performance under bond.	In this spirit, the case law has firmly established that once a surety satisfies its obligation under either of the bonds, the surety accedes by the equitable doctrine of subrogation to the rights of the party whose rights were satisfied by its performance under the particular bond.	"Once a surety satisfies its obligation under a payment or performance bond, does the surety accede by the equitable doctrine of subrogation to the rights of a party whose rights were satisfied by its performance under bond?"
5804	Lesikar v. EOG Res., 236 S.W.3d 457, 459 (Tex. App. 2007)	3	When obligations are ongoing, such as the duty to make periodic payments of money, claims for their breach normally do not accrue until default occurs, and without default, there is no claim.	So too do we recognize that when obligations are ongoing (such as the duty to make periodic payments of money), claims for their breach normally do not accrue until default occurs.	"Do claims for breach normally accrue when obligations are ongoing, such as the duty to make periodic payments of money?"
5805	Smith v. Minnesota Mut. Life Ins. Co., 195 P.2d 457, 462 (Cal. App. 4th Dist. 1948)	3	The term "accrue" as applied to cause of action means to arrive, to commence, to come into existence, to become a present enforceable demand.	The term 'accrue', as applied to a cause of action, means to arrive; to commence; to come into existence; to become a present enforceable demand.	"Does the term ""accrue"" mean to arrive, to commence, to come into existence, to become a present enforceable demand?"
5806	Perez v. Todd Shipyards Corp., 999 S.W.2d 31, 35 (Tex. App. 1999)	4	Cause of action accrues when the plaintiff knew or in the exercise of reasonable diligence should have known of the wrongful act and resulting injury.	Under Texas law, a cause of action accrues when the plaintiff knew or in the exercise of reasonable diligence should have known of the wrongful act and resulting injury.	Does the cause of action accrue when the plaintiff has known or in the exercise of reasonable diligence should have known of the wrongful act and resulting injury?
5808	In re Weinberger's Estate, 203 Neb. 674, 674 (1979)	2	Cause of action in contract accrues at time of breach or failure to do thing agreed to, irrespective of any knowledge on part of plaintiff or of any actual injury occasioned him, but not until then.	A cause of action in contract accrues at the time of the breach or failure to do the thing agreed to irrespective of any knowledge on the part of the plaintiff of any actual injury occasioned him, but not until then.	Does a cause of action in contract accrue at time of breach or failure to do a thing agreed to?

5810	Matthieu v. Piedmont Nat. Gas Co., 269 N.C. 212, 215 (1967)	4	When right of party is once violated, even if ever so small a degree, the injury, in the technical acceptance of that term, at once springs into existence and the cause of action is complete. G.S. S 1-52.	* * * When the right of the party is once violated, even in ever so small a degree, the injury, in the technical acceptance of the term, at once springs into existence and the cause of action is complete.	"If the right of a party is once violated, does the injury at once spring into existence and the cause of action get completed?"
5811	Paradissiotis v. United States, 49 Fed. Cl. 16, 23 (2001)	5	A regulation that burdens private property may constitute a taking if not reasonably necessary to the effectuation of a substantial public purpose. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	A regulation that burdens private property may "constitute a taking if not reasonably necessary to the effectuation of a substantial public purpose" Penn Cent.	Does a regulation that burdens private property constitute a taking if not reasonably necessary to the effectuation of a substantial public purpose?
5812	McKeel v. Islamic Republic of Iran, 722 F.2d 582, 588 (9th Cir. 1983)	10	Territory is a primary basis for jurisdiction and a state may prescribe and enforce a rule of law for conduct occurring in territory under that state's sovereignty.	Appellants contend that it is. Territory, of course, is a primary basis for jurisdiction, i.e., a state may prescribe and enforce a rule of law for conduct occurring in territory under the state's sovereignty.	Is territory a primary basis for jurisdiction and can a state prescribe and enforce a rule of law for conduct occurring in territory under that state's sovereignty?
5813	O.N.E. Shipping Ltd. v. Flota Mercante Grancolombiana, S.A., 830 F.2d 449, 453 (2d Cir. 1987)	3	Where conduct of defendant has been compelled by foreign government, defendant is entitled to assert the defense of foreign government compulsion and act of state doctrine is applicable.	Furthermore, where as here the conduct of the appellees has been compelled by the foreign government they are entitled to assert the defense of foreign government compulsion and the act of state doctrine is applicable.	"Where conduct of the defendant has been compelled by a foreign government, is a defendant entitled to assert the defense of foreign government compulsion and is the act of state doctrine applicable?"
5814	United States v. Funmaker, 10 F.3d 1327, 1333 (7th Cir. 1993)	11	"Act of state doctrine" dictates that courts will not sit in judgment of acts of another country done within that country's territory; courts apply the act of state doctrine if deciding a case might frustrate the conduct of foreign relations by political branches of the government.	That doctrine dictates that courts will not sit in judgment on the acts of another country done within that country's territory. See Antolok v. United States, 873 F.2d 369, 384 (D.C.Cir.1989). Courts apply the act of state doctrine if deciding a case "might frustrate the conduct of foreign relations by the political branches of the government...." First Nat'l City Bank v.	Does the act of state doctrine dictate that courts will not sit in judgment of acts of another country done within that country's territory?
5816	George Lawrence v. Brodie, 302 Mass. 557, 560, 20 N.E.2d 413, 414-15 (1939)	4	A general averment that a defendant owes a plaintiff is a mere statement of a conclusion of law from facts previously stated and is not an allegation of a distinct substantive fact and is not admitted on demurrer.	It is also true that a general averment that a defendant owes a plaintiff is a mere statement of a conclusion of law from facts previously stated, is not an allegation 415 of a distinct substantive fact, and is not admitted on demurrer.	Is an averment that a defendant owes a plaintiff a mere statement of a conclusion of law?
5818	Amtower v. Photon Dynamics, 158 Cal. App. 4th 1582, 1593 (Cal. App. 2008)	2	In limine motions are designed to facilitate the management of a case, generally by deciding difficult evidentiary issues in advance of trial.	Strictly speaking, Photon's motion was not an in limine motion. In limine motions are designed to facilitate the management of a case, generally by deciding difficult evidentiary issues in advance of trial.	Are motions in limine designed to facilitate management of a case by deciding difficult evidentiary issues in advance of trial?

5819	Wilkinson v. Brit. Airways, 292 A.D.2d 263, 264, 740 N.Y.S.2d 294, 296 (2002)	1	There is no requirement that an in limine motion be made in writing and be in accordance with rule governing motion papers, and an oral motion in limine may properly be considered by court. McKinney's CPLR 2214.	Contrary to plaintiff's contentions, there is no requirement that an in limine motion be made in writing and be in accordance with CPLR 2214. The court, therefore, properly considered defendant's oral application (see generally, State of New York v Metz, 241 AD2d 192, 198).	"Is there requirement that an in limine motion be made in writing and be in accordance with rule governing motion papers, and an oral motion in limine may properly be considered by court?"
5820	Gilcrease v. Gilcrease, 438 So. 2d 658, 662 (La. App. 1983)	5	Theory inherent in pretrial procedure is to avoid surprise and to allow orderly disposition of case; accordingly, pretrial order or agreement controls subsequent course of action, though it can be modified at trial to prevent substantial injustice. LSA-C.C.P. art. 1551.	The theory inherent in pre-trial procedure is to avoid surprise and to allow orderly disposition of the case. The pre-trial order, or as in this case the pre-trial agreement, controls the subsequent course of the action but can be modified at trial to prevent substantial injustice. La.C.C.P. Art. 1551.	What is the theory inherent in pre-trial procedure?
5821	Ball v. Rao, 48 S.W.3d 332, 339 (Tex. App.--Fort Worth 2001)	11	The purpose of a motion in limine is to prevent opposing parties from asking prejudicial questions and introducing prejudicial evidence in front of the jury.	The purpose of such a motion is to prevent opposing parties from asking prejudicial questions and introducing prejudicial evidence in front of the jury.	Is the purpose of a motion in limine to prevent opposing parties from asking prejudicial questions and introducing prejudicial evidence in front of the jury?
5822	Powell v. Alan Young Homes, 251 Ga. App. 72, 75, 554 S.E.2d 186, 190 (2001)	7	Trial court has an absolute right to refuse to decide on the admissibility of evidence prior to trial and may reserve ruling on the admissibility of evidence until it is offered during trial.	"The trial court has an absolute right to refuse to decide on the admissibility of evidence ... prior to trial [and] may reserve ruling on the admissibility of evidence until it is offered during trial."	Does a trial court have an absolute right to refuse to decide on the admissibility of evidence prior to trial and can it reserve ruling on the admissibility of evidence until it is offered during trial?
5823	Compassion in Dying v. State of Wash., 79 F.3d 790, 827 (9th Cir. 1996)	12	State has legitimate interest in safeguarding interests of innocent third parties such as minor children and other family members dependent on persons who wish to commit suicide; interest is of almost negligible weight when patient is terminally ill and his or her death is imminent and inevitable.	The state clearly has a legitimate interest in safeguarding the interests of innocent third parties such as minor children and other family members dependent on persons who wish to commit suicide. That state interest, however, is of almost negligible weight when the patient is terminally ill and his death is imminent and inevitable.	Does the state have an interest in safeguarding the interests of innocent third parties who are dependent on people who commit suicide?
5824	Washington v. Glucksberg, 521 U.S. 702, 728 (1997)	6	Asserted right to assistance in committing suicide is not fundamental liberty interest protected by due process clause; history of law's treatment of assisted suicide has been and continues to be rejection of nearly all efforts to permit it. U.S.C.A. Const.Amends. 5, 14.	The history of the law's treatment of assisted suicide in this country has been and continues to be one of the rejection of nearly all efforts to permit it. That being the case, our decisions lead us to conclude that the asserted "right" to assistance in committing suicide is not a fundamental liberty interest protected by the Due Process Clause.	Does the statute prohibiting assisted suicide violate due process clauses?

5825	Lippert v. Bailey, 50 Cal. Rptr. 478, 481 (Cal. App. 4th Dist. 1966)	4	Right or obligation constituting cause of action does not arise until some primary right of a party has been impinged upon by wrongdoer in violation of duty owed by wrongdoer to that party.	The right or obligation constituting the cause of action does not arise, however, until some primary right of a party has been impinged upon by a wrongdoer in violation of a duty owed by the wrongdoer to that party.	Does the right or obligation constituting the cause of action arise when a primary right of a party has been impinged upon by a wrongdoer?
5826	U.S. v. Rosen, 716 F.3d 691, 700 (2d Cir. 2013)	4	To establish the corrupt intent necessary to support a federal bribery conviction, the government must prove that the defendant had a specific intent to give something of value in exchange for an official act, which generally includes any act taken under color of official authority. 18 U.S.C.A. § 666(a)(2).	To establish the " 'corrupt' intent necessary to a bribery conviction," the Government must prove that the defendant had " 'a specific intent to give ... something of value in exchange for an official act,' " United States v. Alfisi, 308 F.3d 144, 149 (2d Cir.2002) (emphasis in original) (quoting United States v. Sun—Diamond Growers of Cal., 526 U.S. 398, 404–05, 119 S.Ct. 1402, 143 L.Ed.2d 576 (1999)), which generally includes any act taken "under color of official authority," Ganim, 510 F.3d at 142 n. 4.	Does bribery require a specific intent?
5827	Grupo Protexa, S.A. v. All Am. Marine Slip, a Div. of Marine Office of Am. Corp., 20 F.3d 1224, 1236 (3d Cir. 1994)	3	Under act of state doctrine, courts will refrain from judging validity of foreign state's governmental acts in regard to matters within that country's borders.	Under the [act of state] doctrine, the courts of this country will refrain from judging the validity of a foreign state's governmental acts in regard to matters within that country's borders.	Does the act of state doctrine provide that courts in the United States will generally refrain from examining the validity of a foreign state's governmental acts in regard to matters within its own territory?
5830	Callejo v. Bancomer, S.A., 764 F.2d 1101. 1115 (5th Cir. 1985)	13	For act of state, as opposed to sovereign immunity, purposes, relevant acts are not merely those of named defendants, but any governmental acts whose validity would be called into question by adjudication of suit.	For act of state (as opposed to sovereign immunity) purposes, the relevant acts are not merely those of the named defendants, but any governmental acts whose validity would be called into question by adjudication of the suit.	"For act of state purposes, are relevant acts merely those of named defendants?"
5831	Mujica v. Occidental Petroleum Corp., 381 F. Supp. 2d 1164, 1171 (C.D. Cal. 2005)	5	Act of state doctrine is not jurisdictional limit on courts, but rather prudential doctrine designed to avoid judicial action in sensitive areas.	"The act of state doctrine is not a jurisdictional limit on courts, but rather 'a prudential doctrine designed to avoid judicial action in sensitive areas.' "	"While sovereign immunity addresses jurisdiction of court, is the act of state doctrine a prudential doctrine designed to avoid judicial action in sensitive areas?"
5832	United States v. Noriega, 746 F. Supp. 1506, 1521 (S.D. Fla. 1990)	12	In order for act of state doctrine to apply, defendant must show that activities were taken on behalf of state and were not private acts taken on behalf of actor himself.	In order for the act of state doctrine to apply, the defendant must establish that his activities are "acts of state," i.e., that they were taken on behalf of the state and not, as private acts, on behalf of the actor himself.	"In order for act of state doctrine to apply, must a defendant show that activities were taken on behalf of state and were not private acts taken on behalf of actor himself?"

5833	Davis v. Quality Pest Control, 641 S.W.2d 324, 328 (Tex. App.--Hous. [14th Dist.] 1982)	3	Test for determining whether pleading gives adequate notice is whether an opposing attorney of reasonable competence, with pleadings before him, can ascertain nature and basic issues of controversy and testimony probably relevant.	This has been characterized by McDonald as a thoroughly practical test: "Does the pleading give adequate notice?" 2 R. McDonald, Texas Civil Practice § 5.05 (rev. 1982). The test is whether "an opposing attorney of reasonable competence, with the pleadings before him, can ascertain the nature and the basic issues of the controversy and the testimony probably relevant," Rodriguez v. Yenawine, supra; see also, Eagle Trucking Company v. Texas Bitulithic Company, 590 S.W.2d 200 (Tex.Civ.App.—Tyler 1979), aff'd in part and rev'd in part on other grounds, 612 S.W.2d 503 (Tex.1981); 2 R. McDonald, Texas Civil Practice § 5.05 (rev. 1982).	What is the test for determining whether a pleading gives adequate notice?
5834	Lloyd's, U.S. Corp. v. Landis, 777 S.W.2d 470, 473 (Tex. App. 1989)	2	Where there is question of whether pleadings state cause of action, court will look to intentions of pleader and uphold pleadings and judgment rendered thereon even if some element of cause of action has not been alleged specifically.	Where there is a question of whether a cause of action has been stated, the court will look to the intentions of the pleader and uphold the pleadings and the judgment rendered thereon even if some element of a cause of action has not been alleged specifically.	What will the courts look to when there is a question as to whether a cause of action has been stated?
5836	Alberswerth v. Alberswerth, 184 S.W.3d 81, 100 (Mo. Ct. App. 2006)	26	Trial court is not bound by its in limine ruling and may admit the evidence when offered at trial; thus, an order sustaining a motion in limine and excluding evidence is an interlocutory order and is subject to change by the trial court during the course of the trial, and the trial court is free to alter its pretrial ruling and admit the evidence.	"The trial court is not bound by its in limine ruling and may admit the evidence when offered at trial." Id. Thus, an order sustaining a motion in limine and excluding evidence is an interlocutory order and is subject to change by the trial court during the course of the trial; the trial court is free to alter its pretrial ruling and admit the evidence.	Is an in limine ruling a preliminary expression of the court's opinion regarding the admissibility of the evidence?
5837	Greene v. State, 515 N.E.2d 1376, 1380 (Ind. 1987)	7	Motion in limine is not final ruling on admissibility of evidence; rather, it serves to prevent display of prejudicial material to jury until trial court has opportunity to make evidentiary ruling within trial court, and thus while final evidentiary ruling is appealable, ruling on motion in limine preserves nothing for appeal.	A motion in limine is not a final ruling on the admissibility of evidence. It serves to prevent the display of prejudicial material to the jury until the trial court has the opportunity to make an evidentiary ruling within the trial context. While the final evidentiary ruling is appealable, a ruling on a motion in limine preserves nothing for appeal.	Is a ruling on a motion in limine considered a final order?

5838	Frasca v. Warner, 57 Cal. Rptr. 683, 686 (Cal. App. 2d Dist. 1967)	1	While pre-trial order should measure dimensions of lawsuit and govern its course in absence of some good reason for departure, this does not mean that order should not be liberally construed to embrace all legal and factual theories inherent in issues defined therein.	In Century Refining the court stated: 'But, while the pre-trial order should measure the dimensions of a lawsuit and govern its course in the absence of some good reason for departure, this does not mean that the order should not be liberally construed to embrace all of the legal and factual theories inherent in the issues defined therein.	Do pretrial orders help govern the course of litigation?
5840	Employers Mut. Liab. Ins. Co. of Wis. v. Melcher, 378 Pa. 598, 601, 107 A.2d 874, 875-76 (1954)	1	Doctrine of subrogation is based on considerations of equity and good conscience to promote justice, and is granted as a means of placing ultimate burden of debt upon person who should bear it, and it is not matter of contract nor of privity, but may be invoked in favor of persons who are legally obligated to make good a loss caused by negligent or tortious act of another.	The doctrine of subrogation is based on 'considerations of equity and good conscience * * * to promote justice * * * (and) is granted as a means of placing the ultimate burden of the debt upon the person who should bear it.' It is not a matter of contract nor of privity. It 'may be invoked in favor of persons who are legally obligated to make good a loss caused by the negligent or tortious act of another.	"Since subrogation rights arise by contract or by operation of law, are those rights subject to good conscience?"
5841	Sheridan v. Dudden Implement, 174 Neb. 578, 581 (1962)	1	On discharging obligation of principal, surety is generally subrogated to rights of creditor or obligee and becomes entitled to security and remedies which creditor has for enforcing payment against principal or others who are liable for debt.	On discharging the obligation of the principal, the surety is generally subrogated to the rights of the creditor or obligee and becomes entitled to the securities and the means or remedies which the creditor has for enforcing payment against the principal or others who 67 are liable for the debt.	"Upon payment of obligation of principal, is a surety subrogated to rights of a creditor against the principal?"
5844	Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Allstate Ins. Co., 236 Conn. 362, 371, 672 A.2d 939, 944 (1996)	4	"Conventional subrogation" occurs where one having no interest or any relation to matter pays debt of another, and by agreement is entitled to rights and securities of creditor so paid; it can take effect only by agreement and has been said to be synonymous with assignment.	"Conventional subrogation can take effect only by agreement and has been said to be synonymous with assignment. It occurs where one having no interest or any relation to the matter pays the debt of another, and by agreement is entitled to the rights and securities of the creditor so paid."	Is conventional subrogation synonymous with assignment?
5847	Am. Online v. IMS, 24 F. Supp. 2d 548, 550 (E.D. Va. 1998)	3	"Trespass to chattels" occurs when one party intentionally uses or intermeddles with personal property in rightful possession of another without authorization. Restatement (Second) of Torts S 217(b).	A trespass to chattels occurs when one party intentionally uses or intermeddles with personal property in rightful possession of another without authorization. See RESTATEMENT (SECOND) OF TORTS 217(b).	Is intermeddling with personal property in rightful possession of another without authorization a trespass to chattels?

5849	United States v. McDonnell, 792 F.3d 478, 514 (4th Cir. 2015)	50	Bribery occurs only if the gift given to a public official is coupled with a particular criminal intent; that intent is not supplied merely by fact that the gift was motivated by some generalized hope or expectation of ultimate benefit on part of the donor, and the bribe payor must have more than a vague expectation that the public official will reward his kindness, somehow or other.	"It is universally recognized that bribery occurs only if the gift is coupled with a particular criminal intent. That intent is not supplied merely by the fact that the gift was motivated by some generalized hope or expectation of ultimate benefit on the part of the donor." United States v. Arthur, 544 F.2d 730, 734 (4th Cir.1976) (citations omitted) (reversing a conviction for misapplication of bank funds pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 656). The bribe payor must have more than a "[v]ague expectation[]" that the public official will reward his kindness, somehow or other.	Does bribery occur if a gift is coupled with a particular criminal intent to receive a specific benefit in return for the payment?
5850	J.C. v. State Dep't of Human Res., 986 So. 2d 1172, 1190 (Ala. Civ. App. 2007)	8	Where a statute is reenacted without material change, it must be assumed that the legislature was familiar with its interpretation by the Supreme Court and was satisfied therewith.	[W]here a statute is reenacted without material change, "it must be assumed that the Legislature was familiar with its interpretation by [the supreme] court and was satisfied therewith."	"When a statute is reenacted without material changes, is it assumed that the legislature was familiar with its interpretation by the Supreme Court?"
5851	Bishop v. Reno, 210 F.3d 1295, 1300 (11th Cir. 2000)	6	Sovereign nation has exclusive jurisdiction to punish offenses against its laws committed within its borders, unless it expressly or impliedly consents to surrender its jurisdiction.	Nevertheless, "[a] sovereign nation has exclusive jurisdiction to punish offenses against its laws committed within its borders, unless it expressly or impliedly consents to surrender its jurisdiction."	Does a sovereign nation have exclusive jurisdiction to punish offenses against its laws committed within its borders?
5853	Langhans v. Hale, 345 So. 2d 1226, 1229 (La. Ct. App. 1977)	3	In addition to those affirmative defenses specifically listed in statute, an affirmative defense can be any response by defendant which raises new matter which, assuming the allegations of the petition to be true, constitutes a defense to the action which will have the effect of defeating plaintiff's suit on the merits. LSA-C.C.P. art. 1005.	In addition to those specifically listed in that article, an affirmative defense can be any response by defendant which raises new matter which, assuming the allegations of the petition to be true, constitutes a defense to the action which will have the effect of defeating the plaintiff's suit on the merits.	Does an affirmative defense constitute a defense to the action?
5854	State v. Metz, 671 N.Y.S.2d 79, 83 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dept. 1998)	2	Generally, function of motion in limine is to permit party to obtain preliminary order before or during trial excluding introduction of anticipated inadmissible, immaterial, or prejudicial evidence or limiting its use; purpose of motion is to prevent introduction of such evidence to trier of fact, in most instances a jury.	Generally, the function of a motion in limine is to permit a party to obtain a preliminary order before or during trial excluding the introduction of anticipated inadmissible, immaterial, or prejudicial evidence or limiting its use. Its purpose is to prevent the introduction of such evidence to the trier of fact, in most instances a jury.	Does a motion in limine challenge evidence which is claimed to be immaterial or request a limitation on the use of such evidence?

5855	Hughes v. State, 154 Neb. 86, 86 (1951)	1	No force on part of the defendant, or resistance on the part of the female, was essential to constitute crime of assault with intent to commit rape, where it was alleged and proved that female was under the statutory age of consent and that defendant was at least 18 years old. R.R.S.1943, S 28-408.	No force on the part of the defendant, or resistance on the part of the female, is essential to constitute the crime of rape, or of an assault with intent to commit that offense, when it is alleged and proved that the female is under the statutory age of consent and the defendant is at least 18 years old.	Is force and resistance essential to constitute rape?
5859	In re Weinberger's Estate, 203 Neb. 674, 674 (1979)	2	Cause of action in contract accrues at time of breach or failure to do thing agreed to, irrespective of any knowledge on part of plaintiff or of any actual injury occasioned him, but not until then.	A cause of action in contract accrues at the time of the breach or failure to do the thing agreed to irrespective of any knowledge on the part of the plaintiff of any actual injury occasioned him, but not until then.	Does cause of action in contract accrue at a time of breach or failure to do thing agreed to?
5860	Estate of Riedel by Mirick v. Life Care Ret. Communities, 505 N.W.2d 78, 81 (Minn. Ct. App. 1993)	2	Generally, cause of action accrues when party may bring suit without dismissal for failure to state claim.	Generally, a cause of action accrues when a party may bring suit without dismissal for failure to state a claim.	Does cause of action accrue when party may bring suit without dismissal for failure to state claim?
5862	Lang v. Shell Petroleum Corp., 141 S.W.2d 667, 671 (Tex. Civ. App. 1939)	6	In determining whether a plaintiff is barred by "laches," it is important to consider the nature of the right asserted, the character of the relief sought, and the nature of the proceedings resorted to.	In determining whether plaintiff is barred by laches, it is important to consider the nature of the right asserted, and the character of the relief sought, and, as has been said, the nature of the proceedings resorted to.	"In determining whether a plaintiff is barred by laches, is it important to consider the nature of the right asserted?"
5863	Moore v. Ferrellgas, 533 F. Supp. 2d 740, 745 (W.D. Mich. 2008)	6	Only generally applicable state-law contract defenses such as fraud, forgery, duress, mistake, lack of consideration or mutual obligation, and unconscionability are available to plaintiff seeking to invalidate arbitration agreement. 9 U.S.C.A. S 2.	Thus, generally applicable state-law contract defenses like fraud, forgery, duress, mistake, lack of consideration or mutual obligation, or unconscionability, may invalidate arbitration agreements.	Can lack of consideration invalidate an arbitration agreement?
5864	Nat'l Westminster Bank USA v. Century Healthcare Corp., 885 F. Supp. 601, 603 (S.D.N.Y. 1995)	2	Lender liability is predicated on unmistakable showing that subservient corporation in reality has no separate, independent existence of its own and was being used to further purposes of dominant corporation.	Lender liability is predicated on an unmistakable showing that the subservient corporation in reality has no separate, independent existence of its own and was being used to further the purposes of the dominant corporation.	"Is lender liability predicated on unmistakable showing that subservient corporation in reality has no separate, independent existence of its own?"
5865	Plummer v. Univ. of Houston, 860 F.3d 767, 777 (5th Cir. 2017)	1	It is not the role of the federal courts to set aside decisions of school administrators which the court may view as lacking in wisdom or compassion.	As we noted at the outset, the Supreme Court has admonished that "[i]t is not the role of the federal courts to set aside decisions of school administrators which the court may view as lacking in wisdom or compassion."	Is it the role of the federal courts to set aside decisions of school administrators which it views as lacking in wisdom or compassion?

5866	Cunningham v. Lenape Reg'l High Dist. Bd. of Educ., 492 F. Supp. 2d 439, 450 (D.N.J. 2007)	19	In the educational context, courts, especially federal ones, are not the appropriate forum for resolving daily conflicts arising from the operation of school systems.	In the educational context, courts- especially federal ones -are not the appropriate forum for resolving daily conflicts arising from the operation of school systems.	"In the educational context, are federal courts the appropriate forum for resolving daily conflicts arising from the operation of school systems?"
5867	Kehoe v. Brunswick City Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ., 24 Ohio App. 3d 51, 52 (1983)	1	Individual who held required provisional teaching certificates and whose duties included instructing handicapped students fit clearly within statutory definition of teacher. R.C. S 3319.09(A).	Kehoe holds the required provisional teaching certificates. Her duties include instructing handicapped students. Thus, she clearly fits within the statutory definition of a teacher.	Does an individual who holds the required provisional teaching certificates fit within the statutory definition of teacher?
5868	Escambia River Elec. Co-op. v. Florida Pub. Serv. Comm'n, 421 So. 2d 1384, 1384-85 (Fla. 1982)	1	When no factual or equitable distinction exists in favor of either utility, territorial dispute is properly resolved in favor of privately owned utility.	when no "factual or equitable distinction exists in favor of either utility ... the territorial dispute is properly resolved in favor of the privately owned utility."	Is a territorial dispute between two utilities resolved in favor of a privately owned utility when no factual or equitable distinction exists in favor of either utility?
5870	Kansas City Downtown Minority Dev. Corp. v. Corrigan Assocs. Ltd. P'ship, 868 S.W.2d 210, 223 (Mo. Ct. App. 1994)	14	Party seeking subrogation must prove by clear and convincing evidence that equity requires another party to bear loss.	A party seeking subrogation must prove by clear and convincing evidence that equity requires another party to bear the loss.	Should the party seeking subrogation prove by clear and convincing evidence that equity requires another party to bear loss?
5871	Christy Hill Builders v. Hall, 184 Conn. 575, 577, 439 A.2d 1065, 1066 (1981)	1	Where legal relief is sought relative to doing of any act, action stands or falls by facts and governing law existing at time of bringing suit.	When legal relief is sought relative to the doing of any act, the action stands or falls by the facts and governing law existing at the time of bringing suit.	Does an action stand or fall by facts and governing law existing at time of bringing suit?
5876	Dallavalle v. Berry Grant Co., 462 S.W.2d 175, 178 (Mo. App. 1970)	3	Test to determine whether voluntary dismissal of appeal without prejudice should be permitted is to inquire whether by so dismissing party would gain some undue advantage or would cause other party to lose some right of defense. Section 506.010 RSMo 1969, V.A.M.S.; V.A.M.R. Civil Rules 41.01, 41.02, 67.01.	In McClellan, supra, it was held that while the right to a voluntary dismissal without prejudice is not absolute, the right to so dismiss has been well established and recognized throughout all of our procedure. The test to determine whether such a dismissal should be permitted is to inquire whether by so dismissing a party would gain some undue advantage or would cause the other party to lose some right of defense.	Is the test for determining the propriety of a voluntary dismissal whether or not the party opposing the dismissal would be substantially prejudiced by the dismissal?
5878	Citizens State Bank v. Raven Trading Partners, 786 N.W.2d 274, 285 (Minn. 2010)	14	A party seeking equitable subrogation has the burden of establishing that equities weigh in the party's favor, which also requires that no injury to innocent third parties will result if subrogation is applied; there is no injury to a party if the party's position remains unchanged or the party received that for which the party bargained.	In Minnesota, a party seeking equitable subrogation has the burden of establishing that equities weigh in the party's favor, which also requires that no injury to innocent third parties will result if subrogation is applied. See Peterson, 261 N.W.2d at 348. There is no injury to a party if the party's position remains unchanged or the party received that for which the party bargained.	Does a party seeking equitable subrogation have the burden of establishing that equities weigh in the party's favor?

5881	Great W. Bank v. Terio, 606 N.Y.S.2d 903, 904 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dept. 1994)	2	Application for voluntary discontinuance should be granted absent special circumstances such as particular prejudice to defendant or other improper consequences. McKinney's CPLR 3217(b).	In the absence of special circumstances, such as particular prejudice to the defendant or other improper consequences, an application for a voluntary discontinuance should be granted (see, CPLR 3217[b]; Tucker v. Tucker, supra; Matter of Commissioner of Franklin County Dept. of Social Servs. [Carla L.] v. Terry "M.", 178 A.D.2d 881, 577 N.Y.S.2d 735; State of New York v. Hubbard, 126 A.D.2d 717, 718, 511 N.Y.S.2d 314; County of Westchester v. Becket Assoc., 102 A.D.2d 34, 49, 478 N.Y.S.2d 305, aff'd, 66 N.Y.2d 642, 495 N.Y.S.2d 364, 485 N.E.2d 1029).	Should an application for voluntary discontinuance be granted absent special circumstances such as a particular prejudice to a defendant or other improper consequences?
5882	Burnham Serv. Corp. v. Natl. Council on Compens. Ins., Inc., 732 N.Y.S.2d 223, 224–25 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dept. 2001)	1	While determination upon motion for voluntary discontinuance is generally within sound discretion of the court, party ordinarily cannot be compelled to litigate and, absent special circumstances, such as prejudice to adverse parties, discontinuance should be granted. McKinney's CPLR 3217(b).	CPLR 3217(b) authorizes a court to grant a motion for voluntary discontinuance "upon terms and conditions, as the court deems proper." While the determination upon such an application is generally within the sound discretion of the court (see, Tucker v. Tucker, 55 N.Y.2d 378, 383, 449 N.Y.S.2d 683, 434 N.E.2d 1050), a party ordinarily cannot be compelled to litigate and, absent special circumstances, such as prejudice to adverse parties, a discontinuance should be granted (see, Tucker v. Tucker, supra, at 383, 449 N.Y.S.2d 683, 434 N.E.2d 1050; Christenson v. Gutman, 249 A.D.2d 805, 806, 671 N.Y.S.2d 835).	Should an application for voluntary discontinuance be granted absent special circumstances such as a particular prejudice to a defendant or other improper consequences?
5883	Jindra v. Diederich Flooring, 181 Wis. 2d 579, 599, 511 N.W.2d 855, 861 (1994)	4	Party seeking to impose subrogation upon another party has burden of showing both that there would be some basis for asserting subrogation in that instance, and that subrogation must be applied in equity in those circumstances. (Per Day, J., with two Justices concurring and two Justices concurring in result.)	The same rule and burden of proof apply when a party seeks to impose subrogation. The party seeking to impose subrogation has the burden of showing both (a) that there would be some basis for asserting subrogation in that instance, and, (b) that subrogation must be applied in equity in those circumstances.	Should a party seeking to impose subrogation upon another party have burden of showing both that there was a basis for asserting subrogation in that instance?
5885	DeLong v. Hampton Envelope Co., 149 S.W.3d 549, 556 (Mo. Ct. App. 2004)	12	Workers' compensation serves a dual role in that it provides employees with treatment for work-related injuries and protects employers from multiple lawsuits by employees and imposes monetary restrictions on awards.	Worker's compensation serves a dual role in that it provides employees with treatment for work-related injuries and protects employers from multiple lawsuits by employees and imposes monetary restrictions on awards.	Does workers' compensation provide employees with treatment for work-related injuries?

5886	First Nat. Bank of Lafayette v. Gaddis, 250 So. 2d 504, 510 (La. Ct. App. 1971)	10	Promissory note payable to bearer and secured by mortgage may be transferred by mere delivery and authentic evidence of endorsement or transfer of note is not necessary to enable holder to foreclose by executory process. LSA-R.S. 7:9, 7:30; LSA-C.C.P. art. 2635.	Our law is settled that a promissory note payable to bearer and secured by a mortgage, may be transferred by mere delivery, and authentic evidence of the endorsement or transfer of the note is not necessary to enable the holder to foreclose by executory process.	Is a promissory note payable to bearer and secured by a mortgage transferrable?
5888	Banking Comm'n v. Townsend, 243 Wis. 329, 331, 10 N.W.2d 110, 111 (1943)	3	Marginal notations placed on a note at the time of the execution thereof with the intention of making them a part of the contract constitute a part of the contract and must be construed with the body of the instrument to arrive at the true intention of the parties.	It is a rule of general application that marginal notations placed on a bill or a note at the time of the execution thereof with the intention of making them a part of the contract, constitute a part of the contract and must be construed with the body of the instrument to arrive at the true agreement existing between the parties.	Are marginal notations on a note construed with the body of the instrument?
5889	Barlow & Haun v. United States, 118 Fed. Cl. 597, 616 (2014)	17	A claim that the application of government regulations effects a taking of a property interest is not ripe until the government entity charged with implementing the regulations has reached a final decision regarding the application of the regulations to the property at issue. U.S.C.A. Const. Amend 5.	"[A] claim that the application of government regulations effects a taking of a property interest is not ripe until the government entity charged with implementing the regulations has reached a final decision regarding the application of the regulations to the property at issue."	"Where a land owner has not yet obtained a final decision regarding application of a land regulation to the particular property in question, is the claim ripe for review?"
5890	Koll v. Stanton-Pilger Drainage Dist., 207 Neb. 425, 426 (1980)	2	Right of plaintiff to dismiss action without prejudice at any time before final submission is statutory right and not a matter of judicial grace or discretion. Neb.Rev.St. S 25-601.	It is well settled in Nebraska that a plaintiff may dismiss his action without prejudice as a matter of right at any time before final submission. It is a statutory right and not a matter of judicial grace or discretion.	Is the right of a plaintiff to dismiss an action without prejudice as a matter of right at any time before final submission a statutory right?
5892	Sutherland v. Shoemaker, 6 Neb. App. 157, 160 (1997)	2	Plaintiff may dismiss his action without prejudice as matter of right at any time before final submission; it is a statutory right and not a matter of judicial grace or discretion. Neb.Rev.St. S 25-601.	Additionally, "[i]t is well settled in Nebraska that a plaintiff may dismiss his action without prejudice as a matter of right at any time before final submission. It is a statutory right and not a matter of judicial grace or discretion."	Can a plaintiff dismiss his action without prejudice as a matter of right at any time before final submission?
5894	Washington Fruit & Produce Co. v. City of Yakima, 100 P.2d 8, 12 (Wash. 1940)	3	Where a city undertakes to supply a public need, and to that end purchases the necessary service from a utility, the city is regarded as merely authorizing the use of the streets as an incident to the delivery of service to itself, and not as granting the utility a "franchise" to use the streets for general business purposes.	When, however, a city undertakes, as in this instance, to supply a public need, and to that end purchases the necessary service from the utility, the city is to be regarded as merely authorizing the use of the streets as an incident to the delivery of service to itself, and not as granting a franchise to use the streets for general business purposes.	What is a franchise of a public utility?

5895	Vine St. Com. Partn. v. City of Marysville, 989 P.2d 1238, 1242 (Wash. App. Div. 1 1999)	6	Property owners who petition for the formation of a utility local improvement district (ULID), whose properties are then assessed for the special benefits thereby accruing, and who subsequently pay their assessments in full, are entitled to receive the special benefits for which they have paid.	We conclude that property owners who petition for the formation of a ULID, whose properties are then assessed for the special benefits thereby accruing, and who subsequently pay their assessments in full, are entitled to receive the special benefits for which they have paid.	"Can property owners, after paying the assessments on their properties providing special benefits, obtain a right to receive the special benefits for which they have paid?"
5896	Gore v. Alltel Commc'ns, 666 F.3d 1027, 1036 (7th Cir. 2012)	18	Whether a particular claim is arbitrable depends not upon the characterization of the claim, but upon the relationship of the claim to the subject matter of the arbitration clause; were the rule otherwise, a party could frustrate any agreement to arbitrate simply by the manner in which it framed its claims.	As we have made clear in the past, "Whether a particular claim is arbitrable depends not upon the characterization of the claim, but upon the relationship of the claim to the subject matter of the arbitration clause. Were the rule otherwise, a party could frustrate any agreement to arbitrate simply by the manner in which it framed its claims."	Does the arbitrability of a claim depend upon the characterization of the claim?
5897	Addison v. Reece, 263 Ga. 631, 633, 436 S.E.2d 663, 665 (1993)	3	Trial court has broad discretion in addressing issue of untimely submitted, proposed pretrial order. Uniform Superior Court Rule 7.1.	Under Uniform Superior Court Rule 7.1, however, the trial court has broad discretion in addressing the issue of an untimely submitted proposed pre-trial order.	Does the trial court have broad discretion in addressing the issue of an untimely submitted proposed pretrial order?
5898	Universal Underwriters Ins. Co. v. Super. Ct. for Los Angeles Cnty., 58 Cal. Rptr. 870, 874 (Cal. App. 2d Dist. 1967)	8	Principal purposes of pretrial are to find out what lawsuit is about, to simplify and define issues to be litigated, and to determine how trial may proceed most expeditiously; and another purpose is to give notice of matters not necessarily revealed by pleadings where such matters may be issues in case. Cal. Rules of Court, rules 210, 216; West's Ann.Code Civ.Proc. SS 473, 2030.	As the court said in Pulse v. Hill, 217 Cal.App.2d 301, 304, 31 Cal.Rptr. 765, 767, 'The principal purposes of pretrial are to find out what the lawsuit is about, to simplify and define the issues to be litigated, and to determine how the trial may proceed most expeditiously. It is also to give notice of matters not necessarily revealed by the pleadings where such matters may be issues in the case.'	What are the principal purposes of pretrial?
5899	Whitaker v. Beasley, 136 S.E.2d 127, 128 (N.C. 1964)	1	Purpose of pre-trial conference is to consider specifics mentioned in the statute, e.g., motions to amend pleadings, issues, reference, admissions, judicial notice, and other matters which may aid in disposition of the cause. G.S. S 1-169.1.	A pre-trial conference under G.S. s 1-169.1 is just what the name implies. Its purpose is to consider specifics mentioned in the statute; among them, motions to amend pleadings, issues, reference, admissions, judicial notice, and other matters which may aid in the disposition of the cause.	What is the purpose of pre-trial conference?

5902	Rumph v. State, 248 So. 2d 526, 529 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1971)	1	When a person is charged with breaking and entering with intent to commit grand larceny, and essential element of that offense is his intent at time of his breaking and entering to commit grand larceny, that is, to steal property of the value of $100 or more, which element must be proven at the trial; while, in absence of other evidence or circumstances the best evidence of his intent is what he did steal, nevertheless, his intent may be proven by such other evidence or circumstances.	When a person is charged with breaking and entering with intent to commit grand larceny, an essential element of that offense is his intent at the time of his breaking and entering to commit grand larceny (that is, to steal property of the value of $100 or more), which element must be proven at the trial. While, in the absence of 'other evidence or circumstances,' the best evidence of his intent is what he did steal, nevertheless, his said intent may be proven by such other evidence or circumstances.	How can breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny be proven?
5903	Baldwin v. Klanke, 877 S.W.2d 879, 881 (Tex. App.--Hous. [1st Dist.] 1994)	1	Granting of nonsuit is merely ministerial; plaintiff's right to nonsuit of its own action exists at moment motion is filed or oral motion is made in open court. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 162.	The granting of a non-suit is merely ministerial; a plaintiff's right to a non-suit of its own action exists at the moment a motion is filed or an oral motion is made in open court.	Is granting of nonsuit merely ministerial and a plaintiff's right to nonsuit of its own action exists at the moment the motion is filed?
5904	Knightstown Banner v. Town of Knightstown, 882 N.E.2d 270, 274 (Ind. Ct. App. 2008)	3	Voluntary dismissals should generally be allowed unless the defendant will suffer legal prejudice, other than the mere prospect of a second lawsuit. Trial Procedure Rule 41(A)(2).	"Generally, dismissals should be allowed unless the defendant will suffer some legal prejudice other than the mere prospect of a second lawsuit."	"Should voluntary dismissals generally be allowed unless the defendant will suffer legal prejudice, other than the mere prospect of a second lawsuit?"
5906	All Weather Storm Windows v. Zahn, 112 A.2d 496, 497 (D.C. 1955)	1	Pretrial procedure contemplates that a fair disclosure shall be made at pretrial conference in order to remove cases from realm of surprise, and, generally, a party is bound by pretrial stipulations, but rigid adherence to pretrial order should not always be exacted.	Pre-trial procedure contemplates that a fair disclosure shall be made at pre-trial conference in order to remove cases from the realm of surprise, 1 and generally a party is bound by pre- trial stipulations. 2 However , rigid adherence to the pre-trial order should not always be exacted.	Does the rule governing pretrial order contemplate or require rigid adherence to the pretrial order?
5907	Helman v. Mendelson, 138 Md. App. 29, 47 (2001)	8	Good faith compliance with scheduling orders is important to the administration of the judicial system and providing all litigants with fair and timely resolution of court disputes.	On the other hand, good faith compliance with scheduling orders is important to the administration of the judicial system and providing all litigants with fair and timely resolution of court disputes.	Is good faith compliance with scheduling orders important to the administration of the judicial system?
5909	Baumann v. Snider, 243 Ga. App. 526, 528-29, 532 S.E.2d 468, 473 (2000)	15	Failure of a party to raise an issue in the pretrial order is not controlling where evidence is introduced on the issue without objection, the opposing party is not surprised, and the issue is litigated; in this instance, the pretrial order is deemed modified to conform to the evidence that is admitted. O.C.G.A. S 9-11-16(b).	Failure of a party to raise an issue in the pretrial order is not controlling where evidence is introduced on the *529 issue without objection, the opposing party is not surprised, and the issue is litigated. 15 Rather, the pretrial order is deemed modified to conform to the evidence that is admitted. 16 12 OCGA 9-11-16(b).	Is a failure of a party to raise an issue in the pretrial order controlling where evidence is introduced on the issue without objection?

5910	DiBiase v. Universal Design & Builders, 473 A.2d 875, 877 (Me. 1984)	1	Rule that when issues not raised by pleadings are tried by implied consent of parties, they shall be treated in all respects as if they had been raised in pleadings generally obtains even when the issue is omitted from pretrial order. Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 15(b), 16(a)(3)(H).	15(b) provides that "[w]hen issues not raised by the pleadings are tried by ... implied consent of the parties, they shall be treated in all respects as if they had been raised in the pleadings." This rule generally obtains even where the issue is omitted from a pre-trial order.	"When issues not raised by pleadings are tried by implied consent of parties, will they be treated in all respects as if they had been raised in the pleadings?"
5911	Zavoral v. P. Intermountain Exp., 146 N.W.2d 796, 799 (Neb. 1966)	2	Generally, the effect of a pretrial order is to control subsequent course of the action, and unless order is modified at trial to prevent manifest injustice, court may exclude evidence on issues not stated in pretrial order, and such issues need not be submitted to jury.	Generally, the effect of a pretrial order is to control the subsequent course of the action, and unless the order is modified at the trial to prevent a manifest injustice, the court may exclude evidenc on issues not stated in the pretrial order, and such issues need not be submitted to the jury.	What is the effect of a pretrial order?
5912	Highlands Underwriters Ins. Co. v. Foley, 96-1018 (La. App. 1 Cir. 3/27/97), 691 So. 2d 1336, 1339	2	Orderly disposition of each case and avoidance of surprise are inherent in theory of pretrial procedure and are sufficient reasons for allowing trial judge to require adherence to pretrial order in conduct of action.	An orderly disposition of each case and avoidance of surprise are inherent in the theory of pre-trial procedure and are sufficient reasons for allowing a trial judge to require adherence to pre-trial order in conduct of an action.	Is orderly disposition of each case inherent in a theory of pretrial procedure?
5914	Gunby v. Yates, 214 Ga. 17, 19 (1958)	2	Generally, a fee prescribed for a public officer is not a "tax" but compensation for particular services, unless object and purpose of charge is to provide general revenue rather than compensation for services rendered.	As a general rule, fees prescribed for public officers are not taxes but 551 compensation for particular services, unless the object and purpose of the charge is to provide general revenue rather than compensation for services rendered.	Is charge a tax if the object and purpose of such charge is to provide compensation for services rendered?
5915	In re George, 361 F.3d 1157, 1160 (9th Cir. 2004)	4	"Tax" is a pecuniary burden laid upon individuals or property for the purpose of supporting the government, as distinguished from a "penalty," which is an exaction imposed by statute as punishment for an unlawful act.	"[A] tax is a pecuniary burden laid upon individuals or property for the purpose of supporting the Government," as distinguished from a penalty, which is "an exaction imposed by statute as punishment for an unlawful act."	Is penalty an exaction imposed by statute as punishment for an unlawful act?
5916	Jones v. Herbert Equities, 60 N.Y.S.2d 88, 89 (N.Y. App. Term. 1946)	2	Where facts clearly bring case within Workmen's Compensation Law, the employer as well as employee is entitled to the benefits of the law. Workmen's Compensation Law, S 1 et seq.	It is recognized that where the facts clearly bring the case within the purview of the Workmen's Compensation Law, the employer as well as the employee is entitled to the benefit of the statute.	Are the employer and employee entitled to the benefits of the workmens compensation laws where the facts clearly bring the case within it?
5918	Thomas v. United States, 122 Fed. Cl. 53, 68 (2015)	9	Plaintiff bears the burden of overcoming the strong, but rebuttable, presumption that the military discharges its duties correctly, lawfully, and in good faith.	The plaintiff bears the burden of overcoming the " 'strong, but rebuttable, presumption' that the military discharges its duties 'correctly, lawfully, and in good faith.' "	"Who bears the burden of overcoming the presumption that the military discharges its duties correctly, lawfully, and in good faith?"

5921	Grand Valley Ridge, LLC v. Metro. Nat. Bank, 2012 Ark. 121, 12, 388 S.W.3d 24, 32 (2012)	6	In cases where a party is relegated to having to prove his claim by documents, papers, and letters kept by the opposing party, the scope of discovery with respect to such materials should be broad.	In cases where the appellant is relegated to having to prove his claim by documents, papers, and letters kept by the appellee, the scope of discovery should be broader.	"In cases where a party is relegated to having to prove his claim by documents, papers, and letters kept by the opposing party, should the scope of discovery with respect to such materials be broad?"
5922	Brown v. Super. Ct. In and For Butte Cnty., 32 Cal. Rptr. 527, 534 (Cal. App. 3d Dist. 1963)	8	Means by which plaintiff may share defendant's knowledge of case are by taking his deposition, by requests for admissions and by interrogatories, and documents in defendant's possession may be inspected. West's Ann.Code Civ.Proc. SS 1881, subd. 2, 2016-2034, 2036.	The means by which plaintiff may share defendant's knowledge of the case is by taking his deposition by requests for admissions and by interrogatories. Documents in defendant's possession may be inspected.	What are the means by which the plaintiff may share defendant's knowledge of case and documents in defendant's possession be inspected?
5926	K. King & G. Shuler Corp. v. King, 66 Cal. Rptr. 330, 337 (Cal. App. 2d Dist. 1968)	6	Issues set forth in pre-trial conference order supersede those raised by pleadings and control subsequent course of trial.	Issues set forth in a pretrial conference order supersede those raised by the pleadings and control the subsequent course of trial.	Do issues set forth in pre-trial conference order supersede those raised by pleadings and control subsequent course of trial?
5927	2nd Roc-Jersey Associates v. Town of Morristown, 158 N.J. 581, 592 (N.J. 1999)	4	Traditionally, differences between assessment and tax include: assessment supports local improvements, while tax finances general operations; assessment is one-time charge, while tax is annual; and assessment requires that benefit be direct, while tax requires no such direct benefit.	Traditionally, the differences between an assessment and a tax include: an assessment supports local improvements, while a tax finances general operations; an assessment is a one-time charge, while a tax is annual; and an assessment requires that the benefit be direct, while a tax requires no such direct benefit.	"Does assessment support local improvements, while tax finances general operations?"
5928	Beattie v. E. China Charter Twp., 157 Mich. App. 27, 33, 403 N.W.2d 490, 492-93 (1987)	1	Taxes levied or exemptions created under state's police powers do not fall within realm of property tax laws, and are thus not within jurisdiction of Tax Tribunal. M.C.L.A. S 205.731.	Taxes levied (or exemptions created) 2, under the state's police powers do not fall within the realm of property tax 493 laws and are thus not within the jurisdiction of the Tax Tribunal:	"Are taxes levied or exemptions created under state's police powers, within the jurisdiction of a Tax Tribunal?"
5929	In re Olde Florida Investments, Ltd., 272 B.R. 779, 783 (M.D. Fla. 2001)	5	Under Florida law, a "tax" is an enforced burden of contribution imposed by sovereign right for the support of the government, the administration of the law, and to execute the various functions the sovereign is called on to perform.	In Klemm, the Florida Supreme Court stated: A "tax" is an enforced burden of contribution imposed by sovereign right for the support of the government, the administration of the law, and to execute the various functions the sovereign is called on to perform.	Is tax imposed to execute various functions a sovereign is called on to perform?

5933	United States v. Allen, 10 F.3d 405, 411 (7th Cir. 1993)	1	Extortion under color of official right and bribery are really different sides of the same coin; extortion under color of official right equals the knowing receipt of bribes and it is extortion if the official knows that the bribe is motivated by a hope that it will influence him in the exercise of his office and if, knowing that, he accepts the bribe.	As the law has evolved, extortion "under color of official right" and bribery are really different sides of the same coin. "Extortion 'under color of official right' equals the knowing receipt of bribes.... [I]t is extortion if the official knows that the bribe ... is motivated by a hope that it will influence him in the exercise of his office and if, knowing this, he accepts the bribe.	How does extortion under color of official right and bribery differ?
5935	United States v. Jefferson, 674 F.3d 332, 358 (4th Cir. 2012)	4	Federal bribery statute requires proof of a quid pro quo, i.e., an intent on the part of the public official to perform acts on his payor's behalf. 18 U.S.C.A. § 201.	The bribery statute, however, requires proof of a quid pro quo, that is, an intent on the part of the public official to perform acts on his payor's behalf.	"For purpose of bribery, is quid pro quo established when a public official performs acts on his payor's behalf?"
5936	Martin v. Yeoham, Partnership, 419 S.W.2d 937, 951 (Mo. App. 1967)	16	Where one partner commits a willful and malicious tort not within scope of agency or common business of the partnership, to which other members have not consented and which has not been ratified, they are not liable for harm caused thereby.	The same authority further states, 'Accordingly, where one partner commits a willful and malicious tort not within the scope of the agency or the common business of the partnership, to which the other members have not consented, and which has not been ratified, they are not liable for harm thereby caused.	Will the partnership be liable for the willful tort of one partner?
5937	Livingston v. Stewart & Co., 194 Md. 155, 159 (1949)	3	A general characterization that an act or omission is negligent or a condition is unsafe is not usually a sufficient statement of supposed ground of liability. Code 1939, art. 75, §§ 2, 28(36-38).	And 'the general characterization of an act or omission as negligent, or of a condition as unsafe is not usually a sufficient statement of the supposed ground of liability.' Phelps v. Howard County, 117 Md. 175, 177, 82 A.	"Is the general characterization of an act or omission as negligent, or of a condition as unsafe, a sufficient statement of the supposed ground of liability?"
5938	Peart v. Superior Court In & For Mohave Cty., 6 Ariz. App. 6, 8 (1967)	3	Although it is true that rules regarding pretrial conferences contemplate that order be reduced to writing and signed by judge, those matters which are set forth in minutes are binding as pretrial order notwithstanding lack of formality and strict compliance with all terms and provisions of pretrial conference rules. 16 A.R.S. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 16; 17 A.R.S. Uniform Rules of Practice of the Superior Court, rule VI.	While it is true that the rule contemplates that the order be reduced to writing and signed by the Judge, we hold that those matters which are set forth in the minutes are binding as a pre-trial order notwithstanding the lack of formality and strict compliance with all of the terms and provisions of the two rules relating to pre-trial conferences.	"In absence of proper pretrial order, are minutes entered with respect to pretrial binding?"

5939	Laitenberger v. State, 57 N.Y.S.2d 418, 421 (Ct. Cl. 1945)	2	The right of inspection under section 296 contemplates production of books and papers, the examination of witnesses in connection with them to show that books contain relevant entries, and then inspection of such entries preparatory to offering them in evidence, as distinguished from right of inspection under section 324, which is a general right. Civil Practice Act, SS 296, 324.	The inspection under Section 296 apparently has been held to be a limited one, contemplating the production of books and papers, the examination of witnesses in connection with them to show that the books contain relevant entries, and then the inspection of such entries preparatory to offering them in evidence; while the inspection under Section 324 has been held to be a general one. Zeltner v. Fidelity & Deposit Co.	What is the difference between sections 296 and 324 of the Civil Practice Act?
5941	Butts ex rel. Iverson v. Evangelical Lutheran Good Samaritan Soc., 802 N.W.2d 839, 842 (Minn. Ct. App. 2011)	4	A voluntary dismissal that strips a defendant of a defense that would otherwise be available may be sufficiently prejudicial to justify denial. 48 M.S.A., Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41.01(b).	Nevertheless, "a voluntary dismissal that strips a defendant of a defense that would otherwise be available may be sufficiently prejudicial to justify denial." Id.	Must a voluntary dismissal that strips a defendant of a defense that would otherwise be available be sufficiently prejudicial to justify denial?
5942	Milton Meyer & Co. v. Curro, 48 Cal. Rptr. 812, 814–15 (Cal. App. 1st Dist. 1966)	5	When filed, pretrial conference order, unless modified at or before trial, supersedes issues raised by pleadings and controls subsequent course of case.	'It is settled that, when filed, a pretrial conference order, unless modified at or before trial, supersedes the issues raised by the pleadings and controls the subsequent course of the case.	Does a pre-trial conference order setting out issues supersede issues raised by pleadings and controls subsequent course of case?
5943	DeNardo v. Calista Corp., 111 P.3d 326, 332 (Alaska 2005)	7	A stipulation to dismiss claims with prejudice is sufficient for res judicata purposes; a stipulation to dismiss claims with prejudice is just as valid as a final judgment resulting from a trial on the merits, and is res judicata as to all issues that were raised or could have been determined under the pleadings.	[A] stipulation to dismiss claims with prejudice is sufficient for res judicata purposes: "[A] stipulation [to dismiss claims with prejudice] is just as valid as a final judgment resulting from a trial on the merits, and is res judicata as to all issues that were raised or could have been determined under the pleadings."	"Does a stipulated dismissal with prejudice, entered before trial, act as a final judgment just as if the parties had proceeded to trial?"
5944	Alvarado v. Hyundai Motor Co., 885 S.W.2d 167, 174 (Tex. App. 1994)	8	Nonsuit or dismissal is not adjudication of rights of parties but merely places them in position they were in as if suit had never been filed; moreover, once case is dismissed voluntarily, no further action may be had in that case, and any further action must be taken by instituting suit de novo unless trial court grants motion to reinstate. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 162.	The nonsuit or dismissal is not an adjudication of the rights of the parties but merely places them in the position they were in as if suit had never been filed. Crofts v. Court of Civil Appeals, 362 S.W.2d 101, 103 (Tex.1962); Ashpole v. Millard, 778 S.W.2d 169, 171 (Tex.App.-Houston [1st Dist.] 1989, orig. proceeding). Moreover, once the case is dismissed voluntarily, no further action may be had in that case, 9 and any further action must be taken by instituting a suit de novo unless the trial court grants a motion to reinstate.	"Once a case is dismissed voluntarily, can further action be in a case by instituting suit de novo?"

5946	Ramirez v. Noble Energy, 521 S.W.3d 851, 861 (Tex. App. 2017)	15	Ordinarily, the party seeking withdrawal of deemed admissions bears the burden of establishing the following requirements: that good cause exists for the withdrawal, that the withdrawal will not unduly prejudice the party relying upon the deemed admissions, and that withdrawal will serve the presentation of the merits. Tex. R. Civ. P. 198.3.	Ordinarily, the party seeking withdrawal of deemed admissions bears the burden of establishing the requirements of Rule 198.3: that good cause exists for the withdrawal, that the withdrawal will not unduly prejudice the party relying upon the deemed admissions, and that withdrawal will serve the presentation of the merits. TEX. R. CIV. P. 198.3; Boulet, 189 S.W.3d at 836 ("The party seeking withdrawal of deemed admissions has the burden to establish good cause.").	Is the burden on the party opposing withdrawal of an admission to satisfy the court that it would be prejudiced by the amendment?
5947	State ex rel. Pulliam v. Reine, 108 S.W.3d 148, 155 (Mo. Ct. App. 2003)	7	A plaintiff's voluntary dismissal of his or her cause is effective as of the date it is filed, and after a case is dismissed, the trial court may take no further action and any step attempted is viewed as a nullity. V.A.M.R. 67.02(a).	"[A] plaintiff's voluntary dismissal of his or her cause under Rule 67.02(a) is effective as of the date it is filed, and 'after a case is dismissed, the trial court may take no further action and any step attempted is viewed as a nullity.' "	Is a voluntary dismissal of a plaintiff's action effective on the date it is filed?
5949	Lewis v. Indus. Comm'n, 2 Ariz. App. 522, 526 (1966)	6	Industrial compensation is not based on good moral character of claimant but is founded on claim coming within scope of Workmen's Compensation Act. A.R.S. S 23-901 et seq.	Also, industrial compensation is not based on the good moral character of the claimant but is founded simply on an injury *121 1312 that is within the scope of the Workers' Compensation statutes.	"Is industrial compensation based on the good moral character of a claimant, or is it founded on a claim coming within the scope of the Workmens Compensation Act?"
5951	Tidwell v. Bank of Tifton, 115 Ga. App. 555, 556, 155 S.E.2d 451, 452 (1967)	2	Drawer of check has right to stop payment of it at any time before it has been certified or paid by drawee but drawer remains liable unless he has defense which is good against holder. Code, S 109A-3-306.	While the drawer of a check has the right to stop payment of it at any time before it has been certified or paid by the drawee, the drawer remains liable, unless he has a defense which is good against the holder.	"Does a drawer remain liable upon stop payment of a check, unless he has a defense which is good against the holder?"
5952	Allred v. Hinkley, 8 Utah 2d 73, 77, 328 P.2d 726, 728-29 (1958)	9	An agent whose employment is restricted to purchases for cash supplied by principal has, absent appearance of broader authority, no authority to bind principal's credit.	The contention that an agent whose employment is restricted to purchases for cash supplied by the principal, absent the appearance of broader authority, has no authority to bind the principal's credit, though 729 not disputed, 2 has no application to this case.	"Does an agent whose employment is restricted to purchases for cash supplied by the principal, have authority to bind principal's credit?"
5953	Taylor v. Fred Clark Felt Co., 567 S.W.2d 863, 866 (Tex. Civ. App. 1978)	4	In order to show himself entitled to summary judgment in suit on a promissory note in which defendant has made a general denial, plaintiff must establish that he is the present legal owner or holder of the note sued upon. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 166-A; V.T.C.A., Bus. & C. SS 1.201(20), 3.301.	In order to show himself entitled to summary judgment in a suit on a promissory note in which the defendant has made a general denial, the plaintiff must establish that he is the present legal owner or holder of the note sued upon.	What needs to be proved in order to obtain a summary judgment on a note?

5954	Barton v. Utah Transit Auth., 872 P.2d 1036, 1039 (Utah 1994)	6	Plaintiff who moves for voluntary dismissal receives just that which is sought: dismissal of his action and right to bring later suit on same cause of action, without adjudication of merits. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(a).	Indeed, a plaintiff who moves for voluntary dismissal receives just that which is sought- "the dismissal of his action and the right to bring a later suit on the same cause of action, without adjudication of the merits."	"Is dismissal of a plaintiff's action and right to bring a later suit on a same cause of action, without adjudication of merits?"
5955	Sec. Nat. Tr. v. Kalmbach, 613 So. 2d 664, 668 (La. Ct. App. 1993)	3	Even if matter is deemed to be admitted due to party's failure to answer, admission may later be withdrawn or amended. LSA-C.C.P. art. 1468.	However, even if a matter is deemed to be admitted due to a party's failure to answer, the admission may later be withdrawn or amended. LSA-C.C.P. Article 1468 provides: Any matter admitted under this rule is conclusively established unless the court on motion permits withdrawal or amendment of the admission.	Even if a matter is deemed to be admitted due to party's failure to answer could an admission later be withdrawn or amended?
5958	Martin v. Texas Dep't of Family & Protective Servs., 176 S.W.3d 390, 393 (Tex. App. 2004)	4	A trial court retains jurisdiction for 30 days after signing a final order of nonsuit to rule on pending motions. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 329b(d).	Thus, a trial court retains jurisdiction for 30 days after signing a final order of nonsuit to rule on pending motions. See TEX.R. CIV. P. 329b(d);	Does a trial court retain jurisdiction for 30 days after signing a final order of nonsuit to rule on pending motions?
5959	Matelski v. Matelski, 840 S.W.2d 124, 128 (Tex. App. 1992)	8	Where plaintiff is not injured and trial is not delayed, even slight excuse for original failure to answer request for admissions will suffice.	It has been held that where the plaintiff is not injured and the trial not delayed, even a slight excuse for the original failure to answer a request for admissions will suffice.	"When a plaintiff is not injured and trial not delayed, will even slight excuse for original failure to answer suffice to allow withdrawal of deemed admissions?"
5960	Jarecki Mfg. Co. v. Merriam, 104 Kan. 646, 180 P. 224, 225 (1919)	2	Court may grant motion to withdraw admissions when presentation of the merits will be subverted thereby and party obtaining admission fails to satisfy court that withdrawal will prejudice maintaining his action or defense on the merits. O.C.G.A. § 9-11-36(b).	194, 288 S.E.2d 198 (1982) (adopted Cielock special concurrence), a court may grant a motion to withdraw admissions "(1) when the presentation of the merits will be subverted thereby and (2) the party obtaining the admission fails to satisfy the court that the withdrawal will prejudice maintaining his action or defense on the merits.	"For purposes of motion to withdraw admissions, does the party moving to withdraw have the burden of showing that presentation of the merits will be subverted by withdrawal?"
5962	Bryant v. Cty. Council of Lake Cty., 720 N.E.2d 1, 6 (Ind. Ct. App. 1999)	9	When a motion seeking the withdrawal of admissions has been made, trial court must consider (1) whether the presentation of the merits will be subverted by permitting withdrawal, and (2) whether the party who obtained the admission will be prejudiced by withdrawal. Trial Procedure Rule 36.	When a motion seeking the withdrawal of admissions has been made, the trial court must consider 1) whether the presentation of the merits will be subverted by permitting withdrawal, and 2) whether the party who obtained the admission will be prejudiced by withdrawal.	Does the party who has obtained withdrawal of the admissions has the burden of demonstrating that it will be prejudiced if the trial court permits withdrawal?
5965	Kohl v. United States, 226 F.2d 381, 384 (7th Cir. 1955)	3	Direct taxes bear directly upon persons, upon their possession and enjoyment of rights, whereas indirect taxes are levied upon happening of an event, such as an exchange or transmission of property. U.S.C.A. Const. art. 1, § 2, 9.	Such taxes bear directly upon persons, upon their possession and enjoyment of rights, whereas indirect taxes are levied upon the happening of an event such as an exchange or transmission of property.	"Are indirect taxes levied upon happening of an event, such as an exchange or transmission of property?"

5967	Zoren v. Genesis Energy, L.P., 836 A.2d 521, 528 (Del. Ch. 2003)	6	A corporate general partner and its directors are entitled to the protections afforded corporate directors, including a presumption that their actions are protected from judicial oversight by the "business judgment rule"; the business judgment rule generally protects the actions of general partners, affording them a presumption that they acted on an informed basis and in the honest belief that they acted in the best interests of the partnership and the limited partners.	Nevertheless, the corporate general partner and its directors are entitled to the protections afforded corporate directors, including a presumption that their actions are protected from judicial oversight by the business judgment rule. "[T]he business judgment rule generally protects the actions of general partners, affording them a presumption that they acted on an informed basis and in the honest belief that they acted in the best interests of the partnership and the limited partners."	Does the business judgment rule protect the actions of the general partner?
5971	Smith v. Circle P Ranch Co., 150 Cal. Rptr. 828, 832 (Ct. App. 1978)	5	Where certain facts exist which responding party does not intend to contest at trial, proper time to admit and permit those facts to be established is during pretrial discovery; in the event, however, that defendant denies a request for admission submitted by plaintiff, he cannot be forced to admit fact prior to trial despite its obvious truth.	Where certain facts exist which the responding party does not intend to contest at trial, the proper time to admit and permit those facts to be established is during pretrial discovery. (Burke v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal.2d 276, 282, 78 Cal.Rptr. 481, 455 P.2d 409; Cembrook v. Superior Court, supra, 56 Cal.2d 423, 429, 15 Cal.Rptr. 127, 364 P.2d 303.) In the event, however, that the defendant denies a request for admission submitted by the plaintiff, he cannot be forced to admit the fact prior to trial despite its obvious truth.	Can a tort defendant be forced to admit a fact prior to trial despite its obvious truth and is the consequence for the failure to do so exposure to a costs of proof award?
5972	Sands v. State Through Louisiana State Med. Ctr., Sch. of Dentistry, 458 So. 2d 960, 961 (La. Ct. App. 1984)	5	A reasonably diligent client's having fired his lawyer for unpreparedness could be "good ground" for a continuance in the absence of counterbalancing circumstances. LSA-C.C.P. arts. 1601, 1602.	A reasonably diligent client's having fired his lawyer for unpreparedness could be "good" ground for a continuance in the absence of counterbalancing circumstances.	Can a reasonably diligent client's having fired his lawyer for unpreparedness be good ground for a continuance in the absence of counterbalancing circumstances?
5973	Payton v. Ashton, 29 S.W.3d 896, 898 (Tex. App. 2000)	1	Before one has an obligation to answer requests for admissions or before any inaction on the part of the individual can give rise to deemed admissions, it is axiomatic that the request for admissions be served. Vernon's Ann. Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 198.2(a).	[1] Yet, before one has an obligation to answer admissions or before any inaction on the part of the individual can give rise to deemed admissions, it is axiomatic that the requests for admissions be served. Indeed, Texas Rule of Civil Procedure 198.2(a) states as much.	"Before one has an obligation to answer admissions or before any inaction on the part of the individual can give rise to deemed admissions, should the requests for admissions be served?"

5974	Brougham Casket & Vault Co. v. DeLoach, 323 Ga. App. 701, 703-04 (2013)	2	Once requests for admission are deemed admitted, each of the matters addressed in the requests are conclusive as a matter of law on the matters stated and cannot be contradicted by other evidence unless the admissions are withdrawn or amended on formal motion. West's Ga.Code Ann. § 9-11-36(a)(2), (b).	Once the requests are deemed admitted, each of the matters addressed in the requests "are conclusive as a matter of law on the matters stated and cannot be contradicted by other evidence unless the admissions are withdrawn or amended on formal motion."	"Once requests for admission are deemed admitted, are each of the matters addressed in the requests conclusive as a matter of law on the matters stated?"
5976	Brodthmann v. Duke, 1998-1518 (La. App. 4 Cir. 3/21/01), 803 So. 2d 41 (2001)	2	Attorney fees awarded for party's failure to admit genuineness of document or truth of any matter would be the reasonable expense incurred in proving the truth of the requested admission. LSA-C.C.P. art. 1472.	Attorney's fees awarded for a party's failure to admit genuineness of documents or truth of any matter is the reasonable expense incurring in proving the truth of the requested admission.	"If a party fail to admit the truth of any matter requested, should the party requesting the admissions prove the truth of the matter to apply to the court for an order requiring the other party to pay the reasonable expenses and reasonable attorney's fees?"
5978	Bezou v. Bezou, 2015-1879 (La. App. 1 Cir. 9/16/16), 203 So. 3d 488, 500 (2016)	15	The trial court has wide discretion in determining whether to award attorney's fees based on a party's failure to admit the truth of any matter that is later proved to be genuine. La. Code Civ. Proc. Ann. art. 1472.	The trial court has wide discretion in determining whether to award attorney's fees based on a party's failure to admit the truth of any matter that is later proved to be genuine.	Does court have discretion in determining whether to award plaintiff attorney fees in personal injury action?
5980	In re Feldman's Estate, 387 Ill. 568, 575, 56 N.E.2d 405, 408 (1944)	2	Notations or memoranda placed on the back of a check contemporaneously with the execution of the instrument with intention of making them a part of the contract for payment of money constitute as much a part of the instrument as though incorporated in the body thereof.	'Notations or memoranda placed on the back of a check contemporaneously with the execution of the instrument, with intention of making them a part of the contract for payment of money, constitute as much a part of the instrument as though incorporated in the body thereof.	Should a memorandum or notation placed on the back of a note or an instrument at the time of execution binding on the parties?
5982	U.S. v. Ihnatenko, 482 F.3d 1097, 1099 n.2, 1100 (9th Cir. 2007)	2	Statute criminalizing giving something of value to a witness for or because of his testimony does not prohibit the government from paying fees, housing, expenses, and cash rewards to any cooperating witness, so long as the payment does not recompense any corruption of the truth of testimony. 18 U.S.C.A. § 201(c)(2).	We today join our sister circuits and hold that 18 U.S.C. § 201(c)(2) does not prohibit the government from paying fees, housing, expenses, and cash rewards to any cooperating witness, so long as the payment does not recompense any corruption of the truth of testimony.	Is government's promise of leniency to a cooperating witness amount to giving of something of value for testimony in violation of 18 U.S.C. 201(c)(2)?
5983	United States v. Gjieli, 717 F.2d 968, 975-76 (6th Cir. 1983)	3	Statutory provision proscribing bribery of a public official encompasses both an intent to induce acts which are part of public official's lawful duties and those acts which are erroneously perceived by briber to be part of public official's lawful duties. 18 U.S.C.A. § 201(b)(3).	This provision encompasses both an intent to induce acts which are part of a public official's lawful duties and those acts which are erroneously perceived by the briber to be part of the public official's lawful duties.	Does bribers intent to induce acts which are erroneously perceived to be part of the public official's lawful duties satisfy the specific intent element of bribery?

5986	Miller v. Miller, 1981-NMSC-078, 96 N.M. 497, 632 P.2d 732	4	Continuance is not ipso facto allowed when party's attorney withdraws; motion to continue is addressed to sound discretion of trial judge.	A motion for a continuance is not ipso facto allowed when a party's attorney withdraws. Williams and Michael v. Kenamer, 71 N.C.App. 215, 321 S.E.2d 514 (1984). "[A] motion to continue is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial judge."	Is continuance not ipso facto allowed when party's attorney withdraws because the motion to continue is addressed to sound discretion of a trial judge?
5988	Miller v. Grier S. Johnson, 191 Va. 768, 772 (1951)	1	Mere failure of a litigant to employ counsel until just prior to date set for trial is not ground for a continuance, nor is withdrawal or discharge of counsel under the same circumstances.	Mere failure of a litigant to employ counsel until just prior to the date set for trial is not a ground for continuance. Neither is withdrawal or discharge of counsel under the same circumstances.	Is the mere failure of a litigant to employ counsel until just prior to date set for trial is not ground for a continuance?
5989	Culp v. Hawkins, 711 S.W.2d 726, 727 (Tex. App. 1986)	2	Under Civil Rule 169, requests for admissions are automatically deemed admitted after 30 days; trial court has no discretion to exercise. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 169.	Under Rule 169, the requests for admissions are automatically deemed admitted after thirty days. The trial court had no discretion to exercise.	"Under Civil Rule 169, are requests for admissions are automatically deemed admitted after 30 days and a trial court has no discretion to exercise?"
5991	Ray v. Ray, 542 S.W.2d 209, 212 (Tex. Civ. App. 1976)	3	An applicant for a continuance must recite, inter alia, that he has used due diligence, stating such diligence and the cause of failure, if known. Rules of Civil Procedure, rules 251, 252.	The foregoing rule has been interpreted to require that the applicant for a continuance recite inter alia that he has used due diligence, stating such diligence and the cause of failure, if known.	"Should an applicant for a continuance recite, inter alia, that he has used due diligence, stating such diligence and the cause of failure, if known?"
5992	J. C. Penney Co. v. Duran, 479 S.W.2d 374, 380 (Tex. Civ. App. 1972)	9	Where continuance motion does not allege facts showing diligence in attempting to procure testimony of an absent witness, the denial of such motion is proper. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 252.	Where the motion for continuance does not allege facts showing diligence in attempting to procure testimony of an absent witness, the denial of such motion is proper.	"Where a motion for continuance does not allege facts showing diligence in attempting to secure testimony of an absent witness, is denial of the motion proper?"
5993	Mathias v. Luke, 37 N.J. Super. 241, 249 (App. Div. 1955)	9	A court should not be astute to read a pretrial order as precluding what appears to be just recovery by plaintiffs, where language of order does not clearly require such result.	A court should not be astute to read a pretrial order as precluding what appears to be a just recovery where its language does not clearly require that result.	"Should a court be astute to read a pretrial order as precluding what appears to be just recovery by plaintiffs, where language of order does not clearly require such result?"
5997	Raven v. Panama Canal Co., 583 F.2d 169, 171 (5th Cir. 1978)	5	Acts of Congress may treat aliens differently than citizens without such treatment being considered "invidious" or in violation of the equal protection clause. U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 14.	The United States Supreme Court has recognized that Acts of Congress may treat aliens differently than citizens without such treatment being considered "invidious" or in violation of the Equal Protection clause. A legitimate distinction exists between citizens and aliens to warrant different treatment.	Can an Act of Congress treat aliens differently than citizens without such treatment being considered invidious?

5998	Warren v. Iowa State Hwy. Comm'n, 93 N.W.2d 60, 63 (Iowa 1958)	1	Public highways are created by statute, either directly or through power delegated to same subdivision of the state, and they may be discontinued in the same way, and no individual can acquire such vested rights against the state as will prevent the discontinuance of an established public road.	It is settled in Iowa that public highways are created by statute, either directly or through power delegated to some subdivision of the state, that they may be discontinued in the same way, and no individual can acquire such vested rights against the state as will prevent the discontinuance of an established public road.	Can an individual acquire a vested right of a highway?
6002	Our Lady of the Lake Hosp. v. Vanner, 692 So. 2d 40, 42 (La. Ct. App. 1997)	2	Trial court must consider particular facts in each case in deciding whether to grant or deny continuance, and some factors to consider are diligence, good faith, reasonable grounds, exceptor's corollary right to have his case heard as soon as is practicable, condition of the court docket, fairness to both parties and other litigants before court, and need for orderly and prompt administration of justice.	Scroggs, 35,521 (La.App.2d Cir.06/12/02), 821 So.2d 542, 553: The trial judge must consider the particular facts in each case in deciding whether to grant or deny a continuance. Some factors to consider are diligence, good faith and reasonable grounds. Equally important is the defendant's corollary right to have his case heard as soon as is practicable. The trial judge may also weigh the condition of the court docket, fairness to both parties and other litigants before the court, and the need for orderly and 3 prompt administration of justice.	What should a judge consider in ruling on a partys motion for continuance?
6003	Friday v. Mutz, 483 So. 2d 1269, 1271 (La. Ct. App. 1986)	5	Generally, when amendment presents new claim or defense which takes opposing party by surprise, continuance must be allowed. LSA-C.C.P. art. 1151.	Generally, when an amendment presents a new claim or defense which takes the opposing party by surprise, a continuance must be allowed.	"When an amendment presents a new claim or defense which takes the opposing party by surprise, must a continuance be allowed?"
6006	Pierce v. Nelson, 509 N.W.2d 471, 475 (Iowa 1993)	6	Treating physician's deposition fee should compensate physician for inconvenience of giving deposition testimony, yet it also must bear some rational relationship to time spent away from other professional duties. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 125(f).	In other words, the fee should compensate the physician for the inconvenience of giving deposition testimony, yet it also must bear some rational relationship to time spent away from other professional duties.	Should a treating physician be compensated in the form of physician deposition fee bearing some reasonable relationship to a physician's customary hourly charge for patient care and consultation?
6007	Peterson v. David, 69 Wash. 2d 566, 569 (1966)	3	When denial of requested continuance would be improper, imposition of conditions to granting of continuance may still be within trial court's discretion. Rules of Pleading, Practice and Procedure, rule 40.04W; RCWA 4.44.040.	Furthermore, when the denial of a requested continuance would be improper, the imposition of conditions may still be within the trial court's discretion.	"Is imposition of conditions to granting of continuance still within trial court discretion, when denial of requested continuance is improper?"
6008	Bowman v. Benoultas, 519 S.W.3d 586, 603 (Tenn. Ct. App. 2016)	32	A trial court has the discretion to enter a scheduling order that, inter alia, limits the time to complete and respond to discovery. Tenn. R. Civ. P. 16.01.	A trial court has the discretion to enter a scheduling order that, inter alia, limits the time to complete and respond to discovery.	"Does a court have the discretion to enter a scheduling order that, inter alia, limits the time to complete and respond to discovery?"

6009	United Employers Cas. Co. v. McCloud, 146 S.W.2d 247, 249 (Tex. Civ. App. 1940)	1	Where application for continuance was in substantial compliance with statute, was properly verified, and was not controverted, facts alleged therein must be accepted as true. Vernon's Ann.Civ.St. art. 2168.	The application in question was in substantial compliance with the statute. It was properly verified and was not controverted by appellee, consequently the facts alleged therein must be accepted as true.	"If application in question was in substantial compliance with the statute or rule and is properly verified and not controverted, is the facts alleged therein be accepted as true?"
6010	Noble v. Shawnee Gun Shop, 316 S.W.3d 364, 374 (Mo. Ct. App. 2010)	18	In considering a motion to dismiss due to lack of personal jurisdiction, the trial court considers only the facts relevant to jurisdiction, and it does not consider the merits of the underlying action; thus, discovery is permissible only as to the jurisdictional issues during that phase of the action. V.A.M.R. 56.01.	In considering a motion to dismiss due to lack of personal jurisdiction, the trial court considers only the facts relevant to jurisdiction; it does not consider the merits of the underlying action. Hollinger, 122 S.W.3d at 115. Thus, discovery is permissible only as to the jurisdictional issues during this phase of the action. See Rule 56.01.	"In considering a motion to dismiss due to lack of personal jurisdiction, does the trial court consider only the facts relevant to jurisdiction?"
6012	Marble v. Parham, 3 Ariz. App. 585, 586 (1966)	1	In testing complaint against motion to dismiss by reason of claimed failure to state a claim for relief, complaint is viewed in light most favorable to sustaining of complaint and allegations of complaint must be taken as true for purposes of motion to dismiss.	In testing a complaint against a motion to dismiss by reason of a claimed failure to state a claim for relief, the complaint is viewed in the light most favorable to the sustaining of the complaint and the allegations of the complaint must be taken as true for the purposes of the motion to dismiss.	Should the allegations of the complaint be taken as true for the purposes of the motion to dismiss?
6013	Conaway v. McCrory Stores Corp., 82 Ga. App. 97, 100, 60 S.E.2d 631, 633 (1950)	3	General allegations that a person could not have avoided consequences of another's negligence by exercise of ordinary care, after it was and should have been discovered, must yield, on demurrer, to particular facts shown, where inferences from fact are necessarily to be drawn contradictory of conclusions.	and general allegations that a person could not have avoided the consequences of another's negligence by the exercise of ordinary care after it was or should have been discovered must yield, on demurrer, to the particular facts shown where inferences from the facts are necessarily to be drawn contradictory of the conclusions.	Should conclusions in conflict with pleaded facts be disregarded?
6014	Paniagua v. Orange Cty. Fire Auth., 149 Cal. App. 4th 83, 89 (2007)	7	Where the plaintiff has filed a voluntary dismissal of an action, the court is without jurisdiction to act further, and any subsequent orders of the court are simply void.	[I]t is a well-settled proposition of law that where the plaintiff has filed a voluntary dismissal of an action ..., the court is without jurisdiction to act further [citations], and any subsequent orders of the court are simply void.	"Where the plaintiff has filed a voluntary dismissal of an action, is the court without jurisdiction to act further, and any subsequent orders of the court void?"
6015	In re Celadon Trucking Servs., 281 S.W.3d 93, 97 (Tex. App. 2008)	10	Parties are generally permitted to take the deposition of any person; however, the person noticed for deposition has the right to protection from, undue burden, unnecessary expense, harassment or annoyance, or investigation of personal, constitutional, or property rights. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 192.3(a).	Parties are generally permitted to take the deposition of, "any person." The person noticed for deposition, however, has the right to protection from, "undue burden, unnecessary expense, harassment or annoyance, or investigation of personal, constitutional, or property rights."	Are parties generally permitted to take the deposition of any person?

6017	Del Vecchio v. Danielle Associates, LLC, 942 N.Y.S.2d 217, 218 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dept. 2012)	1	Evidence of subsequent repairs and remedial measures is not discoverable or admissible in a negligence case unless there is an issue of maintenance or control. McKinney's CPLR 3101(a).	"Evidence of subsequent repairs and remedial measures is not discoverable or admissible in a negligence case unless there is an issue of maintenance or control" (Cleland v. 60-02 Woodside Corp., 221 A.D.2d 307, 308, 633 N.Y.S.2d 529; see Hughes v. Cold Spring Constr. Co., 26 A.D.3d 858, 859, 809 N.Y.S.2d 751; Niemann v. Luca, 214 A.D.2d 658, 625 N.Y.S.2d 267; Cacciolo v. Port Auth. of N.Y. & N.J., 186 A.D.2d 528, 530, 588 N.Y.S.2d 350; Klatz v. Armor El. Co., 93 A.D.2d 633, 637, 462 N.Y.S.2d 677).	Is evidence of subsequent repairs and remedial measures not discoverable or admissible in a negligence case without an issue of maintenance or control?
6019	Desson v. Trustees of Net Realty Holding Tr., 646 N.Y.S.2d 31, 32 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dept. 1996)	1	Discovery of evidence of subsequent similar accidents, while material in cases where defect is alleged in design or creation of product or structure, is irrelevant and inappropriate in cases where no inherent defect is alleged.	Discovery of evidence of subsequent similar accidents, while material in cases where a defect is alleged in the design or creation of a product or structure, is irrelevant and inappropriate in cases such as this, where no inherent defect is alleged (see, Kolody v. Supermarkets General Corporation, 163 A.D.2d 276, 277, 557 N.Y.S.2d 145; Yoon v. F.W. Woolworth Co., 202 A.D.2d 575, 576, 609 N.Y.S.2d 260).	Is the discovery of similar incidents or claims material in cases where the defect is alleged in design or creation of a product?
6022	Hodge v. Myers, 255 S.C. 542, 547-48, 180 S.E.2d 203, 206 (1971)	3	The purposes of pretrial conferences are to expedite trials or shorten the actual period of trial, to narrow or simplify the issue, to eliminate the doing of useless things, and to facilitate the attainment of justice between the parties. Circuit Court Rules, rule 43.	Trial s 17(2) (1955), is relevant to the powers of the pretrial judge and to the purposes of the pretrial conference: 'The purposes of pretrial conferences are to expedite trials or shorten the actual period of trial, to narrow or simplify the issues, to eliminate the doing of useless things and to facilitate the attainment of justice between the parties.	Are the purposes of pretrial conference to simplify issues and expedite trial proceedings?
6023	Slowke v. Altermatt, 293 Mich. 360, 363-64 (1940)	1	A plaintiff's common law right to dismiss action or submit to voluntary nonsuit still exists, except as modified by statute or court rule.	Graham, supra, the common law right of a plaintiff to dismiss or submit to a voluntary nonsuit is noted. The right still exists *364 except as modified by statute or court rule.	Does the common law right to submit to a nonsuit still exist subject to limitations by statute and court rules??
6024	Hoskin v. Resor, 324 F. Supp. 271, 278 (D.D.C. 1971)	5	Even when there is some question as to regularity of commissioning of officers, if officer actually served, he is entitled to all emoluments of office, including an honorable discharge, assuming circumstances of his service did not preclude the issuance thereof.	Even when there is some question as to the regularity of the commissioning of the officer, if the officer actually served, he is entitled to all the emoluments of office, including an Honorable Discharge, assuming the circumstances of his service do not preclude the issuance thereof.	Is an officer entitled to all the emoluments of an office even when there is some question as to the regularity of the commissioning of the officer?

6026	Zinke v. Orskog, 422 S.W.3d 422, 427 (Mo. App. W. Dist. 2013)	9	Once a permitted voluntary dismissal is filed, there is nothing pending before the trial court on which it is permitted to act, though the court may enter administrative orders such as those with regard to the assessment of costs. V.A.M.S. § 516.230; V.A.M.R. 67.02.	Once a permitted voluntary dismissal is filed, there is nothing pending before the trial court on which it is permitted to act, though the court may enter administrative orders such as those with regard to the assessment of costs.	Is there anything pending before the trial court on which it is permitted to act once a permitted voluntary dismissal is filed?
6027	Reynolds v. Reynolds, 14 Cal. App. 2d 481	8	When a deposition is taken upon written interrogatories, opposing party or his counsel have right to be present, and exclusion of defendant and her counsel from taking of deposition of plaintiff on written interrogatories voided the procedure, even if it were otherwise valid. Code, § 38-2101.	It is clear from this provision, in connection with other provisions *245 of the discovery mechanism of the adopted Federal Rules, that when a deposition is taken upon written interrogatories, the opposing party or his counsel have the right to be present. The exclusion of the defendant and her counsel from the taking of the deposition of the plaintiff on written interrogatories would void the procedure, if otherwise valid.	Does the exclusion of defendant and counsel from taking of deposition of plaintiff on written interrogatories make the procedure void even if it were otherwise valid?
6028	Scarseth v. United States, 52 Fed. Cl. 458, 474 (2002)	8	The decision to accept or deny a resignation from the service rests solely within the discretion of the Secretary of the Army, and the exercise of that discretion will be sustained unless it is exercised in a manner which is arbitrary, capricious or not in accordance with law.	Moreover, the decision to accept or deny a resignation from the service rests solely within the discretion of the Secretary of the Army, and the exercise of that discretion will be sustained unless it is exercised in a manner which is arbitrary, capricious or not in accordance with law.	Can the Secretary of the Army exercise discretion to accept a resignation or not?
6033	Fungaroli v. Fungaroli, 252 S.E.2d 849, 851 (N.C. App. 1979)	8	Chief consideration to be weighed in passing upon motion to continue is whether grant or denial will be in furtherance of substantial justice.	The chief consideration to be weighed in passing upon the motion to continue is whether the grant or denial will be in furtherance of substantial justice.	Is the chief consideration to be weighed in passing a motion to continue the question whether a grant or denial is in furtherance of substantial justice?
6037	Henderson ex rel. Henderson v. Shinseki, 562 U.S. 428, 434–35 (2011)	2	Objections to subject-matter jurisdiction may be raised at any time; thus, a party, after losing at trial, may move to dismiss the case because the trial court lacked subject-matter jurisdiction, and indeed, a party may raise such an objection even if the party had previously acknowledged the trial court's jurisdiction.	Objections to subject-matter jurisdiction, however, may be raised at any time. Thus, a party, after losing at trial, may move to dismiss the case because the trial court lacked *435 subject-matter jurisdiction. Indeed, a party may raise such an objection even if the party had previously acknowledged the trial court's jurisdiction.	"Can a party, after losing at trial, move to dismiss the case because the trial court lacked subject-matter jurisdiction?"
6038	Tucker v. Fayetteville State Univ., 238 N.C. App. 188, 190, 767 S.E.2d 60, 61–62 (2014)	1	Action is properly dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction where the plaintiff has failed to exhaust administrative remedies. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(1), West's N.C.G.S.A. § 1A-1.	An action is properly dismissed under Rule 12(b)(1) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction where the plaintiff has failed to exhaust administrative remedies.	Is action properly dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction where the plaintiff has failed to exhaust administrative remedies?

6040	Reiter v. Cooper, 507 U.S. 258, 268–69 (1993)	9	Referral of issue to administrative agency under doctrine of primary jurisdiction does not deprive court of jurisdiction; it has discretion either to retain jurisdiction or, if parties would not be unfairly disadvantaged, to dismiss case without prejudice.	Referral of the issue to the administrative agency does not deprive the court of jurisdiction; it has discretion either to retain jurisdiction or, if the parties would not be unfairly disadvantaged, to dismiss the case *269 without prejudice.	"If the court determines that the primary jurisdiction doctrine applies, may the court determine whether to stay the litigation or dismiss without prejudice?"
6041	Harris v. Westin Mgmt. Co. E., 230 S.W.3d 1, 3 (Mo. 2007)	2	A court shall dismiss an action whenever it appears that the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, and the quantum of proof is not high; it must appear by the preponderance of the evidence that the court is without jurisdiction.	"A court shall dismiss the action whenever it 'appears' by suggestion of the parties or otherwise that the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction. As the term 'appears' suggests, the quantum of proof is not high; it must appear by the preponderance of the evidence that the court is without jurisdiction."	"Should a court dismiss an action whenever it appears that the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, and the quantum of proof is not high?"
6042	Chief Seattle Properties, Inc. v. Kitsap Cnty., 541 P.2d 699, 705 (Wash. 1975)	4	State tax imposed on an Indian or a non-Indian would be invalid if it would substantially interfere with a discernible federal policy to aid the Indian; the interference may not be treated as substantial if it is too remote to be legally sufficient to invalidate the tax.	Furthermore if the state tax imposed on an Indian or a non-Indian would substantially interfere with a discernible federal policy to aid the Indian, the tax would be invalid. Sohol v. Clark, 78 Wash.2d 813, 479 P.2d 925 (1971); Makah Indian Tribe v. Clallam County, 73 Wash.2d 677, 440 P.2d 442 (1968). The interference may not be treated as substantial if it is too remote to be legally sufficient to invalidate the tax.	Would a state tax imposed on an Indian or a non-Indian be invalid if it would substantially interfere with a discernible federal policy to aid the Indian?
6043	Schacht v. United States, 398 U.S. 58, 61 (1970)	1	Statute making it an offense to wear military uniforms of United States without authority is, standing alone, a valid statute on its face. 18 U.S.C.A. S 702.	Our previous cases would seem to make it clear that 18 U.S.C. s 702, making it an offense to wear our military uniforms without authority is, standing alone, a valid statute on its face.	"Is a statute making it an offense to wear military uniforms of the United States, without authority, a valid statute on its face?"
6045	U.S. v. Copeland, 143 F.3d 1439, 1441 (11th Cir. 1998)	3	Only those contractual relationships constituting some form of federal assistance fall within scope of anti-bribery statute; thus, organizations engaged in purely commercial transactions with federal government are not subject to the statute. 18 U.S.C.A. S 666(b).	The scope of § 666, however, is not limitless; the statute clearly indicates that only those contractual relationships constituting some form of "Federal assistance" fall within the scope of the statute. 18 U.S.C. § 666(b); see Rooney, 986 F.2d at 34 (stating that "[t]he statute expressly equates 'benefits' with 'Federal assistance.' "). Thus, organizations engaged in purely commercial transactions with the federal government are not subject to § 666.	What type of relationships fall within the scope of the anti-bribery statute?

6046	United States v. Muhammad, 120 F.3d 688, 693 (7th Cir. 1997)	2	Defendant violates federal bribery statute by merely seeking or demanding bribe, regardless of whether he accepts or even agrees to accept it. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(b)(2)(A).	The language in the statute is disjunctive. In other words, a defendant violates 201 by merely seeking or demanding a bribe, regardless of whether he accepts or even agrees to accept it.	Does a defendant violate the federal bribery statute by merely seeking or demanding a bribe even if he doesn't accept it?
6048	Bacon v. Lloyd, 1882 WL 9056, at *1 (Tex. App. 1882)	1	A motion to suppress depositions should be sustained where the certificate of the officer taking them fails to show that the answers of the witness were subscribed to before him as required by Rev.St.1879, art. 2229, Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 196.	A motion to suppress depositions should be sustained, where the certificate of the officer taking them fails to show that the answers of the witness were subscribed and sworn to before him. [Rev. Stats. art. 2229;	Should a motion to suppress depositions be sustained where the certificate of the officer taking them fails to show that the answers of the witness were subscribed to before him as required?
6051	Berrier v. CareFusion 203, 231 N.C. App. 516, 520, 753 S.E.2d 157, 161 (2014)	1	If the defendant supplements his motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction with an affidavit or other supporting evidence, the allegations in the complaint can no longer be taken as true or controlling, plaintiff cannot rest on those allegations, and trial court considers (1) any allegations in the complaint that are not controverted by the defendant's affidavit and (2) all facts in the affidavit which are uncontroverted because of the plaintiff's failure to offer evidence. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(2), West's N.C.G.S.A. S 1A-1.	[I]f the defendant supplements his motion to dismiss with an affidavit or other supporting evidence, the allegations in the complaint can no longer be taken as true or controlling and plaintiff cannot rest on the allegations of the complaint. In order to determine whether there is evidence to support an exercise of personal jurisdiction, the court then considers (1) any allegations in the complaint that are not controverted by the defendant's affidavit and (2) all facts in the affidavit (which are uncontroverted because of the plaintiff's failure to offer evidence).	"If the defendant submits supportive evidence along with the motion to dismiss, can the complaints allegations be taken as true or controlling?"
6052	Noble v. Shawnee Gun Shop, 316 S.W.3d 364, 374 (Mo. Ct. App. 2010)	18	In considering a motion to dismiss due to lack of personal jurisdiction, the trial court considers only the facts relevant to jurisdiction, and it does not consider the merits of the underlying action; thus, discovery is permissible only as to the jurisdictional issues during that phase of the action. V.A.M.R. 56.01.	In considering a motion to dismiss due to lack of personal jurisdiction, the trial court considers only the facts relevant to jurisdiction; it does not consider the merits of the underlying action. Hollinger, 122 S.W.3d at 115. Thus, discovery is permissible only as to the jurisdictional issues during this phase of the action. See Rule 56.01.	Does a trial court consider only facts relevant to jurisdiction in considering a motion to dismiss due to lack of personal jurisdiction?
6053	Texas Parks & Wildlife Dep't v. Garland, 313 S.W.3d 920, 926 (Tex. App. 2010)	23	Generally, the proper remedy when a court lacks subject matter jurisdiction is to dismiss the case without prejudice, but when a dispositive defect cannot be remedied, dismissal with prejudice is proper.	2 Generally, the proper remedy when a court lacks subject matter jurisdiction is to dismiss the case without prejudice, but when a dispositive defect cannot be remedied, dismissal with prejudice is proper.	Is the proper remedy when a court lacks subject matter jurisdiction is to dismiss the case without prejudice?

6054	Avco Fin. Servs. Loan v. Hale, 36 Ohio App. 3d 65, 67, 520 N.E.2d 1378, 1379 (1987)	1	Standard to apply for dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction is whether the plaintiff has alleged any cause of action cognizable by the forum. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(B)(1).	The standard to apply for a dismissal pursuant to Civ.R. 12(B)(1), lack of jurisdiction over the subject matter, is whether the plaintiff has alleged any cause of action cognizable by the forum.	"Is whether any cause of action cognizable by the forum has been raised in the complaint, a standard for determining motion to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction?"
6056	State ex rel. & to Use of Benson v. Union Elec. Co. of Mo., 359 Mo. 35, 41 (1949)	6	Taxes are levied and collected for public purposes on all property within territorial jurisdiction of the state, except that expressly enumerated as exempt, even though all such property must be subjected to the various specific taxes by law.	'It is the well-settled policy of our law that taxes shall be levied and collected for public purposes on all property within the territorial 4 jurisdiction of the state, except that expressly enumerated as exempt' [316 Mo. 853, 293 S.W. 401] even though all such property must be subjected to the various specific taxes by law.	Does the property to be taxed be subjected thereto by law?
6057	State ex rel. Tri-Cty. Elec. Co-op. Ass'n v. Dial, 192 S.W.3d 708, 710 (Mo. 2006)	1	Workers' compensation is wholly substitutional in character, and any rights which a plaintiff might have had at common law have been supplanted and superseded by the act, if applicable.	Workers' Compensation Law [1] "The Worker's Compensation Law is wholly substitutional in character and ... any rights which a plaintiff might have had at common law have been supplanted and superseded by the act, if applicable."	Is workers compensation law wholly substitutional in character and are any rights at common law supplanted or superseded by the act?
6058	Baron v. Best Buy Co., 79 F. Supp. 2d 1350, 1355-56 (S.D. Fla. 1999)	4	Federal district courts must compel arbitration of pendent arbitrable claims when party files a motion to compel, even where result would be possibly inefficient maintenance of separate proceedings in different forums. 9 U.S.C.A. S 4.	The Supreme Court has instructed that district courts must "compel arbitration of pendent arbitrable claims when one *1356 of the parties files a motion to compel, even where the result would be the possibly inefficient maintenance of separate proceedings in different forums."	When should the court compel arbitration of pendent arbitrable claims?
6059	United States v. Gatling, 96 F.3d 1511, 1522 (D.C. Cir. 1996)	13	Central difference between accepting bribe and accepting gratuity is degree of culpable intent on part of recipient; to convict defendant for accepting bribe, jury must find that defendant acted corruptly, whereas to convict for accepting gratuity, jury need only find that defendant acted knowingly and willingly. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201.	A central difference between accepting a bribe and accepting a gratuity is the degree of culpable intent on the part of the recipient; to convict a defendant for accepting a bribe a jury must find that the defendant acted "corruptly," whereas to convict for accepting a gratuity the jury need only find that the defendant acted "knowingly and willingly	What is the difference between accepting a bribe and accepting a gratuity?

6060	Nowlin v. United States, 81 F. Supp. 3d 514, 526 (N.D. Miss. 2015)	19	To establish initially that a federal court may exercise subject matter jurisdiction over a case charging theft or bribery concerning programs receiving federal funds, the government must allege facts sufficient to show such a nexus between the criminal conduct and the agency, but in a case where a defendant challenges subject matter jurisdiction, the government must present proof, by a preponderance of the evidence, to support the claim of jurisdiction. 18 U.S.C.A. S 666.	Thus, to establish initially that a federal court may exercise subject matter jurisdiction over a 666 case, the government must allege facts sufficient to show such a nexus between the criminal conduct and the agency. Id. In a case where a defendant challenges subject matter jurisdiction, the government must present proof, by a preponderance of the evidence, to support the claim of jurisdiction.	"For the court to entertain a bribery charge where the federal funds were received by the agency, is there a requirement that the particular program be the recipient of the federal funds?"
6061	W. Virginia Dept. of Highways v. Farmer, 226 S.E.2d 717, 719 (W. Va. 1976)	1	Word "minerals" in its ordinary and common meaning is a comprehensive term including every description of stone and rock deposit whether containing metallic or nonmetallic substances.	This was cogently stated in Waugh v. Thompson Land & Coal Company, 103 W.Va. 567, 137 S.E. 895 (1927), in the following language: 'The word 'mineral' in its ordinary and common meaning is a comprehensive term including every description of stone and rock deposit, whether containing metallic or non-metallic substances.'	Does the word mineral include every description of stone and rock deposit?
6062	City of Glendale v. Marcus Cable Associates, 235 Cal. App. 4th 344, 353–54, 185 Cal. Rptr. 3d 331, 337–38 (2015)	5	The requests for admission mechanism is not a means by which a party obtains additional information, but rather a dispute-resolution device that eliminates the time and expense of formal proof at trial.	As such, the requests for admission mechanism is not a means by *354 which a party obtains additional information, but rather a dispute-resolution device that eliminates 338 the time and expense of formal proof at trial.	Is the request for admission mechanism a mean by which a party obtains additional information?
6063	In re Consol. Zicam Prod. Liab. Cases, 212 Ariz. 85, 90 (2006)	8	If nonresident defendants' forum-related activities are not sufficiently connected for the court to conclude that the plaintiffs' claim arises out of those activities, dismissal is warranted.	If the nonresident defendant's forum-related activities "are not sufficiently connected for [the] court to conclude that the plaintiff's claim arises out of" those activities, dismissal is warranted.	"If nonresident defendant forum-related activities are not sufficiently connected for the court to conclude that the plaintiff claim arises out of those activities, is dismissal warranted?"
6064	Verbitski v. Union P. R. Co., 380 S.W.3d 459, 463 (Ark. App. 2011)	2	When service of process requirements are not met, the trial court's jurisdiction extends only to the act of ordering a dismissal of the case and nothing more; any other act by the trial court constitutes a plain, manifest, clear, and gross abuse of discretion. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 4(i).	When service requirements are not met, the trial court's jurisdiction extends only to the act of ordering a dismissal of the case and nothing more. Boyd v. Sharp County Circuit Court, 368 Ark. 566, 247 S.W.3d 864 (2007). Any other act by the trial court constitutes a plain, manifest, clear, and gross abuse of discretion.	"When services of process requirements are not met, does the trial court jurisdiction extend only to the act of ordering a dismissal of the case and nothing more?"

6065	Israel v. Flick Mortg. Inv'rs, 23 So. 3d 1196, 1198–99 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2008)	3	A motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction based on insufficiency of service of process lies when the service effected does not comport with the requirements of the statute pertaining to the manner in which such service is to be effected.	A motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction based on insufficiency of service of process lies when the service effected does not comport with the requirements of the statute pertaining to the manner in which such service is to be effected.	Does a motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction based on insufficiency of service of process lie when the service is to be effected?
6067	Thompson v. Peterson, 546 N.W.2d 856, 861 (N.D. 1996)	7	Exhaustion of remedies before appropriate administrative agency is generally prerequisite to making claim in court, and dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction is appropriate if plaintiff has failed to exhaust such remedies. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 12(b)(1), 28 U.S.C.A.; Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(i).	Under FRCivP 12(b)(1), federal courts have generally held that dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction is appropriate if the plaintiff has failed to exhaust remedies before an administrative agency. Kominos v. Upper Saddle River Bd. of Ed. , 13 F.3d 775 (3rd Cir.1994); Bueford v. Resolution Trust Corp. , 991 F.2d 481 (8th Cir.1993); DiLaura v. Power Authority of State of New York , 982 F.2d 73 (2nd Cir.1992). See 5A Wright and Miller, at § 1350. Our decisions have also consistently required exhaustion of remedies before the appropriate administrative agency as a prerequisite to making a claim in court.	Is a dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction appropriate if the plaintiff failed to exhaust administrative remedies?
6068	CNA Int'l, Inc. v. Baer, 2012 IL App (1st) 112174, ¶ 31, 981 N.E.2d 441, 449	3	The purpose of a motion to dismiss based on certain defects or defenses is to dispose of issues of law and easily proved issues of fact early in the litigation. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619(a).	"The purpose of a section 2–619 motion is to dispose of issues of law and easily proved issues of fact early in the litigation.	Does the purpose of a motion to dismiss based on certain defects or defenses is to dispose of issues of law and easily proved issues of fact early in the litigation?
6071	McGee v. Macambo Lounge, 158 Mich. App. 282, 286 (1987)	2	Default judgment is authorized if party or officer, director, or managing agent of party fails to appear at pretrial or settlement conference after having been ordered to attend. MCR 2.401(F), 2.506(F), 2.603.	Clearly, default is authorized if a "party or an officer, director, or managing agent of a party" fails to appear at a pretrial or settlement conference after having been ordered to attend.	Is a default judgment authorized if a party fails to appear at a pretrial or settlement conference after having been ordered to attend?
6072	Mountain Fuel Supply Co. v. Salt Lake City Corp., 752 P.2d 884, 891 (Utah 1988)	13	City is not denied most effective means of raising needed revenues unless that means imposes unreasonable burden on affected parties.	The City is not to be denied the most effective means of raising needed revenues unless that means imposes an unreasonable burden on the affected parties.	Is the city denied most effective means of raising needed revenues if those means impose unreasonable burden on affected parties?
6073	Cty. of Lenoir v. Moore, 114 N.C. App. 110, 116, 441 S.E.2d 589, 592 (1994)	2	Real property ad valorem taxes are inherently public in character; they are statutorily authorized taxes raised to serve needs of community as whole.	On the other hand, real property ad valorem taxes are inherently public in character: they are statutorily authorized taxes raised to serve the needs of the community as a whole.	Are real property ad valorem taxes statutorily authorized taxes raised to serve needs of community as whole?

6075	United States v. Harvey, 532 F.3d 326, 335 (4th Cir. 2008)	8	Not every gift, favor or contribution to a government or political official constitutes bribery; bribery occurs only if the gift is coupled with a particular criminal intent to receive a specific benefit in return for the payment. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(b)(1)(A), (b)(2)(A).	Not every gift, favor or contribution to a government or political official constitutes bribery. It is universally recognized that bribery occurs only if the gift is coupled with a particular criminal intent." U.S.	"When do gifts, favors, and contributions to government or public officials constitute bribery?"
6076	Comm'r of IRS v. Estate of Sanders, 834 F.3d 1269, 1279 (11th Cir. 2016)	6	Although the meaning may vary according to context, "residence" generally requires both physical presence and an intention to remain.	That said, there is some guidance in existing case law as to its meaning. "Although the meaning may vary according to context, 'residence' generally requires both physical presence and an intention to remain.	"Does ""residence"" require both physical presence and an intention to remain although the meaning may vary according to context?"
6077	Finks v. Middleton, 795 S.E.2d 789, 795 (N.C. App. 2016)	8	Standing concerns the trial court's subject matter jurisdiction and is therefore properly challenged by a motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction. N.C. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(1).	"Standing concerns the trial court's subject matter jurisdiction and is therefore properly challenged by a Rule 12(b)(1) motion to dismiss." *	Does standing concern the trial court's subject matter jurisdiction and is therefore properly challenged by a motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction?
6079	Gen. Elec. Capital Corp. v. Browning Mulch Co., 303 Ga. App. 795, 796 (2010)	1	An order of dismissal for failure to appear is discretionary with the trial court and is not subject to review by the Court of Appeals in the absence of an abuse of discretion.	"An order of dismissal for failure to appear is discretionary with the trial court and is not subject to review by this court in the absence of an abuse of discretion."	Is an order of dismissal for failure to appear discretionary with the trial court and is not subject to review by the Court of Appeals in the absence of an abuse of discretion?
6080	Shams v. Hassan, 829 N.W.2d 848, 853 (Iowa 2013)	3	Unlike other grounds for dismissal, a court considering a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction must make factual findings to determine whether it has personal jurisdiction over the defendant.	Unlike other grounds for dismissal, however, a court considering a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction must make factual findings to determine whether it has personal jurisdiction over the defendant.	Would a district court make necessary factual findings to determine whether a court has personal jurisdiction over the defendant?
6081	Wilder Chiropractic, Inc. v. State Farm Fire and Cas. Co., 13 N.E.3d 194, 213 (Ill. App. 2d Dist. 2014)	27	No absolute time frame exists that will shift the burden and require the plaintiff to offer an explanation for his or her actions in delaying service on defendant. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 103(b).	"No absolute time frame exists that will shift the burden and require the plaintiff to offer an explanation for his or her actions."	"Does an absolute time frame that will shift the burden and require the plaintiff to offer an explanation for his or her actions in delaying service on a defendant, exist?"
6082	Reid v. Evans, 273 Neb. 714, 715 (2007)	4	An action is dismissed by operation of law as to any defendant who is named and who is not served with process within six months after the complaint is filed. Neb.Rev.St. S 25-217.	Pursuant to Neb.Rev.Stat. 25-217 (Cum.Supp.2006), an action is dismissed by operation of law as to any defendant who is named and who is not served with process within 6 months after the complaint is filed.	Is an action dismissed by operation of law as to any defendant who is named and who is not served with process within six months after the complaint is filed?
6083	Willis v. RCA Corp., 465 N.E.2d 924, 925 (Ohio App. 8th Dist. 1983)	3	Unless party's conduct is so negligent, irresponsible, contumacious or dilatory as to provide substantial grounds for dismissal with prejudice, court should consider lesser sanctions when party fails to appear at hearing. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(B).	Unless a party's conduct is so negligent, irresponsible, contumacious, or dilatory as to provide substantial grounds for dismissal with prejudice, a court should consider lesser sanctions when a party fails to appear at a hearing.	"Should a court not order dismissal with prejudice unless the party's conduct is so negligent, irresponsible, contumacious or dilatory as to provide substantial grounds for such dismissal?"

6084	Cox v. Burke, 706 So. 2d 43, 47 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1998)	8	Where party lies about matters pertinent to party's own claim, or portion of it, and perpetrates a fraud that permeates entire proceeding, dismissal of whole case for fraud on court is proper.	And "where a party lies about matters pertinent to his own claim, or a portion of it, and perpetrates a fraud that permeates the entire proceeding, dismissal of the whole case is proper."	"Where a party lies about matters pertinent to his own claim, or a portion of it, is dismissal of the whole case proper?"
6086	E.I. Dupont De Nemours & Co. v. Sidran, 140 So. 3d 620, 624 (Fla. Dist. App. 2014)	4	To support a dismissal based upon a fraud on the court, the court must find the false testimony was directly related to the central issue in the case.	To support a dismissal the court must find the "false testimony was directly related to the central issue in the case."	"To support a dismissal for fraud on the court, should the court find the false testimony was directly related to the central issue in the case?"
6088	Estate of Rose, 465 Pa. 53, 62, 348 A.2d 113, 117 (1975)	3	Federal and state governments may generally tax same subject matter at same time and neither the United States nor the state, in determining amount of tax due it, is under constitutional obligation to make any allowance on account of tax of the other.	The federal and state governments may generally tax the same subject matter at the same time and neither the United States nor the state, in determining the amount of tax due to it, is under constitutional obligation to make any allowance on account of the tax of the other.	Can federal and state governments tax the same subject at the same time?
6089	Birmingham Assocs. Ltd. v. Abbott Labs., 547 F. Supp. 2d 295, 300-01 (S.D.N.Y. 2008)	5	A non-signatory may compel arbitration on an estoppel theory where (1) there is a close relationship between the parties and controversies involved and (2) the signatory's claims against the non-signatory are intimately founded in and intertwined with the underlying agreement containing the arbitration clause; claims are intertwined where the merits of an issue between the parties is bound up with a contract binding one party and containing an arbitration clause.	A non-signatory may compel arbitration on an estoppel theory, where (i) there is a close relationship between the parties and controversies involved and (ii) the signatory's claims against the non-signatory are " 'intimately founded in and intertwined with the underlying' " agreement containing the arbitration clause. 48 Claims are intertwined "where the merits of an issue between the parties [i]s bound up with a contract binding one party and containing an arbitration clause."	When can a non-signatory compel arbitration on an estoppel theory?
6090	Ramsden v. Farm Credit Servs. of N. Cent. Wisconsin ACA, 223 Wis. 2d 704, 711 (Ct. App. 1998)	3	A complaint does not need to state all the ultimate facts constituting each cause of action, and the Court of Appeals will not affirm the dismissal of a complaint as legally insufficient unless it is quite clear that under no conditions can the plaintiff recover. W.S.A. 802.06(2)(a)6.	A complaint does not need to state all the ultimate facts constituting each cause of action, and we will not affirm the dismissal of a complaint as legally insufficient unless "it is quite clear that under no conditions can the plaintiff recover." Id. at 24, 288 N.W.2d at 98-99. Ramsdens' Complaint.	Should a complaint state all the ultimate facts constituting each cause of action?

6091	Young v. Fed. Bureau of Prisons, 825 F. Supp. 2d 234, 237 (D.D.C. 2011)	4	Under rule authorizing motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, the plaintiff bears the burden of establishing personal jurisdiction over each defendant, and in order to satisfy this burden, the plaintiff must establish the court's jurisdiction over each defendant through specific allegations in her complaint. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 12(b)(2), 28 U.S.C.A.	Under Rule 12(b)(2), the plaintiff bears the burden of establishing personal jurisdiction over each defendant. Crane v. New York Zoological Soc., 894 F.2d 454, 456 (D.C.Cir.1990). In order to satisfy this burden, a plaintiff must establish the court's jurisdiction over each defendant through specific allegations in her complaint. Kopff v. Battaglia, 425 F.Supp.2d 76, 80–81 (D.D.C.2006).	Does the plaintiff have the burden on a defendant's motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction to establish that the court does have such jurisdiction?
6093	Clay v. Deering, 618 A.2d 92, 96 (D.C. 1992)	4	Court is not required to grant relief from default judgment for failure to appear due to party's failure to receive notice of pretrial conference when circumstances indicate that movant did not receive actual notice due to his own negligence. Civil Rule 60(b)(6).	A court is not required to grant a 60(b)(6) motion when circumstances indicate that the movant did not receive actual notice due to his own negligence.	Is a court not required to grant relief from default judgment for a failure to appear due to a party's failure to receive notice of a pretrial conference?
6094	Roberts v. Stidham, 19 So. 3d 1155, 1157 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2009)	3	When a plaintiff shows good cause for failure to serve process within 120 days, the trial court must extend the time for service and has no discretion to do otherwise. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.070(j).	When a plaintiff shows good cause for failure to serve process within 120 days, the trial court must extend the time for service and has no discretion to do otherwise.	Is the rule governing dismissal of actions for failure to serve process within 120 days designed to be a tool of case management?
6095	Beto v. Stewart, 213 W. Va. 355, 356, 582 S.E.2d 802, 803 (2003)	8	In formulating the appropriate sanction for violation of a discovery rule, trial court initially must identify alleged wrongful conduct and determine if it warrants a sanction, and explain its reasons clearly on the record if it decides a sanction is appropriate. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 37(b)(2).	In formulating the appropriate sanction, a court shall be guided by equitable principles. Initially, the court must identify the alleged wrongful conduct and determine if it warrants a sanction. The court must explain its reasons clearly on the record if it decides a sanction is appropriate.	Should a court explain reasons clearly on record if it decides sanction is appropriate?
6096	Seldomridge v. Gen. Mills Operations, 140 S.W.3d 58, 63–64 (Mo. Ct. App. 2004)	11	A dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction must be without prejudice because the court has no authority to decide the case on the merits.	Seldomridge's claim "with prejudice." jurisdiction must be without prejudice because the court has no authority to decide the case on the merits.	Can a dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction be without prejudice because the court had no authority to decide the case on the merits?
6098	Peer v. Lewis, 606 F.3d 1306, 1314 (11th Cir. 2010)	11	While the other sanction mechanisms only reach certain individuals or conduct, the court's inherent power to impose sanctions extends to a full range of litigation abuses and must continue to exist to fill in the interstices.	While the other sanction mechanisms only reach certain individuals or conduct, "the inherent power extends to a full range of litigation abuses" and "must continue to exist to fill in the interstices."	"When the court's inherent power to impose sanctions is relied upon, will the court rely on rules or statutes related to reasonable and appropriate sanctions?"
6099	City of Manchester v. Ryan, 180 S.W.3d 19, 22 (Mo. Ct. App. 2005)	8	Public-interest exception to mootness doctrine occurs if an appellate case presents an issue that (1) is of general public interest and importance, (2) will recur, and (3) will evade appellate review in future live controversies.	The second, "public interest," exception occurs if a case presents an issue that (1) is of general public interest and importance, (2) will recur, and (3) will evade appellate review in future live controversies.	Is a dismissal of a case due to mootness discretionary if the case presents an issue that is of general public interest and importance?

6101	Wimbley v. Jacksonville Moving and Storage Co., 624 So. 2d 323, 324 (Fla. 1st Dist. App. 1993)	2	To avoid dismissal for failure to prosecute, there must be record activity constituting affirmative act calculated to hasten suit to judgment. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(e).	It is true that in order to avoid dismissal, there must be record activity "constitut[ing] an affirmative act calculated to hasten the suit to judgment."	"To avoid dismissal for failure to prosecute, should there be record activity constituting affirmative act calculated to hasten suit to judgment?"
6102	Stresscon Int'l v. Ralph Merritt Dev. Corp., 368 So. 2d 384, 385 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1979)	1	The trial judge may properly dismiss a cause with prejudice for failure of a plaintiff to comply timely with an order of court.	It should first be made clear that a trial judge may properly dismiss a cause with prejudice for failure of a plaintiff to comply timely with an order of the court.	Can the trial judge properly dismiss a cause with prejudice for failure of a plaintiff to comply timely with an order of court?
6105	State ex rel. Reed v. Reardon, 41 S.W.3d 470, 473 (Mo. 2001)	4	In terms of justiciability, a cause of action is moot when the question presented for decision seeks a judgment upon some matter which, if the judgment was rendered, would not have any practical effect upon any then existing controversy.	In terms of justiciability, " '[a] cause of action is moot when the question presented for decision seeks a judgment upon some matter which, if the judgment was rendered, would not have any practical effect upon any then existing controversy.' "	Will a case be moot if a judgment rendered has no practical effect upon an existing controversy?
6107	Parfi Holding AB v. Mirror Image Internet, 954 A.2d 911, 933 (Del. Ch. 2008)	3	When a party makes materially misleading statements to the court in order to gain an advantage, that court has clear authority to dismiss a plaintiff's action for failure to comply with its Rules.	When a party makes materially misleading statements to the court in order to gain an advantage, a court has "clear" authority to dismiss a plaintiff's action for failure to comply with its Rules.	Does that court have authority to dismiss a plaintiff's action for failure to comply with its Rules?
6108	Kedy v. A.W. Chesterton Co., 946 A.2d 1171, 1183 (R.I. 2008)	21	In most cases, when a court can readily determine that it lacks jurisdiction over the cause or the defendant, the proper course would be to dismiss on that ground, rather than forum non conveniens.	However, in most cases, when a court can "readily determine that it lacks jurisdiction over the cause or the defendant, the proper course would be to dismiss on that ground." Id. [22] [23] [24] The forum non conveniens inquiry consists of a two-prong analysis.	"When a court can readily determine that it lacks jurisdiction over the cause or the defendant, would the proper course be to dismiss on that ground?"
6109	MBIA Ins. Corp. v. Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., 936 N.Y.S.2d 513, 518 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2012)	1	When moving to dismiss an affirmative defense, the plaintiff bears the burden of demonstrating that the affirmative defense is without merit as a matter of law because it either does not apply under the factual circumstances of the case or fails to state a defense. McKinney's CPLR 3211(b).	When moving to dismiss an affirmative defense, the plaintiff bears the burden of demonstrating that the affirmative defense is without merit as a matter of law because it either does not apply under the factual circumstances of the case or fails to state a defense.	What would a plaintiff have to demonstrate when moving to dismiss affirmative defense?
6110	Giers Imp. Corp. v. Inv. Serv., 235 S.W.2d 355, 358 (Mo. 1950)	1	The power to tax is a governmental function inherent in the state and exercised by legislature subject to constitutional limitation, but there are matters governmental in character, including taxation, over which a city may exercise authority delegated to it.	Plaintiffs-appellants are correct in urging that the power to tax is a governmental function inherent in the State (more precisely stated, 'inherent in the sovereign people of the State'), exercised by the legislature subject to constitutional limitation. But there are matters governmental in character, including taxation, over which a city may exercise authority delegated to it.	Do the state department exercising taxing power exercise purely governmental functions?

6111	Stoker v. Workers' Comp. Fund of Utah, 889 P.2d 409, 411 (1994)	3	Workers' Compensation Act is comprehensive statutory scheme that provides remedies for injuries to workers occurring in course of their employment, irrespective of fault, in lieu of common-law tort actions. U.C.A.1953, 35-1-1 et seq.	The Workers' Compensation Act is a comprehensive statutory scheme that provides remedies for injuries to workers occurring in the course of their employment, irrespective of fault, in lieu of common law tort actions.	Is the statutory scheme of the Workers Compensation Act in lieu of common law tort actions?
6112	Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Tucker, 3 Va. App. 116, 121 (1986)	5	When rights of a claimant are not at stake, Workers' Compensation Act clearly leaves litigants to their common-law remedies, with pleading requirements, broader discovery, and more stringent rules of evidence not applicable under the Act. Code 1950, S 65.1-1 et seq.	When the rights of the claimant are not at stake, the Act clearly leaves the litigants to their common law remedies, with the pleading requirements, broader discovery and the more stringent rules of evidence not applicable under the Act.	"When the rights of claimants are not at stake, does the Workers Compensation Act leave litigants to their common law remedies?"
6113	Comm'r Of Prob. v. Adams, 65 Mass. App. Ct. 725, 731, 843 N.E.2d 1101, 1107 (2006)	10	Upon a finding of fraud on the court, judges may enter default judgments, dismiss claims, or dismiss entire actions.	It is well established that, upon a finding of fraud on the court, judges may enter default judgments, dismiss claims, or dismiss entire actions.	"Upon a finding of fraud on the court, can judges enter default judgments, dismiss claims, or dismiss entire actions?"
6114	W. Auto Supply Co. v. Banner, 288 S.W.2d 402, 404-05 (Mo. App. 1956)	6	A cause should not be dismissed as moot where it is disclosed that public interest is involved, even though plaintiff has received precise relief sought as result of defendant's voluntary act.	Plaintiff is correct in asserting that a cause should not be dismissed as moot where it is disclosed that public interest is involved, and this is true even though plaintiff has received the precise relief sought as the result of defendant's voluntary act.	Should a cause be dismissed as moot where it is disclosed that public interest is involved?
6115	United States v. Chandler, 72 F. Supp. 230, 233 (D. Mass. 1947)	7	The statute declaring that whoever, owing allegiance to the United States, levies war against them or adheres to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort within the United States or elsewhere, is guilty of treason, is directed at crime of treason wherever the treasonable acts are committed, whether territorially or extra-territorially, and in so defining the locus of the crime of treason does not violate the constitutional definition thereof. 18 U.S.C.A. S 2381; U.S.C.A.Const. art. 3, S 3.	Section 1 of the Criminal Code, 18 U.S.C.A. 1, reads as follows: 'Whoever, owing allegiance to the United States, levies war against them or adheres to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort within the United States or elsewhere, is guilty of treason.' This statute, if given a natural meaning, seems directed at the crime of treason wherever the treasonable acts are committed, whether territorially or extra-territorially.	Does giving aid and comfort to an enemy outside the United States constitute treason?
6116	Badette v. Rodriguez, 2014 IL App (1st) 133004, ¶ 16, 22 N.E.3d 1210, 1215	2	A motion to dismiss based upon certain defects or defenses admits the legal sufficiency of a claim but asserts affirmative matter that defeats the claim. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619(a).	A motion to dismiss pursuant to section 2-619 of the Code admits the legal sufficiency of a claim but asserts affirmative matter that defeats the claim.	Will a motion to dismiss based upon certain defects or defenses admit the legal sufficiency of a claim or assert affirmative matter that defeats the claim?
6117	D & S Builders v. Mickey Const. Co., 524 So. 2d 245, 246 (La. Ct. App. 1988)	1	Abandonment proceedings should be given liberal interpretation, and any action or step taken by plaintiff to move case toward judgment should be considered. LSA-C.C.P. art. 561.	Abandonment proceedings in accordance with Article 561 should be given a liberal interpretation, and any action or step taken by a plaintiff to move his case toward judgment should be considered.	Will courts give a liberal interpretation of statute related to abandonment proceeding in favor of any action or step taken by plaintiff to move his case forward?

6118	Adams ex rel. Andrews v. Kallman, 365 Mich. 519, 522, 113 N.W.2d 773, 774-75 (1962)	2	When it appears by record that action by court would be futile, by reason of lapse of time, resulting in a change in circumstances, the case will be dismissed.	We reiterate the rule that when it appears by the record that action by the Court would be futile, by reason of the lapse of time, resulting in a change in circumstances, the case will be dismissed.	"Will a case be dismissed when it appears by record that action by court would be futile, by reason of lapse of time?"
6119	527 S. Clinton v. Westloop Equities, 403 Ill. App. 3d 42, 48-49, 932 N.E.2d 1127, 1134 (2010)	3	A motion for involuntary dismissal admits the legal sufficiency of the complaint and raises defects, defenses, or other affirmative matters that defeat the claim; such a motion should be granted if, after construing the pleadings and supporting documents in a light most favorable to the nonmoving party, the court finds that no set of facts can be proved upon which relief can be granted. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	A section 2-619 motion to dismiss admits the legal sufficiency of the complaint and raises defects, defenses, or other affirmative matters that defeat the claim. Cohen v. McDonald's Corp., 347 Ill.App.3d 627, 632, 283 Ill.Dec. 451, 808 N.E.2d 1 (2004). Such a motion should be granted if, after construing the pleadings and *49 supporting documents in a light most favorable to the nonmoving party, the court finds that no set of facts can be proved upon which relief can be granted.	Can the court construe the pleadings and any supporting documentary evidence in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party?
6120	A.F.P. Enterprises v. Crescent Pork, 243 Ill. App. 3d 905, 912 (Ill. App. Ct. 1993)	11	"Affirmative matter" as used in rule governing involuntary dismissal based on certain defects or defenses, means type of defense that either negates alleged cause of action completely or refutes conclusions of law or conclusions of material fact unsupported by allegations of specific fact contained in or inferred from complaint; where affirmative matter is merely evidence upon which defendant expects to contest ultimate fact stated in complaint, rule should not be used. Ill.Rev.Stat.1991, ch. 110, P 2-619(a)(9).	Affirmative matter as used in section 2-619(a)(9) of the Code of Civil Procedure (Code) is a type of defense that either negates an alleged cause of action completely or refutes conclusions of law or conclusions of material fact unsupported by allegations of specific fact contained in or inferred from the complaint. By contrast, where the affirmative matter is merely evidence upon which defendant expects to contest an ultimate fact stated in the complaint, section 2-619(a)(9) should not be used.	Does an affirmative matter include evidence upon which defendant expects to contest an ultimate fact stated in the complaint?
6122	Sel. Ins. Co. of S.C. v. Cherrytree Companies, Inc., 998 N.E.2d 701, 705 (Ill. App. 3d Dist. 2013)	2	When ruling on a motion for involuntary dismissal based on certain defects or defenses, a court must accept as true all well-pleaded facts, as well as any reasonable inferences that may arise from them, but a court cannot accept as true mere conclusions unsupported by specific facts.	"When ruling on such motions, a court must accept as true all well-pleaded facts, as well as any reasonable inferences that may arise from them [citation], but a court cannot accept as true mere conclusions unsupported by specific facts."	"Can the legal sufficiency of the complaint be admitted under the ""involuntary dismissal based upon certain defects or defenses"" statute?"
6123	Fleming v. Barnett Bank of E. Polk Cty., 490 So. 2d 126, 127 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1986)	2	Record activity sufficient to preclude dismissal must be an affirmative act that is reasonably calculated to hasten the suit to judgment.	The concern which prompted our en banc hearing is the principle that record activity sufficient to preclude dismissal must be an affirmative act that is reasonably calculated to hasten the suit to judgment.	Should a record activity sufficient to preclude dismissal be an affirmative act that is reasonably calculated to hasten the suit to judgment?

6124	Patrick Eng'g v. City of Naperville, 2012 IL 113148, ¶ 31 (2012)	3	When ruling on motions to dismiss, a court must accept as true all well-pleaded facts, as well as any reasonable inferences that may arise from them; but a court cannot accept as true mere conclusions unsupported by specific facts.	When ruling on such motions, a court must accept as true all well-pleaded facts, as well as any reasonable inferences that may arise from them (Doe v. Chicago Board of Education, 213 Ill.2d 19, 23-24, 289 Ill.Dec. 642, 820 N.E.2d 418 (2004)), but a court cannot accept as true mere conclusions unsupported by specific facts...	Will the court accept all well-pleaded facts and any reasonable inferences drawn as true?
6128	Landon v. Plasencia, 459 U.S. 21, 32 (1982)	14	Once an alien gains admission to the United States and begins to develop the ties that go with permanent residence, his constitutional status changes accordingly.	[H]owever, once an alien gains admission to our country and begins to develop the ties that go with permanent residence his constitutional status changes accordingly.	Does the constitutional status of an alien change when he gains admission into the United States and begins to develop ties that go with permanent residence?
6133	Wright v. Prudential Ins. Co. of Am., 551 S.W.2d 697, 699 (Tenn. 1977)	3	It takes both payment of benefits and passage of one year from date of death of insured without filing of claim by beneficiary under the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance Act to discharge insurer's liability under group life policy. 38 U.S.C.A. § 770(b).	It takes both the payment of benefits and the passage of one year from the date of death of the insured without the filing of a claim by a beneficiary under the Act to discharge appellant's liability under the group policy of life insurance.	When will the appellants liability under the group life insurance policy be discharged?
6134	Triffin v. Dillabough, 448 Pa. Super. 72, 91, 670 A.2d 684, 693 (1996)	23	Purpose of Uniform Commercial Code (UCC) is to meet contemporary needs of fast-moving commercial society, and to enhance marketability of negotiable instruments, allowing bankers, brokers and general public to trade in confidence.	Our conclusion is consistent with the purpose of the Uniform Commercial Code "to meet the contemporary needs of a fast moving commercial society," Arcuri v. Weiss, 198 Pa.Super. 506, 510, 184 A.2d 24, 26 (1962), and to "enhance the marketability of negotiable instruments [allowing] bankers, brokers, and the general public to trade in confidence."	Was the Commercial Code formed to enhance the marketability of negotiable instruments?
6136	Shapera v. Allegheny Cnty., 344 Pa. 473, 477, 25 A.2d 566, 568 (1941)	4	The statutory directions for the creation and abolishment of public highways must be strictly complied with, since such highways are within the control of the commonwealth, and counties and townships have no common-law power to build or improve roads. 16 P.S. § 916.	Since, as already indicated, public highways are within the control of the commonwealth and counties and townships do not have any common-law power to build or improve roads, it is well settled that the statutory directions for their creation and abolishment must be strictly complied with.	Do counties have common-law power to improve roads?
6137	Cuka v. State, 80 S.D. 232, 236, 122 N.W.2d 83, 85 (1963)	2	In absence of express statutory authorization otherwise, when state acquires private property for highway right of way it merely acquires easement and the title remains in abutting landowner.	However, in the absence of express statutory authorization otherwise, when the state acquires private property for highway right of way it merely acquires an easement and fee title remains in the abutting landowner.	What rights does the state acquire on a highway in the absence of a statutory authority?

6138	Pioneer Bank & Tr. Co. v. Austin Bank of Chicago, 279 Ill. App. 3d 9, 14 (1996)	7	When nature of statements are such that plaintiff must know which statement is true, inconsistent pleading is improper; pleading will be deemed ambiguous, with any doubt resolved against pleader. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-613(b).	However, when the nature of the statements are such that the plaintiff must know which statement is true, inconsistent pleading is improper; the pleading will be deemed ambiguous, with any doubt resolved against the pleader.	Is inconsistent pleading improper when the nature of the statements are such that the plaintiff must know which statement is true?
6139	Plumpton v. Cont'l Acreage Dev. Co., 743 So. 2d 554, 555 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1999)	1	When motion to dismiss for lack of prosecution is filed by defendant, plaintiff must show either active prosecution within preceding year or good cause for his failure to prosecute. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(e).	When a motion to dismiss for lack of prosecution is filed by the defendant the plaintiff must show either active prosecution within the preceding year or good cause for his failure to prosecute.	What should a plaintiff show when motion to dismiss for lack of prosecution is filed by a defendant?
6142	Brister v. Manville Forest Prod., 749 So. 2d 881, 883 (La.App. 2 Cir.,1999)	2	Provision governing abandonment of action is to be liberally interpreted and any action or step taken to move the case toward judgment should be considered; provision was not intended to dismiss those cases in which the plaintiff has clearly demonstrated that he does not intend to abandon the action. LSA-C.C.P. art. 561.	Article 561 is to be liberally interpreted and any action or step taken to move the case toward judgment should be considered; article 561 was not intended to dismiss those cases in which the plaintiff has clearly demonstrated that he does not intend to abandon the action.	Should any action or step taken to move a case toward judgment be considered?
6143	Williamson v. Village of Baskin, 339 So. 2d 474, 476 (La. App. 2d Cir. 1976)	2	Person may maintain more than one residence, and fact that one is maintained for political purposes does not itself prevent residence from being actual and bona fide; intent to maintain residence is important factor, but intent alone does not establish bona fide residence; there must be actual, physical use or occupation of quarters for living purposes before residence is established.	A person may maintain more than one residence and the fact that one is maintained for political purposes does not itself prevent the residence from being actual and bona fide. Intent to maintain a residence is an important factor, but intent alone does not establish a bona fide residence. There must be actual, physical use or occupation of quarters for living purposes before residence is established.	Does maintaining a residence for political purposes prevent the residence from being actual or bona fide?
6144	Barlow v. Cornwell, 125 A.2d 63, 67 (D.C. 1956)	6	Generally notice to, or knowledge of, an acting partner with respect to any matter relating to a transaction within the ordinary scope of firm's business is notice or knowledge as to all the partners, however where one member is acting beyond his power, or is conducting a fraud on his partners, or is the person whose duty it is to give his firm notice of what he himself has done, notice on his part is not equivalent to notice by all partners.	It is true, as appellant says, that generally notice to, or knowledge of, an acting partner with respect to any matter relating to a transaction within the ordinary scope of the firm's business is notice or knowledge as to all the partners. 6 This rule however is not without exception. It has been held that "Where one member is acting beyond his power, or is conducting a fraud on his partners, or is the person whose duty it is to give his firm notice of what he himself has done, in all such cases notice on his part is not equivalent to notice by them."	Is knowledge by one partner with respect to any matter relating to a transaction within the ordinary scope of the partnership business considered knowledge to all partners?

6145	Dick v. Am. Motors Sales Corp., 14 Ohio App. 3d 322, 323, 471 N.E.2d 521, 522 (1984)	1	Trial court has power to dismiss case where litigant fails to meet his duty of compliance with reasonable orders of the court or to diligently prosecute the case.	A trial court has the power to dismiss a case where the litigant fails to meet his duty of compliance with reasonable orders of the court, or to diligently prosecute his case.	Does a trial court have power to dismiss a case where a litigant fails to meet his duty of compliance with reasonable orders of the court?
6146	Welch v. Henry, 305 U.S. 134, 146 (1938)	17	"Taxation" is neither a penalty imposed on the taxpayer nor a liability which he assumes by contract, but it is a way of apportioning the cost of government among those who in some measure are privileged to enjoy its benefits and must bear its burdens.	Taxation is neither a penalty imposed on the taxpayer nor a liability which he assumes by contract. It is but a way of apportioning the cost of government among those who in some measure are privileged to enjoy its benefits and must bear its burdens.	Is taxation a way of apportioning the cost of government?
6147	United States v. Allegheny Cty., Pa., 322 U.S. 174, 184, 64 S. Ct. 908, 914, 88 L. Ed. 1209 (1944)	7	Where a federal right is concerned, the Supreme Court is not bound by the characterization given to a state tax by state courts or legislatures, or relieved of duty of considering the real nature of the tax and its effect upon the federal right asserted.	Where a federal right is concerned we are not bound by the characterization given to a state tax by state courts or Legislatures, or relieved by it from the duty of considering the real nature of the tax and its effect upon the federal right asserted.	"Where a federal right is concerned, should the court consider the nature of the tax?"
6148	Solo v. Chrysler Corp., 408 Mich. 345, 353-54 (1980)	8	Though statutory safeguards found in workers' compensation legislation may make equitable relief unnecessary in a particular case, they do not divest the court of its equitable powers altogether.	It may be that the statutory safeguards in the workers' compensation legislation will make equitable relief unnecessary in a particular case. But *354 they are only factors to be considered; they do not divest the court of its equitable powers altogether.	Will the statutory safeguards in the workers' compensation legislation divest the court of its equitable powers?
6149	Innovative Data Sys. of Louisiana v. Ellender, 316 So. 2d 12, 14 (La. Ct. App. 1975)	6	It is permissible for petition to set forth two or more causes of action in the alternative even though legal or factual bases thereof may be inconsistent or mutually exclusive. LSA-C.C.P. art. 892.	In a case such as this, it is permissible that a petition may set forth two or more causes of action in the alternative, even though the legal or factual bases thereof may be inconsistent or mutually exclusive.	Can a petition set forth two or more causes of action in the alternative?
6150	Ferer v. Erickson & Sederstrom, P.C., 272 Neb. 113, 114, 718 N.W.2d 501, 503 (2006)	13	While a court's consideration of a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim is generally confined to the allegations in the complaint, a court may take judicial notice of matters of public record without converting the motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment. Pleading Rule 12(b)(6).	However, while a court's consideration of a rule 12(b)(6) motion is generally confined to the allegations in the complaint, a court may take judicial notice of " 'matters of public record' " without converting a rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss into a motion for summary judgment.	Can a court typically look only at face of complaint to decide a motion to dismiss?
6151	Medley v. Lemmon, 994 N.E.2d 1177, 1182 (Ind. Ct. App. 2013)	1	A motion to dismiss a civil complaint for failure to state a claim tests the legal sufficiency of a claim, not the facts supporting it; that is to say, it tests whether the allegations in the complaint establish any set of circumstances under which a plaintiff would be entitled to relief. Trial Procedure Rule 12(B)(6).	A motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim tests the legal sufficiency of the complaint, not the facts supporting it. Thus, the motion tests whether the allegations in the complaint establish any set of circumstances under which a plaintiff would be entitled to relief.	"Does a motion to dismiss a complaint for failure to state a claim test the legal sufficiency of a claim, not the facts supporting it?"

6152	Boyer v. Bedrosian, 57 A.3d 259, 270 (R.I. 2012)	5	A motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim challenges the sufficiency of the complaint about whether it fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Superior Court Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(6).	A motion under Rule 12(b)(6) challenges the sufficiency of the complaint about whether it fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.	Does a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim challenge the sufficiency of the complaint about whether it fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted?
6155	Lainhart v. State, 916 N.E.2d 924, 939 (Ind. Ct. App. 2009)	31	Mere proof that the victim is engaged in an act which is not illegal at the time the threat is made is not sufficient to establish Class A misdemeanor intimidation; the state must also establish that the legal act occurred prior to the threat and that the defendant intended to place the victim in fear of retaliation for that act. West's A.I.C. 35-45-2-1(a).	Mere proof that the victim is engaged in an act which is not illegal at the time the threat is made is not sufficient. Id. The State must establish that the legal act occurred prior to the threat and that the defendant intended to place the victim in fear of retaliation for that act. Id.	"When challenging the sufficiency of the evidence of the intimidation element of intent to place the victim in fear of retaliation for prior lawful conduct, is mere proof that the victim is engaged in an act which is not illegal at the time the threat is made sufficient?"
6156	Nassau v. State, 311 Ga. App. 438, 441 (2011)	3	A determination of whether a defendant has committed the crime of making terroristic threats focuses solely on the conduct of the accused and is completed when the threat is communicated to the victim with the intent to terrorize. West's Ga.Code Ann. S 16-11-37.	A determination of whether a defendant has committed "[t]he crime of making terroristic threats focuses solely on the conduct of the accused and is completed when the threat is communicated to the victim with the intent to terrorize."	Is the determination of whether a defendant has made a terroristic threat focus solely on the conduct of the accused?
6157	Poirier v. Town of Plymouth, 374 Mass. 206, 220 (1978)	27	Workmen's Compensation Act effectively displaced need to apply common-law principles in most cases of employee injury, but common-law principles as to liability continue to have vitality where Act does not apply. M.G.L.A. c. 152 S 1 et seq.	The Workmen's Compensation Act effectively displaced the need to apply common law principles in most cases of employee injury, but the common law principles as to liability continue to have vitality where G.L. c. 152 does not apply.	Did the Workmen's Compensation Act displaced the need to apply common law principles in cases of employee injury?
6163	Shibata v. Lim, 133 F. Supp. 2d 1311, 1320 (M.D. Fla. 2000)	11	Under federal and Florida law, party may allege, in alternative, recovery under express contract and entitlement to equitable relief under theory of unjust enrichment. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 8(a)(1), 28 U.S.C.A.	However, both the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and Florida law permit a party to allege, in the alternative, recovery under an express contract and seek equitable relief under the theory of unjust enrichment. See Fed.R.Civ.P. 8(a)(1);	"Can a party allege in the alternative, recovery under an express contract and seek equitable relief under the theory of unjust enrichment?"
6164	Elworthy v. First Tennessee Bank, 391 P.3d 1113, 1123 (Wyo. 2017)	12	When the complaint shows the existence of a built-in defense, a notice to dismiss lies; in such circumstances, a plaintiff is required to plead the factual allegations that would prevent operation of the built-in defense.	We have held that "[w]hen the complaint shows the existence of a built-in defense, a notice to dismiss lies." Weber v. Johnston Fuel Liners, Inc., 540 P.2d 535, 540 (Wyo. 1975) (citing Vossler v. Peterson, 480 P.2d 393, 394 (Wyo. 1971)). In such circumstances, a plaintiff is required to plead the factual allegations that would prevent operation of the built-in defense.	"When the complaint shows the existence of a built-in defense, does a notice to dismiss lie?"

6169	Bob Timberlake Collection v. Edwards, 176 N.C. App. 33, 43 (N.C.App., 2006)	26	When a complaint states a valid claim but also discloses an unconditional affirmative defense which defeats the asserted claim, a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim will be granted and the action dismissed. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12, West's N.C.G.S.A. S 1A-1(b)(6).	Furthermore, when a complaint states a valid claim but also discloses an unconditional affirmative defense which defeats the asserted claim, the motion to dismiss will be granted and the action dismissed.	What happens when a complaint states a valid claim and discloses an unconditional affirmative defense which defeats the asserted claim?
6170	Kling v. Landry, 292 Ill. App. 3d 329, 339 (1997)	23	Plaintiff's failure to take any action as ordered by trial court evidences want of prosecution by that party, and trial court may dismiss suit for failure of complainant to prosecute it with due diligence.	A plaintiff's failure to take any action as ordered by the trial court evidences want of prosecution by that party, and the trial court may dismiss a suit for the failure of the complainant to prosecute it with due diligence.	Can court dismiss suit for failure of complainant to prosecute it with due diligence?
6171	Kettle Range Conservation Group v. Washington Dep't of Nat. Res., 85 P.3d 894, 904-05 (Wash. App. Div. 2 2003)	2	Appellate court may overturn decision of Forest Practices Appeals Board (FPAB) only if agency has erroneously interpreted or applied the law or FPAB's order is not supported by evidence that is substantial when viewed in light of the whole record before the court. West's RCWA 34.05.570(3)(d, e).	The APA governs appeals from Forest Practices Appeals Board decisions. RCW 76.09.230(5). Accordingly, we may overturn the [Board's] decision only if [t]he agency has erroneously interpreted or applied the law or [t]he order is not supported by evidence that is substantial when viewed in light of the whole record before the court. RCW 34.05.570(3)(d), (e).	Under what circumstance can the decision of the Forest Practices Appeals Board (FPAB) be overturned?
6172	W. Radio Services Co., Inc. v. Allen, 147 F. Supp. 3d 1132, 1145 (D. Or. 2015)	19	Under Oregon law, the theory of unjust enrichment provides a remedy where no enforceable contract exists, and (1) one party has conferred a benefit on another, (2) the recipient is aware that a benefit has been received, and (3) under the circumstances, it would be unjust to allow retention of the benefit without requiring the recipient to pay for it.	The theory of unjust enrichment provides a remedy where no enforceable contract exists, and 1) one party has conferred a benefit on another, 2) the recipient is aware that a benefit has been received, and 3) "under the circumstances, it would be unjust to allow retention of the benefit without requiring the recipient to pay for it."	What is quasi-contractual claim of unjust enrichment?
6174	In re Veal, 450 B.R. 897, 912 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2011)	16	Rules to determine who is entitled to enforce promissory note are concerned primarily with maker of note and are designed to provide the maker with relatively simple way of determining whom he must pay in order to avoid defaulting on obligation; in contrast, rules concerning transfer of ownership and other interests in note identify who, among competing claimants, is entitled to the note's economic value, i.e., the value of maker's promise to pay.	This distinction further recognizes that the rules that determine who is entitled to enforce a note are concerned primarily with the maker of the note. They are designed to provide for the maker a relatively simple way of determining to whom the obligation is owed and, thus, whom the maker must pay in order to avoid defaulting on the obligation. UCC 3-602(a), (c). By contrast, the rules concerning transfer of ownership and other interests in a note identify who, among competing claimants, is entitled to the note's economic value (that is, the value of the maker's promise to pay).	Who are the rules that determine who is entitled to enforce a note concerned with?

6175	Dover Historical Soc. v. City of Dover Planning Comm'n, 838 A.2d 1103, 1110 (Del. 2003)	6	In ruling upon a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, the relevant universe of facts are ordinarily confined to the allegations of the petition; accordingly, as a general rule, factual matters outside the petition may not be considered in ruling upon a motion to dismiss. Superior Court Civil Rule 12(b)(6).	In ruling upon a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss, the relevant universe of facts are ordinarily confined to the allegations of the petition. 19 Accordingly, as a general rule, factual matters outside the petition may not be considered in ruling upon a motion to dismiss.	"In ruling upon a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, is the relevant universe of facts ordinarily confined to the allegations of the petition?"
6176	Williams v. Frederick's Est., 7 N.E.2d 384, 386 (Ill. App. 3d Dist. 1937)	1	Negotiable notes may be assigned by separate instruments without indorsement so as to vest legal title in assignee provided note is also transferred to assignee by delivery. S.H.A. ch. 98, SS 2, 51, 69.	It is true that a note may be assigned by a separate instrument without indorsement so as to vest the legal title in the assignee, provided, the note is also transferred by delivery to the assignee.	Can a note be assigned by a separate instrument without indorsement so as to vest a legal title in an assignee?
6178	Arnold v. Goldstein, 344 Mich. 103, 106, 73 N.W.2d 272, 273 (1955)	1	One injured while momentarily standing in the highway and when not in motion is not per se guilty of contributory negligence, and the offending party is not exonerated from all duty and from liability by the fact that he is not in motion.	560, 561, we stated: 'Numerous decisions of courts of last resort hold, and we think they should be followed, that one injured while momentarily standing in the highway and when not in motion is not per se guilty of contributory negligence, and that the offending party is not exonerated from all duty and from liability by the fact that he is not in motion.'	Is one who is injured while momentarily standing in the highway not in motion guilty of contributory negligence?
6180	Baycon Indus. v. Shea, 714 So. 2d 1094, 1095 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1998)	2	Motion to dismiss is not a substitute for a motion for summary judgment, and in ruling on a motion to dismiss a complaint the trial court is confined to consideration of the allegations found within the four corners of the complaint. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.510.	A motion to dismiss is not a substitute for a motion for summary judgment, and in ruling on a motion to dismiss a complaint the trial court is confined to consideration of the allegations found within the four corners of the complaint.	"In ruling on a motion to dismiss, should a trial court confine itself to the four corners of the complaint?"
6181	Barkany Asset Recovery & Mgmt. v. Sw. Sec. Inc., 41 Misc. 3d 673, 677-78, 972 N.Y.S.2d 458 (N.Y. Sup. 2013)	1	Although evidentiary material may be considered in determining the viability of a complaint, the complaint should not be dismissed for failing to state a cause of action unless defendant has established that a material fact alleged by the plaintiff is not a fact at all and that no significant dispute exists regarding it. McKinney's CPLR 3211(a)(7).	Although evidentiary material may be considered in determining the viability of a complaint, the complaint should not be dismissed unless defendant has established "that a material fact alleged by the *678 plaintiff is not a fact at all and that no significant dispute exists regarding it"	Can evidentiary material be considered in determining the viability of a complaint?

6183	Becky v. Norwest Bank Dillon, N.A., 245 Mont. 1, 8, 798 P.2d 1011, 1015–16 (1990)	5	Party moving for dismissal for failure to prosecute must demonstrate that plaintiff has delayed action on a claim for an unreasonable period of time and once delay has been shown, plaintiff must proffer a reasonable excuse for the delay; an unreasonable delay raises a presumption of prejudice and defendant is under no obligation to demonstrate injury from the delay, but if plaintiff comes forward with a reasonable excuse for the delay, burden shifts to defendant to show actual prejudice. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	The party moving for dismissal must demonstrate that the plaintiff has delayed action on the claim for an unreasonable period of time. Once an unreasonable delay has been shown, the plaintiff must proffer a reasonable excuse for the delay. Calaway v. Jones, 177 Mont. 516, 520, 582 P.2d 756, 758 (1978). An unreasonable delay raises a presumption of prejudice to the defendant, and the defendant is under no obligation to demonstrate injury from the delay. Shackleton, 207 Mont. at 102, 672 P.2d at 1115. However, if the plaintiff comes forward with a reasonable excuse for the delay, the burden shifts to the defendant to show actual prejudice.	"Should party moving for dismissal for failure to prosecute, demonstrate that plaintiff has delayed action on a claim for an unreasonable period of time?"
6184	Sabel v. Mead Johnson & Co., 737 F. Supp. 135, 138 (D. Mass. 1990)	3	Agency relationship has three essential characteristics: power of agent to alter legal relationships between principal and third parties and principal and himself, existence of fiduciary relationship toward principal with respect to matters within scope of agency, and right of principal to control agent's conduct with respect to matters within scope of agency.	An agency relationship has three essential characteristics: 1) the power of the agent to alter the legal relationships between the principal and third parties and the principal and himself; 2) the existence of a fiduciary relationship toward the principal with respect to matters within the scope of the agency; and 3) the right of the principal to control the agent's conduct with respect to matters within the scope of the agency.	What are the essential characteristics of an agency?
6186	Gifford Pinchot Task Force v. U.S. Fish & Wildlife Serv., 378 F.3d 1059, 1071 (9th Cir. 2004)	8	In the context of agency review, the role of harmless error is constrained; the doctrine may be employed only when a mistake of the administrative body is one that clearly had no bearing on the procedure used or the substance of decision reached.	In the context of agency review, the role of harmless error is constrained. The doctrine may be employed only "when a mistake of the administrative body is one that clearly had no bearing on the procedure used or the substance of decision reached."	When can the harmless error doctrine be employed?
6189	Bilbrey v. Smithers, 937 S.W.2d 803, 808–09 (Tenn. 1996)	7	When one recognizes another's title or is instrumental in another's acquiring title he is estopped to afterwards deny that title, and privies of grantor or grantee are estopped to same extent as original parties to deed.	"Where one recognizes another's title or is instrumental in another's acquiring title he is estopped to afterwards deny that title." Spicer v. Kimes, 25 Tenn.App. 247, 156 S.W.2d 334, 337 (1941). "The privies of a grantor or grantee are estopped to the same extent as the original parties to the deed."	"Where one recognizes another's title or is instrumental in another's acquiring title, is he estopped to afterwards deny that title?"

6190	Aspenhof Corp. v. State Tax Comm'n of Missouri, 789 S.W.2d 867, 869 (Mo. Ct. App. 1990)	7	Methods of calculating true value in money when assessing property include sales comparison or market data approach, income approach, replacement cost approach, and cost of construction approach; method used depends on several variables inherent in highest and best use of property in question.	There are several methods to calculate true value in money when assessing property: the sales comparison or market data approach, the income approach, the replacement cost approach, and the cost of construction approach, to name just four. St. Louis County v. Security Bonhomme, Inc., 558 S.W.2d 655, 659 (Mo. banc 1977). The method used depends on several variables inherent in the highest and best use of the property in question.	What are the methods used to calculate true value in money when assessing property or real estate?
6191	Plaza PH2001 LLC v. Plaza Residential Owner LP, 947 N.Y.S.2d 498, 505 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dept. 2012)	6	Amended complaint must be analyzed as must any complaint on a motion to dismiss, construing the complaint liberally, accepting as true the facts alleged, and according the plaintiff the benefit of every possible inference. McKinney's CPLR 3211.	The amended complaint must therefore be analyzed must any complaint on a CPLR 3211 motion; we construe the complaint liberally, accepting as true the facts alleged, and according plaintiff the benefit of every possible inference (see 511 W. 232nd Owners Corp. v. Jennifer Realty Co., 98 N.Y.2d 144, 151–152, 746 N.Y.S.2d 131, 773 N.E.2d 496 [2002]).	Should an amended complaint be analyzed as must any complaint on a motion to dismiss?
6192	McWhirter Reeves, etc. v. Weiss, 704 So. 2d 214, 215 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1998)	1	Motion to dismiss tests legal sufficiency of complaint to state a cause of action and is not intended to determine issues of ultimate fact. West's F.S.A. RCrP Rule 1.140(b)(6).	[1] [2] A motion to dismiss, filed pursuant to Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.140(b)(6), tests the legal sufficiency of a complaint to state a cause of action and is not intended to determine issues of ultimate fact.	Does a motion to dismiss test the legal sufficiency of complaint to state a cause of action?
6193	Defalco v. Off. of Ct. Mgt., 57 N.E.3d 1065 (Mass. App. 2016)	2	Judges may consider exhibits attached to a complaint without converting a motion to dismiss to one for summary judgment. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 10(b), 43A M.G.L.A.	Moreover, judges may consider exhibits attached to a complaint without converting a motion to dismiss to one for summary judgment.	Can judges consider exhibits attached to a complaint without converting a motion to dismiss to one for summary judgment?
6194	Cumberland Farms, Inc. v. Dubois, 154 Conn. App. 448, 107 A.3d 995, 457 (Conn. App. Ct. 2014)	7	If a pleading on its face is legally insufficient, although facts may indeed exist which, if properly pleaded, would establish a cause of action upon which relief could be granted, a motion to strike is required; a motion to dismiss, by contrast, properly attacks the jurisdiction of the court, essentially asserting that the plaintiff cannot as a matter of law and fact state a cause of action that should be heard by the court.	"[I]f a pleading ... on its face is legally insufficient, although facts may indeed exist which, if properly pleaded, would establish a cause of action upon which relief could be granted, a motion to strike is required.... A motion to dismiss, by contrast, properly attacks the jurisdiction of the court, essentially asserting that the plaintiff cannot as a matter of law and fact state a cause of action that should be heard by the court."	"If a pleading on its face is legally insufficient, is a motion to strike required?"
6195	Admiral Oriental Line v. United States, 86 F.2d 201, 202 (2d Cir. 1936)	1	An agent, compelled to defend a baseless suit, grounded on acts performed in his principal's business, may recover from principal expenses of his defense.	An agent, compelled to defend a baseless suit, grounded upon acts performed in his principal's business, may recover from the principal the expenses of his defense.	"Can an agent recover from the principal the expenses incurred to defend a baseless suit, grounded upon acts performed in his principal's business?"

6199	Tactuk v. Freiberg, 261 N.Y.S.2d 438, 439 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dept. 1965)	1	Rules providing for dismissal of abandoned cases are not intended to apply where litigation is actually in progress. Supreme Ct. Rules, N.Y. and Queens Counties, rule 2(e); CPLR Rule 3404.	Rule II(e) of the rule for the Supreme Court, Queens County, and CPLR 3404, both of which provide for the dismissal of abandoned cases, suggest a 'presumption,' they were not intended to apply where litigation is 'actually in progress' (Marco v. Sachs, 10 N.Y.2d 542, 550, 226 N.Y.S.2d 353, 357, 181 N.E.2d 392, 395).	Are rules providing for dismissal of abandoned cases intended to apply where litigation is actually in progress?
6200	O'Callaghan v. Satherlie, 2015 IL App (1st) 142152, ¶ 19 (2015)	9	A motion to dismiss based on defects or defenses provides that the motion must be supported by affidavit where the grounds for the motion do not appear on the face of the complaint. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	In comparison, section 2-619 permits dismissal based on certain defects or defenses, and provides that the motion must be supported by affidavit where the grounds for the motion do not appear on the face of the complaint.	Should a motion to dismiss based on defects or defenses provides that the motion be supported by an affidavit where the grounds for the motion do not appear on the face of the complaint?
6201	Moening v. Alaska Mut. Bank, 751 P.2d 5, 8 (Alaska 1988)	8	When note is executed and secured by deed of trust, documents are read and construed together as one contract to ascertain parties' intent.	When a note is executed and secured by a deed of trust, the documents are *9 read and construed together as one contract to ascertain the parties' intent.	"When a note is executed and secured by a deed of trust, is the documents read and construed together as one contract?"
6221	Fiona C. v. Kevin L., 166 Conn. App. 844, 851, 143 A.3d 604, 608 (2016)	7	Stalking in the second degree includes the following elements: (1) that the defendant acting knowingly, (2) that the defendant engaged in a course of conduct directed at the victim, and (3) that such conduct would cause a reasonable person to fear for his or her physical safety or for the physical safety of a third person. C.G.S.A. § 53a-181d(b)(1).	"Stalking in the second degree under 53a-181d (b)(1) includes the following elements: (1) that the respondent acting knowingly, (2) that the respondent engaged in a course of conduct directed at the victim, and (3) that such conduct would cause a reasonable person to fear for his or her physical safety or for the physical safety of a third person."	What are the elements of stalking in the second degree?
6222	State v. Rio, 38 Wash. 2d 446, 451 (1951)	4	A servant, or boarder, or joint occupant of a room is guilty of burglary if he exceeds his rights either with respect to time of entering or room into which he enters, and a servant, or a guest or boarder, with right to be in house, may be convicted of burglary on proof that he broke and entered at a time or place beyond his authority. Rem.Rev.Stat. § 2579.	A servant, or boarder, or joint occupant of a room, * * * is guilty of burglary if he exceeds his rights either with respect to the time of entering or the room into which he enters; and a servant, or a guest or boarder, with the right to be in the house, may be convicted of burglary on proof that he broke and entered at a time or place beyond his authority.'	When is a servant guilty of burglary?
6223	Ebbets Partners, Ltd. v. Day, 171 Ohio App. 3d 20, 22 (Ohio App. 2007)	3	Dismissal without prejudice relieves the trial court of all jurisdiction over the matter, and the action is treated as though it had never been commenced.	Furthermore, "[a] dismissal without prejudice relieves the court of all jurisdiction over the matter, and the action is treated as though it had never been commenced."	"Does a dismissal without prejudice relieve the trial court of all jurisdiction over the matter, and the action is treated as though it had never been commenced?"

6224	Cardiff Equities, Inc. v. Superior Court, 166 Cal. App. 4th 1541, 1550, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 699, 707 (2008)	5	A dismissal "without prejudice" necessarily means without prejudice to the filing of a new action on the same allegations, so long as it is done within the period of the appropriate statute of limitations. West's Ann.Cal.C.C.P. § 581.	"A dismissal 'without prejudice' necessarily means without prejudice to the filing of a new action on the same allegations, so long as it is done within the period of the appropriate statute of limitations.	"Does a dismissal ""without prejudice"" necessarily mean without prejudice to the filing of a new action on the same allegations?"
6225	Johnson v. Smith, 215 N.C. 322, 1 S.E.2d 834, 836 (1939)	2	An essential element of proof of agency is that alleged principal has both right to assign agent's task and to control means and details of process by which agent will accomplish the task.	An essential element of proof of agency is that the alleged principal has both the right to assign the agent's task and to control the means and details of the process by which the agent will accomplish the task.	"Can the right to control the means by which the agent will accomplish the task, be an essential element of proof of agency?"
6226	Zilinmon v. State, 216 S.E.2d 830, 833 (Ga. 1975)	11	Prohibition against the making of illegal threats for purpose of terrorizing another does not include situations where overt acts are done to carry out the threat.	The statute making illegal threats for the purpose of terrorizing another, does not include situations where overt acts are done to carry out the threat.	Does the prohibition against the making of illegal threats for the purpose of terrorizing another include situations where overt acts are done to carry out the threat?
6228	Hilligoss v. Illini Cablevision of Illinois, 294 Ill. App. 3d 282, 288, 689 N.E.2d 650, 654 (1998)	2	On motion to dismiss in which defect in claim is not apparent on face of pleading attacked, motion must be supported by affidavit or documents of similar nature such as depositions and answers to interrogatories. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619(a)(9).	Where the defect is not apparent on the face of the pleading attacked, the motion must be supported by affidavit or documents of a similar nature such as depositions and answers to interrogatories.	"On motion to dismiss in which a defect in a claim is not apparent on a face of a pleading attacked, should a motion be supported by affidavit?"
6230	Singer v. Florida Paving Co., Inc., 459 So. 2d 1146, 1148 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1984)	4	Even though a counterclaim has been dismissed with prejudice, it may be refiled as an independent action while the initial lawsuit remains pending. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(b).	Even though a counterclaim has been dismissed with prejudice, it may be refiled as an independent action while the initial lawsuit remains pending.	"Even though a counterclaim has been dismissed with prejudice, can it be refiled as an independent action while the initial lawsuit remains pending?"
6235	Mobil Oil Corp. v. Linear Films, Inc., 718 F. Supp. 260, 271 (D. Del. 1989)	14	Pure agency relationship may develop between two corporations whether the two are parent and subsidiary or completely unrelated outside of limited agency setting since complete or general domination and control of agent by principal is not required.	The pure agency relationship may develop whether the two separate corporations are parent and subsidiary or are completely unrelated outside of the limited agency setting. Phoenix Canada Oil v. Texaco, 842 F.2d at 1477-78. Complete or general domination and control of the agent by the principal is not required.	Can an agency relationship develop if two separate corporations are completely unrelated outside of the limited agency setting?
6237	Tomlinson v. G.E. Capital Dealer Distrib. Fin., 624 So. 2d 565, 567 (Ala. 1993)	1	Test for determining existence of agency relationship under doctrine of respondeat superior is whether alleged principal reserved right of control over manner of alleged agent's performance.	The test for determining the existence of an agency relationship under the doctrine of respondeat superior is whether the alleged principal reserved a right of control over the manner of the alleged agent's performance.	What is the test for determining the existence of an agency relationship under the doctrine of respondeat superior?

6241	Toll v. Moreno, 458 U.S. 1, 10, 102 S. Ct. 2977, 2982, 73 L. Ed. 2d 563 (1982)	1	Federal authority to regulate status of aliens derives, inter alia, from federal government's constitutional powers to establish uniform rule of naturalization and to regulate commerce with foreign nations and from its broad authority over foreign affairs. U.S.C.A.Const.Art. 1, S 8, cls. 3, 4.	Federal authority to regulate the status of aliens derives from various sources, including the Federal Government's power "[t]o establish [a] uniform Rule of Naturalization," U.S.Const., Art. I, § 8, cl. 4, its power "[t]o regulate Commerce with foreign Nations", id., cl. 3, and its broad authority over foreign affairs, see United States v. Curtiss-Wright Export Corp., 299 U.S. 304, 318, 57 S.Ct. 216, 220, 81 L.Ed. 255 (1936); Mathews v. Diaz, supra, at 81, n. 17, 96 S.Ct., at 1892, n. 17; Harisiades v. Shaughnessy, 342 U.S. 580, 588–589, 72 S.Ct. 512, 518–519, 96 L.Ed. 586 (1952).	Does the federal government have the constitutional power to establish a uniform rule of naturalization?
6242	Purdy and Fitzpatrick v. State, 456 P.2d 645, 652 (Cal. 1969)	3	State can neither add to nor take from conditions lawfully imposed by Congress on admission, naturalization and residence of aliens in United States or several states. Immigration and Nationality Act, S 101 et seq., 8 U.S.C.A. S 1101 et seq.; U.S.C.A.Const. art. 1, S 8, cl. 4.	Under such circumstances the state statute encroaches upon the federal power over immigration; a state 'can neither add to nor take from the conditions lawfully imposed by Congress upon admission, naturalization and residence of aliens in the United States or the several states.'	Can states add to or take from the conditions lawfully imposed by Congress upon the naturalization of aliens in the United States?
6243	Arizona v. United States, 567 U.S. 387, 394–95 (2012)	1	Government of United States has broad, undoubted power over subject of immigration and status of aliens, resting, in part, on its constitutional power to "establish an uniform Rule of Naturalization," and its inherent power as sovereign to control and conduct relations with foreign nations. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 1, S 8, cl. 4.	First, the federal government "has broad, undoubted power over the subject of immigration and the status of aliens," authority that rests on the constitutional power to "establish an uniform Rule of Naturalization," Art. I, § 8, cl. 4, and on the national government's "inherent power as sovereign to control and conduct relations with foreign nations."	Does the federal government have the power to establish a uniform rule of naturalization?
6246	Manassas Park Dev. Co. v. Offutt, 203 Va. 382, 384 (1962)	2	Material facts constituting cause of action must be stated by direct and positive allegations clearly informing opposite party of true nature of claim he is to meet, but alternative pleading is permitted where pleader has no knowledge as to which of two sets of facts should be alleged, and opposite party would be equally liable under either. Supreme Court of Appeals Rules, rule 3:18.	It is not even debatable that under the general rule of pleading, and Rule 3:18 of the rules of this Court, material facts constituting a cause of action shall be stated by direct and positive allegations clearly informing 31 the opposite party of the true nature of the claim he is to meet. But alternative pleading is permitted as a modification of the general rule where the pleader has no knowledge as to which of two sets of facts should be alleged and the opposite party would be equally liable under either.	Should material facts be stated positively and directly?

6247	Kemp-Golden v. Department of Children & Family Services, 281 Ill. App. 3d 869, 879 (1996)	13	Once defendant has satisfied its burden of going forward on its motion asserting affirmative defense, if plaintiff cannot establish defense is unfounded, motion may properly be granted. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619(A)(9).	Once a defendant has satisfied its burden of going forward on its motion asserting an affirmative defense, if the plaintiff cannot establish the defense is unfounded, the motion may properly be granted.	Will a motion be granted once defendant satisfies its burden of going forward on its motion asserting affirmative defense?
6248	Goldberg v. Brooks, 409 Ill. App. 3d 106, 112, 948 N.E.2d 1108, 1114 (2011)	11	While affirmative matter in motion for involuntary dismissal must be more than evidence offered to refute a well-pleaded fact, if facts within an affidavit dispute the allegations of the complaint and are not contradicted by a counteraffidavit, the court must accept the facts in the affidavit as true. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	While affirmative matter must be more than evidence offered to refute a well-pleaded fact, if facts within an affidavit dispute the allegations of the complaint and are not contradicted by a counteraffidavit, the court must accept the facts in the affidavit as true.	Can the court accept facts in affidavit if they dispute allegations of complaint and are not contradicted via counter affidavit?
6250	Gardner v. Hollifield, 96 Idaho 609, 611 (1975)	4	If affirmative defense is not disclosed by complaint itself defense may not be raised by motion to dismiss except for matters outside the pleading are presented to and not excluded by court, in which case, the motion shall be treated as one for summary judgment. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 12(b)(6).	If an affirmative defense is not disclosed by the complaint itself, the defense may not be raised by motion to dismiss, except where 'matters outside the pleading are presented to and not excluded by the court,' in which case 'the motion shall be treated as one for summary judgment.'	When can a motion be treated as one for summary judgement?
6254	Knight v. Trent, 739 S.W.2d 116, 120 (Tex. App. 1987)	7	Term "failure," referred to in Rule 165a(2), is not failure to appear at show cause hearing, but failure to show cause why suit should not be dismissed for want of prosecution, and Rule 165a(2)'s mandatory reinstatement requirement is not triggered until cause is shown why suit should have been dismissed for said want of prosecution. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a, subd. 2.	The "failure" referred to in *120 rule 165a(2) is not the failure to appear at the show cause hearing, but the failure to show cause why the cause of action should not be dismissed and rule 165a(2)'s mandatory reinstatement requirement is not triggered until appellants have shown cause why the case should not be dismissed for want of prosecution.	"Is a term ""failure,"" referred to in Rule 165a(2), not failure to appear at a show cause hearing?"
6255	Price v. Firestone Tire Rubber Co., 700 S.W.2d 730, 732 (Tex. App. 1985)	1	Trial court may dismiss suit for want of prosecution pursuant to either statutory authority of Civil Procedure Rule 165a or trial court's "inherent power." Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a.	The trial court may dismiss a suit for want of prosecution pursuant to either the statutory authority of Rule 165a of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure or the trial court's "inherent power".	"Does a Civil Procedure Rule control reinstatement procedure for all cases, whether dismissed pursuant to that rule or pursuant to a court's inherent power?"

6258	Skinner v. E.F. Hutton & Co., Inc., 333 S.E.2d 236, 238 (N.C. 1985)	1	Motion to dismiss under Civil Rule 12(b)(6), for failure to state any claim upon which relief might be granted, tests legal sufficiency of complaint and in ruling on motion, allegations of complaint must be viewed as admitted, and on that basis court must determine as matter of law whether allegation states claim for which relief may be granted. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(6), G.S. S 1A-1.	On appeal we review the holding of the Court of Appeals that the trial court was required to grant the defendants' motion to dismiss under N.C.G.S. 1A-1, Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state any claim upon which relief might be granted. Such a motion tests the legal sufficiency of the complaint, and in ruling on "the motion the allegations of the complaint must be viewed as admitted, and on that basis the court must determine as a matter of law whether the allegations state a claim for which relief may be granted."	When will a motion be granted and the action dismissed?
6259	Webber v. St. Louis Cnty., No. ED 94271, 2010 WL 4628625, at *3 (Mo. App. E. Dist. Nov. 16, 2010)	3	Where an affirmative defense is asserted in a motion to dismiss, a trial court may dismiss the petition only if the petition clearly establishes on its face and without exception that the defense applies and the claim is barred. V.A.M.R. 55.08.	Where an affirmative defense is asserted in a motion to dismiss, a trial court may dismiss the petition only if the petition clearly establishes "on its face and without exception" that the defense applies and the claim is barred.	Can the petition be dismissed unless it establishes on its face without exception that the defense applies?
6260	Nguyen v. Grain Valley R-5 Sch. Dist., 353 S.W.3d 725, 729 (Mo. Ct. App. 2011)	2	Where an affirmative defense is asserted in a motion to dismiss, a trial court may dismiss the petition only if the petition clearly establishes on its face and without exception that the defense applies and the claim is barred.	Where an affirmative defense is asserted in a motion to dismiss, a trial court may dismiss the petition only if the petition clearly establishes "on its face and without exception" that the defense applies and the claim is barred."	Can the petition be dismissed unless it establishes on its face without exception that the defense applies?
6262	State v. Chillingworth, 106 Fla. 323, 327 (1932)	5	Though judgment dismissing law action not involving merits does not bar subsequent action, such judgment is sufficient disposition of cause to deprive court of jurisdiction to reinstate it after expiration of term.	While a judgment dismissing an action at law not involving the merits is not a bar to a subsequent action and the same rule applies also to a judgment or nonsuit of a nolle prosequi, 2 such judgment is nevertheless a sufficient disposition of the cause then pending to deprive the court of jurisdiction to reinstate it after the expiration of the term of court at which the judgment of dismissal was property entered.	Does a judgment dismissing a law action not involving merits bar subsequent action?
6263	Cislaw v. Southland Corp., 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386, 388 (Cal. App. 4th Dist. 1992)	1	General rule is where franchise agreement gives franchisor the right of complete or substantial control over the franchisee, an agency relationship exists.	The general rule is where a franchise agreement gives the franchisor the right of complete or substantial control over the franchisee, an agency relationship exists.	Will an agency relationship exist when a franchise agreement gives the franchisor the right of complete control over the franchisee?

6264	City of Chicago v. Barnett, 404 Ill. 136, 142, 88 N.E.2d 477, 481 (1949)	13	A "broker," as distinguished from agent, sustains no fixed and permanent employment by or in relation to any principal, but holds himself out for employment by public generally, is employment being that of special agent for single object, whereas an agent sustains fixed and permanent relation to his principal and owes permanent and continued allegiance.	A broker is distinguished from an agent in that a broker sustains no fixed and permanent employment by, or relation to, any principal, but holds himself out for employment by the public generally, his employment in each instance being that of special agent for a single object, El Reno Wholesale Grocery Co. v. Stocking, 293 Ill. 494, 127 N.E. 642, whereas an agent sustains a fixed and permanent relation to the principal he represents and owes a permanent and continued allegiance.	Do brokers have a fixed and permanent employment relation to the principal?
6265	Baker v. Fenley, 233 Mo. App. 998, 128 S.W.2d 295, 297 (1939)	1	An "agency" is the legal relation which arises when one party, called the "agent," is authorized to represent and act for another party, called the "principal," in bringing or to aid in bringing such principal in contractual relation with a third person, however such authority may be conferred.	An "agency is the legal relation which arises when one party, called the 'agent,' is authorized to represent and act for another party, called the 'principal,' in bringing or to aid in bringing such principal in contractual relation with a third person, however such authority may be conferred."	Can authority to represent another be conferred?
6266	van't Rood v. Cnty. of Santa Clara, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746, 765 (Cal. App. 6th Dist. 2003)	36	An agency is proved by evidence that the person for whom the work was performed had the right to control the activities of the alleged agent, and the fact that the parties had a preexisting relationship is not sufficient to make one party the agent for the other. West's Ann.Cal.Civ.Code S 2295.	"The fact that parties had a preexisting relationship is not sufficient to make one party the agent for the other.... [Citation.] An agency is proved by evidence that the person for whom the work was performed had the right to control the activities of the alleged agent. [Citation.]"	Is a preexisting relationship sufficient to make one party the agent for the other?
6267	Ransom v. A.B. Dick Co., 289 Ill. App. 3d 663, 672 (1997)	11	While particular relationships may constitute fiduciary relationships as matter of law, fiduciary relationship and its attendant duties may also arise as result of special circumstances of parties' relationship, where one party places trust in another so that the latter gains superiority and influence over the former.	Particular relationships, such as attorney-client and principal-agent, constitute fiduciary relationships as a matter of law. Additionally, a fiduciary relationship and the attendant duties may arise as a result of the special circumstances of the parties' relationship, where one party places trust in another so that the latter gains superiority and influence over the former.	Can a fiduciary relationship arise from special circumstances of the parties' relationship?
6270	van't Rood v. Cnty. of Santa Clara, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746, 765 (Cal. App. 6th Dist. 2003)	36	An agency is proved by evidence that the person for whom the work was performed had the right to control the activities of the alleged agent, and the fact that the parties had a preexisting relationship is not sufficient to make one party the agent for the other. West's Ann.Cal.Civ.Code S 2295.	"The fact that parties had a preexisting relationship is not sufficient to make one party the agent for the other.... [Citation.] An agency is proved by evidence that the person for whom the work was performed had the right to control the activities of the alleged agent. [Citation.]"	Can the fact that the parties had a preexisting relationship make one party the agent for the other?

6273	Arizona v. United States, 567 U.S. 387, 394–95 (2012)	1	Government of United States has broad, undoubted power over subject of immigration and status of aliens, resting, in part, on its constitutional power to "establish an uniform Rule of Naturalization," and its inherent power as sovereign to control and conduct relations with foreign nations. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 1, S 8, cl. 4.	First, the federal government "has broad, undoubted power over the subject of immigration and the status of aliens," authority that rests on the constitutional power to "establish an uniform Rule of Naturalization," Art. I, 8, cl. 4, and on the national government's "inherent power as sovereign to control and conduct relations with foreign nations."	Does the government have the power to establish uniform rules of naturalization?
6276	Town of Plainfield v. Paden Engineering Co., 943 N.E.2d 904, 915 (Ind. Ct. App. 2011)	16	While insurance contracts are in many respects similar to surety contracts, there is a wide difference between the two kinds of contracts; insurance has been defined as a contract whereby one undertakes to indemnify another against loss, damage, or liability arising from an unknown or contingent event, whereas a contract of suretyship is one to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another.	While insurance contracts are in many respects similar to surety contracts, there is a "wide difference between the two kinds of contracts." Id. "Insurance has been defined as a contract whereby one undertakes to indemnify another against loss, damage, or liability arising from an unknown or contingent event; whereas a contract of suretyship is one to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another[.]"	What is the difference between surety and insurance contracts?
6278	Expocorp v. Hyatt Mgt. Corp. of New York, Inc., 520 N.Y.S.2d 579, 579 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dept. 1987)	1	To warrant dismissal, defense grounded on documentary evidence must be complete one, leaving no genuine triable issues of fact.	To warrant dismissal, a defense grounded on documentary evidence must be a complete one, leaving no genuine triable issues of fact (see, Suburban Broadcasting Corp. v. RCA Corp., 51 A.D.2d 785, 379 N.Y.S.2d 486).	Should defense on documentary evidence be complete to warrant dismissal leaving no genuine triable issues of fact?
6282	Bailey v. Gitt, 135 N.C. App. 119, 121, 518 S.E.2d 794, 795 (1999)	5	Dismissal of claims for certain types of damages by the trial court in a wrongful death action does not necessarily dismiss the underlying allegation of negligence upon which the claim is predicated; however, a claim for negligence cannot be split into its various kinds of damages. G.S. S 28A-18-2.	Dismissal of claims for certain types of damages by the trial court does not necessarily dismiss the underlying allegation of negligence upon which the wrongful death claim is predicated; however, a claim for negligence cannot be split into its various kinds of damages.	Can a claim for negligence be split into various kinds of damages?
6283	Mason v. State ex Rel. Bd. of Regents, 23 P.3d 964, 967–68 (2000)	3	When a petition is dismissed for failure to state a claim, the plaintiff must be granted leave to amend the pleading if the defect can be remedied. 12 Okl.St. Ann. S 2012, subd. G.	When a petition is dismissed for failure to state a claim, the plaintiff must be granted leave to amend the pleading if the defect can be remedied. *968 12 O.S.1991 2012(G).	"When District Court grants motion to dismiss for failure to state claim, should it grant a plaintiff leave to file an amended petition if a defect can be remedied?"

6284	VanMatre v. State, 714 N.E.2d 655, 658 (Ind. App. 1999)	4	In order to prove intimidation as class C felony, state must allege and prove that defendant: (1) communicated threat; (2) to another person; (3) with intent that other person be placed in fear of retaliation for prior lawful act; (4) while armed with deadly weapon. West's A.I.C. 35-45-2-1(b)(2).	In order to prove Intimidation in the instant case, the State was required to allege and prove that the defendant: (1) communicated a threat; (2) to another person; (3) with the intent that the other person be placed in fear of retaliation for a prior lawful act; (4) while armed with a deadly weapon.	In order to prove intimidation what must the state show?
6285	Hawes v. 1997 Jeep Wrangler, 602 N.W.2d 874, 877 (Minn. App. 1999)	4	A criminal adjudication followed by a civil forfeiture, or vice versa, only violates double jeopardy provisions if the forfeiture constitutes punishment. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; M.S.A. Const. Art. 1, S 7.	"[A] criminal adjudication followed by a civil forfeiture, or vice versa, only violates double jeopardy provisions if the forfeiture constitutes 'punishment.' "	"Does a criminal adjudication followed by a civil forfeiture, or vice versa, only violate double jeopardy provisions if the forfeiture constitutes punishment?"
6286	Schug v. Nine Thousand Nine Hundred Sixteen Dollars & Fifty Cents in U.S. Currency, 669 N.W.2d 379, 384 (Minn. Ct. App. 2003)	6	A criminal adjudication followed by a civil forfeiture, or vice versa, violates double jeopardy provisions only if the forfeiture constitutes punishment. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; M.S.A. Const. Art. 1, S 7.	"[A] criminal adjudication followed by a civil forfeiture, or vice versa, violates double jeopardy provisions only if the forfeiture constitutes 'punishment.' "	"Does a criminal adjudication followed by a civil forfeiture, or vice versa, only violate double jeopardy provisions if the forfeiture constitutes punishment?"
6287	People v. Dahlberg, 355 Ill. App. 3d 308, 312 (2005)	6	Reprosecution of a defendant following the declaration of a mistrial is constitutionally permissible if: (1) the mistrial was attributable to the defendant by virtue of his motion or consent; or (2) the mistrial was warranted by "manifest necessity."	Accordingly, reprosecution of a defendant following the declaration of a mistrial is constitutionally permissible if (1) the mistrial was attributable to the defendant by virtue 654 362 of his motion or consent; or (2) the mistrial was warranted by "manifest necessity."	Is reprosecution of a defendant following the declaration of a mistrial constitutionally permissible if the mistrial was attributable to the defendant by virtue of his motion or consent?
6289	VanHouten v. Mt. St. Mary College, 28 N.Y.S.3d 433, 435 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dept. 2016)	4	Judicial review of the actions of a private school in disciplinary matters is limited to a determination as to whether the school acted arbitrarily and capriciously, or whether it substantially complied with its own rules and regulations.	Judicial review of the actions of a private school in disciplinary matters is limited to a determination as to whether the school acted arbitrarily and capriciously, or whether it substantially complied with its own rules and regulations	Is judicial review of the actions of a private school in disciplinary matters limited?
6290	Antenucci v. Hartford Roman Catholic, 142 Conn. 349, 355–56, 114 A.2d 216, 219 (Conn. 1955)	4	Highway is nothing but an easement, comprehending merely right of all individuals in community to pass and repass, with incidental right in public to do all of acts necessary to keep it in repair.	'A highway is nothing but an easement, comprehending merely the right of all the individuals in the community to pass and repass, with the incidental right in the public to do all of the acts necessary to keep it in repair.' *356 Peck v.	Is a highway an easement comprehending merely the right of all the individuals in the community to pass and repass?
6291	Ham v. Strenzke Realty Co., 218 La. 499, 506 (1950)	1	The opening or laying out of a road has the effect of vesting in police jury of parish only a right of passage or a servitude over the land, the fee remaining in owner of soil.	3369 of the Revised Statutes of 1870 has the effect of vesting in the Police Jury of the Parish only a right of passage or a servitude over the land, the fee remaining in the owner of the soil.	Does the opening or laying out of a road vest in the Police Jury a right of passage over the land?

6292	Allen v. Encore Energy Partners, L.P., 72 A.3d 93, 104 (Del. 2013)	9	When interpreting limited partnership agreements, court gives words their plain meaning unless it appears that the parties intended a special meaning.	When interpreting limited partnership agreements, we give words their plain meaning unless it appears that the parties intended a special meaning.	"When interpreting limited partnership agreements, should the words be given their plain meaning unless it appears that the parties intended a special meaning?"
6294	Higginbotham v. Pub. Serv. Comm'n of Maryland, 171 Md. App. 254, 275, 909 A.2d 1087, 1099 (2006)	25	It is within the court's discretion to grant the plaintiff leave to amend his or her complaint to attempt to remedy the defects that led to dismissal, and court's decision to deny leave to amend will be reversed only upon a finding that the court abused that discretion.	It is within the court's discretion to grant the plaintiff leave to amend his or her complaint to attempt to remedy the defects that led to dismissal. G & H Clearing and Landscaping v. Whitworth, 66 Md.App. 348, 356 n. 5, 503 A.2d 1379 (1986); Gaskins v. Marshall Craft Associates, Inc., 110 Md.App. 705, 716, 678 A.2d 615 (1996). "[T]he circuit court's decision to deny leave to amend will be reversed only upon a finding that the court abused that discretion." McMahon v. Piazze, 162 Md.App. 588, 598, 875 A.2d 807 (2005).	Is it within the court's discretion to grant a plaintiff leave to amend complaint to remedy defects that led to dismissal?
6295	Workman v. Anderson Music Co., 149 P.3d 1060, 1064 (Okla. App. Div. 1 2006)	6	Because dismissal statute provides that the trial court shall grant leave to amend if the defect can be remedied, the duty is mandatory. 12 Okl.St. Ann. S 2012(G).	"Because the statute provides that the trial court 'shall' grant leave to amend if the defect can be remedied, the duty is mandatory."	"Because a dismissal statute provides that the trial court shall grant leave to amend if the defect can be remedied, is the duty mandatory?"
6297	Gladstone v. Smith, 729 So. 2d 1002, 1003 (Fla. App. 1999)	4	Claim should not be dismissed with prejudice without giving the plaintiff an opportunity to amend the defective pleading, unless it is apparent that the pleading cannot be amended to state a cause of action.	A claim should not be dismissed with prejudice "without giving the plaintiff an opportunity to amend the defective pleading, unless it is apparent that the pleading cannot be amended to state a cause of action."	Should a claim not be dismissed with prejudice without giving the plaintiff an opportunity to amend the defective pleading?
6298	Nevada Interstate Properties Corp. v. City of W. Palm Beach, 747 So. 2d 447, 448 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1999)	3	Dismissal with prejudice for failure to state a cause of action should not be ordered without giving the party offering the defective pleading an opportunity to amend, unless it is apparent that the pleading cannot be amended so as to state a cause of action.	It is well settled that a dismissal with prejudice for failure to state a cause of action should not be ordered without giving the party offering the defective pleading an opportunity to amend, unless it is apparent that the pleading cannot be amended so as to state a cause of action.	Should a claim not be dismissed with prejudice without giving the plaintiff an opportunity to amend the defective pleading?
6304	Yusem v. People, 210 P.3d 458, 465 (Colo. 2009)	9	When prior act evidence is used to rebut a claim of self-defense against the charge of felony menacing, the question for the jury is whether the defendant used the gun to defend himself or whether he acted only to menace his victim. Rules of Evid., Rule 404(b).	When prior act evidence is used to rebut a claim of self-defense against the charge of felony menacing, the question for the jury is whether the defendant used the gun to defend himself or whether he acted only to menace his victim.	Can a self-defense claim for a charge of felony menacing uses prior act evidence?

6305	Com. v. Magliocco, 584 Pa. 244, 265–66, 883 A.2d 479, 492 (2005)	7	Commonwealth is not required to secure a formal conviction for the predicate crime of terroristic threats in order to secure a conviction for ethnic intimidation based upon such terroristic threats; indeed, the Commonwealth need not formally charge the defendant with the predicate offense, as long as it makes clear which offense it is pursuing as the predicate offense for purposes of the ethnic intimidation charge, and the factfinder is so made aware and, in the case of a jury, so charged. 18 Pa.C.S.A. SS 2706, 2710(a).	We agree with the Commonwealth that it was not required to secure a formal conviction for the predicate crime of terroristic threats in order to secure a conviction for ethnic intimidation based upon such terroristic threats. Indeed, as we read the statute, the Commonwealth need not formally charge the defendant with the predicate offense, as long as it makes clear which offense it is pursuing as the predicate *266 offense for purposes of the ethnic intimidation charge, and the factfinder is so made aware and, in the case of a jury, so charged.	Is the prosecution required to secure a formal conviction for the predicate crime of terroristic threats in order to secure a conviction for ethnic intimidation?
6306	Peretzman v. Borochoff, 58 Ga. App. 838, 200 S.E. 331, 334 (1938)	2	A bill or note is controlled, not necessarily by the law of the place where it is written, signed, or dated, but by the law of the place where it is delivered from drawer or maker to payee, or from indorser to indorsee, or where the last act essential to its completion was done.	Thus, the law of the place where a bill or note is written, signed, or dated does not necessarily control it but the law of the place where it is delivered from drawer or maker to payee, or from indorser to indorsee, or, as has been said, where the last act essential to its completion was done, so that, where a note was executed in one State but not completed until accepted in another State, it is made in that other State.	Will the law of the place where a note is written control it?
6308	Tritt v. State, 173 P.3d 1017, 1019 (Alaska Ct. App. 2008)	2	Once jeopardy attaches, the trial may not be stopped short of a verdict unless the defendant consents or there is manifest necessity for a mistrial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Once jeopardy attaches, the trial may not be stopped short of a verdict unless the defendant consents or there is manifest necessity for a mistrial.	"Once jeopardy attaches, can the trial not be stopped short of a verdict unless the defendant consents or there is manifest necessity for a mistrial?"
6310	Bergman v. Bouligny, 82 A.2d 760, 762 (D.C. 1951)	2	Generally, a contract for schooling for specified term is entire and when pupil withdraws for reasons of his own without fault on part of school, such school is entitled to agreed tuition for entire period.	It is generally held that a contract for schooling for a specified term is entire and that when a pupil withdraws for reasons of his own without fault on the part of the school, such school is entitled to the agreed tuition for the entire period.	Is a contract for schooling for a specified term is entire and as such the school is entitled to the agreed tuition for the entire period?
6311	State v. Schares, 548 N.W.2d 894, 896 (Iowa 1996)	3	Contract is one of insurance if it meets following test: one party, for compensation, assumes risk of another; party who assumes risk agrees to pay certain sum of money on specified contingency; and payment is made to other party or party's nominee.	"A contract is one of insurance if it meets the following test: one party, for compensation, assumes the risk of another; the party who assumes the risk agrees to pay a certain sum of money on a specified contingency; and the payment is made to the other party or the party's nominee."	What is the test that a contract has to meet to be classified as a contract of insurance?

6312	Hansen v. Eighth Judicial Dist. Court ex rel. Cty. of Clark, 116 Nev. 650, 656 (2000)	2	Before a defendant files a responsive pleading such as an answer, that defendant may move to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, insufficiency of process, and/or insufficiency of service of process, and such a defense is not waived by being joined with one or more other defenses. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b).	Now, before a defendant files a responsive pleading such as an answer, that defendant may move to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, insufficiency of process, and/or insufficiency of service of process, and such a defense is not "waived by being joined with one or more other defenses."	"Where the initial motion to dismiss does not include a claim of lack of jurisdiction or insufficiency of service of process, are those claims waived?"
6314	Moye v. City of New York, 562 N.Y.S.2d 664, 665 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dept. 1990)	3	Action which has been automatically dismissed one year after being stricken from calendar may be restored upon showing of: meritorious cause of action; reasonable excuse for delay; lack of prejudice to opposing party; and lack of intent to abandon action. McKinney's CPLR 3404.	Cases which are not diligently pursued will be dismissed automatically one year after stricken from the calendar (CPLR 3404; Rosser v. Scacalossi, 140 A.D.2d 318, 527 N.Y.S.2d 552). The presumption that an action so dismissed has been abandoned is rebuttable, and the action may be restored upon a showing of a meritorious cause of action, a reasonable excuse for the delay, a lack of prejudice to the opposing party, and a lack of intent to abandon the action (Rodriguez v. Middle Atlantic Auto Leasing, Inc., 122 A.D.2d 720, 511 N.Y.S.2d 595, appeal dismissed, 69 N.Y.2d 874, 514 N.Y.S.2d 723, 507 N.E.2d 317).	How can an action which has been automatically dismissed one year after being stricken from calendar be restored?
6315	Parillo v. Blatt, 554 N.Y.S.2d 285, 286 (N.Y. App. Div. 2d Dept. 1990)	1	Motion to restore action to calendar must be supported by affidavits showing excuse for delay in prosecution and demonstrating merits of action.	It is well settled that a motion to restore an action to the calendar must be supported by affidavits showing an excuse for the delay in prosecution and demonstrating the merits of the action (Baumgartner v. Foodarama Supermarkets, 86 A.D.2d 590, 446 N.Y.S.2d 136; Fluman v. TSS Dept. Stores, 100 A.D.2d 838, 473 N.Y.S.2d 835; Bunyan v. Goldwasser, 131 A.D.2d 805, 517 N.Y.S.2d 85).	Should a motion to restore an action to a calendar be supported by affidavits showing an excuse for delay in prosecution and demonstrating merits of action?
6316	Conkle v. State, 677 So. 2d 1211, 1218 (Ala. Crim. App. 1996)	12	Verbal threat alone, in circumstances that would not cause public disorder or unrest by being likely to start fight, does not constitute an offense. Code 1975, SS 13A-6-23, 13A-11-8.	However, under current law in Alabama, a verbal threat alone, in circumstances that would not cause public disorder or unrest by being likely to start a fight, does not constitute an offense.	"Can a verbal threat alone, in circumstances that would not cause public disorder or unrest constitute an offense?"

6317	Fleming v. Shaheen Bros., Inc., 881 N.E.2d 1143, 1146 (Mass. App. 2008).	4	Under the two-part test to determine whether a temporary employer is immune from tort liability for a worker's injuries under the workers' compensation statute, a direct employment relationship must exist, and the employer must be an insured person liable for the payment of compensation. M.G.L.A. c. 152, S 1(4, 5).	A two-part test determines whether an employer is immune from liability under the workers' compensation statute, G.L. c. 152. See Lang v. Edward J. Lamothe Co., 20 Mass.App.Ct. 231, 232, 479 N.E.2d 208 (1985). "[A] direct employment relationship must exist, and 'the employer must be an insured person liable for the payment of compensation.' "	What is the two-part test to determine immunity from liability under workers compensation?
6319	Carter v. Taylor, 180 W. Va. 570, 572, 378 S.E.2d 291, 293 (1989)	1	At county level, except to extent that circuit courts are given explicit direction by Supreme Court of Appeals, power to control local affairs of circuit is placed in circuit judge or chief circuit judge. Const. Art. 8, S 9.	In Rutledge this court held that "[a]t the county level, except to the extent that the circuit courts are given explicit direction by the Supreme Court of Appeals, the power to control the local affairs of the circuit is placed in the circuit judge or the chief circuit judge.	Do circuit court judges have the power to control local affairs?
6320	People v. Berreth, 13 P.3d 1214, 1216 (Colo. 2000)	5	In general, the double jeopardy prohibition is implicated if a defendant is arraigned, enters a plea, is brought to trial in a court of competent jurisdiction, and a jury has been selected and sworn to hear the case. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; West's C.R.S.A. Const. Art. 2, S 18.	In general, the double jeopardy prohibition is implicated if a defendant is arraigned, enters a plea, is brought to trial in a court of competent jurisdiction, and a jury has been selected and sworn to hear the case.	Would a double jeopardy prohibition be implicated when defendant has been arraigned?
6321	UU.S. v. Corrado, 227 F.3d 543, 549 (6th Cir. 2000)	5	Double Jeopardy Clause does not apply to sentencing and, therefore, does not prohibit government from appealing district court's forfeiture award. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	In addition, we find that, in accordance with the Supreme Court's decision in Monge, the Double Jeopardy Clause does not apply to sentencing and, therefore, does not prohibit the government from appealing the district court's forfeiture award.	Does a Double Jeopardy Clause not apply to sentencing and not prohibit a government from appealing a district court's forfeiture award?
6322	State v. Bostwick, 222 Neb. 631 (1986)	9	Where government conduct in question is intended to "goad" defendant into moving for mistrial, defendant may raise bar of double jeopardy to second trial after having succeeded in aborting first trial on defendant's own motion. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Where the governmental conduct in question is intended to goad the defendant into moving for a mistrial, a defendant may raise the bar of double jeopardy to a second trial after having succeeded in aborting the first trial on the defendant's own motion.	Does a defendant's motion for a mistrial constitute a deliberate election on his or her part to forgo the right under the Double Jeopardy Clause to have the trial completed before the first trier of fact?
6323	State v. Juarez, 115 Wash. App. 881, 888 (2003)	8	A motion by defendant for mistrial will ordinarily remove any barrier to further prosecution, absent circumstances attributable to prosecutorial or judicial overreaching.	A motion by the defendant for mistrial will ordinarily remove any barrier to further prosecution, absent circumstances attributable to " 'prosecutorial or judicial overreaching.' "	"Will a motion by defendant for mistrial ordinarily remove any barrier to further prosecution, absent circumstances attributable to prosecutorial or judicial overreaching?"
6324	People v. Baca, 193 Colo. 9, 12 (1977)	4	Defendant's motion for mistrial is generally considered to operate as waiver of principle of manifest necessity which protects him from retrial under double jeopardy clause. U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 5; Const. art. 2, S 18.	The defendant's motion for a mistrial is generally considered to operate as a waiver of the principle of 'manifest necessity,' which protects him from retrial under the double jeopardy clause.	Is a defendant's motion for a mistrial generally a waiver of protection from retrial under the Double Jeopardy Clause?

6325	People v. Moore, 285 A.D.2d 827	9	A retrial is automatically barred when a trial ends with an acquittal or a conviction; however, when a criminal proceeding ends before a final resolution of the merits of the charges against the defendant, a second trial is not necessarily precluded. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; S.H.A. 720 ILCS 5/3-4(a)(1).	A retrial is automatically barred when a trial ends with an acquittal or a conviction; however, when a criminal proceeding ends before a final resolution of the merits of the charges against the defendant, a second trial is not necessarily precluded.	Is a retrial automatically barred when a trial ends with an acquittal or a conviction?
6326	Decormier v. Harley-Davidson Motor Co. Grp., 2013 WL 4080699, at *7 (Mo. Ct. App. Aug. 13, 2013)	10	In determining whether a pleading adequately states a claim for relief on a particular basis, the character of a cause of action is determined from the facts stated in the petition and not by the prayer or name given the action by the pleader.	"[I]n determining whether a pleading adequately states a claim for relief on a particular basis, the rule is well established in Missouri that the character of a cause of action is determined from the facts stated in the petition and not by the prayer or name given the action by the pleader."	Is the character of a cause of action determined from the name given to the action by the pleader?
6327	DeCormier v. Harley-Davidson Motor Co. Group, Inc., No. ED99064, 2013 WL 4080699, at *7 (Mo. App. E. Dist. Aug. 13, 2013)	10	In determining whether a pleading adequately states a claim for relief on a particular basis, the character of a cause of action is determined from the facts stated in the petition and not by the prayer or name given the action by the pleader.	"[I]n determining whether a pleading adequately states a claim for relief on a particular basis, the rule is well established in Missouri that the character of a cause of action is determined from the facts stated in the petition and not by the prayer or name given the action by the pleader."	Is the character of a cause of action determined from the facts stated in the petition?
6328	Hayes v. Village of Middleburgh, 34 N.Y.S.3d 659, 661 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dept. 2016)	1	In order to vacate a dismissal for failure to appear, a plaintiff is required to demonstrate a reasonable excuse for his or her failure to appear and a potentially meritorious cause of action. N.Y.Ct.Rules, S 202.27(a).	"In order to vacate a dismissal pursuant to 22 NYCRR 202.27, [a] plaintiff [is] required to demonstrate a reasonable excuse for [his or her] failure to appear and a potentially meritorious cause of action" (Bank of N.Y. v. Mohammed, 130 A.D.3d 1419, 1420, 14 N.Y.S.3d 783 [2015] [citations omitted]; see Foley Inc. v. Metropolis Superstructures, Inc., 130 A.D.3d 680, 680, 11 N.Y.S.3d 873 [2015]).	In order to vacate a dismissal for failure to appear is a plaintiff required to demonstrate a reasonable excuse for his or her failure to appear?
6329	Becker v. District of Columbia, 258 F.R.D. 182, 184 (D.D.C. 2009)	1	The decision to grant or deny leave to amend a pleading is within the sound discretion of the trial court, however, it is an abuse of discretion to deny leave without a sufficient reason. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 15, 28 U.S.C.A.	The decision to grant or deny leave to amend is within the sound discretion of the trial court, however, it is an abuse of discretion to deny leave without a sufficient reason.	Is the decision to deny leave to amend before granting a motion to dismiss within the sound discretion of the trial court?
6330	In re PSINet, 271 B.R. 1, 2 (S.D.N.Y. 2001)	11	Under California law, determination of whether agreement creates true lease, on the one hand, or a security interest, on the other, is dependent on economics of transaction, and not upon intent of parties. West's Ann.Cal.Com.Code S 1201(36).	Under California law, the determination of whether an agreement creates a true lease, on the one hand, or a security interest, on the other, is dependent on the economics of the transaction, and not the intent of the parties.	How to determine whether an agreement creates a true lease or a security interest?

6331	In re Commercial Money Ctr., 350 B.R. 465, 484 (9th Cir. 2006)	25	In determining whether parties intended a sale or a loan for security, the issue is how risks are contractually allocated when the transactions were entered into.	In determining whether parties intended a sale or a loan the issue is how risks are contractually allocated when the transactions were entered into.	"In determining whether parties intended a sale or a loan for security, is the issue how risks are contractually allocated when the transactions were entered into?"
6332	Rolick v. Collins Pine Co., 925 F.2d 661, 663 (3d Cir. 1991)	1	Generally, only employers standing in direct master-servant relationship with injured worker may be liable for workmen's compensation benefits under Pennsylvania law. 77 P.S. SS 1-1603.	Generally, only employers standing in a direct master- servant relationship with an injured worker may be liable for workmen's compensation benefits.	"Generally, is it only employers standing in a direct master-servant relationship with an injured worker liable for workmens compensation benefits?"
6333	Marzano v. Proficio Mortgage Ventures, LLC, 942 F. Supp. 2d 781, 798 (N.D. Ill. 2013)	38	Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) requires parties demanding arbitration to provide written notice of the demand so that responding parties may agree to arbitrate and thus avoid court involvement. 9 U.S.C.A. S 4.	The FAA requires parties demanding *799 arbitration to provide written notice of the demand so that responding parties may agree to arbitrate and thus avoid court involvement.	Does the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) require parties demanding arbitration to provide written notice of the demand?
6336	Parkview Baptist Church & Sch. v. White, 971 So. 2d 1078, 1079 (2007)	4	Intention of a person to be a resident of a particular place is determined by his expressions at times not suspicious, and his testimony, when called on, considered in the light of his conduct and the circumstances of his life.	The intention of a person to be a resident of a particular place is determined by his expressions at times not suspicious, and his testimony, when called on, considered in the light of his conduct and the circumstances of his life.	Is intention of a person to be a resident of a particular place determined by his expressions at times not suspicious?
6337	State v. Picot, 98-2194 (La. App. 4 Cir. 11/10/98), 724 So. 2d 236, 238	1	Habitual Offender Law creates no independent offense, but rather prescribes conditions under which there is enhanced penalty for current offense, and does not violate constitutional prohibitions against double jeopardy. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The Habitual Offender Law creates no independent offense, but rather prescribes the conditions under which there is an enhanced penalty for the current offense and does not violate constitutional prohibitions against double jeopardy.	Does Habitual Offender Law violate constitutional prohibitions against double jeopardy?
6338	City of Smithville v. Summers, 690 S.W.2d 850, 854 (Mo. Ct. App. 1985)	5	Criminal defendant owns valued right to have his trial completed by a particular tribunal, and thus, declaration of mistrial implicates such right.	A criminal defendant owns "the valued right to have his trial completed by a particular tribunal." Thus, the declaration of a mistrial implicates that right.	"Does a criminal defendant own a valued right to have his trial completed by a particular tribunal, and thus, declaration of mistrial implicates such right?"
6339	Scriber v. State, 437 Md. 399, 408, 86 A.3d 1260, 1265 (2014)	5	Despite the fact that state constitution lacks explicit double jeopardy clause, common law provides well-established protections for individuals against being twice put in jeopardy. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Also, "[d]espite the fact that the Maryland Constitution lacks an explicit double jeopardy clause, Maryland common law provides well- established protections for individuals against being twice put in jeopardy."	Does state common law provide well-established protections for individuals against being twice put in jeopardy?
6340	Com. v. Scott, 86 Mass. App. Ct. 812, 813-14, 22 N.E.3d 171, 173 (2015)	2	The double jeopardy clause, which protects a defendant against multiple punishments for the same offense, represents a constitutional policy of finality for the defendant's benefit in criminal proceedings. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The double jeopardy clause, which protects a defendant against "multiple punishments for the same offense, ...represents a constitutional policy of finality for the defendant's benefit' in criminal proceedings.	Does double jeopardy represent a constitutional policy of finality for the defendant's benefit in criminal proceedings?

6343	Ex parte Jones, 25 Okla. Crim. 347, 220 P. 978, 978-79 (1923)	5	A pardon is an act of grace and mercy bestowed by the state through its chief executive upon offenders against its laws after conviction, and a full, unconditional pardon reaches both the punishment prescribed for the offense and the guilt of the offender, and obliterates in legal contemplation the offense itself.	It will be observed, as preliminary to the consideration of the question presented, that a pardon is an act of grace and mercy *979 bestowed by the state through its chief executive, upon offenders against its laws after conviction, and a full and unconditional pardon reaches both the punishment prescribed for the offense and the guilt of the offender; it obliterates in legal contemplation the offense itself; and hence its effect is to make the offender a new man.	Are pardons an act of grace?
6344	Hillsborough Inv. Co. v. City of Tampa, 149 Fla. 7, 12-13 (1941)	7	The sovereign power to levy a tax and the machinery for collection thereof cannot be transferred to private individuals in absence of statute, but is vested in public officials, and a taxing unit, in absence of statute, cannot assign its claim for taxes to a citizen, and thereby subrogate the citizen to the collecting rights of the taxing unit.	The sovereign power to levy a tax and the *13 machinery for collection thereof cannot be transferred to private individuals, in the absence of a statute, but this power by law is vested in public officials. A taxing unit, in the absence of a statute, is without authority to assign its claim for taxes to a citizen and thereby subrogate the citizen to the collecting rights of the taxing unit.	Can the sovereign power to levy a tax and the machinery for collection thereof be transferred to private individuals?
6345	Abbott v. State, 190 Md. App. 595, 621, 989 A.2d 795, 810 (2010)	17	The government is not required to prove the present ability or intent to carry out the threat, in order to convict a defendant of threatening to injure a State official. West's Ann.Md.Code, Criminal Law, S 3-708.	Nor is the government required to prove the present ability or intent to carry out the threat.	"Is the government required to prove the present ability or intent to carry out the threat, in order to convict a defendant of threatening to injure a state official?"
6346	Loudenslager v. Gorum, 355 Mo. 181, 187 (1946)	3	Under Workmen's Compensation Acts the questions of who is an employer and who is an employee do not usually depend upon common-law principles, although they may be considered in their construction, but upon the terms and definitions in such acts.	However, the Arkansas Commission found that these claimants were not entitled to anything under the Arkansas Act. The questions of who is an employer and who is an employee, under compensation acts, do not usually depend upon common-law principles (although they may be considered in their construction) but depend instead upon the terms and definitions of such Acts.	Is the question of who is an employer and who is an employee under the workmens compensation acts determined upon the terms and definitions in the acts?
6347	Day v. Haskell, 799 N.W.2d 355, 358 (N.D., 2011)	10	The general rule is that a person is put in jeopardy when his trial commences, which in a jury case occurs when the jury is empaneled and sworn, and in a non-jury trial when the court begins to hear evidence. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; Const. Art. 1, S 12; NDCC 29-01-07.	The general rule is that a person is put in jeopardy when his trial commences, which in a jury case occurs when the jury is empaneled and sworn, and in a non- jury trial when the court begins to hear evidence.'	What is the general rule for a person who is put in jeopardy in a jury and a non-jury trial?

6348	State v. Linghor, 690 N.W.2d 201, 209 (2004)	16	General rule is that a person is put in jeopardy when his trial commences, which in a jury case occurs when the jury is empaneled and sworn and in a non-jury trial when the court begins to hear evidence. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; Const. Art. 1, S 12; NDCC 29-01-07.	"The general rule is that a person is put in jeopardy when his trial commences, which in a jury case occurs when the jury is empaneled and sworn, and in a non-jury trial when the court begins to hear evidence."	What is the general rule for a person who is put in jeopardy in a jury and a non-jury trial?
6349	People v. Cabrera, 402 Ill. App. 3d 440, 447 (2010)	12	There are three settings in which jeopardy may attach: (1) at a jury trial when the jury is empaneled and sworn; (2) at a bench trial when the first witness is sworn and the court begins to hear evidence; and (3) at a guilty plea hearing when the guilty plea is accepted by the trial court. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; S.H.A. Const. Art. 1, S 10.	There are three settings in which jeopardy may attach: (1) at a jury trial when the jury is empaneled and sworn; (2) at a 410 537 bench trial when the first witness is sworn and the court begins to hear evidence; and (3) at a guilty plea hearing "when the guilty plea is accepted by the trial court."	Does jeopardy attach when the court begins to hear evidence?
6350	United States v. Cabrera, 804 F. Supp. 2d 1261, 1267 (M.D. Fla. 2011)	5	A person who has been found not guilty by a jury may not thereafter be tried for the same offense without violating the Double Jeopardy Clause; this is because the law affords absolute finality to a jury's verdict of acquittal, no matter how erroneous its decision. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	It is a fundamental principle, one not challenged by the government, that a person who has been found not guilty by a jury may not thereafter be tried for the same offense without violating the Double Jeopardy Clause. This is because the law "afford[s] absolute finality to a jury's verdict of acquittal-no matter how erroneous its decision-..." Burks, 437 U.S.	Can a person who has been found not guilty by a jury not thereafter be tried for the same offense without violating the Double Jeopardy Clause?
6351	Sam v. State, 401 P.3d 834, 861 (Wyo. 2017)	63	The double jeopardy clauses of the federal and state constitutions provide protection against three distinct ills: a second prosecution for the same offense after one has been acquitted, a second prosecution for the same offense after one has been convicted, and multiple punishments for the same offense. U.S. Const. Amend. 5; Wyo. Const. art. 1, S 11.	The double jeopardy clauses of the United States and Wyoming constitutions "provide protection against three distinct ills: a second prosecution for the same offense after one has been acquitted, a second prosecution for the same offense after one has been convicted, and multiple punishments for the same offense." Solis v. State, 2013 WY 152, 63, 315 P.3d 622, 636 (Wyo.	What are the three distinct ills double jeopardy clauses protect against?

6352	Ready v. State, 183 So. 3d 1234, 1236 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2016)	2	Both the United States and Florida Constitutions contain double jeopardy clauses that prohibit subjecting a person to multiple prosecutions, convictions, and punishments for the same criminal offense; however, there is no constitutional prohibition against multiple punishments for different offenses arising out of the same criminal transaction as long as the Legislature intends to authorize separate punishments. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; West's F.S.A. Const. Art. 1, S 9.	[B]oth the United States and Florida Constitutions contain double jeopardy clauses that "prohibit[] subjecting a person to multiple prosecutions, convictions, and punishments for the same criminal offense." However, ... "there is no constitutional prohibition against multiple punishments for different offenses arising out of the same criminal transaction as long as the Legislature intends to authorize separate punishments." State v. Shelley, 176 So.3d 914, 917 (Fla.2015) (internal citation and footnote omitted) (quoting Valdes v.	Does the constitution contain double jeopardy clauses prohibiting multiple prosecutions?
6353	Bryan v. State, 438 N.E.2d 709, 713 (Ind. 1982)	1	If defendant is found incompetent during trial, court may declare mistrial sua sponte without jeopardy attaching.	If a defendant is found incompetent during trial, the court may declare a mistrial sua sponte without jeopardy attaching.	"If defendant is found incompetent during trial, can a court declare mistrial sua sponte without jeopardy attaching?"
6355	Luke v. State, 51 N.E.3d 401, 408 (Ind. Ct. App. 2016)	1	Indiana's Double Jeopardy Clause prevents the State from being able to proceed against a person twice for the same criminal transgression. West's A.I.C. Const. Art. 1, S 14.	Indiana's Double Jeopardy Clause ... prevent[s] the State from being able to proceed against a person twice for the same criminal transgression.	Does double jeopardy Clause prevent the State from being able to proceed against a person twice for the same criminal transgression?
6356	Gerlach v. Ballard, 233 W. Va. 141, 144-45 (2013)	2	The Double Jeopardy Clause of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution consists of three separate constitutional protections; it protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal, it protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after conviction, and it protects against multiple punishments for the same offense. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	[t]he Double Jeopardy Clause of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution consists of three separate constitutional protections. It protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal. It protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after conviction. And it protects against multiple punishments for the same offense.	What constitutional protection does the double jeopardy clause of the fifth-amendment consist of?
6357	Herbert v. Billy, 160 F.3d 1131, 1136 (6th Cir. 1998)	7	Double jeopardy clause's protection against multiple punishments prohibits the government from punishing twice, or attempting a second time to punish criminally, for the same offense. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The protection against multiple punishments prohibits the government from " 'punishing twice, or attempting a second time to punish criminally, for the same offense.' "	"Does the protection against multiple punishments prohibit the Government from punishing twice, or attempting a second time to punish criminally for the same offense?"

6358	U.S. v. Ahrensfield, 698 F.3d 1310, 1322 (10th Cir. 2012)	11	Double Jeopardy Clause embodies two vitally important interests, i.e., the principle that state is not permitted to make repeated attempts to convict individual for same offense and interest in preserving finality of judgments. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The Double Jeopardy Clause “embodies two vitally important interests.” Yeager v. United States, 557 U.S. 110, 117, 129 S.Ct. 2360, 174 L.Ed.2d 78 (2009). The first is the principle that the state is not permitted to make repeated attempts to convict an individual for the same offense. Id. at 117–18, 129 S.Ct. 2360. “The second interest is the preservation of the finality of judgments.”	What are the interests embodied in Double jeopardy clause?
6359	State v. Moos, 758 N.W.2d 674, 678 (2008)	1	Constitutional guarantee against double jeopardy encompasses three separate protections: protection against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal, protection against a second prosecution for the same offense after conviction, and protection against multiple punishments for the same offense. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The constitutional guarantee against double jeopardy encompasses three separate protections: protection against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal, protection against a second prosecution for the same offense after conviction, and protection against multiple punishments for the same offense.	Does the constitutional guarantee against double jeopardy encompass the protection against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal?
6360	In re Commercial Money Ctr., 350 B.R. 465, 481 (9th Cir. 2006)	21	Whether a transaction is a sale or a loan for security is based on the intentions of the parties as determined from all the facts and circumstances surrounding the transactions at issue.	Whether a transaction is a sale or a loan is based on the intentions of the parties as “determined from all the facts and circumstances surrounding the transactions at issue.”	Is whether a transaction is a sale or a loan for security based on the intentions of the parties as determined from all the facts and circumstances surrounding the transactions at issue?
6363	Montgomery v. State, 21 N.E.3d 846, 864 (Ind. App. 2014)	18	State constitutional Double Jeopardy Clause prevents the State from being able to proceed against a person twice for the same criminal transgression. West’s A.I.C. Const. Art. 1, S 14.	“Indiana’s Double Jeopardy Clause ... prevent[s] the State from being able to proceed against a person twice for the same criminal transgression.”	Does double Jeopardy clause prevent a State from being able to proceed against a person twice for the same criminal transgression?

6365	United States v. Leppo, 641 F.2d 149, 152 (3d Cir. 1981)	3	Double jeopardy clause protects a defendant in a criminal proceeding against multiple punishment or repeated prosecutions for the same offense but does not always bar a new trial after a mistrial has been declared, and where a mistrial is not requested by the defendant a retrial is permitted if there is a manifest necessity for the mistrial or the ends of public justice would otherwise be defeated and where defendant requests a mistrial, ordinarily a retrial is not barred unless the underlying error is motivated by bad faith or undertaken to harass or prejudice. U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 5.	The Double Jeopardy Clause of the Fifth Amendment protects a defendant in a criminal proceeding against multiple punishment or repeated prosecutions for the same offense. United States v. Dinitz, 424 U.S. 600, 606, 96 S.Ct. 1075, 1078, 47 L.Ed.2d 267 (1976). The Clause, however, does not always bar a new trial after a mistrial has been declared. Where the mistrial is not requested by the defendant a retrial is permitted if there is a manifest necessity for the mistrial or the ends of public justice would otherwise be defeated. Id. at 607, 96 S.Ct. at 1079. Where the defendant requests the mistrial, ordinarily a retrial is not barred unless "the underlying error was 'motivated by bad faith or undertaken to harass or prejudice.	Does a double jeopardy clause protect a defendant in a criminal proceeding against multiple punishment or repeated prosecutions for the same offense?
6370	Joe Hatton, Inc. v. Conner, 240 So. 2d 145, 147 (Fla. 1970)	4	Legislative power to tax may be exercised through subordinate governmental agencies within definite limitations fixed by law.	The legislative power to tax may be exercised through subordinate governmental agencies within definite limitations fixed by law.	Can the legislative power to tax be exercised through subordinate governmental agencies within definite limitations fixed by law?
6371	Tulane Homestead Ass'n v. Philip Bohrer Realty, 192 So. 154, 156 (La. Ct. App. 1939)	1	A state tax is not an ordinary debt subject to control of parties, and taxing unit cannot assign the claim to a citizen and thereby subrogate him to the collecting rights of the taxing unit unless the law expressly confers such power.	Section 1228 of Volume 61 of Corpus Juris (Verbum Taxation) states the general rule at page 954 as follows: "A state tax is not an ordinary debt subject to the control of the parties, and the taxing unit cannot assign the claim to a citizen and thereby subrogate him to the collecting rights of the taxing unit, unless the law expressly confers such power."	Can a taxing unit assign its claim for taxes to a citizen?
6372	State v. Moulton, 120 Conn. App. 330, 351 (2010)	36	To prove the crime of harassment in the second degree, the state must show that the defendant, with the intent to harass, annoy or alarm another person, made a telephone call in a manner likely to cause annoyance or alarm. C.G.S.A. S 53a-183(a).	To prove the crime of harassment in the second degree, the state must show that the defendant, with the intent to harass, annoy or alarm another person, made a telephone call in a manner likely to cause annoyance or alarm.	What is required to prove the crime of harassment in the second degree?

6373	Garza v. Citigroup Inc., 192 F. Supp. 3d 508, 511 (Del. 2016)	2	Under Delaware law, an accounting is an equitable remedy that consists of the adjustment of accounts between parties and a rendering of a judgment for the amount ascertained to be due to either as a result; in other words, an accounting reflects a request for a particular type of remedy, rather than an equitable claim in and of itself.	Under well-accepted Delaware law, "[a]n accounting is an equitable remedy that consists of the adjustment of accounts between parties and a rendering of a judgment for the amount ascertained to be due to either as a result." In other words, an accounting "reflects a request for a particular type of remedy, rather than an equitable claim in and of itself."	Is accounting an equitable remedy?
6375	Erickson v. Director, 507 N.W.2d 537, 539 (N.D. 1993)	1	Appeal from administrative hearing officer's decision involving license suspension is governed by Administrative Agencies Practices Act. NDCC 28-32-01 et seq., 39-20-04.1.	An appeal from an administrative hearing officer's decision involving a license suspension under N.D.C.C. 39- 20-04.1 is governed by the Administrative Agencies Practice Act, N.D.C.C.	Does Administrative Agencies Practice Act governs an appeal from administrative hearing officer's decision involving a license suspension?
6378	In re McCabe Group, 424 B.R. 1, 20 (D. Mass. 2010)	6	Under Massachusetts law, equitable subrogation exists to prevent unwarranted windfalls, because duplicative recoveries are a result which the law has never looked upon with favor.	Nonetheless, equitable subrogation exists to prevent an unwarranted windfalls and "[d]uplicative recover[ies] [are] 'a result which the law has never looked upon with favor.' "	"Does equitable subrogation exist to prevent unwarranted windfalls, because duplicative recoveries are a result which the law has never looked upon with favor?"
6379	In re Olinger, 160 B.R. 1004, 1014 (Bankr. S.D. Ind. 1993)	7	Under doctrine of equitable subrogation, if guarantor is called upon to pay debt of principal, guarantor steps into the shoes of creditor who was paid off; guarantor's interest also attaches to any security which creditor does or could have obtained from principal.	Under the doctrine of equitable subordination, if a guarantor is called upon to pay the debt of the principal, the guarantor steps into the shoes of the creditor who was paid off. Homeowners Loan Corp. v. Henson, 217 Ind. 554, 29 N.E.2d 873 (1940); White v. Household Finance Corp., 158 Ind.App. 394, 302 N.E.2d 828 (1973); 38 Am.Jur. "Guaranty" § 127. The guarantor's interest also attaches to any security which the creditor does or could have obtained from the principal.	"Under the doctrine of equitable subrogation, if a guarantor is called upon to pay the debt of a principal, does the guarantor step into the shoes of the creditor who was paid off?"
6380	Armstrong v. Land & Marine Applicators, 463 So. 2d 1331, 1334 (La. Ct. App. 1984)	1	As matter of policy, Worker's Compensation Act in general is designed to balance interest of worker and employer with theoretical concurrent benefit to public of reducing the cost of doing business. LSA-R.S. 23:1021-23:1351	As a matter of policy, the worker's compensation act in general is designed to balance the interests of the worker and the employer, with the theoretical concurrent benefit to the public of reducing the cost of doing business.	"How does the workers compensation act balance the interest of the worker and employer, and benefit the public? "
6381	Denisen v. Milwaukee Mut. Ins. Co., 360 N.W.2d 448, 450 (Minn. Ct. App. 1985)	1	Minnesota workers' compensation law establishes an exclusive system of compensation in all but certain designated employments for injuries which result in disability or death to employees and which arise out of and in course of their employment. M.S.A. S 176.031.	The Minnesota workers' compensation law establishes an exclusive system of compensation in all but certain designated employments for injuries which result in disability or death to employees and which arise out of and in the course of their employment.	Is the workers compensation an exclusive system of compensation and does the injury or accident arise out of and in the course of their employment?

6383	Chappelle v. S. Fla. Guardianship Program, Inc., 169 So. 3d 291, 294 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2015)	3	Before a court may dismiss a cause as a sanction, it must first consider the six factors delineated in Kozel v. Ostendorf for entering dismissal as sanction and set forth explicit findings of fact in the order that imposes the sanction of dismissal.	"Before a court may dismiss a cause as a sanction, it must first consider the six factors delineated in Kozel v. Ostendorf , 629 So.2d 817 (Fla.1993), and set forth explicit findings of fact in the order that imposes the sanction of dismissal."	Should a trial court consider six factors prior to determining an appropriate sanction for a plaintiff's failure to amend?
6384	Travelers Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Am. Eq. Ins. Co., 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 619 (Cal. App. 1st Dist. 2001)	11	The doctrine of "equitable subrogation" is broad enough to include every instance in which one person, not acting as a mere volunteer or intruder, pays a debt for which another is primarily liable, and which in equity and good conscience should have been discharged by the latter.	" 'As now applied [the doctrine of equitable subrogation] is broad enough to include every instance in which one person, not acting as a mere volunteer or intruder, pays a debt for which another is primarily liable, and which in equity and good conscience should have been discharged by the latter.' [Citations.]"	Is the right of subrogation purely derivative?
6386	In re Nancy A., 344 Ill. App. 3d 540, 551, 801 N.E.2d 565, 576 (2003)	17	Plaintiffs have an almost absolute right to take a voluntary dismissal absent an unequivocal conflict between a specific rule of the Supreme Court and Code of Civil Procedure. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-1009.	Plaintiffs have an almost absolute right to take a voluntary dismissal absent an unequivocal conflict between a specific rule of the supreme court and section 2-1009 of the Illinois Code of Civil Procedure. 735 ILCS 5/2-1009 (West 2000); Winn, 308 Ill.App.3d at 1058, 242 Ill.Dec.	Do plaintiffs have an absolute right to take a voluntary dismissal?
6389	Harwell v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 896 S.W.2d 170, 173 (Tex. 1995)	2	When determining whether summary judgment was proper, appellate court reviews evidence in light most favorable to nonmovant, taking all evidence in favor of nonmovant as true and resolving all doubts as to existence of genuine issue of material fact in its favor.	When determining whether summary judgment was proper, we review the evidence in the light most favorable to the nonmovant, taking all evidence in favor of the nonmovant as true and resolving all doubts as to the existence of a genuine issue of material fact in its favor.	Will evidence favorable to the nonmovant will be accepted as true when making decisions on summary judgment?
6390	Harwell v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 896 S.W.2d 170, 173 (Tex. 1995)	2	When determining whether summary judgment was proper, appellate court reviews evidence in light most favorable to nonmovant, taking all evidence in favor of nonmovant as true and resolving all doubts as to existence of genuine issue of material fact in its favor.	When determining whether summary judgment was proper, we review the evidence in the light most favorable to the nonmovant, taking all evidence in favor of the nonmovant as true and resolving all doubts as to the existence of a genuine issue of material fact in its favor.	Will all conflicts in the evidence will be disregarded and the evidence favorable to the nonmovant will be accepted as true when deciding summary judgment?
6391	DePuy Synthes Sales, Inc. v. Globus Med., Inc., 259 F. Supp. 3d 225, 234 (E.D. Pa. 2017)	5	Under Pennsylvania law, although gist of the action doctrine calls for fact-intensive judgment as to claim's true nature, whether gist of the action doctrine applies in any particular setting is question of law.	Although the gist of the action doctrine "call[s] for a fact-intensive judgment as to the true nature of a claim," Williams v. Hilton Grp. PLC , 93 Fed.Appx. 384, 386 (3d Cir. 2004), whether the gist of the action doctrine applies in any particular setting is a question of law.	Does gist of the action doctrine call for fact-intensive judgment as to a claim's true nature

6393	Knight v. Chicago Corp., 183 S.W.2d 666, 670 (Tex. Civ. App. 1944)	3	An "overriding royalty" is a certain percentage of the working interest which as between lessee and assignee of mineral lease is not charged with cost of development or production.	An overriding royalty is a certain percentage of the working interest which as between the lessee and the assignee is not charged with the cost of development or production.	Can the term overriding royalty be defined as a certain percentage of the working interest which as between the lessee and the assignee is not charged with the cost of development or production?
6395	Norcon Builders, LLC v. GMP Homes VG, LLC, 161 Wash. App. 474, 499–500 (2011)	27	In the real estate context, equitable subrogation has been traditionally invoked only to prevent unjust enrichment; equitable remedies are not granted where it would produce injustice. Restatement (Third) of Property (Mortgages) S 7.6 comment.	Finally, we note, "in the real estate context, equitable subrogation has been traditionally invoked only to prevent unjust enrichment; equitable remedies are not *500 granted where it would produce injustice.	Is equitable subrogation traditionally invoked in the context of real estate to prevent unjust enrichment?
6396	Misener Marine Const. v. Norfolk Dredging Co., 594 F.3d 832, 838 (11th Cir. 2010)	8	Attorneys' fees will be awarded to the prevailing party in maritime cases if (1) they are provided by the statute governing the claim, (2) the nonprevailing party acted in bad faith in the course of the litigation, or (3) there is a contract providing for the indemnification of attorneys' fees.	Attorneys' fees will be awarded to the prevailing party in maritime cases if: "(1) they are provided by the statute governing the claim, (2) the nonprevailing party acted in bad faith in the course of the litigation, or (3) there is a contract providing for the indemnification of attorneys' fees."	Are attorneys fees awarded to prevailing parties in admiralty cases?
6398	Chaplin v. Selznick, 58 N.Y.S.2d 453, 454 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1945)	1	Ordinarily one defendant may not examine a codefendant before trial unless the one seeking examination has asked for affirmative relief against the defendant whose examination is sought. Civil Practice Act SS 288, 289.	Ordinarily, one defendant may not examine a co-defendant before trial unless the one seeking the examination has asked for affirmative relief against the defendant whose examination is sought.	Can a defendant examine a codefendant before trial unless the one seeking examination has asked for affirmative relief against the defendant whose examination is sought?
6399	State v. Ensley, 240 Ind. 472, 489 (1960)	10	Generally, there is no property right of an abutting owner in the free flow of traffic past his property and no compensation can be claimed if such traffic is diverted from his premises or is made to travel a more circuitous route.	The general rule is that there is no property right of an abutting property owner in the free flow of traffic past his property and thus no compensation can be claimed if traffic is diverted from his premises or made to travel a more circuitous route.	Is there any property right of an abutting owner in the free flow of traffic past his property?
6400	Frymire Eng'g Co., ex rel. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Jomar Int'l, Ltd., 194 S.W.3d 713, 716 (Tex. App. 2006)	7	The doctrine of equitable subrogation may be invoked to prevent unjust enrichment when one person confers upon another a benefit that is not required by legal duty or contract.	The doctrine of equitable subrogation "may be invoked to prevent unjust enrichment when one person confers upon another a benefit that is not required by legal duty or contract."	When can the doctrine of equitable subrogation be invoked to prevent unjust enrichment?
6402	In re Flamingo 55, Inc., 378 B.R. 893, 905 (D. Nev. 2007)	1	"Subrogation" is the substitution of one party in place of another with reference to a lawful claim, demand, or right, by which the party paying the loss or claim, that is, the "subrogee," is placed in the shoes of the person who suffered the loss, the "subrogor."	In general terms, subrogation is the substitution of one party in place of another with reference to a lawful claim, demand or right. Subrogation places the party paying the loss or claim (the "subrogee") in the shoes of the person who suffered the loss ("the subrogor").	"Does subrogation refer to the placing of one party in the position of a second party, with respect to the rights and obligations of a claim?"

6403	In re Frankum, 399 B.R. 498, 505 (E.D. Ark. 2009)	14	Under a theory of "equitable subrogation," a person who pays the debt of another may seek reimbursement to prevent unjust enrichment.	Under a theory of equitable subrogation, a person who pays the debt of another may seek reimbursement to prevent unjust enrichment.	Should a person who pays the debt of another seek reimbursement to prevent unjust enrichment under a theory of equitable subrogation?
6404	Jordan v. Griley, 667 So. 2d 493, 493–94 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1996)	2	Motion to dismiss complaint is not motion for summary judgment in which court may rely on facts adduced in depositions, affidavits, or other proofs.	The law is well settled that a motion to dismiss a complaint is not a motion for summary judgment in which the court may rely on facts adduced in depositions, affidavits, or other proofs	"Is a motion to dismiss complaint not a motion for summary judgment in which a court can rely on facts adduced in depositions, affidavits, or other proofs?"
6405	Marshall v. Horn Seed Co., 509 F. Supp. 1, 5 (W.D. Okla. 1979)	6	In passing on validity of a search warrant, a reviewing court may consider only that information brought to the attention of the issuing magistrate or judge. U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 4.	In passing on the validity of the search warrant, the reviewing court may consider only that information brought to the attention of the issuing magistrate or judge.	Should the court consider only that information brought to the attention of the issuing magistrate or judge while deciding on the validity of the search warrant?
6406	In re Hall, 477 B.R. 74, 85 (N.D. Ill. 2012)	14	Under Iowa state law, equitable subrogation is appropriate when: (1) payment was made to protect subrogee's own interest; (2) repayment by subrogee was not voluntary; (3) debt paid was one for which subrogee was not primarily liable; (4) entire debt was paid; and (5) subrogation will not injure rights of others.	In contrast, under Iowa state law, equitable subrogation is appropriate where: (1) payment was made to protect the subrogee's own interest; (2) repayment by the subrogee was not voluntary; (3) the debt paid was one for which the subrogee was not primarily liable; (4) the entire debt was paid; and (5) subrogation will not injure the rights of others.	When is equitable subrogation appropriate?
6408	XL Specialty Ins. Co. v. Cmmw., Dept. of Transp., 611 S.E.2d 356, 360 (Va. 2005)	3	"Equitable subrogation" is subrogation that arises by operation of law; it is not based on contract or privity of parties, but is purely equitable in nature, dependent on the facts and circumstances of each particular case.	Equitable subrogation is subrogation that arises by operation of law. It is not based on contract or privity of parties, but is "purely equitable in nature, dependent on the facts and circumstances of each particular case."	Does legal or equitable subrogation arise by operation of law based on the facts or underlying circumstances of the case?
6410	Dees v. Logan, 281 Ga. App. 837, 838, 637 S.E.2d 424, 426 (2006)	3	Because the grant of a motion in limine forecloses the admission of the evidence at trial, the grant of a motion in limine excluding evidence is a judicial power which must be exercised with great care.	Because the grant of a motion in limine forecloses the admission of the evidence at trial, "the grant of a motion in limine excluding evidence is a judicial power which must be exercised with great care."	"Because the grant of a motion in limine forecloses the admission of the evidence at trial, must the grant of a motion in limine be exercised with great care? "
6411	Am. Safety Equip. Corp. v. J. P. Maguire & Co., 391 F.2d 821, 825 (2d Cir. 1968)	4	The remedy a statute provides for violation of the statutory right it creates may be sought, not only in any court of competent jurisdiction, but also in any other competent tribunal, such as arbitration, unless right itself is of a character inappropriate for enforcement by arbitration. 9 U.S.C.A. SS 2-4, 6.	We think that the remedy a statute provides for violation of the statutory right it creates may be sought not only in any 'court of competent jurisdiction' but also in any other competent tribunal, such as arbitration, unless the right itself is of a character inappropriate for enforcement by arbitration.	Can the remedy for a violation of a statutory right be sought in arbitration?

6414	Whitney v. Turmel, 429 A.2d 826, 826–27 (Conn. 1980)	2	Essential elements of adverse possession are that the owner shall be ousted from possession and kept uninterrupted for 15 years under claim of right by an open, visible or exclusive possession of the claimant without license or consent of the owner.	The essential elements of adverse possession are that the owner shall be ousted from possession and kept out uninterrupted for fifteen years under a claim of right by an open, visible and exclusive possession of the claimant without license or consent of the owner.	Is exclusive possession an essential element of adverse possession?
6415	Stone v. Baum, 409 F. Supp. 2d 1164, 1177 (D. Ariz. 2005)	20	Pendency of prior action, in court of competent jurisdiction, between same parties, predicated upon same cause of action and growing out of same transaction, and in which identical relief is sought, constitutes good grounds for abatement of later suit.	"It is settled law that the pendency of a prior action, in a court of competent jurisdiction, between the same parties, predicated upon the same cause of action and growing out of the same transaction, and in which identical relief is sought, constitutes good grounds for abatement of the later suit."	When is abatement of a subsequent cause of action appropriate?
6416	N. Buncombe Ass'n of Concerned Citizens v. Rhodes, 100 N.C. App. 24, 28 (1990)	1	If dispute between state agency and another person arises and cannot be settled informally, procedures for resolving disputes are governed by Administrative Procedure Act. G.S. SS 150B-1 to 150B-63, 150B-1(b-d), 150B-2(1).	When a dispute between a state agency and another person arises and cannot be settled informally, the procedures for resolving the dispute are governed by the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), N.C.Gen.Stat. 150B-1 to -63.	Does the Administrative Procedure Act provide the procedure for resolution of a dispute that arises between a state agency and a person which cannot be informally resolved?
6418	Day v. the CornËr Bank (overseas) Ltd., 789 F. Supp. 2d 150, 160 (D.D.C. 2011)	20	As legal concepts, questions of "personal jurisdiction" and "venue" are distinct; the former concerns itself with the power of a court to adjudicate the rights and liabilities of a party, while the latter focuses on the most convenient location for litigation.	Indeed, as legal concepts, questions of personal jurisdiction and venue are distinct. The former concerns itself with the power of a court to adjudicate the rights and liabilities of a party, while the latter focuses on the most convenient location for litigation.	Are personal jurisdiction and venue different concepts?
6420	Pierce v. Parker Towing Company, 25 F. Supp. 3d 1372, 1375 (S.D. Ala. 2014)	3	The maritime jurisdictional statute's "saving to suitors" clause is a feature of the congressional grant of original admiralty jurisdiction to the federal district courts, and preserves a plaintiff's right to a common law remedy, not necessarily to a nonfederal forum. 28 U.S.C.A. S 1333.	The "saving to suitors" clause is "a feature of the congressional grant of original admiralty jurisdiction to the federal district courts in 28 U.S.C. 1333[.]" "preserves a plaintiff's right to a common law remedy, not[, necessarily,] to a nonfederal forum."	How is the saving to suitors clause defined?

6423	Guy v. United Healthcare Corp., 154 F.R.D. 172, 178 (Ohio 1993)	17	When legal advice of any kind is sought, from professional legal advisor in his capacity as such, communications relating to that purpose, made in confidence, by the client, are at his instance permanently protected, by attorney-client privilege, from disclosure by himself or by his legal advisor, except if protection be waived.	The party invoking the protection of the attorney-client privilege must establish the following: (1) Where legal advice of any kind is sought, (2) from a professional legal advisor in his capacity as such, (3) the communications relating to that purpose, (4) made in confidence (5) by the client, (6) are at his instance permanently protected (7) from disclosure by himself or by his legal advisor, (8) except the protection be waived.	What should a party invoking the protection of the attorney-client privilege establish?
6424	Osborne v. City of Camden, 301 Ark. 420, 421 (1990)	1	Municipal zoning authority is conferred solely by state enabling legislation, and failure to comply with mandatory procedural requirement of enabling statute renders zoning ordinance invalid.	Municipal zoning authority is conferred solely by State enabling legislation. Taggart v. City of Augusta, 278 Ark. 570, 647 S.W.2d 458 (1983). Failure to comply with a mandatory procedural requirement of the enabling statute renders a zoning ordinance invalid.	Will a failure to comply with the enabling statute requirement render a zoning action void?
6425	Town of Midland v. Wayne, 368 N.C. 55, 62–63, 773 S.E.2d 301, 307 (2015)	1	The power of eminent domain is one of the prerogatives of a sovereign state, however, its exercise is limited by the constitutional requirements of due process and payment of just compensation for property condemned; just compensation means that persons being required to provide land for public projects are put in the same financial position as prior to the taking. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 14; West's N.C.G.S.A. Const. Art. 1, S 19.	"[T]he power of eminent domain[] is one of the prerogatives of a sovereign state.... Its exercise, however, is limited by the constitutional requirements of due process and payment of just compensation for property condemned." Dep't of Transp. v. M.M. Fowler, Inc., 361 N.C. 1, 4, 637 S.E.2d 885, 889 (2006) (citations and quotation marks omitted). See N.C. Const. art. I, § 19 ("No person shall be ... deprived of his ... property, but by the law of the land."); see also U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 1 ("[N]or shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law...."). Due process requires that the *63 property right taken and the owner of the right be identified in the condemnation complaint. See Barnes v. N.C. State Highway Comm'n, 250 N.C. 378, 387, 109 S.E.2d 219, 227 (1959) (noting the government's duty to make just compensation to the owner of the property appropriated). Just compensation means "that persons being required to provide land for public projects are put in the same financial position as prior to the taking."	Is the power of eminent domain limited by constitutional requirements?

6426	Ratajack v. Brewster Fire Dept., Inc. of the Brewster-S.E. Jt. Fire Dist., 178 F. Supp. 3d 118, 158 (S.D.N.Y. 2016)	32	To recover for libel under New York law, a plaintiff must prove five elements: (1) a written defamatory statement of fact regarding the plaintiff; (2) published to a third party by the defendant; (3) the defendant's fault; (4) the falsity of the defamatory statement; and (5) injury to the plaintiff.	To recover for libel under New York law, a plaintiff must "prove five elements: (1) a written defamatory statement of fact regarding the plaintiff; (2) published to a third party by the defendant; (3) [the] defendant's fault ...; (4) the falsity of the defamatory statement; and (5) injury to [the] plaintiff."	How can a person recover damages for Libel?
6429	United States v. 2004 Ferrari 360 Modeno, 902 F. Supp. 2d 944, 955–56 (S.D. Tex. 2012)	21	A "bailment" is an express or implied contract wherein the bailor delivers property to the bailee for some purpose and the bailee actually accepts the property; both delivery and acceptance of the property are essential to the creation of a contractual bailment relationship between parties. 18 U.S.C.A. § 983(d)(2).	In short, a bailment is an express or implied contract wherein the bailor delivers property to the bailee for some purpose and the bailee actually accepts the property. Thus, both delivery and acceptance of the property are essential to the creation of a contractual bailment relationship between parties.	Can a contract of bailment be an express or implied agreement between a bailor and a bailee?
6430	In re Mechanics Tr. Co., 119 N.J. Eq. 141, 181 A. 423 (Ch. 1935)	8	Banking business is charged with public interest, rendering it subject to regulation under state police power, and rights of all persons having direct contact with banking business may be altered or changed in reasonable manner.	The banking business is charged with the public interest, and it is subject to regulation under the police power of the state; consequently, the rights of all persons having a direct contact with that business may be altered and changed in a reasonable manner.	Is the business of banking within the police power of the state?
6431	In re N.J.A.C. 7:15-5.24(b), 420 N.J. Super. 552, 572 (App. Div. 2011)	11	Enabling statute for Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) grants the DEP vast authority to set policy and promulgate regulations for the conservation of the natural resources of the State, the promotion of environmental protection, and the prevention of pollution of the environment of the State. N.J.S.A. 13:1D-1 et seq.	grants the agency vast authority to set policy and promulgate regulations "for the conservation of the natural resources of the State, the promotion of environmental protection and the prevention of pollution of the environment of the State." N.J.S.A. 13:1D-9.	What responsibilities are the Department of Environmental Protection charged with?
6432	Zimmerman v. N. Dakota Dept. of Transp. Dir., 543 N.W.2d 479, 481 (N.D. 1996)	1	Appeal from administrative hearing officer's decision involving driver's license suspension is governed by Administrative Agencies Practice Act. NDCC 28-32-01 et seq.	An appeal from an administrative hearing officer's decision involving a license suspension under N.D.C.C. § 39–20–04.1, is governed by the Administrative Agencies Practice Act, N.D.C.C. Ch. 28–32.	Does Administrative Agencies Practice Act govern an appeal from administrative hearing officer's decision involving a license suspension?
6433	Bank of New York v. Sumter County, 387 S.C. 147, 158, 691 S.E.2d 473, 479 (2010)	11	A "constructive bailment" arises when one person has lawfully acquired possession of another person's personal property, other than by virtue of a bailment contract, and holds it under such circumstances that the law imposes on the recipient of the property the obligation to keep it safely and redeliver it to the owner.	"A constructive bailment arises when one person has lawfully acquired possession of another person's personal property, other than by virtue of a bailment contract, and holds it under such circumstances that the law imposes on the recipient of the property the obligation to keep it safely and redeliver it to the owner."	When does a constructive bailment arise?

6434	Floss v. Ryan's Family Steak Houses, Inc., 211 F.3d 306, 314 (6th Cir. 2000)	9	The sine qua non of the applicability of the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) to a particular dispute is an agreement to arbitrate the dispute in a contract which evidences a transaction in interstate commerce. 9 U.S.C.A. § 1 et seq.	Indeed, "[t]he sine qua non of the FAA's applicability to a particular dispute is an agreement to arbitrate the dispute in a contract which evidences a transaction in interstate commerce."	What is the sine qua non of the Federal Arbitration Acts (FAA) applicability to a particular dispute?
6435	Gay v. CreditInform, 511 F.3d 369, 388–89 (3d Cir. 2007)	27	Cardinal principle of law of arbitration is that, under the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA), arbitration is matter of consent, not coercion, and that parties are generally free to structure their arbitration agreements as they see fit, a freedom that extends to choice-of-law provisions governing parties' agreement to arbitrate. 9 U.S.C.A. § 1 et seq.	The cardinal principle of the law of arbitration is that "under the [FAA, arbitration] is a matter of consent, not coercion, and parties are generally free to structure their arbitration agreements as they see fit." Volt Info. Sciences, Inc. v. Bd. of Trustees of the Leland Stanford Junior Univ., 489 U.S. 468, 479, 109 S.Ct. 1248, 1256, 103 L.Ed.2d 488 (1989). That freedom extends to choice-of-law provisions governing agreements, including agreements to arbitrate.	What is the cardinal principle of the law of arbitration?
6436	Spear, Leeds Kellogg v. Central Life Assur, 85 F.3d 21, 28 (2d Cir. 1996)	9	Despite presumption of arbitrability, strong federal policy favoring arbitration may not extend reach of arbitration beyond intended scope of clause providing for it.	Despite the presumption of arbitrability, the strong federal policy favoring arbitration may not extend the reach of arbitration beyond the intended scope of the clause providing for it.	Can federal policy extend the reach of arbitration beyond the intended scope of the arbitration clause?
6437	Clean Air Coordinating Committee v. Environmental Protection Agency, 42 Ill. App. 3d 124, 128 (Ill. App. 1976)	2	Pollution Control Board is required by statute to file and publish written opinion stating facts and reasons leading to its decision. S.H.A. ch. 1111/212, § 1033.	It must be noted that the Board is required by statute to file and publish a written opinion stating the facts and reasons leading to its decision.	"Under Section 33 of the Environmental Protection Act, is the Pollution Control Board required to file and publish a written opinion stating the facts and reasons for its decision?"
6438	Morgan v. Texas Alcoholic Beverage Comm'n, 519 S.W.2d 250, 253 (Tex. Civ. App. 1975)	6	In refusing to grant application for wine and beer retailers license and cartage permit, county judge acts in administrative rather than judicial capacity.	The County Judge of Lamar County, in refusing to grant the application for a wine and beer retailers license and a cartage permit acted in an administrative rather than a judicial capacity.	Does a county judge in passing on an application for license to sell beer acts in administrative capacity?
6439	Johnston v. Bd. of Sup'rs of Marin Cnty., 187 P.2d 686, 691 (Cal. 1947)	10	County board of supervisors acts in administrative capacity in granting permits under zoning ordinance, and is bound by terms of ordinance, until ordinance is amended through proper legislative procedure. Gen.Laws, Act 5211b (repealed 1947. See Act 5211c).	When a board of supervisors acts in an administrative capacity, as in granting permits under a zoning ordinance, it is bound by the terms of the ordinance until the ordinance is amended through proper legislative procedure.	Does a board of supervisors when granting a permit under a zoning ordinance act in an administrative capacity?

6440	Murphy v. Colson, 2013 IL App (2d) 130291, ¶ 16 (2013)	1	To sustain a cause of action for alienation of affection, the plaintiff must allege and prove: (1) love and affection of the spouse for the plaintiff; (2) overt acts, conduct, or enticement on the part of the defendant causing these affections to depart; and (3) actual damages.	To sustain a 493 *376 cause of action for alienation of affection, the plaintiff must allege and prove: (a) love and affection of the spouse for the plaintiff; (b) overt acts, conduct, or enticement on the part of the defendant causing these affections to depart; and (c) actual damages.	When can a spouse maintain an action for alienation of affection against a third party?
6441	Malouf v. Dallas Athletic Country Club, 837 S.W.2d 674, 676 (Tex. App. 1992)	9	Trespass is usually regarded as an intentional tort in the sense that it involves an intent to commit an act which violates a property right, or would be practically certain to have that effect, although actor may not know that act he intends to commit is such a violation.	A trespass is usually regarded as an intentional tort in the sense that it involves an intent to commit an act which violates a property right, or would be practically certain to have that effect, although the actor may not know that the act he intends to commit is such a violation.	When is intent relevant for the tort of trespass?
6445	Commonwealth v. Earle, 458 Mass. 341, 347-48, 937 N.E.2d 42, 48 (2010)	9	As a parent has a duty to provide for the care and welfare of his or her child, a failure to discharge that duty can be rendered criminal if the defendant parent had the means to perform it, and depending on the circumstances, can constitute murder or involuntary manslaughter.	Thus, as a parent has a duty to provide for the care and welfare of his or her child, see Commonwealth v. Gallison, 383 Mass. 659, 665, 421 N.E.2d 757 (1981), a failure to discharge that duty can be rendered criminal if the defendant parent had the means to perform it and, depending on *348 the circumstances, can constitute murder or involuntary manslaughter.	Do parents have a legal duty to provide medical care for a child if necessary?
6450	United States v. CDMG Realty Co., 875 F. Supp. 1077, 1086 (D.N.J. 1995)	5	Primary prosecutorial responsibility for enforcing New Jersey's environmental laws resides in government, and Environmental Rights Act (ERA) anticipates private parties' standing only when government has failed to properly act. N.J.S.A. 2A:35A-4, subd. a.	"The primary prosecutorial responsibility for enforcing the state's environmental laws resides in the government, and the [ERA] anticipates private parties' standing only when the government has failed to properly act." 13 U.S.	When does the Environmental Rights Act (ERA) anticipate private parties standing?
6453	Olle v. 5401 W. Ave. Residential, 569 F. Supp. 2d 141, 144 (D.D.C. 2008)	1	Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) creates a strong presumption in favor of enforcing arbitration agreements and any doubts concerning the scope of arbitrable issues should be resolved in favor of arbitration. 9 U.S.C.A. § 2.	The FAA creates a strong presumption in favor of enforcing arbitration agreements and "[a]ny doubts concerning the scope of arbitrable issues should be resolved in favor of arbitration.	Does the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) create a strong presumption in favor of enforcing arbitration agreements?

6456	Brown ex rel. Stevens v. State, 39 N.Y.S.3d 327, 331 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dept. 2016)	8	The New York constitution enshrined the traditional public school system of school districts in which communities make decisions on funding and operating publicly-funded local schools, but it did not alter its substance. McKinney's Const. Art. 11, S 1.	Those words enshrined in the State Constitution the traditional, centuries-old system of school districts in which communities make decisions on funding and operating publicly-funded local schools (see New York Civ. Liberties Union v. State of New York, 4 N.Y.3d 175, 181, 791 N.Y.S.2d 507, 824 N.E.2d 947 [NYCLU]; Paynter, 100 N.Y.2d at 442, 765 N.Y.S.2d 819, 797 N.E.2d 1225). Its purpose was to constitutionalize the traditional public school system, not to alter its substance (see NYCLU, 4 N.Y.3d at 181, 791 N.Y.S.2d 507, 824 N.E.2d 947; Payntner, 100 N.Y.2d at 442, 765 N.Y.S.2d 819, 797 N.E.2d 1225).	Do communities make decisions on funding and operating publicly-funded local schools?
6457	DiFolco v. MSNBC Cable L.L.C., 831 F. Supp. 2d 634, 649 (S.D.N.Y. 2011)	16	Under New York law, the single instance rule applies as an exception to defamation per se actions for disparaging a person in his or her profession where a publication charges a professional person with a single error in judgment, which the law presumes not to injure reputation; under the single, instance exception to the per se rule, a statement charging another with a single dereliction in connection with his or her trade, occupation or profession does not necessarily charge that party with general incompetence, ignorance or lack of skill and is not deemed actionable unless special damages are pleaded and shown. Restatement (Second) of Torts S 558.	New York, however, recognizes the "single instance rule" as a narrow exception to the category of defamation per se outlined above. Celle, 209 F.3d at 180. The rule applies " 'where a publication charges a professional person with a single error in judgment, which the law presumes not to injure reputation.' " Id. (quoting Armstrong v. Simon & Schuster, Inc., 85 N.Y.2d 373, 625 N.Y.S.2d 477, 649 N.E.2d 825, 828 n. 5 (1995)). "[U]nder the 'single, instance' exception to [the per se rule], a statement charging another with a single dereliction in connection with his or her trade, occupation or profession does not necessarily charge that party with general incompetence, ignorance or lack of skill and is not deemed actionable unless special damages are pleaded and shown.	What is the single instance rule in defamation law?
6460	Husser v. N.Y.C. Dep't of Educ., 137 F. Supp. 3d 253, 265 (E.D.N.Y. 2015)	10	Equal Pay Act prohibits employers from discriminating among employees on the basis of sex by paying higher wages to employees of the opposite sex for equal work. Equal Pay Act of 1963, S 3(d)(1), 29 U.S.C.A. S 206(d)(1).	The Equal Pay Act "prohibits employers from discriminating among employees on the basis of sex by paying higher wages to employees of the opposite sex for 'equal work.' "	Does the Equal Pay Act prohibit an employer from discriminating between employees on the basis of sex while paying wages?
6461	First Assembly of God, Inc. v. Texas Utilities Elec. Co., 52 S.W.3d 482, 491–92 (Tex. App. 2001)	21	The commensurate with the danger standard of care imposed upon a public utility does not impose a higher duty of care; rather, it more fully defines what is ordinary care under the facts presented.	This "commensurate with the danger" standard does not impose a higher duty of care; rather, it more fully defines what is ordinary care under the facts presented.	Does the commensurate with the danger standard impose a higher duty of care by a public utility?

6463	City of Cohasset v. Minnesota Power, 776 N.W.2d 776, 783 (Minn. Ct. App. 2010)	7	An entity, to operate as a utility, must not only lay pipes and install equipment, but also must provide service, collect charges, and do other things necessary to conduct a utility business.	"[A]n entity, to operate as a utility, must not only lay pipes and install equipment, but also must provide service, collect charges, and do other things necessary to conduct a utility business."	Should an entity only lay pipes and install equipment to operate as a utility?
6466	Connick v. Myers, 461 U.S. 138, 138, 103 S. Ct. 1684, 1685, 75 L. Ed. 2d 708 (1983)	1	In determining a public employee's rights of free speech, task of the Supreme Court is to arrive at a balance between interests of the employee as a citizen, in commenting upon matters of public concern and the interest of the state, as an employer, in promoting the efficiency of the public services it performs through its employees. U.S.C.A. Const.Amends. 1, 14.	In determining a public employee's rights of free speech, the problem is to arrive "at a balance between the interests of the [employee], as a citizen, in commenting on matters of public concern and the interest of the State, as an employer, in promoting the efficiency of the public services it performs through its employees."	Does the First Amendment protect the right of public employees to comment on matters of public interest?
6467	Penn Central Transp. Co. v. New York City, 438 U.S. 104, 124 (1978)	5	A "taking" may more readily be found when the interference with property had to be characterized as a physical invasion by the government, and when interference arises from some public program adjusting the benefits and burdens of economic life to promote the common good. U.S.C.A.Const. Amends. 5, 14.	A "taking" may more readily be found when the interference with property can be characterized as a physical invasion by government, see, e. g., United States v. Causby, 328 U.S. 256, 66 S.Ct. 1062, 90 L.Ed. 1206 (1946), than when interference arises from some public program adjusting the benefits and burdens of economic life to promote the common good.	When can a taking be readily found?
6468	State ex rel. State Highway Comm'n v. Gatson, 617 S.W.2d 80, 82 (Mo. Ct. App. 1981)	3	A "special benefit," which condemnor may utilize as setoff against landowner's damages, is one that accrues directly and approximately to particular land remaining after partial taking by reason of construction of public work upon that part of land that was taken reflected in increase in market value of remaining land.	A special benefit is one that accrues directly and proximately to the particular land remaining after a partial taking by reason of the construction of the public work upon that part of the land that was taken reflected in an increase in market value of the remaining land.	What are special benefits in taking?
6470	Entergy Gulf States v. Louisiana Pub. Serv. Comm'n, 98-1235 (La. 4/16/99), 730 So. 2d 890, 904	9	Utility must make reasonable attempts to minimize costs through prudent decision making, since ratepayers depend on only one monopolistic supplier.	The utility must make reasonable attempts to minimize costs through prudent decision making, since ratepayers depend on only one monopolistic supplier.	Should the utility must make reasonable attempts to minimize costs through prudent decision making?
6471	Moghazeh v. Valdes-Rodriguez, 542 N.Y.S.2d 635, 636 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dept. 1989)	1	General rule that, all things being equal, transitory action should be tried in county in which cause of action arose, is predicated on convenience of material witnesses. McKinney's CPLR 510, subd. 3.	In making its ruling, the trial court relied upon the general rule that, "all things being equal, a transitory action should be tried in the county in which the cause of action arose", McGuire v. General Electric Company, 117 A.D.2d 523, 498 N.Y.S.2d 137. As we have repeatedly held, however, this rule "is predicated on the convenience of material witnesses".	Is the general rule that a transitory action should be brought where the cause of action arose predicated on the convenience of material witnesses?

6473	Am. Discount Co. v. Wyckroff, 191 So. 790, 794 (Ala. Ct. App. 1939)	16	The term "force," as applied to trespass to personal property, does not necessarily mean application of physical force or violence, but merely of constructive force which is sustained by proof of threats to compel submission.	The term "force" as applied to a trespass to personal property does not necessarily mean the application of physical force, violence, etc., but merely of constructive force, which would be sustained by proof of threats to compel plaintiff's submission.	Should the term force as applied to trespass mean actual physical force?
6474	Frye v. Baskin, 241 Mo. App. 319, 331 (1950)	4	Trespass lies whenever an injury to plaintiff's property, against the will of the plaintiff, is the immediate result of a forceful, unlawful or wrongful act, not in a criminal sense, by the trespasser, the consequences of which make the act tortious.	Trespass involves the idea of force. The principle is elementary that trespass lies whenever an injury to plaintiff's property, against his will, is the immediate result of a forceful, unlawful or wrongful act (not in a criminal sense) by the trespasser, the consequences of which make them tortious.	"Is trespass the immediate result of a forceful, unlawful or wrongful act?"
6476	Am. Mgmt. Consultant v. Carter, 392 Ill. App. 3d 39, 56, (2009)	13	Where a statute includes a requirement that written demand is made prior to filing a complaint, the demand must be made in strict compliance with the statute.	Where the statute includes a requirement that written demand is made prior to filing a complaint, the demand must be made in strict compliance with the statute.	"Where a statute includes a requirement that written demand be made prior to filing a complaint, must the demand be made in strict compliance with the statute?"
6477	First Nat. Bank of Jackson v. Huff, 441 So. 2d 1317, 1319 (Miss. 1983)	3	Determination of whether subrogation is applicable is a factual determination of each particular case with consideration of fairness and justice as its guiding principles.	The determination of whether subrogation is applicable is a factual determination of each particular case with consideration of fairness and justice as its guiding principles.	Is the determination of whether subrogation is applicable a factual determination of each particular case with consideration of fairness and justice as its guiding principles?
6478	Wasko v. Manella, 849 A.2d 777, 781 (Conn. 2004)	4	The object of legal or equitable subrogation is the prevention of injustice; it is designed to promote and to accomplish justice, and is the mode which equity adopts to compel the ultimate payment of a debt by one who, in justice, equity, and good conscience, should pay it.	The object of [legal or equitable] subrogation is the prevention of injustice. It is designed to promote and to accomplish justice, and is the mode which equity adopts to compel the ultimate payment of a debt by one who, in justice, equity, and good conscience, should pay it....	Is prevention of injustice the object of subrogation?
6479	AT&T Mobility LLC v. Concepcion, 563 U.S. 333, 341-42 (2011)	7	In light of the preemptive effect of the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA), a court may not rely on the uniqueness of an agreement to arbitrate as a basis for a state-law holding that enforcement would be unconscionable, for this would enable the court to effect what the state legislature cannot. 9 U.S.C.A. § 2.	We said that a court may not "rely on the uniqueness of an agreement to arbitrate as a basis for a state-law holding that enforcement would be unconscionable, for this would enable the court to effect what ... the state legislature cannot."	Can a court rely on the uniqueness of an arbitration agreement when state-law says that the enforcement of the agreement is unconscionable?

6481	Florida E. Coast Ry. Co. v. Broward Cty., 421 So. 2d 681, 683 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1982)	2	When a taking will not materially impair or interfere with or is not inconsistent with the existing public use, and the proposed use is not detrimental to the public, then a court possesses authority to order a taking of the property; this exception to the prior public use doctrine is known as the "compatible use" theory.	However, when a taking will not materially impair or interfere with or is not inconsistent with the existing use, and the proposed use is not detrimental to the public, then a court possesses authority to order a taking of the property. Georgia Southern & Florida Railway v. State Road Department, 176 So.2d 111 (Fla. 1st DCA 1965). This exception to the prior public use doctrine is known as the "compatible use" theory.	How is compatible use theory identified under the law?
6483	Wong v. Yoo, 649 F. Supp. 2d 34, 66 (E.D.N.Y. 2009)	60	Where a prosecution did not result in an acquittal, under New York law it is generally not deemed to have ended in favor of the accused, for purposes of a malicious prosecution claim, unless its final disposition is such as to indicate the accused's innocence; however, under certain circumstances dismissal is considered to be a termination in plaintiff's favor.	"Where a prosecution did not result in an acquittal, it is generally not deemed to have ended in favor of the accused, for purposes of a malicious prosecution claim, unless its final disposition is such as to indicate the accused's innocence." Fulton v. Robinson, 289 F.3d 188, 196 (2d Cir.2002). Under certain circumstances, however, dismissal is considered to be a termination in plaintiff's favor.	When is a prosecution deemed to have ended in favor of the accused for purposes of a malicious prosecution claim?
6484	Qualls v. Lake Berryessa Enterprises, Inc., 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143, 147 (Cal. App. 1st Dist. 1999)	5	Whether an agreement for the use of property constitutes a "license" or a lease generally is determined by the nature of the possession granted: if the contract gives exclusive possession of the premises against all the world, including the owner, it is a lease, but if it merely confers a privilege to occupy the premises under the owner, it is a license.	At the most rudimentary level, "[w]hether an agreement for the use of property constitutes a license or a lease generally is determined by the nature of the possession granted. If the contract gives exclusive possession of the premises against all the world, including the owner, it is a lease; if it merely confers a privilege to occupy the premises under the owner, it is a license."	What is the difference between a lease and a license?
6486	Gibson v. Am. Cyanamid Co., 760 F.3d 600, 626 (7th Cir. 2014)	28	Assessing liability that adjusts the benefits and burdens of economic life to promote the common good does not constitute a taking. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Assessing liability "that adjusts the benefits and burdens of economic life to promote the common good ... does not constitute a taking."	Does assessing liability that adjusts the benefits and burdens of economic life to promote the common good constitute a taking?
6487	State v. Becker, 351 N.W.2d 923, 924 (Minn. 1984)	6	Complaint charging a defendant with multiple acts of intrafamilial sexual abuse over an extended period of time must allege that the crime occurred during a reasonably specific time period not exceeding the statute of limitations; it is not sufficient to merely restate the statutory language without setting forth a time frame. M.S.A. S 609.3641, subd. 1(2)(e); U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 6; M.S.A. Const. Art. 1, S 6.	A complaint charging a defendant with multiple acts of intrafamilial sexual abuse over an extended period of time must allege that the crime occurred during a reasonably specific time period not exceeding the statute of limitations. It is not sufficient to merely restate the statutory language without setting forth a time frame.	Is the time span in which multiple acts of intrafamilial sexual abuse took place relevant?

6488	Hall v. D.C., 867 F.3d 138, 149 (D.C. Cir. 2017)	8	In context of defamation claim, under District of Columbia law, no qualified privilege attaches to a statement made without just cause or excuse, with such a conscious indifference or reckless disregard as to its results or effects upon the rights or feelings of others as to constitute ill will.	No privilege attaches to a statement made "without just cause or excuse, with such a conscious indifference or reckless disregard as to its results or effects upon the rights or feelings of others as to constitute ill will."	When does qualified privilege attach to statements?
6489	Kala Investments v. Sklar, 538 So. 2d 909, 917 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1989)	15	Policy behind doctrine of equitable subrogation is to prevent unjust enrichment by assuring that person who in equity and good conscience is responsible for debt is ultimately answerable for its discharge.	The policy behind the doctrine is to prevent unjust enrichment by assuring that the person who in equity and good conscience is responsible for the debt is ultimately answerable for its discharge.	Is prevention of unjust enrichment the policy behind the doctrine of equitable subrogation?
6490	Youngblood v. Am. States Ins. Co., 866 P.2d 203, 205 (Mont. 1993)	6	Purpose of subrogation is to prevent injustice by compelling ultimate payment of debt by one who in justice, equity, and good conscience, should pay it; it is appropriate means of preventing unjust enrichment.	The purpose of subrogation is to prevent injustice by "compel[ling] the ultimate payment of a debt by one who, in justice, equity, and good conscience, should pay it. It is an appropriate means of preventing unjust enrichment."	Is subrogation an appropriate means of preventing unjust enrichment?
6491	Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Columbia State Bank, 183 Wash. App. 599, 609 (2014)	9	The right of legal or equitable subrogation arose as a creature of equity and is enforced solely for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of substantial justice.	"The right of 'legal' or 'equitable' subrogation arose as a 'creature of equity' and 'is enforced solely for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of substantial justice.' "	Is the right of legal or equitable subrogation enforced for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of substantial justice?
6492	Sansotta v. Town of Nags Head, 97 F. Supp. 3d 713, 730 (E.D.N.C. 2014)	26	Government is absolved of liability for the destruction of real and personal property, in cases of actual necessity, to prevent the spreading of a fire or to forestall other grave threats to the lives and property of others. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	As for the Owners' first takings theory, the government is "absolv[ed] ... of liability for the destruction of real and personal property, in cases of actual necessity, to prevent the spreading of a fire or to forestall other grave threats to the lives and property of others." Lucas, 505 U.S.	Is the government absolved of liability in cases of actual necessity?
6493	State ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. El Dorado Properties, 157 Or. App. 624, 627–28 (1998)	1	Landowner is entitled to receive just compensation for land taken for a public use, based on the value of the land at its "highest and best use," which is the most profitable likely use of the property at the time of the taking, including a program of future use of the land that represents its highest present land value.	A landowner is entitled to receive just compensation for land taken for a public use, based on the value of the land *628 at its highest and best use, which is the most profitable likely use of the property at the time of the taking. That likely use may include a program of future use of the land that represents its highest present land value.	What is a landowner entitled to receive for land taken for a public use?
6494	Cipolla v. Bloom Twp. High Sch. Dist. No. 206, 69 Ill. App. 3d 434, 437 (Ill. App. 1979)	5	Willful and wanton misconduct must be manifested by facts alleged in complaint; characterization of certain acts as willful and wanton misconduct is insufficient to withstand a motion to dismiss.	Willful and wanton misconduct must be manifested by the facts alleged in the complaint the characterization of certain acts as willful and wanton misconduct is insufficient to withstand a motion to dismiss.	Is the characterization of certain acts as willful and wanton misconduct sufficient to withstand a motion to dismiss?

6495	Cipolla v. Bloom Twp. High Sch. Dist. No. 206, 69 Ill. App. 3d 434, 437 (Ill. App. 1979)	5	Willful and wanton misconduct must be manifested by facts alleged in complaint; characterization of certain acts as willful and wanton misconduct is insufficient to withstand a motion to dismiss.	Willful and wanton misconduct must be manifested by the facts alleged in the complaint the characterization of certain acts as willful and wanton misconduct is insufficient to withstand a motion to dismiss.	Does willful and wanton misconduct have to be manifested by facts alleged in the complaint to withstand a motion to dismiss?
6496	Trailways v. City of Atl. City, 179 N.J. Super. 258, 266, 431 A.2d 191, 195 (Law. Div. 1980)	4	Board of Public Utility Commissioners was intended to have widest range of regulatory power over public utilities, and provisions of the statute governing public utilities are to be construed liberally. N.J.S.A. 48:2-1.	The Board of Public Utility Commissioners was intended by the Legislature to have the widest range of regulatory power over public utilities, and the provisions of the statute governing public utilities are to be construed liberally.	Does the Board of Public Utility Commissioners (Board) have the widest range of regulatory power over public utilities?
6498	Employers Health Ins. v. Gen. Cas. Co. of Wisconsin, 161 Wis. 2d 937, 956, 469 N.W.2d 172, 180 (1991)	11	Equitable subrogation is permitted only when rights of those seeking subrogation have greater equity than rights of those who oppose it; right to subrogation arises when person other than mere volunteer pays debt which in equity and good conscience should be satisfied by another.	Subrogation is permitted only when "the rights of those seeking subrogation have greater equity than the rights of those who oppose it." First National Bank of Columbus v. Hansen, 84 Wis.2d 422, 429, 267 N.W.2d 367 (1978). The right to subrogation arises "when a person other than a mere volunteer pays a debt which in equity and good conscience should be satisfied by another."	Is subrogation permitted only when the rights of those seeking subrogation have greater equity than the rights of those who oppose it?
6499	Bd. of Regents of State Colleges v. Roth, 408 U.S. 564, 577, 92 S. Ct. 2701, 2709, 33 L. Ed. 2d 548 (1972)	9	Property interests are not created by the Constitution; rather, they are created and their dimensions are defined by existing rules or understandings that stem from an independent source such as state law, rules or understandings that secure certain benefits and that support claims of entitlement to those benefits. U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 14.	Property interests, of course, are not created by the Constitution. Rather they are created and their dimensions are defined by existing rules or understandings that stem from an independent source such as state law-rules or understandings that secure certain benefits and that support claims of entitlement to those benefits.	Are property interests created by the constitution?
6500	Westfield Ins. Companies v. Econ. Fire & Cas. Co., 623 N.W.2d 871, 881 (Iowa 2001)	18	A motion for adjudication of law points is not intended to be used to resolve factual disputes; rather, it is intended to determine legal matters on uncontroverted pleadings.	A motion for adjudication of law points is not intended to be used to resolve factual disputes, but rather to determine "legal matters on uncontroverted pleadings."	Is a motion for adjudication of law points intended to be used to resolve factual disputes?
6502	Enright v. Lehmann, 735 N.W.2d 326, 335 (Minn. 2007)	13	Subrogation stems from the equitable powers of the court, which must give due regard to the legal and equitable rights of others; subrogation will not be enforced to the prejudice of other rights of equal rank or to the injury of innocent third persons.	We note, as a side matter, that subrogation stems from the equitable powers of the court, which must give due regard to the legal and equitable rights of others. United Carolina Bank v. Beesley, 663 A.2d 574, 576 (Me.1995). Subrogation will not be enforced to the prejudice of other rights of equal rank or to the injury of innocent third persons.	"Does subrogation stem from the equitable powers of the court, which must give due regard to the legal and equitable rights of others?"

6505	Harris v. Am. Prot. Ins. Co., 158 S.W.3d 614, 622 (Tex. App. 2005)	8	"Equitable subrogation" is not dependent upon contract, but arises by operation of law or by implication in equity to prevent injustice.	Equitable subrogation is not dependent upon contract, but arises by operation of law or by implication in equity to prevent injustice.	Is equitable subrogation dependent upon contract or arise by operation of law or by implication in equity to prevent injustice?
6506	In re Wiley, 438 B.R. 331, 333 (Bankr. D.N.M. 2010)	2	Under New Mexico law, "subrogation" is equitable remedy of civil law origin, whereby, through a supposed succession to legal rights of another, a loss is put ultimately on the one who in equity and good conscience should pay it.	ubrogation ... is an equitable remedy of civil law origin whereby through a supposed succession to the legal rights of another, a loss is put ultimately on that one who in equity and good conscience should pay it.	Is subrogation or equitable subrogation a remedy for the benefit of one secondarily liable?
6507	Miller v. Rosewick Rd. Dev., LLC, 76 A.3d 422, 431 (Md. Spec. App. 2013)	2	Although ordinarily, a party may not appeal from a judgment to which the party consented, the party may, nonetheless, seek a judicial remedy, by invoking the procedures set forth in rules governing enforcement of judgments, if there is a failure by any party to abide by the terms to which he or she had agreed. Md.Rule 2-631.	Although "ordinarily, a party may not appeal from a judgment to which he/she consented," Bryant v. Howard Cnty. Dept. of Soc. Servs. ex rel. Costley, 387 Md. 30, 42, 874 A.2d 457 (2005), it may, nonetheless, seek a judicial remedy, by invoking the procedures set forth in Title 2 of the Maryland Rules, if there is a failure by any party to abide by the terms to which he or she had agreed.	Can a party appeal from a judgment to which the party consented?
6508	Great N. Ins. Co. v. ADT Sec. Servs., 517 F. Supp. 2d 723, 737 (Pa. 2007)	15	Under Pennsylvania law, course of dealing and usage of trade are distinguishable from course of performance, the latter of which refers to a sequence of conduct between the parties subsequent to formation of the contract during performance of the terms of the contract, and may be used only to interpret a contract.	Course of dealing and usage of trade are distinguishable from course of performance, the latter of which refers to a "sequence of conduct between the parties subsequent to formation of the contract during performance of the terms of the contract[,]" and may be used only to interpret a contract.	Is course of dealing and usage of trade distinguishable from course of performance?
6509	Texaco, Inc. v. Short, 454 U.S. 516, 530, 102 S. Ct. 781, 793, 70 L. Ed. 2d 738 (1982)	6	It is owner's failure to make any use of property, not action of state, that causes lapse of property right under Indiana Dormant Mineral Interests Act, and, therefore, there is no "taking" that requires compensation. IC 32-5-11-1 to 32-5-11-8 (1976 Ed.); U.S.C.A.Const.Amend. 14.	It is the owner's failure to make any use of the property—and not the action of the State—that causes the lapse of the property right; there is no "taking" that requires compensation.	"Can the owner's failure to make any use of the property that causes the lapse of the property right, be considered taking that requires compensation?"
6511	Gosselin v. Webb, 242 F.3d 412, 415 (1st Cir. 2001)	1	To prevail under doctrine of partnership by estoppel under Massachusetts law, plaintiff must prove four elements: (1) that the would-be partner has held himself out as a partner, (2) that such holding out was done by defendant directly or with his consent, (3) that plaintiff had knowledge of such holding out, and (4) that plaintiff relied on the ostensible partnership to his prejudice.	Gosselin, therefore, relies on the doctrine of partnership by estoppel to hold Appellees liable for O'Dea's alleged malpractice. To prevail under this doctrine, a plaintiff must prove four elements: "(1) that the would-be partner has held himself out as a partner; (2) that such holding out was done by the defendant directly or with his consent; (3) that the plaintiff had knowledge of such holding out; and (4) that the plaintiff relied on the ostensible partnership to his prejudice."	What are the elements of partnership by estoppel?

6512	Gillispie v. Goodyear Serv. Stores, 258 N.C. 487, 489 (1963)	7	A complaint alleging that defendant is indebted to plaintiff in a certain amount and that such debt is due, but not alleging in what manner or for what cause defendant became indebted to plaintiff, is demurrable for failure to state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action.	When a complaint alleges defendant is indebted to plaintiff in a certain amount and such debt is due, but does not allege in what manner or for what cause defendant became indebted to plaintiff, it is demurrable for failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.	"Is a complaint which alleges indebtedness but does not allege the manner or cause of indebtedness, demurrable?"
6513	Hand v. Pettitt, 258 Ga. App. 170, 171 (2002)	2	Where the exclusion of evidence is required as a matter of law, a trial court does not abuse its discretion in granting a motion in limine.	Where the exclusion of evidence is required as a matter of law, the trial court does not abuse its discretion in granting a motion in limine.	"Where the exclusion of evidence is required as a matter of law, does a trial court abuse its discretion in granting a motion in limine?"
6514	Hamilton v. Thomasville Med. Assocs., 187 N.C. App. 789, 792 (2007)	4	The court's ruling on a motion in limine is not a final ruling on the admissibility of the evidence in question, but only interlocutory or preliminary in nature, and therefore, the court's ruling on the motion is subject to modification during the course of the trial.	Moreover, the court's ruling is not a final ruling on the admissibility of the evidence in question, but only interlocutory or preliminary in nature. Therefore, the court's ruling on a motion in limine is subject to modification during the course of the trial.	Is the court's ruling on a motion in limine subject to modification during the course of the trial?
6515	Stephens v. Rakes, 235 W. Va. 555, 572 (2015)	19	Once a trial judge rules on a motion in limine, that ruling becomes the law of the case unless modified by a subsequent ruling of the court. Rules of Evid., Rule 103(c).	In West Virginia, once a trial judge rules on a motion in limine, "that ruling becomes the law of the case unless modified by a subsequent ruling of the court.	"Once a trial judge rules on a motion in limine, does that ruling become the law of the case unless modified by a subsequent ruling of the court?"
6517	In re Darosa, 318 B.R. 871, 877 (9th Cir. 2004)	4	In general terms, "subrogation" is substitution of one party in place of another with reference to a lawful claim, demand, or right.	"In general terms, subrogation is the substitution of one party in place of another with reference to a lawful claim, demand or right.	"Is subrogation the substitution of one party in place of another with reference to a lawful claim, demand, or right, by which the party paying the loss or claim, that is, the ""subrogee,"" is placed in the shoes of the person who suffered the loss, the ""subrogor""?"
6518	River Bar Farms v. Moore, 83 Ark. App. 130, 134, 118 S.W.3d 145, 147 (2003)	3	Ordinarily, if the effect of a decree is to reach and operate upon the land itself, it is regarded as a proceeding in rem, and is a local action, which must be brought in the county where the land is situated. A.C.A. S 16-60-101.	Ordinarily, if the effect of a decree is to reach and operate upon the land itself, it is regarded as a proceeding in rem, and is a local action, which must be brought in the county where the land is situated.	Is a proceeding in rem if the effect of the decree is to reach and operate upon the land itself?
6520	Morris v. Ernst & Young, LLP, 834 F.3d 975, 985 (9th Cir. 2016)	21	When an illegal provision not targeting arbitration is found in an arbitration agreement, the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) treats the contract like any other; the FAA recognizes a general contract defense of illegality. 9 U.S.C.A. S 2.	When an illegal provision not targeting arbitration is found in an arbitration agreement, the FAA treats the contract like any other; the FAA recognizes a general contract defense of illegality. 8 9 U.S.C. 2	How does the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) treat contracts when an illegal provision not targeting arbitration is found in an arbitration agreement?

6524	In re Grand Jury Subpoena dated Aug. 9, 2000, 218 F. Supp. 2d 544, 551 (S.D.N.Y. 2002)	3	Act of state doctrine counsels a court to avoid examining the validity of an official act of a sovereign state taken on its own soil.	Act of State Doctrine [3] The act of state doctrine counsels a court to avoid examining the validity of an official act of a sovereign state taken on its own soil.	Does the act of state doctrine counsel a court to avoid examining the validity of an official act of a sovereign state taken on its own soil?
6525	Doe v. Qi, 349 F. Supp. 2d 1258, 1292 (N.D. Cal. 2004)	15	Act of state doctrine is not rendered inapposite simply because international law or jus cogens norms are violated.	As noted above, the act of state doctrine is not rendered inapposite simply because international law or jus cogens norms are violated.	Is the act of state doctrine rendered inapposite simply because international law or jus cogens norms are violated?
6526	Flatow v. Islamic Republic of Iran, 999 F. Supp. 1, 24 (D.D.C. 1998)	27	Only individuals whom United States recognizes as legitimate heads of state qualify for head of state immunity; whether individual qualifies as head of state is decision committed exclusively to political branches and judiciary is bound by their determinations.	Only individuals whom the United States recognizes as legitimate heads of state qualify; whether an individual qualifies as a head of state is a decision committed exclusively to the political branches and the judiciary is bound by their determinations.	Do only individuals whom the United States recognizes as legitimate heads of state qualify for head of state immunity?
6528	Eckert Int'l v. Gov't of Sovereign Democratic Republic of Fiji, 834 F. Supp. 167, 171 (E.D. Va. 1993)	4	Under "act of state doctrine," courts may not sit in judgment of sovereign state's public acts performed within that state's boundaries.	Fiji fares no better in its attempt to invoke the act of state doctrine. Under that doctrine, courts may not sit in judgment of a sovereign state's public acts performed within that state's boundaries.	"Under the act of state doctrine, may courts sit in judgment of a sovereign state's public acts performed within that state's boundaries?"
6529	Nat'l Am. Corp. v. Fed. Republic of Nigeria, 448 F. Supp. 622, 640 (S.D.N.Y. 1978)	17	Act of state doctrine operates only to preclude issues from consideration, an effect which does not necessarily render entire claim nonjusticiable.	As the Second Circuit interprets the act of state doctrine, it operates only to preclude issues from consideration an effect which does not necessarily render an entire claim nonjusticiable.	"Does the act of state doctrine operate only to preclude issues from consideration, an effect which does not necessarily render the entire claim non justiciable?"
6530	Dillingham-Ray Wilson v. City of Los Angeles, 182 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1403, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 691, 698 (2010)	6	If the trial court's in limine ruling was based upon a misinterpretation of applicable law, an abuse of discretion has been shown.	"[I]f the trial court's in limine ruling was based upon a misinterpretation of applicable law, an abuse of discretion has been shown."	"If the trial court's in limine ruling was based upon a misinterpretation of applicable law, has an abuse of discretion has been shown?"
6533	Smith v. Associated Nat. Gas Co., 7 S.W.3d 530, 536 (Mo. Ct. App. 1999)	20	An in limine ruling is a preliminary expression of the court's opinion as to the admissibility of evidence and is subject to change during the course of the trial.	We first note that "[a]n in limine ruling is a 'preliminary expression of the court's opinion as to the admissibility of evidence' and is subject to change during the course of the trial."	Is an in limine ruling a preliminary expression of the court's opinion as to the admissibility of evidence and is subject to change during the course of the trial?
6534	Forsyth Cty. v. Martin, 279 Ga. 215, 221 (2005)	9	A "motion in limine" is a pretrial method of determining the admissibility of evidence; by its very nature, the grant of a motion in limine suggests that there is no circumstance under which the evidence under scrutiny is likely to be admissible at trial.	A motion in limine is a pretrial method of determining the admissibility of evidence.... By its very nature, the grant of a motion in limine excluding evidence suggests that there is no circumstance under which the evidence under scrutiny is likely to be admissible at trial.	Does the grant of a motion in limine excluding evidence suggest that there is no circumstance under which the evidence under scrutiny is likely to be admissible at trial?

6535	First State Ins. Co. v. Super. Ct., 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 104, 110 (Cal. App. 2d Dist. 2000)	2	Complex litigation procedure is intended to facilitate pretrial resolution of evidentiary and other issues, and to minimize the time and expense of lengthy or multiple trials. West's Ann.Cal.Gov.Code S 68607.	"The complex litigation procedure is intended to facilitate pretrial resolution of evidentiary and other issues, and to minimize the time and expense of lengthy or multiple trials."	Is complex litigation procedure intended to facilitate pretrial resolution of evidentiary and other issues?
6536	Mollerson v. City of New York, 680 N.Y.S.2d 800, 803 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1998)	1	As a matter of elementary fairness, all parties to action have right to appear at and participate in all pretrial and trial stages of action, unless they waive their right to do so, or exceptional circumstances occur, such as disruptiveness by party.	As a matter of elementary fairness, all parties to an action have the right to appear at and participate in all pre-trial and trial stages of an action, unless they waive their right to do so or exceptional circumstances occur, such as disruptiveness by the party (see, Matter of Guardianship of Daniel D., 49 N.Y.2d 788, 791, 426 N.Y.S.2d 729, 403 N.E.2d 451 [1980]; Lunney v. Graham, 91 A.D.2d 592, 593, 457 N.Y.S.2d 282 [1st Dept.1982]).	Can all parties to action have right to appear at and participate in all pretrial and trial stages of action?
6537	Kelly v. New W. Fed. Sav., 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 803, 808 (Cal. App. 2d Dist. 1996)	1	Usual purpose of motions in limine is to preclude presentation of evidence deemed inadmissible and prejudicial by moving party.	The usual purpose of motions in limine is to preclude the presentation of evidence deemed inadmissible and prejudicial by the moving party.	Is the usual purpose of motions in limine to preclude presentation of evidence deemed inadmissible and prejudicial by moving party?
6539	Sculler v. Sculler, 348 N.J. Super. 374, 376 (Ch. Div. 2001)	1	As a general rule, in limine motions are inappropriate if they require the court to engage in an analysis of credibility or evidence yet to be presented, and in such cases, the motions should ordinarily be denied until a sufficient predicate is established.	As a general rule, in limine motions are inappropriate if they require the court to engage in an analysis of credibility or evidence yet to be presented. In such cases, the motions should ordinarily be denied until a sufficient predicate is established.	Are in limine motions inappropriate if they require the court to engage in an analysis of credibility or evidence yet to be presented?
6540	Manhattan Ice & Cold Storage v. City of Manhattan, 294 Kan. 60, 69 (2012)	6	In determining if a pretrial ruling on a motion in limine is justified, a district court should weigh whether the court will be in a better position during trial to assess the value and utility of evidence and its potential prejudice.	In determining if a pretrial ruling is justified a district court should weigh whether the court will be in a better position during trial to assess the value and utility of evidence and its potential prejudice.	What should a district court weigh in determining if a pretrial ruling is justified?
6542	Feigenbaum v. Guaracini, 402 N.J. Super. 7, 20 (App. Div. 2008)	14	Subrogation rights may be created in three different ways: (1) by agreement; (2) by statute; or (3) judicially as an equitable device to compel the ultimate discharge of an obligation by the one who should in good conscience pay it.	Subrogation rights may be created in three different ways: "(1) by agreement; (2) by statute; or (3) judicially as an equitable device to compel the ultimate discharge of an obligation by the one who should in good conscience pay it."	How may subrogation rights be created?
6543	Johnson v. Smith, 215 N.C. 322, 1 S.E.2d 834, 836 (1939)	9	Under Missouri law, "in pari delicto defense" provides that a person cannot maintain an action if, in order to establish his cause of action, he must rely, in whole or in part, on an illegal or immoral act or transaction to which he is a party.	The in pari delicto defense provides that "a person cannot maintain an action if, in order to establish his cause of action, he must rely, in whole or in part, on an illegal or immoral act or transaction to which he is a party." Dobbs v.	What is the defense if a person cause an immoral act?

6545	Allied Bank Int'l v. Banco Credito Agricola de Cartago, 566 F. Supp. 1440, 1443 (S.D.N.Y. 1983)	4	The act of state doctrine is designed to avoid judicial action which impinges upon the foreign relations of the United States.	The act of state doctrine is designed to avoid judicial action which would impinge upon the foreign relations of the United States.	Is the act of state doctrine designed to avoid judicial action which impinges upon the foreign relations of the United States?
6547	Weisskopf v. United Jewish App.-Fedn. of Jewish Philanthropies of New York, Inc., 889 F. Supp. 2d 912, 923 (S.D. Tex. 2012)	16	Alien Tort Statute (ATS) applies only to shockingly egregious violations of universally recognized principles of international law. 28 U.S.C.A. S 1350.	The ATS "applies only to shockingly egregious violations of universally recognized principles of international law."	Does the Alien Tort Statute (ATS) apply only to shockingly egregious violations of universally recognized principles of international law?
6548	Nat'l Inst. of Agrarian Reform v. Kane, 153 So. 2d 40, 44 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1963)	11	Every sovereign state is bound to respect independence of every other sovereign state, and courts of one country will not sit in judgment on acts of government of another done within its own territory.	The highest court of our land has said that 'Every sovereign state is bound to respect the independence of every other sovereign state, and the courts of one country will not sit in judgment on the acts of the government of another done within its own territory.	Are United States courts are bound to respect independence of every other sovereign state?
6549	Villeda Aldana v. Fresh Del Monte Produce, Inc., 305 F. Supp. 2d 1285, 1292 (S.D. Fla. 2003)	4	Under Alien Tort Claims Act (ATCA), the "law of nations" refers to a body of law known as customary international law; conduct violates the "law of the nations" if it contravenes well-established, universally recognized norms of international law. 28 U.S.C.A. S 1350.	Under the ATCA, the "law of nations" refers to a body of law known as customary international law. Flores v. Southern Peru Copper Corp., 343 F.3d 140, 154 (2d Cir.2003). Conduct violates the "law of the nations" if it contravenes "well-established, universally recognized norms of international law."	"Does certain wrongful conduct violate the law of nations, and gives rise to a right to sue cognizable by exercise of federal jurisdiction under the Alien Tort Claims Act (ATCA)?"
6552	Jungquist v. Nahyan, 940 F. Supp. 312, 321 (D.D.C. 1996), rev'd in part sub nom. Jungquist v. Sheikh Sultan Bin Khalifa Al Nahyan, 115 F.3d 1020 (D.C. Cir. 1997)	11	Head-of-State doctrine, which immunizes a Head-of-State from personal jurisdiction in United States courts, applies only to person United States government acknowledges as official Head-of-State; recognition of government and its officers is exclusive function of Executive Branch.	The defendants assert that Sheikh Sultan is immune from the Court's jurisdiction under the common law Head of State Doctrine, which immunizes a head-of-state from personal jurisdiction in the United States courts. Head of State immunity, however, extends only to the person the United States government acknowledges as the official head-of-state. Id. Recognition of a government and its officers is the exclusive function of the Executive Branch, to which the courts must defer. Id.	Does the Head-of-State doctrine apply only to persons the United States government acknowledges as official Heads-of-State?
6553	Drexel Burnham Lambert Grp. Inc. v. Galadari, 610 F. Supp. 114, 118 (S.D.N.Y.)	6	Act of state doctrine looks to actual dominion over property rather than to mere execution of official documents.	It matters not that the decree itself was executed within the borders of Dubai, since the act of state doctrine looks to actual dominion over property rather than to the mere execution of official documents.	Does the act of state doctrine look to actual dominion over property rather than to mere execution of official documents?

6554	In re Travelstead, 227 B.R. 638, 656 (D. Md. 1998)	22	Courts will not extend comity to foreign proceedings when doing so would be contrary to policies or prejudicial to interests of the United States.	"And courts will not extend comity to foreign proceedings when doing so would be contrary to the policies or prejudicial to the interests of the United States."	Can United States courts extend comity to foreign proceedings and when doing so would it be contrary to policies or prejudicial to interests of the United States?
6555	Addis v. Exelon Generation Co., 378 Ill. App. 3d 781, 793 (2007)	28	A motion in limine is addressed to the trial court's inherent power to admit or exclude evidence, and appellate court will not disturb the trial court's ruling absent an abuse of discretion.	Generally, evidentiary motions, such as motions in limine, are addressed to the trial court's inherent power to admit or exclude evidence, and reviewing courts will not disturb a trial court's evidentiary ruling absent an abuse of discretion.	Can a trial court's ruling on a motion in limine be disturbed absent an abuse of discretion?
6556	Maliqi v. 17 E. 89th St. Tenants, Inc., 880 N.Y.S.2d 917, 921 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2009)	1	A "motion in limine" is a preliminary application usually made at the beginning of a trial that certain evidence, claimed to be inadmissible and prejudicial, not be referred to or offered at trial.	A motion in limine, by definition, is a "preliminary application," usually made at the beginning of a trial, that certain evidence, claimed to be inadmissible and prejudicial, not be referred to or offered at trial (see generally, Black's Law Dictionary [7th ed. 1999]).	Is a motion in limine a preliminary application that certain prejudicial evidence not be offered at trial?
6557	Maliqi v. 17 E. 89th St. Tenants, Inc., 880 N.Y.S.2d 917, 921 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 2009)	1	A "motion in limine" is a preliminary application usually made at the beginning of a trial that certain evidence, claimed to be inadmissible and prejudicial, not be referred to or offered at trial.	A motion in limine, by definition, is a "preliminary application," usually made at the beginning of a trial, that certain evidence, claimed to be inadmissible and prejudicial, not be referred to or offered at trial (see generally, Black's Law Dictionary [7th ed. 1999]).	Is a motion in limine a preliminary application that certain inadmissible evidence not be referred to at trial?
6559	Reese v. Proppe, 3 Ohio App. 3d 103, 108 (1981)	11	Mere letter signed by judge ordering that trial memorandum be submitted was not an order of court for the disobedience of which a sanction could be applied against a party.	A mere letter signed by the judge ordering that trial memoranda be submitted is not an order of the court for the disobedience of which a sanction may be applied against a party.	Is the disobedience of a mere letter signed by a judge ordering that trial memorandum be submitted an order of the court for which a sanction could be applied against a party?
6562	Greer v. Buzgheia, 141 Cal. App. 4th 1150, 1156 (2006)	4	A motion in limine is not expressly authorized by statute, but is within the trial court's inherent power to entertain and grant.	The motion in limine is not expressly authorized by statute, but is within the trial court's "inherent power to entertain and grant."	Is a motion in limine expressly authorized by statute or is it within the trial court's inherent power to entertain and grant?
6565	Tri-Cty. Elec. Ass'n v. City of Gillette, 584 P.2d 995, 1003-04 (Wyo. 1978)	11	In the event of a conflict between two utilities, the Public Service Commission is authorized to make such order and prescribe such conditions as seem just and reasonable. W.S.1977, SS 37-1-101, 37-2-205(a).	The P.S.C. is authorized in the event of a conflict between two utilities to make such order and prescribe such conditions as seem just and reasonable, Dubois Telephone Exchange v. Mountain States Telephone & Telegraph Co., Wyo.1967, 429 P.2d 812, citing s 37-31, W.S. 1957, now s 37-2-205(a), W.S.1977.	Is the Public Service Commission (PSC) authorized to order and prescribe reasonable conditions when a conflict between two utilities arises?

6566	Greater Anchorage Area Borough v. City of Anchorage, 504 P.2d 1027, 1033 (Alaska 1972)	9	Essence of administrative power conferred upon state Public Utilities Commission is regulatory; the Commission is empowered to set rates, promulgate regulations, collect information, process complaints against utilities and the like; however, the statutory framework does not grant unlimited adjudicatory authority to the Commission. AS 42.05.141.	The essence of the administrative power conferred upon the PUC is regulatory; the Commission's empowered to set rates, promulgate regulations, collect information, process complaints against utilities and the like. The statutory framework, however, does not grant unlimited adjudicatory authority to the PUC.	Is the administrative power of the Public Utilities Commission (PUC) regulatory?
6568	United States v. Gray, 292 F. Supp. 2d 71, 93 (D.D.C. 2003)	33	Federal bribery statute does not preclude government from agreeing to grant leniency to a defendant in exchange for truthful testimony.	Contrary to Nunn's contention, it is well established that the federal bribery statute does not preclude the government from agreeing to grant leniency to a defendant in exchange for truthful testimony.	Does Federal bribery statute preclude government from agreeing to grant leniency to a defendant in exchange for truthful testimony?
6571	United States v. Frank, 486 F. Supp. 2d 1353, 1359 (S.D. Fla. 2007)	7	International law generally allows a country to exert extra-territorial jurisdiction over its own citizens, as long as the exercise of such jurisdiction is not unreasonable.	International law, moreover, generally allows a country to exert extra-territorial jurisdiction over its own citizens, as long as the exercise of such jurisdiction is not unreasonable.	"Does international law generally allow a country to exert extra-territorial jurisdiction over its own citizens, as long as the exercise of such jurisdiction is not unreasonable?"
6572	Zapata v. Ford Motor Credit Co., 615 S.W.2d 198, 201 (Tex. 1981)	2	Commission of a trespass does not necessarily mean the actor will be liable for damages; liability does not attach unless the wrongful detention is accompanied by actual damage to the property or deprives the owner of its use for a substantial period of time.	The commission of a trespass does not necessarily mean the actor will be liable for damages. Restatement (Second) of Torts s 217, Comment a (1965). Liability does not attach, unless the wrongful detention is accompanied by actual damage to the property or deprives the owner of its use for a substantial period of time.	When does liability attach to a trespass to chattel action?
6574	Calamita v. De Ponte, 122 Conn. 20, 187 A. 129, 130 (Conn. 1936)	7	As regards time when cause of action arises, indemnity agreements fall into classes where contract is to indemnify against liability, and where contract is to indemnify against loss; in first class, cause of action arises as soon as liability is incurred, but in second class, cause of action does not arise until promisee has actually incurred loss.	As far as concerns the time when a cause of action arises, indemnity agreements fall broadly into two classes, those where the contract is to indemnify against liability and those where it is to indemnify against loss; in the first, the cause of action arises as soon as liability is incurred, but in the second it does not arise until the promisee has actually incurred a loss.	Do indemnity agreements fall into classes where contract is to indemnify against liability?

6576	In re Harper, No. ADV. NO. 05-01151-R, 2007 WL 45918, at *4 (Bankr. App. 10th Cir. Jan. 9, 2007)	9	Under Oklahoma law, doctrine of equitable subrogation applies when a creditor has been unfairly deceived or defrauded, and may be applicable to protect a refinancing lender who is granted a defective mortgage, but doctrine does not apply when a creditor fails to take an assignment of a prior lien voluntarily paid and discharged.	Nor is equitable subrogation applicable here. The doctrine applies when a creditor has been unfairly deceived or defrauded, and may be applicable to protect a refinancing lender who is granted a defective mortgage. Landis v. State ex rel Comm'rs of Land Office, 179 Okla. 547, 66 P.2d 519, 521-522 (Okla.1937). However, it is not applicable where a creditor fails to take an assignment of a prior lien voluntarily paid and discharged.	Does the doctrine of equitable subrogation apply when a creditor has been unfairly deceived or defrauded?
6578	Nye v. Indus. Claim Appeals Office of State of Colo., 883 P.2d 607, 609 (Colo. App. 1994)	9	Statutory scheme providing compensation for those who suffer industrial injuries or diseases is exercise of state's police power.	The statutory scheme providing compensation for those who suffer industrial injuries or diseases is an exercise of the state's police power.	Is the statutory scheme providing for compensation for those who suffer industrial injuries or diseases an exercise of a states police power?
6579	Rucker v. City of Ocala, 684 So. 2d 836, 841 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1996)	6	Injured employee's right to receive workers' compensation, as property right, must be protected by due process procedural safeguards including notice and opportunity to be heard. West's F.S.A. Const. Art. 1, S 9.	Therefore, an injured employee's right to receive workers' compensation, as a property right, must be protected by procedural safeguards including notice and an opportunity to be heard.	Is the right to receive workers' compensation benefits a property right protected by procedural due process?
6580	Piszel v. United States, 121 Fed. Cl. 793, 800 (2015)	19	When an owner has suffered a physical invasion of his property, no matter how minute the intrusion, and no matter how weighty the public purpose behind it, just compensation is required under the Takings Clause. U.S. Const. Amend. 5.	When an owner has suffered a physical invasion of his property, the Supreme Court has noted that "no matter how minute the intrusion, and no matter how weighty the public purpose behind it, we have required compensation." Lucas, 505 U.S.	"Does the court require compensation in the case of physical invasions, without looking how minute the intrusion and how weighty the public purpose behind it can be?"
6581	Oliver v. Coffman, 112 Ind. App. 507, 45 N.E.2d 351, 354 (1942)	13	An allegation of the ownership of specific property, standing alone, is considered an "ultimate fact", but it will be considered a "conclusion of law" where the pleader sets forth a claim of title and upon the claim so pleaded alleges ownership.	An example is an allegation of the ownership of specific property. While considered an ultimate fact, if standing alone, it will be considered a conclusion of law where the pleader sets forth a claim of title, and upon the claim so pleaded alleges ownership. Wagner v. Law, 3 Wash.	Is an allegation of the ownership of specific property an ultimate fact?
6582	Village of Lucas v. Lucas Loc. Sch. Dist., 442 N.E.2d 449, 452 (Ohio 1982)	5	Exclusive power of municipalities to contract for public utility services necessarily presumes that while being able to grant public utility franchises, municipality may likewise exclude public utility from serving its inhabitants. Const. Art. 18, S 4.	It has been previously stated that municipalities have the exclusive power to contract for public utility services. This exclusive power necessarily presumes that while being able to grant public utility franchises, a municipality may likewise exclude a public utility from serving its inhabitants.	Do the municipalities have the power to exclude a public utility from serving its inhabitants?

6584	Aranda v. Indus. Comm'n of Arizona, 195 Ariz. 403, 408, 989 P.2d 157, 162 (Ct. App. 1999)	8	Although workers' compensation payments are property, they are not fundamental rights in the sense of the Constitution but statutory benefits provided by and to the extent of the legislation. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 14.	Although workers' compensation payments are property, United Riggers Erectors, 131 Ariz. at 262, 640 P.2d at 193, they are not fundamental rights in the sense of the Constitution but statutory benefits provided by and to the extent of the legislation.	Are workers compensation payments fundamental right under the Constitution or a statutory benefit provided by the legislation?
6586	Rodgers v. United States, 158 F. Supp. 670, 680 (S.D. Cal. 1958)	13	Court of equity is not restricted to an adjustment of the rights of the parties as they existed when the suit was brought but will give relief appropriate to events occurring pending the suit.	* * * A court of equity is not restricted to an adjustment of the rights of the parties as they existed when the suit was brought, but will give relief appropriate to events occurring pending the suit.	Is a court of equity restricted to an adjustment of the rights of the parties as they existed when the suit was brought?
6587	City of Coral Gables v. Sakolsky, 215 So. 2d 329, 335 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1968)	8	In both law actions and equity proceedings, right of plaintiff to recover must be measured by facts as they exist when suit is instituted.	It is established in Florida that in law actions 'the right of a plaintiff to recover must be measured by the facts as they exist when the suit was instituted'.	"In a law action, must the right of a plaintiff to recover be measured by facts as they exist when suit is instituted?"
6589	Hall's W. Auto Supply Co. v. Brock, 240 Or. 85, 90-91 (1965)	7	An accounting is not limited to conditions existing at time suit was instituted but covers all matters up to final stating thereof.	An accounting is not limited to conditions existing at the time the suit was instituted but *91 covers all matters up to the final stating thereof.	Is an accounting limited to conditions existing at the time suit was instituted but covers all matters up to final stating thereof?
6590	Russo v. Williams, 160 Neb. 564, 585 (1955)	28	It is the practice of courts of equity, when they have once obtained jurisdiction of a case, to administer all relief which nature of case and facts demand, and to bring such relief down to close of litigation between the parties.	693, 46 N.W.2d 111, 117: It is the practice of courts of equity, when they once have obtained jurisdiction of a case, to administer all the relief which the nature of the case and the facts demand, and to bring such relief down to the close of the litigation between the parties.	Is it the practice of courts of equity to administer all the relief which the nature of the case and the facts demand?
6591	Blomgren v. Tinton 763 Corp., 238 N.Y.S.2d 435, 437 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dept. 1963)	4	Rights of the parties to a mortgage which mortgagor seeks to foreclose must be determined on the facts as they exist at time of the decree and not at inception of the suit.	Since an action to foreclose a mortgage is addressed to a court of equity, which should determine the rights of the parties to the suit according to equity and good conscience, the rights are determined on the facts as they exist at the time of the decree and not at the inception of the suit.	Should the rights of the parties to a mortgage which mortgagor seeks to foreclose be determined on the facts as they exist at time of the decree and not at inception of the suit?
6593	Messner v. Am. Union Ins. Co., 119 S.W.3d 642, 649 (Mo. Ct. App. 2003)	11	Subrogation based upon the common law, i.e., legal subrogation, is not an option where it would be inconsistent with the terms of the contract; thus, contract provisions waiving subrogation rights are valid and enforceable.	Subrogation based upon the common law, i.e., legal subrogation, is not an option "where it would be inconsistent with the terms of the contract." 7 Id. at 503-04[9]. This means, inter alia, that contract provisions waiving subrogation rights are valid and enforceable.	Are contract provisions waiving subrogation rights valid and enforceable?

6594	Aktieselskabet Dampskibsselskabet Vesterhavet v. W.A. Kirk & Co., 44 N.Y.S.2d 6, 8 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1943)	3	In equity action, decree is based on situation existing at time of trial rather than that obtaining when suit was commenced.	It should be borne in mind, moreover, that in an action in equity the decree is based on the situation existing at the time of trial rather than upon that obtaining at the date suit was commenced.	"In an equity action, should a decree be based on the situation existing at the time of trial rather than that obtained at the date when the suit was commenced?"
6595	Wu Tien Li-Shou v. U.S., 777 F.3d 175, 182 (4th Cir. 2015)	7	Congress holds plenary control over rights, duties, and responsibilities in the framework of the military establishment, including regulations, procedures, and remedies. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 1, S 8, cls. 11-14.	It is, after all, Congress which holds "plenary control over rights, duties, and responsibilities in the framework of the military establishment, including regulations, procedures, and remedies."	"Does congress holds plenary control over rights, duties, and responsibilities in the framework of the military establishment?"
6597	Curtis v. Sch. Comm. of Falmouth, 420 Mass. 749, 754, 652 N.E.2d 580, 584 (1995)	4	Public education of children is unquestionably entrusted to control, management, and discretion of state and local school committees.	Public education of children is unquestionably entrusted to the control, management, and discretion of State and local school committees.	"Is public education of children unquestionably entrusted to control, management, and discretion of state and local school committees?"
6598	Packer Collegiate Inst. v. U. of State of N.Y., 76 N.Y.S.2d 499, 503 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dept. 1948)	3	All schools, public or private are "affected with a public interest" and hence subject to reasonable regulation under the police power of the state.	It is, we think, an indisputable fact also that all schools, public or private, are affected with a public interest, and hence subject to reasonable regulation under the police power of the state.	"Are all schools, public or private, affected with a public interest and hence subject to reasonable regulation under the police power of the state?"
6600	Metmor Fin. v. Landoll Corp., 976 S.W.2d 454, 462 (Mo. Ct. App. 1998)	11	Party seeking equitable subrogation must prove by clear and convincing evidence that equity requires another party to bear the loss.	A party seeking equitable subrogation must prove by clear and convincing evidence that equity requires another party to bear the loss.	Does a party need clear and convincing evidence to require another party to bear the loss in equitable subrogation?
6602	Kaf-Kaf v. Rodless Decorations, 90 N.Y.2d 654, 654–55 (1997)	2	While parties to agreement may waive their insurer's right of subrogation, waiver of subrogation clause cannot be enforced beyond scope of specific context in which it appears.	While parties to an agreement may waive their insurer's right of subrogation, 50 1333 a waiver of subrogation clause cannot be enforced beyond the scope of the specific context in which it appears (see, S.S.D.W.	Can a waiver of subrogation clause be enforced beyond the scope of a specific context in which it appears?
6603	Walt Disney World Co. v. Harrison, 443 So. 2d 389, 394 (Fla. 1st Dist. App. 1983)	10	Employer is under continuing obligation, once it has knowledge of employee's injury, to place needed benefits in hands of injured worker. West's F.S.A. SS 440.01 et seq., 440.13(1), 440.185(4).	An employer is under a continuing obligation, once it has knowledge of an employee's injury, to place needed benefits in the hands of the injured worker.	"Is an employer under a continuing obligation, once it has knowledge of an employee's injury, to place needed benefits in the hands of the injured worker?"
6604	Sokolek v. Gen. Motors Corp., 450 Mich. 133, 143, 538 N.W.2d 369, 373 (1995)	2	Worker's compensation benefits are form of income maintenance for persons whose wage earning capacity has been suspended or terminated.	Worker's compensation benefits are a form of income maintenance for persons whose wage-earning capacity has been suspended or terminated.	Are workers compensation benefits a form of income maintenance for persons whose wage earning capacity have been suspended or terminated?

6605	Inman v. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co., 433 Pa. Super. 534, 538 (1994)	2	Section of Workmen's Compensation Act which prohibits, as against public policy, employer from agreeing with employee to hold employer harmless for any future injury employee may suffer was inapplicable where no agreement was entered and employee sought to recover for injury which had already occurred. 77 P.S. S 71.	Section 71 prohibits, as against public policy, an employer from agreeing with his employee to hold employer harmless for any future injury the employee may suffer. This section is inapplicable to the matter before us as no such agreement was entered and appellants are seeking to recover for an injury which has already occurred.	Does the workmens compensation act prohibits that an employer from agreement with an employee to hold the employer harmless for any future injury?
6606	Rodgers v. United States, 158 F. Supp. 670, 680 (S.D. Cal. 1958)	13	Court of equity is not restricted to an adjustment of the rights of the parties as they existed when the suit was brought but will give relief appropriate to events occurring pending the suit.	* * * A court of equity is not restricted to an adjustment of the rights of the parties as they existed when the suit was brought, but will give relief appropriate to events occurring pending the suit.	Are equity courts restricted to an adjustment of rights of parties as such rights existed when suit was brought?
6607	City of Coral Gables v. Sakolsky, 215 So. 2d 329, 335 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1968)	8	In both law actions and equity proceedings, right of plaintiff to recover must be measured by facts as they exist when suit is instituted.	It is established in Florida that in law actions 'the right of a plaintiff to recover must be measured by the facts as they exist when the suit was instituted'.	"In law action, must the right of the plaintiff to recover be measured by facts as they existed when suit was instituted?"
6608	Richardson v. Hampton, 345 F. Supp. 600, 607 (D.D.C. 1972)	2	Persons claiming excuse for delay giving rise to claim of laches must show that they exercised the diligence required of reasonably prudent individuals.	Persons claiming excuse for delay must show that they exercised the diligence required of reasonably prudent individuals.	Must persons claiming excuse for delay show that they exercised the diligence required of reasonably prudent individuals?
6609	Tomayko v. Thomas, 144 So. 2d 335, 336-37 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1962)	1	Test of equity jurisdiction is whether such facts existed at time of commencement of the action as are sufficient to confer jurisdiction on the court, and even where subsequent events render equitable relief unnecessary or improper equity jurisdiction does not defeat it.	The test of equity jurisdiction is whether such facts exist at the time of the commencement of the action as are sufficient to confer jurisdiction on the court. Even where subsequent events render equitable relief unnecessary or improper equity jurisdiction is not defeated.	Whether facts existing at the time of commencement of the action are sufficient to confer jurisdiction on the court is the test of equity jurisdiction?
6611	Smith v. Reynolds, 54 Conn. App. 381, 383 (1999)	7	Effect of plaintiff's withdrawal of action before a hearing on merits, so far as pendency of action is concerned, is strictly analogous to that presented after rendition of final judgment or erasure of case from docket. C.G.S.A. S 52-80.	Under [the] law, the effect of a withdrawal, so far as the pendency of the action is concerned, is strictly analogous to that presented after the rendition of a final judgment or the erasure of the case from the docket."	Is the right of a plaintiff to withdraw his action before a hearing on the merits absolute and unconditional?
6613	In re Conservatorship of Martha P., 117 Cal. App. 4th 857, 866 (2004)	1	The right to voluntarily dismiss an action or special proceeding before the commencement of trial is not absolute, as statute recognizes exceptions, and other limitations have evolved through the courts' construction of the term "commencement of trial." West's Ann.Cal.C.C.P. S 581(b)(1).	The right of a plaintiff to voluntarily dismiss an action before commencement of trial is not absolute. Code of Civil Procedure section 581 recognizes exceptions to the right; other limitations have evolved through the courts' construction of the term 'commencement of trial.'	Is the right of a plaintiff to voluntarily dismiss an action before commencement of trial not absolute?

6615	Richmond Steel, Inc. v. Legal & Gen. Assur. Soc., Ltd., 821 F. Supp. 793, 800 (D.P.R. 1993)	14	Purpose of waiver of subrogation clause in construction contract is to avoid disruptions and disputes between parties working on project; clause is also meant to require one party to contract to provide property insurance for all parties.	The purpose of a waiver of subrogation clause in construction contracts is to avoid disruptions and disputes between the parties working on a project. Commercial Union Ins. v. Bituminous Casualty Corp., 851 F.2d 98, 101 (3rd Cir.1988); Tokio Marine, 786 F.2d at 104. The clause is also meant to require a party to the contract to provide property insurance for all the parties.	Is the purpose of a waiver of subrogation clause in a construction contract to avoid disruptions and disputes between parties working on a project?
6616	Ray v. Donohew, 177 W. Va. 441, 449–50 (1986)	11	Right of subrogation may be modified or extinguished through express contractual language or by action of surety inconsistent with right of subrogation, such as surety's taking of different and independent security as exclusive remedy in event of principal's default.	Thus, the right of subrogation can either be modified or extinguished through express contractual language, *450 or by an action of the surety which is inconsistent with the right of subrogation, such as taking a different and independent security with the intent to rely on that security in the event of default by the principal.	Can a right of subrogation be modified or extinguished through express contractual language?
6617	Capitol Indem. Corp. v. Citizens Nat. Bank of Fort Scott, N.A., 8 S.W.3d 893, 900–01 (Mo. Ct. App. 2000)	11	Generally, money paid unconditionally to a contractor for work done under the contract becomes his to do with as he pleases and is freed of any equity or right of subrogation in the surety.	Generally, money paid unconditionally to a contractor for work done under the contract becomes his "to do with as he pleases" and is "freed of any equity or right of subrogation in the surety."	Does money paid unconditionally to a contractor for work done under the contract becomes his to do with as he pleases?
6618	Day Cruises Mar., L.L.C v. Christus Spohn Health Sys., 267 S.W.3d 42, 61 (Tex. App. 2008)	31	Equitable subrogation, unlike contractual subrogation, does not depend on a contract but arises in every instance in which one person, not acting voluntarily, has paid a debt for which another was primarily liable and which in equity should have been paid by the latter.	Equitable subrogation, unlike contractual subrogation, "does not depend on a contract but arises in every instance in which one person, not acting voluntarily, has paid a debt for which another was primarily liable and which in equity should have been paid by the latter."	Is one entitled to subrogation only in the case he was required to pay a debt for which another who was primarily liable?
6619	Rokeby-Johnson v. Aquatronics Intl., Inc., 206 Cal. Rptr. 232, 237 (Cal. App. 2d Dist. 1984)	2	When surety seeks recovery against third persons in weighing equities, which includes consideration of negligence of its insured and third persons, burden is upon surety to establish its superior equity.	When a surety seeks recovery against a third person in weighing the equities, which includes consideration of the negligence of its insured and the third person, the burden is upon the surety to establish its superior equity.	Is the burden upon surety to establish its superior equity in seeking recovery against third party?
6621	Rose's Stores v. Bradley Lumber Co., 105 N.C. App. 91, 93 (1992)	1	In deciding whether action would affect title to or an interest in land for purposes of venue statute, court determines the nature and purpose of the action solely from allegations of the complaint. G.S. S 1-76(1).	In deciding whether plaintiff's action would affect title to or an interest in land for purposes of N.C.G.S. 1-76(1), we determine the nature and purpose of plaintiff's action solely from the allegations in its complaint.	Do courts consider the allegations in the complaint in deciding whether the judgment sought by plaintiff would affect title to land?

6622	Bundy v. Nustar GP, 277 Or. App. 785, 787, 373 P.3d 1141, 1145 (2016)	3	The workers' compensation statutory scheme operates as a substitute for civil claims that an employee could assert against his or her employer in an action at common law and provides liability "coverage" against the risks that arise from those kinds of claims. West's Or.Rev. Stat. Ann. S 656.018.	Thus, "[t]he workers' compensation statutory scheme operates as a substitute for civil claims that an employee could assert against his or her employer in an action at common law and provides liability 'coverage' against the risks that arise from those kinds of claims."	What is the general scheme of the workers compensation act?
6623	Webster v. Boh Bros. Const. Co., Inc., 603 So. 2d 761, 763 (La. App. 4th Cir. 1992)	2	Only three avenues are available to a party seeking to alter the substance of a final judgment: timely application for new trial; petition for nullity; and timely appeal.	Only three avenues are available to a party seeking to alter the substance of a final judgment: (1) timely application for a new trial, (2) petition for nullity, and (3) timely appeal.	What avenues are available to a party seeking to alter the substance of a final judgment?
6624	Francis v. Lafon Nursing Home of Holy Family, 2002-1863 (La. App. 4 Cir. 3/19/03), 840 So. 2d 1281, 1290 (La. 2003)	9	Only three avenues are available to a party seeking to alter the substance of a final judgment: (1) timely application for a new trial, (2) petition for nullity, and (3) timely appeal. LSA-C.C.P. art. 1951.	Only three avenues are available to a party seeking to alter the substance of a final judgment: (1) timely application for a new trial, (2) petition for nullity, and (3) timely appeal.	What avenues are available to a party seeking to alter the substance of a final judgment?
6625	JFS v. ABMJ, 120 Ill. App. 3d 261, 263, 458 N.E.2d 76, 79 (1983)	8	Scope of appellate jurisdiction is defined by rules promulgated by Supreme Court, and any enlargement on allowable list of appealable interlocutory orders must be initiated by change of such rules. S.H.A. ch. 110A, P 307(a).	The scope of appellate jurisdiction is defined by rules promulgated by the supreme court and any enlargement on the allowable list of appealable interlocutory orders must be initiated by a change of those rules.	Is appellate jurisdiction limited to those cases in which appeals have been timely filed under rules promulgated by the Supreme Court?
6627	Pena v. Minidoka Cnty., 984 P.2d 710, 713 (Idaho 1999)	6	Before county commissioners can legally empower the appointment of a deputy by a county officer, they must first determine whether a new deputy is necessary, and upon a showing to the proper tribunal that a deputy or clerical assistant is needed, the county commissioners must authorize the appointment. Const. Art. 18, S 6.	Before the commissioners can legally empower the appointment of a deputy by a county officer, they must first determine whether a new deputy is necessary. Taylor v. Canyon County, 6 Idaho 466, 470, 56 P. 168, 169-70 (1899)(as applicable to county officers named in Article XVIII, 6). Upon a showing to the proper tribunal that a deputy or clerical assistant is needed, the county commissioners must authorize the appointment.	Must county commissioners authorize the appointment of a deputy clerk upon a showing that a deputy or clerical assistant is needed?
6629	Phillips v. Phillips, 290 P.2d 611, 612 (Cal. App. 4th Dist. 1955)	1	General rule is that it is abuse of discretion to sustain without leave to amend demurrer to original complaint unless complaint shows on its face that it is incapable of amendment, and this rule applies irrespective of whether leave to amend is requested or not. West's Ann.Code Civ.Proc. S 472c.	The general rule is that it is an abuse of discretion to sustain without leave to amend a demurrer to an original complaint unless the complaint shows on its face that it is incapable of amendment. Temescal Water Co. v. Department of Public Works, 44 Cal.2d 90, 107, 280 P.2d 1; King v. Mortimer, 83 Cal.App.2d 153, 158, 188 P.2d 502; C. Dudley De Velbiss Co. v. Kraintz, 101 Cal.App.2d 612, 617, 225 P.2d 969. This rule applies irrespective of whether leave to amend is requested or not.	It is an abuse of discretion to sustain a demurrer to an original complaint without leave to amend?

6631	Levin & Sons v. Mathys, 409 N.E.2d 1195, 1198 (Ind. Ct. App. 1980)	3	In determining whether to grant a voluntary dismissal, court should follow traditional principle that dismissal should be allowed unless defendant will suffer some plain legal prejudice other than the mere prospect of a second lawsuit. Rule TR. 41(A).	In determining whether to grant a voluntary dismissal "the court should follow the traditional principle that dismissals should be allowed unless the defendant will suffer some plain legal prejudice, other than the mere prospect of a second lawsuit."	What is the test for determining whether a voluntary dismissal is proper?
6632	Schering & Glatz v. Am. Pharm. Co., 254 N.Y.S. 764, 766 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dept. 1932)	2	Action may not be discontinued simply to avoid liability for great expense which another party has been caused in preparing for trial.	Where a party has been caused great expense in preparing for trial, the action may not be discontinued simply to avoid liability for such disbursements.	Can an action be discontinued simply to avoid liability for a great expense which has been caused by another party in preparing for the trial?
6633	Parnell v. Powell, 191 S.C. 159, 3 S.E.2d 801, 802 (1939)	3	If discontinuance or dismissal before trial will not result in legal prejudice to a defendant, a plaintiff ordinarily has the right to discontinue any action commenced by him.	If the discontinuance or dismissal before trial will not result in legal prejudice to the defendant, a plaintiff ordinarily has a right to discontinue any action commenced by him.	"If discontinuance or dismissal before trial will not result in legal prejudice to a defendant, does a plaintiff ordinarily have the right to discontinue any action commenced by him?"
6634	English v. IKON Bus. Sols., Inc., 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93, 105 (Cal. App. 3d Dist. 2001)	10	In the context of pleadings and motions, a "dismissal" is the withdrawal of an application for judicial relief by the party seeking such relief, or the removal of the application by a court.	As Justice Epstein's dissent in Yeap explained: "Without belaboring the obvious, it should suffice to say that, in the context of pleadings and motions, a dismissal is the withdrawal of an application for judicial relief by the party seeking such relief, or the removal of the application by a court."	"In the context of pleadings and motions, is a ""dismissal"" the withdrawal of an application for judicial relief by the party seeking such relief, or the removal of the application by a court?"
6635	George v. Ospalik, 299 Ill. App. 3d 888, 889 (1998)	1	While plaintiff may move for voluntary dismissal at any time before trial or hearing begins, right to a voluntary dismissal is not absolute. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-1009(a).	Section 2-1009(a) of the Code of Civil Procedure provides that a plaintiff may move for voluntary dismissal at any time before trial or hearing begins. 735 ILCS 5/2-1009(a) (West 1996). However, the right to a voluntary dismissal under section 2-1009 is not absolute.	"While plaintiff may move for voluntary dismissal at any time before trial or hearing begins, is a right to a voluntary dismissal absolute?"
6636	Brown v. City of Barre, Vt., 878 F. Supp. 2d 469, 487 (D. Vt. 2012)	10	Where state law mandates that utilities may not terminate utility service at will but only under certain enumerated conditions and after giving proper notice there is an independent source of state-authorized law that gives rise to a legitimate claim of entitlement to a service from a municipal utility pursuant to the Due Process Clause. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 14.	Where state law "mandates that utilities may not terminate utility service at will but only under certain enumerated conditions and after giving proper notice" there is "an independent source of state-authorized law that gives rise to a legitimate claim of entitlement to [a service] from a municipal utility."	Can a public utility terminate its services at will?
6637	Fairway Manor v. Bd. of Comm'rs of Summit Cty., 36 Ohio St. 3d 85, 85, 521 N.E.2d 818, 819 (1988)	3	Municipally owned public utilities have no duty to sell their products, including water, to extraterritorial purchasers absent contractual obligation.	Municipally owned public utilities have no duty to sell their products, including water, to extraterritorial purchasers absent a contractual obligation.	Are contractual obligations required by municipally owned public utilities to sell their products to extraterritorial purchasers?

6640	Paul H. Schwendener v. Larrabee Commons Partners, 338 Ill. App. 3d 19, 32 (2003)	11	The court must exercise its power to avoid undue delay in a manner that insures a fair trial for the parties; in particular, the court must reserve for the parties time for adequate presentation of a defense to all claims.	The court must exercise its power to avoid undue delay in a manner that insures a fair trial for the parties. Hutson v. County of Cook, 17 Ill.App.3d 195, 205-06, 308 N.E.2d 65 (1974). In particular, the court must reserve for the parties time for adequate presentation of a defense to all claims.	Must the court exercise its power to avoid undue delay in a manner that insures a fair trial for the parties?
6641	Politz v. Politz, 149 So. 3d 805, 814-15 (2014)	18	The trial court's discretion in granting or denying a continuance must be based upon consideration of the facts of each case and factors such as diligence, good faith, and reasonable grounds; equally important is the exceptor's corollary right to have his case heard as soon as practicable. LSA-C.C.P. art. 1601.	The trial court's discretion in granting or denying a continuance under LSA-C.C.P. art. 1601 must be based upon consideration of the facts of each case and factors such as diligence, good faith, and reasonable grounds. Equally important is the exceptor's corollary right to have his case heard as soon as practicable.	"While deciding whether a continuance should be granted, what are the factors that a court should consider?"
6642	Carnes v. Meadowbrook Exec. Bldg. Corp., 17 Kan. App. 2d 292, 292, 836 P.2d 1212, 1214 (1992)	7	In all but the simplest cases, trial court should hold pretrial conference within reasonable time in advance of trial and issue pretrial order as provided for by rule. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 140.	In all but the simplest of cases, the trial court should hold a pretrial conference within a reasonable time in advance of trial and issue a pretrial order as provided by Rule 140.	Should a trial court hold a pretrial conference within a reasonable time in advance of a trial and issue a pretrial order as provided for by rule?
6643	Gerschick v. Pounds, 281 Ga. App. 531, 536 (2006)	5	A pretrial order should be liberally construed to allow the consideration of all questions fairly within the ambit of the contested issues. West's Ga.Code Ann. S 9-11-16(b).	"Nonetheless, a pretrial order should be liberally construed to allow the consideration of all questions fairly within the ambit of the contested issues." 31 30 OCGA 9-11-16(b).	Should a pretrial order be liberally construed to allow the consideration of all questions fairly within the ambit of the contested issues?
6645	Steeg v. Lawyers Title Ins. Corp., 329 So. 2d 719, 720 (La. 1976)	3	Functions of dilatory exception permit raising issue that judicial cause of action has not come into existence because some prerequisite condition has not been fulfilled. LSA-C.C.P. art. 926(1).	The functions of the exception permit raising the issue that the judicial cause of action has not come into existence because some prerequisite condition has not been fulfilled.	Can an exception raising the objection of prematurity raise the issue of whether the judicial cause of action has not yet come into existence because some prerequisite condition has not been fulfilled?
6646	Kubala v. Supreme Prod. Servs., 830 F.3d 199, 201 (5th Cir. 2016)	2	Enforcement of an arbitration agreement involves two analytical steps: first is contract formation, whether the parties entered into any arbitration agreement at all, and the second involves contract interpretation to determine whether this claim is covered by the arbitration agreement.	Enforcement of an arbitration agreement involves two analytical steps. The first is contract formation-whether the parties entered into any arbitration agreement at all. The second involves contract interpretation to determine whether this claim is covered by the arbitration agreement.	What are the two analytical steps involved in enforcement of an arbitration agreement?
6647	City of Norfolk v. Norfolk Cty., 194 Va. 716, 720, 75 S.E.2d 66, 68 (1953)	1	In absence of statute or rule of court, matter of dismissing an action, or of taking a nonsuit, is controlled by common law.	In the absence of statute or rule of court, the matter of dismissing an action, or of taking a nonsuit, is controlled by the common law.	"In absence of statute or rule of court is the matter of dismissing an action or of taking a nonsuit, controlled by common law?"

6649	In re Advanced Powder Sols., 496 S.W.3d 838, 853–54 (Tex. App. 2016)	24	A person has a duty to preserve evidence only when a party knows or reasonably should know that there is a substantial chance that a claim will be filed and that evidence in its possession or control will be material and relevant to that claim.	A person has a duty to preserve evidence "only when a party knows *854 or reasonably should know that there is a substantial chance that a claim will be filed and that evidence in its possession or control will be material and relevant to that claim."	When does law impute a person a duty to preserve evidence in its possession or control that will be material and relevant to that claim?
6650	Rockdale Body Shop v. Thompson, 222 Ga. App. 821, 822 (1996)	4	Pretrial order should be liberally construed to allow consideration of all questions fairly within ambit of contested issues.	" '(A) pretrial order should be liberally construed to allow the consideration of all questions fairly within the ambit of the contested issues.' "	Should a pretrial order be liberally construed to allow consideration of all questions fairly within ambit of contested issues?
6651	Heisler v. Hines Motor Co., 282 Mont. 270, 275 (1997)	3	Pretrial order serves to prevent surprise, simplify the issues, and permit counsel to prepare their case for trial.	A pretrial order serves to "prevent surprise, simplify the issues, and permit counsel to prepare their case for trial on the basis of the pretrial order."	"Does pretrial order serve to prevent surprise, simplify the issues, and permit counsel to prepare their case for trial?"
6652	Am. Soc. of Lubrication Engineers v. Roetheli, 249 Ill. App. 3d 1038, 1043 (1993)	6	One purpose of pretrial conference is to expedite prosecution of case, either by hastening settlement agreement between parties, or by clarifying issues and evidence so that trial on merits may occur more swiftly. Sup.Ct.Rules, Rule 218.	One purpose of a pre-trial conference is to expedite the prosecution of a case, either by hastening a settlement agreement between the parties, or by clarifying the issues and evidence 34 165 so that a trial on the merits may occur more swiftly.	How would pretrial conference help to expedite prosecution of case?
6653	Blackmon v. Nexity Fin. Corp., 953 So. 2d 1180, 1189 (Ala. 2006)	9	A deadline for filing amendments to pleadings in a scheduling order does not curtail the trial court's discretion in considering the merits of the offered amendment. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 15(a).	The deadline in the scheduling order does not curtail the trial court's discretion in considering the merits of the offered amendment.	Does a deadline for filing amendments to pleadings in a scheduling order curtail the trial court's discretion in considering the merits of the offered amendment?
6654	Malerbi v. Cent. Reserve Life of N. Am. Ins. Co., 225 Neb. 543, 544 (1987)	8	Pretrial conferences are conducted to simplify issues, amend pleadings, and avoid unnecessary proof of facts at trial and to avoid traps and surprises at trial.	Pretrial conferences are conducted to simplify the issues, amend pleadings, and avoid unnecessary proof of facts at trial. They are also conducted to avoid traps and surprises at trial.	"Can pretrial conferences simplify the issues, amend the pleadings and avoid traps and surprises at trial?"
6655	Vogel v. Berkley, 511 A.2d 878, 880 (Pa. Super. 1986)	1	Purpose of pretrial conference is to enable parties to simplify and expedite trial, and it is appropriate for court to decide issues of law based on admitted or undenied facts appearing of record. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 212, 42 Pa.C.S.A.	The purpose of a pre-trial conference is to enable the parties to simplify and expedite the trial. Gill v. McGraw Electric Co., 264 Pa.Super. 368, 399 A.2d 1095 (1979).It is appropriate for the pre-trial conference court to decide issues of law based on admitted or undenied facts appearing of record.	Is it appropriate for the pre-trial conference court to decide issues of law based on admitted or undenied facts appearing of record?
6656	Hycarbex v. Anglo-Suisse, 927 S.W.2d 103, 112 (Tex. App. 1996)	37	Where party elects to employ other means than those provided by law to assure that witness appears to testify at trial, it will be at his peril.	Where a party elects to employ other means than those provided by law to assure that a witness appears to testify at trial, it will be at his peril.	"Where a party elects to employ other means than those provided by law to assure that witness appears to testify at trial, will it be at his peril?"

6657	Schowalter v. Washington Mut. Bank, 275 Ga. App. 182, 183 (2005)	3	Purpose of the pretrial order is to determine which of the claims pleaded will actually be tried; claims, issues, and evidence are limited by the order, and the course of the action is thereby narrowed to expedite the proceeding.	The rationale is that the purpose of the pretrial order "is to determine which of the claims pleaded will actually be tried. The claims, issues, and evidence are limited by the order and the course of the action is thereby narrowed to expedite the proceeding."	"What is the purpose of a pretrial order and are claims, issues, and evidence limited by the order?"
6658	Arfor-Brynfield, Inc. v. Huntsville Mall Assocs., 479 So. 2d 1146, 1149 (Ala. 1985)	1	Purpose of pretrial procedure is to clarify and simplify issues to be tried and resulting pretrial order controls subsequent course of action. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 16.	The pre-trial procedure established by Rule 16, A.R.Civ.P., is designed to clarify and simplify the issues to be tried. The order resulting is to control the subsequent course of the action.	"Is the purpose of pretrial procedure to clarify and simplify issues to be tried, and does the resulting pretrial order control subsequent course of action?"
6659	Vlach v. Goode, 515 N.E.2d 569, 570 (Ind. App. 3d Dist. 1987)	1	Pretrial order should be liberally construed to embrace all legal and factual theories inherent in issues defined therein.	The pretrial order should be liberally construed to embrace all legal and factual theories inherent in the issues defined therein.	Should pretrial orders be liberally construed to embrace all legal and factual theories inherent in issues defined therein?
6660	Chalupa v. Chalupa, 220 Neb. 704, 704, 371 N.W.2d 706, 706 (1985)	2	Where pretrial order improperly restricts the issues, the parties are bound by it at trial and on appeal, if no objection has been made, unless it does violence to the issues raised by the petition.	Where a pretrial order improperly restricts the issues, the parties are bound by it at trial and on appeal, if no objection has been made, unless it does violence to the issues raised by the petition.	"If a pretrial order improperly restricts the issues, are the parties bound by it at trial and on appeal?"
6664	Storedahl Properties v. Clark Cty., 143 Wash. App. 489, 496 (2008)	4	Charges imposed for purposes other than raising money to fund the public treasury, such as for regulating activities, are not taxes and are not subject to constitutional taxation constraints. West's RCWA Const. Art. 7, S 1.	In contrast, charges imposed for purposes other than raising money to fund the public treasury, such as for regulating activities, are not taxes and are not subject to constitutional taxation constraints.	Are charges imposed for purposes other than raising money to fund the public treasury considered as taxes?
6665	Dean v. Lehman, 143 Wash. 2d 12, 38, 18 P.3d 523, 537 (2001)	19	A "tax" is an enforced contribution of money, assessed or charged by authority of sovereign government for the benefit of the state or the legal taxing authorities; it is not a debt or contract in the ordinary sense, but it is an exaction in the strictest sense of the word.	As the majority correctly observes, a tax is: an enforced contribution of money, assessed or charged by authority of sovereign government for the benefit of the state or the legal taxing authorities[,][and i]t is not a debt or contract in the ordinary sense, but it is an exaction in the strictest sense of the word.	Is a tax charged for the benefit of legal taxing authorities?
6666	Hoskins v. United States, 61 Fed. Cl. 209, 216 (2004)	3	The Court of Federal Claims has the power to decide whether military procedures were followed by applying the facts to the statutory or regulatory standard.	This court thus has the power to decide "whether [military] procedures were followed by applying the facts to the statutory or regulatory standard."	Do courts have the power to decide whether military procedures were followed by applying the facts to the statutory or regulatory standard?

6668	United States v. Ring, 628 F. Supp. 2d 195, 205 (D.D.C. 2009)	3	To prove that defendant paid an illegal gratuity, the government must show that he conferred a thing of value upon a present, past, or future public official for or because of a specific official act that the official performed or would perform. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(c)(1)(A).	To prove that Ring paid an illegal gratuity, the government must show that he conferred a thing of value upon a present, past, or future public official "for or because of" a specific "official act" that the official performed or would perform. See 18 U.S.C. 201(c)(1)(A)	Does an illegal gratuity need to be linked to a specific official act?
6669	Rock Island Bank & Tr. Co. v. Ford Motor Co., 54 Mich. App. 278, 280 (1974)	1	Purposes of discovery are to allow parties to have access to material which will assist them in preparing and trying their cases and to further ends of justice.	The purpose of discovery is to allow the parties to have access to material which will assist them in preparing and trying their cases.	Does the purpose of discovery is to allow parties to have access to material which will assist them in preparing and trying their cases and to further ends of justice?
6670	F.D.I.C. v. Finlay, , 832 S.W.2d 158, 161 (Tex. App. 1992), writ denied (Oct. 21, 1992)	4	Court may not dismiss suit with prejudice as sanction for violation of oral order announced at Rule 166 pretrial conference. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 166.	Here, the FDIC's entire appeal is based on that very issue: A trial court may not dismiss a party's suit with prejudice as a sanction for violation of an oral order announced at a rule 166 pretrial conference.	Can a court dismiss a party's suit with prejudice as a sanction for violation of an oral order announced at a pretrial conference?
6671	UFG v. Sw. Corp., 848 N.E.2d 353, 364 (Ind. Ct. App. 2006)	12	A pre-trial order delineating the issues of the case supplants the allegations raised in the pleadings and controls all subsequent proceedings in the case.	It is true that "a pre-trial order delineating the issues of the case supplants the allegations raised in the pleadings and controls all subsequent proceedings in the case."	"Does a pre-trial order delineating the issues of the case, supplant the allegations raised in the pleadings and control all subsequent proceedings in the case?"
6672	Bonneville Assocs., Ltd. P'ship v. Barram, 165 F.3d 1360, 1364 (Fed. Cir. 1999)	4	The effect of a voluntary dismissal without prejudice is to render the proceedings a nullity and leave the parties as if the action had never been brought. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 41(a), 28 U.S.C.A.	The effect of a voluntary dismissal without prejudice is to render the proceedings a nullity and leave the parties as if the action had never been brought.	Is the effect of a voluntary dismissal of a complaint to render the proceedings a nullity and leave the parties as if the action had never been brought?
6673	In re Team Rocket, 256 S.W.3d 257, 259 (Tex. 2008)	2	Subject to certain conditions, a plaintiff who takes a nonsuit is not precluded from filing a subsequent suit seeking the same relief. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 162.	"Subject to certain conditions, a plaintiff who takes a nonsuit is not precluded from filing a subsequent suit seeking the same relief."	"Subject to certain conditions, is a plaintiff who takes a nonsuit precluded from filing a subsequent suit seeking the same relief?"
6674	Samland v. J. White Transp. Co., 675 S.W.2d 92, 96 (Mo. Ct. App. 1984)	3	Once a plaintiff voluntarily dismisses his action, nothing remains before court upon which it can act; even an order reinstating the case on trial docket at plaintiff's request is a nullity because legal situation is as though the suit had never been brought. V.A.M.R. 67.01.	Once a plaintiff voluntarily dismisses his action, nothing remains before the court upon which it can act; even an order reinstating the case on the trial docket at the plaintiff's request is a nullity. Emigh Engineering Co., Inc. v. Rickhoff, 605 S.W.2d 173, 174 (Mo.App.1980). The legal situation is as though the suit had never been brought.	"Once a plaintiff files a voluntary dismissal of his or her petition, does nothing remain before the court upon which it can act?"

6675	Bonneville Assocs., Ltd. P'ship v. Barram, 165 F.3d 1360, 1364 (Fed. Cir. 1999)	4	The effect of a voluntary dismissal without prejudice is to render the proceedings a nullity and leave the parties as if the action had never been brought. Fed.Rules Civ.Proc.Rule 41(a), 28 U.S.C.A.	The effect of a voluntary dismissal without prejudice is to render the proceedings a nullity and leave the parties as if the action had never been brought.	Does a dismissal without prejudice render the proceedings a nullity and leaves the parties as if the action had never been brought?
6676	Beard v. Montgomery Ward & Co., 215 Kan. 343, 349, 524 P.2d 1159, 1165 (1974)	8	The purpose of a pretrial order is to define and clarify the issues and it controls the course of the trial unless subsequently modified. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 16, K.S.A. 60-216.	The purpose of the pre-trial order is to define and clarify the issues, and it controls the course of the trial unless subsequently modified (K.S.A.	Is the purpose of a pretrial order to define and clarify the issues and it controls the course of the trial unless subsequently modified?
6678	Morning Star Co. v. Bd. of Equalization, 201 Cal. App. 4th 737, 750 (2011)	4	Ordinarily taxes are imposed for revenue purposes and not, like regulatory fees, in return for a specific benefit conferred or privilege granted.	Ordinarily taxes are imposed for revenue purposes and not[,] [like regulatory fees,] 'in return for a specific benefit conferred or privilege granted.' "	"Are taxes imposed for revenue purposes, rather than in return for a specific benefit conferred or privilege granted?"
6679	Chicago Park Dist. v. City of Chicago, 127 Ill. App. 3d 215, 221, 468 N.E.2d 1261, 1265 (1984)	11	While every tax on an activity increases ultimate cost of such activity to consumer, such factor does not change tax from a revenue measure to a regulatory measure.	While every tax on an activity increases the ultimate cost of that activity to the consumer, this factor does not change the tax from a revenue measure to a regulatory measure.	"Does the factor that every tax on an activity increases ultimate cost of such activity to consumer, change tax from a revenue measure to a regulatory measure?"
6680	Swanson v. State, Dep't of Educ., 249 Neb. 466, 474 (1996)	11	Tax laws represent legislature's definition of measure of every citizen's duty in support of public burdens.	Tax laws, including L.B. 839, represent the Legislature's definition of the measure of every citizen's duty in support of the public burdens.	Do tax laws represent legislature's definition of measure of every citizen's duty in support of public burdens?
6681	Garrett Freight Lines v. State Tax Comm'n, 103 Utah 390, 135 P.2d 523, 526 (Utah 1943)	14	"Taxation" is neither a "penalty" imposed on taxpayer nor a "liability" which he assumes by contract, but is merely a way of apportioning cost of government among those who in some measure are privileged to enjoy its benefits and must bear its burdens.	Taxation is neither a penalty imposed on the taxpayer nor a liability which he assumes by contract. It is but a way of apportioning the cost of government among those who in some measure are privileged to enjoy its benefits and must bear its burdens.	Is taxation a penalty imposed on a taxpayer?
6682	Madge v. State, 160 So. 3d 86, 89 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2015)	2	While the observations of lay persons leading up to the arrival of law enforcement may provide factual background, prior wrongdoing cannot establish the basis for a loitering and prowling charge. West's F.S.A. S 856.021.	While the observations of lay persons leading up to the arrival of law enforcement may provide the factual background, prior wrongdoing cannot establish the basis for a loitering and prowling charge.	Does prior wrongdoing establish the basis for a loitering charge?
6683	Leach v. Lauhoff Grain Co., 51 Ill. App. 3d 1022, 1023 (1977)	3	Enactment of workmen's compensation legislation was pursuant to police power and was done in furtherance of sound public policy. S.H.A. ch. 48, S 138.1 et seq.	As we have indicated, the enactment of workmen's compensation legislation was pursuant to the police power and was done in furtherance of sound public policy.	Was the enactment of workmens compensation legislation pursuant to a states police power and was it done in furtherance of sound public policy?

6684	Zimmerman v. Wisconsin Elec. Power Co., 157 N.W.2d 648, 651–52 (Wis. 1968)	3	Fundamental idea upon which liability for workmen's compensation is imposed is that injury to an employee, like damage to a machine, is burden which should be borne by product of the industry and ultimately paid by those who consume the product.	'The fundamental idea upon which liability is imposed is that an injury to an employee, like damage to a machine, is a burden that should be borne by the product of the industry and ultimately paid by those who consume this product.'	What is the fundamental idea upon which liability for workmens compensation is imposed?
6685	United States v. Jefferson, 562 F. Supp. 2d 687, 690 (E.D. Va. 2008)	2	An indictment charging bribery must allege each of the following elements: (1) that the defendant is a public official; and (2) that defendant corruptly demanded, sought, received, accepted, or agreed to receive or accept (3) anything of value (4) in return for being influenced in the performance of (5) an official act. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(b)(2)(A).	An indictment charging bribery must therefore allege each of the following elements: (i) that the defendant is a public official, and (ii) that defendant corruptly demanded, sought, received, accepted, or agreed to receive or accept (iii) anything of value (iv) in return for being influenced in the performance of (v) an official act.	What are the elements of bribery?
6693	Nielsen v. Firelands Rural Elec. Coop., 123 Ohio App. 3d 104, 106 (1997)	1	Voluntary dismissal, without prejudice, dissolves all interlocutory orders made by court in that action, including a partial summary judgment.	This court has previously held that a voluntary dismissal, without prejudice, dissolves "all interlocutory orders made by the court in that action," including a partial summary judgment.	Does a voluntary dismissal without prejudice dissolve interlocutory orders made by the court in the action?
6696	Umbreit v. Quality Tool, 302 Minn. 376, 378–79, 225 N.W.2d 10, 12 (1975)	1	While Workmen's Compensation Act is remedial and humanitarian in purpose and is to be given liberal interpretation in favor of employees, rights and benefits granted rest solely upon and are limited by statutes creating them. M.S.A. S 176.011 et seq.	While it is true that the Workmen's Compensation Act is remedial and humanitarian in purpose and is to be given a liberal interpretation in favor of employees, it is also true that the *379 rights and benefits granted rest solely upon, and are limited by, the statutes creating them.	Is it true that workmens compensation statutes are remedial?
6697	Bowers v. Hiland Dairy Co., 132 S.W.3d 260, 265 (Mo. Ct. App. 2004)	9	Statutes and rules relating to appeals in workers' compensation cases are to be construed liberally in favor of allowing appeals to proceed, and, to the extent possible, to permit disposition on the merits.	We note, however, that statutes and rules relating to appeals in workers' compensation cases are to be construed liberally in favor of allowing appeals to proceed, and, to the extent possible, to permit disposition on the merits.	Do compensation cases be construed liberally to permit disposition on the merits?
6700	Shapell Indus. v. Superior Court, 132 Cal. App. 4th 1101, 1108 (2005)	5	A voluntary dismissal of an entire action deprives the court of subject matter jurisdiction as well as personal jurisdiction of the parties.	Furthermore, " '[a] voluntary dismissal of an entire action deprives the court of subject matter jurisdiction as well as personal jurisdiction of the parties.'	Does a voluntary dismissal of an entire action deprive the court of subject matter jurisdiction as well as the personal jurisdiction of the parties?
6701	Renner v. Hawk, 125 N.C. App. 483, 489 (1997)	1	Effect of voluntary dismissal is to terminate action, and no suit is pending thereafter on which court can enter valid order. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(a)(1), G.S. S 1A-1.	The effect of such a voluntary dismissal is to terminate the action, and no suit is pending thereafter on which the court can enter a valid order.	Does the effect of a voluntary dismissal is to terminate the action such that no suit is pending thereafter on which court can enter the valid order?

6703	State ex rel. Arn v. State Comm'n of Revenue & Taxation, 163 Kan. 240, 247 (1947)	3	The construction and repair of public roads is a "governmental function" which may be exercised by the state or delegated to state or local agencies.	25, it is said: 'The construction and repair of public roads is a governmental function which may be exercised by the state or delegated to state or local agencies or bodies, * * *.	Is the construction and repair of public roads and highways a governmental function which may be exercised by the state or delegated to state or local agencies or bodies?
6704	U. of Texas Med. Branch at Galveston v. Est. of Blackmon ex rel. Shultz, 195 S.W.3d 98, 100 (Tex. 2006)	3	While the date on which the trial court signs an order dismissing the suit is the starting point for determining when a trial court's plenary power expires, a nonsuit is effective when it is filed. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rules 162, 329b.	While the date on which the trial court signs an order dismissing the suit is the "starting point for determining when a trial court's plenary power expires," a nonsuit is effective when it is filed.	Does Trial court's plenary power expire upon the trial court's signing of an order dismissing a case?
6705	Roby v. U.S. Dep't of Navy, 76 F.3d 1052, 1055 (9th Cir. 1996)	3	There is national policy not to subject bona fide conscientious objectors to combatant training and service in the armed forces.	We recognize, however, "a national policy ... not to subject bona fide conscientious objectors to combatant training and service in the armed forces."	Is there a national policy to subject bona fide conscientious objectors to combatant training and service in the armed forces?
6706	Kirby v. Gaub, 75 S.W.3d 916, 917 (Mo. Ct. App. 2002)	2	Once plaintiff files voluntary dismissal of civil action, trial court loses its jurisdiction as there is nothing before court upon which to act. V.A.M.R. 67.02.	Once a plaintiff files a voluntary dismissal pursuant to this rule, the trial court loses its jurisdiction as there is nothing before the court upon which to act.	"Once plaintiff files a voluntary dismissal of a civil action, does the trial court lose its jurisdiction as there is nothing before court upon which to act?"
6707	Richman v. Coughlin, 75 S.W.3d 334, 338 (Mo. Ct. App. 2002)	3	If plaintiff voluntarily dismisses his or her petition prior to the introduction of evidence, no action of the trial court is necessary to effectuate the dismissal. V.A.M.R. 67.02(a).	Thus, if a plaintiff voluntarily dismisses his or her petition prior to the introduction of evidence, no action of the trial court is necessary to effectuate the dismissal.	"If a plaintiff voluntarily dismisses his or her petition prior to the introduction of evidence, is any action of the trial court necessary to effectuate the dismissal?"
6708	Marino v. King, 355 S.W.3d 629, 634 (Tex. 2011)	7	Constitutional imperatives favor the determination of cases on their merits rather than on harmless procedural defaults, and thus using deemed admissions as the basis for summary judgment does not avoid the due-process requirement of flagrant bad faith or callous disregard, which is the showing necessary to support a merits-preclusive sanction; it merely incorporates the requirement as an element of the movant's summary-judgment burden. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 14; Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 198.2(a, c).	Constitutional imperatives favor the determination of cases on their merits rather than on harmless procedural defaults. Using deemed admissions as the basis for summary judgment therefore does not avoid the requirement of flagrant bad faith or callous disregard, the showing necessary to support a merits-preclusive sanction; it merely incorporates the requirement as an element of the movant's summary judgment burden.	"Where a party moves to withdraw deemed admissions that are merit-preclusive, does due process require the party opposing withdrawal to prove that the moving party's failure to answer the admissions resulted from flagrant bad faith or callous disregard of the rules?"
6709	Carty v. McElwee, 31 N.J. Super. 532, 534, 107 A.2d 511, 512 (App. Div. 1954)	1	Application for adjournment or continuance based upon absence of a witness is addressed to the sound discretion of trial judge.	An application for an adjournment or continuance based upon the absence of a witness is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial judge.	Is an application for adjournment or continuance based upon the absence of a witness addressed to the sound discretion of a trial judge?

6710	Berkshire Aircraft v. AEC Leasing Co., 32 Kan. App. 2d 427, 427, 84 P.3d 608, 609 (2002)	4	No statutory authority authorizes a trial court to allow a party to withdraw or amend admissions in limited action cases. K.S.A. 61-3101(b).	Conversely, no statutory authority authorizes a trial court to allow a party to withdraw or amend admissions in limited action cases.	Does statutory authority authorize a trial court to allow a party to withdraw or amend admissions in limited action cases?
6711	Vis v. Harris, 764 S.E.2d 156, 160 (Ga. App. 2014)	6	Failure to make a motion to have admissions withdrawn or amended forecloses remedial action, and therefore the requests for admissions which were not answered or objected to are deemed admitted. West's Ga.Code Ann. S 9-11-36(b).	However, "the failure to make a motion to have admissions withdrawn or amended forecloses remedial action under [OCGA § 9-11-36(b), and therefore] the requests for admissions which were not answered or objected to are deemed admitted."	Does failure to make motion to have admissions withdrawn or amended foreclose remedial action?
6714	Ramirez v. Noble Energy, 521 S.W.3d 851, 856-57 (Tex. App. 2017)	5	Trial courts have broad discretion to permit or deny withdrawal of deemed admissions; however, courts cannot do so arbitrarily, unreasonably, or without reference to guiding rules or principles. Tex. R. Civ. P. 198.3.	Trial courts have broad discretion to permit or deny withdrawal of deemed admissions; however, courts cannot do so arbitrarily, unreasonably, or *857 without reference to guiding rules or principles.	Does the question of whether to permit the withdrawal of deemed admissions lie within the trial court's discretion?
6715	City of Houston v. Riner, 896 S.W.2d 317, 319 (Tex. App. 1995)	2	Trial court possesses broad discretion to permit or deny withdrawal of deemed admissions, and its ruling will be set aside on appeal only upon clear abuse of discretion; "abuse of discretion" occurs when court acts without reference to guiding rules or principles, or acts arbitrarily or unreasonably. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 169.	A trial court possesses broad discretion to permit or deny the withdrawal of deemed admissions, and its ruling will be set aside on appeal only upon a clear abuse of discretion. Esparza v. Diaz, 802 S.W.2d 772, 776 (Tex.App.-Houston [14th Dist.] 1990, no writ). An abuse of discretion occurs when a court acts without reference to guiding rules or principles, or acts arbitrarily or unreasonably.	"Does abuse of discretion occur when a court acts without reference to guiding rules or principles, or acts arbitrarily or unreasonably?"
6718	Motor Car Classics v. Abbott, 316 S.W.3d 223, 236 (Tex. App. 2010)	27	To obtain the relief of withdrawing deemed admissions, the proponent of that relief must show good cause, and no undue prejudice. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 198.3.	In order to obtain the relief of withdrawing deemed admissions, the proponent of that relief must show (1) good cause and (2) no undue prejudice.	"To obtain the relief of withdrawing deemed admissions, must the proponent of that relief show good cause, and no undue prejudice?"
6720	Worldwide Anesthesia Assocs., Inc. v. Bryan Anesthesia, Inc., 765 S.W.2d 445, 449 (Tex. App. 1988)	6	Requests for admission were deemed admitted without necessity of court order after deadline set by court for answering requests lapsed. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 169.	Pursuant to Rule 169 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure, these requests for admissions were deemed admitted without the necessity of court order after the June 3 deadline lapsed.	Are requests for admission deemed admitted without the necessity of a court order after a deadline set by court for answering requests lapses?

6721	State ex rel. Tomasic v. Kansas City, 237 Kan. 572, 573 (1985)	14	States are subject to equal protection clause of Fourteenth Amendment of United States Constitution in exercise of their tax powers, but flexibility and variety appropriate to reasonable taxation schemes are permitted; state taxation scheme must have rational basis for classification based on differences having fair and substantial relation to object of legislation. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 14.	States are subject to the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution in the exercise of their taxing power, but flexibility and variety appropriate to reasonable taxation schemes are permitted. The state taxation scheme must have a rational basis with classification based on differences having a fair and substantial relation to the object of the legislation.	Are flexibility and variety of tax schemes appropriate?
6723	Nat'l Iranian Oil Co. v. Ashland Oil, 817 F.2d 326, 332 (5th Cir. 1987)	4	Forum selection clause establishing situs of arbitration must be enforced unless it conflicts with explicit provision of Federal Arbitration Act. 9 U.S.C.A. S 2.	A forum selection clause establishing the situs of arbitration must be enforced unless it conflicts with an "explicit provision of the Federal Arbitration Act.	Can a forum selection clause be enforced if it conflicts with an explicit provision of the Federal Arbitration Act?
6724	Coppedge v. Marsh, 532 F. Supp. 423, 427 (D. Kan. 1982)	4	A change in status of reserve officer is matter committed solely to discretion of secretary of officer's branch of service or president of United States.	A change in status of a reserve officer is a matter committed solely to the discretion of the Secretary of the officer's branch of service or the President of the United States.	Is a change in the status of the reserved officer a matter committed solely to the discretion of the President and the Secretary of Navy?
6725	United States v. Frega, 933 F. Supp. 1536, 1542 (S.D. Cal. 1996)	6	Congress' specific purpose in enacting bribery statute was to close loopholes left by statutes that prohibit theft of federal government property and bribing of federal public officials; latter statutes failed to cover conduct where federal funds were stolen and then commingled with nonfederal funds so that federal funds could not be traced, and they also failed to cover many situations involving nonfederal employees who corruptly administered federal funds. 18 U.S.C.A. SS 201, 641, 666.	Congress thus had a specific purpose in mind when it enacted 666: the closing of loopholes left by 18 U.S.C. 641 and 18 U.S.C. 201, which respectively prohibit the theft of federal government property and the bribing of federal public officials. These statutes, however, failed to cover conduct where federal funds were stolen and then comingled with non- federal funds so that federal funds could not be traced. They also failed to cover many situations involving non-federal employees who corruptly administered federal funds.	What is the specific purpose of Section 666 of the federal bribery statute?
6726	Com. v. Clarke, 311 Pa. Super. 446, 449, 457 A.2d 970, 972 (1983)	4	Under section of crimes code proscribing bribery in official and political matters, once offer to confer proscribed benefit or agreement is made, the crime is complete, and there need be no waiting for benefit to actually be conferred. 18 Pa.C.S.A. SS 4701, 4701(a)(3).	Under the section of the Crimes Code proscribing bribery in official and political matters, once the offer to confer the proscribed benefit, or once an agreement is made, the crime is complete. There need be no waiting for the benefit to actually be conferred.	"Under the statute proscribing bribery in official and political matters, when is the crime complete? "
6727	Somportex Ltd. v. Philadelphia Chewing Gum Corp., 453 F.2d 435, 440 (3d Cir. 1971)	6	Comity should be withheld only when its acceptance would be contrary or prejudicial to the interest of the nation called upon to give it effect.	Comity should be withheld only when its acceptance would be contrary or prejudicial to the interest of the nation called upon to give it effect.	Should comity be withheld only when its acceptance would be contrary or prejudicial to the interest of the nation called upon to give it effect?

6728	Hobbs v. Arthur, 264 Ga. 359, 359–60 (1994)	1	Renewal statute is remedial in nature and is to be construed liberally to allow renewal where suit is disposed of on any ground not affecting its merits. O.C.G.A. § 9-2-61(a).	The renewal statute is remedial in nature; it is construed liberally to allow renewal where a suit is disposed of on any ground not affecting its merits.	Is a renewal statute remedial in nature and is to be construed liberally to allow renewal where suit is disposed of on any ground not affecting its merits?
6729	Marpco v. S. States Pipe & Supply, , 377 So. 2d 525, 528 (La. Ct. App. 1979)	6	Withdrawal of a litigant's attorney on day of trial without previous notice of trial or of intent to withdraw to that litigant is sufficient grounds for a continuance. LSA-C.C.P. art. 1601.	Certainly the withdrawal of litigant's attorney on the day of the trial without previous notice of trial or of the intent to withdraw to that litigant is sufficient grounds for a continuance.	Is withdrawal of a litigant's attorney on the day of the trial without previous notice of trial or of intent to withdraw to that litigant sufficient grounds for a continuance?
6730	Riggin v. Rea Riggin & Sons, Inc., 738 N.E.2d 292, 311 (Ind. App. 2000)	56	The withdrawal of legal counsel does not entitle a party to an automatic pretrial continuance, and the moving party must show diligence in procuring counsel. Trial Procedure Rule 53.5.	The withdrawal of legal counsel does not entitle a party to an automatic continuance, Danner v. Danner (1991), Ind.App., 573 N.E.2d 934, 937, trans. denied, and the moving party must show diligence in procuring counsel.	"Does the withdrawal of legal counsel not entitle a party to an automatic continuance, and the moving party must show diligence in procuring counsel?"
6732	People v. Rocha, 872 P.2d 1285, 1288 (1993)	3	Continuance granted because of substitution of counsel may be chargeable to defendant depending upon facts and circumstances of case and whether substitution was warranted and caused by defendant's actions. West's C.R.S.A. §§ 18-1-405, 18-1-405(3).	And, a continuance granted because of substitution of counsel may be chargeable to the defendant depending upon the facts and circumstances of the case and whether the substitution was warranted and caused by defendant's actions.	Will the question of whether continuance be granted because of counsel's absence depends on the facts and circumstances of each particular case?
6733	Ohio CAT v. Stoneman, 2015-Ohio-3546, ¶ 14 (2015)	2	When a party fails to timely respond to the request for admissions, the admissions become facts of record which the court must recognize. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36.	When a party fails to timely respond to the request for admissions, "the admissions [become] facts of record which the court must recognize.	"When a party fails to timely respond to requests for admissions, do the admissions become facts of record that the court must recognize?"
6735	Ramirez v. Noble Energy, 521 S.W.3d 851, 858 (Tex. App. 2017)	13	Because merits-preclusive deemed admissions implicate due process concerns, courts must presume that the admissions are merits-preclusive if the record does not affirmatively establish that they are not merits-preclusive. U.S. Const. Amend. 14; Tex. R. Civ. P. 198.3.	Because merits-preclusive admissions implicate due process concerns, we must presume that the admissions are merits-preclusive if the record does not affirmatively establish that they are not merits-preclusive.	"Because merits-preclusive deemed admissions implicate due process concerns, must courts presume that the admissions are merits-preclusive if the record does not affirmatively establish that they are not merits-preclusive?"
6736	Hammond v. SBC Commc'ns, Inc., 365 Ill. App. 3d 879, 892, 850 N.E.2d 265, 276 (2006), overruled by Vision Point of Sale, Inc. v. Haas, 226 Ill. 2d 334, 875 N.E.2d 1065 (2007)	20	Because a request seeking to admit legal conclusions is improper in form, the failure to respond to that request does not result in a judicial admission.	However, because a request seeking to admit legal conclusions is improper in form (see P.R.S. International Inc., 184 Ill.2d at 236, 234 Ill.Dec. 459, 703 N.E.2d 71), the failure to respond to that request does not result in a judicial admission.	"Because a request seeking to admit legal conclusions is improper in form, does the failure to respond to that request not result in a judicial admission?"
6739	Clodfelder v. Walker, 234 Ind. 219, 222, 125 N.E.2d 799, 800 (1955)	2	Failure on the part of the party to timely file his motion for continuance operates as a waiver of any right to continuance which he might otherwise have had. Burns' Ann.St. § 2-1301.	Failure on the part of a party to timely file his motion for continuance operates as a waiver of any right to continuance which he might otherwise have had.	Does failure on the part of the party to timely file his motion for continuance operate as a waiver of any right to continuance which he might otherwise have had?

6740	In re Calhoun Beach Holding Co., 205 Minn. 582, 590 (1939)	3	The word "tax" in its broad meaning includes both general taxes and special assessments, but the courts are reluctant to so hold when the result would be to deplete public revenues.	While the word 'tax' in its broad meaning includes both general taxes and special assessments (1 Cooley, Taxation, 4 ed. Ch. 1, 31, p. 106), the reluctance of the courts so to hold where the result would be to deplete public revenues is well illustrated by the case of Washburn Memorial Asylum v.	"Does the word ""tax"" in its broad meaning includes both general taxes and special assessments?"
6741	Bank of Glen Burnie v. Elkrige Bank, 120 Md. App. 402, 407, 707 A.2d 438, 440 (1998)	1	Burden of loss from forged endorsement is generally placed on person who dealt with and took instrument in question from forger.	Under Maryland law, "the burden of loss from a forged endorsement is generally placed on the person who dealt with and took the instrument in question from the forger."	Is the burden of loss from a forged endorsement generally placed on the person who dealt with and took the instrument in question from the forger?
6742	Swanson v. Sanders, 75 S.D. 40, 42 (1953)	1	A memorandum placed on back of a note at time of execution thereof with intention of making it a part of the note is as binding on the parties as if it were within the body of the instrument.	A memorandum placed on the back of a note at the time of the execution thereof with the intention of making it a part of the note is as binding on the parties as if it were within the body of the instrument.	Should a memorandum or notation placed on the back of a note or an instrument at the time of execution binding on the parties?
6744	United States v. Curescu, 674 F.3d 735, 742 (7th Cir. 2012)	8	To be guilty of soliciting or accepting a bribe requires knowing that the money or other thing of value received was indeed a bribe, which is to say an inducement to do a corrupt act. 18 U.S.C.A. S 666(a)(1)(B).	To be guilty of soliciting or accepting a bribe in violation of section 666(a)(1)(B) requires knowing that the money or other thing of value received was indeed a bribe, which is to say an inducement to do a corrupt act.	Does bribery require the official to know that the money or other thing of value received was indeed a bribe?
6745	People v. Canepa, 745 N.Y.S.2d 153, 154 (N.Y. App. Div. 1st Dept. 2002)	3	To support bribery conviction, People were required to prove an understanding in the mind of the bribe maker that the bribe receiver would effectuate the proscribed corruption of public process and was affected to do so by the actus reus of the crime. McKinney's Penal Law S 200.00.	The People were required to prove an understanding "in the mind of the bribe maker that the bribe receiver would effectuate the proscribed corruption of public process and was affected to do so by the actus reus of this particular crime" (People v. Bac Tran, 80 N.Y.2d 170, 177, 589 N.Y.S.2d 845, 603 N.E.2d 950).	What type of understanding does the prosecution need to prove the bribe-maker possessed in his/her mind in order to support a bribery conviction?
6748	United States v. Parise, 159 F.3d 790, 799 (3d Cir. 1998)	21	Pennsylvania's commercial bribery statute contains no requirement that the affected conduct be in relation to the official duties of an agent or employee, nor does it require a showing that an offender's conduct was adverse to the interests of the employer. 18 Pa.C.S.A. S 4108.	The statute contains no requirement that the affected conduct be in relation to the official duties of an agent or employee, nor does it require a showing that an offender's conduct was adverse to the interests of the employer.	Does commercial bribery statute require the offenders conduct to be adverse to the interests of the employer?

6749	In re French, 320 B.R. 78, 85 (D. Md. 2004)	6	"International comity" is the recognition which one nation allows within its territory to the legislative, executive, or judicial acts of another nation, having due regard both to international duty and convenience, and to the rights of its own citizens or of other persons who are under the protection of its laws.	International comity is defined as "the recognition which one nation allows within its territory to the legislative, executive or judicial acts of another nation, having due regard both to international duty and convenience, and to the rights of its own citizens or of other persons who are under the protection of its laws." Hilton v.	What is comity or international comity?
6750	Ford Motor Credit Co. v. Updegraff, 218 S.W.3d 617, 621 (Mo. App. 2007)	10	In determining whether a petition states a cause of action upon which relief can be granted, conclusions not supported by the facts pled are disregarded. V.A.M.R. 55.05.	In determining whether a petition states a cause of action upon which relief can be granted, we are to disregard conclusions not supported by the facts pled.	Are conclusions not supported by the facts disregarded in determining whether a petition states a cause of action?
6751	Rodriguez-Farr Ins. Agency v. Sharp, 431 So. 2d 889, 892 (La. Ct. App. 1983)	4	There is no abuse of discretion in denying a continuance, requested on grounds of conflict in counsel's schedule, where counsel knew or should have known of the conflict for a substantial period of time, and fails to act to obtain a continuance until the last minute.	There is no abuse of discretion in denying a continuance, requested on grounds of a conflict in counsel's schedule, where counsel knew or should have known of the conflict for a substantial period of time, and fails to act to obtain a continuance until the last minute.	"Is there no right to continuance because of conflict in counsel's schedule, though a scheduling conflict is discretionary ground for continuance?"
6756	GeoChem Tech Corp. v. Verseckes, 929 S.W.2d 85, 90 (Tex. App.--Eastland 1996)	8	In ruling on discretionary matter such as motion for continuance, trial court is entitled to take the entire procedural history of the case into account.	Appellate review of a trial court's ruling upon a motion for continuance is limited to a determination of whether the trial court abused its discretion. If the trial court acts without reference to any guiding rules or principles, it acts arbitrarily and unreasonably, and it has abused its discretion. Downer v. Aquamarine Operators, Inc., 701 S.W.2d 238, 241–242 (Tex.1985), cert. den'd, 476 U.S. 1159, 106 S.Ct. 2279, 90 L.Ed.2d 721 (1986); Craddock v. Sunshine Bus Lines, 134 Tex. 388, 133 S.W.2d 124, 126 (1939); Waste Water, Inc. v. Alpha Finishing & Developing Corporation, 874 S.W.2d 940 (Tex.App.–Houston [14th Dist.] 1994, no writ). In ruling upon matters of this nature, the trial court is entitled to take the entire procedural history of the case into account.	"While ruling upon a motion as a matter of discretion, will the trial court take the entire procedural history of the case into account?"

6757	Milton v. Montgomery Ward & Co., Inc., 108 Cal. Rptr. 726, 728 (Cal. App. 2d Dist. 1973)	1	After a matter is deemed admitted upon failure to answer request for admissions, scope and effect of the admission must be determined by trial court. West's Ann.Code Civ.Proc. S 2033(a).	Code of Civil Procedure section 2033(a) provides that upon a failure to answer requests for admissions, '(e)ach of the matters of which an admission is requested shall be deemed admitted. . . .' However, after a matter is deemed admitted, the scope and effect of the admission must be determined by the trial court.	Should the scope and effect of the admission be determined by the trial court after a matter is deemed admitted?
6759	Smith v. Emery, 109 Nev. 737, 742-43 (1993)	6	Failure to respond to a request for admissions will result in those matters being deemed conclusively established, even if the established matters are ultimately untrue. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36.	1390 [6] It is well settled that failure to respond to a request for admissions will result in those matters being deemed conclusively established. Woods, 107 Nev. at 425, 812 P.2d at 1297; Dzack, 80 Nev. at 347, 393 P.2d at 611. This is so even if the established matters are ultimately untrue.	"Will failure to respond to a request for admissions result in those matters being deemed conclusively established, even if the established matters are ultimately untrue?"
6761	Shaw v. Nat'l Cty. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 723 S.W.2d 236, 238 (Tex. App. 1986)	2	Admission once admitted, deemed or otherwise, is judicial admission and party may not then introduce controverting testimony in any legal proceeding related to action.	An admission once admitted, deemed or otherwise, is a judicial admission, and a party may not then introduce controverting testimony in any legal proceeding related to the action.	Can a party introduce controverting testimony in any legal proceeding related to action in a judicial admission?
6763	Heath v. Masotti, 55 N.Y.S.2d 416, 417 (1945)	1	The right to examine adverse party before trial is practically unrestricted so long as inquiry is directed to relevant issues.	It has been repeatedly held, particularly in the Third Department, that the right to examine an adverse party before trial is practically unrestricted, so long as the inquiry is directed to relevant issues.	Is the right to examine an adverse party before trial practically unrestricted so long as the inquiry is directed to relevant issues?
6766	Smith v. Sec'y of Army, 384 F.3d 1288, 1294 (Fed. Cir. 2004)	6	In a challenge to a decision not to promote a military service member, the Military Pay Act ordinarily does not give rise to a right to the pay of the higher rank for which the plaintiff was not selected. 37 U.S.C.A. S 204.	Accordingly, "in a challenge to a decision not to promote, the Military Pay Act ordinarily does not give rise to a right to the pay of the higher rank for which the plaintiff was not selected."	Does the Military Pay Act give rise to a right to the pay of the higher rank for which the plaintiff was not selected?
6767	E. E. Rivet & Sons v. Durand, 53 R.I. 48, 163 A. 476, 476-77 (1932)	3	When marginal notation, which does not purport to be collateral agreement, but only restatement of amount or date of note, conflicts with terms in main body thereof, notation will be disregarded as not part of note.	When a marginal notation, which does not purport to be a collateral agreement but only a restatement of the amount or date of the note, is in conflict with the terms in the main body thereof, it will be disregarded as *477 being not a part of the note.	Will marginal notation(s) be regarded as part of a note if it conflicts with the terms of its main body?
6768	State v. Lopez, 522 So. 2d 997, 998 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1988)	2	Bribery statute prohibits any payment intended to influence performance of any act by public servant, even if person pays for doing of act the public servant is legally bound to do. West's F.S.A. S 838.015(1).	We agree with the state that the bribery statute prohibits any payment intended to influence the performance of any act by a public servant. The statute is violated even when a person pays for the doing of an act that the public servant is legally bound to do.	Does the bribery statute prohibit payments that are intended to influence an act that someone was legally bound to do?

6770	People v. Koberstein, 478 N.Y.S.2d 397, 399 (N.Y. App. Div. 4th Dept. 1984)	3	Although burglary in the second degree is a lesser-included offense of burglary in the first degree, there was no reasonable view of evidence to support finding that defendant committed the lesser offense but did not commit the greater offense, and thus trial court did not err in refusing to charge burglary in the second degree as a lesser-included offense of a second count of burglary in the first degree. McKinney's CPL SS 1.20, subd. 37, 300.50, subd. 1.	Defendant also contends that the court erred in refusing to charge burglary in the second degree as a lesser included offense of the second count of burglary in the first degree. Burglary in the second degree is a lesser included offense of burglary in the first degree (CPL, § 1.20, subd. 37), but there was no reasonable view of the evidence to support a finding that defendant committed the lesser offense but did not commit the greater offense (CPL 300.50, subd. [1]; People v. Scarborough, 49 N.Y.2d 364, 426 N.Y.S.2d 224, 402 N.E.2d 1127; cf. People v. Martin, 59 N.Y.2d 704, 463 N.Y.S.2d 419, 450 N.E.2d 225).	Is second degree burglary a lesser included offense of first degree burglary?
6771	State v. Solano, 181 Neb. 716, 716–17 (1967)	2	Mere possession of stolen property standing alone is insufficient to justify burglary conviction, but such possession is circumstance which, taken in connection with other incriminating evidence, may be considered in determining question of guilt.	While the mere possession of stolen property standing alone is insufficient to justify a conviction of burglary, such possession 586 of property is a circumstance which, taken in connection with other incriminating evidence in the case, may *717 be considered by the jury in determining the question of the guilt or innocence of a defendant so charged.	Is mere possession of stolen goods sufficient for a burglary charge?
6772	Marshall v. Vise, 767 S.W.2d 699, 700 (Tex. 1989)	1	Unanswered requests for admissions are automatically deemed admitted, unless court on motion permits their withdrawal or amendment. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 169.	Unanswered requests for admissions are automatically deemed admitted, unless the court on motion permits their withdrawal or amendment.	"Are unanswered requests for admissions automatically deemed admitted, unless a court on motion permits their withdrawal or amendment?"
6773	Arcata Graphics Co. v. Heidelberg Harris, 874 S.W.2d 15, 22 (Tenn. Ct. App. 1993)	5	When trial court grants motion to amend, opposing party must request continuance if it believes it has been prejudiced; if continuance is not requested, party against whom amendment was granted may not complain on appeal. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 15.01.	When the trial court grants a motion to amend, the opposing party must request a continuance if it believes it has been prejudiced. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Fox, 1990 WL 8058 at *12 (Tenn.App. 6 Feb. 1990). If a continuance is not requested, the party against whom the amendment was granted may not complain on appeal.	"When a trial court grants a motion to amend, must the opposing party request continuance if it believes it has been prejudiced?"
6774	Ex parte Troncalli Chrysler Plymouth Dodge, 876 So. 2d 459, 467–68 (Ala. 2003)	9	A court has the power to require a defendant to respond to discovery requests relevant to his or her motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction.	It is well established that a ... court has the power to require a defendant to respond to discovery requests relevant to his or her motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction.' "	Does a court have the power to require a defendant to respond to discovery requests relevant to his or her motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction?

6775	Anderson Columbia v. Brown, 902 So. 2d 838, 841 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2005)	6	Discovery of opposing party's legal costs is matter best left to sound discretion of trial court.	We agree with our sister courts in holding that the discovery of an opposing party's legal costs is a matter best left to the sound discretion of the trial court.	Is discovery of opposing party's legal costs a matter best left to the sound discretion of a trial court?
6776	Slattery v. Parsons, 17 N.Y.S.2d 6, 11-12 (Sup. Ct. 1940)	9	Fact that a party seeking to take depositions before trial already has knowledge of the facts sought by the examination is not sufficient reason for refusing the examination. Civil Practice Act, S 288.	The courts, however, have repeatedly held that the fact that the party seeking to take the depositions already has knowledge *12 of the facts sought by the examination, is no reason for refusing the examination.	Is the fact that a party seeking to take depositions before trial already has knowledge of the facts sought by the examination not a sufficient reason for refusing the examination?
6778	Menotti v. City of Seattle, 409 F.3d 1113, 1138 (9th Cir. 2005)	10	First Amendment does not guarantee right to communicate one's views at all times and places or in any manner that may be desired. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.	"Of course, the First Amendment does not guarantee the right to communicate one's views at all times and places or in any manner that may be desired."	Does the First Amendment guarantee the right to communicate one's views at all times and places or in any manner that may be desired?
6779	Kamler v. Kamler, 213 S.W.3d 185, 188 (Mo. Ct. App. 2007)	7	Lack of a properly filed written continuance accompanied by an affidavit stating the reasons for the request is grounds to deny a continuance. V.A.M.R. 65.03.	Lack of a properly filed written continuance accompanied by an affidavit stating the reasons for the request are grounds to deny a continuance.	Is a lack of a properly filed written continuance accompanied by an affidavit stating the reasons for the request grounds to deny a continuance?
6780	Sleezer v. Lang, 170 Neb. 239, 239 (1960)	11	It is within discretion of court to permit defendant, during course of trial, to amend answer so as to present new defense; in such a case the plaintiff, if not prepared to meet new issue, may have continuance, upon such terms as court may deem just. R.R.S.1943, S 25-852.	It is within the discretion of the court to permit a defendant, during the course of the trial, to amend his answer so as to present a new defense. In such case, the plaintiff, if not prepared to meet the new issue, may have a continuance of the cause, upon such terms as the court may deem just.	"Is it within the discretion of a court to permit a defendant, during course of trial, to amend an answer so as to present a new defense?"
6781	Friedman v. Heart Inst. of Port St. Lucie, 863 So. 2d 189, 194 (Fla. 2003)	5	The disclosure of personal financial information during discovery may cause irreparable harm to a person forced to disclose it, in a case in which the information is not relevant.	The disclosure of personal financial information may cause irreparable harm to a person forced to disclose it, in a case in which the information is not relevant.	"Can the disclosure of personal financial information during discovery cause irreparable harm to a person forced to disclose it, in a case in which the information is not relevant?"
6783	Riordan v. Riordan, 252 S.W.2d 901, 902 (Ky. 1952)	2	A trial court has broad discretion in granting or overruling a motion for a continuance, and the appellate court will not interfere unless that discretion is clearly abused.	We have written many times that a trial court has broad discretion in granting or overruling a motion for a continuance, and that this court will not interfere in the exercise of that discretion unless it is clearly abused.	"Does a trial court have broad discretion in granting or overruling a motion for a continuance, and will not interfere in the exercise of that discretion unless it is clearly abused?"
6790	Empire Dist. Elec. Co. v. Johnston, 241 Mo. App. 759, 764, 268 S.W.2d 78, 80 (1954)	1	By proceeding to trial without any attack upon or complaint about a deposition, irregularities in connection with taking thereof are waived.	It is equally well settled that, by proceeding to trial without any attack upon or complaint about a deposition, irregularities in connection with the taking thereof are waived 3 .	"By proceeding to trial without any attack upon or complaint about a deposition, are irregularities in connection with taking thereof waived?"

6793	Tillotson v. Abbott, 472 P.2d 240, 244 (Kan. 1970)	1	Pretrial conference provided for by statute is designed to acquaint each party in advance of trial with factual contentions of opposite parties as to matters in dispute, thus reducing opportunity for maneuver and surprise during trial, and enabling all parties to better prepare testimony on issues to be tried. K.S.A. 60-216.	The pre-trial conference and the order entered thereon are an important part of the procedural process. They are provided to acquaint each party in advance of trial with the factual contentions of the opposite parties as to matters in dispute. The opportunity for maneuver and surprise during the trial is reduced. As a result of the pre-trial conference all parties are better able to prepare their testimony on the issues to be tried.	"What is a pretrial conference provided for by a statute, designed to do?"
6794	Whisman v. Fawcett, 470 N.E.2d 73, 77 (Ind. 1984)	4	Reasons for avoiding overly technical application of pretrial orders are amplified when pretrial order is not definitive, specific, complete, or detailed.	Furthermore, the reasons for avoiding overly technical application of pretrial orders are amplified when, as in this case, the pretrial order is not definitive, specific, complete, or detailed.	"Are reasons for avoiding overly technical application of pretrial orders amplified when a pretrial order is not definitive, specific, complete, or detailed?"
6795	In re Marriage of Borowczyk, 78 Ill. App. 3d 425, 430, 397 N.E.2d 71, 75 (1979)	6	Where facts requested to be admitted are properly admitted or denied with a qualified answer, costs and fees will not be assessed against party who refused to admit. Supreme Court Rules, rule 219(b), S.H.A. ch. 110A, S 219(b).	Where facts requested to be admitted are properly admitted or denied with a qualified answer, costs and fees will not be assessed against the party who refused to admit.	"Will costs and fees be assessed against party who refused to admit, if facts requested to be admitted are properly admitted or denied with a qualified answer?"
6796	Burns v. Hayes, 84 N.Y.S.2d 277, 281 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1948)	5	Where relationship of principal and agent or similar relationship exists between parties to an action the technical rules governing examination of a party before trial should be relaxed.	Where the relationship of principal and agent and similar relationships exist between the parties to an action, the technical rules governing the examination of a party before trial should be relaxed.	"Where the relationship of a principal and agent to an action, should the technical rules governing examination of a party before trial be relaxed?"
6797	Potts v. Howser, 267 N.C. 484, 494 (1966)	11	An examination for purpose of obtaining evidence to be used at trial is a matter of right after both examining party and person being examined have filed their pleadings. G.S. S 1-568.9(c).	An examination for the purpose of obtaining evidence to be used at the trial is a matter of right after both the examining party and the person being examined have filed their pleadings. G.S. s 1-568.9(c).	Is an examination for the purpose of obtaining evidence to be used at trial a matter of right after both examining a party and a person being examined have filed their pleadings?
6798	Todd v. Bear Valley Vill. Apartments, 980 P.2d 973, 979-80 (Colo. 1999)	12	While not required, better practice is for trial court to articulate the reasons underlying its conclusion that good cause for a continuance was either demonstrated or not. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 121.	While not required, we note that the better practice is for the trial court to articulate the reasons underlying its conclusion that good cause for a continuance was either demonstrated or not.	Is a court required to articulate the reasons underlying its conclusion that good cause for a continuance was demonstrated or not?

6800	Knight v. Waggoner, 359 S.C. 492, 495 (Ct. App. 2004)	1	Ordinarily, a plaintiff is entitled to a voluntary dismissal without prejudice as a matter of right, unless there is a showing of legal prejudice to the defendant; if no legal prejudice is shown, the trial judge has no discretion with respect to granting a dismissal without prejudice, but if prejudice to the other party is shown, the matter becomes one of discretion for the trial judge.	Ordinarily, a plaintiff is entitled to a voluntary dismissal without prejudice as a matter of right, unless there is a showing of legal prejudice to the defendant. See Moore v. Berkeley County, 290 S.C. 43, 44, 348 S.E.2d 174, 175 (1986); Gullledge v. Young, 242 S.C. 287, 291, 130 S.E.2d 695, 697 (1963). If no legal prejudice is shown, the trial judge has no discretion with respect to granting a dismissal without prejudice; but if prejudice to the other party is shown, the matter becomes one of discretion for the trial judge.	Is a plaintiff entitled to a voluntary dismissal without prejudice as a matter of right without a showing of legal prejudice to the defendant?
6801	Knightstown Banner v. Town of Knightstown, 882 N.E.2d 270, 274 (Ind. Ct. App. 2008)	3	Voluntary dismissals should generally be allowed unless the defendant will suffer legal prejudice, other than the mere prospect of a second lawsuit. Trial Procedure Rule 41(A)(2).	"Generally, dismissals should be allowed unless the defendant will suffer some legal prejudice other than the mere prospect of a second lawsuit."	Should dismissals be allowed unless the defendant will suffer some legal prejudice other than the mere prospect of a second lawsuit?
6803	Christian v. United States, 46 Fed. Cl. 793, 802 (2000)	5	Generally, under the waiver doctrine, issues and arguments not made before a military correction board or administrative agency are deemed waived and may not be raised in a judicial tribunal.	Generally, under the waiver doctrine, issues and arguments not made before the relevant military correction board or administrative agency are deemed waived and could not be raised in a judicial tribunal.	Are the issues and arguments not made before the relevant Military Correction Board deemed waived?
6804	Epstein v. Geren, 539 F. Supp. 2d 267, 275 (D.D.C. 2008)	8	When a military member seeks to overturn the final decision of a military correction board, the court has a very limited scope of review. 10 U.S.C.A. § 1552.	When a military member seeks to overturn the final decision of a military correction board, the court has a very limited scope of review.	Does the court have a very limited scope of review when a military member seeks to overturn the final decision of a Military Correction Board?
6805	Carroll v. Bergen, 2002 WY 166, ¶ 20 (Wyo., 2002)	21	A pretrial order controls the issues to be litigated, allowing the parties to rely on the pretrial order exhibit and witness lists to prepare their cases, and the trial court is vested with extensive authority to enforce its pretrial order.	The pretrial order controls the issues to be litigated, allowing the parties to rely on the pretrial order exhibit and witness lists to prepare their cases, and the trial court is vested with extensive authority to enforce its pretrial order.	Does a pretrial order control the issues to be litigated?
6806	Carlton v. Emhardt, 138 Ariz. 353, 355, 674 P.2d 907, 909 (Ct. App. 1983)	2	Pretrial statement controls subsequent course of litigation otherwise modified at trial to prevent manifest injustice. 17A A.R.S. Super.Ct.Uniform Prac.Rules, Rule 6(a).	The pretrial statement controls the subsequent course of the litigation otherwise modified at trial to prevent manifest injustice.	Does a pretrial statement control a subsequent course of litigation otherwise modified at trial to prevent manifest injustice?

6808	Calcor Space Facility, Inc. v. Super. Ct., 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 567, 572 (Cal. App. 4th Dist. 1997)	8	Burden rests upon party seeking discovery to provide specific factual evidence from which court may determine that matter sought is either itself admissible in evidence or appears reasonably calculated to lead to discovery of admissible evidence. West's Ann.Cal.C.C.P. SS 2017(a), 2031(l).	Section 2017, subdivision (a) provides matters are subject to discovery "if the matter either is itself admissible in evidence or appears reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence." The burden rests upon the party seeking the discovery to provide evidence from which the court may determine these conditions are met.	Is the burden to prove that information relevant or reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence on the party seeking the information?
6809	M.M. ex rel. Meyers v. GlaxoSmithKline LLC, 2016 IL App (1st) 151909, ¶ 56, 61 N.E.3d 1026, 1038-39, abrogated by Rios v. Bayer Corp., 2020 IL 125020, ¶ 56, 178 N.E.3d 1088	17	On a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, plaintiffs need not prove their case, but rather must only establish a prima facie case, where all well-pleaded facts are taken as true.	As discussed above, "[o]n a motion to dismiss, plaintiff [s] need not prove [their] case, but rather must only establish a prima facie case, where all well-pleaded facts are taken as true."	"On a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, need plaintiffs not prove their case?"
6810	Bittel v. Farm Credit Servs. of Cent. Kansas, 265 Kan. 651, 658-59 (1998)	6	Oral promise on the part of a lender to extend credit in the future may not be considered a modification of a debtor's promissory note and falls within the definition of "credit agreement" in Credit Agreement Act; as such, Act requires such an agreement to be in writing and signed by both the creditor and debtor. K.S.A. 16-117(a), 16-118(a).	Therefore, an oral promise on the part of a lender to extend credit in the future may not be considered a modification of a debtor's promissory note and falls within the clear definition of "credit agreement" in K.S.A. 16-117(a). As such, K.S.A. 16-118(a) plainly requires such an agreement to be in writing and signed by both the creditor and debtor.	Can an oral promise be considered as modification of promissory note?
6814	Overholser v. Glynn, 73 Cal. Rptr. 628, 633 (Cal. App. 2d Dist. 1968)	10	It is duty of trial court to determine each of issues in accordance with pretrial conference order, which controls conduct of litigation and where inconsistent, supersedes the pleadings. Cal.Rules of Court, rule 216.	It was the duty of the litigation and, where inconsistent, issues in accordance with the pretrial conference order, which controls the conduct of the litigation and, where inconsistent, supersedes the pleadings.	Is it the duty of a trial court to determine issues in accordance with pretrial conference order which controls conduct of the litigation?
6815	Feykert v. Hardy, 28 Cal. Rptr. 510, 514 (Cal. App. 1st Dist. 1963)	4	Until presented with request for its modification, trial judge has right to rely on posture of case defined by pretrial conference order.	Until presented with a request for its modification, the trial judge has a right to rely on the posture of the case defined by the pretrial conference order.	Does a trial judge and parties have a right to rely upon a posture of a case as defined by a pretrial order until a request for modification is made?
6818	Baldwin Union Free Sch. Dist. v. Cnty. of Nassau, 9 N.E.3d 351, 364 (N.Y. 2014)	13	Given the overarching constitutional principle that the power of taxation lies with the state, any ambiguity in the constitutional restrictions on local legislation should be construed in favor of limiting local supersession of state tax laws.	Moreover, given the overarching constitutional principle that the power of taxation lies with the State, any ambiguity in the constitutional restrictions on local legislation should be construed in favor of limiting local supersession of state tax laws.	How does ambiguity in the constitutional restrictions on local legislation be construed?

6821	N. Pole Corp. v. Vill. of E. Dundee, 263 Ill. App. 3d 327, 338 (1994)	14	"Tax" exacts contributions in return for general welfare, whereas "special assessment" is charge levied against specific property in return for particular benefit to that property. S.H.A. 65 ILCS 5/9-2-45.	It has long been settled in this State that a tax exacts contributions in return for the general welfare, whereas a special assessment is a charge levied against specific property in return for a particular benefit to that property.	"Is ""special assessment"" a charge levied against specific property in return for particular benefit to that property?"
6822	United States v. Keen, 676 F.3d 981, 990 (11th Cir. 2012)	6	Statute prohibiting theft or bribery concerning programs receiving Federal funds was enacted to protect the integrity of the vast sums of money distributed through Federal programs from theft, fraud, and undue influence by bribery. 18 U.S.C.A. S 666.	Entitled "Theft or bribery concerning programs receiving Federal funds," 18 U.S.C. 666 was enacted "to protect the integrity of the vast sums of money distributed through Federal programs from theft, fraud, and undue influence by bribery." S.Rep.	"According to Congress, what is the purpose of the statute governing theft and bribery in relation to federally funded programs?"
6824	United States v. Dubon-Otero, 76 F. Supp. 2d 161, 170 (D.P.R. 1999)	18	Federal witness-bribery statute does not prohibit government from pledging more lenient treatment or like measures to cooperating witnesses. 18 U.S.C.A. S 201(c)(2).	The First Circuit has unequivocally stated that the federal witness-bribery statute does not prohibit the government from pledging more lenient treatment or like measures to cooperating witnesses.	Does federal witness-bribery statute prohibit government from pledging more lenient treatment or like measures to cooperating witnesses?
6827	King v. Modern Music Co., 33 P.3d 947, 955 (Okla. Civ. App. 2001)	20	A "joint venture" is generally a relationship analogous to, but not identical with, a partnership, and is often defined as an association of two or more persons to carry out a single business enterprise with the objective of realizing a profit.	A joint venture is generally a relationship analogous to, but not identical with, a partnership, and is often defined as an association of two or more persons to carry out a single business enterprise with the objective of realizing a profit.	Is the relationship of joint venture analogous to that of partnership?
6831	State ex rel. Buck v. McCabe, 140 Ohio St. 535, 540, 45 N.E.2d 763, 766-67 (1942)	13	Trial court which granted continuance for indefinite term had continuing jurisdiction of the matter and could at any time revoke or modify the order for reasonable cause shown, or attach such limitations as might seem from time to time, within sound discretion, to be necessary and proper.	The trial court has continuing jurisdiction of this matter and may at any time revoke or modify the order for reasonable cause shown, or may attach such limitations as may seem, from time to time, to be necessary and proper.	Does a court which granted continuance for indefinite term have continuing jurisdiction of the matter?
6833	Patton v. Jones, 212 S.W.3d 541, 545 (Tex. App. 2006)	1	A motion to dismiss based on a lack of subject matter jurisdiction is functionally equivalent to a plea to the jurisdiction challenging the trial court's authority to determine the subject matter of a cause of action.	A motion to dismiss based on a lack of subject matter jurisdiction is functionally equivalent to a plea to the jurisdiction challenging the trial court's authority to determine the subject matter of a cause of action.	"Is a motion to dismiss for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction, a functional equivalent of a plea to the jurisdiction?"
6835	Abrons Family Practice & Urgent Care, PA v. N.C. Dep't of Health & Human Servs., 792 S.E.2d 528, 532 (N.C. Ct. App. 2016)	3	An action is properly dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction where the plaintiff has failed to exhaust administrative remedies. N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. S 150B-43; N.C. R. Civ. P. S 1A-1.	An action is properly dismissed under Rule 12(b) (1) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction where the plaintiff has failed to exhaust administrative remedies.	"Where a plaintiff has failed to exhaust administrative remedies, is an action properly dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction?"

6836	Havens v. Attorney-General, 91 N.H. 115, 120 (1940)	14	A "tax" in itself is an economic charge which must be paid in some way by the person affected, and it must either come from a surplus of the taxpayer, or the burden must be passed on to those with whom taxpayer has economic relations.	"Taxes in themselves are economic charges which must be paid in some way by the person affected. They must either come from the surplus of the taxpayer, or the burden must be passed on to those with whom the taxpayer has economic relations.	"Should a tax either come from a surplus of the taxpayer, or should the burden be passed on to those with whom taxpayer has economic relations?"
6837	Great Lakes Pipe Line Co. v. Comm'r of Taxation, 272 Minn. 403, 410–11 (1965)	8	State may tax any privilege extended by it and may adopt any reasonable rule for measurement of tax, provided it is not measured by property, or income from property, not within its jurisdiction and not used in connection with or correlated to any business authorized or conducted in the state.	Generally speaking, a state may tax any privilege extended by it and may adopt any reasonable rule for the measurement of such tax, Provided *411 it is not measured by property, or income from property, not within its jurisdiction and not used in connection with or correlated to any business authorized or conducted in the state.	Can a state tax any privilege extended by it?
6838	State v. Weil, 232 Ala. 578, 580 (1936)	1	Power to levy taxes is not delegated power, but is attribute of sovereignty inherent in state, and is plenary over persons, franchises, privileges, and property within its jurisdiction, except as restricted by limitations imposed by State and Federal Constitutions.	The power to levy taxes is not a delegated power, but is an attribute of sovereignty inherent in the state, and is plenary over persons, franchises, privileges, and property within its jurisdiction, except as restricted by the limitations imposed by the State Constitution and the Constitution of the United States.	Is a states power to tax plenary?
6839	Intl. Harvester Co. v. Wisconsin Dept. of Taxn., 322 U.S. 435, 441 (1944)	3	In determining whether a tax is within the state's constitutional power, the Federal Supreme Court looks to the incidence of the tax and its practical operation and not its characterization by state courts.	In determining whether a tax is within the state's constitutional power, we look to the incidence of the tax and its practical operation, and not its characterization by state courts.	Where does the Federal Supreme Court look to determine whether a tax is within the state's constitutional power?
6840	Coleman v. Nat'l Movie-Dine, 449 F. Supp. 945, 948 (E.D. Pa. 1978)	7	Arbitration should not be foreclosed simply by adding persons to civil action who are not parties to arbitration agreement, since such inclusion would thwart federal policy in favor of arbitration. 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	Arbitration should not be foreclosed simply by adding persons to a civil action who are not parties to the arbitration agreement because such an inclusion would thwart the federal policy in favor of arbitration.	Can arbitration be foreclosed simply by adding persons to a civil action who are not parties to the arbitration agreement?
6841	Interlake v. Kansas Power & Light Co., 231 Kan. 251, 251 (1982)	1	Oil and gas lien laws confer special privileges, are to be strictly construed against one claiming the privilege, and their scope is not to be extended beyond that clearly granted by the legislature. K.S.A. 55-207 to 55-210.	*251 385 Syllabus by the Court 1. Oil and gas lien laws (K.S.A. 55-207 to 55-210 inclusive) confer special privileges, are to be strictly construed against one claiming the privilege, and their scope is not to be extended beyond that clearly granted by the legislature.	Do oil and gas lien laws confer special privileges?

6843	Buxbom v. Smith, 145 P.2d 305, 308 (Cal. 1944)	5	The subject matter of an action and the issues involved are determinable from the facts alleged rather than from the title of the pleading or the character of damage recovery suggested in connection with the prayer for relief. Code Civ.Proc. SS 452, 475, 580.	The subject matter of an action and the issues involved are determinable from the facts alleged rather than from the title of the pleading or the character of damage recovery suggested in connection with the prayer for relief.	Can the subject-matter of an action and the issues involved be determined from the title of the pleading?
6844	Lozman v. Putnam, 328 Ill. App. 3d 761, 769, 767 N.E.2d 805, 812 (2002)	11	A complaint need only contain a plain and concise statement of plaintiff's cause of action; it is unnecessary for the complaint to set forth evidence that plaintiff intends to introduce at trial. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-603(c).	A complaint need only contain a plain and concise statement of plaintiff's cause of action; it is unnecessary for the complaint to set forth evidence that plaintiff intends to introduce at trial.	Is it necessary for a complaint to set forth the evidence that the plaintiff intends to introduce at trial?
6845	Holland v. First Nat. Bank in Dallas, 597 S.W.2d 406, 412 (Tex. Civ. App. 1980)	12	Motion for continuance raises question of diligence on part of moving party, as when delay is sought because of absence of witness.	A motion for continuance raises the question of diligence on the part of the moving party, as when the delay is sought because of the absence of a witness.	"Does a motion for continuance raise a question of diligence on part of a moving party, as when a delay is sought because of an absence of a witness?"
6848	Mercury Ins. Co. of Florida v. Jackson, 46 So. 3d 1129, 1130 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2010)	1	While a trial court's discretionary decision to change venue is reviewable under an abuse of discretion standard, the issue of whether venue is proper in a particular forum is not a matter of judicial discretion. West's F.S.A. S 47.011.	While a trial court's discretionary decision to change venue is reviewable under an abuse of discretion standard, the issue of whether venue is proper in a particular forum is not a matter of judicial discretion.	Is the question of proper venue in a particular forum a matter of judicial discretion?
6850	Krinit v. Idaho Dep't of Fish & Game, 398 P.3d 158, 162 (2017)	12	The ability to raise an affirmative defense by motion is not unfettered; parties must still comply with a court's scheduling orders, and failure to comply with such orders may result in the denial of the defendant's motion. Idaho R. Civ. P. 16(i), 37(b)(2)(B) (2015).	However, the ability to raise an affirmative defense by motion is not unfettered. Parties must still comply with the court's scheduling orders, and failure to comply with such orders may result in the denial of the defendant's motion. I.R.C.P. 16(i); I.R.C.P.	Is the ability to raise an affirmative defense by motion not unfettered?

6854	First Community Bank, N.A. v. First Tennessee Bank, N.A., 489 S.W.3d 369, 406 (Tenn. 2015)	59	In making determination of whether to permit limited discovery prior to ruling on a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, trial courts, as a threshold issue, first should determine whether plaintiff has set out sufficient facts to establish a colorable claim for personal jurisdiction, and if threshold of a colorable claim is met, trial courts then should consider the following non-exclusive factors to determine whether to grant jurisdictional discovery: (1) whether plaintiff has shown that there is a likelihood that discovery will yield facts that will influence personal jurisdiction determination; (2) whether plaintiff has laid out with particularity evidence sought by discovery; (3) whether evidence sought is type which would normally be in the exclusive control of defendant; (4) whether case is particularly complex; and (5) whether plaintiff's interest in discovery outweighs policy concerns of subjecting a nonresident defendant to burdensome discovery at such an early stage and seeking to avoid allowing plaintiff to conduct a fishing expedition. Tenn. R. Civ. P. 12.02(2); Tenn. Sup. Ct. Rule 28 S 2(H).	Based upon our consideration of these principles, we hold that determining whether to permit limited discovery prior to ruling on a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction is an extremely fact-based determination that is best left to the discretion of the trial court. In making such a determination, trial courts, as a threshold issue, first should determine whether the plaintiff has set out sufficient facts to establish a colorable claim for personal jurisdiction. If the threshold of a colorable claim is met, trial courts then should consider the following non-exclusive factors to determine whether to grant jurisdictional discovery: (1) whether the plaintiff has shown that there is a likelihood that discovery will yield facts that will influence the personal jurisdiction determination; (2) whether the plaintiff has laid out with particularity the evidence sought by discovery; (3) whether the evidence sought is the type which would normally be in the exclusive control of the defendant; (4) whether the case is particularly complex; and (5) whether the plaintiff's interest in discovery outweighs	"Upon a defendant's motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, does the plaintiff bear the burden of establishing that the trial court has personal jurisdiction over the defendant?"
6855	In re Enron Corp. Sec., Derivative & "ERISA" Litig., 511 F. Supp. 2d 742, 766 (S.D. Tex. 2005)	12	Under Connecticut practice, a party may only employ a motion to dismiss to question whether, on the face of the record, the court has jurisdiction over the suit; proper vehicle to challenge the legal sufficiency of a complaint under Connecticut law is a motion to strike. Conn.Practice Book 1998, S 10-39.	Unlike under Fed.R.Civ.P. 12(b)(6), under Connecticut practice a party may only employ a motion to dismiss to question whether, on the face of the record, the court has jurisdiction over the suit. Flanagan v. Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities, 54 Conn.App. 89, 93-94 & n. 5 733 A.2d 881, 885 & n. 5 (1999), cert. denied, 250 Conn. 925, 738 A.2d 656 (Conn.1999). The proper vehicle to challenge the legal sufficiency of a complaint under Connecticut law is a motion to strike.	Is motion to dismiss employed to test whether the court has jurisdiction over the suit on the face of the record?
6857	Krinit v. Idaho Dep't of Fish & Game, 398 P.3d 158, 164 (2017)	18	Upon motion or on its own initiative, a district court may impose sanctions for failure to obey a scheduling or pretrial order. Idaho R. Civ. P. 16(i) (2015).	"Upon motion or on its own initiative, the district court may impose sanctions for failure to obey a scheduling or pre-trial order."	"Upon motion or on its own initiative, can a district court impose sanctions for failure to obey a scheduling or pretrial order?"
6859	Whitten v. Whitten, 956 So. 2d 1093, 1097 (Miss. App. 2007)	6	A plaintiff must be diligent in serving process if he is to show good cause in failing to serve process within 120 days to avoid dismissal of action. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 4(h).	"A plaintiff must be diligent in serving process if he is to show good cause in failing to serve process within 120 days."	Must a plaintiff be diligent in serving process if he is to show good cause in failing to serve process within 120 days?

6860	Paragon Const. Co. v. Dep't of Pub. Works, 130 Conn. App. 211, 218 (2011)	4	In a lawsuit against the state, lack of a statutory waiver of sovereign immunity is a jurisdictional defect properly raised by a motion to dismiss.	"Lack of a statutory waiver of immunity is a jurisdictional defect properly raised by a motion to dismiss.	"In a lawsuit against the state, is lack of a statutory waiver of sovereign immunity a jurisdictional defect properly raised by a motion to dismiss?"
6861	Klemons v. Univ. of Conn. Health Ctr., 141 Conn. App. 106, 108 (2013)	1	Doctrine of sovereign immunity, which implicates the court's subject matter jurisdiction, is a ground for granting a motion to dismiss.	The doctrine of sovereign immunity, which implicates the court's subject matter jurisdiction, is a ground for granting a motion to dismiss.	"Is the doctrine of sovereign immunity, which implicates the court's subject matter jurisdiction, a ground for granting a motion to dismiss?"
6863	Grant v. Espiritu, 470 S.W.3d 198, 202 (Tex. App. 2015)	9	If the plaintiff lacks standing to bring any of his claims, the court must dismiss the whole action for want of jurisdiction.	Similarly, if the plaintiff lacks standing to bring any of his claims, the court must dismiss the whole action for want of jurisdiction.	"If the plaintiff lacks standing to bring any of his claims, must the court dismiss the whole action for want of jurisdiction?"
6864	Old Home Enter. v. Fleming, 20 Neb. App. 705, 705-07 (2013)	6	Service of process effected more than 6 months after the petition was filed at a time when the action stood dismissed does not negate the dismissal required by statute. West's Neb.Rev.St. S 25-217.	Service of process effected more than 6 months after the petition was filed at a time when the action stood dismissed does not negate the dismissal pursuant to Neb.Rev.Stat. 25-217 (Reissue 2008).	Is service of process effected more than 6 months after the petition filed at a time when the action stood dismissed does not negate the dismissal required by statute?
6865	Luxenberg v. Marshall, 835 S.W.2d 136, 141 (Tex. App. 1992)	9	Rules of Civil Procedure specifically authorize striking of pleadings as sanction for discovery abuse, and courts may impose similar sanctions for violations of pretrial orders. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 215, subd. 2, par. b(5).	The Texas Rules of Civil Procedure specifically authorize the striking of pleadings as a sanction for discovery abuse. TEX.R.CIV.P. 215, subd. 2(b) (5). Courts may impose similar sanctions for violations of pre-trial orders.	Can sanctions include those enumerated in the rules of civil procedure for discovery violations?
6868	Beck v. McNeill, 782 S.W.2d 650, 652 (Mo. Ct. App. 1989)	2	Test for determining whether state may tax interstate commerce is whether the tax: has a substantial nexus with the state; is fairly apportioned; does not discriminate against interstate commerce; and is fairly related to the services provided by the state. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 1, S 8, cl. 3.	The test for determining if a state may tax interstate commerce is whether the tax (1) has a substantial nexus with the state; (2) is fairly apportioned; (3) does not discriminate against interstate commerce; and (4) is fairly related to the services provided by the state.	What is the test for determining whether the state may tax interstate commerce?
6869	State v. Wood, 187 So. 2d 820, 823 (Miss. 1966)	3	State and federal government have constitutional right and power as separate sovereigns to tax that which sovereignty has declared to be illegal.	Intrinsically it is obvious that the states and the federal government have the constitutional right and power as separate sovereigns to tax that which the sovereignty has declared to be illegal.	Do the state and federal government have constitutional right and power as separate sovereigns to tax that which sovereignty has declared to be illegal?
6870	Trumbo v. Crestline-Lake Arrowhead Water Agency, 58 Cal. Rptr. 538, 541 (Cal. App. 4th Dist. 1967)	2	A levy on all property, both real and personal, without regard to special benefits is a "tax;" but a levy made only upon land on basis of benefits received is a "special assessment" and not a tax.	A levy on all property, both real and personal, without regard to special benefits, is a tax; but a levy made only upon land on the basis of benefits received is a special assessment and not a tax.	Is a levy on all property both real and personal without regard to special benefits a tax?

6871	Sabatino v. LaSalle Bank, N.A., 96 S.W.3d 113, 116 (Mo. Ct. App. 2003)	5	In order for "title to be affected," so as to predicate venue in the county where the land is located, title to the land must be the subject of the controversy; it is not enough for the judgment to affect the title incidentally or collaterally. V.A.M.S. S 508.030.	In order for "title to be affected" so as to predicate venue in the county where the land is located, title to the land must be the subject of the controversy. It is not enough for the judgment to affect the title incidentally or collaterally.	"For the title to be affected, so as to predicate venue in the county where the land is located, is it required that the land is the subject of the controversy?"
6872	Interstate Scaffolding v. Illinois Workers' Comp. Comm'n, 236 Ill. 2d 132, 145 (2010)	5	Worker's compensation is a statutory remedy and the Workers' Compensation Commission, as an administrative agency, is without general or common law powers. S.H.A. 820 ILCS 305/1 et seq.	It is important to remember that worker's compensation is a statutory remedy and the Workers' Compensation Commission, as an administrative agency, is without general or common law powers.	"Is workers compensation a statutory remedy and is the workers compensation commission an administrative agency, without general or common law powers?"
6873	Curtis v. G.E. Capital Modular Space, 155 S.W.3d 877, 884 (Tenn. 2005)	14	The workers' compensation system is purely a creature of statutory construct, with the rights and responsibilities of the parties being derived solely from the statutes themselves.	As previously noted, the workers' compensation system is purely a creature of statutory construct, with the rights and responsibilities of the parties being derived solely from the statutes themselves.	"Is the workers compensation system a creature of statutory construct, and where are the rights and responsibilities of the parties solely derived from?"
6876	United States v. Fisher, 442 F.2d 109, 114 (7th Cir. 1971)	4	Selective Service System has an affirmative duty not to mislead and to give clear and correct information and advice when requested to do so.	In its brief, the Government concedes that the Selective Service System has an affirmative duty not to mislead and to give clear and correct information and advice when requested to do so.	Does the Selective Service System have an affirmative duty not to mislead and to give clear and correct information and advice when requested to do so?
6877	United States v. Hosmer, 310 F. Supp. 1166, 1171 (D. Me. 1970)	6	Selective Service System is under no affirmative obligation to provide registrant with free advice and assistance either in preparing questionnaires and forms for submission to local draft board or with respect to other matters relating to his liabilities under selective service law; only affirmative duty on Selective Service official is not to mislead, and to give clear and correct information when requested to do so.	It is settled in this Circuit, as elsewhere, that the Selective Service System is under no affirmative obligation to provide a registrant with 'free advice and assistance either in preparing questionnaires and forms for submission to his local draft board or with respect to other matters relating to his liabilities under the selective service law.' Steele v. United States, 240 F.2d 142, 145 (1st Cir. 1956); Palmer v. United States, supra, 401 F.2d at 228; United States v. Ruel, supra. The only affirmative duty of a Selective Service official is not to mislead, and to give clear and correct information and advice when requested to do so.	Does the Selective Service System have an affirmative duty not to mislead and to give clear and correct information and advice when requested to do so?
6878	NCNB Texas Nat. Bank, N.A. v. West, 631 So. 2d 212, 224 (Ala. 1993)	7	Under "rule of capture," gas that migrates from one property to another is subject to recovery and possession by holder of gas estate on property to which gas migrates.	Under the rule of capture, gas that migrates from one property to another is subject to recovery and possession by the holder of the gas estate on the property to which the gas migrates.	"Under the rule of capture, is gas that migrates from one property to another subject to recovery and possession by the holder of the gas estate on the property to which the gas migrates?"

6879	Abrons Family Practice & Urgent Care, PA v. N.C. Dep't of Health & Human Servs., 792 S.E.2d 528, 532 (N.C. Ct. App. 2016)	3	An action is properly dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction where the plaintiff has failed to exhaust administrative remedies. N.C. Gen. Stat. Ann. S 150B-43; N.C. R. Civ. P. S 1A-1.	"An action is properly dismissed under Rule 12(b) (1) for lack of subject matter jurisdiction where the plaintiff has failed to exhaust administrative remedies."	Is an action properly dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction where the plaintiff has failed to exhaust administrative remedies?
6880	Sudersan v. Royal, 386 N.J. Super. 246, 251, 900 A.2d 320, 323 (App. Div. 2005)	4	A residential landlord has the burden of proving good cause for eviction, and the failure to meet this burden is sufficient ground to warrant dismissal of a summary dispossession action, for lack of jurisdiction. N.J.S.A. 2A:18-61.1.	A landlord has the burden of proving "good cause," Vill. Bridge Apt's v. Mammucari, 239 N.J. Super. 235, 240, 570 A.2d 1301 (App.Div.1990), and the failure to meet this burden "is sufficient ground to warrant dismissal for lack of jurisdiction."	Does a landlord has the burden of proving good cause and does the landlords failure to meet the burden warrant dismissal for lack of jurisdiction?
6884	Subaru of Am. v. David McDavid Nissan, 84 S.W.3d 212, 221 (Tex. 2002)	18	If an agency has exclusive jurisdiction and a party must exhaust all administrative remedies before seeking judicial review, the trial court lacks subject matter jurisdiction and must dismiss the claims without prejudice.	Typically, if an agency has exclusive jurisdiction, a party must exhaust all administrative remedies before seeking judicial review of the agency's action. Cash Am., 35 S.W.3d at 15. Until then, the trial court lacks subject matter jurisdiction and must dismiss the claims within the agency's exclusive jurisdiction.	Does a litigant's failure to exhaust all administrative remedies before seeking judicial review deprive the court of subject matter jurisdiction over claims within an agency's exclusive jurisdiction?
6887	Velocity Investments, LLC v. McCaffrey, 921 N.Y.S.2d 799, 803 (Dist. Ct. 2011)	5	Failure to mail summons and complaint to defendant within 20 days of affixing is jurisdictional defect mandating dismissal.	Failure to mail the summons and complaint to the defendant within 20 days of affixing is a jurisdictional defect mandating dismissal.	"Does the failure to mail summons and complaint to defendant within 20 days of affixing a jurisdictional defect, mandate dismissal?"
6888	Branscum v. Catherine, 2000-0354 (La. App. 4 Cir. 4/5/00), 759 So. 2d 234, 236 (2000)	2	Although a trial judge has great discretion in deciding whether to receive or refuse testimony objected to on the grounds of failure to abide by the pre-trial order, any doubt must be resolved in favor of receiving the information.	Although, a trial judge has great discretion in deciding whether to receive or refuse testimony objected to on the grounds of failure to abide by the pre-trial order, any doubt must be resolved in favor of receiving the information.	"Although pretrial orders assist the trial court in the orderly management of its cases, severe limitation of a party rights for the technical, is violation of a pretrial order not authorized?"
6889	Armstrong v. Elmore, 990 S.W.2d 62, 64 (Mo. Ct. App. 1999)	4	The existence of an actual and vital controversy susceptible of some relief is essential to appellate jurisdiction, and, when an event occurs that makes a court's decision unnecessary or makes granting effectual relief by the court impossible, the case is moot and generally should be dismissed.	"The existence of an actual and vital controversy susceptible of some relief is essential to appellate jurisdiction." State ex rel. Wilson v. Murray, 955 S.W.2d 811, 812-813 (Mo.App. W.D.1997). When an event occurs that makes a court's decision unnecessary or makes granting effectual relief by the court impossible, the case is moot and generally should be dismissed.	Will a case be moot and be dismissed when an event occurs that makes a court's decision unnecessary?
6892	Few v. Hammack Enterprises, 132 N.C. App. 291, 299, 511 S.E.2d 665, 671 (1999)	11	Striking a party's answer is a severe sanction which should be imposed only where the trial court has considered less severe sanctions and found them to be inappropriate.	We note that striking a party's answer is a severe sanction which should only be imposed where the trial court has considered less severe sanctions and found them to be inappropriate.	Is striking a party's answer a severe sanction which should be imposed only where the trial court has considered less severe sanctions and found them to be inappropriate?

6893	TeleVideo Sys. v. Heidenthal, 826 F.2d 915, 916 (9th Cir. 1987)	2	Courts have inherent equitable powers to dismiss actions or enter default judgments for failure to prosecute, contempt of court, or abuse of litigation practices.	Courts have inherent equitable powers to dismiss actions or enter default judgments for failure to prosecute, contempt of court, or abusive litigation practices.	Do courts have inherent equitable powers to dismiss actions for abusive litigation practices?
6895	Mickens v. W. Prob. Det. Ctr., 244 Ga. App. 268, 269–70 (2000)	2	The Workers' Compensation Act constitutes a complete code of laws upon the subject, and the recoverability of workers' compensation benefits is strictly a matter of statutory construction, because there is no common law right to such benefits. O.C.G.A. § 34-9-1 et seq.	The Workers' Compensation Act 1 constitutes a complete code of laws upon the subject, 2 and "[t]he recoverability of workers' compensation benefits is strictly a matter of statutory construction, because *270 there is no common law right to such benefits."	Why is the recovery of workers compensation benefits strictly a matter of statutory construction?
6896	Dunlap v. State Comp. Dir., 149 W. Va. 266, 270–71, 140 S.E.2d 448, 452 (1965)	4	Workmen's compensation claimant is entitled to receive benefits only in manner and to extent authorized by statute and director is without right or authority to pay or authorize payment of benefits except to extent that such right or authority is expressly conferred by statute. Code, 23-4-6.	It *271 is true, nevertheless, that a claimant is entitled to receive benefits only in the manner and to the extent authorized by statute; and the director is without right or authority to pay or authorize the payment of benefits except to the extent that such right or authority is expressly conferred by statute.	How does the workmens compensation statute control the benefits received by a claimant?
6897	Liskey v. Oppenheimer & Co., 717 F.2d 314, 317 (6th Cir. 1983)	1	"Doctrine of intertwining" is a judicially created exception to the application of the Arbitration Act which instructs that when arbitrable and nonarbitrable claims are sufficiently intertwined factually and legally, trial court should deny arbitration of arbitrable claims and try all the claims together in federal court. 9 U.S.C.A. § 1 et seq.	This doctrine is a judicially-created exception to the application of the Arbitration Act which instructs that when arbitrable and non-arbitrable claims are sufficiently intertwined factually and legally, a court should deny arbitration of the arbitrable claims and try all the claims together in federal court.	Is the doctrine of intertwining a judicially created exception to the application of the Arbitration Act?
6898	Am. Bankers Ins. Grp. v. Long, 453 F.3d 623, 627 (4th Cir. 2006)	4	In the arbitration context, a party may be equitably estopped from asserting that the lack of another's signature on a written contract precludes enforcement of the contract's arbitration clause when the party has consistently maintained that other provisions of the same contract should be enforced to benefit him.	"In the arbitration context, the doctrine recognizes that a party may be estopped from asserting that the lack of [another's] signature on a written contract precludes enforcement of the contract's arbitration clause when [the party] has consistently maintained that other provisions of the same contract should be enforced to benefit him."	Does the doctrine of equitable estoppel recognize if there is a lack of signature on a written contract by the party?
6899	Corbridge v. Corbridge, 230 Ind. 201, 208, 102 N.E.2d 764, 767 (1952)	10	When a minor child enlists in the military service, he ceases to be a part of the father's family and puts himself under the control of the government and is consequently emancipated so long as such service continues.	'When a minor enlists in the military service of this country, he ceases to be a part of his father's family, and puts himself under the control of the government, and is consequently emancipated so long as this service continues.	"When a minor child enlists in the military service, is he consequently emancipated so long as such service continues?"

6900	United States v. Harstad, 487 F.2d 565, 567 (9th Cir. 1973)	2	A registrant cannot, by refusing to submit to induction, impose upon local board any new duties respecting reclassification or reopening. Military Selective Service Act, S 12(a), 50 U.S.C.A. App. S 462(a).	Classification functions of the local board cease with induction, and a registrant cannot, by refusing to submit to induction, impose upon the board any new duties respecting reclassification.	Can a registrant who refuses to submit to induction impose upon a board any new duties respecting reclassification or reopening?
6903	Texaco v. Newton & Rosa Smith Charitable Tr., 471 So. 2d 877, 882 (La. Ct. App. 1985)	7	Conveyance of land carries with it all incidents of ownership, including mineral rights, except such rights as may be expressly reserved.	A conveyance of land carries with it all incidents of ownership, including mineral rights, except such rights as may be expressly reserved.	"Does a conveyance of land carry with it all incidents of ownership, including mineral rights, except such rights as may be expressly reserved?"
6904	Pullar v. Cappelli, 148 A.3d 551, 555 (R.I. 2016)	7	Defendant may move to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction so long as the defendant previously raised that defense in an answer. R.I. Super. Ct. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(2).	Kuzenka, 843 A.2d 474, 478 (R.I. 2004), a defendant may move to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction so long as the defendant previously raised that defense in an answer. See also Rule 12(b)(2); Collins v.	Must a defendant move to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction so long as the defendant previously raised that defense in an answer?
6906	Gray v. Bryant, 189 N.C. App. 527, 528 (2008)	3	In determining whether a complaint is frivolous, the standard is not the same as in a ruling on a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim; instead, a court looks with a far more forgiving eye in examining whether a claim rests on a meritless legal theory.	In determining whether a complaint is frivolous, the standard is not the same as in a ruling on a motion under Rule 12(b)(6). Instead, we look with a far more forgiving eye in examining whether a claim rests on a meritless legal theory.	What is the standard in determining whether a complaint is frivolous?
6907	Chisolm v. Crook, 272 Ala. 192, 194, 130 So. 2d 191, 193 (1961)	3	If case has become moot, or judgment would not accomplish an end recognized as sufficient in law, there is no necessity for judgment, and court will decline to consider merits and will dismiss case.	We have held that if a case has become moot, or the judgment would not accomplish an end recognized as sufficient in law, there is no necessity for the judgment, the court will decline to consider the merits, and dismiss the case.	Will court decline to consider merits and dismiss case when case has become moot?
6910	Metro Transp. Co. v. Pennsylvania Pub. Util. Comm'n, 128 Pa. Cmwlth. 223, 228 (1989)	3	Although case is apparently moot, dismissal is not an absolute, if the issue raised is of recurring nature, is of important public interest, or is capable of repeatedly avoiding review, case will not be dismissed.	Although a case is apparently moot, dismissal is not an absolute. If the issue raised is of a recurring nature, is of important public interest, or is capable of repeatedly avoiding review, the case will not be dismissed.	Is dismissal of a case absolute if the issue raised is of recurring nature?
6911	Carolina Marina & Yacht Club v. New Hanover Cty. Bd. of Comm'rs, 207 N.C. App. 250, 252 (N.C. App. 2010)	3	If the issues before a court or administrative body become moot at any time during the course of the proceedings, the usual response should be to dismiss the action.	"If the issues before a court or administrative body become moot at any time during the course of the proceedings, the usual response should be to dismiss the action."	Should an action be dismissed if the issues before a court or administrative body become moot at any time during the course of the proceedings?
6912	DiGiovanni v. All-Pro Golf, 332 So. 2d 91, 93 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1976)	3	Motion to dismiss as sham should be granted only upon convergence of two factors; absence of any genuine issues of material fact, and pleading good on surface but set up in bad faith. 31 West's F.S.A. Rules of Civil Procedure, rule 1.510(e).	First of all, a motion to dismiss as sham should be granted only upon the convergence of two factors: the absence of any genuine issues of material fact, and a pleading good on the surface but set up in bad faith.	On what factors should a motion to dismiss as sham be granted?

6913	Cole v. Dep't of Corr., 726 So. 2d 854, 855 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1999)	2	"Record activity," sufficient to defeat dismissal of case for lack of prosecution, is an act reflected in the court file that was designed to move the case forward toward a conclusion on the merits or to hasten the suit to judgment. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(e).	Record activity sufficient to avoid dismissal is more than "a mere passive effort" to keep the suit on the court docket. It is "any act reflected in the court file ... designed to move the case forward toward a conclusion on the merits or to hasten the suit to judgment.	Is record activity sufficient to defeat dismissal of a case?
6918	Cunha v. Anglo California Nat. Bank of San Francisco, 34 Cal. App. 2d 383, 390-91, 93 P.2d 572 (1939)	7	Court has inherent power, in absence of any statute to dismiss or perpetually stay groundless, vexatious, annoying, and harassing litigations.	There seems to be no doubt of the inherent power of the court, in the absence of any statute on the subject, to dismiss or *391 perpetually stay groundless, vexatious, and harassing litigations."	"Does court have power, in absence of any statute to dismiss or perpetually stay groundless, vexatious, annoying, and harassing litigations?"
6919	Hoag v. Amex Assurance Co., 953 A.2d 713, 716-17 (Del. 2008)	2	A court is vested with inherent authority to dismiss a plaintiff's action for failure to prosecute or comply with its rules or orders.	A court is also vested with inherent authority to dismiss a plaintiff's action for failure to prosecute or comply *717 with its rules or orders.	Is a court vested with inherent authority to dismiss a plaintiff's action for failure to prosecute or comply with its rules or orders?
6920	Chacha v. Transp. USA, 78 So. 3d 727, 730 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2012)	1	A trial court has the inherent authority to dismiss a plaintiff's entire case when there is clear and convincing evidence that the plaintiff has committed a fraud on the court which permeates the entire proceedings.	A trial court has the inherent authority to dismiss a plaintiff's entire case when there is clear and convincing evidence that the plaintiff has committed "a fraud on the court which permeates the entire proceedings."	Can a trial court dismiss a plaintiff's entire case when the party perpetrates a fraud on the court which permeates the entire proceedings?
6921	Isaacs v. Am. Iron & Steel Co., 690 N.W.2d 373, 376 (Minn. Ct. App. 2004)	3	Issue generally may be dismissed as moot if an event occurs that resolves the issue or renders it impossible to grant effective relief.	A matter may be dismissed as moot if an event occurs that resolves the issue or renders it impossible for the court to grant effectual relief.	Will an issue be dismissed as moot if an event occurs that resolves the issue or renders it impossible to grant effective relief?
6922	Comm'r Of Prob. v. Adams, 65 Mass. App. Ct. 725, 732, 843 N.E.2d 1101, 1107 (2006)	12	The perpetuation of a fraud on the court amounts to a defiling of the court itself when law enforcement officials rely on inaccurate information produced by the court.	The perpetuation of a fraud amounts to a defiling of the court itself when law enforcement officials rely on inaccurate information produced by the court.	Does the perpetuation of a fraud on the court amount to a defiling of the court itself when law enforcement officials rely on inaccurate information produced by the court?
6923	Apostolis v. City of Seattle, 101 Wash. App. 300, 304, 3 P.3d 198, 200 (2000)	6	Dismissal of action is justified when a party acts in willful and deliberate disregard of reasonable and necessary court orders, the other party is prejudiced as a result, and the efficient administration of justice is impaired. CR 41(b).	Dismissal is justified when a party acts in willful and deliberate disregard of reasonable and necessary court orders, the other party is prejudiced as a result, and the efficient administration of justice is impaired.	"Is disregarding a trial court's order without reasonable excuse or justification deemed ""willful,"" for purposes of dismissing action as sanction for willful disregard of court order?"
6924	Ramey v. Haverty Furniture Companies, 993 So. 2d 1014, 1018 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2008)	5	For the trial court to properly exercise its discretion regarding dismissal of a case for fraud on the court, it must have an evidentiary basis to make that decision.	For the trial court to properly exercise its discretion regarding dismissal of a case for fraud on the court, "it must have an evidentiary basis to make that decision."	"For the trial court to properly exercise its discretion to dismiss a claim for fraud on the court, should there be an evidentiary basis to dismiss the case?"

6925	Medina v. Fla. E. Coast Ry., L.L.C., 866 So. 2d 89, 90 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2004)	4	Due to the severity of dismissal as a sanction for a plaintiff's perpetration of a fraud on the court, it should only be employed in extreme circumstances, and only after the plaintiff has been given fair notice and an opportunity to be heard.	However, due to the severity of dismissal as a sanction, it should only be employed in extreme circumstances, Cox, 706 So.2d at 46, and only after the plaintiff has been given fair notice and an opportunity to be heard.	Should a sanction for a plaintiff's perpetration of a fraud on the court be employed only after the plaintiff has been given fair notice and an opportunity to be heard?
6927	Gelb v. Miranda, 456 So. 2d 548, 549 (Fla. App. 1984)	1	If sufficient record activity occurs during one-year period preceding motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute, then motion should be denied. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(e).	If sufficient record activity occurs during the one-year period preceding the motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute, then the motion should be denied.	"If sufficient record activity occurs during one-year period preceding motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute, should then the motion be denied?"
6928	Rainbow Ridge Resort, LLC v. Branch Banking & Tr. Co., 525 S.W.3d 252, 259–60 (Tenn. App. 2016)	9	For a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim to be used as a vehicle to assert an affirmative defense, the applicability of the defense must clearly and unequivocally appear on the face of the complaint; in other words, the plaintiff's own allegations in the complaint must show that an affirmative defense exists and that this defense legally defeats the claim for relief. Tenn. R. Civ. P. 12.02(6).	For a Tenn. R. Civ. P. 12.02(6) motion to be used as a vehicle to assert an affirmative defense, the applicability of the defense must "clearly and unequivocally appear[] on the face of the complaint." Givens v. Mullikin ex rel. Estate of McElwaney, 75 S.W.3d 383, 404 (Tenn. 2002) (quoting Anthony v. Tidwell, 560 S.W.2d 908, 909 (Tenn. 1977)). In other words, the plaintiff's own allegations in the complaint must show that an affirmative defense exists and that this defense legally defeats the claim for relief.	Can the plaintiff's own allegations in the complaint show that an affirmative defense exists which legally defeats the claim for relief?
6929	Leatherwood v. United Parcel Serv., 708 S.W.2d 396, 399 (Tenn. Ct. App. 1985)	1	Benefits conferred by Workers' Compensation Act are purely statutory, and the circumstances under which they are paid and the manner in which they are calculated depends solely on statutory authority. T.C.A. S 50-6-101 et seq.	The benefits conferred by our Workers' Compensation Act are purely statutory, and the circumstances under which they are paid and the manner in which they are calculated depend solely upon statutory authority. T.C.A. 50-6-101 et seq.	Does statutory authority solely determine the circumstances under which workers compensation benefits are paid and the manner in which they are calculated?
6930	Patton v. Estate of Upchurch, 242 S.W.3d 781, 791 (Tenn. Ct. App. 2007)	17	Trial courts have the authority to dismiss a complaint sua sponte if such complaint fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, although such practice is not encouraged. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12.02(6).	However, Tennessee trial courts have the authority to dismiss a complaint sua sponte if such complaint fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, although such practice is not encouraged.	Does a trial court have authority to sua sponte dismiss a complaint with prejudice for failure to comply with orders of the court?
6931	Stephen Slesinger v. Walt Disney Co., 155 Cal. App. 4th 736, 763 (2007)	7	A court's exercise of inherent power to dismiss for misconduct need not be preceded by violation of a court order; the essential requirement is to calibrate the sanction to the wrong.	Finally, contrary to SSI's contention, a court's exercise of inherent power to dismiss for misconduct need not be preceded by violation of a court order. The essential requirement is to calibrate the sanction to the wrong.	Should a court's exercise of inherent power to dismiss for misconduct not be preceded by violation of a court order?

6932	S. Wine & Spirits of Illinois v. Steiner, 2014 IL App (1st) 123435, ¶¶ 11-14	1	A motion to dismiss based on certain defects or defenses admits the legal sufficiency of the plaintiff's claim but asserts certain defects or defenses outside the pleadings which defeat the claim. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	14 A section 2-619 motion admits the legal sufficiency of the plaintiff's claim but asserts certain defects or defenses outside the pleadings which defeat the 527 *1069 claim.	"Can a motion to dismiss based on certain defects or defenses, admit the legal sufficiency of the plaintiff's claim?"
6933	Avon Hardware Co. v. Ace Hardware Corp., 2013 IL App (1st) 130750, ¶ 13, 998 N.E.2d 1281, 1287	1	An involuntary dismissal is proper where the plaintiff's claim against the defendant is barred by an affirmative matter which avoids the legal effect of or defeats the claim. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	A dismissal under section 2-619 of the Code is proper where the plaintiff's claim against the defendant is barred by an affirmative matter which avoids the legal effect of or defeats the claim.	"Will a dismissal, where the plaintiff's claim against the defendant is barred by an affirmative matter which avoids the legal effect of or defeats the claim, be proper?"
6935	United States v. Jannotti, 673 F.2d 578, 601 (3d Cir. 1982)	14	It is neither material nor a defense to bribery that had there been no bribe, public official might, on the available data, lawfully and properly have made the very recommendation that the briber wanted him to make.	As this court has previously held, it is neither material nor a defense to bribery that "had there been no bribe, the (public official) might, on the available data, lawfully and properly have made the very recommendation that (the briber) wanted him to make	"Is it a defense to bribery that, had there been no bribe, the public official might have lawfully performed the defendant's requested action anyway?"
6936	Brown v. Haight, 435 Pa. 12, 19, 255 A.2d 508, 512 (1969)	4	Coal and gas and oil leases are traditionally interpreted differently because of varied physical characteristics of minerals involved.	Coal and oil and gas leases are traditionally interpreted differently because of the varied physical characteristics of the minerals involved.	Are coal and oil and gas leases traditionally interpreted differently because of the varied physical characteristics of the minerals involved?
6938	Young v. Curgil, 358 So. 2d 58, 59 (Fla. 3d Dist. App. 1978)	1	Trial court has inherent authority to dismiss actions based on fraud and collusion as well as to strike sham pleadings; however, such power should be cautiously and sparingly exercised and only on the most blatant showing of fraud, pretense, collusion or other similar wrongdoing.	The law is clear that a trial court has the inherent authority to dismiss actions based on fraud and collusion as well as to strike sham pleadings. Such a power is indispensable to the proper administration of justice because no litigant has a right to trifle with the courts. It is a power, however, which should be cautiously and sparingly exercised and only upon the most blatant showing of fraud, pretense, collusion or other similar wrongdoing.	Does court have the authority to dismiss actions based on fraud and collusion and to strike sham pleadings?
6939	In re Est. of Zivin, 2015 IL App (1st) 150606, ¶ 13, 46 N.E.3d 902, 908	8	A motion for involuntary dismissal based upon certain defects or defenses admits the legal sufficiency of the plaintiff's claim but asserts affirmative defenses or other matters that avoid or defeat the claim. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	A section 2–619 motion to dismiss admits the legal sufficiency of the plaintiff's claim but asserts affirmative defenses or other matters that avoid or defeat the claim.	Will a motion to dismiss assert an affirmative defense or other matter that avoids or defeats the claim?
6943	Trzop v. Hudson, 2015 IL App (1st) 150419, ¶ 63, 43 N.E.3d 178, 187	2	A motion to dismiss based upon certain defects or defenses admits the legal sufficiency of the plaintiffs' complaint, but asserts an affirmative defense or other matter that avoids or defeats the plaintiffs' claim. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	63 "A motion to dismiss, pursuant to section 2-619 of the Code, admits the legal sufficiency of the plaintiffs' complaint, but asserts an affirmative defense or other matter that avoids or defeats the plaintiffs' claim.	Will a motion to dismiss based on certain defects or defenses admit the legal sufficiency of the complaint?

6944	Cartee v. Community Spirit Bank, 214 So. 3d 362, 366 (Ala. Civ. App. 2015)	5	The interest in disposing of the litigation on the merits is overcome and a dismissal may be granted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default, or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff; "willful default" or conduct is a conscious or intentional failure to act, and is used in contradistinction to accidental or involuntary noncompliance. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	In Alabama, and many federal courts, the interest in disposing of the litigation on the merits is overcome and a dismissal may be granted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff. Willful default or conduct is a conscious or intentional failure to act. "Willful" is used in contradistinction to accidental or involuntary noncompliance.	"Is ""willful default"" or conduct a conscious or intentional failure to act, and is it used in contradistinction to accidental or involuntary noncompliance?"
6945	Sutton v. Smith, 603 So. 2d 693, 697-98 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1992)	2	Defendant may challenge legal sufficiency of jurisdictional allegations of complaint or raise contention of lack of minimum contacts by filing motion to dismiss, but must support his position by affidavit; burden then shifts to plaintiff to show, by affidavit, basis upon which jurisdiction may be obtained; plaintiff may satisfy requirement by initially filing sworn complaint, provided allegations of complaint fairly meet contentions of defendant; if essential facts stated in the affidavits are not conflicting, trial court can resolve jurisdictional issue on basis of affidavits; however, if the essential facts are shown to be in direct conflict, trial court must hold an evidentiary hearing to resolve all disputed facts essential to determining jurisdictional issue.	The defendant may challenge the legal sufficiency of the allegations of the complaint or raise the contention of a lack of minimum contacts by filing a motion to dismiss, but must support his position by affidavit. The burden then shifts to the plaintiff to show, by affidavit, the basis upon which jurisdiction may be obtained. Plaintiff may satisfy this requirement by initially filing a sworn complaint as in this case, provided the allegations of the complaint fairly meet the contentions *698 of the defendant. If the essential facts stated in the affidavits are not conflicting, the trial court can resolve the legal issue on the basis of the affidavits. However, if the essential facts are shown to be in direct conflict, the trial court must hold an evidentiary hearing to resolve all disputed facts essential to determining the jurisdictional issue.	Can the defendant challenge the legal sufficiency of the complaint?
6946	Andrews v. Marriott Int'l, 61 N.E.3d 1105, 1113 (Ill. App. 1st Dist. 2016)	2	The purpose of a motion for involuntary dismissal based upon certain defects or defenses is to dispose of issues of law and easily proved issues of fact at the outset of litigation and is similar to a summary judgment motion because it essentially amounts to a summary judgment procedure. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	"The purpose of a section 2-619 motion to dismiss is to dispose of issues of law and easily proved issues of fact at the outset of litigation" (Van Meter v. Darien Park District, 207 Ill.2d 359, 367, 278 Ill.Dec. 555, 799 N.E.2d 273 (2003)) and is "similar to a summary judgment motion because [it] ' * * * essentially amounts to a summary judgment procedure.' " Peterson v.	What is the purpose of a motion to dismiss based on certain defects or defenses?

6947	Sel. Ins. Co. of S.C. v. Cherrytree Companies, Inc., 998 N.E.2d 701, 705 (Ill. App. 3d Dist. 2013)	1	A motion for involuntary dismissal based on certain defects or defenses admits the legal sufficiency of the complaint it attacks and asserts a defense that allegedly defeats the complaint's allegations. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	A motion to dismiss brought pursuant to section 2-619 of the Code of Civil Procedure (735 ILCS 5/2-619 (West 2012)) admits the legal sufficiency of the complaint it attacks and asserts a defense that allegedly defeats the complaint's allegations.	"Can the legal sufficiency of the complaint be admitted under the ""involuntary dismissal based upon certain defects or defenses"" statute?"
6948	Norflor Const. Corp. v. City of Gainesville, 512 So. 2d 266, 267 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1987)	1	Activity of record of any party is sufficient to prevent dismissal of action for failure to prosecute if activity is more than a mere passive effort and is an affirmative act directed toward disposition of case. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(e).	"Activity of record of any party is sufficient if it is more than 'a mere passive effort' and is an affirmative act directed toward disposition of the case."	Is the activity of record of any party sufficient to prevent dismissal of action for failure to prosecute?
6949	Dempsey v. Johnson, 2016 IL App (1st) 153377, ¶¶ 53-54, 69 N.E.3d 236, 254	42	A motion to dismiss based upon defects or defenses admits the legal sufficiency of the plaintiff's claim but asserts certain defects or defenses outside the pleadings which defeat the claim. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	A section 2-619 motion admits the legal sufficiency of the plaintiff's claim but asserts certain defects or defenses outside the pleadings which defeat the claim.	Will a motion to dismiss based upon defects or defenses admit the legal sufficiency of the plaintiff's claim?
6951	State v. Huggins, 103 Idaho 422, 425 (Ct. App. 1982)	3	Crime of assault with intent to commit rape is lesser included offense of rape and, in prosecuting such an assault, state must prove all elements of rape except penetration. I.C. S 18-907.	In Idaho, the crime of "assault with intent to commit rape" (I.C. s 18-907) is a lesser included offense of rape and, in prosecuting such an assault, the state must prove all elements of rape except penetration.	Is assault with intent to commit rape a lesser included offense of rape?
6954	Lee v. Muller, 200 Ga. App. 139, 140 (1991)	1	Transfer of negotiable instrument without indorsement is assignment, and although UCC does not prohibit transfer of commercial paper without indorsement, assignee takes subject to any defense which could be raised against makers.	A transfer without an indorsement is an assignment, and, although the UCC does not prohibit the transfer of commercial paper without an indorsement, the assignee takes subject to any defense which could be raised against the maker.	Can an assignee take an assignment subject to any defense that could be raised against the maker or payee?
6956	McEneny v. Gerlach, 142 S.W.2d 1095, 1098 (Mo. App. 1940)	3	In cases of the loss of the right to a public road, resulting from abandonment or vacation by the public, the result accrues from the acts and doings of those entitled to the highway, and not from the adversary or hostile possession of others. Mo.St.Ann. S 7839, p. 6738.	590, 591, "In cases of the loss of the right to a public road, resulting from abandonment or vacation by the public, the result accrues from the acts and doings of the parties entitled to the highway, and not from the adversary or hostile possession of others.	Does loss of right to a public road result from hostile possession?
6960	Rogers v. Quiktrip Corp., 230 P.3d 853, 856 (Okla. 2010)	2	Purpose of a motion to dismiss is to test the law that governs the claim in litigation rather than to examine the underlying facts of that claim.	7 The purpose of a motion to dismiss is to test the law that governs the claim in litigation rather than to examine the underlying facts of that claim.	Is the purpose of a motion to dismiss to test the law that governs the claim in litigation rather than to examine the underlying facts of that claim?
6961	Park Ctr. Condo. Council v. Epps, 723 A.2d 1195, 1198 (Del. Super. Ct. 1998)	6	Avoiding dismissal for want of prosecution requires more significant action than taking steps to delay or prevent trial. Superior Court Civil Rule 41.	Avoiding dismissal for "want of prosecution" requires more significant action than taking steps to delay or prevent trial.	Does avoiding dismissal for want of prosecution require more significant action than taking steps to delay or prevent trial?

6965	Christenbury Eye Ctr., P.A. v. Medflow, 802 S.E.2d 888, 891 (N.C. 2017)	2	When the complaint on its face reveals that no law supports the claim or discloses facts that necessarily defeat the claim, dismissal is proper. N.C. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6).	When the complaint on its face reveals that no law supports the claim ... or discloses facts that necessarily defeat the claim, dismissal is proper.	"When the complaint on its face reveals that no law supports the claim or discloses facts that necessarily defeat the claim, is dismissal proper?"
6967	Geigy Chem. Corp. v. Zuckerman, 106 R.I. 534, 541 (1970)	5	Workmen's compensation act was intended to impose upon employer burden of taking care of casualties occurring in his employment, thus preventing injured employee from becoming public charge, but compensation payments were never intended to provide general health and accident insurance or to afford full compensation for injuries suffered from one's employment. Gen.Laws 1956, S 28-33-1 et seq.	The Compensation Act was intended to impose upon the employer the burden of taking care of the casualties occurring in his employment, thus preventing the injured employee from becoming a public charge. Workmen's compensation payments were never intended to provide general health and accident insurance or to afford full compensation for injuries suffered from one's employment.	What did workmens compensation intend to do?
6968	Umbreit v. Quality Tool, 302 Minn. 376, 378-79, 225 N.W.2d 10, 12 (1975)	1	While Workmen's Compensation Act is remedial and humanitarian in purpose and is to be given liberal interpretation in favor of employees, rights and benefits granted rest solely upon and are limited by statutes creating them. M.S.A. S 176.011 et seq.	While it is true that the Workmen's Compensation Act is remedial and humanitarian in purpose and is to be given a liberal interpretation in favor of employees, it is also true that the *379 rights and benefits granted rest solely upon, and are limited by, the statutes creating them.	What is humanitarian about the Workmens Compensation Act?
6969	Cromwell v. Sac Cty., 96 U.S. 51, 60, 24 L. Ed. 681 (1877)	9	A purchaser of a negotiable security before maturity who is not personally chargeable with fraud may recover its full amount against its maker though he may have paid less than its par value, whatever may have been its original infirmity.	But, independently of the fact of such full payment, we are of opinion that a purchaser of a negotiable security before maturity, in cases where he is not personally chargeable with fraud, is entitled to recover its full amount against its maker, though he may have paid less than its par value, whatever may have been its original infirmity.	Can a purchaser of a bond or note recover the full amount due?
6970	Knoll v. Bd. of Regents of Univ. of Nebraska, 258 Neb. 1, 10 (1999)	18	State university owes a landowner-invitee duty to students to take reasonable steps to protect against foreseeable acts of hazing, including student abduction on the university's property, and the harm that naturally flows therefrom.	As such, we conclude the University owes a landowner-invitee duty to students to take reasonable steps to protect against foreseeable acts of hazing, including student abduction on the University's property, and the harm that naturally flows therefrom.	Does a University a has duty to protect students from hazing?
6971	Bilbrey v. Smithers, 937 S.W.2d 803, 808-09 (Tenn. 1996)	7	When one recognizes another's title or is instrumental in another's acquiring title he is estopped to afterwards deny that title, and privies of grantor or grantee are estopped to same extent as original parties to deed.	"Where one recognizes another's title or is instrumental in another's acquiring title he is estopped to afterwards deny that title." Spicer v. Kimes, 25 Tenn.App. 247, 156 S.W.2d 334, 337 (1941). "The privies of a grantor or grantee are estopped to the same extent as the original parties to the deed."	Are the privies of a grantor or grantee estopped to the same extent as the original parties to the deed?

6974	JPMorgan Chase Bank, 2014 IL App (1st) 121111, ¶ 31 (2014)	8	A motion to dismiss affirmative defenses based on the pleadings admits all well-pleaded facts constituting the defenses and attacks only the legal sufficiency of those facts. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-615.	As with all section 2-615 motions, a section 2-615 motion to dismiss affirmative defenses admits all well-pleaded facts constituting the defenses and attacks only the legal sufficiency of those facts.	Does a motion to dismiss pursuant to section 2615 have affirmative defenses based on the pleadings admit all well-pleaded facts constituting the defenses and attacks only the legal sufficiency of those facts?
6975	Lin v. Cnty. of Sullivan, 953 N.Y.S.2d 359, 360 (N.Y. App. Div. 3d Dept. 2012)	1	When ruling on a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action, the criterion is whether the proponent of the pleading has a cause of action, not whether he or she has stated one. McKinney's CPLR 3211(a)(7).	When ruling on a motion to dismiss pursuant to CPLR 3211(a)(7), it is well settled that "the criterion is whether the proponent of the pleading has a cause of action, not whether he [or she] has stated one" (Guggenheimer v. Ginzburg, 43 N.Y.2d 268, 275, 401 N.Y.S.2d 182, 372 N.E.2d 17 [1977]; see Leon v. Martinez, 84 N.Y.2d 83, 88, 614 N.Y.S.2d 972, 638 N.E.2d 511 [1994]).	"When ruling on a motion to dismiss for failure to state a cause of action, is the criterion whether the proponent of the pleading has a cause of action?"
6976	Arsenault v. Bhattacharya, 89 Mass. App. Ct. 804, 809, 55 N.E.3d 972, 977 (2016)	2	To survive a motion to dismiss, the facts alleged and the reasonable inferences drawn therefrom must plausibly suggest an entitlement to relief.	"To survive a motion to dismiss, the facts alleged and the reasonable inferences drawn therefrom must 'plausibly suggest ... an entitlement to relief.'	"To survive a motion to dismiss, the facts alleged must plausibly suggest, not merely be consistent with, an entitlement to relief?"
6977	Walker v. Gowen Stores LLC, 745 S.E.2d 287, 288–89 (Ga. App. 2013)	2	A complaint need not set forth a cause of action in order to withstand a motion to dismiss but need only set forth a claim for relief; in fact, a plaintiff may sue on one theory and recover on another so long as the complaint adequately states a claim for relief. West's Ga.Code Ann. S 9-11-12(b)(6).	"[A] complaint need not set forth a cause of action in order to withstand a motion to dismiss but need only to set forth a claim for relief." Koehler v. Massell, 229 Ga. 359, 361(1), 191 S.E.2d 830 (1972). In fact, a plaintiff may sue on one theory and recover on another so long as the complaint adequately states a claim for relief.	Should a complaint not set forth a cause of action in order to withstand a motion to dismiss but need only set forth a claim for relief?
6978	Moses v. Dirghangi, 430 S.W.3d 371, 376 (Tenn. Ct. App. 2013)	9	A motion to dismiss a complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted seeks only to determine whether the pleadings state a claim upon which relief can be granted, and challenges the legal sufficiency of the complaint, not the strength of the plaintiff's proof. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12.02(6).	In short, a Tennessee Rule of Civil Procedure 12.02(6) motion to dismiss seeks only to determine whether the pleadings state a claim upon which relief can be granted, and such a motion challenges the legal sufficiency of the complaint, not the strength of the plaintiff's proof.	Does a motion to dismiss a complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted test the legal sufficiency of the complaint?
6980	E. E. Rivet & Sons v. Durand, 53 R.I. 48, 163 A. 476, 476–77 (1932)	3	When marginal notation, which does not purport to be collateral agreement, but only restatement of amount or date of note, conflicts with terms in main body thereof, notation will be disregarded as not part of note.	When a marginal notation, which does not purport to be a collateral agreement but only a restatement of the amount or date of the note, is in conflict with the terms in the main body thereof, it will be disregarded as *477 being not a part of the note.	Will marginal notation be regarded as part of a note if it conflicts with the terms of its main body?

6982	Graham v. Frazier, 82 Ga. App. 185, 185 (1950)	8	Uniform Warehouse Receipt Act does not require that assignment of a negotiable warehouseman's receipt, in order to pass the title thereto, and to the property pledged, shall be written upon or attached to the receipt itself, but same may be by separate written transfer and assignment, and such a transfer and assignment passes title to property described in receipt to transferee.	The Uniform Warehouse Receipt Act does not require that an assignment of a negotiable warehouseman's receipt, in order to pass the title thereto and to the property pledged, shall be written upon or attached to the receipt itself, but same may be by a separate written transfer and assignment. Such a transfer and assignment is effective to pass the title to the property described in the receipt to the transferee.	Can the title to a note be transferred by a separate writing?
6984	Cartee v. Community Spirit Bank, 214 So. 3d 362, 366 (Ala. Civ. App. 2015)	5	The interest in disposing of the litigation on the merits is overcome and a dismissal may be granted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default, or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff; "willful default" or conduct is a conscious or intentional failure to act, and is used in contradistinction to accidental or involuntary noncompliance. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	In Alabama, and many federal courts, the interest in disposing of the litigation on the merits is overcome and a dismissal may be granted when there is a clear record of delay, willful default or contumacious conduct by the plaintiff. Willful default or conduct is a conscious or intentional failure to act. "Willful" is used in contradistinction to accidental or involuntary noncompliance.	"Can action be dismissed when there is a clear record of delay, wilful default or contumacious conduct of the plaintiff?"
6985	New Bar Partnership v. Martin, 729 S.E.2d 675, 680 (2012)	4	If a complaint discloses an unconditional affirmative defense which defeats the claim asserted or pleads facts which deny the right to any relief on the alleged claim, it will be dismissed. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(6).	A complaint may be properly dismissed for absence of law to support a claim, absence of facts sufficient to make a good claim, or the disclosure of some fact that necessarily defeats the claim. If the complaint discloses an unconditional affirmative defense which defeats the claim asserted or pleads facts which deny the right to any relief on the alleged claim[,] it will be dismissed.	Will a complaint be dismissed if it pleads facts which deny the right to any relief on the alleged claim?
6986	Wasson v. McClintock, 703 A.2d 726, 727 (Pa. Commw. Ct. 1997)	1	When party files petition for judgment of non pros, that party is seeking equitable relief which is based on equitable doctrine of laches.	When a party files a petition for a judgment of non pros, that party is seeking equitable relief which is based on the equitable doctrine of laches.	"Is a party seeking equitable relief which is based on equitable doctrine of laches, when party files petition for judgment of non pros?"

6987	A.F. Lusi Const., Inc. v. Rhode Island Conv. Ctr. Auth., 934 A.2d 791, 795 (R.I. 2007)	2	The sole function of a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim is to test the sufficiency of the complaint; to carry out this function, the court examines the complaint to determine if plaintiffs are entitled to relief under any conceivable set of facts. Superior Court Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(6).	"The 'sole function of a motion to dismiss' pursuant to Rule 12(b) (6) is 'to test the sufficiency of the complaint.' " McKenna, 874 A.2d at 225 (quoting Rhode Island Affiliate, ACLU, Inc. v. Bernasconi, 557 A.2d 1232, 1232 (R.I.1989)). To carry out this function, we "examine the complaint to determine if plaintiffs are entitled to relief under any conceivable set of facts."	"Is the sole function of a motion to dismiss, to test the sufficiency of the complaint?"
6988	Nauru Phosphate Royalties v. Drago Daic Interests, 138 F.3d 160, 167 (5th Cir. 1998)	11	Entity's attempt to enforce agreement that contains arbitration clause provides clear and unmistakable evidence that entity regards itself bound by arbitration clause.	An entity's attempt to enforce an agreement that contains an arbitration clause provides clear and unmistakable evidence that the entity regards itself bound by the arbitration clause.	Does an entity's attempt to enforce an agreement that contains an arbitration clause provide evidence that the entity regards itself bound by the arbitration clause?
6989	Kwalick v. Bosacco, 329 Pa.Super. 235, 238 (Pa.Super. 1984)	2	Mere filing of a complaint or an answer without resulting prejudice to the objecting party will not justify a finding of waiver of the right to arbitration.	Moreover, the mere filing of a complaint or an answer without resulting prejudice to the objecting party will not justify a finding of waiver of the right to arbitration.	Does the filing of a complaint or answer without prejudice to the objecting party justify a finding of waiver?
6992	Barrett v. JP Morgan Chase Bank, N.A., 445 F.3d 874, 875--76 (6th Cir. 2006)	4	When the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) permits borrowers to rescind the transaction, it permits them not only to remove the security interest on their home but also to recover certain fees incurred in the transaction. Truth in Lending Act, S 125(a, b), 15 U.S.C.A. S 1635(a, b).	And when the Act permits borrowers to rescind "the transaction," 15 U.S.C. 1635(a), it permits them not only to remove the security interest on their home but also to recover certain fees incurred in the transaction, id. 1635(b).	Can the borrower remove a security interest and recover certain fees or charges when rescinding a transaction?
6993	Perlmutter v. Four Star Dev. Assocs., 38 A.D.3d 1139, 1141, 833 N.Y.S.2d 679, 681 (2007)	4	Six-year limitation period on life of unused public easement for highway does not apply where town has acquired fee to land in question. McKinney's Highway Law S 205(1).	Section 205(1) sets forth a six-year limitation on the life of an unused public easement; it does not apply where, as here, a town has acquired a fee to the land in question.	Does a limitation on the life of an unused public easement apply where a town has acquired a fee to the land in question?
6995	U.S. v. Peralta-Sanchez, 847 F.3d 1124, 1131-32 (9th Cir. 2017)	5	Aliens who attempt to enter at an official port-of-entry and are detained by immigration officials have not "entered" the United States, and thus the Due Process Clause does not apply to those aliens, even if they may be physically present in United States territory, because they have not crossed the border free from official restraint; this is sometimes referred to as the "entry fiction." U.S. Const. Amend. 5.	In contrast, aliens who attempt to enter at an official port-of-entry and are detained by immigration officials have not "entered" the United States, even if they may be physically present in U.S. territory, because they have not crossed the border "free from official restraint." This is sometimes referred to as the "entry fiction.	Can a detained alien be deemed to have entered the United States?

6996	U.S. v. Peralta-Sanchez, 847 F.3d 1124, 1131–32 (9th Cir.)	5	Aliens who attempt to enter at an official port-of-entry and are detained by immigration officials have not "entered" the United States, and thus the Due Process Clause does not apply to those aliens, even if they may be physically present in United States territory, because they have not crossed the border free from official restraint; this is sometimes referred to as the "entry fiction." U.S. Const. Amend. 5.	In contrast, aliens who attempt to enter at an official port-of-entry and are detained by immigration officials have not "entered" the United States, even if they may be physically present in U.S. territory, because they have not crossed the border "free from official restraint." This is sometimes referred to as the "entry fiction."	Can an alien be present in the United States yet be deemed not to have entered?
6997	Deutsche Bank Nat. Tr. Co. v. Monica, 131 A.D.3d 737, 739, 15 N.Y.S.3d 863, 866 (2015)	7	Where a plaintiff possesses a note that, on its face or by allonge, contains an indorsement in blank or bears special indorsement payable to the order of the plaintiff, such party is a holder of the note and entitled to enforce the instrument.	"[W]here [a] plaintiff possesses a note that, on its face or by allonge, contains an indorsement in blank or bears special indorsement payable to the order of the plaintiff," such party is a holder of the note and entitled to enforce the instrument	Is a holder of the note that contains an indorsement in blank entitled to enforce it?
6999	Rendler v. Corus Bank, 272 F.3d 992, 996 (7th Cir. 2001)	2	Truth in Lending Act (TILA) is a disclosure statute; it does not substantively regulate consumer credit but, rather, requires disclosure of certain terms and conditions of credit before consummation of a consumer credit transaction. Truth in Lending Act, S 102 et seq., 15 U.S.C.A. S 1601 et seq.	Unlike Hauk's state law claims, TILA is only a "disclosure statute" and "does not substantively regulate consumer credit but rather 'requires disclosure of certain terms and conditions of credit before consummation of a consumer credit transaction.' "	Does TILA require the disclosure of certain terms and conditions of credit before consummation of a consumer credit transaction?
7001	Vogel v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 214 Wis. 2d 443, 447, 571 N.W.2d 704, 706 (Ct. App. 1997)	3	On motion to dismiss, facts pled are taken as true and inferences from pleadings are construed in favor of party against whom motion is brought.	On a motion to dismiss, the facts pled are taken as true and inferences from the pleadings are construed in favor of the party against whom the motion is brought.	"On motion to dismiss, are facts pled taken as true and inferences from pleadings are construed in favor of a party against whom motion is brought?"
7002	Munjoy Sporting & Athletic Club v. Dow, 755 A.2d 531, 539 (Me. 2000)	19	Immunities and other affirmative defenses may be raised by a motion to dismiss, if facts giving rise to the defense appear on face of complaint.	Contrary to Munjoy's contentions, immunities and other affirmative defenses "may be raised by a motion to dismiss if facts giving rise to the defense appear on the face of the complaint."	Will immunities be raised by a motion to dismiss if facts giving rise to the defense appear on face of complaint?
7003	Shulver v. Slocum, 566 So. 2d 1089, 1091 (La. Ct. App. 1990)	4	Law favors and justice requires that action be maintained whenever possible so that aggrieved party has had his day in court to which he is entitled.	The law favors and justice requires that an action be maintained whenever possible so that the aggrieved party has had his day in court to which he is entitled.	Does justice require that action be maintained whenever possible so that aggrieved party has had his day in court to which he is entitled?
7004	Barthelmues v. Ives, 194 Misc. 13, 14, 85 N.Y.S.2d 35, 36 (City Ct. 1948)	2	The omission of a venue or the statement of an improper venue in an affidavit does not invalidate the oath or render the affidavit a nullity when it is shown by proof aliunde that it was duly administered by a proper officer within the jurisdiction.	It has been long since held that the omission of a venue or the statement of an improper venue in an affidavit does not invalidate the oath or render the affidavit a nullity when it is shown by proof aliunde that it was duly administered by a proper officer within the jurisdiction	Does omission of a venue or the statement of an improper venue in an affidavit render it null?

7005	DeRouin v. Hinphy, 209 So. 2d 352, 354 (La. Ct. App. 1968)	2	A "non-negotiable note" is an unconditional promise in writing made by one person to another signed by the maker engaging to pay on demand, or at a fixed determinable future time, a sum certain in money. LSA-R.S. 7:126.	7:184 all of the elements indicating negotiability we may define a non-negotiable promissory note as being: '* * * an unconditional promise in writing made by one person to another signed by the maker engaging to pay on demand, or at a fixed determinable future time, a sum certain in money * * *'	What is a non-negotiable note?
7007	Cleveland, C., C. & I. Ry. Co. v. Wynant, 114 Ind. 525, 17 N.E. 118, 120–21 (1888)	9	The mere fact that an object is in a highway in violation of the statute does not necessarily make the owner liable for damages resulting from fright which the object may have occasioned to horses, but there must have been some natural causative connection between the violation of the statute and the frightening of the horses.	The mere fact that an object is in the highway, in violation of a statute, does not necessarily make the owner liable for damages resulting from fright which the object may have occasioned to horses. *121 There must have been some natural, causative connection between the violation of the statute and the frightening of the horses.	"Will an object in the highway, in violation of statute make the owner liable for the damages?"
7009	Etiwan Fertilizer Co. v. Johns, 202 S.C. 29, 24 S.E.2d 74, 76 (1943)	2	A "sham answer", which may be stricken, is one good in form, but false in fact, and not pleaded in good faith, being a mere pretense, set up in bad faith and without color of fact. Code 1942, S 470.	A sham answer is one good in form, but false in fact, and not pleaded in good faith; being a mere pretense, set up in bad faith and without color of fact. Bliss, Code	"Is a sham answer one good in form, but false in fact, and not pleaded in good faith?"
7011	Gordon v. Purdue Univ., 862 N.E.2d 1244, 1250 (Ind. App. 2007)	5	When reviewing grant of motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, appellate courts do not defer to the trial court's decision because deciding a motion to dismiss based upon failure to state a claim involves a pure question of law. Trial Procedure Rule 12(B)(6).	The standard of review of a trial court's grant or denial of a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim under Ind. Trial Rule 12(B)(6) is de novo. Sims v. Beamer, 757 N.E.2d 1021, 1024 (Ind.Ct.App.2001). We do not defer to the trial court's decision because deciding a motion to dismiss based upon failure to state a claim involves a pure question of law.	Does resolving a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim involve only a question of law?
7014	Kaplan v. New York City Dep't of Health & Mental Hygiene, 142 A.D.3d 1050, 1051, 38 N.Y.S.3d 563, 565–66 (2016)	4	Whether a pleading will later survive a motion for summary judgment, or whether the party will ultimately prevail on the claims, is not relevant on a pre-discovery motion to dismiss. McKinney's CPLR 3211(a)(7).	"Therefore, whether the pleading will later survive a motion for summary judgment, or whether the party will ultimately prevail on the claims, is not relevant on a pre- 566 discovery motion to dismiss"	Whether a pleading will later survive a motion for summary judgment not relevant on a pre-discovery motion to dismiss?
7017	Conlen Grain & Mercantile v. Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Bd., 519 S.W.2d 620, 623 (Tex. 1975)	3	"Tax" is burden or charge imposed by legislative power of state upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes. Vernon's Ann.Civ.St. art. 55c.	A tax is a burden or charge imposed by the legislative power of the state upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes.	Is a tax a burden imposed upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes?

7018	United States v. 716 Cases, More or Less, etc., Del Comida Brand Tomatoes, 79 F.2d 174, 176 (10th Cir. 1950)	2	Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act was not intended to be confined to misbranding, and the addition of adulterated substances deleterious to health of consumers, but provides for protection to consumer from economic adulteration by which less expensive ingredients are substituted or the proportion of more expensive ingredients are diminished so as to make the commonly identified article inferior to that which the consumer would expect to receive when purchasing it, although not in itself deleterious. Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, S 402(b)(2), 21 U.S.C.A. S 342(b)(2).	The Act was not intended to be confined to misbranding and the addition of adulterated substances deleterious to the health of consumers. It provides protection to the consumer from 'economic adulteration' by which less expensive ingredients are substituted, or the proportion of more expensive ingredients are diminished so as to make the commonly identified article inferior to that which the consumer would expect to receive when purchasing it, although not in itself deleterious.	When is a product said to be economically adulterated?
7019	F.D.I.C. v. Wrapwell Corp., 922 F. Supp. 913, 924 (S.D.N.Y. 1996)	16	Although summary judgment is generally appropriate in context of action on promissory note, it is not appropriate where dispute about crucial facts underlying defendant's sole remaining defense to suit exists.	Although summary judgment is generally appropriate in the context of an action on a promissory note, it is not appropriate where a dispute such as this exists.	Is summary judgment appropriate based on the evidence of the promissory note?
7020	Educ. Res. Inst., Inc. v. Soren, 85 A.D.3d 848, 849, 925 N.Y.S.2d 611, 612 (2011)	1	Under Ohio law, the right to enforce a note cannot be assigned but instead, the note must be negotiated in accord with Ohio's version of the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC), and an attempt to assign a note creates a claim to ownership, but does not transfer the right to enforce the note. Ohio R.C. S 1303.21(B).	"Under Ohio law, the right to enforce a note cannot be assigned but instead, the note must be negotiated in accord with Ohio's version of the Uniform Commercial Code. An attempt to assign a note creates a claim to ownership, but does not transfer the right to enforce the note"	Does the assignment of a note create a claim to ownership?
7022	Bilnoski v. Pizza Inn, 858 S.W.2d 55, 57 (Tex. App. 1993)	1	Trial court may dismiss case for want of prosecution when party fails to appear at hearing or at trial, when case has not been disposed of within Supreme Court's guidelines, and when case has not been prosecuted with due diligence; authority to dismiss is derived both from rules of civil procedure and from court's inherent powers. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165.	A trial court may dismiss a case for want of prosecution (1) when a party fails to appear at a hearing or at trial, (2) when the case has not been disposed of within the supreme court's guidelines, and (3) when a case has not been prosecuted with due diligence. City of Houston v. Thomas, 838 S.W.2d 296, 297 (Tex.App.-Houston [1st Dist.] 1992, no writ). The trial court's authority to dismiss is derived both from TEX.R.CIV.P. 165 and its own inherent powers.	Can a court dismiss a case for want of prosecution when the case has not been prosecuted with due diligence?
7023	Russell v. SNFA, 2013 IL 113909, ¶¶ 28-29 (2013)	3	Any conflicts in the pleadings and affidavits regarding personal jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant must be resolved in the plaintiff's favor; but, the defendant may overcome plaintiff's prima facie case for jurisdiction by offering uncontradicted evidence that defeats jurisdiction.	Any conflicts in the pleadings and affidavits must be resolved in the plaintiff's favor, but the defendant may overcome plaintiff's prima facie case for jurisdiction by offering uncontradicted evidence that defeats jurisdiction.	Should any conflicts in the pleadings and affidavits be resolved in the plaintiff's favor?

7025	Long v. Cochran, 247 Ga. 483, 483 (1981)	1	Dismissal for want of prosecution based upon non-appearance of plaintiff is not warranted where plaintiff's counsel is present in his client's stead.	A dismissal for want of prosecution based upon the non-appearance of the plaintiff is not warranted where plaintiff's counsel is present in his client's stead.	Is dismissal for want of prosecution based upon non-appearance of the plaintiff warranted where plaintiffs counsel is present in his clients stead?
7026	Geraty v. Carbona Prod. Co., 16 Ill. App. 3d 702, 705 (1973)	1	Dismissal of valid cause of action is error unless plaintiff has been guilty of inexcusable delay in prosecuting the suit.	A dismissal of a valid cause of action is error unless plaintiff has been guilty of inexcusable delay in prosecuting the suit.	Is dismissal of a valid cause of action error unless the plaintiff has been guilty of inexcusable delay in prosecuting the suit?
7028	Standard Builders Supplies v. Gush, 206 A.D.2d 720, 721, 614 N.Y.S.2d 632, 634 (1994)	2	Agency relationship established by conduct may create agency of apparent authority, established by words or conduct of principal communicated to third party, if it gives rise to apparent and reasonable basis by third party that agency has been created and agent possesses authority to enter into transaction.	Further, an agency relationship established by conduct may create an agency of apparent authority, established by words or conduct of a principal communicated to a third party, if it gives rise to an apparent and reasonable basis by the third party that an agency has been created and the agent possesses the authority to enter into a transaction	How is an agency relationship established?
7029	Matter of Sutton Investments, 6 N.C. App. 654, 659 (1980)	4	Where note and deed of trust are executed simultaneously and each contains references to the other, the documents are to be considered as one instrument and are to be read and construed as such to determine intent of parties.	Thus, where a note and a deed of trust are executed simultaneously and each contains references to the other, the documents are to be considered as one instrument and are to be read and construed as such to determine the intent of the parties.	"When a note is executed and secured by a deed of trust, is the documents read and construed together as one contract?"
7030	Nat'l Westminster Bank USA v. Century Healthcare Corp., 885 F. Supp. 601, 603 (S.D.N.Y. 1995)	2	Lender liability is predicated on unmistakable showing that subservient corporation in reality has no separate, independent existence of its own and was being used to further purposes of dominant corporation.	Lender liability is predicated on an unmistakable showing that the subservient corporation in reality has no separate, independent existence of its own and was being used to further the purposes of the dominant corporation.	Is lender liability predicated on an unmistakable showing that subservient corporation in reality has no separate existence of its own?
7031	Nat'l Westminster Bank USA v. Century Healthcare Corp., 885 F. Supp. 601, 603 (S.D.N.Y. 1995)	2	Lender liability is predicated on unmistakable showing that subservient corporation in reality has no separate, independent existence of its own and was being used to further purposes of dominant corporation.	Lender liability is predicated on an unmistakable showing that the subservient corporation in reality has no separate, independent existence of its own and was being used to further the purposes of the dominant corporation.	Is lender liability predicated on an unmistakable showing that subservient corporation in reality has no independent existence of its own?
7037	Lindley v. McKnight, 349 S.W.3d 113, 131 (Tex. App. 2011)	25	"Quasi-estoppel" is an affirmative defense that precludes a party from asserting, to another's disadvantage, a right inconsistent with a position previously taken.	Quasi-estoppel is an affirmative defense that precludes a party from asserting, to another's disadvantage, a right inconsistent with a position previously taken.	Is quasi-estoppel an affirmative defense that precludes a party from asserting a right inconsistent with a position previously taken?

7038	Thorson v. W. Dev. Corp., 251 Cal. App. 2d 206, 213, 59 Cal. Rptr. 299, 303 (Ct. App. 1967)	6	Allegation contained in body of complaint may not cure defect in prayer of complaint and jurisdiction of court to enter default judgment must be resolved solely by reference to that prayer.	Thus the allegation contained in the body of their complaint may not cure a defect in the prayer (demand) of the complaint, and the jurisdiction of the trial court to enter the default judgment must be resolved solely by reference to that prayer.	Does the allegation contained in the body of a complaint cure a defect in the prayer?
7040	Parlen v. Golden State Sanwa Bank, 194 Cal. App. 3d 906, 915, 240 Cal. Rptr. 73, 77 (Ct. App. 1987)	2	Whether formal discovery has been conducted is but one important factor in totality of circumstances to be considered in deciding whether to dismiss for delay in prosecution.	Thus, whether formal discovery has been conducted is but one important factor in the "totality of the circumstances" to be considered in deciding whether to dismiss "for delay in prosecution."	What is the important factor in totality of circumstances to be considered in deciding whether to dismiss for delay in prosecution?
7042	Rumfelt v. Himes, 438 N.E.2d 980, 982 (Ind. 1982)	1	Trial court may dismiss action when a party fails to comply with rules or when no action has been taken in case for at least 60 days. Trial Procedure Rule 41(E).	The trial court may dismiss an action when a party fails to comply with the rules or when no action has been taken in a case for at least sixty days.	Can court dismiss action when a party fails to comply with rules or when no action has been taken in case for at least sixty days?
7043	City of Miami v. Dade Cty., 321 So. 2d 140, 142 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1975)	2	Primary purpose of rule governing dismissal for failure to prosecute is to expedite course of litigation and require litigants to keep court dockets as nearly current as possible, and it is incumbent on courts to do likewise. 30 West's F.S.A. Rules of Civil Procedure, rules 1.440, 1.440(c).	We agree that the primary purpose of the rule governing dismissals for failure to prosecute is to expedite the course of litigation and require litigants to keep the court dockets as nearly current as possible. We also take the view that it is incumbent on the courts to do likewise and we so interpret the language and intent of Rule 1.440(c).	What is the primary purpose of rule governing dismissal for failure to prosecute?
7044	Nicholson v. Ballard, 7 Wash. App. 230, 231-32 (1972)	3	Purposes of rule governing dismissal of actions are to protect litigants from dilatory counsel and to prevent cluttering of court records with unresolved and inactive litigation. CR 41.	The purpose of Civil Rule 41 are at least twofold: first, to *232 protect litigants from dilatory counsel, and second, to prevent the cluttering of court records with unresolved and inactive litigation.	Is the purpose of rule governing dismissal of actions to prevent cluttering of court records with unresolved and inactive litigation?
7045	Coast to Coast Energy, Inc. v. Gasarch, 149 A.D.3d 485, 486, 53 N.Y.S.3d 16, 18 (2017)	3	On a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, the plaintiff has the burden of presenting sufficient evidence, through affidavits and relevant documents, to demonstrate jurisdiction. McKinney's CPLR 3211(a)(8).	On a motion to dismiss pursuant to CPLR 3211(a)(8), the plaintiff has the burden of presenting sufficient evidence, through affidavits and relevant documents, to demonstrate jurisdiction	"On a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction, does the plaintiff have the burden of presenting sufficient evidence?"
7047	Gunby v. Yates, 214 Ga. 17, 18-19 (1958)	1	A "tax" is an enforced contribution exacted pursuant to legislative authority for purpose of raising revenue to be used for public or governmental purposes, and not as payment for a special privilege or service rendered by a public officer, which is a "fee."	A tax is an enforced contribution exacted pursuant to legislative authority for the purpose of raising revenue to be used for public or governmental purposes, and not as payment for a special privilege or a service rendered.	Is tax a payment for a special privilege or a service rendered?

7048	Linahan v. Linahan, 131 Conn. 307, 327 (Conn. 1944)	23	The basis of estoppel is unjust advantage which, if the principle were not applied, one person would be able to take of another, and it rests on misleading conduct of one party to the prejudice of the other.	The basis of an estoppel is unjust advantage which, if the principle were not applied, one person would be able to take of another; it rests upon 'the misleading conduct of one party to the prejudice of the other.' MacKay v.	Does estoppel rest on misleading conduct of one party to the prejudice of the other?
7049	Lord v. Shaw, 665 P.2d 1288, 1289 (Utah 1983)	2	Specific averments in pleading are usually given precedence over general ones regarding same matter; specific averments are deemed to supplant, limit, and control general allegations.	Specific averments in pleading are usually given precedence over general ones regarding the same matter. The specific averments are deemed to supplant, limit and control the general allegations.	Are specific averments in pleading given precedence over general ones regarding the same matter?
7052	Carl J. Herzog Found. v. Univ. of Bridgeport, 41 Conn. App. 790, 793, 677 A.2d 1378, 1380 (1996)	2	Motion to dismiss raises question whether jurisdictional flaw is apparent on record or by way of supporting affidavits.	A motion to dismiss raises the question of whether a jurisdictional flaw is apparent on the record or by way of supporting affidavits.	Does a motion to dismiss raise a question whether jurisdictional flaw is apparent on record or by way of supporting affidavits?
7053	OHBA Corp. v. City of Carrollton, 203 S.W.3d 1, 7 (Tex. App. 2006)	18	Dismissal with prejudice is appropriate when trial court lacks subject matter jurisdiction because of sovereign immunity bar.	The supreme court has determined that dismissal with prejudice is appropriate when a trial court lacks subject matter jurisdiction because of the sovereign immunity bar.	Is a dismissal with prejudice appropriate when trial court lacks subject matter jurisdiction because of a sovereign immunity bar?
7054	Comm'n on Human Rights & Opportunities v. City of Torrington, 96 Conn. App. 313, 319, 901 A.2d 46, 49 (2006)	4	A dismissal without prejudice terminates litigation and the court's responsibilities, while leaving the door open for some new, future litigation.	A dismissal without prejudice "terminates litigation and the court's responsibilities, while leaving the door open for some new, future litigation.	"Does a dismissal without prejudice terminate litigation and the court's responsibilities, while leaving the door open for some new, future litigation?"
7055	In re R.H., 313 Ga. App. 416, 417–18 (2011)	5	Mere illegal entry alone does not satisfy all the elements of the crime of burglary; some evidence must also exist of an intent to commit a felony or a theft, separate and distinct from the unauthorized entry.	Indeed, "mere illegal entry alone does not satisfy all the elements of the crime of burglary; some evidence must also *418 exist of an intent to commit a felony or, as in this case, a theft, separate and distinct from the unauthorized entry."	Are unlawful entry and intent distinct elements of burglary?
7059	Muirfield Vill.-Vernon Hills v. K. Reinke, Jr. & Co., 349 Ill. App. 3d 178, 195 (2004)	17	A complaint should not be dismissed with prejudice unless it is apparent that no set of facts can be proved under the complaint that would entitle the plaintiff to relief. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-615.	We note that a complaint should not be dismissed with prejudice unless it is apparent that no set of facts can be proved under the complaint that would entitle the plaintiff to relief.	Should a complaint not be dismissed with prejudice unless it is apparent that no set of facts can be proved under the complaint that would entitle the plaintiff to relief?
7060	Chacon v. Jellison, 2003 WL 1560184, at *4 (Tex. App. Mar. 27, 2003)	2	When a plaintiff fails to appear for trial, the trial court may only dismiss the plaintiff's claims without prejudice; it may not render a take-nothing judgment based on a plaintiff's failure to appear at trial. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a(1).	We conclude that when a plaintiff fails to appear for trial, the trial court may only dismiss the plaintiff's claims without prejudice; it may not render a take-nothing judgment based on a plaintiff's failure to appear at trial.	"When a plaintiff fails to appear for trial, can the trial court only dismiss the plaintiff's claims without prejudice?"

7061	McConnell v. Attorney Gen. of Texas, 878 S.W.2d 281, 283 (Tex. App. 1994)	1	Dismissal without prejudice means that claimant has right to sue again on same cause of action and prevents decree of dismissal from operating as bar to subsequent suit.	[1] [2] [3] A dismissal without prejudice means the claimant has the right to sue again on the same cause of action and prevents "the decree of dismissal from operating as a bar to a subsequent suit.	Does a dismissal without prejudice mean a claimant has a right to sue again on the same cause of action?
7062	Trent v. River Place, 179 N.C. App. 72, 77, 632 S.E.2d 529, 533 (2006)	2	It is the burden of the party whose claim is being dismissed to convince the court that he deserves a second chance, and he should formally move the court that the dismissal be without prejudice. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b), West's N.C.G.S.A. S 1A-1.	However, "it is the burden of the party whose claim is being dismissed to convince the court that he deserves a second chance, and he should formally move the court that the dismissal be without prejudice." Whedon, 313 N.C.	Is it the burden of the party whose claim is being dismissed to convince the court that he deserves a second chance?
7063	Thacker v. Bartlett, 785 N.E.2d 621, 624 (Ind. Ct. App. 2003)	5	A trial court's entry sustaining a motion to dismiss that goes on to adjudge the case dismissed constitutes a final judgment. Trial Procedure Rule 12(B).	A trial court's entry sustaining a motion to dismiss that goes on to adjudge the case dismissed constitutes a final judgment.	Does a trial court entry sustaining a motion to dismiss that goes on to adjudge the case dismissed constitute a final judgment?
7064	Allstate Ins. Co. v. Anderson, 329 Ill. App. 3d 93, 95, 768 N.E.2d 329, 331 (2002)	2	A dismissal for want of prosecution is ordinarily not a final order because of plaintiff's right to refile under Code of Civil Procedure; when the time for refiling expires, the litigation is terminated and the order is final. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/13-217.	A dismissal for want of prosecution is ordinarily not a final order because of plaintiff's right to refile under section 13-217 of the Code of Civil Procedure. 735 ILCS 5/13-217 (West 2000); Marren Builders, Inc., v. Lampert, 307 Ill.App.3d 937, 941, 241 Ill.Dec. 256, 719 N.E.2d 117 (1999). When the time for refiling expires, the litigation is terminated and the order is final.	Is a dismissal for want of prosecution ordinarily not a final order because of a plaintiff's right to refile under a Code of Civil Procedure?
7065	Paul Stanley Leasing Corp. v. Hoffman, 651 S.W.2d 440, 442 (Tex. App. 1983)	2	Decision to either dismiss or abate action is ordinarily matter addressed to sound discretion of trial court.	The decision to either dismiss or abate an action is a matter ordinarily addressed to the sound judicial discretion of the trial court.	Is the decision to either dismiss or abate action a matter ordinarily addressed to sound discretion of a trial court?
7066	Pender v. Pender, 634 S.W.2d 244, 246 (Mo. Ct. App. 1982)	2	An order to dismiss qualified by a grant of time to file amended petition, or any other comparable decretal expression, signifies intention to dismiss the petition only, not the action.	An order to dismiss qualified by a grant of time to file an amended petition (or any other comparable decretal expression) signifies intention to dismiss the petition only, not the action.	Does an order to dismiss qualified by a grant of time to file amended petition signify an intention to dismiss the petition only?
7068	Whitco Produce Co. v. Bonanza Int'l, Inc., 154 Ga. App. 92, 93, 267 S.E.2d 627, 628 (1980)	1	Generally, franchise contract under which one operates a type of business on royalty basis does not create agency or partnership relationship.	The general rule is that a franchise contract under which one operates a type of business on a royalty basis does not create an agency or a partnership relationship.	Can an agency relationship be created by a franchise contract under which one operates a type of business on a royalty basis?

7069	Bailey v. Worton, 752 So. 2d 470, 474 (Miss. Ct. App. 1999)	3	Most characteristic feature of an agent's employment is that he is employed primarily to bring about business relations between his principal and third persons, and this power is perhaps the most distinctive mark of the agent as contrasted with others, not agents, who act in representative capacities.	The most characteristic feature of an agent's employment is that he is employed primarily to bring about business relations between his principal and third persons, and this power is perhaps the most distinctive mark of the agent as contrasted with others, not agents, who act in representative capacities.	What is the most characteristic feature of an agent's employment?
7070	Caterpillar v. Usinor Industeel, 393 F. Supp. 2d 659, 669–70 (N.D. Ill. 2005)	4	Under Illinois law, test for agency is whether alleged principal has right to control manner in which work is carried out by alleged agent, and whether alleged agent can affect legal relationships of principal.	Under Illinois law, 15 the test for agency is whether the alleged principal has the right to control the manner in which work is carried out by the alleged agent, *670 and whether the alleged agent can affect the legal relationships of the principal.	Is the right to control the manner in which work is carried out by the agent a test of agency?
7072	Dawson v. Sec'y of State, 274 Mich. App. 723, 740, 739 N.W.2d 339, 352 (2007)	37	Where revenue generated by a regulatory "fee" exceeds the cost of regulation, the "fee" is actually a tax in disguise; the test is whether the fee is proportional, not whether it is equal, to the amount required to support the services it regulates.(Per Wilder, P.J., with two justices concurring in part.)	" '[W]here revenue generated by a regulatory "fee" exceeds the cost of regulation, the "fee" is actually a tax in disguise.' " Id. at 614, 662 N.W.2d 784 (citation omitted). "The test is whether the fee is proportional, not whether it is equal, to the amount required to support the services it regulates.	"When determining whether a revenue is a fee or a tax, is whether the fee is proportional,the test?"
7073	People v. Peterson, 306 Ill. App. 3d 1091, 1100 (1999)	3	As used in intimidation statute, word "threat" implicitly requires that expression, in its context, has reasonable tendency to create apprehension that its originator will act according to its tenor. S.H.A. 720 ILCS 5/12-6(a).	As used in the intimidation statute, the word "threat" implicitly requires that the expression, in its context, has a reasonable tendency to create apprehension that its originator will act according to its tenor.	"As used in the intimidation statute, what does the word ""threat"" implicitly require?"
7075	Jackson v. Carolina Hardwood Co., 120 N.C. App. 870, 872–73 (1995)	7	Where complaint discloses unconditional affirmative defense which defeats claim asserted or pleads facts which deny right to any relief on alleged claim, complaint may properly be dismissed for failure to state claim upon which relief can be granted. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 12(b)(6), G.S. S 1A-1.	Where the complaint discloses an unconditional affirmative defense which defeats the claim asserted or pleads facts which deny the right to any relief on the alleged claim, the complaint may properly *873 be dismissed by a motion under Rule 12(b)(6).	Can a complaint be dismissed when it discloses unconditional affirmative defense?

7076	Charles L. Hardtke v. Katz, 813 S.W.2d 548, 550 (Tex. App. 1991)	2	If time limit on court's jurisdiction exists, court's order reinstating case must be in writing, specific, and signed by trial judge; if judgment is signed, second inconsistent judgment in same case does not automatically vacate former judgment absent showing in second judgment that first judgment has been set aside.	When, as here, there is a time limit on the court's jurisdiction, its order must be in writing, specific, and signed by the trial judge. Walker v. Harrison, 597 S.W.2d 913, 915 (Tex.1980). Once a judgment is signed, a second, inconsistent judgment in the same case does not automatically vacate the former judgment. The second judgment must show that the first judgment has been set aside; otherwise, the second judgment is a nullity.	"If time limit on court's jurisdiction exists, should a court's order reinstating case be in writing, specific, and signed by a trial judge?"
7078	Olson v. Olson, 453 S.W.3d 128, 135 (2014)	11	A circuit court is authorized to dismiss a claim upon a party's failure to prosecute; such dismissals are ordinarily without prejudice. Ark. R. Civ. P. 41(b).	As we said earlier, a circuit court is authorized to dismiss a claim upon a party's failure to prosecute pursuant to Rule 41(b). Gore, supra., Such dismissals are ordinarily without prejudice, Wolford, supra.	Is a circuit court authorized to dismiss a claim upon a party's failure to prosecute and such dismissals are ordinarily without prejudice?
7079	Tolliver ex rel. Wrongful Death Beneficiaries of Green v. Mladineo, 987 So. 2d 989, 997 (Miss. Ct. App. 2007)	13	A trial court's order of dismissal with prejudice is an extreme and harsh sanction that deprives a litigant of the opportunity to pursue his claim, and any dismissals with prejudice are reserved for the most egregious cases.	A trial court's order of "dismissal with prejudice is an extreme and harsh sanction that deprives a litigant of the opportunity to pursue his claim, and any dismissals with prejudice are reserved for the most egregious cases."	Is a dismissal with prejudice an extreme and harsh sanction which is reserved for the most egregious cases?
7080	Am.'s Favorite Chicken Co. v. Galvan, 897 S.W.2d 874, 878 (Tex. App. 1995)	13	Judgment granting nonsuit becomes final thirty days after it is signed, when no motion for new trial is filed. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 329b.	The judgment granting nonsuit becomes final thirty days after it is signed, when no motion for new trial is filed.	"Does a judgment granting a nonsuit become final, thirty days after it is signed, when no motion for new trial is filed?"
7081	Stephens v. Stovall & Co., 184 Ga. App. 78, 78 (1987)	1	Statute providing for automatic dismissal when no written order is taken for a period of five years is mandatory and dismissal is automatic and by operation of law, and any further action other than dismissal is a mere nullity. O.C.G.A. § 9-2-60(b).	OCGA 9-2-60(b) provides for automatic dismissal when no written order is taken for a period of five years. This is mandatory and dismissal is automatic and by operation of law. Any further action other than dismissal is a mere nullity.	Is a statute providing for automatic dismissal when no written order is taken for a period of five years mandatory and dismissal automatic?
7083	McColgan v. Jones, Hubbard & Donnell, 11 Cal. 2d 243, 246, 78 P.2d 1010, 1011 (1938)	1	An order granting a motion for nonsuit is effective for all purposes when entered in clerk's minutes, and an appeal must be taken within 60 days from entry thereof. Code Civ.Proc. § 581, as amended by St.1935, p. 1954.	By virtue of said cases it has become a settled rule of practice that an order granting a motion for nonsuit is effective for all purposes when entered in the clerk's minutes, and an appeal must be taken within sixty days from such entry.	Is an order granting a motion for nonsuit effective for all purposes when entered in a clerk's minutes?
7087	Wargel v. First Nat. Bank of Harrisburg, 121 Ill. App. 3d 730, 736, 460 N.E.2d 331, 334 (1984)	3	Test of agency is existence of right to control method or manner of accomplishing a task by alleged agent, as well as agent's ability to subject principal to liability.	The test of agency is the existence of the right to control the method or manner of accomplishing a task by the alleged agent, as well as the agent's ability to subject the principal to liability.	Is the right to control the method or manner of accomplishing a task a test of agency?

7088	In re Y.M., 207 Cal. App. 4th 892, 908 (2012)	6	The usual rules of statutory preemption analysis apply in the area of immigration; state law will be displaced only when affirmative congressional action compels the conclusion it must be.	"[T]he usual rules of statutory preemption analysis apply; state law will be displaced only when affirmative congressional action compels the conclusion it must be."	Will state law be displaced when affirmative congressional action compels the conclusion it must be?
7089	Fonseca v. Fong, 167 Cal. App. 4th 922, 931 (2008)	9	Standing alone, the fact that aliens are the subject of a state statute does not render it a regulation of immigration, which is essentially a determination of who should or should not be admitted into the country, and the conditions under which a legal entrant may remain.	[S]tanding alone, the fact that aliens are the subject of a state statute does not render it a regulation of immigration, which is essentially a determination of who should or should not be admitted into the country, and the conditions under which a legal entrant may remain.	Is a determination of whether aliens should or should not be admitted into the country a regulation of immigration?
7092	I.N.S. v. Lopez-Mendoza, 468 U.S. 1032, 1038 (1984)	2	Deportation hearing looks prospectively to alien's right to remain in country in future; past conduct is relevant only insofar as it may shed light on alien's right to remain. Immigration and Nationality Act, SS 241, 242(b), 8 U.S.C.A. SS 1251, 1252(b).	The deportation hearing looks prospectively to the respondent's right to remain in this country in the future. Past conduct is relevant only insofar as it may shed light on the respondent's right to remain. See 8 U.S.C. 1251, 1252(b)	Is past conduct relevant to shed light on the alien or respondent's right to remain during deportation proceedings?
7093	Torao Takahashi v. Fish & Game Comm'n, 334 U.S. 410, 420, 68 S. Ct. 1138, 1143, 92 L. Ed. 1478 (1948)	8	The Fourteenth Amendment and laws adopted under its authority embody a general policy that all persons lawfully in the United States shall abide in any state on an equality of legal privileges with all citizens under nondiscriminatory laws. 42 U.S.C.A. S 1981; U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 14.	The Fourteenth Amendment and the laws adopted under its authority thus embody a general policy that all persons lawfully in this country shall abide 'in any state' on an equality of legal privileges with all citizens under non- discriminatory laws.	Do aliens have a right to abide in any State in the Union on an equality of legal privileges with all citizens under nondiscriminatory laws?
7098	Williams v. Cottle, 471 So. 2d 305, 307 (La. Ct. App. 1985), overruled by Barracliff v. E. Jefferson Gen. Hosp., 573 So. 2d 1200 (La. Ct. App. 1991)	2	Although lawsuit dismissed without prejudice pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Article 933 can be reinstituted, it cannot be revived by filing amended and supplemental petition; it is necessary to file a new suit. LSA-C.C.P. art. 933.	Although we agree that a lawsuit dismissed without prejudice pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Article 933 can be reinstituted, it can not be revived by filing an amended and supplemental petition. It is necessary to file a new suit.	Can a lawsuit dismissed without prejudice pursuant to Code be reinstituted?
7099	Brazinsky v. Brazinsky, 610 N.W.2d 707, 712 (Minn. Ct. App. 2000)	8	After a judgment of dismissal with prejudice is entered, the district court has no jurisdiction over the subject matter of the case and is powerless to act further in the matter.	After a judgment of dismissal with prejudice is entered, the district court has no jurisdiction over the subject matter of the case and is powerless to act further in the matter.	"After a judgment of dismissal with prejudice is entered, does the district court have no jurisdiction over the subject matter of the case and is powerless to act further in the matter?"
7100	McCoy v. Martinez, 480 S.W.3d 420, 424 (Mo. Ct. App. 2016)	7	Dismissal based on an affirmative defense may be appropriate if the petition clearly establishes on its face and without exception that the claim is barred.	Dismissal based on an affirmative defense may be appropriate if the petition clearly establishes "on its face and without exception" that the claim is barred.	Will a dismissal be appropriate if the petition clearly establishes on its face and without exception that the claim is barred?

7101	State ex rel. Hood v. Louisville Tire Ctr., 204 So. 3d 1250, 1254 (Miss. 2016)	3	Any court of law or equity may exercise the power to dismiss for want of prosecution; this power, inherent to the courts, is necessary as a means to the orderly expedition of justice and the court's control of its own docket. Miss. R. Civ. P. 41(b).	However, as the Court has explained, "Rule 41(b) embodies the tenet that 'any court of law or equity may exercise the power to dismiss for want of prosecution. This power, inherent to the courts, is necessary as a means to the orderly expedition of justice and the court's control of its own docket.'"	Can a court of law or equity exercise the power to dismiss for want of prosecution?
7102	Boyd Bros. Transp. v. State Dep't of Revenue, 976 So. 2d 471, 475 (Ala. Civ. App. 2007)	1	The sales tax statutes apply to retail sales or purchases taking place within the state; the use tax statutes apply to goods purchased at retail outside of the state and brought into the state for use by the purchaser. Code 1975, SS 40-23-1 et seq., 40-23-61.	"The sales tax statutes apply to retail sales or purchases taking place within the state; the use tax statutes apply to goods purchased at retail outside of the state and brought into the state for use by the purchaser."	Do the sales tax statutes apply to retail sales or purchases taking place within the state?
7103	Bd. of Cty. Comm'rs of Leavenworth Cty. v. McGraw Fertilizer Serv., 261 Kan. 901, 908, 933 P.2d 698, 705 (1997)	20	"Sales tax" is tax on privilege of engaging in business of selling tangible personal property at retail in state and is levied on gross receipts of sales transactions.	The sales tax is a tax on the privilege of engaging in the business of selling tangible personal property at retail in this state, and is levied on the gross receipts of sales transactions.	"Is ""sales tax"" a tax on privilege of engaging in business of selling tangible personal property?"
7104	Bank of Nova Scotia v. San Miguel, 214 F.2d 102, 105 (1st Cir. 1954)	2	Under the conflict of laws rule of Puerto Rico, the questions as to the execution, the interpretation and the validity of a negotiable instrument are to be determined by the law of the place where it is made.	Under the conflict of laws rule of Puerto Rico the questions as to the execution, the interpretation and the validity of a negotiable instrument are to be determined by the law of the place where it is made.	"Should the questions as to the execution, interpretation and the validity of a negotiable instrument be determined by the law of the place where it is made?"
7106	Lackey v. State, 116 Ga. App. 789, 790 (1967)	3	Statute declaring violator shall be punished by imprisonment in penitentiary for not less than one year nor more than five years permits punishment by imprisonment for any length of time from one year to five years including actual part of year measured by months, weeks or days within minimum and maximum limits. Code, S 26-5014a.	s 26-5014a declares that a violator of that section 'shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than one year nor more than five years.' It seems clear that Code Ann. s 26-5014a permits punishment by imprisonment for any length of time from 1 year to 5 years, including a fractional part of a year and measured by months, weeks or days as well as yours, within the minimum and maximum limits.	Can a prison term be measured in months and include a fractional part of a year when the law states the permitted range in terms of a specific number of whole years?
7107	P.N. v. Greco, 282 F. Supp. 2d 221, 235 (D.N.J. 2003)	1	In reviewing administrative decisions in Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) cases, a district court is to apply a de novo standard to questions of law. Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, S 615(a), as amended, 20 U.S.C.A. S 1415(a).	In reviewing administrative decisions in IDEA cases, a district court applies a de novo standard to questions of law.	"In reviewing administrative decisions in IDEA cases, can a district court apply a de novo standard to questions of law?"
7108	Sabatino v. Saint Aloysius Par., 280 N.J. Super. 185, 190-91 (Law. Div. 1994)	2	Infringement of First Amendment rights may occur where civil courts interfere with sectarian school's choice of principal. U.S.C.A. Const.Amends. 1, 14.	Infringement of First Amendment rights may occur where civil courts interfere with a sectarian school's choice of principal.	Does infringement of First Amendment rights occur where civil courts interfere with a sectarian school choice?

7109	Garbark v. Newman, 155 Neb. 188, 188 (1952)	9	A positive statement of seller as to condition of personal property made during negotiations for its sale indicating his intention to be bound for the truth thereof, and which was so understood and relied upon by other party, is an "express warranty". R.R.S.1943, S 69-412.	A positive statement of a seller of the condition of personal property made during negotiations for its sale indicating his intention to be bound for the truth thereof, and which was so understood and relied upon by the other party, is an express warranty.	Does a seller's positive statement or affirmation constitute a warranty?
7110	Hindin v. Samuel, 158 Pa. Super. 539, 542, 45 A.2d 370, 372 (1946)	3	The highways belong to the commonwealth in trust for the people, and he who claims a peculiar privilege with respect to highways must establish his right under some statute or valid municipal regulation ordained in pursuance of statutory authority.	The highways belong to the commonwealth in trust for the great body of the people, and he who claims a peculiar privilege to invade them must establish his right under some statute, or valid municipal regulation, ordained in pursuance of statutory authority.	Do the highways belong to the commonwealth in trust for the great body of the people?
7111	Shindler v. Marr & Associates, 695 S.W.2d 699, 703 (Tex. App. 1985)	6	In order to establish a partnership de facto, neither written nor oral agreement is essential; a partnership relation may be implied from facts and circumstances surrounding a transaction.	In order to establish a partnership de facto, neither a written nor an oral agreement is essential; a partnership relation may be implied from the facts and circumstances surrounding the transaction.	"In order to establish a partnership, is neither written nor an oral agreement is essential?"
7112	Watson v. Suggs, 313 S.C. 291, 293, 437 S.E.2d 172, 173 (Ct. App. 1993)	2	One of the primary purposes of written complaint is to apprise opposite party of nature and extent of action against him, and only such matters as are clearly alleged in complaint can be considered upon trial of case.	One of the primary purposes of a written complaint is to appraise the opposite party of the nature and extent of the action against him, and only such matters as are clearly alleged in the complaint can be considered upon the trial of the case.	"Is appraising the opposite party of the nature and extent of the action, one of the functions of a written complaint?"
7113	Moran v. Rynar, 39 A.D.2d 718, 718, 332 N.Y.S.2d 138, 141 (1972)	2	Neglect or inadvertent error of an attorney by reason of, inter alia, failure to file a note of issue should not deprive his client of his day in court; in such a case it is proper to save the action for the client, while imposing upon the attorney, personally, a penalty for his neglect. CPLR 3216.	In such cases, we have held that an attorney's neglect or inadvertent error should not deprive his client of his day in court; and that it is proper to save the action for the client, while imposing upon the attorney, personally, a penalty for his neglect	Should an attorney's neglect or inadvertent error not deprive his client of his day in court?
7114	Cty. of Erie v. Peerless Heater Co., 660 A.2d 238, 240 (Pa. Commw. Ct. 1995)	1	Entry of judgment of non pros. and the denial of motion to remove such a judgment are peculiarly within discretion of trial court.	The entry of a judgment of non pros. and the denial of a motion to remove such a judgment are peculiarly within the discretion of the trial court.	Is the entry of judgment of non pros. and the denial of a motion to remove such a judgment peculiarly within the discretion of a trial court?
7116	Florida Nat. Org. for Women v. State, 832 So. 2d 911, 915 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2002)	6	A trial court should grant leave to amend, rather than dismiss a complaint with prejudice, unless a party has abused the privilege to amend, an amendment would prejudice the opposing party, or the complaint is clearly not amendable; even if an amended complaint fails to state a cause of action. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.190(a).	Thus, a trial court should grant leave to amend, rather than dismiss a complaint with prejudice, unless a party has abused the privilege to amend, an amendment would prejudice the opposing party, or the complaint is clearly not amendable.	Should a court not dismiss a complaint without leave to amend unless the privilege of amendment has been abused?

7118	Gladstone v. Smith, 729 So. 2d 1002, 1003 (Fla. App. 1999)	4	Claim should not be dismissed with prejudice without giving the plaintiff an opportunity to amend the defective pleading, unless it is apparent that the pleading cannot be amended to state a cause of action.	A claim should not be dismissed with prejudice "without giving the plaintiff an opportunity to amend the defective pleading, unless it is apparent that the pleading cannot be amended to state a cause of action."	Should a dismissal with prejudice not be ordered without giving a party offering defective pleading an opportunity to amend unless it is clear that the pleading cannot be amended?
7119	Allied Prod. Co. v. Green, 175 Ga. App. 802, 802, 334 S.E.2d 389, 390 (1985)	1	Not all expenses incurred by party are regarded as costs which must be paid before plaintiff refiles action he previously dismissed.	Not all expenses incurred by a party are regarded as costs. See Stone Mtn. Mem. Assn. v. Stone Mtn. Scenic R., 232 Ga. 92, 94, 205 S.E.2d 293 (1974). The Supreme Court has specifically held that "expenses in discovery are not taxed as costs..." City of Atlanta v. Intl. Assn. of Firefighters etc., 240 Ga. 24(4b), 239 S.E.2d 353 (1977). In light of the above authority, we conclude that a monetary sanction imposed under OCGA § 9-11-37(d) does not constitute a court cost which must be paid before a plaintiff refiles an action he previously dismissed. OCGA § 9-11-41(d).	Are all expenses incurred by a party regarded as costs which must be paid before a plaintiff refiles an action he previously dismissed?
7120	Gloucester Holding Corp. v. U.S. Tape & Sticky Prod., 832 A.2d 116, 123 (Del. 2003)	1	When considering a motion to dismiss a counterclaim under court of chancery rule for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, the court is to assume the truthfulness of all well-pleaded allegations of fact in the counterclaim. Chancery Court Rule 12(b)(6).	When considering a motion to dismiss a counterclaim under Court of Chancery Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, the court is to assume the truthfulness of all well-pleaded allegations of fact in the counterclaim.	Are all well-pleaded facts assumed to be true for purposes of determining whether a counterclaim fails to state a claim?
7121	People v. Kruger, 2015 IL App (4th) 131080, ¶ 11 (2015)	5	The determination of whether or not to dismiss a case for want of prosecution is governed by the particular facts of the case and rests within the trial court's sound discretion.	The determination of whether or not to dismiss a case for want of prosecution is governed by the particular facts of the case and rests within the trial court's sound discretion.	Is the determination of whether or not to dismiss a case for want of prosecution governed by the particular facts of the case?
7123	Spikes v. Neal, 92 So. 2d 571, 573 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2001)	2	Whether or not a party has shown good cause to keep the action pending is a discretionary decision by the trial court. West's F.S.A. RCP Rule 1.420(e).	Whether or not a party has shown good cause to keep the action pending is a discretionary decision by the trial court.	Is the question of whether or not a party has shown good cause to keep the action pending a discretionary decision by the trial court?
7124	Shook v. Gilmore & Tatge Mfg. Co., 951 S.W.2d 294, 296 (Tex. App. 1997)	1	Trial court's authority to dismiss suit for want of prosecution is derived from both court's inherent power and from Rules of Civil Procedure. Vernon's Ann.Texas Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 165a, subd. 4.	The trial court's authority to dismiss for want of prosecution is derived both from the court's inherent power and from the Rules of Civil Procedure.	Is the court's authority to dismiss suit for want of prosecution derived from both court's inherent power and from Rules of Civil Procedure?

7125	State v. Poe, 139 Idaho 885, 894 (2004)	12	"Intimidation" in the constitutionally proscribable sense of the word is a type of true threat, where a speaker directs a threat to a person or group of persons with the intent of placing the victim in fear of bodily harm or death. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 1.	Intimidation in the constitutionally proscribable sense of the word is a type of true threat, where a speaker directs a threat to a person or group of persons with the intent of placing the victim in fear of bodily harm or death.	What is intimidation in the constitutionally proscribable sense of the word?
7127	People v. $8,450 U.S. Currency, 276 Ill. App. 3d 952, 955 (1995)	7	Despite its label as civil, forfeiture is "punishment" for double jeopardy purposes when its goal is either retribution or deterrence. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	However, despite its label as civil, a forfeiture is a punishment for double jeopardy purposes when its goal is either retribution or deterrence.	"Despite its label as civil, is forfeiture punishment for double jeopardy purposes when its goal is either retribution or deterrence?"
7129	United States v. Candelaria-Silva, 166 F.3d 19, 43 (1st Cir. 1999)	48	A completed civil forfeiture of property does not constitute "jeopardy" under the Double Jeopardy Clause, and does not bar the subsequent criminal prosecution and punishment of the defendant whose property was forfeited. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	A completed civil forfeiture of property does not constitute "jeopardy" under the Double Jeopardy Clause, and does not bar the subsequent criminal prosecution and punishment of the defendant whose property was forfeited.	"Does a completed civil forfeiture of property not constitute ""jeopardy"" under the Double Jeopardy Clause?"
7131	Grand Rent A Car Corp. v. 20th Century Ins. Co., 25 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1251–52, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 88, 93 (1994)	1	Car rental agreement which contains provision indemnifying renter from liability to third persons, up to specified limit, resulting from accident which occurs while rented vehicle is in use constitutes insurance and this is so even where liability insurance/car rental agreement is effectuated by certificate of self-insurance.	A car rental agreement which contains a provision indemnifying the renter from liability to third persons, up to a specified limit, resulting from an accident which occurs while the rented vehicle is in use constitutes insurance. (Hertz Corp. v. Home Ins. Co., supra, 14 Cal.App.4th at pp. 1077–1078, 18 Cal.Rptr.2d 267; Nathanson v. Hertz Corp. (1986) 183 Cal.App.3d 78, 84, 227 Cal.Rptr. 799, disapproved on other grounds in Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Companies (1988) 46 Cal.3d 287, 250 Cal.Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58; compare Transportation Guar. Co. v. Jellins (1946) 29 Cal.2d 242, 174 P.2d 625 [motor truck maintenance contracts in which maintenance company agreed to cause the trucks to be insured is not a contract of insurance]; Truta v. Avis Rent A Car System, Inc. (1987) 193 Cal.App.3d 802, 815, 238 Cal.Rptr. 806 [car rental agency's collision *1252 damage waiver is not an insurance agreement].) This is so even where the liability insurance/car rental agreement is effectuated by a certificate of self-insurance.	Are car rental agreements insurance?

7132	Total E & P USA Inc. v. Kerr-McGee Oil & Gas Corp., 719 F.3d 424, 434–35 (5th Cir. 2013)	8	Under Louisiana law, the mineral lessor's royalty is distinguished from the mineral royalty and the overriding royalty; the former is the right to participate in the production of mineral from land or a servitude belonging to another, while the latter is carved out of the lessee's working interest in the lease. LSA-R.S. 31:80.	The Louisiana Supreme Court has explained that "[t]he lessor's royalty is distinguished from the mineral royalty and the overriding royalty. The former is the right to participate *435 in the production of mineral from land or a servitude belonging to another, La.Rev.Stat. 31:80, while the latter is carved out of the lessee's working interest in the lease."	What is the distinction between the lessors royalty and the overriding royalty?
7133	Wolf v. Murrane, 199 N.W.2d 90, 100 (Iowa 1972)	17	Generally, in absence of a written agreement to the contrary, interest is not to be allowed on partnership assets until after a balance has been struck; however, interest may be charged under circumstances of case, if the equities require.	The general rule, in absence of a written agreement to the contrary, is that interest is not to be allowed on partnership assets until after a balance has been struck; however, interest may be charged under the circumstances of the case, if the equities require.	Is interest not allowed on partnership assets until after a balance has been struck?
7134	In re Jose B., 303 Conn. 569, 579, 34 A.3d 975, 981 (2012)	3	The rule that the failure to allege an essential fact under a particular statute goes to the legal sufficiency of the complaint, and not the trial court's subject matter jurisdiction, is consistent with the rule that every presumption is to be indulged in favor of jurisdiction and is consistent with the judicial policy preference to bring about a trial on the merits of a dispute whenever possible and to secure for the litigant his day in court, by allowing the litigant, if possible, to amend the complaint to correct the defect, and it avoids the bizarre result that the failure to prove an essential fact at trial deprives the court of subject matter jurisdiction.	Accordingly, we conclude that the failure to allege an essential fact under a particular statute goes to the legal sufficiency of the complaint, not to the subject matter jurisdiction of the trial court. Id., at 710, 4 A.3d 248. This conclusion "is consistent with the rule that every presumption is to be indulged in favor of jurisdiction"; (internal quotation marks omitted) id., at 708, 4 A.3d 248; is "consistent with the judicial policy preference to bring about a trial on the merits of a dispute whenever possible and to secure for the litigant his day in court"; (internal quotation marks omitted) id., at 709, 4 A.3d 248; by allowing the litigant, if possible, "to amend the complaint to correct the defect"; id.; and avoids the bizarre result that the failure to prove an essential fact at trial deprives the court of subject matter jurisdiction.	Does the failure to allege an essential fact under a particular statute go to the legal sufficiency of the complaint?
7135	Schwab v. Baribeau Implement Co., 163 Wis. 2d 208, 215, 471 N.W.2d 244, 247 (Ct. App. 1991)	1	Party seeking to set aside dismissal for failure to prosecute must show clear and justifiable excuse for delay in prosecution. W.S.A. 805.03.	The party seeking to set aside such a dismissal must show a "clear and justifiable excuse" for the delay in prosecution.	Should a party seeking to set aside a dismissal for failure to prosecute show a clear and justifiable excuse for delay in prosecution?
7136	Valley Peat & Humus v. Sunnylands, Inc., 398 Pa. Super. 400, 406, 581 A.2d 193, 196 (1990)	9	In considering petition to open non pros judgment, undue prejudice to adverse party will prevent granting of petition.	In considering a petition to open, undue prejudice to the adverse party will prevent the granting of the petition to open:	"In considering petition to open non pros judgment, will undue prejudice to an adverse party prevent granting of a petition?"

7137	Cox v. Cox, 976 So. 2d 869, 874 (Miss. 2008)	3	The power to dismiss for failure to prosecute is granted not only by rule, but is part of a trial court's inherent authority and is necessary for the orderly expedition of justice and the court's control of its own docket. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 41(b).	The power to dismiss for failure to prosecute is granted not only by Rule 41(b), but is part of a trial court's inherent authority and is necessary for "the orderly expedition of justice and the court's control of its own docket.	Is the power to dismiss an action for want of prosecution a part of a court's inherent authority?
7139	I-4 Commerce Ctr, Phase II, Unit I v. Orange Cty., 46 So. 3d 134, 136 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2010)	4	"User fees," which are charges based upon the proprietary right of the governing body permitting the use of the instrumentality involved, share common traits that distinguish them from taxes; the most significant of these traits are: (1) they are charged in exchange for a particular governmental service, and (2) the service provided benefits the party paying the fee in a manner not shared by other members of society.	"User fees" are charges based upon the proprietary right of the governing body permitting the use of the instrumentality involved. Such fees share common traits that distinguish them from taxes. The most significant of these traits are: 1) they are charged in exchange for a particular governmental service; and 2) the service provided benefits the party paying the fee in a manner not shared by other members of society.	Do fees share common traits that distinguish them from taxes?
7144	State v. Stankevicius, 3 Conn. Cir. Ct. 580, 584 (1966)	5	Effect of improper discharge of jury is to acquit defendant of crime as to which jury might have rendered a verdict if mistrial had not been declared.	The effect of an improper discharge of the jury is to acquit the defendant of the crime as to which the jury might have rendered a verdict if a mistrial had not been declared.	Is the effect of an improper discharge of a jury is to acquit a defendant of a crime as to which a jury might have rendered a verdict if mistrial had not been declared?
7145	Cornell v. McDonald, 28 Vet. App. 297, 303 (2016)	3	Board of Veterans' Appeals is unable to act on a matter absent an appealable, binding regional office (RO) decision, and in order for the RO decision to be effective proper notice is required. 38 U.S.C.A. S 5104(a).	"The Board is unable to act on a matter absent an appealable, binding RO decision," and in order for the RO decision to be effective proper notice is required.	"Is the Board of Veterans' Appeals unable to act on a matter absent an appealable, binding regional office (RO) decision?"
7146	Del Rosario v. Peake, 22 Vet. App. 399, 407 (2009), aff'd sub nom. Del Rosario v. Shinseki, 367 F. App'x 157 (Fed. Cir. 2010)	9	The Federal Rules of Evidence generally do not apply to proceedings before the Regional Office (RO), the Board of Veterans Appeals, or the United States Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims.	Preliminarily, we observe that the Federal Rules of Evidence generally "do not apply to proceedings before the Regional Office ..., the Board, or this Court."	"Do Federal Rules of Evidence apply to proceedings before the Regional Office (RO), the Board of Veterans Appeals, or the United States Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims?"
7147	McCrary v. Oklahoma Dep't of Pub. Safety, 122 P.3d 473, 474-75 (Okla. 2005)	2	Under the "employment-at-will doctrine," an employee with an employment contract of indefinite duration is free to leave his or her employment for any reason or no reason without incurring liability to the employer, and the employer has the corresponding freedom to terminate the at-will employee for any reason or no reason without incurring liability to the employee.	The doctrine of employment-at-will is firmly embedded in the common law of Oklahoma. Collier v. Insignia Financial Group, 1999 OK 49, 981 P.2d 321, 323. Under *475 the doctrine, an employee with an employment contract of indefinite duration is free to leave his or her employment for any reason or no reason without incurring liability to the employer, and the employer has the corresponding freedom to terminate the at-will employee for any reason or no reason without incurring liability to the employee.	Is an at-will employee free to leave his employment without incurring liability to the employer?

7148	Brewbaker v. State Bd. of Regents, 843 N.W.2d 466, 472 (Iowa Ct. App. 2013)	14	A civil penalty imposed after a criminal penalty will constitute multiple punishments in violation of the Double Jeopardy Clause when the sanction, as applied in the individual case, serves the goal of punishment; however, if the civil sanction is remedial, the Double Jeopardy Clause is not violated. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	A civil penalty imposed after a criminal penalty will constitute multiple punishments in violation of the Double Jeopardy Clause when the sanction, as applied in the individual case, serves the goal of punishment. Id. However, if the civil sanction is remedial, the Double Jeopardy Clause is not violated.	"Can criminal proceedings following the civil forfeiture of a vehicle constitute multiple punishments for the same offense, for purposes of double jeopardy?"
7149	Riley v. 1987 Station Wagon, 634 N.W.2d 434, 437 (Minn. Ct. App. 2001)	6	A criminal adjudication followed by a civil forfeiture, or vice versa, violates double jeopardy only if the forfeiture constitutes punishment. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; M.S.A. Const. Art. 1, S 7.	"[A] criminal adjudication followed by a civil forfeiture, or vice versa, violates double jeopardy only if the forfeiture constitutes punishment."	"Does criminal adjudication followed by a civil forfeiture, or vice versa, violate double jeopardy only if the forfeiture constitutes punishment?"
7151	Brock v. State, 955 N.E.2d 195, 206 (Ind. 2011)	13	A mistrial granted over the defendant's objection and in the absence of manifest necessity acts as an acquittal and bars reprosecution for the same offense. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	A mistrial granted over the defendant's objection and in the absence of manifest necessity acts as an acquittal and bars reprosecution for the same offense.	Does a mistrial granted over the defendant's objection and in the absence of manifest necessity act as an acquittal and bars reprosecution for the same offense?
7152	People v. Pau Luong, 180 Misc. 2d 953	3	A defendant's consent to a mistrial, such as will remove the double jeopardy bar to a second trial, may be either express or implied. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Double jeopardy does not bar a second trial if the defendant consents to a mistrial. Consent may be either express or implied.	"Can a defendant's consent to a mistrial, such as will remove the double jeopardy bar to a second trial, be either express or implied?"
7153	State v. Minnitt, 203 Ariz. 431, 437 (2002)	5	As a general rule, if a defendant successfully moves for or consents to a mistrial, retrial is not barred on double jeopardy grounds. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; A.R.S. Const. Art. 2, S 10.	As a general rule, if the defendant successfully moves for or consents to a mistrial, retrial is not barred on double jeopardy grounds.	"As a general rule, if a defendant successfully moves for or consents to a mistrial, is a retrial not barred on double jeopardy grounds?"
7154	State v. Skelton, 77 S.W.3d 791, 799 (Tenn. Crim. App. 2001)	11	A retrial is not barred by double jeopardy where a defendant consents to the termination of the trial, notwithstanding the lack of a manifest necessity for doing so. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	An objection in the record may be crucial because a retrial is not barred by double jeopardy where a defendant consents to the termination of the trial, notwithstanding the lack of a manifest necessity for doing so.	"Is a retrial not barred by double jeopardy where a defendant consents to the termination of the trial, notwithstanding the lack of a manifest necessity for doing so?"
7155	State v. Tolliver, 839 S.W.2d 296, 297 (Mo. 1992)	1	After mistrial not requested by defendant, but not objected to by him or her, state and federal double jeopardy clauses do not bar second trial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; V.A.M.S. Const. Art. 1, S 19.	After a mistrial not requested by the defendant, but not objected to by him, do the state and federal double jeopardy clauses bar a second trial?	"After a mistrial not requested by defendant, but not objected to by him or her, do state and federal double jeopardy clauses not bar a second trial?"
7156	People v. Ball, 821 P.2d 905, 907 (Colo. App. 1991)	1	Defendant's motion for mistrial generally operates as waiver of constitutional protection against retrial under double jeopardy clause. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	A defendant's motion for a mistrial generally operates as a waiver of his constitutional protection against retrial under the double jeopardy clause.	Does a defendant motion for mistrial generally operate as a waiver of constitutional protection against a retrial under a double jeopardy clause?

7157	People v. Henley, 182 N.W.2d 19, 25 (1970)	4	Generally, defendant is entitled to have trial proceed to its normal conclusion, and discharge of jury before such time without defendant's consent or without legal justification is equivalent to acquittal and bars retrial.	Thereafter, a defendant is ordinarily entitled to have the trial proceed to its normal conclusion, i.e., verdict by the jury or judgment by the court. Discharge of the jury before that time without defendant's consent or without legal justification is equivalent to an acquittal and bars retrial.	Is discharge of jury before such time without defendant's consent or without legal justification equivalent to acquittal and bars retrial?
7158	State v. Harrold, 626 S.W.2d 260, 261 (Mo. Ct. App. 1981)	2	Double jeopardy clause ensures defendant that he will not suffer more than one punishment or incessant prosecutions for same breach of law; it does not always exclude possibility of new trial after mistrial has been declared. U.S.C.A.Const.Amend. 5.	The double jeopardy clause ensures a defendant that he will suffer neither more than one punishment nor incessant prosecutions for the same breach of the law. It does not always exclude the possibility of a new trial after a mistrial has been declared.	Does a double jeopardy clause ensure a defendant that he will not suffer more than one punishment or incessant prosecutions for a same breach of law?
7159	State v. Berger, 235 N.W.2d 254, 255 (N.D. 1975)	3	Double jeopardy clause does not prohibit retrial in every instance when first trial has terminated prior to verdict. NDCC 29-01-07; Const. S 13; U.S.C.A.Const. Amends. 5, 14.	The double jeopardy clause does not prohibit retrial in every instance when the first trial has terminated prior to a verdict or decision.	Does a double jeopardy clause not prohibit retrial in every instance when a first trial has terminated prior to verdict?
7161	Knight v. Chicago Corp., 183 S.W.2d 666, 670 (Tex. Civ. App. 1944)	4	An "oil payment" as used in mineral lease is similar to an "overriding royalty", except that interest of assignee ceases upon receiving a certain amount of money or value out of oil or gas produced from a certain percentage of the working interest.	The oil payment is similar to the overriding royalty, except that the interest of the assignee ceases upon his receiving a certain amount of money or value out of oil or gas produced from a certain percentage of the working interest.	How is an oil payment similar to an overriding royalty?
7162	Smith v. Korf, Diehl, Clayton & Cleverley, 329 N.W.2d 669, 671-72 (Iowa 1983)	2	In considering a discretionary reinstatement, there is no requirement that a finding be made and entered of record prior to the automatic dismissal date.	In considering discretionary reinstatement there is no requirement that a finding be made and entered of record prior to the automatic dismissal date.	"In considering a discretionary reinstatement, is there no requirement that a finding be made and entered of record prior to the automatic dismissal date?"
7163	McNeil v. Brewer, 242 Ill.App.3d 463, 464 (Ill.App. 3 Dist.,1993)	1	Dismissal of action for want of prosecution is within sound discretion of trial court and should not be disturbed unless there has been an abuse of discretion.	[1] [2] The dismissal of an action for want of prosecution is within the sound discretion of the trial court and should not be disturbed unless there has been an abuse of that discretion.	Is the dismissal of action for want of prosecution within sound discretion of trial court and not be disturbed unless there has been an abuse of discretion?
7164	People v. Rogers, 92 A.D.3d 1151, 1152, 938 N.Y.S.2d 677, 678 (2012)	2	Law does not presume that person with mental retardation is unable to consent to sexual intercourse, and proof of incapacity must come from facts other than mental retardation alone. McKinney's Penal Law S 130.00(5).	The law does not presume that a person with mental retardation is unable to consent to sexual intercourse, and proof of incapacity must come from facts other than mental retardation alone"	Does the law presume that a person with mental retardation is unable to consent to sexual intercourse?

7165	Runcorn v. Shearer Lumber Prod., 107 Idaho 389, 393 (1984)	4	Workmen's compensation statutory definition of "employer" includes direct employer/subcontractor, a contractor over the subcontractor, and a qualifying proprietor or operator of the business over the contractor; qualifying proprietor or operator is the "employer" of the contractor's and subcontractor's employees, and contractor is also an "employer," of the subcontractor's employees. I.C. SS 72-102(10), 72-216(1).	The definition includes the direct employer/subcontractor, a contractor over the subcontractor, and a qualifying proprietor or operator of a business over the contractor. This does not mean that the qualifying proprietor or operator is the statutory employer of the contractor and subcontractor; it does mean that the qualifying proprietor or operator is the "employer" of the contractor's and subcontractor's employees, and the contractor is also an "employer" of the subcontractor's employees. See I.C. 72-216(1).	"In workers compensation, are direct employers/contractors, contractors over subcontractors, and qualifying proprietors or operators of a business over contractors, employers?"
7166	Contracting Nw. v. City of Fredericksburg, Iowa, 713 F.2d 382, 387 (C.A.8 (Iowa), 1983)	5	District court had inherent power to grant stay pending arbitration in order to control its docket, conserve judicial resources, and provide for just determination of cases pending before it. 9 U.S.C.A. S 3.	In any event, the district court had the inherent power to grant the stay in order to control its docket, conserve judicial resources, and provide for a just determination of the cases pending before it.	Does the district court have the inherent power to grant the stay in an arbitration proceeding?
7168	People v. Pearson, No. F037684, 2003 WL 21001021 (Cal. Ct. App. May 5, 2003)	5	Principles of double jeopardy, res judicata, or collateral estoppel do not bar retrial on an allegation of a strike prior. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; West's Ann.Cal.Penal Code S 667.	Principles of double jeopardy, res judicata, or collateral estoppel do not bar retrial on an allegation of a strike prior.	"Do principles of double jeopardy, res judicata, or collateral estoppel, bar retrial on an allegation of a strike prior?"
7169	State v. Guillaume, 293 Mont. 224, 228 (1999)	3	Weapon enhancement statute is a sentencing factor, and does not create a separate crime or element of a crime in violation of the protection against double jeopardy. MCA 46-18-221.	Guillaume acknowledges that this Court has repeatedly held that Montana's weapon enhancement statute is a sentencing factor, and does not create a separate crime or element of a crime in violation of the protection against double jeopardy.	Does weapon enhancement statute create a separate crime or element of a crime in violation of the protection against double jeopardy?
7170	Mandell v. Bd. of Educ. of Syosset Cent. Sch. Dist., 243 A.D.2d 479, 480, 662 N.Y.S.2d 598, 599 (1997)	2	Determination that elementary school student violated school policy against possessing a weapon on school premises was supported by substantial evidence, indicating that principal found knife in the student's book bag and that student had shown the knife to other students while on school property.	In this case, the record established that the principal of Baylis Elementary School found the knife in the petitioner's book bag and that the petitioner had shown the knife to other students while on school property. Accordingly, the determination that the petitioner violated Baylis Elementary School policy against possessing a weapon on school premises was supported by substantial evidence	What constitutes a weapon under school districts' rule prohibiting the possession of weapons on school property?
7174	Commonwealth v. Ball, 637 Pa. 100, 122, 146 A.3d 755, 768 (2016)	3	The Double Jeopardy Clauses of the United States and Pennsylvania Constitutions do not allow a rule of procedure to vitiate a constitutional right, especially sub silentio. U.S. Const. Amend. 5; Pa. Const. art. 1, S 10.	The double jeopardy clauses of the United States and Pennsylvania Constitutions do not allow a rule of procedure to vitiate a constitutional right, especially sub silentio. 10	Does the double jeopardy clause allow a rule of procedure to vitiate a constitutional right?

7175	Aboye v. United States, 121 A.3d 1245, 1251 (D.C. 2015)	7	A person is guilty of the offense of threats to do bodily harm if he or she: (1) uttered words to another person, (2) those words were of such a nature as to convey fear of serious bodily harm or injury to the ordinary hearer, and (3) he or she intended to utter the words that constitute the threat. D.C. Official Code, 2001 Ed. S 22-407.	"A person is guilty of the offense of threats under D.C.Code 22-407 if he or she: (1) uttered words to another person, (2) those words 'were of such a nature as to convey fear of serious bodily harm or injury to the ordinary hearer,' and (3) he or she 'intended to utter the words that constitute the threat.'"	When is a person guilty of the offense of threats to do bodily harm?
7176	State v. Triplett, 355 S.W.3d 543, 551 (Mo. Ct. App. 2011)	8	In a court-tried case, jeopardy attaches once evidence has been presented as to the merits of the issue of guilt; however, if the proceeding is designed to hear the accused's defenses or objections before trial, and no determination of factual guilt or innocence is made or attempted, then jeopardy does not attach. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	In a court-tried case, jeopardy attaches once evidence has been presented as to the merits of the issue of guilt. State v. Connell, 326 S.W.3d 865, 867 (Mo.App.2010); State v. Jarvis, 809 S.W.2d 460, 461 (Mo.App.1991). 'If the proceeding is designed to hear the accused's defenses or objections before trial, and no determination of factual guilt or innocence is made or attempted, then jeopardy does not attach. "	Will jeopardy attach if the proceeding is designed to hear the accused's defenses or objections before trial?
7177	Kopp v. Fischer, 811 F.Supp.2d 696, 712 (W.D.N.Y., 2011)	22	In a nonjury trial, jeopardy does not attach until the court begins to hear evidence from which a factual determination of guilt or innocence can be made. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	In a nonjury trial (such as Petitioner's), Double Jeopardy does not attach until the court begins to hear evidence from which a factual determination of guilt or innocence can be made.	Will jeopardy attach when the court begins to hear evidence from which a factual determination of guilt or innocence can be made?
7178	People v. Cabrera, 402 Ill. App. 3d 440, 447 (2010)	12	There are three settings in which jeopardy may attach: (1) at a jury trial when the jury is empaneled and sworn; (2) at a bench trial when the first witness is sworn and the court begins to hear evidence; and (3) at a guilty plea hearing when the guilty plea is accepted by the trial court. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; S.H.A. Const. Art. 1, S 10.	There are three settings in which jeopardy may attach: (1) at a jury trial when the jury is empaneled and sworn; (2) at a 410 537 bench trial when the first witness is sworn and the court begins to hear evidence; and (3) at a guilty plea hearing "when the guilty plea is accepted by the trial court."	What would be the three settings in which jeopardy may attach?
7179	Ex parte Benson, 459 S.W.3d 67, 71 (Tex. Crim. App. 2015)	3	In the multiple-punishment context, the double jeopardy clause prevents a court from prescribing greater punishment than the legislature intended. U.S. Const. Amend. 5.	In the multiple-punishment context, the double-jeopardy clause prevents a court from prescribing greater punishment than the legislature intended. 8 5 U.S. CONST. amend 5, cl.	Does the Double Jeopardy Clause prevent a court from prescribing greater punishment than the legislature intended in the multiple-punishment context?
7180	Epperson v. Com., 197 S.W.3d 46, 60-61 (Ky. 2006)	33	Simply because the aggravating circumstance duplicates one of the underlying offenses, it does not mean that defendant is being punished twice for the same offense, in violation of double jeopardy. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Bowling v. Commonwealth, supra, held that simply because the aggravating circumstance duplicates one of the underlying *61 offenses, it does not mean that the defendant is being punished twice for the same offense.	"Does it mean that defendant is being punished twice for the same offense, in violation of double jeopardy, if the aggravating circumstance duplicates one of the underlying offenses?"

7181	R.J.W. v. State, 910 So. 2d 357, 361 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2005)	3	An acquittal bars the prosecution from seeking another opportunity to supply evidence that it failed to muster in the first place.	An acquittal bars the prosecution from seeking "another opportunity to supply evidence that it failed to muster" in the first place.	Does an acquittal bar the prosecution from seeking another opportunity to supply evidence that it failed to muster in the first place?
7182	State v. Winstead, 552 N.W.2d 651, 654 (Iowa Ct. App. 1996)	6	When defendant has been acquitted, double jeopardy clause guarantees that state is not permitted to make repeated attempts to convict him. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	When a defendant has been acquitted, the Double Jeopardy Clause guarantees that the State is not permitted to make repeated attempts to convict him.	"When a defendant has been acquitted, does a double jeopardy clause guarantee that a state is not permitted to make repeated attempts to convict him?"
7183	Martin v. Com., 170 S.W.3d 374, 378 (Ky. 2005)	3	Double jeopardy rule is that a motion for mistrial by a defendant removes the double jeopardy bar to retrial, but there exists a limited exception where this bar will not be removed; the exception allows double jeopardy to bar retrial where the prosecutor's conduct intended to provoke the defendant into moving for a mistrial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The double jeopardy rule is that a motion for mistrial by a defendant removes the double jeopardy bar to retrial. 5 However, there exists a limited exception where this bar will not be removed. 6 The exception allows double jeopardy to bar retrial where the prosecutor's conduct intended to provoke the defendant into moving for a mistrial. 7 "	"The double jeopardy rule is that a motion for mistrial by a defendant removes the double jeopardy bar to retrial, however, does there exist a limited exception where this bar will not be removed?"
7184	Cornish v. State, 272 Md. 312, 320, 322 A.2d 880, 886 (1974)	10	Retrial is barred by Fifth Amendment where reasonable alternatives to mistrial, such as continuance, are feasible and could cure the problem. U.S.C.A. Const. Amend. 5.	And a retrial is barred by the Fifth Amendment where reasonable alternatives to a mistrial, such as a continuance, are feasible and could cure the problem,.	"Is a retrial barred by the Fifth Amendment where reasonable alternatives to mistrial, such as continuance, are feasible and could cure the problem?"
7185	Henderson v. Wright, 533 F. Supp. 1373, 1376 (D. Me. 1982)	4	"Strictest scrutiny" is required in cases where mistrial is granted at request of prosecutor in order to buttress weaknesses in his evidence.	The "strictest scrutiny" is required in cases where the mistrial is granted at the request of the prosecutor "in order to buttress weaknesses in his evidence,"	"Is ""strictest scrutiny"" required in cases where mistrial is granted at request of a prosecutor in order to buttress weaknesses in his evidence?"
7186	United States v. Markus, 604 F. Supp. 736, 739 (D.N.J. 1985)	3	Acquittals are final, even if based upon egregiously erroneous foundation or if inconsistent with other aspects of jury's verdict. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Thus, acquittals are final, even if "based upon an egregiously erroneous foundation," Arizona v. Washington, 434 U.S. 497, 503, 98 S.Ct. 824, 829, 54 L.Ed.2d 717 (1978), quoting Fong Foo v. United States, 369 U.S. 141, 143, 82 S.Ct. 671, 672, 7 L.Ed.2d 629 (1962), or if inconsistent with other aspects of a jury's verdict.	"Are acquittals final, even if based upon egregiously erroneous foundation or if inconsistent with other aspects of jury's verdict?"
7187	People v. Anderson, 117 Cal. App. Supp. 763	8	There is an acquittal and retrial is impermissible where judge evaluated government's evidence and determined that it was legally insufficient to sustain conviction. M.C.L.A. Const. Art. 1, S 15; U.S.C.A. Const. Amend. 5.	There is an acquittal and retrial is impermissible when the judge "evaluated the government's evidence and determined that it was legally insufficient to sustain a conviction."	Is there an acquittal and retrial is impermissible where a judge evaluated a government's evidence and determined that it was legally insufficient to sustain conviction?

7189	State v. Gill, 187 W. Va. 136, 138 (1992)	2	The double jeopardy clause of the West Virginia Constitution provides immunity from further prosecution where court having jurisdiction has acquitted accused, protects against second prosecution for same offense after conviction, and prohibits multiple punishments for same offense. Const. Art. 3, S 5.	"The Double Jeopardy Clause in Article III, Section 5 of the West Virginia Constitution, provides immunity from further prosecution where a court having jurisdiction has acquitted the accused. It protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after conviction.	What are the protections double jeopardy clause provide against?
7190	Oregon v. Kennedy, 456 U.S. 667, 671–72 (1982)	4	Double jeopardy clause does not offer a guaranty to the defendant that the state will vindicate its societal interest in enforcement of the criminal laws in one proceeding. U.S.C.A.Const.Amend. 5.	As a part of this protection against multiple prosecutions, the Double Jeopardy Clause affords a criminal defendant a "valued right to have his trial completed by a *672 particular tribunal." Wade v. Hunter, 336 U.S. 684, 689, 69 S.Ct. 834, 837, 93 L.Ed. 974 (1949). The Double Jeopardy Clause, however, does not offer a guarantee to the defendant that the State will vindicate its societal interest in the enforcement of the criminal laws in one proceeding.	Does the Double Jeopardy Clause guarantee the state's interest in enforcing the criminal laws against a defendant will be vindicated in a single trial?
7191	State v. Eggleston, 164 Wash. 2d 61, 70 (2008)	2	Federal and state double jeopardy clauses bar trial if three elements are met: (1) jeopardy previously attached, (2) jeopardy previously terminated, and (3) the defendant is again in jeopardy for the same offense. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; West's RCWA Const. Art. 1, S 9.	Washington's double jeopardy clause is coextensive with the federal double jeopardy clause and "is given the same interpretation the Supreme Court gives to the Fifth Amendment." State v. Gocken, 127 Wash.2d 95, 107, 896 P.2d 1267 (1995). Both double jeopardy clauses "bar[] trial if three elements are met: (a) jeopardy previously attached, (b) jeopardy previously terminated, and (c) the defendant is again in jeopardy 'for the same offense.' "	Do State and federal Double Jeopardy Clauses bar trial if three elements are met?
7192	State v. Hall, 162 Wash. 2d 901, 906 (2008)	2	The constitutional protection against double jeopardy is an individual right which, as a general proposition, is invoked by a defendant seeking protection against retrial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; West's RCWA Const. Art. 1, S 9.	We begin with the basic understanding that the constitutional protection against double jeopardy is an individual right which, as a general proposition, is invoked by the defendant seeking protection against retrial.	"Is the constitutional protection against double jeopardy which is an individual right as a general proposition, invoked by a defendant seeking protection against retrial?"
7193	State v. George, 160 Wash. 2d 727, 741 (2007)	10	The Double Jeopardy Clauses of the federal and state Constitutions prohibit the state from twice putting a defendant on trial for the same offense. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; West's RCWA Const. Art. 1, S 9.	The double jeopardy clauses of the federal and state constitutions prohibit the State from twice putting a defendant on trial for the same offense. U.S. CONST. amend. V; WASH. CONST. art. I, 9.	Does the Double Jeopardy Clauses of the federal and state Constitutions prohibit the state from twice putting a defendant on trial for the same offense?

7194	State v. Francois, 926 So. 2d 744, 753 (2006)	16	"Double jeopardy" protects an accused not only from a second prosecution for the same offense but also multiple punishments for the same criminal act. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Double jeopardy protects an accused not only from a second prosecution for the same offense but also multiple punishments for the same criminal act.	"Does ""Double jeopardy"" protect an accused not only from a second prosecution for the same offense but also multiple punishments for the same criminal act?"
7195	United States v. Beltz, 385 F.3d 1158, 1161 (8th Cir. 2004)	2	Double Jeopardy Clause protects against multiple punishments for the same offense and prevents imposition of greater punishment than authorized by Congress. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The double jeopardy clause protects against multiple punishments for the same offense and prevents imposition of greater punishment than authorized by Congress.	Does the double Jeopardy Clause protect against multiple punishments for the same offense and prevent imposition of greater punishment than authorized by Congress?
7196	State v. Baker, 160 A.3d 559, 567 (2017)	5	In a jury trial, the Double Jeopardy Clause generally bars the retrial of a criminal defendant for the same offense once a jury has been empaneled and sworn. U.S. Const. Amend. 5.	8 "In a jury trial, the Double Jeopardy Clause generally bars the retrial of a criminal defendant for the same offense once a jury has been empaneled and sworn."	Will the double jeopardy clause bar the retrial of a criminal defendant for the same offense once a jury has been empaneled and sworn?
7197	Hill Behan Lumber Co. v. Irving Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 121 Ill. App. 3d 511, 517 (1984)	7	A cause of action should not be dismissed on the pleadings unless it appears that no set of facts can be proved which will entitle the pleader to relief, and then only if it is apparent that even after amendment, if leave to amend is sought, no cause of action can be stated.	However, it is well established that a cause of action should not be dismissed on the pleadings unless it appears that no set of facts can be proved which will entitle the pleader to relief, and then only if it is apparent that even after amendment, if leave to amend is sought, no cause of action can be stated.	When should a court dismiss a cause of action when leave to amend is sought?
7201	People v. Haller, 174 Cal. App. 4th 1080, 1089 (2009)	6	The double jeopardy clause prohibits successive punishment for the same offense; the policy of the clause therefore circumscribes the relevance of recidivism. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	The double jeopardy clause prohibits successive punishment for the same offense. The policy of the clause therefore circumscribes the relevance of recidivism.	Does the double jeopardy clause prohibit successive punishment for the same offense and the policy of the clause therefore circumscribes the relevance of recidivism?
7203	Com. v. Kelly, 2002 PA Super 65, ¶ 11, 797 A.2d 925, 936 (2002)	1	It is within a trial judge's discretion to declare a mistrial sua sponte upon the showing of manifest necessity, and absent an abuse of that discretion, appellate court will not disturb his or her decision. Rules Crim.Proc., Rule 605, 42 Pa.C.S.A.	It is within a trial judge's discretion to declare a mistrial sua sponte upon the showing of manifest necessity, and absent an abuse of that discretion, we will not disturb his or her decision.	Is the manifest necessity standard applicable when determining whether double jeopardy attaches following a trial court's sua sponte declaration of mistrial?
7205	State v. Gallegos, 149 N.M. 704, 710 (2011)	7	The double jeopardy clause of the federal and New Mexico constitutions affords three levels of protection to a criminal defendant: it protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal, it protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after conviction, and it protects against multiple punishments for the same offense. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; West's NMSA Const. Art. 2, S 15.	The double jeopardy clause of both the federal and state constitutions affords three levels of protection to a criminal defendant. " 'It protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal. It protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after conviction. And it protects against multiple punishments for the same offense.' "	How is a criminal defendant protected by double jeopardy clause?

7206	DePuy Synthes Sales v. Globus Med., 259 F. Supp. 3d 225, 235 (E.D. Pa. 2017)	8	Under Pennsylvania law, dismissal under gist of the action doctrine should take care not to preclude party's right to plead claims in alternative.	The courts agree that dismissals under the gist of the action doctrine should take care not to preclude a party's right to plead claims in the alternative, USG Ins.	Should dismissal under gist of the action doctrine take care not to preclude party's right to plead claims in alternative?
7209	Choharis v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co., 961 A.2d 1080, 1089 (D.C. 2008)	9	A cause of action that could be considered a tort independent of contract performance is a viable claim in the insurance context, if the injury to the insured is an independent injury over and above the mere disappointment of the insured's hope to receive his contracted-for benefit.	Although we reject the broad claim of bad faith as a viable tort, a cause of action that could be considered a tort independent of contract performance is a viable claim, even in the insurance context. As has been said, the injury to the plaintiff must be "an independent injury over and above the mere disappointment of plaintiff's hope to receive his contracted-for benefit."	Is a cause of action that could be considered a tort independent of contract performance a viable claim in the insurance context?
7211	In re Eagle Enterprises, 237 B.R. 269, 274 (E.D. Pa. 1999)	4	Under Pennsylvania law, "lease" transaction in which "lessee" cannot terminate "lease" during its term, but may thereafter become owner of "leased" goods for no additional or nominal additional consideration, does not create lease, but rather a security interest. 13 Pa.C.S.A. § 1201.	Pennsylvania law expressly provides that a "lease" transaction in which the "lessee" cannot terminate the "lease" during its term but may thereafter become the owner of the "leased" goods for no additional or nominal addition consideration does not create a lease, but rather creates a security interest. See 13 Pa.C.S.A. 1201.	Is lease a transaction in which a lessee cannot terminate a lease during its term?
7212	In re Lunan Family Restaurants, 194 B.R. 429, 450 (N.D. Ill. 1996)	69	Distinction between true lease and financing transaction is based upon economic substance of transaction and not, for example, upon locus of title, form of transaction or fact that transaction is denominated as "lease."	The distinction between a true lease and a financing transaction is based upon the economic substance of the transaction and not, for example, upon the locus of title, the form of the transaction or the fact that the transaction is denominated as a "lease."	Is the distinction between a true lease and financing transaction based upon economic substance of transaction?
7213	S.C. Rentals v. Arthur, 187 B.R. 502, 504–05 (D.S.C. 1995)	3	Intent of parties governs determination of whether putative consumer lease represents security agreement under South Carolina law.	The intent of the parties governs the determination of whether a putative lease represents a security agreement under South Carolina law.	Does intent of parties govern determination of whether a putative consumer lease represents a security agreement?
7214	LMV Leasing v. Conlin, 805 P.2d 189, 192–93 (Utah Ct. App. 1991)	1	Determination of whether agreement is lease or secured sales agreement is question of law when analysis is based upon a language of agreement itself and not upon extrinsic evidence.	We similarly view the determination of whether an agreement is a lease or a secured sales *193 agreement as a question of law when our analysis is based upon the language of the agreement itself and not upon extrinsic evidence.	On what is the determination of whether an agreement is a lease or secured sales agreement is a question of law when analysis based?
7218	State v. City of Hudson, 231 Minn. 127, 131 (1950)	5	Exemption of public property from taxation involves an exercise of the state's governmental power with respect to its internal economy.	'Exemption' of public property from taxation involves an exercise of the state's governmental power with respect to its internal economy.	Does the exemption of public property from taxation involve an exercise of the state's governmental power with respect to its internal economy?

7219	Brown v. Bd. of Ed., Whitesboro Cent. Sch. Dist., 110 Misc. 2d 164, 165–66, 441 N.Y.S.2d 781, 783 (Sup. Ct. 1981)	1	State legislature may delegate its taxing power, provided such delegation specifies the types of taxes which may be imposed thereunder and provide for their review. Education Law S 2023; Const. Art. 16, S 1.	The State Legislature may delegate its taxing power provided such delegation specifies the types of taxes which *166 may be imposed thereunder and provide for their review.	Should the state legislature delegating its taxing power specify the types of taxes which may be imposed thereunder and provide for their review?
7220	Dostal's Inc. v. Wright, 129 Vt. 322, 325, 277 A.2d 125, 126 (1971)	1	Delegation of authority from legislature to commissioner of taxes can validly take place only when associated with fixed limits on its exercise.	It is certainly the law that delegation of authority from the legislature to the commissioner of taxes can validly take place only when associated with fixed limits on its exercise.	Can the delegation of authority from legislature to commissioner of taxes validly take place when associated with fixed limits on its exercise?
7223	Day Cruises Mar., L.L.C v. Christus Spohn Health Sys., 267 S.W.3d 42, 61 (Tex. App. 2008)	31	Equitable subrogation, unlike contractual subrogation, does not depend on a contract but arises in every instance in which one person, not acting voluntarily, has paid a debt for which another was primarily liable and which in equity should have been paid by the latter.	Equitable subrogation, unlike contractual subrogation, "does not depend on a contract but arises in every instance in which one person, not acting voluntarily, has paid a debt for which another was primarily liable and which in equity should have been paid by the latter."	Does equitable subrogation depend on a contract?
7224	Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Blackford, 264 Ga. 612, 613, 449 S.E.2d 293, 295 (1994)	5	In suit alleging malicious prosecution that was dismissed by court without trial, evidence of guilt in fact of accused is admissible as defense to damage element of tort and, if established, is bar to recovery. O.C.G.A. S 51-7-40.	In a suit alleging malicious prosecution that was dismissed by the court without trial, evidence of guilt in fact of the accused is admissible as a defense to the damage element of the tort and, if so proved, is a bar to recovery.	Is the evidence of guilt or innocence admissible in a malicious prosecution action?
7226	Fleming v. Barnett Bank of E. Polk Cty., 490 So. 2d 126, 128 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1986)	3	A prematurely filed motion to dismiss for lack of prosecution does not constitute record activity sufficient to preclude dismissal on that ground; receding from Johnson v. Mortgage Investors of Washington, 410 So.2d 541 (Fla. 2 DCA).	I agree that a prematurely filed motion to dismiss for lack of prosecution does not constitute record activity sufficient to preclude dismissal on that ground.	Does a prematurely filed motion to dismiss for lack of prosecution constitute a record activity sufficient to preclude dismissal on that ground?
7227	Trzop v. Hudson, 43 N.E.3d 178, 187, 397 Ill.Dec. 851, 860 (Ill.App. 1 Dist., 2015)	2	A motion to dismiss based upon certain defects or defenses admits the legal sufficiency of the plaintiffs' complaint, but asserts an affirmative defense or other matter that avoids or defeats the plaintiffs' claim. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	63 "A motion to dismiss, pursuant to section 2-619 of the Code, admits the legal sufficiency of the plaintiffs' complaint, but asserts an affirmative defense or other matter that avoids or defeats the plaintiffs' claim.	Will a motion for involuntary dismissal based upon certain defects or defenses admit the sufficiency of the complaint?
7228	Cooper v. MRM Inv. Co., 367 F.3d 493, 498 (6th Cir. 2004)	2	Generally applicable state-law contract defenses like fraud, forgery, duress, mistake, lack of consideration or mutual obligation, or unconscionability, may invalidate arbitration agreements under Federal Arbitration Act (FAA). 9 U.S.C.A. S 2.	Thus, generally applicable state-law contract defenses like fraud, forgery, duress, mistake, lack of consideration or mutual obligation, or unconscionability, may invalidate arbitration agreements.	Do contract law defenses invalidate an arbitration agreement?
7231	Loftus v. Primero Mining Corp., 230 F. Supp. 3d 1209, 1229 (C.D. Cal. 2017)	12	The act of state doctrine in its traditional formulation precludes courts from inquiring into the validity of the public acts a recognized foreign sovereign power committed within its own territory.	"The act of state doctrine in its traditional formulation precludes the courts of this country from inquiring into the validity of the public acts a recognized foreign sovereign power committed within its own territory."	"Does the ""Act of state doctrine"" require acts of foreign sovereigns taken within their own jurisdictions to be deemed valid? "

7232	Bailey, Vaught, Robertson & Co. v. Remington Investments, 888 S.W.2d 860, 864 (Tex. App. 1994)	5	Even a variable-rate promissory note with interest rate that is determined by reference to bank's published prime rate is promise to pay a "sum certain" which, if it meets other requirements of negotiability, qualifies as negotiable instrument. V.T.C.A., Bus. & C. S 3.104.	A variable-rate promissory note with an interest rate that is determined by reference to a bank's published prime rate is a promise to pay a sum certain and, if it meets the other requirements of negotiability, is a negotiable instrument.	Is a note with a variable interest rate tied to the prime rate a negotiable instrument?
7233	Am. Liberty Ins. Co. v. AmSouth Bank, 825 So. 2d 786, 791 (Ala. 2002)	3	Subrogation statutes transfer to a surety all rights and remedies of the creditor that are even incidentally related to the underlying debt paid by the surety; thus, if a creditor had a right or remedy that is in some concrete way related to the transactions surrounding the underlying debt and that the creditor might have pursued in order to seek reimbursement of indebted funds that are not recovered, a surety that pays the underlying debt would be allowed to pursue that right or remedy in order to seek reimbursement. Code 1975, SS 8-3-2, 8-3-11.	These statutes are broadly written; they transfer to a surety all of the rights and remedies of the creditor that are even incidentally related to the underlying debt. In other words, if a creditor had a right or remedy that is in some concrete way related to the transactions surrounding the underlying debt, which the creditor might have pursued in order to seek reimbursement of indebted funds that are not recovered, a surety that pays the underlying debt would be allowed to pursue that right or remedy in order to seek reimbursement.	Do subrogation statutes transfer to a surety all rights and remedies of the creditor that are even incidentally related to the underlying debt paid by the surety?
7235	Wallick v. First State Bank of Farmington, 532 S.W.2d 520, 522 (Mo. App. 1976)	1	It is within the sound discretion of trial court to grant or refuse a continuance after permitting an amendment to pleadings during the course of trial, but such discretion is neither an absolute nor arbitrary discretion.	It is within the sound discretion of the trial court to grant or refuse a continuance after permitting an amendment to the pleadings during the course of the trial. Simon v. S. S. Kresge Co., 103 S.W.2d 523 (Mo.App.1937) (2). That discretion is neither an absolute nor arbitrary discretion.	Is it within the sound discretion of trial court to grant or refuse a continuance after permitting an amendment to pleadings during the course of trial?
7236	Goehring v. Superior Ct. (Bernier), 62 Cal. App. 4th 894, 911, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 105, 115 (1998)	19	Plaintiff is generally entitled to conduct discovery with regard to jurisdiction issue before court rules on motion to quash.	A plaintiff is generally entitled to conduct discovery with regard to a jurisdictional issue before a court rules on a motion to quash.	Is a plaintiff generally entitled to conduct discovery with regard to jurisdiction issue before court rules on motion to quash?
7238	In re Dissolution of Marriage of Leverock & Hamby, 23 So. 3d 424, 432 (Miss. 2009)	11	A judge does not have the discretion to deem a matter admitted, because a request for admissions is conclusively established upon a party's failure to answer within thirty days, or such time as the judge has determined appropriate; the trial court, may, however, permit withdrawal or amendment of the admission. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 36.	Thus, a judge does not have the discretion to deem the matter admitted, because a request is conclusively established upon a party's failure to answer within thirty days, or such time as the judge has determined appropriate. The trial court, may, however, permit withdrawal or amendment of the admission. Rule 36 is to be applied as written, but "it is not intended to be applied in Draconian fashion.	Is an admission conclusive in the action as to the party making it and absent leave of court to amend or withdraw the admission?

7239	Kneeland v. Adm'r, Unemployment Comp. Act, 38 Conn. 630, 632 (Conn. 1952)	1	A "pension" is a stated allowance or stipend made in consideration of past services or of surrender of rights or emoluments to one retired from service, and is not wages as that word is used in Unemployment Compensation Act provision wherein wages are defined as remuneration for employment. Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C.A. S 301 et seq.; Gen.St. 1949, S 7508.	A pension is a 'stated allowance or stipend made * * * in consideration of past services or of the surrender of rights or emoluments, to one retired from service.' Webster's New International Dictionary (2d Ed.). It is not wages as that word is used in our Unemployment Compensation Act. Wages are there defined as 'all remuneration for employment.' Cum.Sup.1951, 1324b. When a man is retired, his employment cases.	Is a pension a wage?
7240	Micro-Spy, Inc. v. Small, 9 A.D.3d 122, 125–26, 778 N.Y.S.2d 86, 89 (2004)	2	If summons without complaint contains inadequate notice of nature of action and relief demanded, inadequate notice is grounds to dismiss action. McKinney's CPLR 305(b).	However, if a summons without a complaint contains an inadequate notice of the nature of the action and the relief demanded, the inadequate *126 notice is grounds to dismiss the action	"If summons without complaint contains inadequate notice of nature of action and relief demanded, is inadequate notice grounds to dismiss the action?"
7242	Knoll v. Bd. of Regents of Univ. of Nebraska, 258 Neb. 1, 10 (1999)	18	State university owes a landowner-invitee duty to students to take reasonable steps to protect against foreseeable acts of hazing, including student abduction on the university's property, and the harm that naturally flows therefrom.	As such, we conclude the University owes a landowner-invitee duty to students to take reasonable steps to protect against foreseeable acts of hazing, including student abduction on the University's property, and the harm that naturally flows therefrom.	Does a University has a duty to protect students from hazing?
7243	Burckhardt v. Gen. Am. Life Ins. Co., 534 S.W.2d 57, 63 (Mo. App. 1975)	2	Party may plead in alternative or hypothetically, either in one count or in separate counts, and when two or more statements are made in alternative and one of them if made independently would be sufficient, pleading is not made insufficient by insufficiency of one or more of alternative statements.	A party may plead in the alternative or hypothetically, either in one count or in separate counts, and when two or more statements are made in the alternative and one of them if made independently would be sufficient, the pleading is not made insufficient by the insufficiency of one or more of the alternative statements.	"Can a party plead in the alternative or hypothetically, either in one count or in separate counts? "
7244	State v. C.S., 275 Or. App. 126, 130 (2015)	3	Under the menacing statute, because the victim's subjective state of mind is not a defined element of the offense, the standard is whether a reasonable person would have been placed in the requisite state of fear. West's Or.Rev. Stat. Ann. S 163.190.	Because the victim's subjective state of mind is not a defined element of the offense, the standard is whether a "reasonable person" would have been placed in the requisite state of fear.	Is the victims subjective state of mind an element of the offense under the menacing statute?
7245	Parker v. DeKalb Chrysler Plymouth, 673 F.2d 1178, 1181 (11th Cir. 1982)	4	Strict technical compliance with the Truth in Lending Act, regardless of actual injury, promotes the standardization of credit terms for the benefit of all borrowers, not just the individual claimant. Truth in Lending Act, S 102 et seq., 15 U.S.C.A. S 1601 et seq.	Strict technical compliance, regardless of actual injury, promotes the standardization of credit terms for the benefit of all borrowers, not just the individual claimant.	Does the strict technical compliance with credit terms regardless of actual injury benefit all borrowers?

7248	Choharis v. State Farm Fire & Cas. Co., 961 A.2d 1080, 1089 (D.C. 2008)	9	A cause of action that could be considered a tort independent of contract performance is a viable claim in the insurance context, if the injury to the insured is an independent injury over and above the mere disappointment of the insured's hope to receive his contracted-for benefit.	Although we reject the broad claim of bad faith as a viable tort, a cause of action that could be considered a tort independent of contract performance is a viable claim, even in the insurance context. As has been said, the injury to the plaintiff must be "an independent injury over and above the mere disappointment of plaintiff's hope to receive his contracted-for benefit."	MEMORANDUM # 9841. QuestionIs a cause of action that could be considered a tort independent of contract performance a viable claim in the insurance context?
7249	Barthelmues v. Ives, 194 Misc. 13, 14, 85 N.Y.S.2d 35, 36 (City Ct. 1948)	2	The omission of a venue or the statement of an improper venue in an affidavit does not invalidate the oath or render the affidavit a nullity when it is shown by proof aliunde that it was duly administered by a proper officer within the jurisdiction.	It has been long since held that the omission of a venue or the statement of an improper venue in an affidavit does not invalidate the oath or render the affidavit a nullity when it is shown by proof aliunde that it was duly administered by a proper officer within the jurisdiction.	Does omission of a venueor the or the statement of an improper venue is an affidavit render it null?
7252	Stone v. Lawyers Title Ins. Corp., 554 S.W.2d 183, 185 (Tex. 1977)	1	Actionable fraud requires that material representation was made, that it was false, that when made speaker knew it was false or made it recklessly without any knowledge of truth and as a positive assertion, that speaker made it with intention that it should be acted upon, and that party acted in reliance upon it and thereby suffered injury.	The court of civil appeals correctly stated the general rule regarding the elements of actionable fraud: (1) that a material representation was made; (2) that it was false; (3) that when the speaker made it he knew it was false or made it recklessly without any knowledge of the truth and as a positive assertion; (4) that he made it with the intention that it should be acted upon by the party; (5) that the party acted in reliance upon it; (6) that he thereby suffered injury.	What are the elements of actionable fraud?
7254	Ball v. Rao, 48 S.W.3d 332, 339 (Tex. App. 2001)	12	The imposition of sanctions for violations of orders in limine is left to the sound discretion of the trial court, and the court of appeals will not reverse such sanctions absent a clear abuse of discretion.	The imposition of sanctions for violations of orders in limine is left to the sound discretion of the trial court and we, as an appellate court, will not reverse a trial court's sanctions absent a clear abuse of discretion	Is the imposition of sanctions for violations of orders in limine left to the sound discretion of the trial court?
7256	DeLuna v. Burciaga, 223 Ill. 2d 49, 59 (Ill. 2006)	1	A motion to dismiss based upon certain defects or defenses admits the legal sufficiency of the plaintiffs' complaint, but asserts an affirmative defense or other matter that avoids or defeats the plaintiffs' claim. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-619.	A motion to dismiss, pursuant to section 2-619 of the Code, admits the legal sufficiency of the plaintiffs' complaint, but asserts an affirmative defense or other matter that avoids or defeats the plaintiffs' claim.	Can a motion to dismiss base upon certain defects or defenses admit the legal sufficiency of all well-pleaded facts?

7258	Hurd v. Monsanto Co., 908 F. Supp. 604, 608 (S.D. Ind. 1995)	3	Indiana Workmen's Compensation Act provides compensation for personal injury or death by accident arising out of and in course of employment, and Indiana's Occupational Disease Act provides compensation for disablement or death by occupational disease arising out of and in course of employment. West's A.I.C. 22-3-1-1 et seq., 22-3-7-2.	Exclusivity Provisions of the Indiana Workmen's Compensation Act and Occupational Disease Act. First, the WCA provides compensation for personal injury or death by accident arising out of and in the course of employment. I.C. 22-3-1-1 et seq. (Burns 1992) The second, the ODA, provides compensation for disablement or death by an occupational disease arising out of and in the course of employment.	Does the workmen's compensation act provide compensation for personal injury or death by accident arising out of and in the course of employment?
7259	Brand v. Butts, 242 A.D. 149, 150, 273 N.Y.S. 181, 183 (App. Div. 1934)	3	Rationale of depositions, taken pursuant to statute, is an old chancery practice relating to bill of discovery, entitling party to sift his adversary's conscience. Civil Practice Act, S 288.	The rationale of depositions taken pursuant to statute is founded in the old chancery practice relating to a bill of discovery, entitling the party, as it has been quaintly expressed, 'to sift the conscience of his adversary.'	Is the rationale of depositions an old chancery practice relating to a bill of discovery?
7260	Kala Investments v. Sklar, 538 So. 2d 909, 917 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1989)	15	Policy behind doctrine of equitable subrogation is to prevent unjust enrichment by assuring that person who in equity and good conscience is responsible for debt is ultimately answerable for its discharge.	The policy behind the doctrine is to prevent unjust enrichment by assuring that the person who in equity and good conscience is responsible for the debt is ultimately answerable for its discharge.	Is the prevention of unjust enrichment the policy behind the doctrine of equitable subrogation?
7261	Chenango Cnty. Nat. Bank & Tr. Co. of Norwich v. Lyon, 190 Misc. 358, 359, 74 N.Y.S.2d 382, 384 (Sup. Ct. 1947)	1	Great liberality is permitted in the examination of an adverse party before trial particularly when the party sought to be examined stands in a fiduciary capacity.	Great liberality is permitted in the examination of an adverse party before trial. This is particularly so when the party sought to be examined stands in a fiduciary capacity.	Is great liberality permitted in the examination of an adverse party before trial particularly when the party sought to be examined stands in a fiduciary capacity?
7262	McCormick v. Bd. of Cty. Comm'rs of Shawnee Cty., 272 Kan. 627, 647 (2001)	32	A defendant may move for dismissal for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted; procedurally, such a motion shall be treated as one for summary judgment and disposed of as provided in statute governing summary judgment motions. Rules Civ.Proc., K.S.A. 60-212(b)(6), 60-256.	[32] Under K.S.A. 60-212(b)(6), a defendant may move for dismissal for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Procedurally, such a motion "shall be treated as one for summary judgment and disposed of as provided in K.S.A. 60-256 and amendments thereto...."	When can a motion be treated as one for summary judgement?
7263	State v. Fowler, 197 N.C. App. 1, 16, 676 S.E.2d 523, 538 (2009)	21	The objective the principle of double jeopardy, or former jeopardy, is to allow the prosecution one complete opportunity to convict a defendant in a fair trial. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; West's N.C.G.S.A. Const. Art. 1, S 19.	The objective is to allow the prosecution one complete opportunity to convict a defendant in a fair trial."	"The objective the principle of double jeopardy, or former jeopardy, is to allow the prosecution one complete opportunity to convict a defendant in a fair trial?"
7264	Breaker v. U.S., 977 F. Supp. 2d 921, 934 (D. Minn. 2013)	11	Before a party can challenge an action by the United States Forest Service (USFS) in federal court, it must exhaust administrative remedies. Department of Agriculture Reorganization Act of 1994, S 212(e), 7 U.S.C.A. S 6912(e).	Before a party can challenge an action by the Forest Service in federal court, it must exhaust administrative remedies.	Does a party have to exhaust administrative remedies before it can challenge an action by the United States Forest Service (USFS) in federal court?

7265	Burke v. United States, 85 F. Supp. 93, 96 (E.D. Pa. 1948)	5	Act authorizing national service life insurance should be liberally construed in favor of insured soldier and to carry out his intention. National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940, S 601 et seq., 38 U.S.C.A. S 801 et seq.	The Courts have adopted, since World War I, the principle that the Act of Congress authorizing National Service Life Insurance should be liberally construed in favor of the insured soldier, and to carry out his intention.	Should the act authorizing National Service Life Insurance be liberally construed in favor of insured soldiers and to carry out his intention?
7266	State Bar of California v. Statile, 168 Cal. App. 4th 650, 662–63 (2008)	6	Statutory subrogation arises by an act of the legislature that vests a right of subrogation with a party or category of parties, and it is governed by the terms of the statute under which it is claimed as a matter of statutory construction.	" 'Statutory subrogation,' as its name suggests, arises by an act of the 82 legislature that vests a right of subrogation with a party or *663 category of parties, and it is governed by the terms of the statute under which it is claimed as a matter of statutory construction."	Does statutory subrogation arise by an act of the legislature that vests a right of subrogation with a party or category of parties?
7267	Stephens v. Stovall & Co., 184 Ga. App. 78, 78 (1987)	1	Statute providing for automatic dismissal when no written order is taken for a period of five years is mandatory and dismissal is automatic and by operation of law, and any further action other than dismissal is a mere nullity. O.C.G.A. S 9-2-60(b).	OCGA 9-2-60(b) provides for automatic dismissal when no written order is taken for a period of five years. This is mandatory and dismissal is automatic and by operation of law. Any further action other than dismissal is a mere nullity.	Is a statute providing for automatic dismissal when no written order is taken for a period of five years mandatory and dismissal is automatic?
7268	Mahler v. Szucs, 135 Wash. 2d 398, 411 (Wash. 1998)	1	"Subrogation" is an equitable doctrine the essential purpose of which is to provide for a proper allocation of payment responsibility; it seeks to impose ultimate responsibility for a wrong or loss on the party who, in equity and good conscience, ought to bear it.	Subrogation is an equitable doctrine the essential purpose of which is to provide for a proper allocation of payment responsibility. It seeks to impose ultimate responsibility for a wrong or loss on the party who, in equity and good conscience, ought to bear it.	"Does the equitable doctrine of subrogation seek to impose responsibility for a loss on a party who, in equity and good conscience, should bear it? "
7269	Soto v. Sea-Rd. Int'l, 942 S.W.2d 67, 72 (Tex. App. 1997)	2	Basic elements of bailment are: delivery of personal property by one person to another in trust for specific purpose; acceptance of such delivery; express or implied contract that the trust will be carried out; and understanding under terms of contract that property will be returned to transferor or dealt with as transferor directs.	The basic elements of bailment are: (1) the delivery of personal property by one person to another in trust for a specific purpose; (2) acceptance of such delivery; (3) an express or implied contract that the trust will be carried out; and (4) an understanding under the terms of the contract that the property will be returned to the transferor or dealt with as the transferor directs.	What are the elements of a bailment?
7271	In re Flamingo 55, 378 B.R. 893, 906 (D. Nev. 2007)	6	Subrogation is essentially an equitable assignment of a claim, made without regard to whether the claim assigned has actually been discharged at law.	In short, subrogation is essentially an equitable assignment of a claim, made without regard to whether the claim assigned has actually been discharged at law.	"Is subrogation essentially an equitable assignment of a claim, made without regard to whether the claim assigned has actually been discharged at law?"

7272	In re Bill Heard Enterprises, 423 B.R. 771, 787 (N.D. Ala. 2010)	32	Overall fairness of applying equitable subrogation should be assessed with a view to the purpose of the doctrine, which is to prevent unjust enrichment; if this goal is not accomplished, the doctrine should not be applied.	The overall fairness of applying equitable subrogation should be assessed with a view to the purpose of the doctrine, which is to prevent unjust enrichment. If this goal is not accomplished, the doctrine should not be applied.	"Should the overall fairness of applying equitable subrogation be assessed with a view to the purpose of the doctrine, which is to prevent unjust enrichment?"
7273	Presswood v. Welsh, 271 Ga. App. 459, 460 (2005)	6	When disputed evidence is admissible for any reason, a trial court does not abuse its discretion in denying a motion in limine and admitting it.	Second, when disputed evidence is admissible for any reason, a trial court does not abuse its discretion in denying a motion in limine and admitting it.	"When disputed evidence is admissible for any reason, does a trial court abuse its discretion in denying a motion in limine and admitting it?"
7274	Doe v. Exxon Mobil Corp., 69 F. Supp. 3d 75, 87 (D.D.C. 2014)	12	Type of official act that implicates the act of state doctrine is that which is by nature distinctly sovereign, i.e., conduct that cannot be undertaken by a private individual or entity.	The type of official act that implicates the act of state doctrine is that which is "by nature distinctly sovereign, i.e., conduct that cannot be undertaken by a private individual or entity."	Is the type of official act that implicates the act of state doctrine that which is by its nature distinctly sovereign?
7275	Saticoy Bay LLC Series 2021 Gray Eagle Way v. JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A., 388 P.3d 226, 230 (2017)	8	Because the law favors trial on the merits, dismissal with prejudice may not be warranted where delay in bringing the case to trial is justified by the circumstances of the case. Nev. R. Civ. P. 41(e).	However, "[b]ecause the law favors trial on the merits, ... dismissal with prejudice may not be warranted where ... delay is justified by the circumstances of the case." Home Sav. Ass'n v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 109 Nev.	"Because the law favors trial on the merits, can dismissal with prejudice not be warranted where delay in bringing the case to trial is justified by the circumstances of the case? "
7276	Explore Info. Servs. v. Court Info. Sys., 636 N.W.2d 50, 57 (Iowa 2001)	3	In ruling on an application to adjudicate law points, the district court is limited to the uncontroverted facts found in the pleadings. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 116.	Because it was ruling on an application to adjudicate law points, the district court was limited to the uncontroverted facts found in the pleadings.	"In ruling on an application to adjudicate law points, is the district court limited to the uncontroverted facts found in the pleadings? "
7277	Greer v. Buzgheia, 141 Cal. App. 4th 1150, 1156 (2006)	4	A motion in limine is not expressly authorized by statute, but is within the trial court's inherent power to entertain and grant.	The motion in limine is not expressly authorized by statute, but is within the trial court's "inherent power to entertain and grant."	Is a motion in limine expressly authorized by statute and not within the trial court's inherent power to entertain and grant?
7278	Rawson v. City of Omaha, 212 Neb. 159, 159–60 (1982)	5	Doctrine of subrogation is not administered by courts of equity as a legal right, but the principle is applied to subserve the ends of justice and to do equity in the particular case under consideration.	The doctrine of subrogation is not administered by courts of equity as a legal right, but the principle is applied to subserve *160 the ends of justice and to do equity in the particular case under consideration.	Is the doctrine of equitable subrogation applied to serve ends of justice and to do equity in a particular case under consideration?

7279	Marshall v. Wait, 628 F.2d 1255, 1258 (9th Cir. 1980)	2	An industry's history of regulation is a relevant factor in determining constitutionality of subjecting its operators to nonconsensual warrantless searches; of perhaps equal importance is the pervasiveness of federal regulation and the public interest in enforcement. Federal Mine Safety and Health Amendments Act of 1977, S 103, 30 U.S.C.A. S 813.	An industry's history of regulation is a relevant factor in determining the constitutionality of subjecting its operators to nonconsensual warrantless searches; for some it is the critical factor. See, e. g., Colonnade Catering Corp. v. United States, supra (liquor industry); United States v. Raub, slip op. p. 3332 (9th Cir. May 22, 1980). Of perhaps equal importance is the pervasiveness of federal regulation and the public interest in enforcement.	Is an industry's history of regulation a relevant factor in determining the constitutionality of subjecting its operators to nonconsensual warrantless searches?
7280	Employers Health Ins. v. Gen. Cas. Co. of Wisconsin, 161 Wis. 2d 937, 956, 469 N.W.2d 172, 180 (1991)	11	Equitable subrogation is permitted only when rights of those seeking subrogation have greater equity than rights of those who oppose it; right to subrogation arises when person other than mere volunteer pays debt which in equity and good conscience should be satisfied by another.	Subrogation is permitted only when "the rights of those seeking subrogation have greater equity than the rights of those who oppose it." First National Bank of Columbus v. Hansen, 84 Wis.2d 422, 429, 267 N.W.2d 367 (1978). The right to subrogation arises "when a person other than a mere volunteer pays a debt which in equity and good conscience should be satisfied by another."	Is subrogation based on equity and permitted only when the rights of those seeking subrogation have greater equity than the rights of those who oppose it?
7281	Gunby v. Yates, 214 Ga. 17, 18–19 (1958)	1	A "tax" is an enforced contribution exacted pursuant to legislative authority for purpose of raising revenue to be used for public or governmental purposes, and not as payment for a special privilege or service rendered by a public officer, which is a "fee."	A tax is an enforced contribution exacted pursuant to legislative authority for the purpose of raising revenue to be used for public or governmental purposes, and not as payment for a special privilege or a service rendered.	Are taxes payments for a special privilege or a special service rendered?
7285	Janiga v. Questar Capital Corp., 615 F.3d 735, 743 (7th Cir. 2010)	11	Parties are entitled to opt in a contract for an alternative method of dispute resolution that involves neither courts nor juries.	But that argument proves much too much; parties are entitled to opt in a contract for an alternative method of dispute resolution that involves neither courts nor juries.	Can parties opt into a contract for an alternative method of dispute resolution that involves neither courts nor juries?
7286	J & B Slurry Seal Co. v. Mid-S. Aviation, 88 N.C. App. 1, 11 (1987)	6	"Subrogation" is equitable remedy in which one steps into place of another and takes over right to claim monetary damages to extent that other could have, while "assignment" is formal transfer of property or property rights.	Subrogation is an equitable remedy in which one steps into the place of another and takes over the right to claim monetary damages to the extent that the other could have, while an assignment is the formal transfer of property or property rights.	Does formal transfer of property or property rights constitute assignment?

7288	Fin. Freedom Sr. Funding Corp. v. Horrocks, 294 S.W.3d 749, 755 (Tex. App. 2009)	11	A "life estate " is created by a deed or will where the language of the instrument manifests an intention on the part of the grantor or testator to pass to a grantee or devisee a right to possess, use, or enjoy property during the period of the grantee's life.	Generally, a life estate is created by a deed or will where the language of the instrument manifests an intention on the part of the grantor or testator to pass to a grantee or devisee a right to possess, use, or enjoy property during the period of the grantee's life.	How are life estates created?
7289	Baker v. Baker, 274 S.W.2d 322, 326 (Mo. App. 1954)	12	Reasonable notice to litigant, where there exists even possibility of action adverse to his interests, is deemed to be of essence of fairness and justice and is prerequisite to lawful exercise of court's power.	In our system of jurisprudence reasonable notice to a litigant (when there exists even the possibility of action adverse to his interests) is deemed to be of the essence of fairness and justice'- 'a prerequisite to the lawful exercise of the court's power'- 'basic in simple fundamental justice.'	What is a prerequisite to the lawful exercise of the courts power?
7290	Chaplin v. Sanders, 100 Wash. 2d 853, 859–60, 676 P.2d 431, 435 (1984)	3	Doctrine of adverse possession was formulated at law for the purpose of, among others, assuring maximum utilization of land, encouraging rejection of stale claims, and, most importantly, quieting titles.	The doctrine of adverse possession was formulated at law for the purpose of, among others, assuring maximum *860 utilization of land, encouraging the rejection of stale claims and, most importantly, quieting titles.	What purpose does the doctrine of adverse possession serve?
7294	WorldCrisa Corp. v. Armstrong, 129 F.3d 71, 74–75 (2d Cir. 1997)	6	If arbitration clause is narrowly worded and dispute concerns matter collateral to contract calling for arbitration, court should test presumption of arbitrability by reviewing allegations underlying dispute and by asking whether claim alleged implicates issues of contract construction.	If an arbitration clause is narrowly worded and the dispute concerns a matter collateral *75 to the contract calling for arbitration, "a court should test the presumption [of arbitrability] by reviewing the allegations underlying the dispute and by asking whether the claim alleged implicates issues of contract construction...."	Can parties be forced to arbitration if that was not their true agreement?
7295	Powerhouse Wholesale Elec. Supply v. Spartan Bldg. Corp., 525 So. 2d 1216, 1219–20 (La. Ct. App. 1988)	3	Assignment of Accounts Receivable Act is not the exclusive method of assigning accounts receivable, but provides an additional method for doing so, but if the parties file a notice of assignment, the Act shall provide the exclusive method by which the assignee may perfect a security interest in the accounts receivable assigned. LSA-R.S. 9:3101-9:3111.	9:3101 through 9:3111 is not to be considered as the exclusive method of assigning accounts receivable, but instead provides an additional method for doing so. However, if the parties file a notice of assignment, then the Act shall provide the exclusive method by which the assignee may perfect a security interest in those accounts receivable assigned. La.R.S. 9:3109.	Does the Assignment of Accounts Receivable Act establish an exclusive system of perfecting assignments of accounts receivable?

7298	Coleman v. State Med. Bd. of Ohio, 2007-Ohio-5007	4	A conviction for embezzlement requires proof of the identity of the corporation or private person whose goods and money the accused has embezzled; proof as to ownership of the money and the extent of the agency relationship which existed are essential to distinguishing embezzlement from larceny.	A conviction for embezzlement requires proof of the identity of the corporation or private person whose goods and money the accused has embezzled. Bunkley v. State, 495 So.2d 1, 3-4 (Miss.1986). Proof as to ownership of the money and the extent of the agency relationship which existed are essential to distinguishing embezzlement from larceny.	How is larceny distinguished from embezzlement?
7299	People ex rel. Dep't of Transportation v. Dry Canyon Enterprises, LLC, 211 Cal. App. 4th 486, 493-94, 149 Cal. Rptr. 3d 601, 607 (2012)	9	"Goodwill" is the amount by which a business's overall value exceeds the value of its constituent assets, often due to a recognizable brand name, a sterling reputation, or an ideal location.	Goodwill is the amount by which a *494 business's overall value exceeds the value of its constituent assets, often due to a recognizable brand name, a sterling reputation, or an ideal location.	"Are ideal location, reputation, and brand name elements of Goodwill?"
7303	Yancey v. Lea, 354 N.C. 48, 53, 550 S.E.2d 155, 158 (2001)	3	Difference between negligence and gross negligence is not in degree or magnitude of inadvertence or carelessness, but rather is intentional wrongdoing or deliberate misconduct affecting the safety of others; an act or conduct rises to the level of gross negligence when the act is done purposely and with knowledge that such act is a breach of duty to others, i.e., a conscious disregard of the safety of others, but an act or conduct moves beyond the realm of negligence when the injury or damage itself is intentional.	Thus, the difference between the two is not in degree or magnitude of inadvertence or carelessness, but rather is intentional wrongdoing or deliberate misconduct affecting the safety of others. An act or conduct rises to the level of gross negligence when the act is done purposely and with knowledge that such act is a breach of duty to others, i.e., a conscious disregard of the safety of others. An act or conduct moves beyond the realm of negligence when the injury or damage itself is intentional.	Is there a substantial difference between ordinary negligence and gross negligence?
7308	Monsanto Co. v. Pollution Control Bd., 67 Ill. 2d 276, 289 (1977)	4	If Pollution Control Board finds that a regulation imposes an arbitrary or unreasonable hardship on an individual polluter, Board may grant a variance; such a decision is essentially quasi-judicial and, as such, must be supported by written opinion with specific findings which are entitled to presumption that they are prima facie true and correct. S.H.A. ch. 110, S 274 ch. 1111/2, S 1035.	Section 35 of the Environmental Protection Act gives the Board authority to decide if a regulation imposes an arbitrary or unreasonable hardship on an individual polluter. If the Board finds such hardship, it may then grant a variance. This decision is essentially quasi-judicial, and, as such, must be supported by a written opinion with specific findings which are entitled to a presumption that they are prima facie true and correct (Ill.Rev.Stat.1975, ch. 110, par. 274).	Can the Pollution Control Board grant a variance if a regulation imposes an arbitrary or unreasonable hardship on an individual polluter under Section 35 of the Environmental Protection Act?

7309	Herman Grant Co. v. Washington, 214 So. 3d 266, 271–72 (Miss. 2017)	5	The venue statute does not allow the piling of acts or events to establish venue, but rather, specifically requires a substantial alleged act, omission, or injury-causing event to have happened in a particular jurisdiction in order for venue to be proper there. Miss. Code Ann. S 11-11-3.	"The venue statute does not allow the 'piling' of acts or events to establish *272 venue. It specifically requires a substantial alleged act, omission, or injury-causing event to have happened in a particular jurisdiction in order for venue to be proper there."	Must actions in a specific location be substantial to establish venue?
7310	Avery v. Powell, 806 F. Supp. 7, 9 (D.N.H. 1992)	3	Although convicted prisoners do not forfeit all constitutional rights upon conviction, their rights are subject to restrictions and limitations due to fact of confinement and legitimate goals and policies of penal institution.	Although convicted prisoners do not forfeit all constitutional rights upon conviction, their rights are subject to restrictions and limitations due to the fact of confinement and the legitimate goals and policies of the penal institution.	Do convicted prisoners forfeit all of their constitutional rights?
7312	Hurley v. Port Blakely Tree Farms L.P., 182 Wash. App. 753, 772 (2014)	23	To establish intentional trespass, a plaintiff must show: (1) an invasion of property affecting an interest in exclusive possession; (2) an intentional act; (3) reasonable foreseeability that the act would disturb the plaintiff's possessory interest; and (4) actual and substantial damages.	To establish intentional trespass, a plaintiff must show (1) an invasion of property affecting an interest in exclusive possession; (2) an intentional act; (3) reasonable foreseeability that the act would disturb the plaintiff's possessory interest; and (4) actual and substantial damages.	When does intentional trespass occur?
7313	Bacus v. Lake Cty., 138 Mont. 69, 78, 354 P.2d 1056, 1061 (1960)	5	When legislature confers authority on an administrative agency it must lay down policy or reasons behind statute and also prescribe standards and guards for grant of power which has been made to administrative agency.	When the legislature confers authority upon an administrative agency it must lay down the policy or reasons behind the statute and also prescribe standards and guides for the grant of power which has been made to the administrative agency.	What must the legislature do to lawfully confer authority upon an administrative agency?
7315	State v. Harvell, 45 N.C. App. 243, 248 (1980)	13	A father is guilty of statutory felony of incest if he has sexual intercourse, either habitual or a single instance, with a woman or girl whom he knows to be his daughter. G.S. S 14-178.	A father violates G.S. 14-178 and by reason thereof is guilty of the statutory felony of incest if he has sexual intercourse, either habitual or in a single instance, with a woman or girl whom he knows to be his daughter.	Does a single act of sexual intercourse between a father and his daughter amount to incest?
7316	Toscano v. Delgado, 506 S.W.2d 317, 320 (Tex. Civ. App. 1974)	6	A grantor who remains in possession of property after he has delivered a deed to such property will ordinarily be presumed to be holding the land in subordination to the rights of his grantees, rather than adversely to such grantees' rights. Vernon's Ann.Civ.St. art. 5510.	A grantor who remains in possession of property after he has delivered a deed to such property will ordinarily be presumed to be holding the land in subordination to the rights of his grantees, rather than adversely to such grantees' rights.	Does a grantor who remains in possession of property after he has delivered the deed to such property hold such property adversely?

7317	Ayissi-Etoh v. Fannie Mae, 712 F.3d 572, 578 (D.C. Cir. 2013)	12	Under District of Columbia law, to meet the requirements for defamation, a plaintiff must prove (1) that he was the subject of a false and defamatory statement; (2) that the statement was published to a third party; (3) that publishing the statement was at least negligent; and (4) that the plaintiff suffered either actual or legal harm.	To meet the requirements for defamation under D.C. law, a plaintiff must prove (i) that he was the subject of a false and defamatory statement; (ii) that the statement was published to a third party; (iii) that publishing the statement was at least negligent; and (iv) that the plaintiff suffered either actual or legal harm.	Is harm a necessary element of a defamation claim?
7318	Hayes v. Irwin, 541 F. Supp. 397, 415 (N.D. Ga. 1982)	7	"Partnership" is a voluntary agreement between two or more persons to contribute their money, property, or skill to the operation of a joint business or common enterprise for their common benefit and to divide the profits and bear the losses in certain proportions. Ga.Code, SS 75-101, 75-102.	Generally speaking, a partnership is a voluntary agreement between two or more persons to contribute their money, property, or skill to the operation of a joint business or common enterprise for their common benefit and to divide the profits and bear the losses in certain proportions.	Is a partnership voluntary in nature?
7319	Snyder v. Callaghan, 168 W. Va. 265, 277 (1981)	12	Relation of landlord and tenant may be proved by very slight evidence, including payment of rent, but neither actual payment of rent nor express contract to pay it is essential to existence of tenancy.	The relation of landlord and tenant may be proved by very slight evidence, including the payment of rent, Virginia Mining & Import Co. v. Hoover, 82 Va. 449, 4 S.E. 689 (1886), but neither actual payment of rent nor an express contract to pay it is essential to the existence of a tenancy.	Could the relationship between the landlord and tenant be proved upon slight evidence?
7320	Stowe v. Fritzie Hotels, 44 Cal. 2d 416, 421, 282 P.2d 890, 893 (1955)	5	Chief distinction between "tenant" and "lodger" lies in character of possession, and tenant has exclusive legal possession of premises and is responsible for their care and condition, whereas lodger has only right to use premises, subject to landlord's retention of control and right of access to them.	The chief distinction between a tenant and a lodger lies in the character of possession. A 'tenant' has exclusive legal possession of premises and is responsible for their care and condition. A 'lodger' has only the right to use the premises, subject to the landlord's retention of control and right of access to them.	What is the distinction between a tenant and a lodger?
7321	Robert Lawrence Co. v. Devonshire Fabrics, 271 F.2d 402, 410 (2d Cir. 1959)	6	Any doubts as to construction of Arbitration Act ought to be resolved in line with its liberal policy of promoting arbitration both to accord with original intention of parties and to help ease congestion of court calendars. 9 U.S.C.A. SS 2, 3.	Finally, an doubts as to the construction of the Act ought to be resolved in line with its liberal policy of promoting arbitration both to accord with the original intention of the parties and to help ease the current congestion of court calendars.	Is arbitration a means to ease court congestion?
7322	State of Nev. ex rel. Dep't of Ins. v. Contract Servs. Network, 873 F. Supp. 385, 393 (D. Nev. 1994)	20	States possess broad authority under police power to regulate employment relationship in order to protect workers within state.	States possess broad authority under the police power to regulate employment relationships in order to protect workers within the state.	Do states possess broad authority under police power to regulate employment relationship within the state?

7323	Wilson v. Comm'r, 161 F.2d 661, 664 (7th Cir. 1947)	5	Generally, a "partnership" is created when persons join together their money, goods, labor, or skill for purpose of carrying on a trade, profession, or business, and when there is a community of interest in profits and losses.	A partnership is generally said to be created when persons join together their money, goods, labor, or skill for the purpose of carrying on a trade, profession, or business and when there is community of interest in the profits and losses.'	"Are money, property, skill and labor required in a partnership?"
7324	Ross v. Waters, 332 Ga. App. 623, 625 (2015)	3	The determination of venue must be based upon the facts as they exist at the time that suit is initiated, not as the facts may have existed at some previous point in time.	"[T]he determination of venue must be based upon the facts as they exist at the time that suit is initiated, not as the facts may have existed at some previous point in time."	Is the determination of venue based on facts as they exist at the time the suit is initiated or that may have existed at some point in time?
7326	Merrion v. Jicarilla Apache Tribe, 455 U.S. 130, 141 (1982)	5	Indian tribe's authority to tax non-Indians who conduct business on reservation does not simply derive from tribe's power to exclude such persons, but is inherent power necessary to tribal self-government and territorial management. Indian Reorganization Act, S 16, 25 U.S.C.A. S 476.	Adhering to this understanding, we conclude that the Tribe's authority to tax non-Indians who conduct business on the reservation does not simply derive from the Tribe's power to exclude such persons, but is an inherent power necessary to tribal self-government and territorial management.	Does an Indian tribe have inherent power to impose a tax?
7327	Washington v. Confederated Bands & Tribes of Yakima Indian Nation, 439 U.S. 463, 500–01, 99 S. Ct. 740, 761, 58 L. Ed. 2d 740 (1979)	12	Unique legal status of Indian tribes under federal law permits the federal government to enact legislation singling out tribal Indians, which might otherwise be constitutionally offensive, but states do not enjoy the same unique relationship with Indians. U.S.C.A.Const. Amend. 14.	It is settled that "the unique legal status of Indian tribes under *501 federal law" permits the Federal Government to enact legislation singling out tribal Indians, legislation that might otherwise be constitutionally offensive. Morton v. Mancari, 417 U.S. 535, 551–552, 94 S.Ct. 2474, 2483, 41 L.Ed.2d 290.States do not enjoy this same unique relationship with Indians, but Chapter 36 is not simply another state law.	What is the status of Indian nations or tribes?
7328	Chiriboga v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 96 S.W.3d 673, 677 (Tex. App. 2003)	2	Plaintiffs are accorded right to choose venue first; as long as suit is initially filed in county of proper venue, that is, the county is at least a permissive venue and no mandatory provision applies, plaintiff's venue choice cannot be disturbed.	Plaintiffs are accorded the right to choose venue first; as long as suit is initially filed in a county of proper venue (i.e., the county is at least a permissive venue and no mandatory provision applies), the plaintiff's venue choice cannot be disturbed.	Does a plaintiff have the right to choose venue?
7329	Oleen v. Oleen, 15 Utah 2d 326, 329 (1964)	2	Policy that full faith and credit be given to decrees of other states is not controlling factor in child custody case where conditions arising subsequent to foreign decree justify change of custody.	The policy that full faith and credit be given the decrees of other states is not a controlling factor where conditions arising subsequent to the foreign decree justify a change.	What is the controlling factor in child custody cases?

7330	N. L. R. B. v. Drivers, Chauffeurs, Helpers, Local Union No. 639, 362 U.S. 274, 279 (1960)	2	Basic to the right guaranteed to employees to form, join, or assist labor organizations, is the right to engage in concerted activities to persuade other employees to join for their mutual aid and protection. National Labor Relations Act, S 7 as amended by National Labor Relations Act, 1947, S 101, 29 U.S.C.A. S 157.	Basic to the right guaranteed to employees in s 7 to form, join or assist labor organizations, is the right to 710 engage in concerted activities to persuade other employees to join for their mutual aid and protection.	"Does an employee have a right to form, join, or assist labor organizations?"
7331	Simpson v. Laytart, 962 S.W.2d 392, 394 (Ky. 1998)	2	Abuse of process differs from malicious prosecution, in that malicious prosecution consists of commencing action or causing process to issue maliciously or without justification, while abuse of process consists of employment of legal process for some other purpose than that which it was intended by the law to effect.	Abuse of process differs from malicious prosecution in that malicious prosecution consists of commencing an action or causing process to issue maliciously or without justification. Abuse of process, however, consists of "the employment of legal process for some other purpose than that which it was intended by the law to effect."	How is an action for malicious prosecution distinguished from an action for abuse of process?
7333	Lake Cty. Riverboat L.P. ex rel. FRGP v. Illinois Gaming Bd., 313 Ill. App. 3d 943, 952 (2000)	16	Under transactional venue principles, two dependent variables must be analyzed to determine whether a particular venue is proper: (1) the nature of the cause of action and (2) the place where the cause of action springs into existence.	Under transactional venue principles, two dependent variables must be analyzed to determine whether a particular venue is proper. Those variables are (1) the nature of the cause of action and (2) the place where the cause of action springs into existence.	What are the factors that determine whether venue is proper under the transactional prong?
7334	Pendergast v. Meade Elec. Co., 2013 IL App (1st) 121317, ¶ 21 (2013)	8	When a plaintiff chooses to litigate his cause of action in his home forum or in the forum in which his accident or injury occurred, it is reasonable to assume that the forum was chosen for reasons of convenience; however, when the plaintiff is foreign to his chosen forum or the events that gave rise to the litigation did not occur in that forum, that assumption is less reasonable and his choice is afforded less deference. S.H.A. 735 ILCS 5/2-101.	When a plaintiff chooses to litigate his cause of action in his home forum or in the forum in which his accident or injury occurred, it is reasonable to assume that the forum was chosen for reasons of convenience. Dawdy, 207 Ill.2d at 173, 278 Ill.Dec. 92, 797 N.E.2d 687. However, when the plaintiff is foreign to his chosen forum or the events that gave rise to the litigation did not occur in that forum, that assumption is less reasonable and his choice is afforded less deference.	Does a plaintiffs choice of forum deserve less deference when the plaintiff is foreign to his chosen forum?
7336	Begay v. Pub. Serv. Co. of N.M., 710 F. Supp. 2d 1161, 1192 (D.N.M. 2010)	71	When a claim by Indians to enforce property rights is based on federal common law, there is no applicable federal statute of limitations.	When a claim by Indians to enforce property rights is based on federal common law, however, there is no applicable federal statute of limitations.	Is there a federal statute of limitations when a claim by Indians to enforce property rights is based on federal common law?
7338	Dep't of Transp. v. Webster, 230 N.C. App. 468, 477, 751 S.E.2d 220, 226 (2013)	12	Although the state must compensate for property rights taken by eminent domain, damages resulting from the exercise of the police power are noncompensable.	Although "[t]he state must compensate for property rights taken by eminent domain[,] damages resulting from the exercise of the police power are noncompensable."	Are damages resulting from the exercise of police power under eminent domain compensable?

7340	Peoples Energy Corp. v. Illinois Commerce Comm'n, 142 Ill. App. 3d 917, 930 (1986)	7	Mere fact that thing sold by company is water or gas or electricity or telephone service, such as are ordinarily sold by public utility companies, does not itself render the seller a "public utility."	The mere fact that the thing sold by a company is water or gas or electricity or telephone service, such as are ordinarily sold by public utility companies, does not of itself render the seller a public utility.	"Does the fact that a company sells heat, cold, water, electricity or any of the various other things usually sold by public utilities make an enterprise a public utility?"
7341	Illinois Highway Transp. Co. v. Hantel, 323 Ill.App. 364, 376 (1944)	5	Whether a given business or industry is a "public utility" depends upon the public character of the business or service rendered which makes its regulation a matter of public consequence and concern because it affects the whole community.	Whether a given business or industry is a public utility depends upon the public character of the business or service rendered, which makes its regulation a matter of public consequence and concern because it affects the whole community.	Is the operation of an entity as a public utility determined by the character of the business in which it is engaged?
7342	Ying Li v. City of New York, 246 F. Supp. 3d 578, 611 (E.D.N.Y. 2017)	38	For a malicious prosecution claim under New York law, probable cause to prosecute consists of facts and circumstances that would lead a reasonably prudent person to believe the plaintiff guilty.	For a malicious prosecution claim, probable cause to prosecute consists of "facts and circumstances [that] would lead a reasonably prudent person to believe the plaintiff guilty."	What constitute probable cause in a malicious prosecution claim?
7345	Ralph v. State Dep't of Nat. Res., 171 Wash. App. 262, 266 (2012)	3	In rem proceedings are local in nature, whereas a transitory action is one which at common law may be tried wherever personal service can be obtained.	In rem proceedings are local in nature, whereas a transitory action is one that at common law may be tried wherever personal service can be obtained.	Can transitory actions be tried wherever personal service can be obtained?
7347	Merlo v. Pub. Serv. Co. of N. Illinois, 381 Ill. 300, 313 (Ill. 1943)	21	Persons engaged in transmission of electricity are not "insurers" of safety of public, but they are bound to know the dangers incident to handling electricity and to guard against such dangers by exercise of care commensurate with them.	Persons engaged in the transmission of electricity are not insurers of the safety of the public, but they are bound to know the dangers incident to handling electricity and to guard against such dangers by the exercise of care commensurate with them.'	Are persons engaged in the transmission of electricity insurers of the safety of the public?
7348	Glade v. Dietert, 156 Tex. 382, 387 (1956)	2	To constitute trespass, entry upon another's land need not be in person, but may be made by causing or permitting a thing to cross boundary of premises.	To constitute a trespass 'entry upon another's land need not be in person, but may be made by causing or permitting a thing to cross the boundary of the premises.'	Can a person be held liable for trespass if they cause or permit a thing to cross the boundary of a property?
7349	People v. Sims, 32 Cal. 3d 468, 479, 651 P.2d 321, 327 (1982)	8	Collateral estoppel may be applied to decisions made by administrative agencies when an administrative agency is acting in a judicial capacity and resolves disputed issues of fact properly before it which the parties have had an adequate opportunity to litigate.	Collateral estoppel may be applied to decisions made by administrative agencies "[w]hen an administrative agency is acting in a judicial capacity and resolves disputed issues of fact properly before it which the parties have had an adequate opportunity to litigate"	Is the doctrine of collateral estoppel applicable to administrative proceedings?

7351	Conti v. United States, 291 F.3d 1334, 1339 (Fed. Cir. 2002)	2	A "categorical taking," which is defined as one in which all economically viable use has been taken by the regulatory imposition, is distinct from a taking that is the consequence of a regulatory imposition that prohibits or restricts only some of the use that would otherwise be available to the property owner but leaves the property owner with substantial economic use. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	A categorical taking has been defined as one in which "all economically viable use, i.e., all economic value has been taken by the regulatory imposition." Palm Beach Isles Assocs. v. United States, 231 F.3d 1354, 1357 (Fed.Cir.2000). A categorical taking is distinct from a taking "that is the consequence of a regulatory imposition that prohibits or restricts only some of the use that would otherwise be available to the property owner but leaves the property owner with substantial economic use." Id.	What does the term categorical taking encompass?
7353	Ziober v. BLB Res., Inc., 839 F.3d 814, 817 (9th Cir. 2016)	3	The Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) requires courts to rigorously enforce arbitration agreements according to their terms, including agreements to arbitrate claims arising under federal statutes. 9 U.S.C.A. S 3.	The FAA requires courts to " 'rigorously enforce' arbitration agreements according to their terms," including agreements to arbitrate claims arising under federal statutes.	Does the Federal Arbitration Act require courts to enforce arbitration agreements according to their terms?
7354	Picard v. Credit Sols., 564 F.3d 1249, 1253 (11th Cir. 2009)	3	Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) provides for enforcement of arbitration agreements within full reach of the Commerce Clause. U.S.C.A. Const. Art. 1, S 8, cl. 3; 9 U.S.C.A. S 1 et seq.	The FAA creates a strong federal policy in favor of arbitration. The FAA "provides for 'the enforcement of arbitration agreements within the full reach of the Commerce Clause.' "	Does the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) provide for the enforcement of arbitration agreements within the full reach of the Commerce Clause?
7355	Crook v. Sheehan Enterprises, 740 S.W.2d 333, 335 (Mo. Ct. App. 1987)	1	"Trespass" is unauthorized entry by person upon land of another, regardless of degree of force used, even if no damage is done, or injury is slight.	Trespass is the unauthorized entry by a person upon the land of another, regardless of the degree of force used, even if no damage is done, or the injury is slight.	"Can every unauthorized entry be a trespass, regardless of degree of force used?"
7356	Arakelian v. Omnicare, 735 F. Supp. 2d 22, 38 (S.D.N.Y. 2010)	14	With respect to employment contracts, matters of performance and breach are to be determined by the law of the place of performance, or, in the alternative, by the law of the state having the most significant contacts with the matter in dispute.	With respect to employment contracts, "the matters of performance and breach are to be determined by the law of the place of performance, or, in the alternative, by the law of the state having the most significant contacts with the matter in dispute."	"With respect to employment contracts, does the matters of performance and breach are to be determined by the law of the place of performance?"
7360	Bekele v. Lyft, 199 F. Supp. 3d 284, 294 (D. Mass. 2016)	8	To determine whether a valid agreement to arbitrate exists, federal courts generally apply ordinary state-law principles that govern the formation of contracts.	To determine whether a valid agreement to arbitrate exists, federal courts generally "apply ordinary state-law principles that govern the formation of contracts."	Which principles of law do courts apply to determine validity of arbitration agreement?
7361	Kelly v. Exxon Corp., 35 Md. App. 272, 282 (1977)	6	Dismissal by a magistrate at a preliminary hearing is prima facie evidence of want of probable cause for prosecution while acquittal after a trial is not.	It is undisputed that dismissal by a magistrate at a preliminary hearing is prima facie evidence of a want of probable cause while acquittal after a trial is not.	Is dismissal of charges at a preliminary hearing prima facie evidence of want of probable cause for a malicious prosecution action?

7364	Golden Years Homestead v. Buckland, 557 F.3d 457, 462 (7th Cir. 2009)	5	Malice, as required to establish a malicious prosecution claim, under Indiana law, may be shown by evidence of personal animosity or inferred from a complete lack of probable cause or a failure to conduct an adequate investigation under the circumstances.	Under Indiana law, Malice may be shown by evidence of personal animosity or inferred from a complete lack of probable cause or a failure to conduct an adequate investigation under the circumstances.	Can evidence of personal animosity show the malice required for malicious prosecution?
7366	Garris v. Governing Bd. of S.C. Reinsurance Facility, 333 S.C. 432, 453 (1998)	18	In the absence of any statutory or other controlling provision, the common-law rule that a majority of a whole administrative board is necessary to constitute a quorum applies, and the board may do no valid act in the absence of a quorum.	"In the absence of any statutory or other controlling provision, the common-law rule that a majority of the whole board is necessary to constitute a quorum applies, and the board may do no valid act in the absence of a quorum."	Is a majority of a whole administrative board necessary to constitute a quorum?
7368	Alabama Power Co. v. Cullman Cty. Elec. Membership Corp., 234 Ala. 396, 402 (1937)	9	A corporation organized under general laws applicable to all corporations may set out a purpose and have the power to engage in utility business, but not be a utility, until it engages in such service or holds itself out to do so.	A corporation organized under general laws applicable to all corporations may set out a purpose and have the power to engage in the utility business, but not be a utility until it engaged in such service or holds itself out to do so.	"When is a corporation, organized under the general laws applicable to all corporations, having the power to engage in the utility business a utility?"
7370	Goedmakers v. Goedmakers, 520 So. 2d 575, 578 (Fla. 1988)	4	Venue statute gives plaintiff the right to sue in any of three specific forums but that right is subject to the limitation of the common-law distinctions between local and transitory actions. West's F.S.A. S 47.011.	Although the venue statute gives plaintiffs the right to sue in any of three specific forums, that right is subject to the limitations of the common law distinctions between local and transitory actions.	Are venue statutes subject to the limitations of common law distinctions between local and transitory actions?
7371	State Farm Lloyds v. Rathgeber, 453 S.W.3d 87, 103–04 (Tex. App. 2014)	8	As far as constitutional takings principles are concerned, a governmental ratemaker is not bound to the use of any single formula or combination of formulae in determining rates. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5; Tex. Const. art. 1, S 17(a).	Thus, as far as constitutional takings principles are concerned, a governmental ratemaker "[i]s not bound to the use of any single formula or combination of formulae in determining rates."	Are governmental rate makers bound to use any single formula or combination of formulae in determining rates in takings?
7372	In re Plant Insulation Co., 485 B.R. 203, 217 (N.D. Cal. 2012)	7	Generally, bankruptcy power is subject to the Fifth Amendment's prohibition against taking private property without compensation. U.S.C.A. Const.Amend. 5.	Generally, of course, "[t]he bankruptcy power is subject to the Fifth Amendment's prohibition against taking private property without compensation." United States v.	Is the bankruptcy power subject to the Fifth Amendment's prohibition against taking private property without compensation?
7373	William J. Templeman Co. v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 316 Ill. App. 3d 379, 388, 735 N.E.2d 669, 678 (2000)	25	Termination of a prior proceeding in favor of the plaintiff is an essential element in a cause of action for malicious prosecution, which must be factually set forth in the complaint.	"It is well settled that 'the termination of a prior proceeding in favor of the plaintiff * * * is an essential element in a cause of action for malicious prosecution which must be factually set forth in the complaint.' "	Is it necessary to factually allege favorable termination of prior action in a malicious prosecution action?
7378	Gulf Coast Waste Disposal Auth. v. Four Seasons Equip., 321 S.W.3d 168, 176 (Tex. App. 2010)	19	A compensable regulatory taking can occur when a governmental unit imposes restrictions that either deny a property owner all economically viable use of its property or unreasonably interfere with the owner's right to use and enjoy the property. Vernon's Ann.Texas Const. Art. 1, S 17.	A compensable regulatory taking can occur when a governmental unit imposes restrictions that either deny a property owner all economically viable use of its property or unreasonably interfere with the owner's right to use and enjoy the property.	When does a compensable regulatory taking occur under the takings law?

7379	Owens v. Green, 321 S.W.3d 168, 176 (Tex. App. 2010)	4	An allegation of conspiracy, collusion and fraud must show the facts upon which the allegation is based, and a general charge that a party acted fraudulently or was guilty of fraud is a statement of a conclusion.	An allegation of conspiracy, collusion and fraud must show the facts upon which the allegation is based, and a general charge that a party acted fraudulently or was guilty of fraud is a statement of a conclusion and is not good pleading.	Is a general charge that a party acted fraudulently a conclusion?
7381	Hosszu v. Barrett, 202 F. Supp. 3d 1101, 1105 (D. Ariz. 2016)	1	To survive a motion to dismiss, a plaintiff bringing a defamation claim must not only establish that the statements about which she complains are reasonably capable of sustaining a defamatory meaning, she must also show that they are not mere comment within the ambit of the First Amendment. U.S. Const. Amend. 1; Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6).	"[T]o survive [a] motion to dismiss, [a plaintiff] must not only establish that the [statements] about which [she] complain[s] are reasonably capable of sustaining a defamatory meaning, [she] must also show that they are not mere comment within the ambit of the First Amendment."	How can a plaintiff survive a motion to dismiss a defamation claim?
7384	In re Stone & Webster, 373 B.R. 353, 363 (Bankr. D. Del. 2007)	13	As equitable doctrine, subrogation should be applied only in the exercise of a proper equitable discretion, with due regard for legal and equitable rights of others.	As an equitable doctrine, subrogation should only be applied in the "exercise of a proper equitable discretion, with a due regard for the legal and equitable rights of others."	"As equitable doctrine, should subrogation be applied only in the exercise of a proper equitable discretion, with due regard for legal and equitable rights of others?"
7385	Messner v. Am. Union Ins. Co., 119 S.W.3d 642, 649 (Mo. Ct. App. 2003)	9	Although subrogation originated as a common law equitable doctrine that had as its aim the advancement of justice and the prevention of injustice, the right to invoke the doctrine of subrogation may be contractual.	Although subrogation originated as a common law equitable doctrine that had as its aim the advancement of justice and the prevention of injustice, Metmor Fin., Inc. v. Landoll Corp., 976 S.W.2d 454, 461[8] (Mo.App.1998), "the right to invoke the doctrine of subrogation may be contractual." Anison v.	Is advancement of justice and prevention of injustice the goal of the doctrine of equitable subrogation?
7386	New Hampshire Ins. Co. v. Kansas Power & Light Co., 212 Kan. 456, 457 (1973)	2	Right of subrogation of insurer arises by operation of law without regard to whether there is any provision in insurance policy or any writing declaring such right; it is creature of equity and does not spring from contract.	The right of subrogation of an insurer arises by operation of law without regard to whether there is any provision in the insurance policy or any writing declaring such right; it is a creature of equity and does not spring from contract.	Is the right of subrogation based on a contract or an equitable right that arises by operation of law?
7389	Cotter Corp. v. Am. Empire Surplus Lines Ins. Co., 90 P.3d 814, 833 (Colo. 2004)	25	Although subrogation can occur by contract, equitable subrogation is an equitable principle that allows a party secondarily liable who has paid the debt of the party who is primarily liable to institute a recovery action in order to be made whole.	Although subrogation can occur by contract, equitable subrogation is an equitable principle that allows "a party secondarily liable who has paid the debt of the party who is primarily liable [to] institute a recovery action in order to be made whole."	Does a subrogation right secure the repayment of a secondarily liable party?

7390	In re Mr. R's Prepared Foods, 251 B.R. 24, 29 (D. Conn. 2000)	10	It is generally held that, when guarantor honors his guarantee by paying debt, he is, at least as against the debtor primarily liable, subrogated to all the rights and remedies of creditor, even without formal assignment of debt or judgment.	"It is generally held that in equity when one standing in such a relation (guarantor) pays he is, at least as against the debtor primarily liable, subrogated to all the rights and remedies of the creditor, and this even without a formal assignment of the debt or judgment.	Does the doctrine of equitable subrogation give a guarantor the right to be subrogated to any and all rights that a creditor or subrogor has against the debtor?
7391	Am. Safety Equip. Corp. v. J. P. Maguire & Co., 391 F.2d 821, 825 (2d Cir. 1968)	4	The remedy a statute provides for violation of the statutory right it creates may be sought, not only in any court of competent jurisdiction, but also in any other competent tribunal, such as arbitration, unless right itself is of a character inappropriate for enforcement by arbitration. 9 U.S.C.A. SS 2-4, 6.	We think that the remedy a statute provides for violation of the statutory right it creates may be sought not only in any 'court of competent jurisdiction' but also in any other competent tribunal, such as arbitration, unless the right itself is of a character inappropriate for enforcement by arbitration.	When can parties choose arbitration for violations of statutory rights?
7393	Norman v. Bozeman, 605 So. 2d 1210, 1213 (Ala. 1992)	1	While law presumes that property purchased with partnership funds is partnership property, mere use of partnership funds does not necessarily make property the property of the partnership; question becomes one of intention: whether particular circumstances of case indicate that property acquired with partnership funds was intended to be partnership property.	While it is true that the law presumes that property purchased with partnership funds is partnership property, the mere use of partnership funds does not necessarily make the property the property of the partnership; the question becomes one of intention-whether the particular circumstances of the case indicate that the property acquired with partnership funds was intended to be partnership property.	Is property acquired with partnership funds a partnership property?
7394	Krengiel v. Lissner Corp., 250 Ill. App. 3d 288, 294 (1993)	10	Party whose motion in limine has been denied must object when the challenged evidence is presented at trial in order to preserve issue for review, and failure to raise such objection constitutes waiver of issue on appeal.	Consequently, a party whose motion in limine has been denied must object when the challenged evidence is presented at trial in order to preserve the issue for review, and the failure to raise such an objection constitutes a waiver of the issue on appeal.	Is a trial court's ruling on a motion in limine interlocutory and subject to change during the course of trial?
7396	One Bluff Drive v. K.A.P., 330 Ga. App. 45, 51-52 (2014)	16	By its very nature, grant of motion in limine excluding evidence suggests that there is no circumstance under which evidence under scrutiny is likely to be admissible at trial, and in light of that absolute, grant of motion in limine excluding evidence is judicial power which must be exercised with great care.	By its very nature, the grant of a motion in limine excluding evidence suggests that there is no circumstance under which *52 the evidence under scrutiny is likely to be admissible at trial. In light of that absolute, 515 the grant of a motion in limine excluding evidence is a judicial power which must be exercised with great care.	Is a motion in limine properly granted when there is no circumstance under which the evidence under scrutiny is likely to be admissible at trial?

7399	Brokamp v. Mercy Hosp. Anderson, 132 Ohio App. 3d 850, 859, 726 N.E.2d 594, 600-01 (1999)	2	"Motion in limine" is a tentative, interlocutory, precautionary ruling by a trial court reflecting its anticipatory treatment of an evidentiary issue; in virtually all circumstances, finality does not attach when the motion is granted.	A motion in limine "is a tentative, interlocutory, precautionary ruling by a trial court reflecting its anticipatory treatment of an evidentiary issue. In virtually all circumstances finality does not attach when the motion is granted."	Does finality attach when a motion in limine is granted?
7400	Duran v. Hyundai Motor Am., 271 S.W.3d 178, 192 (Tenn. Ct. App. 2008)	4	A "motion in limine" provides a vehicle for requesting guidance from the trial court prior to trial regarding an evidentiary question which the court may provide, at its discretion, to aid the parties in formulating their trial strategy.	A motion in limine provides a vehicle for requesting guidance from the trial court prior to trial regarding an evidentiary question which the court may provide, at its discretion, to aid the parties in formulating their trial strategy.	"Does a ""motion in limine"" enable a trial court, prior to trial, to exclude anticipated evidence that would clearly be inadmissible for any purpose at trial?"
7404	Luling Oil & Gas Co. v. Humble Oil & Ref. Co., 144 Tex. 475, 482, 191 S.W.2d 716, 721 (1945)	5	The "accrual of a cause of action" means the right to institute and maintain a suit, and whenever one person may sue another a cause of action has "accrued".	The accrual of a cause of action means the right to institute and maintain a suit, and whenever one person may sue another a cause of action has accrued.	Does accrual of cause of action mean right to institute and maintain suit?
7405	Band's Refuse Removal v. Borough of Fair Lawn, , 62 N.J. Super. 522, 540, 163 A.2d 465, 474 (App. Div. 1930)	5	Generally, a cause of action is deemed to accrue when facts exist which authorize one party to maintain an action against another.	Generally, a cause of action is deemed to accrue when facts exist which authorized one party to maintain an action against another.	Is a cause of action deemed to accrue when facts exist which authorize one party to maintain an action against another?
7406	In re Lather's Estate, 215 Wis. 151, 251 N.W. 466, 469 (1933)	6	A cause of action does not accrue until the party owning it is entitled to begin and prosecute an action thereon; it accrues at the moment when he has a legal right to sue on it and no earlier.	"A cause of action does not accrue until the party owning it is entitled to begin and prosecute an action thereon; it accrues at the moment when he has a legal right to sue on it and no earlier."	"Does a cause of action ""accrue"" before the party owning it is entitled to begin and prosecute action thereon?"
7407	Congregation Jeshuat Israel v. Congregation Shearith Israel, I, 186 F. Supp. 3d 158, 211 (D.R.I. 2016)	33	Although a charitable trust must benefit the public at large, oftentimes the settlor directs that his bounty be distributed among a class or group, which serves as the conduit through which the settlor desires the public benefits to flow.	Although a charitable trust must benefit the public at large, oftentimes "the settlor directs that his bounty be distributed among a class or group," which serves as the "conduit through which the settlor desires the public benefits to flow."	Should beneficiaries of charitable trust be the public at large?
7408	United States v. Felix-Gutierrez, 940 F.2d 1200, 1205 (9th Cir. 1991)	8	Law of nations permits exercise of criminal jurisdiction by nation under five general principles: territorial, national, protective, universality, and passive personality.	The law of nations permits the exercise of criminal jurisdiction by a nation under five general principles: territorial, national, protective, universality, and passive personality.	What are the five general principles under which the law of nations permits the exercise of criminal jurisdiction?
7409	Provincial Gov't of Marinduque v. Placer Dome, 582 F.3d 1083, 1089 (9th Cir. 2009)	14	Even though the validity of the act of a foreign sovereign within its own territory is called into question, the policies underlying the act of state doctrine may not justify its application.	"[E]ven though the validity of the act of a foreign sovereign within its own territory is called into question, the policies underlying the act of state doctrine may not justify its application."	Can the policies underlying the act of state doctrine justify its application?

7411	Du Daobin v. Cisco Sys., 2 F. Supp. 3d 717, 726 (D. Md. 2014)	10	The act of state doctrine's purpose is to prevent judicial pronouncements that would disrupt the foreign relations of the United States.	"The doctrine's purpose is to prevent judicial pronouncements that would disrupt this country's foreign relations."	Is the purpose of the act of state doctrine to prevent judicial pronouncements that would disrupt foreign relations of the United States?
7412	George Lawrence v. Brodie, 302 Mass. 557, 560, 20 N.E.2d 413, 414-15 (1939)	4	A general averment that a defendant owes a plaintiff is a mere statement of a conclusion of law from facts previously stated and is not an allegation of a distinct substantive fact and is not admitted on demurrer.	It is also true that a general averment that a defendant owes a plaintiff is a mere statement of a conclusion of law from facts previously stated, is not an allegation 415 of a distinct substantive fact, and is not admitted on demurrer.	Is an averment that the defendant owes the plaintiff admitted on demurrer?
7413	Allied Prop. & Cas. Ins. Co. v. Good, 919 N.E.2d 144, 151 (Ind.App.,2009)	1	A ruling on a motion in limine is not final on the admissibility of evidence and instead is designed to prevent mention of prejudicial material to the jury before the trial court has had the opportunity to consider its admissibility.	A ruling on a motion in limine is not final on the admissibility of evidence and instead is designed to prevent mention of prejudicial material to the jury before the trial court has had the opportunity to consider its admissibility.	Are motions in limine designed to produce a trial without the introduction of prejudicial material?
7414	Woods v. Schmitt, 439 N.W.2d 855, 865 (Iowa 1989)	13	Application for separate adjudication of law points is properly considered only when questions of law arise from uncontroverted facts that appear in pleadings. Rules Civ.Proc., Rule 105.	An application for separate adjudication of law points is properly considered only when the questions of law arise from uncontroverted facts which appear in the pleadings.	Is an application for separate adjudication of law points considered only when questions of law arise from uncontroverted pleadings?
7415	Heidelberg v. State, 36 S.W.3d 668, 673 (Tex. App. 2001)	12	When a trial court issues an order granting a motion in limine, the opposing party has a duty to comply with that order and to instruct the witnesses to do the same.	When a trial court issues an order granting such a motion, the opposing party has a duty to comply with that order and to instruct the witnesses to do the same.	"When the trial court grants a motion in limine, does the opposing party have a duty to comply with the ruling and instruct the witnesses to do so as well?"
7416	Chicago Exhibitors Corp. v. Jeepers! of Illinois, 376 Ill. App. 3d 599, 606, 876 N.E.2d 129, 136 (2007)	1	A motion in limine is addressed to the trial court's inherent power to admit or exclude evidence, and, generally, the Appellate Court will not disturb the trial court's ruling on a motion in limine absent a clear abuse of discretion.	"A motion in limine is addressed to the trial court's inherent power to admit or exclude evidence," and, generally, this "court will not disturb the trial court's ruling on a motion in limine absent a clear abuse of discretion."	Does a trial court has the inherent power to deny or grant a motion in limine?
7418	Shark v. Thompson, 373 N.W.2d 859, 864 (N.D. 1985)	9	"Motion in limine" is a procedural tool used to insure that potentially prejudicial evidentiary matters are not discussed in presence of jury.	A motion in limine is a procedural tool used to ensure that potentially prejudicial evidentiary matters are not discussed in the presence of the jury.	Is a motion in limine a procedural tool to ensure that potentially prejudicial evidentiary matters are not discussed in the presence of the jury?
7420	Murray v. Payne, 437 So. 2d 47, 52 (Miss. 1983)	4	A surety's right of subrogation, recognized by statute, is his equitable right to assert rights of creditor against debtor; upon payment, surety is said to "stand in the shoes" of the creditor. Code 1972, S 75-3-415.	A surety's right of subrogation, recognized by the above statute, is his equitable right to assert the rights of the creditor against the debtor. Upon payment, the surety is said to "stand in the shoes" of the creditor.	"Is a surety's right of subrogation, recognized by statute, or his equitable right to assert rights of a creditor against a debtor?"

7421	ADP Marshall v. Noresco, 710 F. Supp. 2d 197, 245–46 (D.R.I. 2010)	24	Although subrogation may originate from a contractual agreement, it is a creature of equity, is enforced solely for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of substantial justice, and is independent of any contractual relations between the parties.	Although subrogation may originate from a contractual agreement, "[i]t is a creature of equity; it is enforced solely for the purpose of accomplishing the ends of substantial justice; and is independent of any contractual relations between the parties."	Is subrogation independent of any contractual relations between the parties?
7422	Jo Ann Howard & Assocs., P.C. v. Cassity, 868 F.3d 637, 647 (8th Cir. 2017)	9	Under Missouri law, "in pari delicto defense" provides that a person cannot maintain an action if, in order to establish his cause of action, he must rely, in whole or in part, on an illegal or immoral act or transaction to which he is a party.	The in pari delicto defense provides that "a person cannot maintain an action if, in order to establish his cause of action, he must rely, in whole or in part, on an illegal or immoral act or transaction to which he is a party."	What is it called if a cause of action rests on an illegal act?
7423	Onwukwe v. Ike, 137 S.W.3d 159, 165 (Tex. App. 2004)	17	"Restricted appeal" is only available when (1) it is brought within six months after the trial court signs the judgment, (2) by a party to the suit, (3) who did not participate in the actual trial, and (4) the error complained of is apparent from the face of the record. Rules App.Proc., Rule 30.	Restricted appeal is only available when (1) it is brought within six months after the trial court signs the judgment, (2) by a party to the suit, (3) who did not participate in the "actual trial," and (4) the error complained of is apparent from the face of the record. TEX.R.APP. P. 30; Brown v.	When is a restricted appeal available?
7424	Granite Beach Holdings v. State ex rel. Dep't of Nat. Res., 103 Wash. App. 186, 205 (2000)	21	An action for inverse condemnation must be based upon an injury to a right in private property, and not merely a privilege. West's RCWA Const. Art. 1, S 16.	An action for inverse condemnation must be based upon an injury to a right in private property and not merely a privilege.	Should an action for inverse condemnation be based upon an injury to a right in private property and not merely a privilege?
7425	Libyan Am. Oil Co. v. Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahirya, 482 F.Supp. 1175, 1178 (D.C.D.C., 1980)	3	Practice counseling judicial abstention from passing on effectiveness of acts of foreign sovereigns is termed the "act of state doctrine."	The practice that counsels this judicial abstention from passing on the effectiveness of the acts of foreign sovereigns is termed the act of state doctrine.	Is the practice of judicial abstention from passing on effectiveness of acts of foreign sovereigns termed the act of state doctrine?
7426	Allied Bank Int'l v. Banco Credito Agrícola de Cartago, 757 F.2d 516, 521 (2d Cir. 1985)	6	The "act of state" doctrine demands case-by-case analysis of extent to which, in context of particular dispute, separation of powers concerns are implicated.	The doctrine demands a case-by-case analysis of the extent to which in the context of a particular dispute separation of powers concerns are implicated.	Does the act of state doctrine demand case-by-case analysis of extent to which separation of powers concerns are implicated?
7429	United States v. Cardales, 168 F.3d 548, 553 (1st Cir. 1999)	2	Under the "territorial principle" of international law, a state has jurisdiction to prescribe and enforce a rule of law in the territory of another state to the extent provided by international agreement with the other state.	Under the "territorial principle" of international law, a "state has jurisdiction to prescribe and enforce a rule of law in the territory of another state to the extent provided by international agreement with the other state."	"Under the territorial principle of international law, does a state have jurisdiction to prescribe and enforce a rule of law in the territory of another state?"
7430	Bandes v. Harlow & Jones, 852 F.2d 661, 666 (C.A.2 (N.Y.),1988)	1	Touchstone of act of state doctrine is principle of comity between nations; courts in one country should avoid inquiries respecting validity of acts executed by foreign sovereign within its territory.	The touchstone of the doctrine is the principle of comity between nations-courts in one country should avoid inquiries respecting the validity of the acts executed by a foreign sovereign within its territory.	Is a touchstone of the act of state doctrine a principle of comity between nations?

7432	Chapman v. Hubbard Woods Motors, 351 Ill. App. 3d 99, 110, 812 N.E.2d 389, 399 (2004)	21	Trial court's decision regarding whether an opinion has been adequately disclosed such that it may be admitted into evidence is also reviewed under the abuse of discretion standard.	In addition, a trial court's decision regarding whether an opinion has been adequately disclosed such that it may be admitted into evidence is also reviewed under the abuse of discretion standard.	Is the trial courts discretion to grant or deny a motion in limine reviewed under the same standard as an opinion of adequate disclosure?
7433	Smith v. Polsky, 796 S.E.2d 354, 358 (2017)	1	A "motion in limine" seeks pretrial determination of the admissibility of evidence proposed to be introduced at trial, and is recognized in both civil and criminal trials.	It is well established that [a] motion in limine seeks pretrial determination of the admissibility of evidence proposed to be introduced at *594 trial, and is recognized in both civil and criminal trials.	Does a motion in limine seek pretrial determination of the admissibility of evidence proposed to be introduced at trial?
7434	Sw. Elec. Power Co. v. Grant, 73 S.W.3d 211, 217 (Tex. 2002)	10	A regulatory agency's rate-making authority authorizes it to approve a tariff's provision limiting liability, because a limitation on liability is an inherent part of the rate the utility charges for its services.	[10] A regulatory agency's rate-making authority authorizes it to approve a tariff's provision limiting liability, because a limitation on liability is an inherent part of the rate the utility charges for its services.	Is the limitation on liability an inherent part of the rate a utility charges for its services?
7436	Lloyd Wood Const. Co. v. Con-Serv, 285 Ala. 409, 414 (1970)	1	As to subrogation rights, a surety does not stand in shoes of debtor whose performance he assured; rather, he takes position of creditor who has been satisfied by surety.	As to subrogation rights, a surety does not stand in the shoes of the debtor whose performance he assured; rather he takes the position of the creditor who has been satisfied by the surety.	"As to subrogation rights, does a surety stand in the shoes of a debtor whose performance he assured?"
7437	State v. Bennett, 307 Conn. 758, 765 (2013)	12	In order to be convicted under murder statute, the defendant must possess the specific intent to cause the death of the victim.	"In order to be convicted under our murder statute, the defendant must possess the specific intent to cause the death of the victim....	Should the defendant possess the specific intent to cause the death of the victim in order to be convicted under murder statute?
7438	Greer v. Skyway Broad. Co., 256 N.C. 382, 391 (1962)	4	Any written or spoken words or pictures falsely imputing that one is guilty of crime of rape or robbery are actionable per se, as charging crimes involving moral turpitude.	Any written or spoken words or pictures falsely imputing that a person is guilty of the crime of rape or robbery are actionable per se, because these crimes involve moral turpitude.	Are words that falsely impute that a person is guilty of the crime of robbery actionable per se?
7439	Wall v. City of Durham, 41 N.C. App. 649, 659, 255 S.E.2d 739, 745 (1979)	1	Public utility, whether publicly or privately owned, may not unreasonably discriminate in distribution of its services or establishment of rates. G.S. SS 160A-312, 160A-314(a).	A public utility, whether publicly or privately owned, may not unreasonably discriminate in the distribution of its services or the establishment of rates.	Can a publicly or privately owned public utility discriminate in the distribution of its services or establishment of rates?
7442	Biosafe-One v. Hawks, 639 F. Supp. 2d 358, 368 (S.D.N.Y. 2009)	17	Under New York law, to prevail on a claim of trespass to chattels, plaintiffs must prove the following four elements: (1) defendants acted with intent, (2) to physically interfere with (3) plaintiffs' lawful possession, and (4) harm resulted.	To prevail on a claim of trespass to chattels, plaintiffs must prove the following four elements: (1) defendants acted with intent, (2) to physically interfere with (3) plaintiffs' lawful possession, and (4) harm resulted.	What has to be proven to prevail on a claim of trespass to chattels?
